kings, &c. 536, & seq. Honours paid to their dead ones, 539, 540. Political division of their kingdom, 540. Reverence to their priests, 541. Their military men, ib. & 542. Skill in horsemanship, &c. ib. & seq. Husbandmen and shepherds, 543. Courts of justice, 545. Remarkable laws, 546, & seq. Religion, 549, & seq. Affirmed the first rearers of altars, &c. ib. Worship animals and vegetables, 551. The former maintained, fed, and buried, at a vast charge, 559, 560, & seq. Reasons alledged for their worship, 562. The origin of it, ib. & seq. Human sacrifices, 566, & seq. Temples, 567. Education, 568. Dislike of music, wrestling, &c. ib. Diet, ib. Aversion to swines flesh, 569. Entertainments, ib. & seq. Circumcision, ib. & seq. Dress, ib. & seq. Womens employ, 571. Belief of the immortality of the soul, ib. Funerals, embalming, &c. ib. & seq. Sepulchres, 577, & seq. Early wisdom and learning, 578. Geometry, astronomy, &c. invented and cultivated by them, 579 to 583. Natural philosophy, 584. Physic, 580. Magic, 584. Painting, carving, &c. 587. Method of preserving learning, 589. Literary monuments, ib. Hieroglyphics, &c. 590, & seq. Three different ways of writing, 591. Three sorts of characters explained, ib. & seq. & n. Trade, navigation, and aversion to the sea, 597, & seq. Their chronology, 273, & seq. Dynasties, 601, & seq. Kings, 601, & seq. Their theology according to Eusebius, 99, & seq. The cause of their aversion to the Jews, ii. 509. Famine under Joseph, 479, & seq. Reduced by the Persians, 77, 78, & seq. To the lowest slavery, 78, 79. Their fabulous history, 3, & seq. Table of their gods, demi-gods, before the flood, 274, & seq. Plagues under Moses, 559, & seq. First-born slain, 574. Drowned in the Red-sea, 575, & seq. When to be received into the Israelitish congregation, iii. 32. The state of it under the Ptolemies, ix. 173, & seq. A list of them, ib. Why disaffected to the Persians, viii. 201.

Egyptian astronomers, their flattery to Alexander, viii. 210.

Ehud, second judge of Israel, stabs Eglon, ii. 110. iii. 494. Whether the action is justifiable, ii. 111, n.

† Ekron, Accaron, a city of Palestine, ii. 222. The worship of Baalzebub there, ibid.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Elah, king of Israel, murdered by Zimri, ii. 259, iv. 89.

† — the valley of, where David slew Goliath, iii. 117.

† Elam, one of the chiefs of the line of Shem, i. 458. The father of the Persians, iv. 503, & 504, n.

† — the kingdom of, where situate, iv. 396, 503, & 504, n. Subdued by Nabuchadnezzar, ib. & n.

† Elatea, taken by Philip, vi. 358. viii. 116.

† Elath, a sea-port on the Arabic gulph, ii. 115. Taken by David, 156. By Hazael, 324, n. By Azariah, ib. Retaken and colonied by Rezin, 323, & n.

Elbis, the devil, according to the Mohammedans, i. 181.

† Elbo, island, how formed, ii. 57.

Elbæsus, Sanchoniatho's history dedicated to, ii. 369.

Eldad and Medad prophesy in Moses's camp, iii. 5, n.

— a spurious book quoted by Hermes, ib. n.

Eldod's inveteracy against Hengist, xix. 21.

† Elea, where situate, ix. 22, n.

Eleans league with the Athenians, vi. 290, & 291, n. Invaded by the Spartans, 465, & seq. Make peace with them, ib. Join with Antiochus, vii. 38.

Eleatic sect, an account of, i. 84, 85.

Eleatus settles in Phœcis, vi. 10. The founder of Elatea, 32.

Eleazar, the son of Aaron, ii. 549. Makes the censers of Korah into a covering for the altar, iii. 17. Installed by Moses into his father's dignity, 22.

— reproves Izates's hypocrisy, ix. 637.

— made high-priest, x. 81. Sends the seventy interpreters to Ptolemy, 84, n.

— a venerable Jew, martyred, x. 118. A surly Pharisee's affront to Hyrcan, x. 205, & n.

— a foolish priest betrays the sacred treasury, x. 248.

— the son of Annas, made high-priest, x. 413. Carried off by the sicarii, 571. Murdered by the Zelots, 576.

— head of the Zelots, defeats the Romans, x. 576. Made governor of Idumea, 578.

— a worthy priest, opposes the Zelots, x. 594, 595. Surprised by Gischala, 598. His desperate end at Massada, 620.

— a gigantic Jew, sent to Rome, xiv. 47.

Electra, the mother of Dardanus, v. 537. & seq.

Elements, all revered by the Persians, v. 41. Laws and method for preserving them pure, ib. &c.

† Elephantis, where sited, xviii. 154, & 164.

† Elephantophagi, who, and where sited, xviii. 94.

Elephants rout the Romans, ix. 555. A remedy found against it, 562, 567. When first led in triumph at Rome, xii. 89. One hundred and four follow that of Metellus, 134. Baited to death afterwards, 135. Long dreaded by the Romans, xvii. 267. Brought at first with Indian leaders, 268, & n. When first used by the Carthaginians, 293, n. How forced over the Rhosne, 347. Remarks on that docil animal, ib. n.

Elephenor kills his grandfather, vii. 650. Banished, ib. Killed before Troy, ib.

Eleric's stratagem to find out his treacherous subjects, xvi. 367. Turns christian, and abdicates, 368.

Elefbaan subdues the Homerites, xviii. 169. Turns christian, ib. & seq. His character, ib. n.

Eleus, king of Elis, vi. 71, & n.

Eleusians murdered by the thirty tyrants, vi. 325.

† Eleufina damaged by the overflow of the Cephissus, xiv. 619.

— the high-priest of, his magical tricks with Julian, xv. 527.

† Eleufis, a sea-port of Attica, v. 640, & 641, n. The rites of Ceres performed there, vii. 65, n.

† Eleuthera, a city in Crete, described, vii. 462. Taken by Metellus, 483. Her walls broken with vinegar, xvii. 356.

Eleutherus sent exarch into Italy, xix. 524. His treason and death, 526.

Elfs sacrificed to by the Saxons, xix. 12.

Eli, high-priest and judge of Israel, iii. 519. Shameful remifness to his sons, 520. Threatened by a prophet from God, 523. His unhappy end, 525.

Eli, Eli, &c. ps. xxii. in what sense to be understood, x. 513, & n. & seq. n. In what language, ib.

Eliakim. See Jehoiakim, iv. 172.

Elias, the Bosphoran king, defeats and kills Justinian, xvi. 355.

Eliashab, an unworthy jewish priest, x. 54. His death, 60.

Elijah, the prophet, many particulars relating to him, iv. 90, 91, n. Meeting with Ahab, 92. Zeal against Baal, 93.

† Elim,

I N D E X to the

- † Elim, one of the Israelitish encampments, ii. 591.
- † Elis, the kingdom of, part, of anti-ent Greece, v. 604. Whence so named, vi. 66. Its situation, extent, &c. ib. By whom founded, 70. Its kings, &c. ib. & seq. Ruined by war and pestilence, 74.
- † ——— metropolis of that kingdom, vi. 67. See also vol. i. 472.
- Elisa, the eighth son of Japhet, i. 350.
- Dido, her husband murdered by Pygmalion, ii. 380, & seq. Flees into Afric, ib. The time of her coming to Carthage, xvi. 558. Whether she founded it, ib. Worshipped there, 632. Her flight from Tyre, xvii. 3. Touching at Cyprus, 4, 5. Settling in Afric, 6. Death, 9, 10. Character, ib. Whether cotemporary with Æneas, ib.
- Elisabeth, the wife of Aaron, ii. 549.
- the mother of John the baptist. Her pregnancy, x. 328, & seq.
- † Elisha, eldest son of Javan, where settled, i. 471, 472.
- the prophet, cures Naaman of his leprosy, ii. 316, & seq. Persecuted by Benhadad, 317. Foretels his death, and Hazael's treason, 319.
- Elium, in the Phœnician history, the same with Lamech, i. 262, n. Why that name given to Noah, 263, n.
- Ella defeats the Britons, xix. 20. Defeated, 21. Enlarges his kingdom, ib. & 22. His death, 28.
- Attila's son, made king of the Acatziri, xix. 59.
- Ellebichus sent to judge the Antiochians, xvi. 72. His severity softened, 73, 74.
- † Ellopia, in Eubœa by whom built, vii. 647.
- † Elon, not a plain, but an oak, ii. 399, n.
- one of the judges of Israel, iii. 519.
- Elpidius preserves Symmachus's writings, xvi. 110, n.
- Elul, the twelfth month of the jewish year, iii. 206, n.
- the fast of, in memory of the ill report of the ten spies, iii. 10.
- Elulæcus, king of Tyre, takes Gath, ii. 382. Defends Tyre against the Assyrians, ib. Disperses their fleet, ib. & seq.
- † Elyma, Elymais, where placed, i. 459. Whence so called, v. 542.
- † ——— a city of Macedon, viii. 8.
- † ——— the kingdom of, ix. 641, & seq.
- † Elyma, metropolis of, ix. 642.
- † ——— the temple of plundered, ix. 642.
- Elymas assists Agathocles, xvii. 173. Turns tail, and defeated by him, 174.
- Elymean kings, unknown by name, ix. 642.
- † Emathia, from whom so called, v. 547.
- † Emerita Augusta, by whom built, xiii. 376. New-colonied by Otho, xiv. 343. Described, xviii. 330.
- † Emeriti, veterans, why so called, xiii. 521, n.
- † Emessa, the kingdom of, described, ix. 634. The cathedral of, built by Constantius, xv. 511.
- † Emessans kill young Quietus, xv. 240. Put to the sword, ib. Surrendered to Aurelianus, 259.
- Emilianus, Scipio, passes mount Olympus, viii. 512.
- Emilius, Paul. succeeds against Perseus, viii. 511, 516. Speech to him, 521. Treatment of him, 522, & seq. New-models the Macedonian government, ib. & seq. Triumph, 528.
- † Emins the powerful descendants of Ham, ii. 103. Why called Moabites, ib. Driven out by them, ib.
- † Emmæus, whence so called, x. 403, n. & 404. Where situate, 414, n. Fortified by the Syrians, 166. Whence called Nicopolis, 620, n.
- Empedocles believed the world to be compounded of minute particles, i. 114. His two masters, 134. Physiology explained, ib. &c. Turns the stream of two rivers, vii. 149. His famed saying of the Agrigentines, xvii. 66.
- Emperor, the import of that title changed, xiii. 366. In Italy, their territories, xix. 596.
- Emponia's fidelity to her husband, xiv. 448. Put to death, 449.
- † Emporium taken by Hannibal, xvii. 48.
- † Empulum taken by the Romans, xi. 637.
- En Soph, of the Jews, i. 125.
- Enceladus's avarice raises a revolt in Gaul, xiii. 403. Buys his pardon, 414.
- † Encella taken by Dionysius, xvii. 117. By Timoleon, 134.
- Enchelæ chuse Cadmus their general, v. 665.
- Encratite Manichees, whence so called, xvi. 47.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Endortes, a Celtic general, taken and crucified, xvii. 314, n.

Endymion, king of Elis, the fable of, vi. 70, & n.

† England. See Britain, xviii. 646. Whence called Anglia and Saxony, xix. 10.

† English take some provinces from the Welsh, xix. 36.

† Engoulesme taken by the Franks, xix. 296.

† Engyumæ, city in Sicily, vii. 154. Spared by Marcellus, 386

† Enna, the city of, vii. 154. Taken by Dionysius, 234. Attempted, 267. Taken by Sicilian slaves, xii. 388. By the Agrigentines, xvii. 177, & n. By Hamilcar, 242. Betrayed to the Romans, 244.

Ennius, the poet, his writings, xii. 158. Instructs Cato in Sardinia, 298.

— Lucius, his frivolous trial, xiii. 617.

Ennon, the supposed son of Job, ii. 530.

Enoch translated into heaven, 236, 237, & n. Various opinions concerning him, ib. & seq.

— the spurious book of, i. 238, 239, & n. Some fragments of it, 246, n, & seq.

Enos, the son of Seth, when born, i. 235.

† Entella, surprised by the Campanians, vii. 233.

† Eordians, where seated, viii. 11.

Eoric, settles upon the Loyre, xvi. 227.

Eoster worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 21.

Epaminondas, defeats the Spartans in Bithynia vi. 499. Invades Laconia, 502. Rebuilds Messene, 503. Breaks into Peloponnesus, 504. Frustrated in his attempt against Sparta, 506. Against Mantinea, ib. Slain, ib.

— guardian to Philip, viii. 75, 76. His character, 77, n, & seq.

† Epanterii, who, xvii. 473.

Epaphroditus sent to watch Cleopatra, ix. 309.

— Sylla, why so called, xii. 582, n.

Epeus, the pretended contriver of the Trojan horse, vi. 70.

Ephesian letters, a proverb, vi. 115, & n.

† Ephesians, their pride, viii. 163.

† Ephesus, a city of Lydia, v. 487. Metropolis of Ionia, vii. 110. By whom built, v. 658, 659. Opens its gates to

VOL. XX.

Alexander, 207. Greatly enriched by him, ib. The antient and modern state of it, vii. 110. & seq. Tyrants of it, 114, 115. How devoted to Diana, 115. Ruined by Sylla, 137, & seq.

Ephesus taken by Antiochus, ix. 9.

— the temple of, the only one that escaped the Persian fury, v. 150. Spared by Demetrius, viii. 408. Plundered by the Goths, xix. 123.

Ephetæ, the court of, why instituted, v. 656. Their power, &c. vi. 98, 116.

Ephialtes, head of the Athenian party, vi. 230. His character, ib. & seq. Assassinated, 234.

† Ephira, by whom built, v. 557. The old name of Corinth, vi. 34.

Ephod of the Jewish high-priest described, iii. 261.

Ephori of Sparta, by whom instituted, vi. 411, & 412. Their office, ib. &c. Become tyrants, 527, & 528, n. Murdered, 539. How like the Carthaginian quinquevirs, xvi. 597.

Ephorus's writings and character, xv. 450, n. xvii. 44, n.

Ephraim born, ii. 482. Presented to and blest by Jacob, 483.

† — the tribe of, their lot in the promised land, iii. 103.

† — the wood of, iii. 120.

Ephraimites, defeated by Jephtha, iii. 518.

† Ephron, the Hittite, his generous behaviour to Abraham, ii. 196.

— taken by Judas Maccabeus, x. 147.

† Ephtotiles, who, and where sit, xvi. 59. Besiege Edessa, ib.

Elpinice, sister and concubine of Cimon, vi. 189, & 241, n. Her brave speech to Pericles, 252.

Epicharis, forwards the conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 237. Imprisoned, ib. Her signal constancy on the rack, 240. Death, 241.

Epicnemidia, part of antient Greece, v. 604. Whence so called, vi. 82.

Epicteetus, the famed philosopher, his character, &c. xiv. 650, n.

† — part of Phrygia Minor, v. 520.

Epicurus's atomic system, &c. considered, 114 115, & seq. Notion of the gods, 117, & seq.

Epicydes plots against Syracuse, vii. 348. Chosen prætor, 352. Cabals with the Leontines, 356. Commands in Syracuse, 375. Retires to Agrigentum, 376. Defeated, 388.

† Epidamnians, a colony of Corinth, vi. 253.

N

† Epidamnus,

† Epidamnus, in Macedon, described, viii. 6. n. Taken by the Corcyreans, 61.
 † Epidaurians, first peoplers of Ægina, vii. 634. Subdue it, 636, n. Submit to Glaucias, viii. 450.
 † Epidaurus, a famed sea-port in Lacedemon, vi. 49. Invaded by the Athenians, 294.
 † — the temple of, plundered by Sylla, vii. 80.
 Epigenes envied by Hermias, viii. 600. & seq. Murdered by him, 604.
 Epigeus, Autochthon, Uranus, i. 263, & seq. The heavens named from him, ibid.
 Epigoni, whence so called, v. 671. The war of, ib. & viii. 333.
 Epimenides expiates the Athenians, vi. 102.
 † Epiphania, a city in Cilicia Propria, v. 597.
 † Epipolæ, the hill of, described, vii. 145. Surprised by the Athenians, 194. Taken by the Romans, 372. Fortified by Dionysius, xvii. 76.
 † Epirots join with Antiochus, vii. 38. Subdued by the Romans, 96. Sold for slaves ib. & seq. Their character, ix. 532. Defeated at Argos, 572. Surrender, 576. & seq. Their commonwealth, 578.
 † Epirus, the kingdom of, described, vii. 95. Subdued and plundered by the Romans, ib. & seq. Its various fates since, 97. By whom peopled, ix. 531. & seq. Its government, ib. Plundered by the Gauls, xvi. 126. Seized by Michael Angelo, 508.
 Epistates, his office at Athens, vi. 136.
 † Epistropus, king of Lyncestus in Cilicia, v. 601.
 Epitus I. king of Arcadia, killed by a viper, vi. 11.
 — II. struck blind for his presumption, vi. 12.
 Epizelus, a surprising story of him, vi. 184.
 Eponymos, first archon of Athens, why so called, vi. 141.
 Epopeus, king of Sicyon, v. 617. Ravishes Antiope, 666. Dies of his wounds, 667.
 Epoptai at Athens, what, vii. 67, n.
 † Epordia, when built, xi. 256.
 † Eporedian, Ivrean slaves, whence so called, xiii. 376.
 Epulones, their first institution, xii. 300.
 Equestrian order forbid the arena, xiii. 469.

Equisco taken prisoner by the Goths, xvi. 20. Escapes and is slain, 21.
 Equitius, why set aside from the empire, xv. 574. Extortions in Illyricum, 583. Moderation to the Quadi, 604. Pursued by him, 605.
 — chosen tribune by force and murder, xii. 505, 507.
 Er, Judah's son, cut off for his wickedness, ii. 460.
 — the name of the Pamphylian Zo-roaster, v. 305.
 † Era fortified by the Messenians, vi. 421. Betrayed to the Lacedemonians, 423. & seq.
 Eraric, king of Italy, xix. 119, 478. Murdered, 479.
 Erasistratus's stratagem in favour of young Antiochus viii. 575, & seq.
 Eraclides, king of Rhodes, vii. 407.
 Eratosthenes's list of Theban kings considered, i. 621.
 — made keeper of the Alexandrian library, ix. 207. 208, & n. His writings and character, xviii. 76, n.
 Erato, the nymph, mother of king Azan, vi. 10.
 Erbessa made a Roman magazine, xii. 107. Delivered up to the Carthaginians, 108.
 † Erchenwin founds a fourth Saxon kingdom, xix. 30.
 Erdevirath, the story of, xi. 186. n.
 Erebus, in Aristophanes, what, i. 109.
 † Erech, a city in Chaldæa, i. 363, n.
 Erechtheus, king of Athens, v. 646. Founder of the rites of Ceres, vii. 66, n.
 † Eretrea, taken and destroyed by the Persians, v. 117.
 † Eretrean prisoners sent to people Cissia, v. 121.
 — betray the Athenians, vi. 513.
 † Eretria, a city in Eubœa, described, vii. 645.
 — the New, taken by the Romans, vii. 434. By Philip, 652.
 † — taken from the Athenians, xiii. 392.
 † Eretrian pillar, vii. 645.
 Eriethonius, king of Troas, v. 539.
 — of Athens, vi. 646. The fable of his birth, ib. n.
 Erigenes, a copier of Macrobius, xvii. 211, n.
 † Erigon, river, in Thessaly, vi. 16.
 † — in Macedon, viii. 22.
 † Erithra, by whom founded v. 659. Described vi. 108.
 † Erix

† Erix, in Sicily, described v. i. 151. 316. Surprized by the Romans, xii. 145. Retaken by Hamilcar, 149. Taken by Dionysius, xvii. 117. By Pyrrhus, 206. Razed by Hamilcar, 243. Taken by Barcas, 278.

Ermenegild, king of the Visigoths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Ermenric invaded by the Hunns, xvi. 12. Kills himself ib. See vol. xix. 46.

Ermeric, king of the Suevians in Spain, xvi. 180. His vain attempt on Galicia, 181. Driven out by Gonderic, 201. His treaty with the Galicians, 224. See vol. xix. 199, & seq.

Erna, and his Hunns, settle in Scythia Minor, xvi. 253.

Errius Potitius discovers a conspiracy, xii. 116.

† Erycina, Venus, rebuilt by Tiberius, xiii. 648.

Erylus, king of Byblus, ii. 369.

Eryfichthon, the son of Cecrops, his death, v. 645.

† Erythia island, where fited, xviii. 17, & n., & 350.

Eryxias, the last archon of Athens, v. 659.

Efarhaddon succeeds Sennacherib in Assyria, iv. 278. Unites Babylon to it, ib. Reduces Israel and Syria, 279. And Judah with king Manasse, ib. Egypt and Ethiopia, ib. & seq. His death, 281. Styled the great Asnapar, ib.

Esau born to Isaac, ii. 144. Sells his birthright, 145. Whence called Edom, ib. In what his birthright consisted, 146, n. Supplanted by his brother, 148. Removes to mount Seir, ib. Assists with Jacob at his father's funeral, 151. His character, 150, n. Descendants dukes of Edom, 160, 161.

† Escadia, where situate, xii. 361, n.

† Esdraelon, Segion, the plain of, iii. 117.

Esdras, the apocryphal book of, x. 47. n.

† Eserna made the magazine of the allies, xii. 525.

† Esiongeber, a sea-port in Edom, ii. 155.

Esik, partner with Hengist, xix. 18. Succeeds him, 21. His death, 28.

† Eskihiſſar. See Laodicea, v. 494.

Estates, laws against dissipating them, vi. 121.

† Estiolis, part of antient Greece, v. 604.

† Esquilian hill added to Rome xi. 357.

— a tribe added to the other three, xi. 357.

† Essa taken by Janneus, x. 219.

Essenians, why favoured by Herod, x. 282, n. Oppose his oath of fidelity, 306. A famous sect among the Jews, 363. Why not mentioned by the evangelists ib. Etymon of their name, ib. n. Their rise, ib. Austere life, ib. & seq. Faith and peculiar tenets, ib. & seq. Degeneracy and end, 370, 371.

† Essex, &c. seized on by the Saxons, xix. 18.

Esther, married to Ahashuerus, x. 24, & seq.

Esus, Hesus, the supreme deity with the Gauls, xviii. 408. Whence that name, 411, n. How worshipped, 413. & seq. When exchanged for Jupiter, 419. Worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 11.

Etearchus, king of Crete, vii. 479.

Eteocles, king of Thebes, his injustice to his brother, v. 633, 634. The cause of a bloody war, ib. & seq. 670. & seq. Kills himself, and is killed by him, ib.

† Ethan, the second encampment of the Israelites, ii. 579. Supposed the Butec of Herodotus, ib. n.

Ethbaal. See Ithobal, ii. 379.

† Etesian winds, whence so called, xiii. 78, & n.

Ethelbert raises civil wars among the Saxons, xix. 31.

† Ethiopia how divided, xviii. 84, 85.

† — Propria, its extent, xviii. 85. Names, ib. Why called Cush in Scripture, ib. & n. Its various nations, 92. Cities, 95, & n. Mountains, 96. Hot clime, 97. Season, 98. Soil, &c. 99. Beer, ib. & n. Lakes, &c. 106. Promontories and commerce, ib. & seq. Gold and other minerals, 110. Divided into forty-five kingdoms, 113. Its antiquity, kings, &c. 138, & seq. Subdued by Sesac, 143, & seq. By Cambyſes, 155. Penetrated by Ptolemy, 158. By Augustus, 161, & seq. By Probus, 163, & seq. The Zagæan, usurpation, 173, & seq.

† Ethiopians, how seated and divided, xvii. 89. Why black, 92. From whom descended, 110, 111. Whence and where settled, ib. & seq. Their antiquity, 112. Kingly government, 113. Laws, 114, & seq. Kings, how chosen, 113, 114, & 116. Their religion, deities, &c. 116, & seq. Worship of the sun, &c. 120. Language, 122. Its affinity to the Hebrew, &c. ib. & n. Its changes, 123. Hieroglyphics, 124, n. Alphabets, 126. Customs, 127. Weapons, 131. & n. Way of fighting, 133. Of preserving their dead, 134. Food, ib. Deify their kings, 135, & n. Character, 136, & seq. Kings.

Kings, whether descended from Solomon, 141, & seq. Conquer Egypt, 149. History, to the expulsion of the shepherds, ib. & seq. To the death of Sethon, 151, & seq. To Xerxes, 153, & seq. Serve under him, 156, & n. When converted, 163, 165. Reject Arianism, 167, & n.

Ethnarchy, what, x. 406.

† Etra, where situate, xi. 424.

† Etruria, part of Italia Propria, xi. 259. Described, ib. See the rest under Hetruria, ibid.

† Etruscan, the antient language of Magna Græcia, xvii. 341, n.

† Etruscans, their treachery to the Romans, xvii. 456. See Hetrurians, xi. 276.

Etruscilla, Heren. the wife of Decius, xv. 276.

—— his daughter, married to Gallus, xv. 221.

† Etruscus, king of Etruria, xi. 276.

—— the son of Decius, xv. 217. His death, 221.

Evagoras I. king of Cyprus, invaded by the Persians, v. 184. Forced to yield, 186. His attachment to them, vii. 497, & seq. Banished, 498.

—— II. his noble character, vii. 499. Subdues the whole island, 500. Invaded by the Persians, ib. & seq. Forced to a peace, 503. Murdered, ib.

—— III. driven out by his uncle, vii. 504. Put to death, 505.

—— king of Rhodes, vii. 407.

Evagrius's account of the Justinian war, xi. 147, n. Vain apology for Constantine IV. xv. 403.

Evander, a cowardly Cretan, his unlucky advice to Perseus, viii. 504. Hated by the Macedonians, 517. Put to death by Perseus, 518, 519.

—— introduces letters into Italy, xi. 268.

Evastus burnt alive, xv. 603.

† Eubœa, island, described, vii. 640, & seq. By whom first inhabited, 648. Its government, 649. Invaded by Philip, vii. 101.

—— invaded by the Athenians, vi. 173, 244. By the Persians, 178. Revolt, 313. Joined to Bœotia by an isthmus, 315. Taken by the Spartans, 478. By Antiochus, vii. 38.

Eubœans great mariners, vii. 649. Their tyrants, 652. By whom subdued, ib. & seq.

Eububezes succeeds Mohammed, xvi. 342. His conquests and death, ib.

Eubia, a Colchite beauty, married to Antiochus, vii. 39, 40.

Eucherius, the son of Stilicho, born, xvi.

118. Vain threats against christianity,

168. Put to death, 169.

Euclidas defeated at Selasia, vi. 570.

Eucolpius's writings and character, xv. 177, n.

Eucratides I. his character and death, ix. 631.

—— II. murders his father, ix. 631.

Eudamas's success against Antiochus, vii. 440. Defeats the Syrian fleet, 441.

Eudamidas's ill success in Thrace, vi. 497. Succeeds Agis, 512.

Eudemus, agent of Sejanus with Livia, xiii. 626. His punishment, 627.

Eudocia's extract and character, xvi. 202. Marriage to Theodosius, ib. & seq. Excellent poems, ib. & n. Declared Augusta, 214. Journey and largess to Jerusalem, 226. Retires thither, 228. Her death, building, &c. ib. & seq.

—— Eudoxias's daughter, carried prisoner, xvi. 259. Married to Hunneric, ib. & 272, & xix. 207.

—— the wife of Heraclius, crowned, xvi. 335. Delivery and death, ib.

—— widow of Ducas, made regent, xvi. 459. Invaded by the Turks, ib. Forced to marry, 460. Deposed and confined, 463.

Eudoxia, the wife of Arcadius, her extract, &c. xvi. 120. Her imperious and wicked sway, 145. Assumes manly titles, 150. Banishes St. Chrysostom, 157. Dies in childbed, ib.

—— Licinia, betrothed to Valentian III. xvi. 215. Married to him, 223. Forced to marry Maximus, 258. Hatches his death, ib. & seq. Carried off captive, 259. Sent back to Leo, 271. See also vol. xix. 207.

Eudoxius, the Arian bishop, swears Valens to Arianism, xv. 621. His death, 625.

Eve, by whom tempted, i. 199. The time of her death uncertain, 242.

Evelthon's treatment of Pheretima, vii. 494.

Evenus, king of Lyrnessus in Cilicia, v. 601.

† —— river of Ætolia, vi. 75, & seq.

—— the Apollonian shepherd's story, viii. 9, n.

Euephnus's treachery, the cause of the Messenian war, vi. 403.

† Euergetæ, whence so called, viii. 247. Favoured by Alexander, ib.

Eugenius proclaimed emperor, xv. 312. Killed at Antioch, ib.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Eugenius created emperor by Arbogastes, xvi. 95. His proud embassy to Theodosius, 98. Success against the Franks, 100. Restores paganism, ib. Defeated, 102. Put to death, 103.

—— the father of Themistius's writings and character, xvi. 112, n.

—— defeats the Scenitæ in Syria, xvi. 397.

Evi, prince of Midian, ii. 139.

Evilmerodach, succeeds his father, iv. 424. Governs during his delirium, ib. & seq. Defeated by the Medes, 489. Imprisoned by him for it, 425. Kindness to Jehoiachim, ib. Murdered by Neriglissar, ib. Probably the Belshazzar of Daniel, 425, 489, 497, n. & seq. n.

Eulæus, regent of Egypt, ix. 67. Corrupts the young king, 73.

† Eulyfian region, the antient seat of the Huns, xix. 41.

Eumelus's war with his two brothers, ix. 621. His character, and death, 622, 623.

Eumenes, I. succeeds in Pergamus, ix. 472.

—— II. wars with Antiochus, ix. 31, 475. His valour at Magnesia, 48, 478. Opposed by the Rhodians, ib. Wars with Prusias, ib. Makes peace with him, 481, & seq. Defeated by Hannibal's stratagem, ib. Invaded by Pharnaces, & seq. Makes peace with him, 482. Assists Antiochus, 64, 482. Speech to the Roman senate, 483. Wounded by Perseus's assassins, viii. 479, & seq. Allies with Rome against him, 485. Repulsed from Cassandria, viii. 507. Accused to the senate, ix. 490, & seq. His death, viii. 519, ix. 490.

—— Alexander's secretary, his moderation towards Hephestion, viii. 336, 337. Declares for Arideus, 355. His signal fidelity, 364. Sent against Ptolemy, 368. Defeats Neoptolemus, 369. Proscribed, 371. His defeat and bravery, 373, & seq. Loyalty, 376, & seq. Repulses Antigonus, 379. Marches to Persepolis, 380. Speech to his officers, 381, n. Defeats Antigonus, 379, & seq. Betrayed to him, and put to death, 385, 386.

—— Assists Scipio against the Syrians, xii. 308. Stabbed for his friendship to Rome, 320.

Eumenius's flattery to Constantius, xv. 304. Panegyric of Constantine, 357. Other writings, &c. 424, n.

Eumolpidæ, Ceres's rites in their family, vii. 67, n.

Eumolpus, the supposed institutor of Ceres's rites, vii. 67, n.

Eunapius's writings and character, xv. 424, n. 557, n. xvi. 115, n.

Eunomia, a great orator, xv. 424.

Eunomians suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 31. By Theodosius, 45.

Eunonus, king of Sparta, killed, vi. 65.

Eunuchs of all nations excluded the Lord's congregation, iii. 322, & n.

—— by whom first made, iv. 459, & n. v. 13. Suppressed by Domitian, xiv. 474.

—— the number of, regulated by Aurelian, xv. 266. Privileged by Constantius, 451. Excluded from being patricians, xvi. 233.

Eunus chosen chief of the revolted slaves, xii. 387. Proclaimed king, 389. Success against the Romans, ib. & seq. Defeated, 391. His death, ib.

Evocation among the Romans, what, xi. 429, n.

Evodius sent to kill Messalina, xiv. 139. Put to death by Caracalla, xv. 125.

Euphaes invaded by the Spartans, vi. 405, & seq. His death, 410.

Euphemia married to Anthemius, xvi. 244.

Euphemius's sacrilege, xvi. 389. Treason, ib. Death, ib.

Euphrasius killed by an earthquake, xvi. 304.

† Euphrates, river, i. 188. Its course, iv. 309. The antient way of navigating it, 310, ix. 319.

† Euphratesiana, the kingdom of, whence so named, xiv. 440.

Euphrosyna forced out of a monastery by Balbus, xvi. 398. Sent back by his son, 390.

Euratus, the Achean, his speech to the Roman senate, vi. 650.

Euric murders his brother, and mounts the Gothic throne, xvi. 273. Seizes some provinces in Gaul, 278. Makes peace with them, 281. See also, xix. 118. Ravages Lusitania, 165. Conquests in Spain, ib. & seq. In Gaul, 166. Vain attempt on Auvergne, 167. Enmity to the orthodox, ib. His territories, 168. Death and character, 169, & seq.

† Euripus. See Negropont, v. 661. The streights of, described, vii. 641, n. The isles of, 653.

Europa, stolen by Jupiter, ii. 366. Carried into Crete, vii. 466, 471.

† Europus, a city in Macedon, viii. 11.

Eurotas, founder of Lacedemon, vi. 46.

Eurotas,

† Eurotas, a famed river there, vi. 48.
 Eurybiades surprises the Persian fleet, v. 341. vi. 443.
 Eurycrates, first and second, kings of Sparta, vi. 416, 427.
 Eurydice's precaution against Olympias, viii. 440 & seq. Put to death, 442.
 — speech to the Athenian general, viii. 74.
 Euryleon, the son of Æneas. See Africanus, xi. 280.
 Eurylochus betrays Demetrius to the Ætolians, vii. 32.
 Eurymedon, sent into Sicily, vi. 284, & seq. Slain at Syracuse, 301. See also, vii. 196, 201.
 Eurypylus, king of Mysia, v. 569.
 Euryfaces, king of Salamis, vii. 639.
 Eurysthenes and Procles, joint kings of Sparta, vi. 51.
 Eurystheus's hatred to Hercules, v. 628.
 Eurythus robbed by Hercules, vi. 56.
 — a blind Spartan's brave death, vi. 443, n.
 Eurytionidæ and Eurypontidæ, whence so called, vi. 64.
 Eusebia married to Constantius, xv. 453. Friendship to Julian and the Arians, 454, 473. Unnatural jealousy of Helena, 454, 455. Journey to Rome, 477. Barenness and death, 454, 455.
 Eusebius of Cæsarea's observations on the Phœnician cosmogony, i. 96. On the Egyptian, 99. Partiality against the pagans, 97.
 — account of the Thundering legion, xv. 23. Account of Constantine's conversion vindicated, 369. Speech on the holy sepulchre, 410. Book on Easter, ib. Character of Constantine, 419. His writings, &c. 423, n.
 — bishop of Nicomedia, banished, xv. 401. Recalled, 405. Imposes on Constantine, 411. His hypocrisy, 414. Education of young Julian, 521.
 — Constantius's high chamberlain, quells a mutiny in Gaul, xv. 461. Undermines Gallus, 467. Cruelty to all his friends, ib. & seq. Treachery to Ursinus, 492, 494. Deputation to Julian, 529. Put to death, 531.
 — a professor of eloquence, succeeds Proereses, xv. 550, n.
 — brother-in-law to Constantine, fined and banished, xvi. 2.
 — the author of Gainas's war, his poem lost, xvi. 213, n.
 Eustathius banished by Constantine, xv. 411.

Eustathius his writings and character, xvi. 292, n.
 — bishop his learned comment upon Homer, xvi. 491.
 Eutaric's marriage and promotion, xix. 441. Reception at Rome, ib. Death, ibid.
 † Euthalites, whence so called, xi. 114. Defeated the Persians, ib. & seq. Who they were 116, 117, n.
 Eutherius sent to disculpate Julian, xv. 478.
 Euthria, taken by the Greeks, burns herself, v. 584.
 Euthymius absolves the emperor for marrying a fourth wife, xvi. 405.
 Eutropia, the wife of Maximian, xv. 293.
 — daughter to Constantius, xv. 334. Whether a christian, 370.
 — the sister of Constantine, murdered, xv. 444.
 Eutropius's abridgment imperfect, xiv. 582. Character of Constantius, xv. 332. Writings and character, xvi. 25, n.
 — sent to consult the hermit John, xvi. 98. Great sway with Arcadius, 120. Envied by Rufinus, 121. Succeeds him, 124. His extract and sad character, 125. Hatred to Stilicho, 126. Treachery to Abundantius, 127. To Timasius, 128. To Barbus, 129. Stirs up Gildo to revolt, 131. His griping consulship, 137. Disallowed by Honorius, ib. Undermined by Gainas, 141. Degraded and deposed, 142. Banished, ib. Beheaded, 144. See also vol. xix. 148.
 Eutyrians suppressed by Marcian, xvi. 259. Raise a tumult at Alexandria, 266. And a massacre at Constantinople, 300, 301.
 Eutyrianus a buffoon, made consul, xv. 153.
 Euvates among the Gauls, their office, xix. 575.
 † Euxine sea, said to be so called from Askinaz, i. 468. v. 530. How formed, vii. 625, 626. Described by Arrian, xiv. 632, & seq. Frozen twenty days, xvi. 152.
 Euzoius, an Arian bishop, baptizes Constantius, xv. 509.
 Exarchs, their rise and office, xix. 508. Number, names, and duration, 509.
 Exauكتورation, among the Romans, what, xiii. 506, n.
 Excommunication, a dreadful punishment among the Jews, iii. 342. Transmitted to the Christians, 344. Yet not in a damning sense, ib. &c. Three kinds of it among the Jews, 342, n.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Exercises in Sparta, how regulated, vi. 391, & seq.

Exhilaratus, duke of Naples, murdered, xvi. 362. xix. 561.

Exiles, Roman, put to death by Caligula, xiv. 69. n.

† Exiliffa, where sited, xviii. 8. Whether the same with Ceuta, ibid.

Exipodras put to death by his father, ix. 443.

Exodares resigns his crown to Trajan, xiv. 577.

Expiation day, among the Jews, the only fast of divine appointment, iii. 218. Why ordained, 219. How strictly kept, ib. &c. Other expiations performed by them, 226, & seq.

—— among other nations, vi. 103, n.

† Ezion Geber a famed port in Petrea, xviii. 185.

Ezra sent into Judea, x. 25, 26. His commission in favour of the Jews, 27. Reforms the church and state, ib. & n. And Jewish canon, 28. Whether the inventor of Hebrew points, 31, n. His insertions to the Hebrew text, 33, & n. Character and writings, 39, & seq. Reads the law to the people, 51. Whether the founder of the Caraites sect, 372, n.

F

FABIA betrothed to M. Aurelius, xv. 4. Suspected of poisoning Verus, 15.

—— Orestilla married to Gordianus, xv. 192. Eudocia. See Eudocia, xvi. 335.

Fabian martyred at Rome, xv. 217.

Fabiani, Lupercalian priests, why so called, xi. 285, n.

Fabii, why so esteemed by the Romans, xi. 467, 468. Their valour, 469, & seq. Sad catastrophe, 472. Treachery to the Celtes, 578. Defeated by them, 579.

Fabius's writings and character, xv. 210, n.

Fabius mounts the breach at Jerusalem, x. 238.

—— Quinct. defeats the Volsci, xi. 461. Wholesome advice to the senate, 486. Success against the Arpi, xii. 243.

—— Q. Rull. chosen master of the horse, xii. 12. Condemned by the dictator, ib. & 13. Pardoned, 14. Success against the Samnites, 16.

—— Q. Maximus, why so called, xii. 50. Chosen dictator, 31. Defeats the Samnites, ib. Before Sora, 32. And the Hetrurians, 39. Opens a way through the Ciminian forest, 40. Defeats the Umbrians, 42. The Hetrurians, 43. Umbrians and Samnites, 45, 46. Reforms the state, 50. Defeats the Marfi, &c. ib. & seq. Hetrurians, 60, & seq. Gauls, 62, & seq. Opposes his son's election, 71. His death and character, 80.

Fabius, Maxim. Verrucos. his character, xii. 165. Chosen prodictator, 208. Why surnamed Cunctator, 209. Success against Hannibal, ib. Outwitted by him, 210, & seq. Recalled, 211. See vol. (xviii. 278, 339, 312, 451.) Speech to the senate, ib. Defeats the Carthaginians, xii. 212. Wholesome advice to the senate, 223. Wastes the Capuans, 237. Success in Campania, 240, & seq. Merry judgment of the Tarentine pictures, 264, & seq.

—— Pictor, why so called, xii. 50.

—— Gurgus. See Gurgus, xii. 71.

—— Q. success in Spain, xiii. 47.

—— Maxim. takes Munda, xiii. 124, 129.

—— chosen consul, xiii. 417. Disgraced by Augustus, 476. Kills himself, ib.

—— Rusticus, his writings and character, xiv. 291, n.

—— betrayed by the Thracians, ix. 430, 431, & n.

—— Hispanus, banished for extortion, xiv. 564.

—— Marcel. history lost, xiv. 582. Consul besieges Drepanum, xvii. 271.

Fables, why mixed with antient history, v. 603, n.

Fabricius sent ambassador to Pyrrhus, ix. 558. His intrepid gallantry there, 559. Sent against him, 564. Generous letter to him, ib.

—— success against the confederates, xii. 83, n.

—— Viento, banished for his satire against the senate, xiv. 216.

Fabulous and heroic times, a general review of, v. 692.

Factions, blue, at Constantinople, beaten by the green, xvi. 297.

Fadilda, Antoninus's daughter, xiv. 658. Betrothed to Maximus, xv. 183, 184.

—— Julia, married to Fabilius, xv. 210, n.

Fadus Cuspius, sent governor of Judea, x. 562, & seq. Quells an insurrection there, 564.

† Fæsulæ,

I N D E X to the

† Fæfulæ, the colony of, drawn into Catilines conspiracy, xii. 632.

† Fair, the promontory of, where sited, xi. 644.

Falæ and Falarica, a weapon described, xvii. 328, n.

Falco, Q. Cos. bold speech to Pertinax, xv. 72, 73. Named to the empire, 77. Retires, ib.

† Faleria surrendered to Camillus, xi. 563.

† Falisci fall on the Romans before Veii, xi. 566. Defeated, ib. Their speech to the senate, 568. Ally with Rome, 651. Defeated by Brutus, xii. 71. Subdued by Cerco, 159.

Falling-sickness, the Romans bloody remedy against, xii. 408, n.

† Famagesta in Cyprus, how built, vii. 486, 487, & n.

Famine, averted by the death of seven of Saul's sons, iv. 44.

† Fanegoria, a city in Pontus, ix. 372.

Fannia's gratitude to Marius, xii. 537.

Faramond, whether he had any sway over the Franks, xvi. 199. His extract, ib. & c.

† Fargana, where situate, xi. 221.

Faro de Messina, vii. 139.

Fasces, why worn reverse at funerals, xiii. 598 & n.

Fassidæ, king of the Gepidæ, defeated, xix. 335, 336.

Faventius raises a revolt in Vitellius's fleet, xiv. 398.

Faunius, a fabulous king of Latium, xi. 277. His reception of Evander, ib. & 268.

—— Caius, saves the Roman camp, xii. 360.

—— C. Strabo, chosen consul, xii. 403. Opposes Gracchus, 404.

Favonius's severe taunt to Pompey, xiii. 41, 60. Goes with him in his flight, 76. Answer to Brutus, 136. Merry interposition between him and Cassius, 252, 253. Just invectives against Octavius, 292, & n.

Favor, the pantomine taunt at Vespasian's funeral, xiv. 351.

Favorinus's pleasantry to Adrian, xiv. 609. His writings and character, 649, n. Saracasm against the Athenians, 650, n.

Fausta and Faustus, Sylla's twins, why so called, xii. 582, n.

Fausta, the wife of Constantine, born, xv. 293. Married, 351. Her issue by him, ib. Fidelity to him, 358. Delivered of a son, 391. Treachery to Crispus, 402. Death, 403.

Fauslina, Annia, married to Antoninus Pius, xiv. 658, 663. Her avarice checked by him, 664. Death and lewd character, 667, 678.

—— daughter to Antoninus, married to M. Aurelius, xiv. 658, 678. Whether accessory to Cassius's treason, xv. 30, 31. Her two letters to the emperor about it, 31, n. Death and undeserved honours, 36.

—— Annia, put to death by Commodus, xv. 64.

—— married to Heliogabalus, xv. 150. Murdered by him, ib.

—— widow of Constantius, comes to Procopius, xv. 617.

Faustian society of women founded by M. Aurelius, xv. 37.

† Faustina, whence so called, ix. 458. xv. 37.

Faustinus executed for a jest, xv. 610.

Faustulus educates Remus and Romulus, xi. 284.

Faustus, Cornel. mounts the breach at Jerusalem, x. 238.

Feasts, how celebrated among the Jews, iii. 383, & seq.

—— of Asia, kept at Philadelphia, v. 572.

—— at public meals appointed by Solon, how regulated, vi. 142.

February, why counted unlucky at Rome, ix. 319.

Feciales, at Rome, their office, xi. 315. How they ratified treaties, 325, & 326, n. And declared war, 335, & n.

Felicissimus, his revolt and death, xv. 267.

Felix driven out of Jerusalem, x. 262. Made procurator of Judea, 565. His sad character, 566, 567, & n. Murders the good high-priest, 567. Answer to St. Paul, 568.

Felix, great sway with Claudius, xiv. 103. Who he was, ib. n.

—— Sextilius, defeats the revolted Treverians, xiv. 426.

—— a faithless tool of young Gordian, xv. 203, n.

—— murdered by the soldiers, xvi. 219.

Fencing-masters, when first introduced, xii. 479.

Fenestella, the poet, when he flourished, xiv. 237.

Fenius Rufus conspires against Nero, xiv. 237, & seq. His treachery and cruelty to his associates, 241, 243. Accused by

Scævina,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Scævius, 246. His unmanly death, 247.

Feramors, the son of Rustan, killed by Ardshir, v. 345.

Feretrius, Jupiter whence so called, xi. 301. His temple rebuilt by Anchus, 338.

Feridon, king of Persia. See Pheridun, v. 254.

Ferok Hormouz put to death, xi. 245.

Feronia, the goddess, whence so called, xi. 331.

† — the temple of, where xi. 331. Plundered by Hannibal, xii. 255. xvii. 443.

Fesceni, their rude plays, xi. 623.

Festivals appointed by Romulus, xi. 296.

Festus, Port. sent governor of Judea, x. 568. Severity to the turbulent Jews, 569.

— Pompon. writings and character, xv. 514, n. Made proconsul of Asia, xvi. 2. Cruelty there, 3.

† Fez, the extent of, xviii. 2.

† Fidena besieged by the Romans, xi. 408. Taken by Clælius, 411. By Q. Sp. Priscus, 550.

† — the amphitheatre of, kills and hurts fifty thousand people, xiii. 657, 658.

† Fidenates, their origin, xi. 269. Conquered by Romulus, 310. Treachery to the Romans, 329. Subdued and punished, 331. Defeated by Ancus, 336. Severely used by Tarquin, 343. Fresh revolt and defeat, ib. & seq.

Filii Augustorum, who, xv. 355.

Fiefs their origin, xix. 513.

Filimer the Great settles near Palus Mæot. xix. 107. His reign there, 117.

Fimbria discarded by Flaccus, ix. 402. His revenge and cruelties, 403. Success against Mithridates, ib. & seq. Kills himself, 408. See also xii. 551, & seq.

Fines, how regulated by the Romans, xi. 516.

Fire, in what sense worshipped by the old Persees, v. 35. How fed and preserved, 30. The ceremony of praying to it, 49.

— when and how discovered after the Babylonish captivity, x. 52, n. Worshipped by the Carthaginians, xvi. 632.

— ships, invented by the Rhodians, ix. 38.

Firmicus's writings and character, xv. 517, n.

Firmilianus put to death, xv. 387.

VOL. XX,

Firminus Cattus's treachery to Libo, xiii. 563. Banished, 639.

— his revolt in Egypt, xv. 262. Executed, 263.

Firmus's revolt in Moria, xv. 599. Submission and pardon, 601. Revolt and flight, 602, 603. Betrayed, ib. Hangs himself, ib.

Firouz I. II. &c. kings of Persia, according to Oriental writers, xi. 180, n. & seq.

First-born, why to be consecrated to God, ii. 576. How redeemed, ib. Not restrained to the eldest, iii. 237. Whether Christ was subject to that law, ibid. n.

— of the beasts, how consecrated or redeemed, ib. & seq. & iii. 238, 239, & n.

— of Egypt killed, ii. 574.

First-fruits to be offered to God, iii. 234. The laws concerning, and the ceremonies of offering them, ib. & seq. Traditions of the Talmud, 235, n. The extent of those offerings, 236. At the dedication of cities, xi. 288.

Fishes, a strange kind of, caught, xvi. 277.

Flaccus's cruelty to the Alexandrian Jews, x. 553. Punished, 554.

— Valerius's law in favour of debtors, xii. 555. Sent to succeed Sylla, 556. Killed by Fimbria, 557.

— Sylla's friend, chosen inter-rex, xii. 577.

— M. Lænius's friendship to Cicero, xiii. 9, n.

— Minutius surrenders to Cæsar, xiii. 120.

— Vesicular, the betrayer of Libo, xiii. 564. Put to death, xiv. 8.

— Pomponius betrays Rhescuporis, xiii. 584.

— Verrius the grammarian, his writings, &c. xiv. 38, n.

— Herdonius succeeds Virginius in Gaul, xiv. 303. Opposed by the German troops, 317. His cowardice, 334. Murdered, 412.

Flacilla, the wife, of Theodosius, her extract and character, xvi. 34. Death, 67.

Flamines priest, whence so called, xi. 315, & n.

Flaminius, Quint. sent against the Spartan tyrant, vi. 542, & seq. Brings over the Achæans, 611. Vain attempt on Corinth, 613. Shameful alliance with Nabis, 615. And peace with Macedon, 617. Causes the universal freedom of Greece to be proclaimed, 618. Withdraws his garrisons, 619. Speech to the Achæans about Zacynthus, 626. Affronted at the Ætolians, vii. 19, 20. Makes peace with Philip, 23. Speech to the Ætolian assembly, 27. Exploded by the Ætolian deputy, 35. Pleasant speech to the general assembly, 36. Rebukes the Consul at Naupactus, 50. Raises the siege of it, 51. Subdues the Bœotians, 93, & seq.

Flaminius the tribune's father, silences him at the rostrum, xii. 166.

—— Nepos's successful expedition against the Insubres, xii. 175. & seq. Retrieved by his brave tribune, 176.

—— C. sent against Hannibal, xii. 201. His rash character, xvii. 367. Death, 368. Threatened by ill omens, xii. 204. & seq. Defeated and killed, 206.

—— Quinct. succeeds in Macedon, xii. 298. Secures the freedom of Greece, 303. Success in Gaul, ib. & seq.

Flavia Titiana's character, xv. 72. Disliked by Pertinax, ib.

Flavian family, the origin and rise of, xiv. 41.

—— colony, by whom founded, xiv. 451.

Flavianus, bishop, sent to intercede for the Antiochians, xvi. 76. Excellent speech to Theodosius, 77. Succeeds in his suit, ib. & seq.

—— dies in defence of the Alps, xvi. 101.

Flavius Nepos, a turbulent tribune, xii. 646.

—— deposed by Cæsar, xiii. 133.

—— the brother of Arminius, his sharp contest with him, xiii. 556.

—— Subrius conspires against Nero, xiv. 236. Discouraged by the coward Senius, 242.

—— Sabinus made governor of Rome, xiv. 331.

—— Scaevinus conspires against Nero, xiv. 236. Betrayed by his servant, 239, 240. Nob's confession, 240. Brave speech at his trial, 246. Intrepid death, ib.

—— Vespasian. See Vespasian, xiv. 77, & seq.

Flax, of Egypt, exceeding fine, i. 504. Fleece the golden, what, vi. 20, n. 23, 24, n.

Fleet, the first Roman, unsuccessful, xii. 41. Polybius's account of it confuted, 102, n. A new one built, 110. Another by private persons, 147.

† Flensburgh, metropolis of the Angles, xix. 9.

Flesh, whether permitted before the flood, i. 217.

Flesh human, sold publicly during the famine, xvi. 181.

Flint, said to have been cut by a razor, xi. 347.

Flood, the profane account of it, i. 255. From the Phœnicians, Chaldeans, 256, 271, & seq. From the Greeks, 279, n. Why Phœnician historians suppress it, 262, n. Short history of it, 278, & seq. Whether topical, 281. Reasons for its having been general, 282, & seq. Conjectures how it came, 285, & seq. Burnet's theory of it, 289, & seq. Whiston's, 292, & seq. The most rational account of it, 295. The height of the waters, 304. Its beginning and end, 304, & n. Persian and Indian traditions of it, 306.

—— account of some particular floods, i. 280, 281, & n.

† Florentia, Florence, plundered by Sylla, xii. 574. Relieved by Stilicho, xvi. 161.

Florentius, an enemy to Julian, xv. 498, 528. Runs away from him, 501. Consulship and flight, 506. Narrow escape from death, 331.

—— another put to death by Julian, xv. 332.

—— the betrayer of Procopius, xv. 617. Put to death, ib.

Florianus, the brother of Tacitus, xv. 277. Repulsed from the consulship, ib. Assumes the purple, and murdered, ib. & 278.

—— success against the Goths, xix. 130.

Florus; Gessius, governor of Judea, his sad character, x. 572. His rapines and cruelties complained against, 574. Horrid butcheries, 575. Brutishness to Berenice, 576.

—— Julius stirs up a revolt in Gaul, xiii. 611. Defeated and killed, ib.

—— Luc. his writings and character, xiv. 657, n. Verses to and from Adrian, 658, n.

—— the son of Evastus, burnt alive, xv. 603.

—— the consul's success in Italy, xvii. 244.

Flutes, a martial instrument of the Greeks, vi. 63.

Fohi, first king of China, 243, 244. Whether Noah, ib. n. & seq. n.

† Folkstone, the battle of, xix. 17.

Follis, the tax of, unjustly fathered upon Constantine, xv. 418.

Fonteis murdered by the Ausculans, xi. 519.

—— Capito, chosen consul, xiii. 470. Fontes

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Fonteiſus murdered in Germany, xiv. 316.
† Formio, river, a boundary of antient Gaul, xi. 255.

Fornication, how puniſhed among the Jews, iii. 347.

† Fortunate iſlands deſcribed, xii. 593, n. Where ſited, xviii. 19, n. Their number, 21.

Fortunatianus's writings and character, xv. 209, n.

† Fortune, the temple of, at Elis, vi. 67.

— ſeveral erected to her by Servius, xi. 354. One by Sempronius, xii. 279.

† — Valiant, the temple of, xiii. 589.

† Forum Vibii, where ſituate, xi. 255. Beautified by Tarquin, 345. & ſeq.

† Foſſway, in Britain, deſcribed, xviii. 683.

† Fountains, &c. worſhipped by the Gauls, xviii. 454, & n. & 457, n.

† Fourtiſſar, river, miſtaken for the Granicus, v. 565, n.

† Franci ludi, why, and by whom inſtituted, xix. 249.

Francici, the feſtival of, whence, xv. 349.

† Franks, who, xv. 226. Deſeated by Aurelian, ib. Ravage Italy, 229. Invade Spain, 244. Go into Afric, 245. Transplanted by Conſtantine, 301, 305. Deſeated by Conſtantine, 348. Outwitted and cut in pieces, 382. By Criſpus, 393. Submit to Conſtans, 435. Deſeated by Julian, 488. By Theodoſius, 589. By Maximus, xvi. 81. Ravage Gaul, 191. Permitted to ſettle in it, 192. Embrace the catholic faith, ib. Allowed to ſettle in Thongria, 199. Deſeated by Attila, 245. Waſte Germany, 255. Settle along the Rhine, 273. Their origin and firſt ſettlements, xix. 8, 234. Furious onſet on the Gepidæ, 81. When converted, 135, n. Why called Franks, 234, 235. And Sicambrians, 235. Opinions about them confuted, 236. Settle at Mentz, ib. Their extent, 237. Motley character, 238. Government, kings, &c. 239. Driven out of Gaul, 240. Ravage it, 242. Hired by Gallienus, 243. Horrid ravages in Italy, 244. Spain, ib. & ſeq. Driven out of Gaul, 245, 246. Ravage Afric, &c. ib. Deſeated by Ceraufius, 247. Settle in Low Germany, ib. Transplanted into Gaul, 248. Deſeat and puniſhment by Conſtantine, 249. Peace with Conſtans, 251. New ravages, ib. Suppreſſed by Julian, 252. By Theodoſius, 253.

Cut in pieces by Nonnius, 254. Irruption into Gaul, 256, 257. Dreſs, 260. Settlement in France, 261, & ſeq. The time when, ib. Enmity to the churches, 264. Conversion, 281. Strengthened by the Armorici, 284. Treaty with the Oſtrogoths, 287. Inlarge their dominions, 295. Deſeated by Theodoric, 297. Subdue the Burgundi, ib. Their horrid ſuperſtitious long after their conversion, xviii. 490, & n.

Fraomarius made king of the Bucinobantes, xv. 597.

† Fratres, Septem, Heptadelphi mount, where, xviii. 15.

Fravitus's fidelity to the Romans, xv. 149. Conſulſhip, 152. Repulſes the Hunns, ib.

Frea worſhipped by the Saxons, xix. 12.

Frederic, the Viſigoth, ſlain, xvi. 272. xix. 163.

— Babaroffa betrayed by Iſaac Angelus, xvi. 497. Invades him, 498. Answer to his embaffador, ib.

— treachery to Theodoric, xix. 185.

Freedom how beſtowed on Roman ſlaves, xi. 388, n.

Freemen at Rome inliſted, xii. 523.

Freedmen of Claudius, their great ſway, xiv. 161.

† Fregellæ, colonied by the Romans, xii. 7. Seized by the Samnites, 25. Revolts, and razed, 337, 338.

French aſſiſt Alexius III. xvi. 501, & ſeq. Take Conſtantinople, 504.

† Fretan Leagh, the battle of, xix. 34.

† Fretani, where ſeated, xi. 262.

Friday ordered to be kept holy, xv. 394.

— Good, criminals releaſed on, xvi. 65.

Friga, Fria, &c. who, xviii. 604, & n. Worſhipped by the Saxons, xix. 11, 12.

Frigerid defeats the Romans, xvi. 17.

† Frigidum, the river and battle of, xvi. 101.

† Friſii, a tribe of Franks, xix. 235. Subdued by Drufus, xiii. 417. Where ſited, 539. n. Reſcover their liberty, 663. Seize on ſome Roman lands, xiv. 189. Driven out, 190.

Fritigern leads the Goths into Thrace, xvi. 14. Falls foul on the Romans, 15. Deſeated by Sebastian, 19. Amuſes Valens, 20.

Fritigil converted to chriſtianity, xvi. 131. xix. 348. Submits to the empire, ib.

† Friuli erected into a dukedom, xix.

I N D E X to the

385. Dukes' of, xix. 553. The end of them, 603, 604.

Frontinus, Jul. convenes the senate for Vespasian, xiv. 429. Resigns his office, ibid.

—— treatise on aqueducts, xiv. 563. His writings and character, 600, n. Success in Britain, xviii. 705.

Fronto's bold speech against Nerva, xiv. 552. Consulship, 563. Writings and character, 675, n.

—— Saturn. his bravery in Syria, xv. 8.

Frost, a long and terrible one in the East, xvi. 367.

Frumentarii, their office, xv. 317. Suppressed, ib.

† Fucinus, the lake of, drained by Claudius, xiv. 157, 158. & seq.

Fuffetius, made king of Alba, xi. 323. & seq. Submits to the Romans, 328. Treachery to them, 329. Severe punishment, 330.

Fulgentius Planciades, an ignorant trifler, xvi. 212, n.

Fullosautes killed in Britain, xv. 588. xvii. 714.

Fulsius Trio turns evidence against Libo, xiii. 564.

Fulvia, discovers Cataline's conspiracy, xii. 631.

—— cruel revenge on Cicero, xiii. 232.

—— the wife of Antony's unbounded ambition, xiii. 300. Opposes Octavian, 301, 303. Heads an army against him, 304. Driven from Pernefte, 310. Her death, 315.

Fulvius, L. Corvus, triumphs over the Samnites, xii. 17. Made general of the horse, 30. Second triumph, 49.

—— Petinus's success in Umbria, xii. 52.

—— Centuman. defeats the Samnites, &c. xii. 54. Sails against the Illyrians, 168. Proconsulship there, 169. Ends that war, ib. & seq. Reception of one hundred and twelve Capuan nobles, 243. Besieges Capua, 250, & seq. Goes to the relief of Rome, 253, & seq. Surprises Hanno's provisions, xvii. 434. Blockades Capua, 437. Severity to the Capuans, xii. 252. Defeated by Hannibal, 258.

—— Flaccus, triumphs over the Volturni, xii. 99. Entangled in Gaul, 161. Chosen consul, 262. Great sway in Greece, 309. Inveighs against Scipio, 393. Against the patricians, 397. Sent to relieve Massilia, ib. & seq. Exasperates the Gracchian faction, 412. Seizes mount Aventine, 413. Killed, 416.

Fulvius L. Nobilis, triumphs over Ætolia, xii. 314. Exhibits games, ib. Ill success in Spain, 332.

—— young Fulvius, why imprisoned, xii. 415. Put to death, 418.

—— Marc. success in Spain, xii. 486.

† Fundi invaded by the Romans, xii. 6.

Funeral ceremonies used by the Jews, iii. 393, & seq.

—— among the Scythians, v. 449, & seq. 461. How regulated by Solon, vi. 122.

—— to the slain at Athens, vi. 265. How regulated by Lycurgus, 384.

—— how performed by the Thracians, ix. 512.

—— verses on such occasions, vii. 578.

—— orations, the first instance of, at Rome, xi. 393.

Furca of the Romans, xvii. 16, n.

Furian law, what, xiii. 456, n.

Furius mounts the breach at Jerusalem, x. 238.

—— Spur. success against the Equi, xi. 464. Defeated by them, 487.

—— L. defeated by the Volsci, xi. 604.

—— Pacilus recalled from Sicily, xii. 134.

—— Purpur. defeats the Gauls, xii. 297. & seq.

—— Camillus's consulship, why erased, xiv. 4, n.

—— Celsus's success in Mauritania, xv. 160.

Furnilla, Mart. divorced by Titus, xiv. 454.

Fuscus, Corn. penetrates into Umbria, xiv. 397. Chosen prætor, 410. His character, 498. Ill success against the Dacians, 499. Slain ib. His stately monument, 501.

—— put to death by Adrian, xiv. 637. His dreadful wish on him, ib.

G

† GABALA, by whom built, x. 301, n.

Gabalus, count, his notion of the sin of Ham, i. 355, n.

Gabases invites Cosrhoes against Justinian, xi. 138.

† Gabene seized by Eumenes, viii. 382. By Antiochus, 383, & seq.

† Gabini war against Tarquin the proud, xi. 370.

Gabinian law against pirates, xii. 621 & seq.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Gabinus's extortions in Syria, ix. 270. Restores the Egyptian king, 272. Banished, ib. See also x. 243, & seq. Treachery to Aristobulus, 222. To Mithridates, xi. 14.

——— conspires with Catiline, xii. 630. Seized, 636. Put to death, 638.— Cæsar's general cut off by the Illyrians, xiii. 55.

——— Secund. success against the Chauci, xiv. 114.

——— king of the Quadi, treacherously murdered, xv. 605. xix. 352.

Gabriel, the angel, sent to Zechariah, x. 325, & seq. To the virgin Mary, 331.

† Gad, Jacob's son by Zilpah, ii. 440. His blessing how verified, ib. n. His lot in the promised land, iii. 103.

——— the prophet sent to David, iv. 46.

† Gadara taken by Janneus, x. 213. Made one of the five Jewish courts, 244. Dismantled from Judea, 580. Taken by the Romans, 593.

† Gades, its situation, xviii. 337, & n. Temple and port when first founded xvii. 25. Stripped by Mago, 472, 473. Surrendered to Scipio, ib.

Gadir, the Punic name of Cades, its etymon, xvii. 24, n.

† Gadrosi subdued by Alexander, viii. 325.

† Gæsatæ, whence so called, xii. 171. Ally with the Gauls, 173. Fight naked, 174, & 178. Defeated, ib. & xviii. 545.

† Gætulia, its boundaries, xviii. 44. Whence so called, ib. & seq.

——— part of, given to Juba, xviii. 50, 51. Seized on by Genseric, xix. 205.

† Gætulians, who and where sited, xii. 461. xviii. 44. Their cities, territories, &c. 45. Origin, 47. Government, manners, &c. 48, 49, & n. Defeated before Casilinum, 50. Serve under Jugurtha, ib. Go over to Cæsar, ib. Subdued by C. Cossus, 51. See also vol. xiii. 448.

Gaiabomarus murdered by Caracalla, xv. 133.

† Gaieta, the port of, built by Antoninus, xiv. 665.

Gainas, a Gaulish general, xvi. 101. Assassinate Rufinus, 124. Stirs up a revolt against Eutropius, 140, & seq. Marches against Constantinople, 145. Arrogant demands granted, 146. In favour of the Arians, refused, 147. His design on that city defeated, 148. Driven out of Thrace, 149. His death, ib. See also vol. xix. 148, 149.

Gaiso, the murderer of Constans, xv. 441.

Gaisus, antient king of the Franks, xix. 240. When, 241. His dismal end, 248.

† Galapa, where sited, xviii. 9.

† Galati island, xvi. 588, n.

† Galatia, whence so called, viii. 582.

Invaded by Phraartes, ix. 482. Becomes a Roman province, xiii. 377. Where situated, xviii. 395.

† Galatians, or Gauls of Asia minor, descended from Gomer, i. 467. Thence, called Gomerians, v. 391, 392, 501. Their origin, xii. 308, 309. Invaded by the Romans, ib. Make peace with them, 309. Defeated by the Jews, xviii. 395, 396.

Galatius defeated and killed, xii. 162.

Galba Sulpit. horrid cruelty to the Lusitanians, xii. 335, 336. Success against the Gauls, xiii. 18. Killed by Cæsar's 10th legion, 90.

——— Serv. Sulpit. chosen consul, xiv. 11 & n. Highly valued by Claudius, 113 n. 123. Defeats the Catti, 114. Encourages a revolt in Spain, 275. His speech against Nero, 276 & seq. Saluted emperor, 277. Proscribed, 280. In a dangerous case, 283. His progenitors, 297. Adoption by Livia, 298 & 299 n. Severity in Spain, 300. Saluted emperor afresh, 301. By ambassadors in his way to Rome, 303. Severities in that capital, 307. Swayed by three griping ministers, 308. Instances of his own parsimony, 313 n. Resumes Nero's profuseness, 314. Hated by the soldiers, ib. & seq. Severity to false informers, 315. Appoints Piso his successor, 318. Speech to him on that occasion, 319. Conspired against by Otho, 322 & seq. Warned by the augurs, 324. Strives in vain to quell the revolt, 325 & seq. Forsaken by his guard, 328. Murdered, ib. His head carried in triumph, 329, 330. Buried, 332. His character, ib. & seq.

——— Caius, brother of the former, put to death, xiv. 22.

Galbus's success against Asdrubal, xvii. 25.

† Galeagrea, the tower of, described, vii. 370. n. Surprized by the Romans, 371.

Galen, born at Pergamos, v. 566. Great skill in physic, xv. 17. His and his son's writings, 122 n.

Galera, Annia, married to Antoninus, xiv. 658.

——— Valeria, married to Galerius, xv. 298.

——— the daughter of Dioclesian, a christian, xv. 291. Banished, 316.

Galerius, Max. chosen Cæsar, xv. 298. Adopted by Dioclesian, ib. His share of the the empire, ib. Mean extract and character, 299. Works in Pannonia, 300. Defeated by Narses, 306. Retrieves his honour, 307. Behaviour to the Persians, 308. Suspected by Dioclesian, 309. Exasperates him against the christians, 311. Forces him and Maximian to resign, 314. Proclaimed, 315. Tyranny over Dioclesian, 342. Shares the empire with Constantius, 343. Hatred and treachery to Constantine, 344, 345. Repulsed from Rome, 352. His dreadful sickness, 359. Edict in favour of the christians, 360. Death, 361.

Galerius's success against the Persians, xi. 90 & seq.

Galefis's usurpation and defeat, xix. 437.

Galgalus's noble speech to the Caledonians, xiv. 478 & seq.

† Galicia seized by the Vandals, xvi. 180. Ravaged by the Goths, 267. Maintains its liberty against the Suevi, xix. 199.

Galileans, massacred by Pilate, x. 462.

† Galilee, the sea of, iii. 124.

† —the country of, invaded by Antiochus, viii. 615. By Demetrius, ix. 130. By Timotheus, x. 140. Reduced by Herod, 274. Revolts to Antigonus, 276. Its conversion foretold, 436. Subdued by the Romans, 583.

Galla married to Jul. Constant. xv. 412.

—to Theodosius, xvi. 69.

—Placida, born, xvi. 69. Dies in childbed, 95.

—the wife of Dardanius, xvi. 191 n.

† Gallagum, the Roman causeway of, xviii. 669.

Gallicanus's rashness, and the dreadful effects of it, xv. 195.

Gallienus created Cæsar, xv. 224. His father's colleague, 225. Success against the Germans, &c. 226. Treachery to his father, 229. Success against Ingenuus, 230. Cruelty to the Mæsiens, ib. Commits his eastern forces to Odenatus, 235. Compounds with Aureolus, 238. Marches against Posthumius, 241. Cruelty to the Byzantines, ib. Mock triumph, 242. Gratitude to Odenatus, 243. Success in Gaul, 248. His death, ib. Relations murdered, 249. Abhorred character, ib. Deified, ib.

Galli, the eunuch priests of the Syrian goddess, ii. 292. How first introduced, ib. & seq. Ceremonies at their funeral, 296. Their female attire, 293. Among the Gauls, xviii. 476 & n.

Gallies, a fight of, in the Circus, xiii. 432, 433.

Gallio's flattery punished by Tiberius, xiv. 4.

—merry jest on Claudius's apotheosis, xiv. 171.

—speech to the Britons, xviii. 719. Departure from them, 720.

Gallus, the first governor of Egypt, ix. 311.

—Sulpit. sent to hear the complaints against Eumenes, ix. 490.

—Qu. Luperc. a friend to Octavian, xiii. 199 & seq.

—Cornel. banished, xiii. 377. Kills himself, ib.

—Ætius's expedition into Arabia, xiii. 380. Betrayed by Syllæus, ib. Forced back into Egypt. 381. Second expedition, 399 & seq. See also vol. xviii. 298 & seq.

—Asinius's speech to Tiberius's, xiii. 494. Extract, &c. ib. n.

—Caninus reproved by Tiberius, xiv. 9 & n.

—Asinius's treason and punishment, xiv. 125.

—A Did. ill success in Britain, xiv. 155.

—Glycius impeached by Quinctian, xiv. 240.

—Cestius defeated by the Jews, xiv. 267.

—Rubr. gets the Othonians pardon, xiv. 365.

—Herenn. defeated by the Barbarian cohorts, xiv. 420.

—his success against the Goths, xv. 218. Treachery to Decius, 220. Proclaimed emperor, 221. His extract, rise, &c. ib. Shameful peace with the Goths, ib. Persecution of the christians, 222. Revels at Rome, ib. Killed by his men, ib.

—the son of Jul. Constant. xv. 334.

—of young Constantius, born, xv. 412. How preserved from massacre, 432.

—created Cæsar, xv. 447. Success against the Persians, ib. Chosen consul at Constantinople, 451. Success against the Jew 453. The Isaurians, 459. His suspicious and cruel temper, 460. Causes a revolt at Antioch, 462. Cruelty to Mentus, &c. 464. Trepanned by Constantius 465. Put to death, 467 & seq. His zeal for christianity, 522.

† —a river of that name, v. 510.

† Gamala, taken by the Romans, 583.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Gamaliel's advice to the Sanhedrin, x. 540 & n.

Games of no kinds among the Jews, iii. 388, 389 & n. Of hazard, esteemed a kind of theft, 390.

—instituted by Herod, x. 300. At Rome, introduced by Tarquin, xi. 341 & n. How performed, 575. The greatest 620. Of hazard, forbid there, xii. 427. Encouraged by Caligula, xiv. 67.

—secular, exhibited, xiii. 402. Under Domitian, xiv. 501.

Gambroon in Persia, its dreadful heats, iv. 529 n.

† Gangaridæ, where situate, viii. 310 n. & seq. n.

Ganymedes, the son of Tros, abused by Tantalus, v. 540.

—supplants Achilles, ix. 282. Distresses Cæsar in Alexandria, 283, 284.

† Garamantes, where situate, xiii. 399, 636. Subdued by the Romans, ib. Trade with the Carthaginians, xvi. 673. Why so called, xviii. 86 n. Their history, 51, & seq.

† Garba, island, where situate, xv. 221.

† Gardens, hanging, of Babylon, described, iv. 416 & seq.

Gargilius Mart.'s writings and character, xv. 177 n.

Garibald dethroned, xix. 545.

† Garizzim, the temple of, by whom built, x. 66 n. An asylum for renegado Jews, 67. Destroyed by Hyrcan, 198 & n.

Garfiavesh, prince of the Turks, assassinates that of Persia, v. 280. Put to death by Rustan, ib.

† Gascony invaded by the Vandals, xvi. 162.

Gassendi revives the atomic system, i. 118.

† Gath, a famed city of Palestine, ii. 222.

Gauda's treachery to Metellus, xii. 456 & n.

—a German prophetess visits Domitian, xiv. 490.

Gavius Max. twenty years captain of the guard, xiv. 664. Monumental inscription on Antoninus, 667.

† Gaugamela, the battle of, v. 224 & seq. Taken by Trajan, xiv. 585.

† Gaul, described, xi. 254. Cispadana, whence so called, 258. Traspadana described, ib. How divided, 575. Made a Roman province, xiii. 33. Its districts, xv. 421. Ruined by the Franks, 447, 582. Vandals, xvi. 162. By Attila, 246. Split into several kingdoms, 285.

Gaul, antient, described, xviii. 392. Its extent, 396, & seq. Lessened, 401. Its climate, soil, &c. 402, & seq. How become warmer, 404.

† Gaulana taken by Alex. Janneus x. 219.

Gaulish church, its dismal state under the Visigoths, xix. 170.

† Gaulonia besieged by the banditti, xix. 450.

Gaulonites, the sect of, x. 362. Insurrection, 410, & seq. The rest see under Zelots, 585.

† Gauls, from whom descended, i. 467, v. 383, & seq. Sent to aid the Lacedæmonians, vi. 504. First invasion of Macedon, viii. 468. Second, 469. Third, 470. Rattle the royal tombs, 472. Defeated by Gonatus, 474. Settled in Asia minor, 582. Treachery to Hierax, 595, 596. Scared at the lunar eclipse, ix. 474. Their avarice and sacrilege, 569.

— their first invasion of Italy, xi. 575, & seq. Sackage of Rome, 580. Defeated by Camillus, 582. At their assault on the capitol, 584. Fresh defeat, 586, & seq. Second irruption, 617, & seq. Defeated, ib. & seq. & 631. By Sulpitius, 633. Enter Latium, 640, 641. Defeated by Popilius, ib. By Valerius, 642. Join with the Hetrurians, xii. 59. Defeated by Fabius, 62, & seq. Plot against Hamilcar defeated, 150. Fresh invasion, 171, & seq. Repulsed by Æmilius, 172. Defeated, 174. By Marcellus, 177, 178. Assist Hannibal over the Alps, 187. Treachery to the Romans, 196. Renew their hostilities, 296. Thirty thousand of them cut off, 299. The same number by Cethegus, ib. Eleven thousand by Sempronius, 303.

— defeat the consular army, xii. 477. Defeated by Pompey, 562. Declare for Sylla, 563. Raise a new revolt, xiii. 29, & seq. Defeated, 30. Fight separately, and subdued, 33, 34. Undergo a Census, 374. Rear an altar to Augustus, 416. Greatly oppressed by Caligula, xiv. 74. Revolt against Nero, 274, & seq. Defeated, 281. Declare for Vitellius, 336, & seq. Revolt from Vespasian, 432, & seq. Agree upon a peace, 435.

— visited by Adrian, xiv. 617. Declare for Severus, xv. 91. Reduced by Aurelian, 263, 267. Sacrificed to Hamilcar's jealousy, xvii. 238. Obstruct Hannibals crossing the Rhosne, 340, 345. And the Alps, 355. List in his service, 358, 361. Their prisoners dismissed by him,

- him, 366. Reinforce Mago, xvii. 476.
 Answer to him, ib.
- Gauls antient, their origin, xviii. 392.
 Various names, 393. Spread through Europe, 396. Way of living, 403, & n. Religion, 405. Misrepresented by antient authors, ib. n. & seq. n. Worship one deity, 408. Their ceremonies, &c. 410, & seq. Groves, 414, & seq. Described, 418. Their worship like that of the antient Hebrews, 419. Bloody sacrifices, 422. Funeral victims, ib. & 423. Auguries, ib. Other cruel superstitions, ib. & seq. Altars described, 425. Aversion to temples, 426. & 427, n. to 446. Consecrated treasures, 426. Polytheism, when introduced, 447. Temples, when first built, ib. Human sacrifices forbid by the Romans, 450, 451. Run into numberless superstitions, 452, & seq. & n. Some of their temples described, 458. Male deities, 461. Barbarous rites to them, 463. Senseless ones, 466, & n. Female deities, 475. & seq. Believed a future life, 481. Their mixt government, laws, &c. 490. Grand council, 492, & n. Fatal discords, 493, 494. Kings how chosen, 496. Their limited power, ib. Their laws, councils, &c. 498. Fondness for Duels, 502. For liberty, 505. Valour dreaded, 507. Discipline, 510. Language, 514, & seq. Universities, 519, & n. Contempt of writing, 521, & n. Fond of poetry, 523, 524, & n. Arts, 525. Trade, 527. Feastings, 531, 532, & n. Described, 533, 534, & n. Contempt for trades, &c. 534. Drunkenness, 535, 536, & n. Idleness, 537. Ferocity, ib. Hospitality, ib. & seq. Frugality, and fidelity, 539. Earliest expeditions, 545. Into Greece, 548. Overspread Asia, 551, n. Conquest by the Romans, 568.
- † Gaur, Gabres. See Perses.
- Gaus revolts to the Egyptians, and slain, ii. 82.
- Gautier defeated by the Hungarians, xvi. 479.
- † Gaza; metropolis of Media, described, iv. 446. Taken and put to the sword by Alexander, v. 219. viii. 198, 200, & seq. By Antigonus, 391. By Antiochus, ix. 7.
- † — in Bactria, taken by Alexander, viii. 256.
- † — metropolis of Atropatene, ix. 627.
- destroyed by Alexander Jannæus, x. 313, 314. Dismembered from Judæa, 406.
- † Gaza, the temples of, destroyed, xvi. 62.
- † — the famed church, built by Eudoxia, xvi. 121.
- Ge, sister and wife to Uranus, i. 263, & 390.
- Geberic's success against the Sarmatians, xv. 409.
- Gedalia, the jewish deputy, murdered by Ishmael, iv. 181.
- † Gedrosio, a province of Persia, described, iv. 506.
- Geese save the capitol, xi. 583. Honoured by the Romans. 584.
- Gehasi, the servant of Elisha, smitten with leprosy, ii. 316. iv. 107, n.
- † Gela, a city in Sicily, vii. 147. By whom built, 160. Enslaved by Gelon, 167. Taken by the Carthaginians, 229, & seq. xvii. 72.
- † — the river of, vii. 147.
- Gelean women, their bravery, vii. 229. xvii. 68.
- Gelimer, last king of the Vandals in Afric, xix. 192.
- Gellias burns himself in Minerva's temple, vii. 222. His character, ib. n.
- Gellius's ill success in Arabia, x. 302.
- Poplicola defeated by the slaves, xii. 617, &c. Chosen consul, 621.
- Q. treacherously murdered by Octavian, xiii. 238.
- his treason pardoned, xv. 144.
- the Agrigentine, his immense wealth and profusion, xvii. 65, n. His stratagem and fatal end, ib.
- Gelon becomes tyrant of Syracuse vii. 167. Defeats the Carthaginians, 171. Moderation towards them, 173. Towards his subjects 174. Made king, ib. See also xvii. 22, 30, 32. Vast Donatives, 37, & n. His tomb demolished by Hamilco, 97. His statue, how preserved, vii. 174, n. Death and character, &c. 175, & seq.
- the son of Hiero, his treachery, to his father, vii. 338.
- † Gelonian Scythians described, v. 463.
- † — in Europe their extract, &c. xix. 354.
- Geminii, their consulship, xiii. 666. Whether Christ suffered under it, ib. n.
- Geminus in search after Marius, xii. 534. Brings him bound to Maturnæ, 537.
- sent to reclaim M. Antony, xiii. 351. Forced to flee Cleopatra's resentment, ibid.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Geminius Livius's impious flattery to Caligula, xiv. 56.

— twin of Commodus, born, xv. 4.

† Gemoniæ scalæ, what, xii. 162, 163, n.

Genealogy of the antediluvians, i. between 232, & 233. Of Jesus Christ, x. 331 & n.

Generation, the scriptural meaning of that word, x. 486, n.

† Genesaret, Genesareth, the lake of, iii. 124. Why called the sea of Tiberias, x. 414.

Genesis, when written by Moses, ii. 534, n.

† Geneva, the lake of, described, v. 400, 401.

Generides, general of Rhetia, his character, &c. xvi. 176.

Genialis made prætor of the guards, xv. 82. Shuts himself up with Julianus, 93.

Genii, their nature and office, according to the Oriental, i. 181.

Genius. Vid. Demon, xvi. 635.

Genobald, king of the antient Franks, xix. 239. Submits to Maximian, xv. 295, xix. 241.

Genoese settled at Constantinople, xvi. 517. Removed to Galatea, ib. Seize on several islands, 538.

Genseric's advantageous peace with the Romans, xix. 61.

— carries his Vandals into Afric, 192.

— succeeds Gonderic in Spain, xix.

201. His character, ib. & seq. Treaty with Bonifacius, 202. Conquers Afric,

203. Repulsed before Sicily, 204. Peace with the Romans, ib. Breaks it, 205

Ravages Sicily, 206. Invited into Italy

by Eudoxia, 207. Plunders Rome, ib.

Defeated by Ricimer, 208. Ravages

Italy, ib. Slights the emperor's embassy, ib. Surprises Majoranus's fleet,

210. Makes peace with him, and breaks

it, 211. Ravages Italy, &c. ib. & seq

And Greece, 212. Haughty answer to

Leo, ib. Defeats his fleet, 215. New conquests and ravages, 217. Treaty with the Romans, ib. Death, 218. See also

vol. xvi. 218. Succeeded by Huneric, ib.

— cruelty to his daughter-in-law;

xix. 75. n.

Gentiles, when their conversion first began, x. 549, & seq.

† Gentischi subdued by the Romans, xii.

427.

Gentius, king of Illyria, ill-treated by the Romans, viii. 300. Outwitted by Perseus, 509. Sent prisoner to Rome, 527,

528, & n. See also xii. 318, 327.

† Genua, metropolis of Liguria, xi. 257.

VOL. XX.

Genuadius's writings and character, xv. 512. n.

Genubath, king of Edom, ii. 167.

Genus and Genea, who, i. 257.

Genutius, Cn. summons the consuls, xi.

477. His sudden death, ib.

— the consul, joins the plebeian interest, xi. 518. Chosen decemvir, 519.

— the tribune, killed by the Hetrurians, xi. 570.

— a plebeian, chosen consul, xi. 621.

Slain, 627.

† Geography, the first rise of, ii. 39.

Geomori, at Samos, their office, vii.

518, 519. Murdered, 519.

Geometry first found out by the Eryptians, i. 578.

George the Arian bishop, where born,

v. 597. Succeeds Athanasius, xvi. 477.

† Georgia, a province of Scythia, v.

441. Why so called, ix. 611. Described,

616. The rest see under Iberia, 608.

Georgian women, famed for their beauty,

ix. 613, 616, 617.

Georgias defeated by Judas Maccabeus,

x. 130, & seq. In Idumea, 138. By Do-sitheus, 149.

† Georgioi, Athenian farmers so called,

vi. 132.

† Gepidæ revolt against Probus, xv. 282.

The same with the Lombards, and Franks,

xvi. 36. Kill each other in the dark, 247.

Join with the Avari, 327. Their origin, xviii. 585, & xix. 121. Submit to Attila,

61. Regain their liberty, 95. Obtain a pension from Rome, ib. Defeated by the Goths, 121. By Theodoric, 184. Settled in Thrace, 195. Defeated by Probus ib. Their settlements, 335. Defeat the Burgundi, ib. & seq. Defeated by Clau-dus, ib. Their wars with the Hunns,

337. Settled in Dacia, ib. Defeated by Justinian, ib. Fall out with the Lombards,

338, 339. Defeated by them, ib. Subdued, ib. The end of their kingdom, ib.

† Gerar, once the metropolis of the Philistines, ii. 222.

— the valley of, where Isaac sojourn-ed, iii. 115.

† Geraſtus, a promontory in Eubœa,

vii. 644.

† — a city in the same island, vii.

644.

† Gerasites in Canaan, where situated,

ii. 183.

† Gergasites, of Canaan, where situate,

x. 454, & n. Probably fled into Afric,

ii. 209, n.

† Gerizim mount, iii. 40, 41, & 115.

P † Germa

him, 366. Reinforce Mago, xvii. 476. Answer to him, ib.

Gauls antient, their origin, xviii. 392. Various names, 393. Spread through Europe, 396. Way of living, 403, & n. Religion, 405. Misrepresented by antient authors, ib. n. & seq. n. Worship one deity, 408. Their ceremonies, &c. 410, & seq. Groves, 414, & seq. Described, 418. Their worship like that of the antient Hebrews, 419. Bloody sacrifices, 422. Funeral victims, ib. & 423. Auguries, ib. Other cruel superstitions, ib. & seq. Altars described, 425. Aversion to temples, 426. & 427, n. to 446. Consecrated treasures, 426. Polytheism, when introduced, 447. Temples, when first built, ib. Human sacrifices forbid by the Romans, 450, 451. Run into numberless superstitions, 452, & seq. & n. Some of their temples described, 458. Male deities, 461. Barbarous rites to them, 463. Senseless ones, 466, & n. Female deities, 475. & seq. Believed a future life, 481. Their mixt government, laws, &c. 490. Grand council, 492, & n. Fatal discords, 493, 494. Kings how chosen, 496. Their limited power, ib. Their laws, councils, &c. 498. Fondness for Duels, 502. For liberty, 505. Valour dreaded, 507. Discipline, 510. Language, 514, & seq. Universities, 519, & n. Contempt of writing, 521, & n. Fond of poetry, 523, 524, & n. Arts, 525. Trade, 527. Feastings, 531, 532, & n. Described, 533, 534, & n. Contempt for trades, &c. 534. Drunkenness, 535, 536, & n. Idleness, 537. Ferocity, ib. Hospitality, ib. & seq. Frugality, and fidelity, 539. Earliest expeditions, 545. Into Greece, 548. Overspread Asia, 551, n. Conquest by the Romans, 568.

† Gaur, Gabres. See Perses.

Gaus revolts to the Egyptians, and slain, ii. 82.

Gautier defeated by the Hungarians, xvi. 479.

† Gaza; metropolis of Media, described, iv. 446. Taken and put to the sword by Alexander, v. 219. viii. 198, 200, & seq. By Antigonus, 391. By Antiochus, ix. 7.

† — in Bactria, taken by Alexander, viii. 256.

† — metropolis of Atropatene, ix. 627.

— destroyed by Alexander Jannæus,

x. 313, 314. Dismembered from Judæa, 406.

† Gaza, the temples of, destroyed, xvi. 62.

† — the famed church, built by Eudoxia, xvi. 121.

Ge, sister and wife to Uranus, i. 263, & 390.

Geberic's success against the Sarmatians, xv. 409.

Gedalia, the jewish deputy, murdered by Ishmael, iv. 181.

† Gedrosia, a province of Persia, described, iv. 506.

Geese save the capitol, xi. 583. Honoured by the Romans. 584.

Gehazi, the servant of Elisha, smitten with leprosy, ii. 316. iv. 107, n.

† Gela, a city in Sicily, vii. 147. By whom built, 160. Enslaved by Gelon, 167. Taken by the Carthaginians, 229, & seq. xvii. 72.

† — the river of, vii. 147.

Gelean women, their bravery, vii. 229. xvii. 68.

Gelimer, last king of the Vandals in Afric, xix. 192.

Gellias burns himself in Minerva's temple, vii. 222. His character, ib. n.

Gellius's ill success in Arabia, x. 302.

— Poplicola defeated by the slaves, xii. 617, &c. Chosen consul, 621.

— Q. treacherously murdered by Octavian, xiii. 238.

— his treason pardoned, xv. 144.

— the Agrigentine, his immense wealth and profusion, xvii. 65, n. His stratagem and fatal end, ib.

Gelon becomes tyrant of Syracuse vii. 167. Defeats the Carthaginians, 171. Moderation towards them, 173. Towards his subjects 174. Made king, ib. See also xvii. 22, 30, 32. Vast Donatives, 37, & n. His tomb demolished by Hamilco, 97. His statue, how preserved, vii. 174, n. Death and character, &c. 175, & seq.

— the son of Hiero, his treachery, to his father, vii. 338.

† Gelonian Scythians described, v. 463.

† — in Europe their extract, &c. xix. 354.

Geminii, their consulship, xiii. 666. Whether Christ suffered under it, ib. n.

Geminus in search after Marius, xi. 534. Brings him bound to Maturnæ, 537.

— sent to reclaim M. Antony, xii. 351. Forced to flee Cleopatra's resentment ibid.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

- Geminius Livius's impious flattery to Caligula, xiv. 56.
 — twin of Commodus, born, xv. 4.
 † Gemoniæ scalæ, what, xii. 162, 163, n.
 Genealogy of the antediluvians, i. between 232, & 233. Of Jesus Christ, x. 331 & n.
 Generation, the scriptural meaning of that word, x. 486, n.
 † Genesaret, Genezareth, the lake of, iii. 124. Why called the sea of Tiberias, x. 414.
 Genesis, when written by Moses, ii. 534, n.
 † Geneva, the lake of, described, v. 400, 401.
 Generides, general of Rhetia, his character, &c. xvi. 176.
 Genialis made prætor of the guards, xv. 82. Shuts himself up with Julianus, 93.
 Genii, their nature and office, according to the Oriental, i. 181.
 Genius. Vid. Demon, xvi. 635.
 Genobald, king of the antient Franks, xix. 239. Submits to Maximian, xv. 295, xix. 241.
 Genoese settled at Constantinople, xvi. 517. Removed to Galatea, ib. Seize on several islands, 538.
 Genseric's advantageous peace with the Romans, xix. 61.
 — carries his Vandals into Afric, 192.
 — succeeds Gonderic in Spain, xix. 201. His character, ib. & seq. Treaty with Bonifacius, 202. Conquers Afric, 203. Repulsed before Sicily, 204. Peace with the Romans, ib. Breaks it, 205. Ravages Sicily, 206. Invited into Italy by Eudoxia, 207. Plunders Rome, ib. Defeated by Ricimer, 208. Ravages Italy, ib. Slights the emperor's embassy, ib. Surprises Majoranus's fleet, 210. Makes peace with him, and breaks it, 211. Ravage Italy, &c. ib. & seq. And Greece, 212. Haughty answer to Leo, ib. Defeats his fleet, 215. New conquests and ravages, 217. Treaty with the Romans, ib. Death, 218. See also vol. xvi. 218. Succeeded by Huneric, ib.
 — cruelty to his daughter-in-law, xix. 75. n.
 Gentiles, when their conversion first began, x. 549, & seq.
 † Gentilci subdued by the Romans, xii. 427.
 Gentius, king of Illyria, ill-treated by the Romans, viii. 500. Outwitted by Perseus, 509. Sent prisoner to Rome, 527, 528, & n. See also xii. 318, 327.
 † Genua, metropolis of Liguria, xi. 257.
 Genuadius's writings and character, xv. 512. n.
 Genubath, king of Edom, ii. 167.
 Genus and Genea, who, i. 257.
 Genutius, Cn. summons the consuls, xi. 477. His sudden death, ib.
 — the consul, joins the plebeian interest, xi. 518. Chosen decemvir, 519.
 — the tribune, killed by the Hetrurians, xi. 570.
 — a plebeian, chosen consul, xi. 621. Slain, 627.
 † Geography, the first rise of, ii. 39.
 Geomori, at Samos, their office, vii. 518, 519. Murdered, 519.
 Geometry first found out by the Egyptians, i. 578.
 George the Arian bishop, where born, v. 597. Succeeds Athanasius, xvi. 477.
 † Georgia, a province of Scythia, v. 441. Why so called, ix. 611. Described, 616. The rest see under Iberia, 608.
 Georgian women, famed for their beauty, ix. 613, 616, 617.
 Georgias defeated by Judas Maccabeus, x. 130, & seq. In Idumea, 138. By Dositheus, 149.
 † Georgioi, Athenian farmers so called, vi. 132.
 † Gepidæ revolt against Probus, xv. 282. The same with the Lombards, and Franks, xvi. 36. Kill each other in the dark, 247. Join with the Avari, 327. Their origin, xviii. 585, & xix. 121. Submit to Attila, 61. Regain their liberty, 95. Obtain a pension from Rome, ib. Defeated by the Goths, 121, By Theodoric, 184. Settled in Thrace, 195. Defeated by Probus ib. Their settlements, 335. Defeat the Burgundi, ib. & seq. Defeated by Claudius, ib. Their wars with the Hunns, 337. Settled in Dacia, ib. Defeated by Justinian, ib. Fall out with the Lombards, 338, 339. Defeated by them, ib. Subdued, ib. The end of their kingdom, ib.
 † Gerar, once the metropolis of the Philistines, ii. 222.
 — the valley of, where Isaac sojourned, iii. 115.
 † Geraſtus, a promontory in Eubœa, vii. 644.
 † — a city in the same island, vii. 644.
 † Gerasites in Canaan, where situated, ii. 183.
 † Gergasites, of Canaan, where situate, x. 454, & n. Probably fled into Afric, ii. 209, n.
 † Gerizim mount, iii. 40, 41, & 115.
 † Germa

I N D E X to the

† Germa destroyed by an earthquake, xv. 623.

German women, their signal bravery, xviii. 509, 510.

— old why supposed prophetesses, xviii. 496, & n.

— married, their fidelity, diligence, &c. xviii. 624, & n. Some hard laws against them, ib. & 628.

— poetry, its roughness, xviii. 521, n. & 628.

— legions revolt, xiii. 516. Quelled and punished, 523.

Germani, an ambiguous word, punned upon, xiii. 235.

† Germania, how divided, xviii. 575, & seq. & n. Its extent, 575, & seq. Described, ib. Its nations, forests, rivers, towns, &c. 588, & seq. Soil and produce, ib.

— Prima, invaded by the Vandals, xix. 196.

† Germanicia, a city of Comagene, ii. 263.

† Germanicopolis, the capital of Isauria, xv. 622. When made a bishop's see, ib.

Germanicus, Drus. his descent, xiii. 365. Adopted by Tiberius, 444. Success against the Pannonians, 450. In Dalmatia, 453, 454. Over-reached at Rhetium, 457, & seq. Triumphs over the Dalmatians, 458, 459. Consulship, 470. Recommended to the senate, 471. Promoted by Tiberius, 503, & n. Insulted by the German legions, 519. Quells them, 520. And a fresh revolt, 522. Refuses the empire, 519, 525. Severe expedition against the Marfi, 527. & seq. Against the Catti, 534, & seq. And the confederate Germans, 539, & seq. Piety to the slain Romans, ib. Ill success against Arminius, 545. Retires to the Rhine, ib. New expedition into Germany, 552, & seq. Speech to his army, 557, 558. Gains two complete victories, 559, 560, & seq. His monumental inscription, ib. Danger at sea, 561. Recalled by Tiberius, 562. His reception and triumph, 570, & seq. The eastern provinces given to him, 572. Sets out towards them, 579. Insulted by Piso, 582. Goes into Egypt, 583. Taken ill at Antioch, 585. His last words, 586, & seq. Death and obsequies, 587, & seq. Posterity, 588, & 587, n. Character, ib. & seq. n. Funeral honours, 592, & seq. & n.

— the squadron of, why so called, xiii. 494.

Germans, antient, when first mentioned by the Roman authors, xiii. 178. And known to them, xviii. 570. Their extract, 370. Antient names and etymons, 571, & n. Several nations, where sited, 575. Religion, 595, & seq. Cruel rites, 598. Had no temples, ib. Their deities, ib. & seq. Horrid superstitions, 606, & n. Priests, 608. Laws, government, &c. 609. Councils, ib. & n. Kings, 610. Military discipline, 611, & n. Cavalry, &c. 613. Weapons, 614, 615, & n. Arts, sciences, &c. 617, & n. Dress, 618. Writing, 620, & n. Strength, &c. 621. Fidelity, 622. Money, 623. Marriages, ib. Promiscuous commerce confuted, 624. Funerals, 625. Notions of a future state, 626, & n. Unnatural Customs, 628. Drunkenness, 629. Antient history, why dark, 630. Invaded by the Romans, 631. Wars with them ib. & seq. Repulsed by Agrippa, xii. 397. By Lollius, 403. By Drusus, 417. Massacred by Germanicus, 527. By the Gauls, xviii. 633. & seq. Revolt from the Romans, ibid. & seq. War against M. Aurelius, xv. 12. With fresh vigour, 13, & seq. Against Alex. Severus, 169. Against Valerian, 225. Against Aurelian, 255. Against Probus, 279. Constantius, 469. Julian, 482. Valentinian, 582.

Germanus forced to head the mutinous Romans, xvi. 325. Totally defeats the Persians, 326. Defeated by Narses, 331. His death, ib.

† Germany invaded by Cæsar, xiii. 21. Visited by Adrian, xiv. 617. Ravaged by Maximian, xv. 185.

Gerontius cruelly treated by Constantius, xv. 457.

— betrays the streights of Thermopylæ, xvi. 122.

— sent to guard the Pyrenees, xvi. 165, 166. Sets up Maximus in Spain, 179. Success against Constantine, 186. Desperate end, 187.

Gerostratus, king of Arad, submit to Alexander, ii. 392.

† Gerræi, who, and where sited, xviii. 193.

Gershon, a chief branch of the Levites, iii. 251.

Geryon's oxen fetched by Hercules, v. 630, n.

† Geshur, the kingdom of, more antient than that of Damascus, ii. 305. Whether Abraham reigned in it, 305, n. Their petty princes, 327, & n. Allied to David, ibid. Transplanted by the Syrians, ibid.

† Geshurites

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Geshurites unite with Amalek against the Israelites, ii. 179. Who they were, ib. n.

Gesuald's noble fidelity and death, xix. 541.

† Gessoriacum, Bologne, the triumphal arch of, xviii. 701.

Geta's success in Mauritania, xiv. 115, & n.

— sent to seize on Silius, xiv. 136. Turned out by Agrippina, 148.

— Severus, the father of Alexander, xv. 89.

— the son of Severus, by Julia, xv. 90. Chosen Cæsar, 109. Tribune, 116. Styled Britannicus, 117. Succeeds with his brother to the empire, 122. His lovely character, 124. Murdered by Caracalla, 125. Declared a traitor, 126. Deified, ibid.

— triumphs over the Britons, xviii. 701.

† Getæ, where sited, v. 442. Defeated by Alexander, viii. 145, 146. Different from the Dacians, xiv. 496. Their terrible inroads, xvi. 301. The rest see sub Goths, xix. 105, & seq.

† Gether, one of Aram's sons, prince of Bactria, i. 463. Where seated, ib.

† Gethsemane, the vale of, iii. 146. Whence so called, x. 499, & n.

Getulicus Lentul. accused, xiv. 18. Noble letter to Tiberius, ib. Put to death, 75.

† Gevaudan taken by the Visigoths, xix. 166.

† Gezer, in Canaan, put to the sword by Pharaoh, ii. 214. Given in dowry to Solomon, iv. 54, 55.

† Gezerites, who, ii. 179, n. Ally with Amalek against the Jews, ib.

† Gezira, Jezira, island, where, xviii. 17.

† Ghaffan, the kingdom of, by whom founded, xviii. 285. List of its kings, 286.

Ghost, Holy, the sin against, what, and why unpardonable, x. 450, n. & 451, n.

— miraculous descent on the apostles, x. 533. The truth of the fact, 534, n. & seq. n.

Giamesp made regent of Persia, xi. 215. Resigns to Cobad, 216.

— a famed Persian astrologer, v. 340. Foretels the coming of the Messiah, 341, & n.

Giants, probably Cain's race, i. 250. Absurd opinions about them, ib. n. Their origin, 246, n. & seq. The probability of them, 251, n. & seq. Continued until the flood, 252, n. Their war with Jupiter, v. 428, & seq.

† Gibbeath, their hospitality and punishment, iii. 490, &c.

† Gibbethon besieged by the Israelites, ii. 259.

† Gibel, mount. See Ætna, vii. 155.

† Gibeon, a city of the Hivites, make a league with Joshua, ii. 201, 202. Make a kind of slaves, 202. Besieged by the confederate Canaanites, iii. 79, & n. Relieved by Joshua, ii. 203. Its situation, x. 577, & n.

† — the valley of, iii. 79, & n.

† Gibeonites, their revenge on Saul, iv. 44. Those who returned from the captivity, x. 11.

Gideon saluted saviour of Israel, iii. 495, 496. The miracle of his fleece, 496. Why surnamed Jerubaal, ib. Miraculous victory with his three hundred men, 497, 498. Severity to Succoth and Penuel, 500. Makes an ephod of the golden plunder, 501. Refuses to reign over the Israelites, ib. His death, 502.

Gigantomachia, at Athens, what, xiii. 352, n.

† Gihon, river, supposed the same with the Ganges, i. 189, 190.

† Gilboah, mount, iii. 115.

Gilda's account of Britain, xviii. 684, n.

Gildo revolts from Honorius, xvi. 131. His rise and character, 132. Defeated and taken, 135. Hangs himself, 136.

Gilead, the monument, reared by Jacob, ii. 446, 447.

† — mount, where sited, iii. 115.

Gileadite Jews oppressed by the Syrians, x. 140. Relieved by Judas, 147. Subdued by Janneus, 216.

Gileadites removed into Judea, x. 147.

† Gindanes, who, and where sited, xviii. 77.

† Gischala, the city of, taken by the Romans, x. 584.

— John de, outwits Vespasian, x. 584. Treachery to Ananus, 586, & 587, n. Desperate defence against the opposite parties, 595, & n. Against Simon, 599. Plunders the temple, 606. Horrid hypocrisy, 607. Taken prisoner, 617. Punishment, 618, & n.

Gisco, the son of Hamilcar, banished, and left to starve, xvii. 38. Recalled into Sicily, 143. Made governor of Lilybæum,

284. Sent to treat with the mercenaries, 288. Clapped in irons by them, 290. His miserable end, 303.
 Gifulph, first duke of Friuli, xix.
 385.
 — of Benevento, his reign and death,
 xix. 553.
 † Gjudda, a sea-port near Mecca, xviii.
 207.
 Glabrio sent against Mithridates, ix.
 434.
 — the consul, forced to fight the lion,
 xiv. 504. Banished and murdered by Domitian, ib.
 — refuses the empire, xv. 73.
 Gladiators, when first introduced at Rome, xii. 406, & n. Their manner of fighting, &c. ib. &c. Reward, ib. n.
 & seq. n. Their several classes, ib. &c.
 — sent out of Rome, xiii. 446.
 By whom maintained in the army, 510, n.
 Their number stinted by Tiberius, 531.
 Restrained by M. Aurelius, xv. 39. Forbid by Constantine, 402. By Honorius, xvi.
 257.
 Glaphyra obtains Cappadocia for her son,
 ix. 470.
 — married to Alexander, x. 312. Sent back to her father, 322. Illegally married to Archelaus, 408.
 † Glas, the first and best, made with Tyrian sand, ii. 336.
 — made at Schirras in Persia, iv.
 525, n.
 † Glaucē, the fountain of, whence so called, vi. 42.
 Glaucia, a creature of Marius, xii. 501.
 Conspires with Apuleius, ib. Put to death, 507.
 Glaucias, king of Illyricum, defeated,
 ix. 544.
 — makes peace with Cassander, viii.
 448. Murders Roxana and her son,
 451.
 Glaucus, king of Corinth, vi. 42.
 Glaufæ invaded by Alexander, viii.
 304.
 † Gloucester taken by the Saxons. xix.
 34.
 Glycerius takes the purple on him, xvi.
 280. Deposed, and made archbishop,
 281. Reception of Nepos in his flight,
 282.
 Glyco suspected of poisoning the two consuls, xiii. 190, n.
 Gnephactus, king of Egypt, ii. 54.
 Leaves a monumental curse on luxury,
 ibid.
 Gnefios, among the Athenians, what, vi.
 132.

Gnosians assist the besieged Rhodians, vii.
 419. Subdued part of Crete, 481.
 Gnosius, Ariadne, why so called, vii. 459.
 † Gnosius, Jupiter's tomb shewn at, v.
 432. The antient metropolis of Crete,
 vii. 459.
 Goats, why worshipped by the Egyptians, i. 564. Why painted on the Macedonian standards, viii. 44.
 God, the creator of matter and form, i.
 75. A free agent, 81. The world not involuntarily created by him, ib. & seq.
 The sole principle of matter and motion,
 94. How free from the imputation of evil,
 135. The hundred and twenty years of his forbearance, 252. Not the hardener of the heart, ii. 558, n.
 Godegiselus leads his Vandals into Gaul,
 xix. 192. Allies with Clovis, 286. Treachery to Gundebald, ib. Put to death by him, 287.
 Godemar, king of the Burgundi, xix.
 317. Hires the Ostrogoths, ib. Success against the Franks, ib. Peace with them,
 318. Driven out, 319. Taken prisoner,
 320.
 Godfrey's hostile march against Constantinople, xvi. 479. Treaty with Alexius, 480.
 Gods, Egyptian, reigning before the flood,
 i. 273, & seq.
 — tutelar, how evocated at a siege,
 xii. 352.
 Gog and Magog, probably the same,
 i. 469. A fabulous prince of British Gaul, xviii. 685, n.
 † Gogarene derives its name from Gog,
 i. 470.
 † Gold first coined by the Lydians, v.
 576.
 — sand of the river Hermus, v.
 499.
 — mines seized by the Thasians, vi.
 227, & seq.
 — by Philip, viii. 83. Despised by the Ethiopians, xviii. 133. By the antient Gauls, 528, & n. By the Germans, 623.
 — the sand of, in Lusitania, xviii.
 332.
 Golden fleece. See Fleece, vi. 20, n.
 22, 23, n.
 † Golgi, a town in Cyprus, vii.
 488.
 † Golgotha, mount, described, x.
 509, n.
 Goliath, the gigantic Philistine champion, described, ii. 249, n. Killed by David 251.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Goliath, his son, another giant, killed by Jonathan, ii. 256, 257, & seq.

Gombroom in Persia, its dreadful heats, iv. 529, n.

† Gomer, Japhet's eldest son, the father of the Gomerians, v. 383. Whether he came into Europe, ib. & seq. Whether the father of the Phrygians, 500. Their language described, 410. Still preserved by the Welsh, ib. & seq. Its affinity to the Hebrew, ib. n. & 411, n. Their descent, ib.

† Gomerians, called by the Greeks, Galatians, the Gauls of Asia Minor, i. 467. Called also Celtes, v. 383. Other names, v. 386, n. & 392. Different from the Scythians, 384, & seq. Their migrations into Europe, 390. Extent of their territories there, 393, 394. The names of their rivers, cities, &c. of Celtic extract, 401, 402. Their government, laws, religion, &c. 405, & seq. Military discipline, language, &c. 409, & seq. Diet, 412. Why confounded with the Scythians, 415, n. Their kings, 419, & seq. Kingdom dismembered, 435.

Gonderic, king of the Vandals, invades Gaul, xvi. 162. And Spain, 180. Driven out of Biscay, 201. His kingdom in Spain, xix. 199. Defeats the Suevi, 200. Defeated by Asterius, ib. & 201. His miserable end, ib.

Gondiac defeated by Ægidius, xvi. 271.

Gondibal supports Glycerius's usurpation, xvi. 280.

Gondicarius, king of the Burgundi in Gaul, xvi. 192. Defeated by the Hunns, 222, & xix. 55.

Gondomarus makes peace with Constantius, xv. 476.

Gongilas defeated by the Saracens, xvi. 416.

Good Goddess, the sacrifices of, xii. 642, & n.

Gopher, what, i. 300, & n.

Gordas, king of the Hunns, converted, xix. 98. And murdered by his subjects, ibid.

† Gordæan mountains in Armenia, ix. 321.

Gordian knot, the origin of, viii. 175. Cut by Alexander, 176.

Gordianus, Alexander's counsellor, xv. 157. Proclaimed emperor in Afric, 186. Enters Carthage, 187. Letters to the senate and consuls, ib. Acknowledged by them, ib. & 188, n. Defeated, 190. Kills himself, ib. His extraction, &c. 191. Poems and success in Afric, 192.

Gordianus his son and colleague, defeated and killed, xv. 187, & 190.

— his grandson, chosen Cæsar, xv. 194. Quells an uproar in Rome, 196. Chosen sole emperor, 201. His character, ib. Magnificent games, 202. Marries Sabina, ib. Submissive answer to his father, 203, n. Success against Sapor, 205. In Syria, ib. Letter to the senate, ib. Deposed by Philip, 207. And murdered, ib. His stately tomb and epitaph, ib.

† Gordium, a city of Phrygia, v. 496. By whom built, 514.

Gordius I. v. 502. How raised to the throne, 513. Ties the Gordian knot, 514.

— II. v. 517.

— III. invaded by the Cimmerians, v. 518.

Gorgo, queen of Sparta, her character, vi. 437, n.

Gorgophone married to Oebalus, king of Sparta, vi. 56.

Gorgopus, the Spartan, defeated and killed, vi. 340.

† Gorgus, a river of Assyria, iv. 197, & n. — king of Salamis, expelled by his brother, vii. 494. Recalled, 497.

† Gortyna, in Crete, vii. 460. Its ruins described, ib. & seq.

† — its temple, by whom built, vii. 461.

† Gortynians subdue part of Crete, vii. 481.

† Gorza, where situate, xvii. 297, & n.

† Goshem, in Egypt, its situation, &c. ii. 475, n.

Gotarzes resigns his sceptre to Bardanes, xi. 60. Mounts the Parthian throne, 61. Wars with Mithridates, ib. & seq. His death, 62.

Gothofredus's account of post-chaises, xiv. 597.

† Goths invade the Roman territories, xv. 200. Repulsed by Gordian, 205. Make new inroads, 218. Defeated by Decius, ib. Defeat him, 220. Sad defeat by Aurelian, 227. Driven out of Asia, 245. Ravish it afresh, 247. Three hundred thousand of them killed or taken, 253. Make peace with him, 255. With Probus, 281. Defeats the Burgundi, 297. Defeated by Constantine, 394, 405. An hundred thousand cut off by him, 408. Embrace christianity, ib. Assist Procopius, 619. Defeated by Valens, 623. Obtain a peace, ib. Driven out by the Hunns, xvi. 12. Two hundred thousand settle in Thrace, ib. Some encamp about Adrianople, 14. Successful revolt, ib. Plunder the suburbs at Constantinople, 18. Repulsed before Adrianople, 29. Cruelties in Thrace, &c. ib.

Cut

I N D E X to the

Cut off in Asia, 30. By Theodosius, 38. Make and brake peace with Rome, 40, & 42. Defeated afresh by him, 45. Settled in Thrace and Mœsia, 47. Transplanted thither from Pannonia, 217. Settled in Spain, 218. In Aquitain, ib. & seq. Defeated before Narbonne, 223. By Ætius, 224. How divided and settled, 248. Treachery to the Spanish cities, 263. Ravage Lusitania, 277. Strive to revenge Aspar's death, 279. Make war against both empires, 280. Seize on Gothland, xix. 9. Defeated at Chalons, 84. Number of the slain, 86. Their origin, 104, 114. The same with Cimbri, 105, & 114. Sundry settlements, 105. Names and countries, 108. Language and writing, 110. Coming into Germany, ib. to 114. Allow polygamy, 116, 117. Why called Goths, 117. Their customs, kings, &c. ib. Dress, 119. Wars with Caracalla, 120. Become pensionary to Rome, ib. Ravage Mœsia, ib. & seq. Driven out of Thrace, 123. Ravage Asia, ib. Invade the empire, 125. Defeated, 126. By pestilence, 127. Surrender to Claudius, 128. Driven out of Pannonia, 129. And Thrace, ib. Dacia, &c. 130. Various defeats, xv. 394, 400. An hundred thousand of them destroyed, xix. 133. When and how converted, ib. & n. Serve under the Romans, 134. Defeated by Valens, 136, 137, & seq. By the Hunns, 139. Settle in Thrace, ib. & seq. Submit to Theodosius, 140. Ravage Greece, 145. Italy, 150. Their conquests in France. See sub. Visigoths, 153, & seq. And Italy, sub. Ostrogoths, 173.

Gothish women fight in mens apparel, xix. 129.

Government, at first patriarchal, 477. Changed, 478.

Gracchian law, what, xii. 401. Repealed, 418. Revived, 506, 508.

Gracchus, Tib. his noble speech in favour of the two Scipios, xii. 311, 313. Marries Cornelia, ib. & 375.

— his son, raises a dreadful sedition, xii. 376, & seq. Revives the Licinian law, ib. & seq. Submits it to the senate, 379. Passes it in spite of them, 381, & seq. Killed, 385.

— Cai. chosen questor, xii. 396. His popularity becomes dangerous, ib. & seq. His character, 400, & n. Laws and public works, 401, & seq. Outwitted by the senate, 404. Affronts the tribunes, 406, & seq. Mad speech to the senate, 412. Retires to mount Aventine, 413, 414. His flight and death, 416.

Gracchus's success against the Carthaginians, xvii. 422. Sent to rebuild their city, 539.

Gradual psalms, why so called, x. 35, & n.

† Graicoi, Graii, antient Greeks, v. 604, & n.

Gramen or grass crown, why given to Scipio, xii. 345.

† Grampius, mount, the battle of, xiv. 478.

† Granicus, river in Mysia, v. 565, & n. — the battle of, viii. 158, & seq.

Granius accompanies Marius in his flight, xii. 535, & seq. Parted from him, 536. Rejoins him, 539.

— strangled by Sylla, xii. 589.

— Martian. accused, xiv. 20. Kills himself, 21.

Grata, the daughter of Valentinian, xv. 587. Turns nun, xvi. 95.

Gratedius, stoned to death by the soldiers, xii. 529.

Gratian, the father of Valentinian, his rise, merit, &c. xv. 575. Retirement, ibid.

— the son, born, xv. 575. Chosen consul, 583. Emperor, 586. Goes with Valentinian into Germany, 590. His famous bridge, 593. Left to awe the Germans, 607. Divides the empire with his brother, xvi. 8. Injustice to Theodosius, 9. Remits his father's dues, 10. Some of his laws, 11. In favour of the clergy, 17. Courage and success against the Germans, ib. Hastens to save Constantinople, 29. Recalls the orthodox, 31. Laws against heretics, ib. Divides the empire with Theodosius, 32. Goes into Gaul, 35. Into Illyricum, 40. Makes peace with the Goths, ib. Success against the Barbarians, 45. Some excellent laws of his, 46, 48. Marches against Maximus, 50. Abandoned by his troops, ib. Put to death, ib. Interred at Milan, 52. His excellent character, ib. Refuses the title of pont. max. ib.

— the son of Theodosius, xvi. 35.

Gratus defeats the seditious Jews, x. 403.

— Valer. made governor of Judea, x. 413.

† Grecia Magna, described, xi. 263.

Grecinus's excellent character, xiv. 55, & n. Put to death by Caligula, ib.

† Greece, antient, described, v. 604, & seq. Its various names, ib. Contended for by the Gods, vi. 35, & n. Engaged in the Peloponnesian war, 263. Shattered with dreadful earthquakes, 277, & seq. Quieted by by the Nicean peace, 287. Under new disasters, 288. Divided between aristocracy and oligarchy, 345. Its various states after the Achæan league, 346, & seq. Invaded by Philip, ib. & viii. 115, & seq. Throws off the Macedonian yoke, vi. 361. After Alexander's death, 364, & seq. Subdued by the Romans, ib. & vii. 97. & seq. Made a Roman province, xiv. 441.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Greece the democracy of, restored, viii. 149.

† ——— the islands of, described, vii. 627, & seq. Forced to submit to Antipater, viii. 229, 427. Proclaimed free at the Isthmian games, xi. 299. Over-run by the Castobochi, xv. 18. Under a grievous pestilence, 239. Ravaged by the Goths, ib. Damaged by an earthquake, 537.

Greek philosophers have their learning from Egypt, i. 98. Their account of the flood, 279, n. & seq. Settle in Egypt, ii. 59, 60.

——— historians, their partiality against the Scythians, v. 452, 453.

——— tongue, affirmed to be the language of the gods, v. 503, 504, & n. Forbid by the Carthaginians, xvi. 602, 603, & n.

——— letters, when brought into Italy, xi. 268, & n.

——— mercenaries, how used by Alexander, viii. 233, 234. Revolt after his death, 362. Massacred, ib. & seq.

† Greeks, the first foreigners allowed to dwell in Egypt, ii. 59, 60. Their lands near Bubastis, ib. Growth in the time of Amasis, 71. Pride in slighting foreign records, iv. 208, & seq. Who were the most antient among them, v. 602, & seq. Their rude beginning, 607, & seq. Antient government, 609, & seq. Religion, 611. Antiquity, 613. Various states, ib. & seq. After the Achæan league, vi. 346. Expedition against Troy, v. 549. Fleet, &c. 552. First eight years war, 555, & seq. Infected with pestilence, 556. Burn Troy, 557. Various fates of their chiefs, ib. & seq.

——— their brave defence against Xerxes, v. 131, 136. Defeat at Thermopylæ, 137, & seq. Fleet, 141. Victory over the Persians, 143, 147. By sea and land on the same day, 148, & seq. Peace with Artaxerxes, 160, & seq. Assist Cyrus, 170, 171. Advance into Persia, ib. Noble retreat after his death, 174. Invade Persia, 204. Chuse Alexander their general; ib. Battle of Grannicus, ib. & seq.

Greeks, their first coming into Sicily, vii. 159. Invade Africa, 304. Make peace with Carthage, 311, & seq. War with Persia, viii. 52, & seq. Arm against Philip, 116, & seq. Defeated at Chæronea, 118. Revolt from Alexander, 147. Their treachery to the Parthians, xi. 12. Descent into Latium, 641. Retire, 643. Flattery to M. Antony, xiii. 294, & seq. To Nero, xiv. 264. Infranchised by him, 265. Plundered and famished by him, ib. & 268.

——— horrid flattery to Adrian, xiv. 624. High encomiums on Constantine, 417. Invade the eastern empire, xvi. 121. Allowed a church at Constantinople, 147. Massacred and burnt in it, 148. Ravage Italy, 152. Take and destroy Rome, 183. Ravage Gaul, 188. Invite the Bulgarians against Rome, 506. Submit to the pope, 518. Shake him off, 519.

——— that came to see our Saviour, who, x. 488, & n.

——— of Asia, their history, vii. 99.

Gregory's writings and character, xv. 428, n.

——— bishop of Antioch, quells the mutinous Romans, xvi. 326.

——— I. pope, his flattering letter to Phocas, xvi. 330.

——— prefect of Afric, defeated, xvi. 345.

——— II. stirs up the Venetians, xvi. 361. Attempted by Leo, ib. Letter to the Lombards, &c. ib. & seq. Whether he assumed the supreme power, 362. See also, xix. 558, to 568.

——— Michael's general, defeated and killed, xvi. 386.

† Greuthongi, who, xix. 46. Defeated by Valens, 138. Treachery to Tato, 527, & xv. 623. Invaded by the Hunns, xvi. 12. Defeated by Theodosius, 68.

Grimoald defeats Constans II. xvi. 347.

——— refuged in Lombardy, xix. 534.

——— made duke of Benevento, xix. 435. His conquests, ib. & seq. Seizes on Lombardy, 537. Treachery to Partharit, 538. Stratagem against the Franks, 539. Drives out the Romans, 542. New conquests, 543. Stratagem against the Hunns, ib. Corrects the Lombard laws, 544. His death and character, ib.

——— II. succeeds his father, and dies, xix. 553.

Grotius Hugo's notion about the standing of the sun confuted, iii. 82. Account of the, xvi. 36, 37.

† Grottos, near Osynt, in Egypt, described, i. 534.

Grottos

Grottos resorted to by the Romans in summer, xiii. 655, & n.

† Groves sacred among the Scythians, v. 451. Among the antient patriarchs, xviii. 415. Among the Gauls, ib. & seq. And Germans, 590, & seq. That of Marseilles described by Lucan, 414, & n.

† Guaguamela, the battle of, viii. 212, & seq.

Guardians, Solon's laws concerning, vi. 121.

Gubases invites the Romans against Cosrhoes, xi. 143. Assassinated, 144. See also, xvi. 311, 315.

Guiscard, Robert, his extract, &c. xvi. 470. Success against Alex. Comnenus, 472. & seq. Against the emperor Henry, 473. His death, ib.

—— his son relinquishes all his conquests, xvi. 473.

† Gulph, Persian, described, iv. 531, 532, n.

—— a dreadful one opened in the Roman forum, xi. 627.

Gulussa's extract, xii. 432. Begs the Numidian crown of the Romans, 443.

—— treachery and cruelty to the Carthaginians, xii. 336, 338. Vindicates his father to the Roman senate, xvii. 518. Insulted at Carthage, 520. His share of the Numidian kingdom, 582. Death, ibid.

Gundabunus revolts to the Romans, xi. 171. Helps to dethrone Cosrhoes, ib. & 172.

Gundamond, king of the Vandals in Africa, xix. 192.

Gundebald defeated by Clovis, xix. 286. Besieged in Avignon, ib. Success against his brother, 286, 287. Made magister militiæ, 306. His law in favour of duels, 307. Fratricide, 312. Conquests and ravages, 313. Death, ib.

Gundebert's treachery to his brother, xix. 536. Death, 537.

Gundemar, king of the Visigoths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Gunderic settles in Galicia, xix. 192.

Gundiac, king of the Burgundi, made magister militiæ, xix. 306. His success in Spain and Gaul, 310.

Gurgenes, Gyrgenes, turns christian, ix. 611. Invaded by the Persians, xvi. 304.

Gurges, Quin. Fab.'s gallantry at Ptolemy's court, ix. 195. Builds a temple to Venus, xii. 63. Defeated by the Samnites, 71. Rescued by his father, 72. Regulates the public revenue, 96. Killed before Volsinii, 99.

Gusanastades's advice to the Persian council, xi. 118. Declared a rebel, 120. Put to death, ib.

Gustaph, prince of Persia, according to the Orientals, his fabulous reign, v. 295. & seq. Whether the same with Hytaspes, 339.

† Guzula, where sited, xviii. 45.

Gyants. See Giants, 250, & seq.

† Gyarus, island, why uninhabited, vii. 599.

Gyges's treason against Candaules, v. 580, 581.

Gylippus, the Spartan, relieves Syracuse, vi. 300. His success in Sicily, 466. Takes the Athenian generals prisoners, 302. Whether chargeable with their death, 303, n. Banished for theft, 472. His character, ib. See also vii. 193. to 199, & 203, 210.

Gylphus, Gylvo, receives Woden in Sweden, xix. 112.

† Gymnic games instituted by Alexander, viii. 193.

Gymnosophists burnt themselves when weary of life, xiii. 395.

† Gyrlone, metropolis of the kingdom of Orestes, viii. 10, 11.

Gythians subdued by the Lacedemonians, vi. 47, 48.

† Gythitis, island in Ethiopia, xviii. 107.

† Gythium, the sea-port of, by whom built, vi. 48, & n. Taken and burnt by the Athenians, 238. By Nabis, 545. By the Romans, xii. 303.

H

HABRAH, the spring of, in Numidia, xvii. 560.

Hadad, the Horite, defeats the Midianites, ii. 134, 160.

—— king of Edom, flees from David into Egypt, ii. 165. Marries Pharaoh's sister, ib. Proves a thorn in Solomon's side, 167. Probably settled in Syria, ib.

Hadadezer, or Hadarezer, the first king of Zobah in Syria, ii. 307. Defeated by David, ib. Assists Hanun against him, 308. Defeated, ib. And becomes tributary to him, ib.

Hadar, king of the Horites, ii. 160.

† Hadhramant, a province of Arabia Felix, why so called, i. 474.

† Hadoram, one of Joktan's sons, where settled, i. 474.

† Hadrumentum. See Adrumentum, xvi. 580.

† Hæmu

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Hæmus, mount, where situate, xv. 218.

Hagar, forced to flee from Sarah, ii. 405. Returns and submits, ib. Brings from Ishmael, ib. &c. Sent away with him, 414.

† Hagareni, where situate, xviii. 184. Why so called, 212. Brave opposition against Trajan, 300, 301.

† Hagerim, Malcuth, what is meant by, x. 199, n.

Haggai, the prophet, reproves the Jews, x. 20. One of Ezra's assistants, 29, n.

† Hajathelites, who, xi. 209. Repulsed by Cosrhoes, 220.

† Haik, the son of Togarmah, gives his name to antient Armenia, i. 468, 469.

Hail-stones destroy the confederate Canaanites, iii. 91, 92. Remarks on that miraculous transaction, ib. & seq. & n. One of the Egyptian plagues, ii. 566, & seq.

Hali murdered by Mahuvias, xvi. 346.

† Halicarnassus, capital of Caria, vii. 121. Why excluded the Dorian confederacy, 128. Taken by Alexander, x. 207, 208, & seq. viii. 166, & seq. Demolished, 168.

Haliæus, in the Phœnician cosmogony, who, i. 260. The first hunter and fisher, ib.

Hallal, among the Jews, a set of eucharistical psalms, x. 498, n.

Halolus, Claudius's taster, poisons him, xiv. 164, & n. His crimes and extortion, 312. Screened by Vibius from punishment, ib.

† Halonesus, one of the Cyclades, taken from the pirates by Philip, viii. 108. By the Peparethians, ib.

Haly, a private friend to the christians, xvi. 551, 552.

† Halycus, a river in Sicily, vii. 156.

† Halys, river, described, ix. 54, n. Divides Pontus from Paphlagonia, 376. Runs through Cappadocia into the Euxine, 458.

† Ham, the youngest son of Noah, i. 351, & n. Why and how far cursed in his posterity, 352, & n. Crimes laid to his charge, 354, & n. Held the inventor of magic, ib. And of idolatry, ib. His issue more numerous than his brethrens, 357. The true reason of Noah's discarding him, 356, n. & seq. Whether the same with Chronus, 357. Or with Menes, ib. n. Where he first settled and reigned, 461. His descendants, where settled, ib.

† Hamadan, an opulent city in Parthia, iv. 517.

Haman called an Agagite, or Amalekite, ii. 180.

† Hamath, the kingdom of, from whom so called, ii. 284. Chronology of its kings, 304.

† ——— the Great, where sited, ii. 325, 326, n. The uncertainty of about its kings, &c. 325. &c. Subject afterwards to Damascus, 327. And lastly to Assyria, ib.

Hamathites transplanted by the Assyrians, ii. 327.

† Hamilcar serves under Xerxes, v. 127.

—— his fleet and army, vii. 170. Defeated and killed, 171.

—— sent into Sicily, 294. Taken prisoner at Syracuse and killed, 309.

—— besieges Segesta, xii. 114. Repulses the Romans at Lipara, 119. Defeated before Heraclea, 121. Sent for to command at home, 123. His cruel death at Rome, 137.

Hamilcar worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 633. His effigy and name upon their coin, 657. Succeeds his father, xvii. 21. Ill success against the Sardinians, ib.

—— the father of Hanno, repulsed by Scipio, xii. 283, 284.

—— the son of Hanno, his expedition against Sicily, xvii. 29. Over-reached by Gelon, 30. Defeated and killed, ib. Deified, 32.

—— sent against Timoleon, xvii. 135. Defeated, 137. Betrays the Syracusans, 153. His death, 154.

—— Rodanus, sent to sound Alexander's designs, xvii. 149. His method of sending notice of them to Carthage, ib. & seq. Ungratefully put to death, ib.

—— the son of Gisco, shipwreck'd, xvii. 156. Defeats Agathocles, ib. & seq. Recalled from Sicily, 171. Raises the Siege of Syracuse, 172. Defeated by them, 176. His dismal end, ib. Head sent to Agathocles, ib. & seq. Throws Carthage into despair, 178.

—— the successor of Hanno, outwits the Romans, xvii. 238. Defeats them, 242. Defends Lipara, 249. Defeated by the Romans, 252. His offers of peace rejected, ib. Recalled, 253. His miserable end, 264.

—— cruelty to the Mauritanians, xvii. 266. Brave defence of Lilybæum, 270. Prevents the revolt of the mercenaries, 271.

I N D E X to the

Hamilcar Barcas, success against the Romans, xii. 146. Sends provisions to Lilybæum, 149. Defeated, 152. Sues for peace, 153, & seq. Forms two schemes against Rome, 158. His character, and manner of encamping, xvii. 277. Makes peace with the Romans, 282. His invincible hatred against them, ib. Resigns at the Libyan war, 283. Sent general against them, 298. Bold passage of the Bagrada, ib. Defeats the Libyans, 299. Severity to the bloody mercenaries, 304. Incloses them on all sides, 306. Puts them to death, 307. Besieges the rest in Tunes, 308. Concludes the Libyan war, 309. Reduces the Numidians, 313. Expedition and success in Spain, ib. & seq. See also vol. xii. 179, 181. Death, xvii. 316. Inspires his sons with hatred against the Romans, 326. xviii. 386.

Hamilco sent into Scicily, vii. 365. To the relief of Syracuse, 366, 374. Dies of the plague, 375.

——— commands in Lilybæum, xii. 138.

† Hamman lef, a hot water, described, xvi. 586, n.

† Hammon, Jupiter, the temple of, viii. 205.

Hamor, king of Shechem, intercedes for his son to Jacob, ii. 197.

† Hamshire inhabited by the Jutes, xix. 10.

Hamyar, the chief king of Yaman, xviii. 222. His reign and successors, 269, & seq. The end of it, 278.

Hanani, the prophet, reproves king Asa, iv. 89.

——— made governor of Jerusalem, x. 50.

† Hance-towns, whence so called, xix. 238.

Hannah, the mother of the seven martyred Maccabees. See Solomena, x. 118, & 119 n.

Hannibal sent into Sicily, vii. 212, & seq. His army and fleet, ib. Takes and burns Selinus, 214. And Himera, 216. His second army, 218. Invades Sicily, 219, & seq. Defeated by the Rhodians at sea, 441. Takes refuge with Antiochus, ix. 14. Sends Aristo to Carthage, 18. Outwitted by the Romans, 23. His advice to Antiochus, 25, 26. Untimely rejected, ib. Forms the plan of Artaxata, 314, 315. Stratagem against the Pergamenians, 479. Poisons himself, 481, & n. His judgment of Pyrrhus, 573, n. Tomb at Libyssa, 590. (See also vol. xii. 267.) xvi. 662. His writings and character, 667.

Hannibal commands in Agrigentum, xii. 107. Steals out in the night, 109. Defeated at sea, 111. Degraded, 114. Defeated and crucified, 119.

——— a Rhodian's bold attempts through the Roman fleet, xii. 140. Taken prisoner, 141.

——— saves Messina from the Syracusans, xvii. 213 & seq. Brave defence of Agrigentum, 236. Repulsed by the consular army, ib. Abandons the place, 237.

——— sent to coast about Sicily, xvii. 237. Destroys the Roman fleet, 239. Defeated by them, ib. His punishment, 243.

——— his son sent to secure the Gauls, xvii. 271. Brings new supplies to Lilybæum, 273. Sent to assist Hamilcar, 305. Crucified by the mercenaries, 309.

——— the child of Hamilcar, taken by him into Spain, xvii. 313. Sent thither afresh, when grown up, 319. Becomes the darling of the army, 320. His success and conquests, 321. Besieges Saguntum, 327, & seq. Whether he denied audience to the Romans, 330. Takes the place, 333. His motives for it, 335. Regulations in Spain, 340. His journal left at Lacinium, 341 n. Odd dream, 343. Speech to his army, 344. Crosses the Rhosne, 345. Marches towards the Alps, 354. Difficulties in crossing them, ib. And in his descent, 355. His army greatly dwindled, 357, & n. Speech to them, 359. Defeats the Romans, ib. Second victory, 363. March into Etruria, 366. Defeats Flaminius, 368. Wastes Italy, 370. Entrapped by his Italian guides, 372. Stratagem against Fabius, 374. Repulsed by him, 377. In great distress, 381. Speech to his army, 382. Signal victory at Cannæ, 386. His not marching to Rome justified, 390. Success in Campania, 391. Enters Capua, 393. Treatment of the Roman prisoners, 394. Repulsed before Naples, and Nola, 397. Captivated by the delights of Capua, 400 & seq. Betrayed by the Barcan faction, 402 & seq. Stratagem against the Roman dictator, 409. Repulsed before Cumæ, 415. Haughty answer to the Hirpini, &c. 416. Repulsed before Nola, ib. & seq. Raises commotions in Sicily, 420. Repulsed before Puteoli, 421. Plunders Apulia, 423. Private treaty with the Tarentines, 429. Enters their city, 431. Stratagem to famish the citadel, 432. Fresh successes against the Romans, 436. Goes to the relief of Capua, 437. Stratagem against the consul

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

fuls defeated, 441. Marches towards Rome, 442. Ill success, 445. Engages Marcellus several times, 450. Defeats the banditti, 452. The Romans, 456. Delays joining Asdrubal, 458. Sundry defeats, ib. & seq. Retires to Canusium, 459. Behaviour at hearing of Asdrubal's death, 464. Wasted by pestilence and famine, 474. Wounded by a scorpion, 477. Defeated by Sempronius, 481. Recalled to Carthage, 487. Massacres some Italians, 488. Lands in Afric, 489. Speech to Scipio, 490. Defeat at Zama, 492. Noble speech to Hædus, 496. Recalled, and chosen prætor, 499 & seq. Envied by the Romans, 500. Reception from Antiochus, 501. Noble speech to him, 502. Artful answer to Scipio, 504. Advice to Antiochus, 505. Rouses him up, 509. Defeated by the Rhodians, ib. & seq. Flight into Crete, &c. ib. Stratagem to save his treasure, 510. Against Eumenes, ib. Poisons himself, 511. Last words and character, ib. & seq.

Hannibal Passer, head of the Massinian faction, xvii. 520.

†——the port of, where, xviii. 332.

†——tower, where situate, xvi. 582.

Hanno's design of enslaving Carthage frustrated, xvii. 146. His dreadful end, ib. Unmeasurable arrogance, xvi. 662. Writings and navigation, 668. Tames the first lion, ib. & 670, n.

——sent against Sicily, xvii. 118. Undermined by Suniatus, ib. & seq. Sent against Agathocles, 166. Defeated and killed, 168.

——success against Æsciron, xvii. 194. Sent to succour Sicily, 223. Overreached by the Roman consul, 225. Crucified, ib.

——defeated at sea, xii. 121. Ventures an interview with the consuls, ib. Father and son repulsed by the Romans, 129.

——the Carthaginian admiral, defeated, xii. 152.

——the son of Bomilcar, sent to surprize the Romans, xii. 186. Taken prisoner by them, 204.

——the son of Hannibal, sent in his stead, xvii. 226. His success, ib. & seq. Outwitted by Appius, 228. Suspected by Hiero, 229. (Massacres all the Italians in his army, xii. 104. Commands the Carthaginian fleet, 107. Defeated by the Romans, 108. Sent to relieve Agrigentum, xvii. 236. Defeated, 237. Fined and degraded, ib. Killed in defending Olbia, 248. See also vol. xii. 117.

Hanno's speech to the Carthaginians, xii. 228. Hatred to Hannibal, xvii. 331, 338. Left to command in Gaul, 345. Defeated by Cn. Scipio, 365. Sharp answer to Himilco, 396. And to Mago, ibid. Obstructs Hannibal's succours, 402. Defeated by Sempronius, 415. (See vol. xii. 235.) By Marcellus, xvii. 422. Sent to throw fresh provisions into Capua, 434. Defeated and stripped of them, ib. Defeated in Spain, 465. Taken prisoner, ib.

——defeated by Scipio, xvii. 479. By Masinissa, 480. Head of the Roman faction, 520.

† Hanun, king of Ammon, his ill treatment of David's ambassadors, ii. 124. Routed by him, 125, 126. Besieged in his capital, and slain, 127.

Haran, the son of Terah, dies in Ur, i. 384. Various opinions about his death, ib. n.

† ——a city of Mesopotamia, i. 387.

Hardouin's pedigree of Herod confuted, x. 224 n. And his notion of the Herodians, 361.

Hare bishop's metrical edition of the Hebrew psalms examined, x. 36 & seq. & n.

† Hareth, the forest of, whither David retired, iii. 126 & n.

Hariobandus submits to Julian, xv. 490.

Harmatius betrays Basilus, xvi. 286. Promoted by Zeno, 287. Murdered by him, ib.

Harmoclus's bravery against the Persians, vi. 210.

Harmodius, why honoured by the Athenians, xiii. 204, & seq.

Harmonia, princess of Samothrace, v. 537. Married to Cadmus, 539.

——where born, vii. 626.

Harpagus bravely opposed by the Xanthians, v. 593. Takes Phocas, vii. 101.

——commanded to kill young Cyrus, v. 59. Severely punished by Astyages, 62, 63. His bloody revenge against him, 64, & seq.

Harpalus, Alexander's treasurer, his treachery and punishment, viii. 336.

Harpocrates, the son of Isis and Osiris, how represented, i. 553.

Harpocraton's writings and character, xv. 50. n.

Harpyes, a fabulous kind of birds, vii. 21, n.

Harpisicoras's embassy to Carthage, xvii. 410. Abandoned by his men, 417. Defeated, and kills himself, 481.

Hassideans, at Asdanim, repair to Matathias, x. 121. Their sect, ib. n. Murdered by Bacchides, 153. Whether the same with the Essenians, 364.

Hastati, among the Romans, whence so called, xi. 655 n.

Haterus, Qu. disgraced by Tiberius, xiii. 495, 496. His death, 657 n.

—Agrippa, opposes the whipping of players, xiii. 550.

† Havilah, where situate, i. 462. Two places, and two persons, of that name, 476.

—the son of Cush, the father of the Gætulians, xviii. 47.

Haumar, the Saracen, his conquests in Arabia, xvi. 342. Success against Heraclius, 343. Begins a temple at Jerusalem, 345. Subdues Afric, ib. & seq. Persecutes the christians, 359.

Hawks, worshipped by the Egyptians, i. 559. Why, 562, 563.

Hazael sent by Benhadad to Elisha, ii. 319. Foretold that he should prove a cruel tyrant, ib. Murders the king, and mounts the throne, 320. Success against the kings of Israel and Judah, ib. & seq. & n. Treachery to Jehoash, ib. Takes and plunders Jerusalem, 322. Seizes on Elath, ib. Dies, and is deified, ib. His and Benhadad's statues carried about, ib. n.

Hazazel, or Scape-goat, its etymon, iii. 227, & seq. & n. The ceremony of an expiation day, 228 n.

† Hazor, taken and burnt by the Israelites, ii. 204. Rebuilt by Jabin II. and made his capital, 210.

† Hebdomon, the christian emperors crowned at, xv. 578.

Hebrew character exchanged for the Chaldee, x. 31.

† Hebrews, whether derived from Eber, i. 376, & seq. Their language, whether so named from him, ib. Whether the most antient, 434, & seq. And the mother of the rest, 435. Its purity, simplicity, &c. iii. 440. Characters, 444, & seq.

† Hebron, the capital of the Edomites, who settled in Judea, ii. 170. Taken and razed by Judas Maccab. ib. (See x. 142.) Whence so called, ii. 400 n. Its antiquity, ib. Why called Kirjath Arba, ib. Retaken by the Canaanites, 264.

† Hebrus, a river in Thrace, ix. 510.

Hecatæus, an account of, vii. 616, n. Instructed by a Jewish priest, x. 78 n.

Hecatomphonia, what, vi. 423.

† Hecatompylos, metropolis of Parthia, iv. 516, 517 & n. The same with Hispahan, ib. Where situate, xi. 3, 4.

†—Thebes, why so called, i. 487, & n.

Hector, the son of Priam, killed, v. 556.

Hecuba, Priam's wife, v. 549, & seq.

Hegesandrides takes Eubœa, vi. 468.

Hegesianax's speech to the Roman commissioners, ix. 117.

Hegesistratus's speech to Leutichides, vii. 538.

† Hejaz, the province of, described, xviii. 203.

†—kingdom, founded, xviii. 222.

Heifer, red, the ceremony of burning of it, iii. 227 & seq. The ashes of it, why purifying to the unclean, and defiling to the clean, 228 n. Jewish traditions about it, ib. & seq.

Heirettes, Moses's law concerning them, iii. 32, 354. Solon's on the same, vi. 117.

Hela, the goddess of hell, xix. 13.

† Helanus's lake, the worship of, xix. 456.

Helen, the fatal Grecian beauty, her fabulous birth, vi. 58, n. Whose daughter she was, v. 653. Stolen by Theseus, ib. & seq. Married to Menelaus, 551. Stolen by Paris, ib. Causes the Trojan war, 550, &c. Where detained in Egypt, 553, & seq.

† Helena, island, described, vii. 576.

—queen of Adiabene, embraces Judaism, ix. 637. Journey to, and piety at Jerusalem, 639. Turns christian, 641.

—the mother of Constantine, divorced, xv. 334. Her birth and extract, 336. Really married to Constantius, 339. Whether a native of Britain, 341. Converted by her son, 370. Finds the cross of Christ, 404. Her death and character, ib.

—the wife of Julian, rendered childless by Eusebius, xv. 455. Her death, &c. 504.

—the daughter of Constantine, xv. 355.

† Helenopolis, whence so called, xv. 404.

Helenus, the son of Priam, v. 549. Retires into Macedonia, 558.

—the son of Deucalion, the supposed father of the Helenes, vii. 122.

—fruitless attempt to succour his father, ix. 572. Taken prisoner, 576. Released by Antigonus, ib. & seq.

Helepolis, a warlike machine, described, vii. 410, & ix. 416, & n. Whence so called, x. 609, n.

Heliades settles at Rhodes, vii. 402, & seq. Admits Phorbas, 403.

† Helizean court at Athens, vi. 145.

Helicaon, son-in-law to Priam, v. 544.

† Helice, metropol. of Achaia Propria, vi. 88.

Helico, bought by the Alexandrians against the Jews, xiv. 685.

Helicon foretels an eclipse, vii. 269, n.

† —a mountain in Phocis, vi. 29. In Bœotia, v. 662. Heliocrates's

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Heliocrates's moderation to Stilicho, xvi. 169. Narrow escape, ib.

Heliodorus, sent to seize the treasure of the Jewish temple, x. 101, 102. His miraculous punishment, 103.

Heliogabalus's extract, xv. 146, & seq. Declared emperor, 147. Valour and success, 148. Acknowledged by the senate, 149. His vile character, 150. Horrid butcheries, 152. Appoints the worship of Eleagabalus, 153. Whence surnamed Comazon, ib. Adopts young Alexis, 154. Plots his death, ib. Murdered by the soldiery, 155.

† Heliopolis, now Balbec in Cœlosyria, described, i. 279, & n. ii. 264.

—— a name given to several Greek cities, vi. 35, & seq.

Heliois, alias Helotes, enslaved by the Lacedæmonians, vi. 47, 48. Their grievous punishment, 49, & n. Miserable slavery, 396, n, & seq. n. Revolt, 453. Butchered by Nabis, 543.

Helius, king of Colchis, ix. 605.

—— the murderer of Silanus, xiv. 168.

Tool of Nero's cruelties, 268, 271.

Heloris saves Rhegium, vii. 249. Defeated by Dionysius, 251.

† Hella, an antient city, i. 421.

† Hellas, Elis, whence so called, vi. 66.

† Hellenes, antient Grecians, v. 604.

† Hellespont, what, v. 521, n.

† Hellespontiac, part of Phrygia minor, v. 520.

Helpidius, put to death by Phocas, xvi. 332, 334.

—— revolt and defeat, xvi. 371.

† Helvetii, who, xii. 440, & n. Invaded by the Cimbri, ib. Repulsed by J. Cæsar, xiii. 11. Defeated, 13. Ravaged by Cæcina, xiv. 338, & seq. Pardoned by Vitellius, 339.

† Helvidius Priscus, banished by Vespasian, xiv. 441, & seq. Put to death, 442.

—— his son put to death by Domitian, xiv. 513.

Helvius, the father of Pertinax, xv. 74.

† Helum, a river in Scythia, v. 441.

Hemeric's cruelty to his wife, xvi. 245. Stirs up Attila against her father, ib.

Hamestris, Xerxes's queen, instances of her cruelty, v. 152, & seq.

Henda educates young Baharam, xi. 202.

† Heneti, chuse Antenor their head, v. 543.

Hengist and Horfa, who and whence, xix.

9. Help to defeat the Picts and Scots, 14. Settle in Lincolnshire, ib. Treachery to Vortigern, 17. Defeated by Ambrosius, 21. Death, ib. When came in to Britain, 113.

Henna, Alcanna, an Egyptian shrub, described, i. 504.

Henry succeeds Baldwin, xvi. 508. Wars against the Greek emperors, ib. His death, ibid.

† Hephæstias, metropolis of Lemnos, vii. 613.

Hephæstion's writings and character, xv. 50, n.

—— Alexander's general, wounded at Guagamela, viii. 214. Made general of the horse, 247. Sent towards Indus, 290. Rewarded by Alexander, 332. Reproved for his treatment of Eumenes, 336, 337. His death and obsequies, ib. & seq.

† Heptanomis, or the middle Egypt, i. 438. Whence so called, ib. Its extent, &c. ib.

† Heptapylos, Thebes, why so called, v. 662.

† Heptastadium, by whom built, ix. 181.

† Heraclea Herod's daughter's speech to her murderers, vii. 351, & seq.

—— a republic in Bithynia, described, ix. 582, & seq. See below Heracleans.

† —— a city in Sicily, described, ix. 148. Why called Minoa, ib. &c. Capital of the Lyncesti, viii. 14.

† — in Pontus, betrayed to Mithridates, ix. 420. Taken by the Romans, 426. Burnt, ib.

—— † in Crete, described, vii. 462.

† —— taken by the Romans, xii. 322. By Maximin, xv. 384. Burnt by the Persians, xvi. 321. By Michael, 387. Submits to Hannibal, xvii. 435. Taken by Theodoric, xix. 177.

Heracleans, their bravery, ix. 583. Generosity to Lamachus, 584. Their government, tyrants, &c. ib. & seq. Recover their liberty, 588. Ally with Rome, ib. Massacred by Adiaterix, 589. Subdued by the Romans, ib.

Heracleanus defeats the Romans in Afric, xvi. 178. His consulship erased for his revolt, 191. His great fleet, ib. Defeat and death, ib.

Heraclidæ, a race of Lydian kings, v. 574. Descended from Hercules, ib. Invade Peloponnesus, 637. Plagued by Apollo, ib. Subdue the Corinthians, vi. 39. And the whole peninsula, ib. & seq. See also, vii. 123.

Heraclides

I N D E X to the

Heracledes, his principle of indivisible bodies, i. 114.

—— his character, vii. 274. Cabals against Dion, 275, & seq. Defeats Dionysius at sea, ib.

—— banished for oppression, ix. 106. Plots against the king of Syria, 110, & seq. His speech to the Roman senate, 111.

Heraclitus's notion of the world's creation, i. 119. His principles of the Universe, 118. Why surnamed the obscure, 119. Held fire the first principle of all things, 118, 119.

—— Cimæus, tyrant of Heraclea, ix. 587. Imprisoned, ib.

—— made governor of South Britain, xviii. 709.

Heraclius's treachery to Ætius, xvi. 254. His death, 256.

—— the Edeſſan, his ſucceſs in Libya, xvi. 275. Forced to retire, 276. Conſpires againſt Phocas, 334.

—— his ſon declared emperor, xvi. 334. Puts him to death, ib. Crowned, 335. Marries his brother's daughter, 336. Succes againſt Coſrhoes, ib. Releases fifty thouſand Perſian priſoners, 337. Gains freſh victories, 338. Returns in triumph, 341. Thankful journey to Jeruſalem, ib. Receives embaffies from all parts, 342. Turns Monothelite, ib. Invaded by the Saracens, ib. Retires to Conſtantinople, 343. Perſecutes the Orthodox, and neglects the Mohammedans, 344. His death, ib.

—— the brother of Conſtantine III. diſfigured by him, xvi. 348.

—— brother of Tiberius, defeats the Saracens, in Syria, xvi. 353. In Cilicia, ib. Put to death by Juſtinian, 534.

—— recovers Tripoly from the Vandals, xix. 214, 215.

Heracon put to death for oppreſſion, viii. 328.

† Herbeſſus, taken by the Agrigentines, xvii. 177. Its origin, ib. n.

† Herculanum deſtroyed by an earthquake, xiv. 459.

Hercules, antiently repreſented in no form, ii. 347, 348. No images in his temples, ib. His antiquity according to the Egyptians, 348, n. The chief god of the Tyrians, 347, 348. Why called Malcartus, 347, n. A great navigator, and firſt fetcher of lead from the British iſles, ib. The caſual inventor of ſhell purple, 348, n. Highly honoured by the Phenicians and Tyrians, 352. How worſhipped, 353.

Hercules, how many of that name, v. 628, n.

—— the ſon of Jupiter by Alcmena, ib. Kills a lion when a child, ib. His twelve labours, 629, n. 630, n. Loſes his boy Hylas in the Argonautic expedition, vi. 20, n. His revenge upon the Oechalian king, 56. And upon Hippocoon, king of Sparta, 57. Leaves his kingdom in truſt to Tyndareus, ib. &c. Kills the ſon of Actor, and dethrones Augeas, 72. Kills Laomedon and four of his ſons, v. 548. His laſt exploits and death, vi. 57, 58, & n. Kills Antæus xviii. 32. The fables of explained, ib. The time in which he flouriſhed, ib. & 33. Confounded with Mercury in Gaul, 470, n. His coming into Spain, 374, 375.

—— the print of his foot in a ſtone, v. 445.

—— his cave near Heraclea, ix. 583.

—— whether and when he paſſed the Alps, xi. 256, 257. His arrival in Italy, 268.

† —— his temple at Rome, deſtroyed by lightning, xiii. 352, n. Burnt xiv. 229.

—— his worſhip at Carthage, vii. 628. Forty five heroes of that name, 629, & n. When that title ceaſed to be aſſumed, xv. 318.

—— the ſon of Alexander murdered by Polysperchon, viii. 349, & 452.

—— Diodas when he flouriſhed, xvii. 571.

† Hercynian foreſt deſcribed, xiii. 449, & n 533. n.

† Herdonea, burnt by Hannibal, xvii. 449.

Herdonius's noble ſpeech againſt Tarquin, xi. 367. Unjuſtly put to death, 368.

—— a Sabine's bold attempt on Rome, xi. 499. Slain, 501.

† Herean games, deſcribed, vii. 10, n. At Samos, vii. 516.

Herebus, worſhipped at Carthage, xvi. 631.

Herenas, a politic Samnite, xii. 17. His oppoſite answers to his ſon, 19.

Herenianus, the ſon of Odenatus, xv. 246. His reign, 257. Death, 261.

Herennius, ſent in purſuit of Cicero, xiii. 231. Puts him to death, 232.

—— Senecio, the accuſer of Maſſa, xiv. 510.

—— Philo, his writings and character, xiv. 654, n.

—— Modestinus, writings, &c. xv. 178, n.

Hereticks

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Hereticks suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 11, 36. By Theodosius, 43, 63, 84, 90. By Arcadius, 126. By Honorius, 170. By Leo, 279.

Hermæ of Athens, defaced in one night, vi. 296.

Hermaic books, now extant, containing some of the old Egyptian and Hermetic doctrines. i. 101. A further account of them, 581.

Hermanaric, king of the Goths, xix. 118, 136. His great conquests, 139. Kills himself ib.

Hermaphrodites mentioned by Plato, i. 169.

Hermes Trismegistus, secretary to Chronus, i. 393. The first inscriber on columns, 589. His pillars in Egypt, ib.

—— Mercury, Thoth, &c. supposed the same person, ii. 6. His inventions, ib. Why called Hermes, ib. Author of thirty thousand books, ib.

—— a great philosopher and counsellor to Saturn, v. 424. Mercury, why called by that name, 433, & n.

Hermias, a Syrian first minister, his brutish character, viii. 600. Treacherous advice to Antiochus, 601. Treachery to Epigenes, 603, 604. Tragical end, 609. & seq.

Hermigarius's defeat and death, xix. 202.

† Herminius mons, in Lusitania, xviii. 332.

Hermione, the wife of Cadmus, her extract, v. 664, & seq.

Hermippus's writings and character, xiv. 654, n.

Hermits leave their cells to intercede for the Antiochians, xvi. 74.

Hermocrates's successful stratagem against the Athenians, vii. 204, & seq. His moderation towards their prisoners, 208.

—— the sophist's advice to Pausanias, viii. 133, n. & seq. n.

—— his writings and character, xv. 123, n.

Hermodica, the wise queen of Midas, v. 515.

Hermogenes asserts the self-existence and production of matter, i. 135.

—— put to death by Domitian, xiv. 515, & seq.

—— the sophist, his excellent character, xv. 46, n. 178, n.

Hermogenianus's writings and character, xv. 428, n.

Hermolaus, why he conspired against Alexander, viii. 278. His speech to the army, 279. Death, ib.

† Hermon mount, remarkable for its dews, iii. 107.

† Hermonthis, an antient city of Thebais, i. 488.

† Hermotybians, the name of a kind of soldiers in Egypt, i. 541.

† Hermunduri, who, and where sitèd, xviii. 578.

Herna, Attilas's son, his character, xix. 65.

† Hernici, ally with Tarquin the proud, xi. 368. Defeated by the Romans, 457. Ally with them, ib. & seq. Defeated, 488. Defeat them, 627. Defeated, 628. By T. Ambustus, 631. Made slaves at Rome, xii. 46. Subdued by Marcius, 47. Their fate how determined, 48.

Herod, when born, x. 224, n. His pedigree, ib. Made governor of Galilee, 254. His success against the banditti, ib. & seq. Insolence to the Sanhedrin, 255. Government of Cœlesyria, 259. Politic revenge on Malichus, 260. Quells his faction, 262, & seq. Contracted to Mariamne, ib. Defeats Antigonus, 263. Favoured by M. Antony, ib. & seq. Made tetrarch, by him, 265. Escapes Pacorus's trap, 267. Ill success in Arabia, 268. Better luck at Rome, 269. Made king of Judea, 270. Relieves his family at Massada, 272. Amnesty to the Antigoniens, 273. Engines to destroy the banditti, 274. Assists M. Antony at Samosata, 276. Defeats Antigonus, 277. Marries Mariamne, ib. Takes Jerusalem, 278. Begins his reign with cruel exactions, 280. Decoys Hyrcan into Judea, 282. Murders Aristobulus, 286. Absolved by Antony, 287. Bloody orders concerning Mariamne, ib. &c. Noble reception of Cleopatra, 289, 290. Betrayed by her, 290. Defeats the Arabians, 292. Treachery to Hyrcan, 293, & n. Bold speech to Augustus, 294. Grand reception of him in Judea, 295. Puts Mariamne to death, 297, & seq. His remorse turned into cruel madness, 298. Profane buildings, games, &c. displease the Jews, 300. Generosity to them during the famine, 302. His palace described, ib. Sends his son to Augustus, 303. Rebuilds the temple of Jerusalem, 306, & seq. Goes to fetch his sons home, 312. Marries them, ib. Accuses them before Cæsar, 314. Plunders David's tomb, 316. His horrid butcheries, 317, & seq. Accused to Cæsar, 319. Gets his two sons condemned, 321. His wives, and offspring by them, 322, & n. Falls out with Pheroras, 323, & seq. Discovers Antipater's conspiracy, conspiracy, 324, & seq. His dread at the arrival of the eastern magi, 348. Distracted condition at the birth of Christ, 380. Over-reaches Antipater, 382. Murders the children of Bethlehem, 383. Readiness to assist Cassius, xiii. 211. Sends a thousand men to Augustus, 380. Grand reception of Agrippa, 408. Follows him, to the Bosphorus, ib. Arrests Antipater, x. 387. Pleads against him, ib. Finds new proofs of his treason, ib. & seq. His sickness and testament, 390. Affronted by the Jews, 391. Speech to them at Jericho, ib. Dreadful disease, 392, n. Bloody orders against the Jews, ib. Death and character, 393, & n. Pompous funeral, 394. Last will canvassed by the senate, 405. & seq.

Herod Antipas, his share of the Jewish kingdom, x. 406. Cities built by him, 414. Veneration for John the Baptist, 432. Imprisons him at Macheron, ib. Beheads him, ib. & seq. Contempt of Christ, 506. Wars with Aretas, 545. Comes to Jerusalem, 547. Disobliges Vitellius, ib. & seq. Affronts Agrippa, 528. Accused and banished, 554, & n.

— Agrippa advanced by Caligula, x. 552, & seq. His various fortunes before it, ib. Affronted at Alexandria, 553, & n. Supplants Antipas, 554. Intercedes for the Jews, 555. His letter to Caligula, 556, n. Advancement under Claudius, 558. Attachment to the Jewish religion, 559. Generosity, ib. & n. High credit, 560. Persecutes the christians, ib. His dreadful end, 561, 562, n. Indignities offered to his memory, ib. & n.

— brother of Agrippa, made king of Chalcis, x. 558. And superintendant of the temple, 563. His death, 564.

— the son of Agrippa deprived of his kingdom, x. 562. Succeeds his father, 564. Interest at the Roman court, 565. Hears Paul's defence before Festus, 570. Affronts the Jews at Jerusalem, ib. Becomes odious to them, 572. Driven out of the city, 575. His palace burnt by the Zelots, 576. Joins forces with Cestius, 578. With Vespasian, 579. Accompanies him to Rome, 593. Carested by him, 622. His death, 623.

— the son of Aristobulus, and grandson of Herod the great, x. 323, n.

— king of Batanea, accompanies Caligula into Gaul, xiv. 72.

Herodes Atticus, a disciple of Favorinus, xiii. 649, n. Generosity to Polemon, 643, n. Consulship and high chaacter, 668. Ill language to M. Aurelius, xv. 20.

Herodes the son of Odenatus killed with his father, xv. 245.

Herodian's writings and character, xv. 208, n. Account of the Persian war, xi. 79, n.

Herodian line, its short duration, x. 623.

Herodians, a real sect in Christ's time, x. 359. Their tents confuted by Christ, 492.

Herodias, grand-daughter of Herod the Great, x. 323. Incestuous marriage with Antipas, 432. Resentment against the Baptist, ib. & seq.

— the wife of Antipas's untimely ambition, x. 554, & seq. Goes with him into exile, ib.

† Herodion, by whom built, x. 393. Described, ib. n. Taken by the Romans, 619.

Herostates raises the Macedonians in favour of Brutus, xiii. 205.

† Herpidani, who, and where sited, xviii. 4.

† Herpis, where situate, xviii. 9.

Herrius defeated and killed, xii. 522.

Herfa seized by Mundon, xvi. 299.

Herse, the daughter of Cecrops, punished for her curiosity, v. 646, n.

Hersilia, whether married to Romulus, xi. 300, n. Speech to the Sabine king, 305.

Hertha, Earth, how worshipped by the Germans, xviii. 598. By the Saxons, xix. 13.

† Heruli, their vast depredations in Asia, xv. 247. Defeated, ib. Settled in Thrace, xvi. 300. Submic to Attila, xix. 61, 62. To Hermanaric, 343. Their origin and settlements, 340, 341, & seq. Ravages and defeats, 342, & seq. Dispersion, 344. Regicide, ib. Conversion, 345. Sad character, and reduction by the Lombards, ibid.

Hesiod, his cosmogony examined, i. 109.

Hesione taken by Hercules, v. 548. The supposed cause of the Trojan war, 550.

Hesperian apples fetched away by Hercules, v. 630, n.

Hesperus, the son of Ausonius, his rise, &c. xvi. 57, n.

† Hestia, in Eubœa, taken by the Athenians, vi. 244.

Hesius, See Esus, xviii. 410.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Heteriæ, at Rome, what, xiv. 599.

† Hetruria described, xi. 259. Wasted by Hannibal, xvii. 366.

† Hetrurians submits to Romulus, xi. 302. War against Tarquin, 342. Submission and presents to him, 343, 344, & n. Defeated by Servius, 355, 358. Abandon Tarquin, 392. Invade the Romans, 465. Defeated, 467. By Æmilius, 470. Cut off the Fabii, 472, 473, & n. Defeated by Horatius, 474, 475. By Camillus, 590, & seq. Repulse Fab. Ambustus, 635. Defeated by M. Rutilius, 636, & seq. By Fabius, xii. 38, 39, 46. Over-run by Valer. Corvus, 54. By Fulv. Centumanus, ib. & seq. By Volumninius, 58. Join with the Gauls, 80, & seq. Invaded by the Senones, 81. Defeated by the Romans, 83. Revolts from them, 522. Defeated 523.

† Hetrusci, their original, xi. 270. Conquests, ib. Government, history, &c. 274. & seq. Defeated by Hiero, vii. 179. Hexameters by whom invented, xii. 158. † Exapylum described, vii. 369, n. Taken, 372.

Hezekiah king of Judah's success against the Philistines, ii. 260. Causes the temple to be open'd and purified, iv. 143. Celebrates a solemn passover, 144. Miraculously recovered, 150, 151, & seq. His vanity punished, 155. His death, 156.

— a chief of the Palestine robbers, put to death, x. 254.

Hezion, the second king of Damascus, the same with Rezin, ii. 308. In friendship with the kings of Judah, 309.

Hiarbas cotemporary with Dido, xvii. His successors in Numidia. See the table at the end of vol. xvii.

— joins the Marian faction, xii. 582. Taken prisoner ib.

Hiel, the Bethelite, rebuilds Jericho, iii. 75.

Hiemfal murdered by Jugurtha, xvii. 586.

— made king of part of Numidia, xvii. 599.

— his descent, xii. 432. Murdered by Jugurtha, 433.

— treacherous reception of young Marius, xii. 540. Outwitted by him, ib. & seq.

† Hiera, island, how increased, vii. 574. Taken by Agrippa, xiii. 334.

† Hieracon, island, in the Arabian gulph, i. 474.

† — a town on the river Lar, ib. i. 474.

VOL. XX.

† Hierapolis, Magog, a city of Cyrrhe. stica in Lyria, ii. 264, 288. Famous for the temple of the Syrian goddess, 288. The temple, &c. described, ibid. & seq. Its sacred lake, oracle, riches, priests, 289, 290, & seq. Their tradition about the flood. i. 279, & n.

† — in Phrygia, described, v. 495.

† Hieraptyna, a city in Crete described, vii. 461.

Hierax, prime minister to Physcon, his character, ix. 242, & seq.

Hiero, king of Syracuse, vii. 178. Wars with the Argentines, ib. & seq. Defeats them, 180. His death, ib. Character, 181.

— general of Syracuse, his character, vii. 320. Discards his auxiliaries, 322. Defeats the Mamertines, 323. Outwitted by Hannibal, ib. & seq. Treaty with Carthage, 327. Defeated by the Romans, 330. Allies with them, 332. His wise government, 333. & seq. Generosity to the Romans, &c. 334, & seq. Death, 338. See also xii. 104, 137. & seq. & (xvii. 209, & seq.) By whom dispatched, xvii. 409.

Hierocles, Heliogabalus's beastly husband, xv. 151. Killed, 155.

Hieroglyphical figures of Egypt, by whom invented, i. 591. Their use, ib.

Hieromname, wife of Assaracus king of Troy, v. 542.

Hieronimus succeeds Hiero, vii. 339. His wicked reign 340, & seq. Breaks with the Romans, 342. Allies with Carthage, 343, & seq. Assassinated, 344. See vol. xii. 237. & vol. xvii. 420, 421.

Hierophantes, the priests of Ceres, why so called, vii. 67, n.

High-places forbidden to the Jews by God, iii. 386. Abominations committed on them, ib.

High-priest, see priest and priesthood, iii. 251, & seq.

Hilarius, bishop, banished, xv. 477.

— a magician, burnt, xvi. 3.

— the philosopher, put to death by the Goths, xix. 146.

Hilderic, king of the Hunns born, xvi. 259.

Hillel, the famous jewish doctor, whether the Pollio of Josephus, x. 282, n. When he flourished, 352.

Hillernus taken prisoner, xii. 303.

Hilperic assists the Franks in Spain, xix. 161.

† Himera in Sicily, described, vii. 152. When

R

I N D E X to the

When and by whom built, 160. Besieged by Hamilcar, 171. Relieved by Gelon, ib. Taken by the Romans, xii. 132. Noble defence against the Carthaginians, xvii. 29. Taken, 55. Razed, 56.

† Himeria a river in Sicily, vii. 153, n. 156, & 343, n.

† Himerians bravery against Hannibal, xvii. 53. Cruelly butchered by him, 56.

Himerus's character and writings, xv. 560, n.

— Leo's general defeated, xvi. 407.

Himilco's insulting speech to the brave Hanno, xii. 227. Sent into Spain, 228. (See vol. xvii. 405.) Preparations against Dionysius, xvii. 81. & seq. Sinks the Syracusan ships, 82, & n. Repulsed by them, 86. Takes and razes Messana, 91. Invests Syracuse, 96, & seq. Builds three forts against it, 97. Defeated at sea, 98. Reduced by a grievous pestilence, 99, & seq. Defeated 102. Buys his flight and retires, 104.

— success against Eumachus, xvii. 195.

— journal, xvi. 668.

Hind, white, how used, by Sertorius, xii. 600.

† Hinnon, the vale of, near the walls of Jerusalem, iii. 115. Superstitious cruelties practised there, ib.

Hippacra revolts to the mercenaries, xvii. 304.

Hippadatelontes, second rank of Athenians, vi. 115.

Hippagreta, besieged by the Romans, xii. 347.

† Hippiana taken by the Romans, xvii. 244.

Hipparchus, the son of Pisistratus, vi. 161, & seq. His reign and character, 162, & seq. Slain, 165.

† — where born, viii. 12.

Hipparinus seizes on Syracuse, vii. 285.

Hippasus held fire to be the first principle i. 118, 119.

† Hippi, the promontory of, in Numidia, xvii. 550.

Hippias, the son of Pisistratus, vi. 161. Whether the eldest, ib. His cruel reign, 167, & seq. Expelled, 168, & seq. Retires to Sigæum, 175. Cabals with the Persians, 177. His dream and death, 184. 185, & n. Goes over to Darius, viii. 52.

— Perseus's general, opposes the Romans, viii. 505. Surrenders to them, 517.

† Hippo, in Africa, described, xvi. 578. Taken by Sigisvult, 218. Taken and destroyed by the barbarians, 220. Restored, 221.

— the ships of, destroyed by the Romans, xii. 147. Taken and burnt by the Vandals, xix. 204.

† — Regius, described, xvii. 547.

† Hippobolon, Hippim, the antient name of Argos, v. 618.

Hippocentaur, caught, and brought to Adrian, xiv. 649, n.

Hippoclus, king of Chios, murdered, vii. 562.

Hippocoon, king of Sparta, killed by Hercules, vi. 56.

Hippocrates held fire to be the deity, i. 119. His writings, by whom brought to light, xi. 84. Where born, vii. 568.

— the father of Pisistratus, vi. 162, n.

— tyrant of Gela, vii. 167. Treachery to the Zancleans, 537.

— the Syracusan, dissuades that king from allying with Carthage, vii. 343. Forms a plot against the republicans, 348. Chosen prætor, 352. Cabals against the Romans, 353. Chosen general of the Leontines, 356. His stratagem against the Syracusans, 358. Enters the city, 359. Defeated by Marcellus, 366. Dies of the plague, 375.

† Hippodamus builds Rhodes, vii. 397 & seq. & n.

† Hippodrome at Constantinople, burnt by the mob, xvi. 297.

Hippokas, Keires, whence so called, vi. 659 & n.

Hippolyte, queen of the Amazons, her contest with Theseus, v. 466 n. Married to him, 653 n.

Hippolytus, the son of Theseus, his chastity fatal, v. 654, 655 n.

Hippomedes, archon of Athens, reduced, v. 699. His cruelty, ib. n.

Hippon, tyrant of Messana, put to death, vii. 296.

† — the city dismembered from Judea, x. 406.

† Hipponacra, taken by Agathocles, xvii. 190.

† Hipponitis, the lake of, described, xvi. 584.

† Hippopodes, why so called, v. 444, n.

Hippostratus, made general of Media, viii. 387.

† Hippotamus, or river-horse, common in upper Egypt, 499 & seq.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Hippothous, king of Arcadia, vi. 12.
 † Hira, where situate, xi. 201.
 — the kingdom of, founded, xviii.
 279. Series of kings, ib. & seq. The end of it, 285.

Hiram, king of Tyre, allies with David, ii. 375. Furnishes him with cedars, &c. ib. Solomon's letter to him, ib. 376. His embassy and treaty with him, iv. 58. Furnishes him with wood, artists, &c. ib. Improvements at Tyre, ii. 378. Said to have given his idolatrous daughter to him, 379. His death ib.

— one of the four jewish priestly classes, x. 11.

Hirpini, who, xi. 262. Reduced by the Romans, xii. 235. Revolt from the Carthaginians, xvii. 415. Complain against Hannibal, 416. Submit to the Romans, 451.

Hirtius chosen consul, xiii. 180. Success in Gaul, 184. Against Antony, 185. Killed, 187. Whether by Octavius, 190.

— disgraced by Tiberius, xiii. 496.

Hirtuleius defeats the Romans, xii. 596. Defeated and wounded, 607.

† Hispal, Seville, colonied by Otho, xiv. 343. Recovered by Cæsar, xiii. 127. & seq. Described, xviii. 336 & n.

Histiæus's treachery to the Chians, vii. 564. Partiality for Darius, viii. 49.

History, profane, why so corrupt with respect to Assyria, iv. 205, 206.

Histrion, stage-players, whence so called, xi. 623.

† Hit, Is, a city near Babylon, 415 & n.

† Hittites, the descendants of Ham, ii. 181. Dwelt about Hebron, 183 & seq. Generosity to Abraham, 196. Why suffered to remain among the Jews, 209. Enslaved by Solomon, 214. Settle in Afric, xvi. 655 & n.

† Hivites, antient Canaanites, ii. 184. Why left to dwell among the Israelites, 209. Enslaved by Solomon, 214.

Hobab, the son of Jethro, guides the Israelites through the wilderness, ii. 138.

Hobbes's absurd notion of nature confuted, 90, 91.

† Hœmus, mount, in macedon, viii. 15.

† — in Thrace, ix. 510.

Hog, a carved one, set over Jerusalem's gates, xiv. 631.

Hoham, king of Hebron, one of the allies against the Gibeonites, ii. 203. Cut off by Joshua, ib.

Holophernes, Nabuchodonosor's general, his vast army and conquests, iv. 286, 288. Marches against the Jews, 289. Killed by Judith, 291.

— his pretensions on Cappadocia, ix. 108. Supported by Demetrius, 109.

Holstein's account of Porphyry, xv. 324, n.

† — the antient seat of the Saxons, xix. 9.

Homajom Name, a persian book so called, xi. 221, 222.

Homay at Khamani, a Persian queen, according to oriental writers, v. 349. Leaves the crown to her son Darab, 350. Her stately palace at Istachr, 351.

Homer, where born, vii. 559. His poems, why so valued by Alexander, viii. 141.

— his writings found by Lycurgus, vi. 381. Burnt at Constantinople, xvi. 287.

— a Jewish measure of about five pints, xi. 593.

† Homerites, who and where sited, xviii. 195.

Hon, a chief of the house of Reuben, in Korah's rebellion, i. 16, 17. Destroyed, iii. 14.

Honoratus defeats Gallus's cruelty, xv. 460, & seq. Made first prefect of Constantinople, 490.

Honorina, taken with her mother at Constantinople, xvi. 206.

— sister of Valentinian, her incontinence and treason, xvi. 222. Demanded in marriage by Attila, 245. Stirs him against her brother, xix. 72, 73. Her lewd character and imprisonment, ib.

Honorius, whether the father of Theodosius, xvi. 33. The son of Theodosius, born, xvi. 64. Chosen consul, 68. Declared Augustus, 69. Proclaimed emperor of the west, 105, 106. Under the guardianship of Stilicho, 116. Comes very young to the empire, 119. Stripped of Afric, 132. Recovers it, 135. Laws against false informers, 136. Marries Maria, 137. Demolishes the heathen temples, 144. Retires to Ravenna, 154. Triumphant entry into Rome, 157. Fixes at Ravenna, 159. Marries Thermantia, 168. Laws against heretics, 170. Invaded by Alaric, 174. His troops intercepted, and cut off, 175. Rejects Alaric's fresh proposals, 176. His to Attalus rejected, 178. Supported by Theodosius, ib. By Heraclian, 179. Agrees with Alaric, 182. Falls out with him, ib. Breach of faith to Constantine, 189. Irreconcilable to Ataulphus, 194. Confirms the church's asyla, 195. Enters Rome in triumph, 199. Makes Constantius his colleague, 201. Attempts the Recovery of Spain, 205. Falls out with Placidia, 206. His death, ibid.

I N D E X to the

Honorius resignation of Britain, xviii. 718. Assists it against the Picts, ib. Falls out with Alaric, xix. 153.

† Honosca, taken and razed by Scipio, xvii. 380.

† Hony of Pontus, its excellent qualities, ix. 376. Of Hybla famed, vii. 143.

Hophni and Phinehas, their vile character and punishment, iii. 522, & seq.

† Hor, mount, in Edom, where Aaron died, ii. 156.

Horace writes his Carmen Seculare, xiii. 402. His death, 425.

Horatii, their bloody fight against the Curatii, xi. 325, & seq.

Horatius, the only surviving conqueror of the Curatii, xi. 328. Kills his weeping sister, ib. His punishment, 329.

—— Cocles, his valour and reward, xi. 397. Victory over the Hetrurians, 474, 475.

—— publius, chosen decemvir, xi. 519.

—— Barbatus's noble speech against the decemvirs, xi. 537. Chosen umpire between the senate and malecontents, 538. Chosen military tribune, and consul, 540. Defeats the Sabines, 542.

† Horeb, mount, described, ii. 596:

† Horestians, who and where situated, xiv. 487. xviii. 671.

† Horites, antient Canaanites, ii. 151. Their government, &c. 156. Kings, 159. Dwindled into small principalities, 160. Driven from Seir by the sons of Esau, 161.

† Hormah, Arad defeated at, by the Israelites, iii. 20.

Hormisdas king of Persia's short reign, xi. 85, & seq.

—— II. crowns his son before he is born, xi. 91, & n.

—— III. his character, xi. 151, & n. Defeated by the Romans, 153. Fatal treatment of Varamus, ib. Imprisonment, 156. Speech to the Persian states, ib. Ill treatment and death, ib.

—— IV. Vid. Idigertes, xi. 174.

—— a revolted prince, directs the Romans, xi. 100. Forfeits his succession, 105.

—— a christian nobleman, persecuted, xi. 110.

Hormisdas sumptuous presents to Aurelian, xv. 263. Revolts against Varanes, 297.

—— Sapor's brother, made general of Julian's horse, xv. 539. Narrow escape, 545. Made governor of Hellespont, 616.

—— successor of Cosrhoes, defeated by the Romans, xvi. 323. Sues for peace, and breaks it, 325. Defeated by Philippicus, ib. Dethroned and imprisoned, 327. His proud, yet miserable end, ib.

—— the last king of the Persians, xvi. 342.

Hormouz, the Hormisdas of the oriental writers, xi. 189. His reign and character, ib. Why a patron to the heretic Manes, 190.

—— II. his reign and character, xi. 194.

—— III. dethroned by his brother, xi. 209, & seq.

—— IV. by whom brought up, xi. 227. Degenerates, 228, & seq. Invaded by the Turks, 331. Ingratitude to Baharam, 233. Deposed and strangled, 234.

Hormus, Vespasian's freedman, knighted, xiv. 429.

† Horonaim, a city of Moab, ii. 100.

Horfa, the brother of Hengist, xix. 9, & seq. Slain, 16. Where buried, ib.

Horse, general of, when first created at Rome, xi. 413, & n.

Horse's head, why stamped on the Carthaginian coin, xvii. 7.

Horses, esteemed among the Scythians, v. 452.

—— a fine breed of them in Argolis, v. 618. And in Thessaly, vi. 18.

Hortarius sues Julian for peace, xv. 488.

Hortatus, M. his petition to Tiberius rejected, xiii. 568.

Hortensia's noble speech to the triumvirs, xiii. 236.

Hortensius, Q. chosen to quell the plebeians, xii. 80.

—— a famed orator, xii. 602. Chosen consul, 622.

—— his son made Cæsar's admiral, xiii. 46. Goes over to Brutus, 206. Put to death by Antony, 291.

Hoshea succeeds Pekah in Israel, iv. 137. Success against Ahaz, 140. Troublesome reign, 143.

Hosidius, Cai. saved by his son, xiii. 225.

Hostilia, Severa, the supposed wife of Gallus, xv. 221.

Hostilianus, the son of Decius, xv. 217. Declared Cæsar by Gallus, 221. His death, 222.

Hostilius,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Hostilius, A. Manc. ill success against Perses, xii. 321.

—— C. Manc. defeated by the Numantines, xii. 367. Delivered up to them, 368.

Hostus's signal bravery, xi. 321, n.

Hozannah, what is meant by, x. 484, n.

Hud, of the Mohammedans, supposed the same with Eber, i. 379.

Hugh, prince, sent prisoner to Constantinople, xvi. 478, 479. Success against the Turks, 481. Shameful return into France, 482.

† Hul, the grandson of Shem, where seated, i. 461.

Hulmul, a Bathian prince, xix. 118.

Humar's ill success in Thrace, xvi. 359. Before Constantinople, ib.

† Humbri. See Umbri, xviii. 398, 399, & n.

Hunda, married to Bonosus, xv. 284. Favoured by Probus, ib.

Huneric makes peace with Zeno, xvi. 288.

† Hungarians, whence descended, xix. 103. Why so called, 104.

Hunneric, king of the African Vandals, xix. 192.

Hunniades, John, signal victories over the Turks, xvi. 544. Defeated at Varna, 545.

Hunnimond, king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 118. Submits to the Romans, 173.

† Hunns, their first sally, xvi. 11. Ally with the Alans against the Goths, 12. Incursions into the eastern empire, 121. Ravage Thrace, &c. 158. (See also vol. ix. 631). Cut off by the Romans, xvi. 174. Invited by the usurper John, 213, 214. Dismissed by him, 216. Assist the Romans against the Goths, 223. Re-enter Thrace, 230. Defeated before Orleans, 247. The end of their kingdom 252. Defeated in Dacia, 273. Dreadful inroads into Illyricum, 310. About Constantinople, 315. Put to flight by old Belisarius, ib. By John Comagene, 486. Whence they came, xix. 40. Their tribes, names, &c. 41. Their kings or chiefs, 43. Extract, &c. 44. Cross the Palus Mæotis, 45. Subdue the Alans and Goths, 46. Hired by Theodosius, 48. Horrid devastations, ib. & seq. In Thrace, Illyricum, 50. Assist Stilicho against Rhadagaisus, 51. Second irruption into Thrace, 52. Defeat, ib. When possessed of Pannonia, 54. Dreadful slaughter of the Burgundi, 55. Defeated by them, ib. Defeat the Goths at Narbonne, 56. Defeated at Tholouse, ib. Receive tribute from the Romans, ib. Advantageous peace with them, 58. New conquests, ib. & seq. Under Attila, 59, & seq. Their power ends with him, 94. Defeated by the Goths, 96. In Dacia, ib. Fresh irruption into the empire, 99. Vast plunder, ib. & seq. Defeated and stripped, 100. By Sigebert, 102. The extent of their dominions in Charles the great's time, ib. Embassy to him, ib. Totally reduced by him, 103.

Hunting, in great esteem after the flood, i. 360. Among the Persians, made part of a noble education, ib. &c.

Hur, prince of Midian, ii. 139.

—— ascends with Moses and Aaron up the mount, ii. 598. Helps to support Moses's hands, ib. Some conjectures concerning his family, ib.

Hushai, his fidelity to David, iv. 36. Disappoints Absalom's designs, ib. & seq.

Hulham, the Temanite, king of the Horites, ii. 160.

Hushang, king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 245.

† Huz, the son of Nachor, peoples the land of Huz, ii. 417, n.

† Hyampolis, the battle of, vi. 27.

† Hyantes, whether antient Greeks, v. 607. Expelled Bæotia by Cadmus, 664.

Hyanthidas, king of Corinth, invaded by the Doræ, vi. 45.

† Hyanthis, one of the antient names of Bæotia, v. 661.

† Hybla, in Sicily, described, vii. 143. Several cities of that name, ib. & seq.

† Hyblea, Megara, by whom founded, vii. 159.

Hybreas's bold speech to Antony, xiii. 296 & n.

Hycetas, tyrant of Syracuse vii. 315.

Hycsos, king of the Shepherds in Egypt, ii. 17, 18.

† Hydaspes, passed by Alexander, viii. 298 & seq. Repassed, 312.

Hydra, killed by Hercules, v. 629 n.

† Hydraotes river, passed by Alexander, viii. 305. Repassed, 312.

Hydroparastatæ, a set of Manichees so called, xvi. 47.

† Hydrusia, island. See Tenos, vii. 596. And Andros, 598.

Hyle, the same with matter, i. 138.

† Hylinus

I N D E X to the

† Hylinus settles in Thermoscira, v. 465 n.

† Hylophagi, who, xviii. 94. Their great activity, 129.

Hyllus, the son of Hercules, killed, v. 631.

Hymetius, tried for treason, xv. 597, 598. Banished, ib.

† Hypatha, metropolis of Thessaly, vi. 17. The general assembly of the Ætoli-ans, vii. 46, 54.

Hypatia, her excellent character, xvi. 397. Murdered by the christians, ib.

Hypatius, fined and banished, xvi. 2.

— Anastasius's general, defeated by the Persians, xvi. 298. Taken prisoner by Vitalianus, 301. Released, ib. Forced to revolt, 309. Defeated, and put to death, ib.

† Hyperborean sea. Vid. Dead-sea, v. 440.

† Hyperboreans were men-eaters, v. 444.

Hyperechius basely given up by his troops xv. 616.

Hyperion, the Titan, a great astronomer, vii. 465.

Hypermnestra, daughter of Danaus, saves her husband, v. 624.

† Hyphasis river, the boundary of Alexander's conquests, viii. 310.

† Hyppius, a river in Bithynia, ix. 603.

Hypsæus, C. Plaut. reduces the Priver-nians, xi. 652.

Hypsuratus, in the Phenician history, who, i. 258 & seq.

Hyrca, the son of Joseph, a worthy youth, x. 93. His profuseness in Egypt, 100 & 101, n. Persecuted by his brethren, and kills himself, 101 n.

— the son of Simeon, why so named, x. 190 n. His reception at Jerusalem, 193. Besieged by Antiochus, 194. Makes peace with him, 195. Rifles David's tomb, 196. Takes Aleppo, 198. Invades Syria, ib. And Samaria, &c. ib. Sends pre-sents to the Romans, 199 & 200 n. Be-sieges Samaria, 203. His high character, ib. Prophetic spirit, 204 & n. Falls out with the Pharisees, 205 & n. His death, 206 n. & seq. n. See also vol. ix. 62, 129.

— the son of Janneus, made high priest, x. 221. Abandoned by his subjects, 227. Deposed, 228. The time when, ib. n. Pleads his cause before Pompey, 234. Restored, 239. Honoured by the Atheni-ans, 242. Reinstated by Gabinius, 244. Confirmed by Cæsar, 251. Allies with him, 252. His partiality to Herod, 255. Fatal cowardice, 262. Carried to Barza-pharnes, 267. Both his ears cut off, 269 & n. Carried off prisoner by the Parthi-ans, ib. Highly honoured there, 283. De-coyed into Judea, ib. & seq. Beheaded by Herod, 293.

† Hyrcania, a province of Persia, descri-bed, iv. 514. Abounds with wild beasts, 543. Sends an embassy to Antiochus, xiv. 666. Invaded by Alexander, viii. 233.

Hyfistus, who, 262, 263.

Hystaspes introduces learning into Persia, v. 15.

Hystiaeus's treachery to the Scythians, v. 106. Punished by Darius, 109 n. Cru-cified, 115.

I

I The letter, wrongly used by the in-terpreters of scripture, instead of Y, 188 n.

Jabal, supposed the Apollo of the hea-then, 233, 234 & n.

† Jabeth, besieged by the Ammonites, ii. 123, iii. 531. Relieved by Saul, ib. Put to the sword by the other tribes, 492, 493.

† Jabin, king of Hazor, defeated by Joshua, ii. 204.

— II. rebuilds Hazor, ii. 210, 211. Enslaves the Israelites, 211. Defeated by Deborah and Barac, 212. Slain, ib. & iii. 495.

Jacob born, ii. 432. Why so called, ib. n. Buys his brother's birth-right, ib. Sent to Padan-Aram, 437. Marries Leah and Rachel, 438. His children by Leah, 439 440, & seq. His stratagem of the speck-led sheep, 442. Ill used by Laban, 443. Steals away from him, ib. &c. Overtaken by him, 446. Interview and covenant with him, ib. & seq. Presents to Esau, 447. Wrestling with an angel, in what sense, 448 & n. Greeting with Esau, 450. Buys a field at Shechem, 452. His sons cruel treachery there, 453, 454. Goes to Bethel, 454. Benjamin born by Rachel, 455. Grief for Reuben's incest, ib. Goes to Isaac, and buries him, ib. & seq. Grief for the loss of Joseph, 458. Sends his sons into Egypt for corn, 467. Sends them a second time with Benjamin, 468, & seq. What presents he sent with them, 470 n. Goes down into Egypt, ib. Introduced to Pharaoh, 475. A list of his family, 476, & n. & seq. Request to Joseph before his death, 481. Blesses his two sons, 482. & seq. His prophetic blessing, to his twelve sons sons, 484, & seq. His Death, 495. Pompous funeral, 496, 497. Writings ascribed to him by the Jews, ib. n.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Jacob, his well, where situate, ii. 496, n. & iii. 150. Described as it is at present, iii. 150.

† ——— ford, ii. 496, n.

† ——— stony pillar worshipped by the Canaanites, xvi. 634.

———— his prophecy of the sceptre not departing from Judah explained, x. 57, 549, 550, & n.

Jaddua's fidelity to Darius, x. 63. Highly revered by Alexander the Great, 64. His death, 68.

† Jadis, the tribe of, whence, xviii. 218. Destroyed, ib.

Jael, the wife of Heber, kills Sisera with a tent nail, ii. 211, 212.

———— defeats the Canaanites, iii. 495.

Jair, the seventh judge of Israel, his twenty years reign, iii. 510.

† Ialissus, an antient city of Rhodes, vii. 397.

Iamblichus's answer to a passage in Porphyry about Chæremon, i. 100. Cotemporary with Eusebius, ib. Refuses Julian's invitation, xv. 534. His writings and character, 49, n. Three of that name, 427, n.

———— I. king of Emessa, ix. 634.

———— II. restored by Octavius, ix. 634.

———— king of Arabia, racked to death by Antony, xiii. 357.

Jambres. See below, Jannes.

† Jambrians, who, x. 164, & n. Punished by Jonathan, ib.

James, the Greater, made an apostle, x. 444, n.

———— the son of Zebedee, beheaded by Agrippa, x. 560, & n.

———— the Less, chosen apostle, x. 444. n. Why styled the Lord's brother, ib. Why made bishop of Jerusalem, 547, & n.

———— the son of Judas Galilæus, crucified, x. 564.

———— of Edeffa, inventor of the seven Syriac vowel points, i. 301. Restores that tongue to its antient purity, ib. The first that wrote a grammar, in Syriac, ibid.

———— bishop, saves Nisibis by his prayers, xv. 439.

† Jamnia, where sited, x. 141, & n. Burnt by Judas Maccab, ib. Given to Sathame, 406.

Jancyrus, king of Scythia, his answer and presents to Darius, v. 474. Defeats him, 478, & seq.

† Janiculum, the hill of, wh^ere situated, xi. 337. Made a citadel to Rome, ib. Taken by Porcenna, 397. Seized by the Hetrurians, 474. Blocked up by Marius, xii. 547.

Janigenæ, or descendants of Janus, xi. 275, 276.

Jannæus. See Alexander, x. 212.

Jannes and Jambres, who resisted Moses, conjectures about them, ii. 527, n. Mentioned by Pliny, 560, n. Celebrated in the Jewish books for great magicians, ib.

Januarius, why not chosen emperor, xv. 66.

January, whence called Amazonius, xv. 66. Appointed for the Roman elections, xii. 332.

† Janus, king of the Aborigines, v. 427. Whether the Noah of Moses, xi. 272, & seq. Worshipped by the Hetruscans, ib. His temple built by Numa, 317. Shut up the first time, xii. 164. At the birth of Christ, x. 343, & n. How often between, ib. n. See also vol. xiii. 437, & n. Under Nero, xiv. 263. And Vespasian, 439. Opened by Gordian, xv. 204.

† Japanese, their doctrine about the origin of the universe, i. 88. Some acknowledge the creation of the world, 145.

† Japhet, the eldest son of Noah, i. 348, & n. The import of his name, ib. n. His posterity, 348, & seq. The Persians give him eleven sons, 350, n.

† Japhia, king of Lachish, allies against the Gibeonites, ii. 203. Defeated by Joshua, ib. & seq.

Japhians put to the sword, x. 582.

Japidians revolt from the Romans, xii. 394. Quelled by Sempronius, 396.

Iarbas's embassy to Dido, xvii. 9.

Jared, a descendant of Seth, i. 236.

† Jasar plundered and burnt by the Jews, ii. 129.

Jasher, or The upright, the book of, iii. 86.

Iasius the husband of Cybele, v. 508, n.

———— prince of Samothrace, his deities, v. 537.

Jason sent to fetch the golden fleece, vi. 20. Assisted by Medea, 22. Banished by Pelias's son, 24. Goes to Corinth, 42. Marries Glauce, ib.

———— prince of Thessaly, assists the Thebans, vi. 500.

I N D E X to the

Jason, where born, vi. 626. Marries Cybele, ib.

—— al. Jesus, buys the jewish high-priest-hood, ix. 66. Supplanted by his brother, 68, & seq. Drives him out, 73. x. 104. Erects a gymnasium at Jerusalem, ib. Raises a new rebellion, 109. His tragical end, 110, & n.

—— his history of Greece, xiv. 655, n.

† Jasar, Jazor, a city of Ammon, burnt by the Jews, ix. 129. x. 139.

† Jathanites assist Alex. Angelus, xvi. 507. Defeated and killed by Lascaris, ibid.

† Javan, where settled, i. 471. The first peopler of Greece, 606, n. 607.

† Jaxartes, a river in Scythia, v. 441

† Iazyges, who, xiv. 384. Taken into Vespasian's pay, ib. Joins the Suevians against Domitian, 490. Invaded by Decebalus, xiv. 570. Join in the German war, xv. 12. Twice defeated, 18. Joins against the Romans, 25. Defeated, 26. See also vol. xix. 354, & seq.

† Iberia. See Spain, v. 389, n.

† ——— another in Scythia, v. 439.

† ——— the kingdom of, described, ix. 608. Its origin and government, ib. & seq. Invaded by Pompey, 609. By the Persians, 611.

† Iberians submit to Scipio, xii. 314.

—— to Trajan, xiv. 580. Refuse to come to Adrian, 622. Their cruelty to the Himerians, 620. In Spain, who, and whence, xviii. 323, 397.

Iberus, a fabulous king of Spain, xviii. 372.

† ——— river, divides Tarracon through, xviii. 341.

Ibis, a bird, frequenting only the Nile, i. 501. Destroys the flying serpents, 502. Two kinds of it described, ib. Why worshipped by the Egyptians, 562.

Iboreus heads the Lombards into Germany, xvi. 36. One of their kings, xix. 374, 376.

† Ibrions, who, and where sited, xvi. 246.

Ibzan, tenth judge of Israel, iii. 518, 519.

† Icaria, island, described, vii. 566. Whence so called, ib.

Icarus's severe proconsulship, xvi. 60. Cruelty to the poor, 61.

† Iceland, island, discovered by Agricola, xiv. 487.

† Icenii, in Britain, who, xiv. 150. Where sited, xviii. 663. Defeated by the Romans, xiv. 150, & seq. Revolt, 203, & seq.

Icenii submit to Cæsar, xviii. 695, & n. Oppose Ostorius, 703.

† Icenian, Icening, street, on Salisbury plain, described, xviii. 437, n.

Icetus's inhumanity to Dion's family, vii. 285. Tyrant of the Leontines, ib. & seq. Attempt against Syracuse, 286. Defeated by Timoleon, 288. Besieges the citadel, 291. Deposed by Timoleon, 292. Put to death, with his whole family, 296. See also vol. (xvii. 120) & seq.

—— defeats Mæmon, xvii. 202. Defeated by the Carthaginians, ibid. & seq.

—— a favourite of Galba, executed, xiv. 308, 331.

Ichneumon, or Egyptian rat, described, i. 501. Destroys the crocodile's eggs, ib.

† Ichthyophagi, who, and where seated, i. 465. Why so called, v. 245. xviii. 93, 127, 128.

Icilian law, what, xi. 519.

Icilians oppose the election of consuls, xi. 561.

Icilius, Spur. renews the contest of the Agrarian law, xi. 464. Bold push against the senate, 509. Noble defence of Virginia, 533. Chosen head of the malecontents, 539.

† Iconium taken by the Turks, xvi. 461.

Iconoclasts, who, xvi. 361. Raises a revolt in the empire, ib. The rest see under Images, ib.

† Icosium delivered up to Theodosius, xv. 601.

† Icus, island, described, vii. 612.

† Ida founds a Saxon kingdom, xix. 30.

† ——— mount, in Crete, described, v. 504, 523. vii. 462, & seq.

† Idæi, Dactyli, inhabit mount Ida, vii. 462.

Idæus, the son of Dardanus, v. 539.

† Idatavistus, the plain of, where, xiii. 558, n. The battle of, 558.

Idatius's writings and character, xvi. 260, n. Account of the Vandals irruption, xix. 198.

—— bishop, taken prisoner, xvi. 269.

Idmon, the Argonaut, killed by a boar, vi. 21, n.

Idolatry first introduced, i. 257, n. To men, 260, n. By whom introduced, 378, & seq. Opinions about its rise and progress, iv. 182, & seq. What was probably bably its origin, 184. Its steps and progress, 318.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Idolatry, forbid by the christian emperors, xv. 434, 477. By Theodosius, xvi. 61. 89. By Arcadius, 144. Whether revived during the siege of Rome, 171. Through the whole empire, 223. Rooted up by the Goths in Greece, xix. 146.

Idomeneus goes to the Trojan war, vii. 478. Forced into Calabria, ib. & n. Adored by the Cretans, 479.

† Idumea mentioned by Pliny, Strabo, &c. ii. 170. The lot of Simeon and Judah, ib.

† — New, described, x. 137, & n. Conquered by Hyrcan, 199.

† Idumeans, the Edomites in Judea, ii. 170. Incorporated with the Jews, 171. Their name, when lost ib. n. The Jews, why called by that name, iii. 101. Forced to be circumcised, 199, & n. Invited to Jerusalem, 587. Return home, 589. Betrayed to Simon, 591.

Jealousy, the waters of, appointed by God, iii. 347. How administered, ib. & seq.

† Jebus, a city in Canaan, ii. 184, 185. Since called Jerusalem, 184.

† Jebusites, where situate, ii. 183. Defend it against the Benjamites, 207. Why suffered to live with the Israelites, 209. Defend Sion against David, 212. Who the lame and blind in it were, 212, 213, n. Subdued, 214. Enslaved by Solomon, ib.

Jedaiab, one of the four sacerdotal classes, x. 11.

Jehoahaz, king of Israel, reduced by the Syrians, ii. 321. His short reign, iv. 170. Carried captive into Egypt, 171.

Jehoash, king of Judah, buys off Hazael, ii. 321. Plundered by the Syrians, 322.

— the son of Jehoahaz's success against Benhadad, ii. 323.

Jehoiachin's wicked reign, iv. 176. Captivity, ib.

Jehoiadah places Joash on the throne, iv. 119. Puts Athaliah to death, 120. His death, ib.

Jehoiakim's wicked reign, iv. 172. His tyrannies and bloodshed, 174. Unhappy death, 175.

Jehoram, king of Judah, invaded by the Philistines, ii. 259. Falls into idolatry, iv. 102. Punished, 103. His death, ib.

— king of Israel, seduced into idolatry by Jezebel, iv. 102. Fatal expedition against Ramoth, 109. Wounded, and dies, 110, 112.

VOL. XX.

Jehoshaphat brings the Philistines under tribute, ii. 259. His piety and success, iv. 91. Reproved by Jehu, 99. Miraculous success against Ammon, &c. 101. His death, 102.

† — the valley of, where, iii. 116, n. Why supposed the place of the general judgment, ib. & n.

Jehovah, the ineffable name of God, why never pronounced by the Jews, ii. 536, n. Various notions about it, ib. & seq.

† Jehova-Nissi, the name of an altar, erected by Moses, ii. 598.

Jehu kills the kings of Israel and Judah, iv. 111. & seq. Jezebel, and Ahaz's seventy sons, 112. And forty princes of Judah, 114, 115. Destroys Baal's priests, temple, and worship, ib. & seq. Ill success against Hazael, ii. 321.

— the prophet, reproves Baasha's idolatry, iv. 89.

† Jemphcrina, a city in Thrace, ix. 509.

Jephthah, the fugitive son of Gilead, iii. 511. Heads Israel against Ammon, ib. His rash vow, 512. How executed on his daughter, ib. & n.

† Jerah, Joktan's son, where settled, i. 474.

Jeremiah, denounces God's judgments against the rebellious Jews, iv. 172. Foretells the Babylonish captivity, 173. His prophecy burnt by the king, 174. Imprisoned ib. Well used by the Babylonish king, 180.

— his lamentations, on what occasion composed, iv. 169. The only piece of that kind in holy writ, 170.

† Jericho, why so called, ii. 185, iii. 75. Taken miraculously by the Israelites, ii. 200. iii. 75. Put under an anathema, ib. & seq. By whom rebuilt, ib. n. Taken by Bacchides, x. 166. Made one of the five courts of Palestine, 244.

† — the pallace of, burnt, x. 402. Rebuilt, 408.

† — the balsam of, famous, iii. 131.

† — the roses of, said to be somewhat miraculous, iii. 137.

Jeroboam, made king of the ten tribes, iv. 82. His idolatry, 83. Defeated by Ahijah, 86. His death, 87.

— II. king of Israel, iv. 129. Takes Damascus, &c. ib. His glorious reign, ib. Death, ib.

Jerom, St. his account of the Gothish cruelties, xvi. 29.

S

† Jerusalem

I N D E X to the

† Jerusalem, said by the Arabians to have been built by twelve kings in honour of Melchizedek, ii. 194, n. When built, 45. Sacked by Hazael, 322. Taken by David, and made his metropolis, iv. 16, 17. Taken by Nebuchadnezzar, 175, 176. A second time, ib. & seq. A third time, and destroyed, 179, 180. Described according to the sacred historians, iv. append. after pag. 52. xxxi. & seq.

— taken by the Persians, according to the oriental writers, v. 294. Rebuilt and repeopled, x. 50, 51. Taken by Ptolemy, 68, & n. By Antiochus, 110. Burnt and razed by Apollonius, 112. Rebuilt by Judas Maccab. 134. Fortified, 179. Dismantled by Antiochus, 196. Besieged by Pompey, 236. Taken, 238. How oft on the same day, 239, n. Made one of the five courts, 244. Rebuilt by Antipater, 252, 257. Taken by Herod, 278. Its destruction foretold by Christ, 485, & seq. & n. Enlarged by Agrippa, 560. The number of its inhabitants taken by Cestius, 574. Forsaken by multitudes of Jews, 578. Torn by three factions, 594. Besieged by Titus, 598. Its first wall entered, 600. Second taken ib. Under pestilence and famine, 601. Circumwalled, 602, & n. Famished, 603, & n. Taken and destroyed, 605, & 611. Visited by Adrian, xiv. 614. And profaned by him, 626. Razed, 627. How rebuilt and altered, 630. Plundered by the Isaurians, xvi. 158. Taken by the Persians, 336. Hard fate of the christians taken in it, ib. Taken by Haumar, 344.

† Jerusalem, the high city taken by the Romans, x. 613. The number of Jewish prisoners made in it, 614. Prodigies fore-running its ruin, 616.

† — the great church of, built by Constantine, xv. 404.

Jeshurun, why that name given to the Jews, iii. 324, n.

Jesua, the high-priest, returns from Babylon, x. 9. His genealogy, 24. Death, 62.

— al. Jesus, killed by his brother, x. 62.

Jesus, the son of Sirach, when he flourished, x. 113. n. An account of his writings, 197, n.

— Christ, the world's Redeemer. See Christ, x. 331, & seq. & n.

— the son of Damneus made high-priest, x. 571. Goes over to Titus, 607. The son of Gamaliel put in his place, 572. Their fatal enmity against each other, ib.

Opposes the Zealots, 586. Put to death by them, 587.

— the son of Ananus, a dreadful prophet against Jerusalem, x. 573. His sufferings and death, ib. & 599.

Jethro, who, ii. 134, 135. Gives his daughter to Moses, 135. Comes to him after the exod, 136, & seq. His wholesome advice to him, 137. His descendants called Kenites. See Kenites, ib. & seq.

Jeud, son to Chronus the younger, i. 399.

Jewish government, how altered by Pompey, x. 240. By Gabinius, 244, & n. Restored by Cæsar, 251, & 252, n.

— writers, wretched chronologers. x. 98, n.

† — camp, the battle of, x. 250.

— rites, extirpated at Rome, xiii. 595, 596, n.

Jews, not so called till after the captivity, ii. 394, n. Their doctrine about the creation, i. 175. How long they dwelt in Egypt, ii. 403, n. The religion, manners, &c. of their forefathers, impartially considered, 502, & seq. Their great increase in Egypt, 509. Oppression, and the cause of it, 511, & seq. Their bondage when begun, 512. The reasons of it, 514, n. Obligated to drown their male issue, 515, 516, & n. Their slavery hardened, 556. Celebrate the first pass-over, 570. Depart out of Egypt, 575. Their number calculated ib. & n. First encampment at Succoth, 576. Their firstborn, how and why consecrated, ib. Order of their march, 579. Arrival at Etham, ib. & seq. Guided by the miraculous pillar, 580. Overtaken by the Egyptians, 581. Pass the Red-sea, 582. That transaction, impartially examined, 583, n. & seq. Murmur for want of water, 591. And for want of food, ib. & seq. Gather the manna and quails, 592. Supplied with water from the miraculous rock, 596. Whether the rock accompanied them, ib. n. Defeat the Amalekites, 598. Come to Sinai, 601. & seq. Receive the ten commandments from thence, 602. Whether their ceremonies were borrowed from the Egyptians, 609, & n. Ratify the covenant with God, 614. Set up the golden calf, 617. Punished for it, 620. Offerings made by them, ib. & seq. 624. Rebellion and punishment at Teberah, iii. 4. A fresh supply of quails, 7. & seq. A new murmur and punishment, 8. Sent spies to view the promised land, ib.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

ib. Murmur at the ill report which they brought, 9, & seq. Defeated by the Amalekites, 11. God's care of the new generation, 12. Conspire against Moses, 14. Punished, 16, 17. Their idolatries, 18. Repulsed by king Arad, 20, & seq. New murmurs, 21. Punished by fiery serpents, ib. & seq. Forbid to hurt Ammon and Moab, 24. Seize on the land of Sihon, 25. And Bashon ib. & seq. Debauched by the women to idolatry, 28. Punished, 29, & seq. Success against the five kings of Midian, 30, & seq. Offer part of the spoils to God, 37. The limits of the promised land appointed, ib. & seq. A form of confession appointed for them, 40. Renew their covenant with God, 42. Why they discontinued circumcision, 51. Their excellent manner of encamping, ib. & seq. Standards, &c. 56, & seq. Manner of decamping, 59, & seq. Of engaging the enemy, 62, & seq. The state of their host, at their entering the promised land, 64.

— cross the Jordan, iii. 68, 69. Renew the circumcision, 70, & seq. And passover, 72. The manner of their taking of Jericho, 74. Why repulsed, at Ai, 77. Defeat the confederate Canaanites, ib. & seq. Remarks on the miraculous transactions of that day, ib. & seq. And on the rain of stones, 91, & seq. Finish the conquest of the land, 78. Description of it, 97, & seq. Their government a theocracy, 163. Their laws against idolatry, 170. For the worship of the true God, 172. Positive and negative concerning their grand festivals, fasts, &c. 177 & seq. Concerning vows, 245, & seq. The priests, levites, &c. 250, & seq. Cities of refuge, 282, & seq. Judges and courts, 330, & seq. Against murder, 344, & seq. Against adultery, &c. 346, & seq. Against theft, 364. Against false witness, &c. 365. Coveting others property, 370, & seq. Their customs, arts, and trade, 380, & 402, & seq. Their wars, alliances, &c. 403 & seq. Agriculture, 411, & seq. Trades, manufactures, and dress, 415, & seq. Poetry, 421, & seq. Music, 431, & n. Language, 438. Writing, 461. Education, 462, & seq. Measure of time, 467. Contempt of foreign languages, 470. Synagogues, ib. & seq. Schools, 471. Prophets, ib. & seq. Chronology, 476, & seq. Table of their judges, 483. Kings before Jeroboam's revolt, 483. Judges from Joshua to Saul, 485, & seq. Idolatry in Canaan, 488. Midianitish bondage, 495. Delivered by Gideon, 496. New idolatries and slavery, 503, & seq. Delivered by Jephtha, 512.

Forty years slavery under the Philistines, 519. Lose the victory and the ark, 525. Insist upon having a king, 525. Division, of the two kingdoms, iv. 13. Reigns, of their kings, ib. & seq. Their city taken and they carried into captivity, 179, & seq. Jews restored by Cyrus, v. 82. His decree in their favour, 82, 83, n. Why they always sided with the best bidder, ix. 148, n. Persecution under Philopator, 216. Miraculous deliverance, 218.

— their return from the captivity, x. 3, & 6, & seq. Their number, 4. Change of condition, ib. & seq. Renew their feasts, 12. Blamed for rejecting the Samaritans, 15, & n. & seq. n. And for their strange marriages, 27, 28. Oppressed by their rulers, 49, & seq. Reformed by Ezra, 49, 50. Degenerate, 54. Fidelity to the Persians, 63. Favoured by Alexander, 64, 65. Their fatal superstition about the sabbath, 68. Flee to Alexandria, 78. Their different opinions of the septuagint version, 84, & seq. Attachment to the Egyptians, 95, 96, & n. Apostasy under Jason, 105. Threatened by dire prodigies, 109. Massacred by Antiochus, 110. By Apollonius, 112. Fresh persecution, 115, & seq. Forbid the sacred books, 117. Butchered in sundry places, 144, 145. Idolatrous superstition punished, 149, &c. In high credit in Egypt, 172. Build a temple there, ib. & seq. & n. Their superstition fatal to Jerusalem, 238. Horridly butchered there, ib. & seq. Highly favoured by Julius Cæsar, 252, 257. Complaints against Herod rejected, 263. And punished, 265. Conspire against him, 300. Frivolous answers to the christians, 336, n. & 342, n. Causes of their infidelity and ruin, 351, & seq. Their various sects, 352, & seq. False notions about the Messiah confuted, 386, 387, n. Mutiny against Archelaus, 395. Take up arms against Sabainus, 396, & seq. Two thousand of them crucified, 404. Send an embassy to Rome, 405. Deceived by a pseudo Alexander, 407. Revolt under Judas Galileus, 410. Expelled Rome, 415. Petition Pilate against the Roman standards and shields, ib. & seq. Their infatuation at the coming of Christ, 418. The cause of their rejection and ruin, ib. & seq. & n. Incredulity accounted for, 425, n. Offended at Christ's spiritual doctrine, 460, & seq. Had still the power of life and death in his time, 502, & n. 549, & 550, n. Persecuted at Alexandria, 553. Raise new troubles, 564, & seq. Deluded by false prophets, 566. Break out into open rebellion, 575, & seq. Massacred every-where, ib. & seq. Fit themselves for a stout defence, 578. Divided into two factions, 585, & n. Cruelly butchered, 602, & seq. Famished, 603, & n. 605, & n. Set fire to the temple galleries, 609, & seq. Massacred by the Romans, 611. Their strict fast for Jerusalem, 612. Sum total of their slain in that war, 615, & seq.

I N D E X to the

——— their gratitude to Cæsar, xiii. 159, & n. Favoured by Agrippa, 409. Why banished by Tiberius, 595. Refuse to worship Caligula, xiv. 60, & seq. Persecution and embassy from Alexandria, 676. Commit horrid cruelties under Trajan, xiv. 590. Revolt against Adrian, 625. Dreadful punishment, 628. Whether excluded Judea, 629. Join with Cassius, xv. 31. Subdued by Caracalla, 112. Forbid to molest christian converts, 390. New revolt and punishment, 453. Forbid to buy christian slaves, xvi. 63. Priviledged by Arcadius, 133. Massacre the christians at Alexandria, 196. Expelled by St. Cyril, 197. Massacre them again at Antioch, 333. Forbid to come within three miles of Jerusalem, 341.

——— in Arabia, converted by a miracle, xviii. 305.

——— in Spain, their apostacy, x. 73, n. Jezdegerd defeated by the Arabs, xi. 248, 249.

Jezebel, the impious wife of Ahab, iv. 90. Her idolatries, ib. Murder of Naboth, 96. Dreadful end, 112.

Jezid, the son of caliph Abdammelech, his title to the Persian crown, xi. 251.

Jezereel, the plain of, in Palestine, iii. 117.

† Igilgili, where situate, xvii. 553.

Igillus, king of the Vandals, taken prisoner, xix. 195.

Ignatius, St. martyred, xiv. 583:

——— patriarch, deposed and imprisoned for his great zeal, xvi. 398.

Ignobiles, at Rome, why so called, xii. 513, n.

Ignomen betrays Firmus to the Romans, xv. 603.

† Jibel-Had-Deffah, a salt mountain, described, xvi. 586.

Jin, or Genii, among the Turks, what, i. 181.

† Jie Abarim, the thirty-eighth encampment of the Israelites, iii. 23.

† Jiel, where situate, xvii. 553.

Ildebald, chosen king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 119, 477. Defeats the Romans, ib. Murdered, ib.

† Ilergetæ submit to Hannibal, xvii. 345. Treachery to Scipio forgiven, 378. New revolt, 471.

† Ilienes fined by Agrippa, xiii. 409. Forgiven at Herod's suit, 410. Immunified by Nero, xiv. 160.

Ikenild, street, described, xviii. 683.

Ilium, in Phrygia. See Troy, v. 523, & seq.

† Illiturgi revolts to the Carthaginians, xvii. 419. Retaken and razed by Scipio, 469, & xii. 273.

Illus's revolt, xvi. 286. Death, 289, xix. 181.

† Illyria subdued by Cadmus, v. 666. Invaded by the Romans, viii. 505.

† Illyrians go over to the Lyncesti, viii. 66. Subdued by Philip, 82, 84. The cause of their war, xii. 167. Reduced, 180. By Sempronius, 318. By Æmilius, 324. By Anicius, 327, & seq.

——— troops, declare for Vespasian, xiv. 381. Their untimely march into Italy, 383.

† Illyricum, the district of, with its provinces, xv. 420. Ravaged by the Quadi, 604. By the Goths, xvi. 29, 30. How divided, 32. Ravaged by the Hunns, 158. The frontiers of, fortified, 190. The western part yielded to Theodosius, 223. Its extent, 224. Repeopled by barbarian nations, 253. Ravaged by the Hunns, 310, xix. 66.

Ilus, the son of Tros, builds Ilium, v. 544, 545. Subdues Tantalus, ib. Saves the Palladium from the flames, ib.

Images destroyed at Constantinople, xv. 360. By Leo, 362. By Constantine, 366. By Leo, III. 369. By Leo X. 382. Allowed by the second council of Nice, 396.

† Imaus, mount, parts the two Scythias, v. 540.

† Imbrian festivals described, vii. 619.

† Imbros, island, described and subdued, vii. 619.

Immer, one of the four sacerdotal classes, x. 11.

Imilear sent with Hannibal into Sicily, vii. 218, & seq. xvii. 57. Becomes sole commander, 60. Defeated by the Syracusans, 61. Intercepts their provisions in a lucky hour, 63. Horrid butchery of the Agrigentines, 65. Takes Gela, 73. Makes peace with Syracuse, ib. & vii. 230.

——— sent general against Dionysius, vii. 236. Takes Eryx and Motya, ib. And Messana, 239. Besieges Syracuse, 241, & seq. Defeated by sea and land, 246. Kills himself, 248.

Imperator, the import of that title, xii. 522, & n.

Inachus, founder of the Argolic kingdom, v. 620, & seq.

† ——— metropolis of Argos, v. 619.

† ——— river, v. 619. Inarus,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

- Inarus, chosen king of Egypt, ii. 79.
 Ill success against the Persians, ib. Against Memphis, ib. & seq. Dreadful end, ii. 80. See also vol. v. 156, 159, 160.
 Incense, how offered by the Jews, iii. 243. The altar of, where seated, 244, n. The time and reason of that offering, 243, 244. The altar described, 302, & seq.
 Incestuous marriages, a law against, xv. 468.
 Incitatus, Caligula's horse, made high-priest, xiv. 60. Extravagant honours paid to it, 62.
 Incubi, dæmons, whence that notion, i. 246, n.
 Indathyrus, king of Scythia. See Madyes and Jancyrus, v. 474.
 † India conquered by Darius, v. 108. Whether any part conquered by Trajan, xiv. 590. Embassies to Antonius, 666. Traded with the Carthaginians, xvii. 268, n.
 Indians, their traditions about the flood, i. 306.
 ——— defeated by Alexander, viii. 292. Treacherously used by him, 294.
 Indibilis defeats the Romans, xii. 248. Defeated by Scipio, 275. By the proconsul, 277. Assists Asdrubal in Spain, xvii. 440. Gained by Scipio, 453. Takes up arms against him, 471. Defeated, 472. Punished for a new revolt, 474.
 Indiction, at Rome, what, xv. 378. When and by whom begun, 379.
 Indus's success against Florus, xiii. 612.
 † ——— river, passed by Alexander, viii. 298.
 Indutiomarus defeated and killed, xiii. 25.
 Informers prosecuted by Nerva, xiv. 549, 563. By Macrinus, xv. 142, 144. Whence called Quadruplatores, ib. Encouraged by Maximin, 185. Discouraged by Dioclesian, 306. By Constantine, 375. Revived by Constantius, 457. Suppressed by Theodosius, xvi. 41. By Gratian, 48. By Anastasius, 294.
 † Ingauni defeated by the Romans, xii. 315. Reduced, 317.
 ——— who, xvii. 473. Assisted by Mago, ibid.
 Ingenius proclaimed emperor in Pannonia, xv. 230. Defeated by Gallienus, ib.
 Ingomer's baptism and death, xix. 282.
 Ingratitude punished by the Persians, v. 22, & n.
 Inguimerus goes over to the Persians, xiii. 538. Defeated by the Romans, 544. Narrowly escapes them, 559. Bravery on a second fight, 560.
 Innocence, the state of. See Adam, i. 184, & seq.
 Innocent, Pope, sent to treat with Alaric, xvi. 176.
 Ino, one of the daughters of Cadmus, v. 665. Her cruelty and fate, vi. 37, 38, n.
 † Inopus, a river in Delos, vii. 607.
 † Insulæ, tres, where, xviii. 17.
 Inscription, on the Egyptian pyramids, i. 508. A famed one on the temple of Neth at Sais, 550. One still extant to Isis at Capua, ib.
 Institutes of Justinian, xvi. 318.
 † Insubres frighten the Romans away, xii. 175. Defeated by them, 178. Subdued, ib. Made a Roman province, ib. Revolt, 185.
 Intaphernes, one of the seven Persian conspirators, vi. 96, & seq. Put to death by Darius, 102.
 † Intelene, the province of, yielded to the Romans, xv. 308. Where sited, ib.
 Interamna confiscated by Sylla, xii. 574.
 Intercessio, among the Romans, what, xi. 434.
 Interest of money settled at Rome, xi. 634. Lowered, 645. Abolished, 652.
 Io, the daughter of Inachus, whether ravished by the Phœnicians, v. 550. Why surnamed Phoronis, 621.
 Joab, David's general, iv. 13. Defeats and kills Abner, ib. Set over all Israel for his bravery, 16, 17. Success against the Ammonites, 25, 26, & seq. Gets Absalom recalled by a stratagem, 33. Treacherously murders Amasa, 43. Kills Absalom, 48. David's advice concerning him, 52. Put to death by Solomon, 54.
 Joash preserved from Athaliah's bloody hands, iv. 119, 120. Crowned, 120. Zeal and piety, 121. Defection, 123. Death, ib. & seq.
 Joaz, king of Israel, iv. 126. Defeats Amasiah, ib. & seq.
 Joazar made high-priest, x. 391. Deposed by Archelaus, 408. By Cyreneus, 410, n. Vid. & xiii. 453.
 Job, divers opinions about him, &c. ii. 159. Conjectures concerning his extract, reign, &c. 530. Lived before the exod, 532. & seq.
 ——— the book of, by whom writ, ii. 533. Cleared from the slander of a modern critic, ib. Particulars added to his history, ib.
 † Jobab, the twelfth son of Joktan, where settled, i. 477.
 ——— the son of Zerah, by some taken for patient Job, ii. 159, 530.

Jobab,

Jobab king of Madan, defeated by the Israelites, ii. 204.

Jobates king of Lycia's Behaviour to Bellerephon, v. 593, 594, & 625.

Jocabel, the mother of Moses, ii. 519. 520. Conceals him for three months, 520, 521. Brings him up for Pharaoh's daughter, 522.

Jocasta, the unhappy mother and wife of Oedipus, v. 668, & seq.

Johanan, the high-priest, kills his brother, x. 62. His death, 63.

John the baptist, his birth foretold, x. 328. Fulfilled, 338, & n. Brought up among the Essenians, 369. His life, preaching, and testimony of Christ, 420, 421, & n. Imprisoned by Herod, 432. Beheaded, ib. & seq. Josephus's character of him, 434.

—— the beloved evangelist, takes the virgin Mary to his home, x. 512. Outruns Peter to the sepulchre, 520. Banished into Pathmos, xiv. 520. Writes his apocalypse there, ib. &c.

—— the Maccabee, killed by the Jam-brians, x. 164.

—— the son of Simon, made general, x. 186. Defeats the Syrians, 190. Why surnamed Hyrcan, ib. & n. & 198. The rest see under Hyrcan, ib. & seq.

—— a pious hermit, his answer to Theodosius, xvi. 98.

—— Arcadius's secretary, delivered up to Gainas, xvi. 146. Escapes to Constantinople, ib.

—— secretary to Honorius, sent to treat with Alaric, xvi. 171, 172. Assumes the purple, 212, 213. Taken and beheaded, 215, 216.

—— a deacon put to death, xvi. 228.

—— two historians of that name, xvi. 241, n.

—— Basilus's admiral, his bravery and death, xvi. 275, 276.

—— Zeno's general, his success against Leontius, xvi. 289.

—— the Scythian, and the crook-backed, their bravery against the Isaurians, xvi. 295. Against the Saracens, 354.

—— the deacon made admiral, xvi. 357. Killed for his severity, ib.

—— Zimisces. See Zimisces, xvi. 421.

—— Comagen, xvi. 485, & seq.

—— bravery against the Vandals, xix. 216. Death, ib. & seq.

John, Belisarius's general, success against the Ostrogoths, xix. 464. Besieged and relieved at Rimini, 466. Treachery, 468. Releases the Roman senators, 491. Defeated by Totila, ib. Sent into Italy, 497. Defeats the Gothic fleet, 498. 499.

Joiakim, high-priest of the Jews, x. 24.

† Joktan, the son of Eber, i. 380. Thirteen sons given him by Moses, and thirty by the Arabians, 381. His descendants, where settled, 473, & seq. xviii. 197, 265.

† Joktheel, in Edom, whence so called, ii. 168.

† Jol, in Numidia, the seat of Juba, xvii. 554, 555.

Iole, princess of Oebalia, stolen by Hercules, vi. 57, n. Given to his son Hylas, 58, n.

Jolopianus's revolt and death, xv. 213.

Ion, the son of Xuthus, the supposed father of the Iones, v. 606, & n. Succeeds Selinus in Ægialea, vi. 86. His death, ib.

—— treachery to Perseus, viii. 520. Where born, vii. 560, & n.

Jonadab's wicked advice to Ammon, iv. 30. The father of the Rechabites, 114, & n.

Jonah's whale described, x. 452.

Jonathan's intimate friendship with David, iii. 543. Signal victory over the Philistines, iii. 537. (& ii. 247, 248.) Saved by the army, ib. Oath of friendship with David, iii. 548. Death, ib. & seq. & ii. 254.

—— the brother of David, kills a son of Goliath, ii. 257.

—— the brother of Judas Maccabeus, succeeds him, ix. 106, & seq. & x. 163. Defeated at Tekoah, 165. Defeats a conspiracy, 167. Beats and makes peace with Bacchides, 168. Made high-priest, 169, & 170, n. Sides with Alexander, 171. His reception at Ptolemais, 174, & seq. Defeats Apollonius, 174, & seq. Besieges Acra, 175. In high favour with Nicator, ib. 176. Joins with Antiochus, ib. & seq. Repulses the Demetrians, 177. Courted by the kings of Syria, ix. 113. His victories, 118, & seq. Betrayed by Tryphon, x. 180. Murdered, ib. & 182. His sepulchre described, ib. n.

—— the son of Absalom, takes Joppa, x. 184.

Jonathan's

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Jonathan a Sadducee, sets Hyrcan against the Pharisees, x. 205, n. & 206, n.

—— the son of Ananus, made high-priest, x. 544. Refuses a second pontificate, 559. Ill used by Felix, 567, & seq.

—— a jewish impostor, his punishment, x. 621, n.

Iones, the most antient name of the Greeks, v. 606.

Jones, Inigo, his notion about Stonehenge confuted, xviii. 452, & seq.

† Ionia, part of Asia Proper, v. 485, & seq. Described, vii. 99, & seq. Its various fates, 131, & seq.

† ——— Panionium, what, vii. 127, & n.

† Inonian confederacy, v. 659, vii. 126, & seq.

† ——— faction in Sicily, vi. 277. Gulph described, vii. 627, & n.

† Ionians, their origin, v. 606, 659. vii. 122. Follow Nilæus in quest of new settlements, v. 658, 659. Drive the Carians, &c. out of Ephesus, vii. 114. Their government, 125. Cantons, cities, &c. 126, & seq. Seize on all the Carian women, ib. Their religion, 129. Trade, &c. 130, & seq. Degeneracy, 130, 131. Driven out of Achia, vi. 87. Retire into Attica, ib. Treachery to the Scythians, v. 478. Revolt from the Persians, 108. Succoured by the Athenians, 112, 113. Destroyed by the Persians, 114. Invaded by Cyrus, vii. 131. Settle in Abdera, 133. Courted by Themistocles, &c. ib. & seq. Shake off the Persian yoke, v. 150. vii. 135, & seq. Their various fates since, vii. 136, & seq. Settle in Samos, 517. Treachery to the Chians, 563. Submit to Cæsar, xiii. 74.

Ionic sect, an account of, i. 110.

† Joppa destroyed by Judas, x. 144. Taken by Simon, 179. Described, ib. Taken by the Romans, 583. By Antigonus, viii. 389. Retaken by Jonathan, ix. 118.

Joram, son of Hamath, sent with presents to David, ii. 326.

—— king of Israel, confederates with Ahaziah, ii. 320. Ill success against Syria, 321.

† Jordan, river, its source, iii. 125, & n. Course, ib. Why so called, ib. & seq. & n. Thought to have a subterranean communication with the Nile, ib. & 127, & n. Described, ib. & seq. How crossed by the Israelites, 68, &c. Two monuments of that miraculous passage, 69, 70.

† Jorham founds the kingdom of Hejaz, i. 381. Where sited, ib.

† Joria, the region of, where sited, viii. 14.

Jornandes confounds the Dacians and Goths, xiv. 497. His account of the Dacian war, ib. & seq.

Joseph born to Jacob, ii. 442. Why his darling, 456, & n. Hated by his brethren, 457. His two dreams, ib. &c. Sold into Egypt, 458. Imprisoned for his continence, 459. Interprets the butler and baker's dreams, 463. And those of Pharaoh, 464, & seq. Raised by him, 465. Marries Potiphera's daughter, ib. & seq. Rough behaviour to his ten brethren, 467, & seq. Stratagem on his brother Benjamin, 472. Sends for his father, 474, & seq. Buys all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh, 479. Settles one fifth part on him, 480. Presents his two sons to dying Jacob, 482. Receives his blessing from him, 492. Sumptuous funeral of him, 496, 497. Kindness to his brethren after it, ib. Last prophetic speech to them, ib. & seq. His death, ib. Rabbinic additions to his history, 488 n. His bones carried out of Egypt, 577.

Joseph, a noble Jewish youth, saves his nation, ix. 208. Farms the revenue of Cœlesyria, 210. & x. 92 & seq. His success in Egypt, ib. Progeny, 93.

——the Maccabee left governor of Jerusalem, x. 140. Defeated by Georgias, 141.

——the third son of Antipater, x. 254 n. Left with the care of Herod's family. 268. Besieged in Massada, 271. Defeated and killed, 276.

——Herod's uncle's fatal indiscretion, x. 287. Put to death, 288.

——the spouse of the virgin Mary, his genealogy, x. 331, & n. Death, 412 n.

——of Arimathea, buries the body of Christ, x. 517.

——the son of Canni made high-priest, x. 563.

——his treachery to Nicephorus, xvi. 419. Banished, 420.

——refuses to submit to the pope, xvi. 518. Banished ib.

Josephus, the Jewish historian, censured for differing from the book of the Maccabees, x. 190 n. & seq. n. Another error of his corrected, 201 n. His testimony of Christ discussed, 530 n. Releases some Jewish priests at Rome, 569 n. Made governor

I N D E X to the governor of Galilee, 578. His brave defence of Jotapa, 580. Surrender, ib. & n. Speech to Vespasian, 581. Promotion, 594. & n. Sent with offers of peace to the Jews, 599. Speech to the besieged, 601. Wounded by them, 606. Suspected by the Romans, ib. n. Beloved by Titus, ib. & seq.

—— Ben-gorion, made governor of Jerusalem, x. 578.

—— a fabulous one trumped up by the Jews against the historian, x. 624.

Joshua, one of those who searched the land of Canaan, iii. 8. His good report of it, 9. Deputed to fight against Amalec, ii. 598. Defeats them, ib. Solemnly appointed Moses's successor, iii. 33. How far inferior to him and other prophets, 33, 34 n. Enters Canaan in the ninety-third year of his age, 64. Sends two spies to Jericho, 65. Proclaims his passage over Jordan, 68. Encouraged by the divine appearance, 72. His miraculous taking of Jericho, 74. Prophetic anathema on the rebuilder of it, ib. Punishes Achan's sacrilege, 77 & n. Causes the sun to stand still, 78. Some authors notion of that transaction examined, 80. & seq. Defeats the confederate Canaanites, ii. 204. Conquers and divides the land by lot, iii. 205, 206, & seq. His death, 485.

Josiah, king of Judah, miraculously foretold, iv. 161. His good reign ib. & seq. And total reformation, 162. Repairs the temple, 165. The book of the law found in his reign, ib. Keeps a grand passover, 167. Mortally wounded, 168, 169. Dies at Jerusalem, 169.

† Jotapa taken by the Romans, x. 580 & n.

† Jotham, an old tribe of Arabs, xviii. 219.

Jothan, the only son of Gideon, that escapes the massacre, iii. 504. His excellent apologue against Abimelech, 505. The antientest piece of that kind, ib. n. Flees to Beer, 507, 508.

—— succeeds Azariah in Judah. iv. 136. Dies after a glorious reign, 137.

Jou, Jovis, the Gaulish name of Jupiter, xviii. 462.

† Jougous, mountain, its poisonous weed, viii. 24.

† Joviani, who, xv. 576.

Jovianus sent into Pannonia, xv. 506. Proclaimed, 563. His excellent character, ib. Zeal for christianity, 564. Disadvantageous peace with Persia justified, 565. Faithfulness vindicated, 567. Repasses the Tigris, 568. Edict in favour of christianity, 569. Of orthodoxy, 570. Death, 573. Whether natural or violent, ib.

Jovinus sent into Pannonia, xv. 506. Into Gaul, 572. Success and bravery there, 584. Signal piety, 585. Different from the consul of that name, ib. Sent into Britain, 588. (vol. xviii. 714. xix. 330.) Against the Alemans, 590. Takes the purple, xvi. 109. His extract and character, ib. Falls out with Ataulphus, ib. & seq. Put to death, xv. 190, & 581.

Jovius made prime minister to Honorius, xvi. 175. Interview with Alaric, 176. Swears perpetual war against him, 177. Sent to treat with Attalus, ibid. Treachery to Honorius, 178.

Journandes's fabulous account of the Hunns, xix. 43, & seq.

Iphicles, the philosopher, informs against Probus, xv. 608.

Iphicrates, the Athenian, his character, vi. 337. Succeeds Thrasybulus against Rhodes, 339. Commands the auxiliaries against Egypt, v. 189, 190. Falsely accused by the Persian general, v. 191, 192, vi. 345. Acquitted, ib. Raises the siege of Corinth, vi. 493.

—— his friendship to Perdiccas, viii. 74.

Iphidamus, the son of Antenor, killed, v. 544.

Iphigenia, the fable of, probably from Jephtha's sacrifice, iii. 513. n. Worshipped by the Taurian Scythians, 462.

Iphimedia carried off by the Naxians, vii. 585.

Iphitus, prince of Oebalia, killed by Hercules, vi. 56.

—— king of Elis, restores the Olympic games, vi. 74.

Irege, king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 255. Murdered by his two brothers, 256.

† Irem, the famed garden and city of, xviii. 215.

Irene converted, and married to Constantius, xvi. 364. Disgraced for her devotion to images, 370. Takes the reins during her son's minority, ib. Allies with Charles of France, ib. Breaks off, and marries her son to Maria, 371. Stripped of her power, ib. Restored, 372. Undermines her son, 374. Causes him to be murdered, ib. Enters Constantinople in triumph, 375. Her popularity ib. Courted by Charles the great, 376. Deposed and confined, ib. Her death, ib.

—— encourages Alexius to regain the empire, xvi. 500.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Ireneus pleads Antipater's cause before the senate, x. 397.

—— bishop, martyred, xviii. 568.

Irens, in Sparta, their office, vi. 389.

† Iris, a river in Pontus, described, ix. 372, 376.

Irom, king of Tyre, ii. 385.

Iron, the melting of, where first found out, vii. 463.

Isaac born, ii. 413. Why so called, 407, n. Mocked by Ishmael, 414.

—— his age, when offered up by Abraham, ii. 416, n. Marries Rebecca, 422. His two sons by her, 431, 432. Goes to Gerar, 432. Covenant with the people, ib. Over-reached by Jacob, 435. Blesses Esau, 436. His death and burial, 455, 456.

—— Comnenus, seizes upon Cyprus, xvi. 494. His cruelties there, ib. Defeats Angelus's fleet, 496.

—— Angelus's narrow escape, xvi. 495. Proclaimed emperor, ib. Severity to Andronicus, ib. Success in Sicily, 496. Vain attempt on Cyprus, ib. Treachery to Barbarossa, 497. Forced to submit to him, 498. Defeated by the Scythians, 499. Loses his eyes and liberty, ib. Released, 502. His death, 503.

Isaflenses, protect Firmus, xv. 603.

Isagoras, head of the Athenian faction, vi. 171. Assisted by the Spartans, ib. & seq.

Isaiah, the prophet, heartens the king of Judah, iv. 137, 138. His prophecy of a virgin's conceiving, 138. Turns back the shadow, to confirm Hezekiah, 150, & n. That transaction discussed ib. & n. His prophecies concerning Christ, explained, x. 334, & seq. & n.

† Isanthus, a king of the Crobyzi, ix. 523.

Isarna, a Bathian prince, xix. 118.

† Isaure taken by Servitius, xii. 612. Where situate, ib. n.

† Isaurians, their desperate defence, viii. 365. Revolt and bravery, xv. 244. Reduced by Probus, 281. By Gallus, 459. Stripped of their plunder, and forced to submit, 622. Ravage several provinces, xvi. 158. Banished out of Constantinople, 294. New revolt, ib. Defeated, 295. Maintain a six years war, 296. Forsake their country, ib.

† Isca, Usk, a Roman garrison, xviii. 666. The antiquities, of, ib.

Isdigerd, I. king of Persia, according to oriental writers, xi. 200. Why surnamed the wicked, ib. Sends his child to Arabia, ib. Killed by a sea horse, ib.

Isdigerd II. his excellent character, xi. 207, & seq. Expedition against the Greeks, 208.

Isdigertes, Isdegertes, the Isdigerd of the oriental writers, xi. 106. His character, 107. Made guardian of Theodosius, ib. & n. A favourer of the christians, 108. His genealogy according to oriental writers, 246. Invaded by Omar, 247. Defeated and killed, 248, 249.

—— the last king of the Persians, ib. & seq. & n.

Isdegestes, king of Persia, persecutes the christians, xvi. 139. Whether left guardian of Arcadius's children, 173.

Ishbibenoth, the son of Goliath, very near killing David, ii. 257.

Ishbosheth proclaimed king of Israel, iv. 13. Barbarously murdered, 16.

Ishmael born, ii. 405. Why so called, ib. n. The prophecy of his descendants verified in the Arabs, ib. n. Sent away with his mother, 414.

—— the murderer of Gedaliah and his Chaldeans, iv. 181.

—— made high-priest, x. 513.

—— the successor of Ananias, x. 569. Deposed for his zeal, 570.

—— outwitted by Manuel, xvi. 393. Fury against Theophilus, 394.

† Ishmaelites, who, and where sited, xviii. 184, 191.

Isidorus, Caius Cæcil. his immense wealth, xiii. 425, & seq.

—— raises a revolt in Egypt, xv. 19.

—— the supposed forger of Constantine's grant, xv. 377.

† Isis of the Egyptians, the same with the moon, i. 99. And Osiris, the chief deities of Egypt, 547: How represented, 552. Her festival solemnly celebrated, 555. Why called the goddess of health, 581. The supposed daughter of Mercury, ii. 3, 4. Her history, ib. & seq.

† —— stately temple at Busiris, 13. Its ruins described, ib. n.

† Island, sacred, or holy, how formed, xi. 389, & n.

† Ismenus, river, in Bœotia, v. 661.

Isocrates's orations to Nicocles, vii. 503.

† Ispahan, a city in Parthia, xi. 4.

Ispara, a deity among the Malabarians, i. 143.

Ispar. Ha, the first principle among them, ib.

Ispendyar defeats the king of Touran, v. 336. Takes and kills him by an odd stratagem, 337, 338. Killed in single combat by Rustan, 338, 339.

Israelites.

I N D E X to the governor of Galilee, 578. His brave defence of Jotapa, 580. Surrender, ib. & n. Speech to Vespasian, 581. Promotion, 594. & n. Sent with offers of peace to the Jews, 599. Speech to the besieged, 601. Wounded by them, 606. Suspected by the Romans, ib. n. Beloved by Titus, ib. & seq.

— Ben-gorion, made governor of Jerusalem, x. 578.

— a fabulous one trumped up by the Jews against the historian, x. 624.

Joshua, one of those who searched the land of Canaan, iii. 8. His good report of it, 9. Deputed to fight against Amalec, ii. 598. Defeats them, ib. Solemnly appointed Moses's successor, iii. 33. How far inferior to him and other prophets, 33, 34. n. Enters Canaan in the ninety-third year of his age, 64. Sends two spies to Jericho, 65. Proclaims his passage over Jordan, 68. Encouraged by the divine appearance, 72. His miraculous taking of Jericho, 74. Prophetic anathema on the rebuilder of it, ib. Punishes Achan's sacrilege, 77 & n. Causes the sun to stand still, 78. Some authors notion of that transaction examined, 80. & seq. Defeats the confederate Canaanites, ii. 204. Conquers and divides the land by lot, iii. 205, 206, & seq. His death, 485.

Josiah, king of Judah, miraculously foretold, iv. 161. His good reign ib. & seq. And total reformation, 162. Repairs the temple, 165. The book of the law found in his reign, ib. Keeps a grand passover, 167. Mortally wounded, 168, 169. Dies at Jerusalem, 169.

† Jotapa taken by the Romans, x. 580 & n.

† Jotham, an old tribe of Arabs, xviii. 219.

Jothan, the only son of Gideon, that escapes the massacre, iii. 504. His excellent apologue against Abimelech, 505. The antientest piece of that kind, ib. n. Flees to Beer, 507, 508.

— succeeds Azariah in Judah. iv. 136. Dies after a glorious reign, 137.

Jou, Jovis, the Gaulish name of Jupiter, xviii. 462.

† Jougous, mountain, its poisonous weed, viii. 24.

† Joviani, who, xv. 576.

Jovianus sent into Pannonia, xv. 506. Proclaimed, 563. His excellent character, ib. Zeal for christianity, 564. Disadvantageous peace with Persia justified, 565. Faithfulness vindicated, 567. Repasses the Tigris, 568. Edict in favour of christianity, 569. Of orthodoxy, 570. Death, 573. Whether natural or violent, ib.

Jovinus sent into Pannonia, xv. 506. Into Gaul, 572. Success and bravery there, 584. Signal piety, 585. Different from the consul of that name, ib. Sent into Britain, 588. (vol. xviii. 714. xix. 330.) Against the Alemans, 590. Takes the purple, xvi. 109. His extract and character, ib. Falls out with Ataulphus, ib. & seq. Put to death, xv. 190, & 581.

Jovius made prime minister to Honorius, xvi. 175. Interview with Alaric, 176. Swears perpetual war against him, 177. Sent to treat with Attalus, ibid. Treachery to Honorius, 178.

Journandes's fabulous account of the Hunns, xix. 43, & seq.

Iphicles, the philosopher, informs against Probus, xv. 608.

Iphicrates, the Athenian, his character, vi. 337. Succeeds Thrasybulus against Rhodes, 339. Commands the auxiliaries against Egypt, v. 189, 190. Falsely accused by the Persian general, v. 191, 192, vi. 345. Acquitted, ib. Raises the siege of Corinth, vi. 493.

— his friendship to Perdiccas, viii. 74.

Iphidamus, the son of Antenor, killed, v. 544.

Iphigenia, the fable of, probably from Jephtha's sacrifice, iii. 513. n. Worshipped by the Taurian Scythians, 462.

Iphimedia carried off by the Naxians, vii. 585.

Iphitus, prince of Oebalia, killed by Hercules, vi. 56.

— king of Elis, restores the Olympic games, vi. 74.

Irege, king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 255. Murdered by his two brothers, 256.

† Irem, the famed garden and city of, xviii. 215.

Irene converted, and married to Constantius, xvi. 364. Disgraced for her devotion to images, 370. Takes the reins during her son's minority, ib. Allies with Charles of France, ib. Breaks off, and marries her son to Maria, 371. Stripped of her power, ib. Restored, 372. Undermines her son, 374. Causes him to be murdered, ib. Enters Constantinople in triumph, 375. Her popularity ib. Courted by Charles the great, 376. Deposed and confined, ib. Her death, ib.

— encourages Alexius to regain the empire, xvi. 500.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Ireneus pleads Antipater's cause before the senate, x. 397.

—— bishop, martyred, xviii. 568.

Irens, in Sparta, their office, vi. 389.

† Iris, a river in Pontus, described, ix. 372, 376.

Iron, king of Tyre, ii. 385.

Iron, the melting of, where first found out, vii. 463.

Isaac born, ii. 413. Why so called, 407, n. Mocked by Ishmael, 414.

—— his age, when offered up by Abraham, ii. 416, n. Marries Rebecca, 422. His two sons by her, 431, 432. Goes to Gerar, 432. Covenant with the people, ib. Over-reached by Jacob, 435. Blesses Esau, 436. His death and burial, 455, 456.

—— Comnenus, seizes upon Cyprus, xvi. 494. His cruelties there, ib. Defeats Angelus's fleet, 496.

—— Angelus's narrow escape, xvi. 495. Proclaimed emperor, ib. Severity to Andronicus, ib. Success in Sicily, 496. Vain attempt on Cyprus, ib. Treachery to Barbarossa, 497. Forced to submit to him, 498. Defeated by the Scythians, 499. Loses his eyes and liberty, ib. Released, 502. His death, 503.

Isaflenses, protect Firmus, xv. 603.

Isagoras, head of the Athenian faction, vi. 171. Assisted by the Spartans, ib. & seq.

Isaiah, the prophet, heartens the king of Judah, iv. 137, 138. His prophecy of a virgin's conceiving, 138. Turns back the shadow, to confirm Hezekiah, 150, & n. That transaction discussed ib. & n. His prophecies concerning Christ, explained, x. 334, & seq. & n.

† Isanthus, a king of the Crobyzi, ix. 523.

Isarna, a Bathian prince, xix. 118.

† Isaure taken by Servitius, xii. 612. Where situate, ib. n.

† Isaurians, their desperate defence, viii. 365. Revolt and bravery, xv. 244. Reduced by Probus, 281. By Gallus, 459. Stripped of their plunder, and forced to submit, 622. Ravage several provinces, xvi. 158. Banished out of Constantinople, 294. New revolt, ib. Defeated, 295. Maintain a six years war, 296. Forsake their country, ib.

† Isca, Usk, a Roman garrison, xviii. 666. The antiquities, of, ib.

Isdigerd, I. king of Persia, according to oriental writers, xi. 200. Why surnamed the wicked, ib. Sends his child to Arabia, ib. Killed by a sea horse, ib.

Isdigerd II. his excellent character, xi. 207, & seq. Expedition against the Greeks, 208.

Isdigertes, Isdegertes, the Isdigerd of the oriental writers, xi. 106. His character, 107. Made guardian of Theodosius, ib. & n. A favourer of the christians, 108. His genealogy according to oriental writers, 246. Invaded by Omar, 247. Defeated and killed, 248, 249.

—— the last king of the Persians, ib. & seq. & n.

Isdegestes, king of Persia, persecutes the christians, xvi. 139. Whether left guardian of Arcadius's children, 173.

Ishbibenoth, the son of Goliath, very near killing David, ii. 257.

Ishboetheth proclaimed king of Israel, iv. 13. Barbarously murdered, 16.

Ishmael born, ii. 405. Why so called, ib. n. The prophecy of his descendants verified in the Arabs, ib. n. Sent away with his mother, 414.

—— the murderer of Gedaliah and his Chaldeans, iv. 181.

—— made high-priest, x. 513.

—— the successor of Ananias, x. 569. Deposed for his zeal, 570.

—— outwitted by Manuel, xvi. 393. Fury against Theophilus, 394.

† Ishmaelites, who, and where sited, xviii. 184, 191.

Isidorus, Caius Cæcil. his immense wealth, xiii. 425, & seq.

—— raises a revolt in Egypt, xv. 19.

—— the supposed forger of Constantine's grant, xv. 377.

† Isis of the Egyptians, the same with the moon, i. 99. And Osiris, the chief deities of Egypt, 547: How represented, 552. Her festival solemnly celebrated, 555. Why called the goddess of health, 581. The supposed daughter of Mercury, ii. 3, 4. Her history, ib. & seq.

† —— stately temple at Busiris, 13. Its ruins described, ib. n.

† Island, sacred, or holy, how formed, xi. 389, & n.

† Ismenus, river, in Bœotia, v. 661.

Isocrates's orations to Nicocles, vii. 503.

† Ispahan, a city in Parthia, xi. 4.

Ispara, a deity among the Malabarians, i. 143.

Ispar. Ha, the first principle among them, ib.

Ispendiyar defeats the king of Touran, v. 336. Takes and kills him by an odd stratagem, 337, 338. Killed in single combat by Rustan, 338, 339.

Israelites.

I N D E X to the Israelites. See Jews, ii. 394, & seq.

 — Blended with the Jews, x. 5.
 10, & n.
 Israelitish kingdom ended, iv. 146, 147.
 † Issa, or Antissa, a city in Lesbos, vii. 550, & seq. Besieged by the Illyrians, xii. 167. Taken by the Romans, 169.
 † Issachar, born of Leah, ii. 442. Jacob's prophetic blessing to him, 498, 499, & n.
 † Isser, river, in Numidia, xvii. 559.
 † Issus, a city in Cilicia, Proper, v. 597.
 † — the gulph of, v. 597.
 † — the battle of, viii. 426, & n.
 — won by Severus, xv. 99.
 † Istachr, in Persia, the same with Chilmimar, v. 350.
 † Ister, the antient name of the Danube, v. 439, 443.
 Isthmian games, their origin, &c. vi. 37, & n.
 † Istiaëotis, part of Thessaly, vi. 15.
 † Istria, conquered by the Romans, xii. 178.
 † Istrians subdued, xii. 318.
 † Isurum Brigantum, where sited, xviii. 668.
 † Itabyr, mount, described, x. 583, & n.
 † Itaca, the antient name of Utica, whence, xvi. 573.
 † — island, described, vii. 630.
 Italian allies, their representation to the senate, xii. 516. Somewhat cooled by the Julian law, 523. Made in to a new tribe, 524. Caressed by Sulpicius, 527.
 Italicus, made king of the Cherusci, xiv. 132.
 — king of Suevia, declares for Vespasian, xiv. 384.
 — Silius, the poet, his writings and character, xiv. 531, n.
 † Italy, whence so called, xi. 252, 253. Described, ib. & seq. Its division, 254, & seq.
 — Propria, its territories, xi. 259, & seq. Chief rivers, 264. Mountains, 265. Antient inhabitants, 266, & seq. Whence called Italy, 273. Visited with the plague, 575, & seq. Invaded by the Gauls, ib. & seq. Second invasion, 617. The rest see sub Gauls.
 — divided into two republics, xii. 518, & seq. Into regions by Augustus, xiii. 434. And in the map. Greatly oppressed by the army, xiv. 366. Relieved by Vitellius, 370. Divided between him and Vespasian, 397.
 — invaded by the Marcomani, xv. 16. Ruined by Dioclesian, 299. Ravaged by the Goths, xvi. 153. Freed from them, 156. Invaded by Rhadagaisus, 160. Subdued by Odoacer, 285. By Theodoric, 290. By the Lombards, 320. Peopled by the Celtes, xviii. 398, & n. Ravaged by Attila, xix. 89, & seq.

 Italicus, the district of, its provinces, xv. 421.
 † Ithamas Portus, where sited, xviii. 199.
 † Ithobal, son of the chief priest of Astarte, seizes on the Tyrian kingdom, ii. 379. Called Ethbaal in scripture, ib. Gives his daughter, Jezebel to Ahab, 380.
 — II. king of Tyre, ii. 383. Slain by Nabuchadnezzar, ib.
 † Ithome, built and fortified, vi. 407. Taken by the Spartans, 415. Seized by the Helotes, 474.
 † Itius Portus, where, xviii. 199.
 † Iturea given to Herod, x. 304, & n.
 † Itureans, why so called, x. 209, & n. Forced to circumcise, ib. Where sited, xviii. 189.
 Iturius, the accuser of Agrippina, banished, xiv. 180.
 Juba comes to Cato at Utica, xiii. 89. Affronted and defeated by Cæsar, 96. xvii. 600. Killed, ib. 603. Hath Mauritania given to him, xviii. 39. His education at Rome, ib. n. Learning and works, ib. — invaded by Bogud, xviii. 38.
 — the young son of Juba, led in triumph, xiii. 110. His education and learning, ib. & n. Marries young Cleopatra, 365.
 Jubilee year of the Jews, iii. 211, & seq. Why so called, 212, & n. When begun, 213. When first celebrated in Canaan, ib. Whether on the forty-ninth or fiftieth year, 215. Why and how celebrated, 217.
 † Jubones hurt by subterranean fires, xiv. 191. Their mad way of extinguishing them, ib.
 † Jucatan, the province of, whence so called, i. 474, n.
 Judæa, whence so called, iii. 98, & seq. Seized on by Antigonus, viii. 389. By Ptolemy, 391. Recovered by the former, 392. By the latter, 407. By Antiochus, 615. How it came to continue under Seleucus, 62, 63. Wasted by Antiochus, 74, 83.
 — its forlorn state after the captivity, x. 4, & seq. Made a province of Syria, 62. Under the government of high-priests, ib. & seq. Alternately oppressed by Syria and Egypt, 68, 79. Polluted and deserted,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

117, & seq. Restored by Judas Maccabeus, 127, & seq. Invaded by Lyfias, 138. By Bacchides, 153. Freed by Jonathan, 179. Subdued by Pompey, 238, & seq. Deeply taxed by Cassius, 259. Visited by pestilence and famine, 301. Laid waste by several factions, 401, & seq. Made a Roman province, 562. Infested with sicarii, 566. Filled with slaughter, &c. 574, & seq. See also vol. xiii. 211, 453.

Judah born of Leah, ii. 440. Persuades his brethren to sell Joseph, 447. His sons by a Canaanitish woman, 459, 460. Outwitted by his daughter-in-law, 461, 462. Jacob's prophetic blessing to him explained, 486, & n.

† — his lot in the promised land, iii. 103.

— the tribe of, ordered to begin the war with the Canaanites, iii. 486. Defeated by that of Benjamin, 491. Defeats it with great loss, ib. &c.

† — the wilderness of, iii. 119, 120.

Judalicius's success against the Romans, xii. 521. Bravery and death at Asculum, 523.

Judas Maccabeus succeeds his father, x. 125, & seq. Defeats the Syrians, 127, 130. And Lyfias, 132, n. Restores the divine worship, 133. Defeats the Idumeans, 134, 135. Vast success in Gilead, 140, & seq. And Idumea, &c. 141, & seq. Makes peace with Syria, 143. Defeats Timotheus, 146, & seq. Returns victorious, 148, & n. Offers sacrifices for the slain Jews, 149, & n. Forces Antiochus to a peace, 151. Defeats Alcimus, 154. Escapes Nicator's treachery, 157. Defeats and kills him, 159. Allies with Rome, 160, & seq. How styled high-priest by the Romans, 161, n. Defeated and killed, 162, & seq.

— the brave son of Simon sent against Cendebeus, x. 190.

— an Essenian prophet, foretels Antigonus's death, x. 210, n.

— Galileus, head of the Gaulonish faction, x. 362. Raises an insurrection, 410, & seq.

— a doctor, raises a revolt against Herod, x. 390. Burnt alive, 391. The son of Hezechias, raises a new sedition, 401. Supposed the Theudas mentioned by St. Luke, 402, & n.

— al. Jude, chosen an apostle, x. 444, n.

— Iscariot, one of the twelve apostles, 444, n. Why so called, 445, n.

Why chosen into the college, 461, n. His avarice reprov'd, 483. His resentment at it, 484, & 495, n. Sells his master, 497. Betrays him, 499. His remorse and kind of death, 503, n.

† Ivellus, river, in Danmonia, xviii. 659.

Judges and courts of judicature, among the Jews, iii. 330. Qualities required in them, ib. Held at the gates of the cities, 333. Laws relating to them, 330. Rabbinic traditions concerning them, 334, n. & seq. n.

— Constantine's laws concerning them, xv. 393.

Judgment, the day of, described by Christ, x. 496.

Judith, Esau's first wife, why also called Adah, ii. 439, n.

— frees her country by murdering Holophernes, iv. 291. What credit may be given to her history, ib. & n.

Jugæus, king of Babylon, iv. 380.

Jugurtha's arrival at Scipio's camp, xii. 371.

— his descent, xii. 432. Seizes on the Numidian crown, ib. Bribes the Roman senate, 434. Treachery and cruelty to Adherbal, 435, 437. Summoned to Rome, 442. Escapes by bribery, ib. & seq. Biting farewell to that city, 444. Overreaches Albinus, ib. And Aulus, 446. Makes the Romans pass under the yoke, 447. Defeated by Metellus, 449. By Marius, 452. Outwitted by Metellus, 453, 454. Defeated, 459, 460, 468. Gives Sylla a free passage, 471. Betrayed by Bocchus, 473, & seq. Sent in chains to Rome, 474. His dominions how divided, 476. Led in triumph, 480. His sad end, ib. See also vol. xvii. 583. to 598.

† Juhones, who, and where sit'd, xviii. 576.

Julia, married to Pompey, xiii. 5. Her death and funeral honours, 24, 25.

— Antony's mother's brave speech to him, xiii. 226.

— Octavian's daughter betrothed to Antyllus, xiii. 332. Intrigues with Antony's son, 365. Her incontinence, 427, 430. Banished into an island, 431. Removed to the continent, 446. Her sad end, 501, & n.

— the true daughter of the former, banished for the same crimes, xiii. 431. Her death, 666.

— sister to Brutus, her death, and funeral honours, xiii. 622.

I N D E X to the

Julia, the wife of Nero, betrays him to Sejanus, xiii. 656, & seq. Married to R. Blandus, xiv. 16. Put to death, 121.

—— daughter of Germanicus, married to Vinicius, xiii. 670, n. xiv. 11. Honoured by Caligula, 43. The same with Livilla, ib. n. Banished for her lewdness, 75, & n. Re-called and re-banished, 113, 114. Put to death, 121.

—— Septimius Severus's wife, her lewd character, xv. 90. Studies philosophy, ib. & seq. Prevents her sons reconciliation, 125. Wounded at Geta's murder, 126. In favour with Caracalla, 127. Starves herself to death, 141.

—— Mamea, the mother of Alexander, xv. 154, 156. Supposed to have been a christian, ib. Her excellent education of her son, ib. High sway and titles, 157. Murdered in Germany, 171. Deified by the senate, ib.

Julian the apostate, his judgment of M. Aurelius, xv. 36, 41. Of Porphyry, 329, n. His birth, 334. Partiality against Constantine refuted, 412, 417. Saved by Eusebia, 468. Declared Cæsar, 473. Success in Gaul, 475. Noble defence at Sens, 477. Success against the barbarians, 480, 483. Against the Franks, 484. And Alemans, 490. Stripped of the best forces, 497. Proclaimed emperor, 499. Accepts the empire after having used some wickeries, 500. Generosity to Constantius's friends, ib. How raised to the empire, 501, & seq. Submissive deputation to Constantius, 502, 503. Success in Germany, 503. Imposes on the christians, 504. Swears his army to him, ib. Letters to Athens, 506. Marches against Constantius, 507. Seizes Illyricum, ib. Funeral obsequies of Constantius, 508. His extract, education, and character, 519. Abode in Ionia, 521. Singular hypocrisy, 522. Studies magic, 523. Abode at Athens, 524. Cæsarship and behaviour in Gaul, 526. Writings, ib. & seq. Frugality, 527. Reduction of taxes, 528. Apostatizes, 529. Public entry into Constantinople, 530. Severe prosecutions, 531. Reforms the court, 532. Which he fills with philosophers, magicians, &c. 533. And women, 534. His meanness to the senate, ib. & seq. Partial justice at Antioch, 536. Horrid cruelties and witchcrafts, 537. Pursued by famine, ib. His idolatry, &c. lampooned by the Antiochians, ib. Writes his Misopogon against them, ib. & seq. Renews the Persian war, 539.

(See also vol. xi. 100, & seq.) Deluded by oracles, xv. 540. Sharply reprov- ed for his apostasy at Berœa, 541. His hellish superstition at Carrhæ, 542. Ill treatment of Arsaces, 543. Success in Persia, 544. Passes the Tigris, 546. Betrayed by Persian guides, ib. Burns his fleet, and retreats, ib. In great distress, 548. Surprised by the Persian army, ib. Wounded, 549. Last speech, 550. Death, ib. Buried at Tarsus, ib. Removed to Constantinople, 551. His motly charac- ter, ib. & seq. Hatred to the christians, 554. Vain attempt to rebuild the temple of Jerusalem, 555. Writings, ib. n. Laws against christians repealed, 569.

Julian the son of Constantine besieged, xvi. 188. Beheaded, 189.

—— a friend of Constantius unjustly condemned, xv. 536.

—— law, what, xii. 523.

Julianus Claudius's treachery to Vitelli- us, xiv. 398. Scourged, and put to death, by Lucius, 404.

—— Tertius, broke for defection, xiv. 429. Restored, 430.

—— Antonius, an account of his writ- ings, xiv. 693.

—— Salvius, publishes his perpetual e- dict, xiv. 622.

—— his grandson, put to death by Com- modus, xv. 57.

—— captain of the guards, put to death, xv. 63.

—— Did. Sever. buys the empire of the soldiery, xv. 80. His rise and pedigree, ib. Character, names, &c. 81, 82. Ac- knowledged by the senate, 82. Cursed and pelted by the people, 83. Opposed by two powerful rivals, 91. Cruelty and despair, 92. Forsaken and proscribed, 93. His death, &c. ib.

—— M. Aurel. proclaims himself em- peror, xv. 298. Stabs himself, 301.

—— Rusticus, a cast-off candidate for the empire, xv. 586.

—— made prince of Apfites, xiv. 580.

—— Paulus, his writings and character, xiv. 672, n.

—— Didius, made proconsul of Afric, xv. 65.

—— Solin. Polyhistor, his writings and character, xv. 123, n.

—— Titianus, his writings, &c. xv. 123, n.

—— Martialis, conspires against Cara- calla, xv. 137. Stabs him, and is killed, ib. & 138.

Julianus

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Julianus governor of Asia, destroys the Goths there, xvi. 30.

—— chosen decemvir and dictator, xi. 639.

† Julius, by whom built, x. 414.

† Juliopolis. See Tarsus, v. 597.

† Iulis, the famous ruins of, vii. 577. Its worthies, ib. & n.

Julius Sext. speech to the Achæans, vi. 658, 659. Outwitted by Critolaus, ib.

—— Cæsar. Vid. Cæsar, xii. 507, & seq.

—— Marinus put to death, xiv. 8.

Iulus, Ascanius, why so called, xi. 280. & n.

—— his son's contest with Sylvius, xi. 282.

June, the month of changed, xiv. 355.

Junia, draws Brutus into a conspiracy, xiii. 135.

—— the sister of Silanus banished, xiv. 142.

Junius, M. put to death by Tarquin, xi. 367.

—— Pera, chosen dictator against Hannibal, xii. 224.

—— Brutus settles a colony in Spain, xii. 366.

—— Silanus, saved by a slave, xiii. 227. Returns to Rome, 323.

—— Priscus, put to death, xiv. 67.

—— Palmatus's success in Armenia, xv. 160.

Juno, Jupiter's queen, v. 430. How worshipped at Argos, vii. 10, n. & seq. n.

† —— her famed temple at Samos, vii. 515. Worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 618.

† Junonia, island, described, xviii. 21.

Jupiter, or Ammon, one of the Egyptian deities, i. 550. Principally worshipped at Thebes, 556. By the Celtes, v. 405. His birth concealed by his mother, 425, 426, & n. His other names, 428, n. 430, n. Dethrones his father, 427, & seq. Wars with his uncle Titan, ib. & seq. Divides his empire, 431. Deflowers his niece Maia, 432. Has Mercury by her, ib. His death and sepulchre, ib. & seq. Challenged by the Scythians as their progenitor, 475. His statue and temple at Cyzicum, 562.

—— one of the Titans, vii. 465. Where brought up, 466. By whom nursed, 469, n. & 471.

—— his statue set up in Solomon's temple, x. 115. In that of the Samaritans, ib.

Jupiter, Imperator, his statue brought from Præneste, xi. 607.

—— temple at Rome burnt, xiv. 229. Worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 619. Why so named, 620, n. When that title ceased, xv. 318. When first worshipped in Gaul, xviii. 453, & n. That name not adopted there, 461, 462. How worshipped, 58, & n. In Germany, 601. By the Garamantes, 59, & n. By the Arabs, 231.

Justa, the daughter of Valentinian, turns nun, xv. 587.

Justin Martyr's account of the Septuagint version, x. 85, n.

—— his sarcasm on the heathen idolatry, xiv. 625. Presents his apology to Antoninus, 670.

—— the abridger of Trogus, his character, xiv. 672, n. Different from the martyr, ib.

—— the emperor proclaimed, xvi. 302. His rise and character, ib. Conspired against, 303. Rejects Cabades's proposals, 304. His edict against the Arians, ib. Death, &c. 305. Piety to the destroyed cities, 304, 305.

—— nephew of Justinian proclaimed, xvi. 319. Incensed against the Avari, 320. Cruelty to Justin, ib. Protects the Persarmenians, ib. Runs mad, 321. His death and character, 323.

Justina's great sway over Valentinian II., xvi. 60. Favours the Arians, ib. Persecutes the orthodox, 67. Her death, 82.

—— the wife of Valentinian, xv. 575. Her issue, 587. Goes with him into Illyricum, 607.

Justinian chosen consul, xvi. 303. Co-partner with Justin, 305. Succeeds him, ib. Proposals of peace rejected by the Persians, 307. Stratagem against them, 308. Peace with them, ib. Insulted at Constantinople, 309. Fatal jealousy of Belisarius, 310. Fresh peace with Persia, 311. Truce, 314. Wars with the Ostrogoths, xix. 450, 456. Conspired against, xvi. 316. His death and character, 317. Code, &c. ib. & seq.

—— the kinsman of Justin, his success against the Persians, xvi. 322. Disgraced, 323.

—— II. chosen emperor, xvi. 350. Ill success against the Bulgarians, ib. Breaks the peace with the Saracens, ib. Defeated by them, 351. Bloody revenge on the Sclavi, ib. His massacre of the Constantinopolitans prevented, ib. Deposed, 352. Defaced and banished, ib. Flees to Chazari,

I N D E X to the

Chazari, 353. To the Bulgarians, 354. An instance of his unforgiving temper, ib. Restored to his crown, ib. Cruelties and ingratitude, 355. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ib. Horrid butcheries, ib. Taken prisoner, and beheaded, ib.

Justinian code, compiled and published, xvi. 224.

Justinianus's brave defence of Constantinople, xvi. 549. Death, 553.

† Juthongi revolt, xv. 282. Invade Rhetia, 486. Settled in Thraee, xix. 195. Defeated by Ætius, xvi. 219. xix. 225.

† Jutes, their origin, xix. 8. Why called Giotæ, 195.

† Jutland, conquered by the Goths, xix. 112.

Juvenal, the satirist, an account of, xiv. 531, n.

Juvenales, games instituted by Nero, xiv. 203.

Juvenus's writings and character, xv. 430, n.

Juventius, sent against Andrius, viii. 540. Defeated and killed, 541.

—— Thalma, defeated, xii. 346.

Izates, prince of Adiabene, preferred before his brother, ix. 635, 636. Is circumcised, 637. Invaded by Abias, 638. By the Vologeses, 639. His deliverance and death, ib. Character, ib. & seq. Tomb at Jerusalem, 640. Friendship to Artabanus, xi. 58.

Ized, the son of Mahuvias, wastes Phrygia, xvi. 346. Ravages Sardinia, 348.

—— Mualbis revolts in Persia, xvi. 360.

Izeth repulsed before Constantinople, xvi. 358, 359.

K

KABUZ, king of Egypt, whether the Pharaoh of Moses, ii. 91.

† Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin, ii. 412, & n. iii. 20. xviii. 186.

† Kadmonites, where seated, ii. 186, n.

† Kaer Went, the famed ruins of, xviii. 666.

† ——— Leion, ib.

——— Philocastel, ib.

† ——— Gourtigern, consumed by lightning, xix. 18.

† Kaianites, the dynasty of, in Persia, v. 240.

Kalendar, when rectified in Persia, v. 248. At Rome by Numa, xi. 318. By Cæsar, now, xiii. 116, & 117.

Kaob, a smith, seizes on the Persian throne, v. 252, & seq.

Kaphoreth, mercy-seat, whence that word, iii. 296, n.

Karaïtes, who, and whence so called, x. 371, & n. When separated from the rest, 374, & n. Why hated by the Jews, 379, & 380, n.

† Karak, whether the antient Petra, xviii. 182.

† Karioth, a city in Arabia Petrea; xviii. 183.

† Kashan, a city in Parthia, xi. 4.

Kathan, the same with Joktan, xviii. 219. His reign and progeny, ibid. n. & 268.

Keaulin's success against Ethelbert, xix. 31, 34.

† Kedareni, antient inhabitants of Petrea, xviii. 184.

Kegenes's reception at Constantinople, xvi. 452.

Kelkeli, the first introducer of magic, ii. 89.

† Kenites descended from Jethro, ii. 138. Join the Israelites, 139. Why spared by Saul, ib.

——— another tribe of them, ii. 185, n.

† Kent inhabited by the Jutes, xix. 10. Seized on by Hengist, 14. Becomes a Saxon kingdom, ib. & seq.

Keykaus, king of Persia, whether the Nimrod of Moses, v. 276, 282, & seq.

Keykobald said to have conversed with Samuel, v. 273, 276, & seq.

Keyomar, king of Persia, v. 242, 243.

† Khobaah, the Arab tribe of, whence, xviii. 289.

† Kibroth-Hatavah, whence so called, iii. 8.

Kibt, Kut, founds a monarchy in Egypt, ii. 88.

† Kilan, a fruitful province of Persia, iv. 514, & n.

Kingdoms, their establishment, i. 479. Small at first, ib.

Kings, their beginning tyrannical, iii. 326. Their power, 327, 328, & seq. Attire, 329.

† Kinnereth, the sea of, described, iii. 124.

† Kir-harasheth, capital of Moab, ii. 115.

† Kittim, where seated, i. 472, & xi. 27.

Kiun, conjectures on that idol, xvi. 611, n.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Kiwelinga, worshipped by the Malabarians, i. 143.

† Kiz, island, where, xviii. 139.

Knights, Roman, when first instituted, xi. 307. Four hundred degraded, xii. 133. Made judges in private causes, 403. Punished for extortion, 511. Contest against the senate, 516. Stripped of their jurisdiction, 524. One thousand six hundred proscribed by Scylla, 572. Butchered by Catiline, ib. & seq. Total of them, 586, 587. Courted by Cæsar, xiii. 5. Two thousand proscribed by the Triumvirs, 224. Petition against marriage, 454. 455. Their power revived by Claudius, xiv. 162. Forbid the gladiatorial trade, 369. Why hated by Domitian, 505. When first used for secretaries, xiv. 644.

Kohath, head of a class of Levites, iii. 251.

† Kolzum, a city in Arabia Petrea, xviii. 185.

Korah, head of a class of Levites, iii. 14. His conspiracy and dreadful end, ib. & seq. & n.

† Koresh, the Arab tribe of, seize on the Cabaa, xviii. 289, 290.

† Kofs, Cush, from whom so named, xviii. 139.

— a famed Arab orator, xviii. 251.

† Krim, Crim, the peninsula of, ix. 619.

† Kuarefm, the province of, where, &c, v. 287.

† Kur, a river of Georgia, ix. 612.

L

LABAN's reception of Jacob, ii. 438. Cheats and oppresses him, ib. & seq. Pursues him in his flight, 446. Strife and parting with him, ib. & seq.

Labaris, buried in Arsinoe's Labyrinth, i. 604, n.

Labarum, Constantine's standard, how carried, xv. 368.

Labdacus, king of Thebes, v. 666.

Labeo's treachery to Metellus, xii. 393, 394.

Labienus commands the Parthians, xi. 41. Conquests in Syria, ib. Defeat and death, 42.

— success in Belgium, xiii. 16, & seq. Against the Gauls, 29, 30. Against the Belgæ, 33. Goes over to Pompey, 52, & n. Joins Cato at Utica, 89. Success, against Cæsar, 94. Defeated by him, 96. Stirs up the Spaniards against him, 119. Defeated and slain, 123, 124.

Labienus's son fights under the Parthians, xiii. 314, & n. Success against Antony, ib.

Laborosoarchod, falsely supposed the last king of Babylon, iv. 432. His cruelty against Gobrias, &c. ib. Murdered after a nine months reign, ib. & seq. Whether the Belshazzar of Daniel, iv. 496, n. & seq. n. His tyranny and death, v. 72, 73.

Labotas's wars against the Argives, vi. 64.

Labynetus. See Nabonadius, iv. 433. & seq.

† Labyrinth of Egypt described, i. 526. The remains of it, 529.

Lacedemon, the son of Eurotas, vi. 46, & n.

† Lacedemonia, whence so called, vi. 45, 46. Why called Hecatompolis, 47, n. Described, 47, & seq. Its government, duration, &c. 51, & seq. Kings, 55, & seq. Why styled Agidæ and Proclidæ, 64. The rest see under Laconia, v. 604, & seq.

† Lacedemonians, war against the Athenians, vi. 263, & seq. Truce, 279, 286. Peace broken, 288. Beaten by sea and land, 315, 316. Reduce the Athenians, 321, & seq. Make peace with them, 341, &c. Subdue the Thebans, ib. Renew the war, 342. & seq. Defeated at Naxos, 344. At Leucades, ib. Their kings from Lycurgus to the Achæan league, 378, 379. War with the Messenians, 403, & seq. Argives, 408. Defeated, 413, 414, 419. Enslave the Messenians, 427. Defeated at Thermopylæ, 441, & n. Preparations against the Persians, v. 134, & seq. vi. 444. & seq. Defeat them by sea and land, vi. 147, & seq. vi. 445, & seq. And the Athenians, 470. Decree against them, 471. War with Persia, 480. Make a general peace, v. 182, & seq. Exult upon it. vi. 495, 496. Defeated by the Thebans, 500, 501. Defeat the Arcadians, 505. And Thebans, 507. Suffered to alienate their lands, 520. Restored to their old government, 529, 530. Defeated at Selasia, 533, & seq. Subdued by the Macedonians, 538. Chuse two new kings ib. & seq. Defeated by the Achæans, 541. Enslaved by Nabis, ib. & seq. Plundered by the Ætolians, 548. Go over to them, 549. Break peace with the Achæans, 399. Join with the Romans, ib. &c. Withdraw from the Achæan league, 627. Reduced by Philopœmen, 629. Restored to their law 634. Complain against the Achæans, chæans, 654. Reimbursed by the Roman senate, 670.

Lacedæmonians speech to the Athenians, viii. 58. Join with the Macedonians, 63. Against the Olynthians, 71. Succour the Carthaginians, xii. 126. Rewarded by Augustus, xiii. 391.

† Lacetani, cut in pieces by Scipio, xvii. 378.

Laches finishes the Colossus, vii. 400, n.

† Lacinium, where sited, xvii. 341, n.

Laco, a favourite of Galba, xiv. 305, 308. His character, 309. Promotes Piso's interest 219. Put to death by Otho, 331.

† Lacobriga, where sited, xii. 597. Besieged by Metellus, ib. & seq.

† Laconia, part of antient Greece, v. 604. Antient name of Lacedemon, vi. 45. Its site, extent &c. 47. Government, 51. & seq. Invaded by the Athenians, 238. Divided by Lycurgus, 384. Plundered by Conon, v. 181. By the helotes, vi. 454.

† Laconic, gulph, and its isles, vii. 632.

— style, what, vi. 390.

† Lactodorum, antient Bedford, xviii. 662.

Lacumaces, set on the Massilian throne, xviii. 573. Submits to Masinissa, 574.

† Lade the isles of vii. 567.

† — the sea fight of vii. 563.

Ladice, a pretended miracle on her wedding, ii. 71, 72.

Ladies, Roman, whence their privileges, xi. 572. A number of them turn poisoners, xii. 5, & seq. Others save their husbands, xiii. 226.

— One thousand four hundred severely taxed by the Triumvirs, xiii. 235.

† Ladoga, the lake of, described, v. 443.

Lælius sent to ravage Afric, xii. 276. Defeats Syphax, 284. Brings him prisoner, to Rome, 286. Defeats Asdrubal, xvii. 471. Interview with Masinissa, 475. Burns the Numidian camp, 483. Bravery at the battle of Zama, 493. Success before Carthage, 534.

Lætus conspires against Commodus, xv. 67. Raises Pertinax to the throne, 70, 71. Revolts against him, 77. Put to death, 92.

— Severus's general, reduces Mesopotamia, xv. 103. Treachery to the emperor, 106. Death, ib. & seq.

— the adviser of Geta's murder put to death, xv. 129.

† Læves where settled in Italy, xi. 576. xviii. 544.

Levinus, admiral, against the Macedonians, xii. 235. Saves Tarentum, 240.

Surprises their camp, 242. Success against the Carthaginians, 269. Against the Macedonians, 296.

Lævius's ill success against the Epirots, ix. 556. Answer to Pyrrhus's letter, 553.

Lageion the order of, whence, ix. 176.

† Lagerlum, where situate, xviii. 668.

Lagides, the surname of the Ptolemies, ix. 176.

Lagodus driven out of Spain, xvi. 166.

Lagus his extract, ix. 175. Whether the father of Ptolemy, ib.

Lais, an extravagant Corinthian harlot, vi. 37, n.

† Laish, city, destroyed by the Danites, iii. 489.

Laius, the father of Oedipus, v. 668, & seq.

— king of Elis his reign, vi. 74.

Lakes, worshipped by the Gauls, xviii. 454, & n. & 456, 457, n.

Lamachus sent into Sicily, vii. 129. Killed before Syracuse 194.

— governor of Heraclea, betrays it to Mithridates, ix. 420, & n. See also vol. vi. 285, 296, 299.

† Lamalmon, the famed mountain of, described, xviii. 96.

Lamb, paschal, how and why instituted, iii. 188, & n.

— daily sacrifice ceased, x. 609.

Lambs, the computation by, uncertain, x. 574, n.

Lamech, the fifth in descent from Cain, i. 233.

— the father of Noah, i. 236, & i. 253.

† Lamia besieged by the Macedonians, vii. 45. Surrendered to the Romans, ib.

— Ælius's death and character, xiv. 16. The cause of it, 491. A concubine of Demetrius, viii. 421.

— the story of, xviii. 186, n.

Lamiscus, king of the Lombards, xix. 376. Success against the Bulgarians, 378.

Lampeto, queen of the Amazons, v. 465, n.

Lampo's cruelty to the Jews, xiv. 676. Turns evidence against them, 682.

Lampridius's account of the Persian war, xi. 79, n. His character, &c. xv. 320, n.

— an enemy to Sylvanus, punished, xv. 470.

Lampfacians outwit Alexander, v. 563.

† Lampfacum in Mysia, by whom built, v. 563.

— taken from the Athenians, vi. 321.

† Land of Promise, described, iii. 97. & seq. Its site and boundaries, 101. Divided, among the Israelites, 103. &c. Its natural natural and artificial rarities, 135, to 148.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Why so altered for the worse, 132. & seq.
Lands, how divided by Lycurgus, vi. 384.
Language, how confounded at Babel, i. 439,
& seq. The number and confusion of them,
443. See also Speech i. 427, to 434.

Langarus's kindness to Alexander, viii.
146, 147.

Langians, taken and massacred, xii. 362,
363.

† Langobriga, a city in Lusitania, xviii.
327.

† Langres, revolts from Galba, xiv. 334,
335. New-colonied by the Franks, xv. 305.

Laodamus's ill success against the Epigoni, v. 671.

Laodice, married to Perseus, viii. 498.

— the wife of Antiochus poisons him,
viii. 588. & seq.

— of Mithridates, her lewdness punished, ix. 387.

— of Orophernes, her cruelty punished,
ix. 467.

† Laodicea, in Seleucis, where sited,
ii. 264.

† — the capital of Laodicene, ii. 264.

† — in Media, described, iv. 447.

In Phrygia, v. 494. Famed for its wool,
ib. Destroyed, 495, & n.

† — by whom built, viii. 566. Declares for Niger, xv. 99. Plundered, ib.
Taken by Alexius, xvi. 483. By his son, 486.

Laodiceans, receive Dolabella, xiii. 211.
Besieged by Cassius, 212. Betrayed by Quintius, 213. How used by the conqueror, ib.

† Laodicene, a province in Syria, &c. ii.
264.

Laomedon, the son of Ilus, v. 545.
Builds the citadel of Troy, 547. His reign, &c. ib. & seq.

† Laons, river in Macedon, viii. 21.

† Lapathus, a city in Crete, described,
vii. 486.

† Lapitæ, where situate, vi. 16.

† Lapytæ, one of the four parts of Cyprus, vii. 490.

† Lares in Numidia, described, xvii.
546.

† Larissa, a city in Thessaly, vi. 16.

— restored to Zeno, xvi. 289. Taken by Theodoric, xix, 117, 181. By the Bulgarians, 413.

† Larissus, a river in Arcadia, vii. 14, n.

Lartius, T. chosen dictator, xi. 412.
Numbers the people, 414. Defeats the Latins, ib. & seq. Mild usage of them,
417, 418.

VOL: XX,

Lascaris, Theod. sides with the usurper
Angelus, xvi. 502. Erects the Nicean empire, 505. Success against the Turks,
508. Death, 509. See also vol. xviii.
307, 308.

— the son of Vataces, defeats the Bulgarians, xvi. 512. His death, 513.

— John his hard fate, xvi. 517. xviii.
309, 311. & seq.

Lasar, a shrub, described, ix. 254, 255, n.
Its gum described, xviii. 66, 67.

Lasthenes, his character, ix. 116, & n.
Cruelties, 126.

— Inthrones young Nicator, x. 176, n.

† Lateran, the Basilica of why so called,
xiv. 336.

— palace, given to the pope, xv.
377.

Lateranus, Paul. restored by Nero, xiv.
173.

— Plaut. conspires against him, xiv.
236, 237.

Laterensis, M. Jun. brave death, and reward, xiii. 194, 195, & seq.

† Lathon, river, where, xviii. 66.

† Latialis, Jupiter, the temple of, xi.
368.

Latiaris's treachery and punishment, xiii.
661, 662.

Laticlavium, at Rome, what, xi. 344, n.

Latins, invaded by Tullus, xi. 332. By Ancus, 335. By Tarquin, 340. Outwit-
ted, 368. Engage against the Romans, 408,
& seq. 411, & seq. Defeated, 417, & seq.
By Camillus, 590. By Quinctus, 610.
Join the Campanians, 653. Defeated, 660.
& seq. Their punishment, 662.

Latinus invites the Trojans, xi. 277.
Killed, 278.

— the son of Telephus, king of Mysia, v. 569.

† Latium, old and new, described, xi. 260,
261. Its old inhabitants, 266. Subdued
by the Romans, 661, & seq.

† Latomæ the prison of, vii. 145, & seq.

Latona, where delivered, vii. 600, 608.

— the oracle of, in Egypt, i. 565.

† Latopolis, antient city of Thebais, i.
488.

Latos, a fish of the Nile, described, i. 502.

Laver of the Jewish tabernacle described,
iii. 316. & seq.

Lavinia delivered in a wood, xi. 281.

Lavinium, Æneas's camp so called, xi.
278. Given to Lavinia, 282.

Laurence's surprising constancy paralleled,
x. 526, n.

Laurendians punished by Perdiccas, viii.
365.

U † Lauriacum,

chæans, 654. Reimbursed by the Roman senate, 670.

Lacædemonians speech to the Athenians, viii. 58. Join with the Macedonians, 63. Against the Olynthians, 71. Succour the Carthaginians, xii. 126. Rewarded by Augustus, xiii. 391.

† Lacetani, cut in pieces by Scipio, xvii. 378.

Laches finishes the Colossus, vii. 400, n.

† Lacinium, where sited, xvii. 341, n.

Laco, a favourite of Galba, xiv. 305, 308. His character, 309. Promotes Piso's interest 219. Put to death by Otho, 331.

† Lacobriga, where sited, xii. 597. Besieged by Metellus, ib. & seq.

† Laconia, part of antient Greece, v. 604. Antient name of Lacedemon, vi. 45. Its site, extent &c. 47. Government, 51. & seq. Invaded by the Athenians, 238. Divided by Lycurgus, 384. Plundered by Conon, v. 181. By the helotes, vi. 454.

† Laconic, gulph, and its illes, vii. 632.

— style, what, vi. 390.

† Lactodorum, antient Bedford, xviii. 662.

Lacumaces, set on the Massilian throne, xviii. 573. Submits to Masinissa, 574.

† Lade the illes of vii. 567.

† — the sea fight of vii. 563.

Ladice, a pretended miracle on her wedding, ii. 71, 72.

Ladies, Roman, whence their privileges, xi. 572. A number of them turn poisoners, xii. 5, & seq. Others save their husbands, xiii. 226.

— One thousand four hundred severely taxed by the Triumvirs, xiii. 235.

† Ladoga, the lake of, described, v. 443.

Lælius sent to ravage Afric, xii. 276. Defeats Syphax, 284. Brings him prisoner, to Rome, 286. Defeats Asdrubal, xvii. 471. Interview with Masinissa, 475. Burns the Numidian camp, 483. Bravery at the battle of Zama, 493. Success before Carthage, 534.

Lætus conspires against Commodus, xv. 67. Raises Pertinax to the throne, 70, 71. Revolts against him, 77. Put to death, 92.

— Severus's general, reduces Mesopotamia, xv. 103. Treachery to the emperor, 106. Death, ib. & seq.

— the adviser of Geta's murder put to death, xv. 129.

† Læves where settled in Italy, xi. 576. xviii. 544.

Levinus, admiral, against the Macedonians, xii. 235. Saves Tarentum, 240.

Surprises their camp, 242. Success against the Carthaginians, 269. Against the Macedonians, 296.

Lævius's ill success against the Epirots, ix. 556. Answer to Pyrrhus's letter, 553.

Lageion the order of, whence, ix. 176.

† Lagerlum, where situate, xviii. 668.

Lagides, the surname of the Ptolemies, ix. 176.

Lagodus driven out of Spain, xvi. 166.

Lagus his extract, ix. 175. Whether the father of Ptolemy, ib.

Lais, an extravagant Corinthian harlot, vi. 37, n.

† Laish, city, destroyed by the Danites, iii. 489.

Laius, the father of Oedipus, v. 668, & seq.

— king of Elis his reign, vi. 74.

Lakes, worshipped by the Gauls, xviii. 454, & n. & 456, 457, n.

Lamachus sent into Sicily, vii. 129. Killed before Syracuse 194.

— governor of Heraclea, betrays it to Mithridates, ix. 420, & n. See also vol. vi. 285, 296, 299.

† Lamalmon, the famed mountain of, described, xviii. 96.

Lamb, paschal, how and why instituted, iii. 188, & n.

— daily sacrifice ceased, x. 609.

Lambs, the computation by, uncertain, x. 574, n.

Lamech, the fifth in descent from Cain, i. 233.

— the father of Noah, i. 236, & i. 253.

† Lamia besieged by the Macedonians, vii. 45. Surrendered to the Romans, ib.

— Ælius's death and character, xiv. 16. The cause of it, 491. A concubine of Demetrius, viii. 421.

— the story of, xviii. 186, n.

Lamiscus, king of the Lombards, xix. 376. Success against the Bulgarians, 378.

Lampeto, queen of the Amazons, v. 465, n.

Lampo's cruelty to the Jews, xiv. 676. Turns evidence against them, 682.

Lampridius's account of the Persian war, xi. 79, n. His character, &c. xv. 320, n.

— an enemy to Sylvanus, punished, xv. 470.

Lampfacians outwit Alexander, v. 563.

† Lampfacum in Mysia, by whom built, v. 563.

— taken from the Athenians, vi. 321.

† Land of Promise, described, iii. 97. & seq. Its site and boundaries, 101. Divided, among the Israelites, 103. &c. Its natural natural and artificial rarities, 135, to 148.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Why so altered for the worse, 132. & seq.
Lands, how divided by Lycurgus, vi. 384.
Language, how confounded at Babel, i. 439,
& seq. The number and confusion of them,
443. See also Speech i. 427, to 434.

Langarus's kindness to Alexander, viii.
146, 147.

Langians, taken and massacred, xii. 362,
363.

† Langobriga, a city in Lusitania, xviii.
327.

† Langres, revolts from Galba, xiv. 334,
335. New-colonied by the Franks, xv. 305.

Laodamus's ill success against the Epigoni, v. 671.

Laodice, married to Perseus, viii. 498.

— the wife of Antiochus poisons him,
viii. 588. & seq.

— of Mithridates, her lewdness punished, ix. 387.

— of Orophernes, her cruelty punished,
ix. 467.

† Laodicea, in Seleucis, where sited,
ii. 264.

† — the capital of Laodicene, ii. 264.

† — in Media, described, iv. 447.

In Phrygia, v. 494. Famed for its wool,
ib. Destroyed, 495, & n.

† — by whom built, viii. 566. Declares for Niger, xv. 99. Plundered, ib.
Taken by Alexius, xvi. 483. By his son, 486.

Laodiceans, receive Dolabella, xiii. 211.
Besieged by Cassius, 212. Betrayed by Quintius, 213. How used by the conqueror, ib.

† Laodicene, a province in Syria, &c. ii.
264.

Laomedon, the son of Ilus, v. 545.
Builds the citadel of Troy, 547. His reign, &c. ib. & seq.

† Laons, river in Macedon, viii. 21.

† Lapathus, a city in Crete, described,
vii. 486.

† Lapitæ, where situate, vi. 16.

† Lapytæ, one of the four parts of Cyprus, vii. 490.

† Lares in Numidia, described, xvii.
546.

† Larissa, a city in Thessaly, vi. 16.

— restored to Zeno, xvi. 289. Taken by Theodoric, xix, 117, 181. By the Bulgarians, 413.

† Larissus, a river in Arcadia, vii. 14, n.

Lartius, T. chosen dictator, xi. 412.
Numbers the people, 414. Defeats the Latins, ib. & seq. Mild usage of them,
417, 418.

VOL. XX.

Lascaris, Theod. sides with the usurper
Angelus, xvi. 502. Erects the Nicean empire, 505. Success against the Turks,
508. Death, 509. See also vol. xviii.
307, 308.

— the son of Vataces, defeats the Bulgarians, xvi. 512. His death, 513.

— John his hard fate, xvi. 517. xviii.
309, 311. & seq.

Lasar, a shrub, described, ix. 254, 255, n.
Its gum described, xviii. 66, 67.

Lasthenes, his character, ix. 116, & n.
Cruelties, 126.

— Inthrones young Nicator, x. 176, n.

† Lateran, the Basilica of why so called,
xiv. 336.

— palace, given to the pope, xv.
377.

Lateranus, Paul. restored by Nero, xiv.
173.

— Plaut. conspires against him, xiv.
236, 237.

Laterensis, M. Jun. brave death, and reward, xiii. 194, 195, & seq.

† Lathon, river, where, xviii. 66.

† Latialis, Jupiter, the temple of, xi.
368.

Latiaris's treachery and punishment, xiii.
661, 662.

Laticlavium, at Rome, what, xi. 344, n.

Latins, invaded by Tullus, xi. 332. By Ancus, 335. By Tarquin, 340. Outwit-
ted, 368. Engage against the Romans, 408,
& seq. 411, & seq. Defeated, 417, & seq.
By Camillus, 590. By Quinctus, 610.
Join the Campanians, 653. Defeated, 660.
& seq. Their punishment, 662.

Latinus invites the Trojans, xi. 277.
Killed, 278.

— the son of Telephus, king of Mysia, v. 569.

† Latium, old and new, described, xi. 260,
261. Its old inhabitants, 266. Subdued
by the Romans, 661, & seq.

† Latomia the prison of, vii. 145, & seq.

Latona, where delivered, vii. 600, 608.

— the oracle of, in Egypt, i. 565.

† Latopolis, antient city of Thebais, i.
488.

Latos, a fish of the Nile, described, i. 502.

Laver of the Jewish tabernacle described,
iii. 316. & seq.

Lavinia delivered in a wood, xi. 281.

Lavinium, Æneas's camp so called, xi.
278. Given to Lavinia, 282.

Laurence's surprising constancy paralleled,
x. 526, n.

Laurendians punished by Perdiccas, viii.
365.

U

† Lauriacum,

I N D E X to the

† Lauriacum, metropolis of Noricum Ripense, xiii. 407, n.

Laureon, taken and burnt by Sertorius, xii. 605. & seq.

Law, the sacred volume of, how kept, iii. 300. Found in Josiah's reign, iv. 165.

—— sacred what, xii. 43.

Laws, how enacted at Athens, vi. 138.

—— the body of, received at Rome, xi. 520, & seq.

—— three forced by the soldiers on the senate, xi. 652. Others by the plebeians, 662.

Law-suits, how carried on at Athens, vi. 144, & seq. Discouraged by Lycurgus, 393. How managed in Macedon, viii. 28, & seq.

Lawyers, suppressed by Valentinian, xv. 590.

Lazarus sups with Christ, x. 477. Raised from the dead, 482, & n.

† Lazi inhabit Cholchis, xi. 137. Invite Cosrhoes. 138. The Romans, 143. Enslaved by both, 145. Submit to Antoninus, xiv. 666. Revolt to the Persians, xvi. 311. To the Romans, 313. Abandoned by them, 315. Treachery to Heraclius, 338.

† Lazica, its situation, government, &c, xvi. 311.

Leah, given to Jacob, ii. 438. Her offspring by him, 439, & seq.

Leander, Nicanor, his writings and character, xiv. 655, n.

† Lebados, by whom founded, v. 659. The antient state of it, vii. 109.

† Lebanon, the famed forest of, iii. 120.

† Lecheum, one of Corinth's sea-ports, vi. 36.

Lectisternium, appointed at Rome, xi. 568. How performed, 623.

Lectorius, C. speech to the plebeians, xi. 482.

Lecumo's treachery to his guardian, xi. 338.

Leda, her fabulous offspring, vi. 58, n.

Leæna the Athenian courtesan's amazing constancy, vi. 167.

† Legion, the great plain of, iii. 117, 118.

—— whence so called, xi. 302, n.

—— Roman, how composed, xiii. 518, n.

Legions, Roman, the state of, xv. 161.

† Lehabim, who, and where, i. 464.

† Leleges, whether antient Greeks, v. 607.

Lemigius, murdered for extortion, xix. 523.

Lemnian men sacrifice to Juno, vii. 613. Murdered by their wives, 618.

Lemnian women turn amazons, v. 634, vii. 613.

† Lemnos, isle, inhabited by Amazons, vi. 20, n. How taken by the Athenians, 191, n. Described, vii. 613.

—— the labyrinth of, vii. 615.

—— antient inhabitants, vii. 615. Government, 618. Plundered by the Heruli, xv. 247. Taken by the Saracens, xvi. 405.

† Lena, river, in Scythia, v. 441.

† Lens the battle of, when fought, xix. 261.

Lent, marriages forbid during, xvi. 41. And executing of criminals, 86.

† Lentientes defeated in Gaul, xvi. 27. Submit to Gratian, 28.

Lentuli accompany Pompey in his flight, xiii. 70.

Lentulus, Corn. chosen dictator, xii. 26. Defeats the Samnites, 27, & seq. Commands in Spain, 275. Opposes the Carthaginian, peace, 293. Defeats the Campanian slaves, 617, &c. Chosen Censor, 621.

—— Sura, chosen consul, xii. 618. In Cataline's conspiracy, 630. Seized, 636. Put to death, 638.

—— Lucius's fatal piety to Pompey, xiii. 77.

—— Publ. friendship to Brutus, xiii. 209.

—— Cneius, goes into Pannonia, xiii. 512. Insulted, 514. Falsely accused, 637. Acquitted, ib. His death, 648.

Leo, king of Sparta, vi. 428.

—— a cruel colleague of Maximin, xv. 595. His death, 598.

—— Eutropius's tool, defeated and killed, xvi. 140.

—— pope, sent ambassador to Attila, xvi. 251. His character of Martian, 265. See vol. xix. 91.

—— I. proclaimed emperor, xvi. 265. Peace with the Ostrogoths, 266. Embassy to Marcellinus, 270. To Genseric, ib. Vast fleet against him, 274. Betrayed by Basiliscus, 276. Promotion of Zeno, 277. Flattery and cruelty to Aspar, 278. Dies, 281.

—— the son of Zeno, made Cæsar, xvi. 281. Dies, ib.

II. sent against the Saracens, xvi. 357. Success against Theodosius, ib. & seq. Proclaimed emperor, 358. Edict against images, 360. Deserted by the Romans, 361. Dies, 364.

—— III. proclaimed, xvi. 366. Promotes his uncle, ib. Severity against idol and image worshippers, 369. Dies, 370.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Leo IV. success against the Saracens, xvi. 380. Proclaimed, 381. Cruelty to Michael and his family, 382. Victory over the Bulgarians, ib. Zeal against image-worship, ib. Murdered at the altar, 383.

—— the son of Michael made Cæsar, xvi. 400. Outwitted by a monk, 401. Released by means of a parrot, 402. His excellent character, 403. Causes a schism in the church, 404. Invaded by the Saracens, 405. His death, character, and writings, 408.

—— Zoe's general's treason and death, xvi. 411.

—— bishop, his golden machine melted, xvi. 397.

—— Arcadius's general, defeated and killed, xix. 148.

—— the compiler of the Theodorician laws, xix. 171, & n.

—— emperor defeated by Genferic, xix. 215.

—— Phocas, defeated by the Bulgarians, xix. 407.

—— Moroleon's noble defence of Adrianople, xix. 409. Tortured to death, ib.

—— Melissænus betrayed by Stephen, xix. 413, 414.

Leon, king of Lydia, v. 580.

—— surprises Acradina, vii. 291. Noble defence of Syracuse, xvii. 129.

† —— a city in Sicily, described, vii. 368, n.

Leonatus rescues Alexander from the Malli, viii. 316. His post after his death, 359. Succours Antipater, 425. Killed, 426.

Leonidas's expedition against Xerxes, vi. 437, & seq. Noble answer to him, v. 136. vi. 440. Gallant death, v. 137. vi. 441. His body abused by Xerxes, v. 139. vi. 441.

—— II. inlets luxury into Sparta; vi. 519. Deposed, 522. Restored, 524.

—— Alexander's tutor, viii. 140. Commands the turbulent cohort, 183.

Leonorius settled in Galatia, xviii. 550.

Leontifera, an Heracleian ship so named, ix. 583.

Leontines come into Sicily, vii. 159. Oppressed by the Syracusans, 186. Peace with them, 187. Broken, 356.

† Leontini, a city in Sicily described, vii. 142. Taken by the Romans, 357.

† —— the lake of, described, vii. 142.

Leontia, crowned empress, xvi. 329. Her character, 330.

Leontidas, branded by Xerxes, v. 139, n.

—— head of the Ionian faction, vi. 277.

† Leontium, reduced by Timoleon, xviii. 134.

Leontius's treachery to the Achæans, vi. 587, & seq. To Aratus, 588, & seq. Forgiven, 590. Raises a tumult at Corinth, 591.

—— bishop's indiscreet zeal against Eusebia, xv. 484.

—— the Chalcidian revolts from Zeno, xvi. 289. Defeated, ib. Besieged four years in Palmyra, 290. Dies. ib. & seq.

—— a patrician, imprisoned by Justinian, xvi. 351. Deposes him, 352. Proclaimed, ib. & seq. Success against the Saracens, ib. Deposed, defaced, and imprisoned, ib. Put to death, 354.

—— treason, and defeat, xix. 181.

—— speech to the Franks, xix. 451, n.

† Leopards, the mountains of, in Judea, i. 359.

Leosthenes defeats Antipater, vi. 364, & seq. Killed before Lamia, 365.

—— zeal for democracy, viii. 425. Success and death, ib.

Leotychides I. chosen king of Sparta, vi. 176. End the Persian war, v. 148. vi. 210, & seq.

—— II. crowned, vi. 431. Victory at Mylate, 448. Dies in exile, 453.

—— the son of Agis excluded, vi. 480,

† Lephrium, the famed grove of, v. 595.

Lepida Æmilia, banished, xiii. 607.

—— Domitia, her character, xiv. 163. Put to death by Agrippina, ib.

—— the wife of Cassius condemned, xiv. 254, 255.

Lepidus, made guardian to Ptolemy Epiphanes, ix. 5, & 9, & n.

—— M. Æmil. chosen first consul, xii. 588. Falls out with his colleague, 590. Twice defeated, 591, & seq. Dies in Sardinia, 592.

—— Jun. Brut. chosen consul, xiii. 86. Sent against the conspirators, 149. Allies with M. Antony, 162. His character, 193. Outwitted by him, 194. Proscribed, 197. Interview with him, and Octavian, 219, & seq. Joined in the triumvirate, 221, & seq. Arbitrary triumph, 234. Consulship, 238. Sent into Afric, 318. Indolence there, 327. Lands at Lilybæum, 333. Jealous of Octavian, 336. Deposed by him, 340, & n.

—— Quint. Æmil. forces himself into the consulship, xiii. & 390, & 391, n. Refuses the proconsulship of Afric, 610.

—— Manius's death and character, xiv. 16.

I N D E X to the

Lepidus debauches Caligula's sister, xiv. 75, & n. Put to death, ib.
 † Lepontii, where seated, xi. 255, 256.
 Leprosy, defiling among the Jews, iii. 376. Various kinds of it, ib. n. How, and by whom cured, 378.
 Leptines, admiral of Dionysius, vii. 237. Sinks five Carthaginian ships, 238. Defeated by Mago, 240. Fatal generosity, 250. Death and character, 258, & seq. Commands the Sicilian fleet, xvii. 81. Inroads against Entella, 85. Success against Mago, 88. Defeated by him, 94. Slain at Cronion, 115.
 Leptines, tyrant of Leontium, submits to Timoleon, xvii. 133.
 ——— of Engya, deposed by Timoleon, vii. 293.
 † Leptis, besieged by the Efturians, xv. 581. Treachery to the Tripolitans punished, 582.
 † ——— greater and lesser, described, xvi. 581.
 † Lerida, taken by the Suevi, xvi. 235. xix. 227.
 † Leros, island described, vii. 567.
 † Lesbians, their extract, vii. 552. Government, kings, &c. 553, & seq. Subdued by the Mitylenians, 554. Persians, 555. Polycrator, 522. Treachery to the Ionians, 537. Various fates, ib. & seq.
 † Lesbos island described, vii. 549. Its first inhabitants, 552. Famed wines, ib. Subject to the Trojans, v. 531. Revolts from the Athenians, vi. 273.
 Lesbus, first king of Lesbos, vii. 553.
 Leta, king of the Lombards, xix. 376, 379.
 † Letes, who and where sited, xix. 247.
 Letters, the first inventors of, iii. 445, n. & seq. n.
 ——— Coptic, whether the antient Egyptian, i. 593, & n.
 † Leucadia, peninsula, described, vii. 95. Betrayed to the Romans, ib.
 Leucanor, king of Bosphorus, killed, ix. 623.
 † Leucas, island, described, xiii. 356. Taken by Agrippa, ib.
 ——— capital of Acarnania, vii. 93, & n. Taken by Leucas, 95.
 † Leuci, mountains in Crete, described, vii. 465.
 Leucippus, author of the atomic system, i. 113.
 ——— king of Rhodes, vii. 553.
 Leucomoniés in Etruria, what, xi. 274, & seq.
 Leucon I. and II. kings of Bosphorus, ix. 820.

Leucopetra, the battle of, vi. 666.
 † Leucophris. See Tenedos, v. 527.
 † Leuctra, a city in Lacedæmon, vi. 50. The battle of, 500.
 Levi, born to Jacob, ii. 440. His horrid slaughter of the Shechemites, 453, & seq. His father's curse, how fulfilled, 485, n.
 ——— the sons of, obtain the priesthood for their zeal, ii. 620, & seq. Why they had no inheritance, iii. 32. Their number, upon entering into Canaan, ib.
 ——— the evangelist, why called Matthew, x. 439, n. Vindicated against Porphyry, &c. ib. Made an apostle, 444, n.
 Levirate, among the Jews, what, iii. 352, & n.
 Levites, how provided for, iii. 239, & seq. Their three chief branches, 351. Consecration, dress, &c. 275. Revenue and privileges, 277, & seq. White garments, x. 572.
 Leunigil, king of the Visigoths in Gaul, xix. 118.
 Leutharis heads the Franks into Italy, xix. 506. His army destroyed, 508.
 † Lexovii, subdued by Cæsar, xiii. 19. xviii. 559.
 † Liba, where situate, viii. 605, n.
 Libanius's account of the surprising constancy of some christian martyrs, x. 526, n. His writings and character, ib. & seq. Account of the turbulent Franks, xv. 434. Of Julian in Germany, 476. Elegy on Nicomedia, 489. Silenced by Constantius, 523. Speech in favour of Antioch, 540. Character of Julian, 552. Speech to Valens, 626. Partial Apology for Theodorus, xvi. 2. Narrow escape, 6. Invectives against Theodosius, 61.
 † Libanus, mount, why so called, i. 158. Its cedars, &c. ii. 266, & seq.
 Libellers, Arcadius's law against, xvi. 161.
 Liberalia, the festival of, xiii. 124, n.
 Liberius pope's reproof to Eusebia, xvi. 454. Banishment, 469.
 ——— sent to relieve Syracuse, xix. 497.
 Libertem heads the Bulgarians in Thrace, xix. 392.
 Liberti, made citizens at Rome, xi. 362. Reduced into four tribes, xii. 189.
 † Liberty, the chapel of, at Rome, when built, xii. 148.
 † Libicii, where sited, xi. 355.
 Libitina, the goddess, her temple, xi. 357.
 Libna revolts from Jehoram, iv. 103.
 Libo, C. Petilius's success in Samnium, xii. 34.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Libo, Luc. Scribon. sent to the triumvirs, xiii. 319. His extract, 563. Tried for high treason, ib. & seq. Kills himself, 565. Condemned, 566.

— death in Syria, xv. 11. His widow married to Severus's freedman, ib.

Library of the capitol, destroyed by lightning, xv. 62.

† Libya, when first invaded, xviii. 38, & seq. Why so called, 82. Destroyed by an Earthquake, xv. 537.

† Libyans, their territories, xvii. 564. How distinguished, ib. When first incorporated with the Africans, 572. Civilized by Dido, xviii. 35, 36. Their customs, &c. 80, & 156, n. Two hundred thousand massacred by the Jews, xiv. 591. Their odd way of trading with the Carthaginians, xvi. 673. War with them, xvii. 283. Imprison their general, 290. March against Utica, ib. & seq. Defeated, 299. Cruelty to the Carthaginians, 302. Dreadful condition, 306. Dismal end, 307.

† Libyans, of Marmorica, described, xviii. 60.

† Libya, in Bithynia, described, ix. 590.

Lice, the plague of, in Egypt, ii. 564. Why out of the power of their magicians, ib. & seq.

Liches, a Spartan, carries off Orestes's bones, vi. 12, 13, n.

Licina's pathetic speech to Gracchus, xii. 414. Deprived of her dowry, 418.

Licinianus Perpenna's revolt quelled, xv. 222.

— the son of Licinius, chosen Cæsar, xv. 391.

— sent ambassador to Euric, xix. 167.

Licinius Calvus, chosen military tribune, xi. 568.

— Stolo's bold attempt against the patricians, xi. 611, & seq. Speech to the plebeians, 613. Opposes the dictator, 615. Chosen consul, 622.

— P. Crassus, sent against the Macedonians, xii. 320. Defeated, 321. Defeats them, ib.

— L. Lucul. defeats the Sicilian slaves, xii. 499. Banished for extortion, 500.

— Sextus, murdered by Marius, xii. 544.

— Mucianus, his writings, xiv. 452, n.

— Ligurius, Q. saved by his faithful wife, xiii. 226. His death, ib.

— marries Constantine's sister, xv. 316, 381. Chosen emperor, 353. His extract, &c. ib. & seq. Chosen consul, 357. Present at Galerius's death, 361. Marches against Maximin, ib. & 385. Joins Constantine at Milan, 381. His vision and prayer, ib. Complete victory, ib. & seq. Reception in Bithynia, 386. Edict in favour of the christians, ib. Severity to Galerius's family, 387. First war with Constantine, 388. Defeat, 389. Second war, 395. Totally defeated, 396. Superstitious speech to the army, ib. Defeated at sea, 397. New peace broken, ib. & seq. Defeat and death, 398.

Licinius Constantine, nephew put to death, xv. 403.

— Priscus, sent into Britain, xviii. 706.

Lictors, first chosen by Romulus, xi. 294, & n.

Lights, the feast of, among the Jews, x. 36, n.

Ligoras's stratagem at the siege of Sardis, viii. 619, n.

† Liguria, described, xi. 257. & seq. Made a Roman province, xii. 178. Plundered by Attila, xvi. 250. Ravaged by the Burgundi, xix. 313.

† Ligurians, Ligures, their origin, xi. 270. Defeated by the Romans, xii. 160, 161. By Thermus, 304. Subdued by Flaminius, 310. By Sempronius, 319.

— Comati, subdued by the Romans, xiii. 410.

† Ligyes, who and whence, xi. 270.

† Lilea, a city in Doris, vi. 85.

Lilith, the Jews tradition concerning her, i. 224, n.

† Lilybeum, the cape of, in Sicily, vii. 138.

† — the city of described, vii. 150, 316. The poetic well of, 150. The long siege of, xii. 135. Turned into a blockade, 142. Brave defence against Dionysius, xvii. 117. Against Pyrrhus, 206, & seq. Against the Romans, 270. Against the Carthaginians, 365.

† Limigantes, among the Sarmatians, who, xv. 486. Driven out of Sarmatia, 490. Treachery to Constantius, 491. Cut off, ib. See also vol. xix. 363. 365.

† Lindian, Minerva, her temple, vii. 397, n.

† Lindum, Lincoln, metropolis of the Coritani, xviii. 664.

† Lindus, an antient city of Rhodes described, vii. 395.

Lingones, made free of Rome, xiv. 343.

Linteatâ legio, what and whence, xii. 68.

Lions

I N D E X to the

Lions first fought in the Circus, xii. 544.
 Forbid to be hunted for shews, xvi. 195.

† Lions, the city of. See Lyons, xiii. 196, n.

† Lipara in Tuscany, by whom built, v. 660. Its situation, xvii. 89, n. Taken by Hamilco, ib. By the Romans, 68.

† Lipari, island, described, vii. 156. Seized by the Carthaginians, xvii. 364.

Liparites's success against the Turks, xvii. 451. Taken prisoner, ib. Honourably dismissed, ib.

† Lippe, Lupia river in Germany, xviii. 592.

† Lisbon, taken by the Suevi, xvi. 268. Betrayed by Remismond, 277. See vol. xix. 230.

† Lifians, who and where sited, xvi. 246.

Litorius's success against the Goths, xvi. 223, 225. Defeated and killed, ib. His character, ib. & seq. See also vol. xix. 157.

Lityerses, king, his strange character, v. 517.

Livia married to Octavian, xviii. 328, & n. Suspected of the death of Marcellus, 387. Of Lucius, 440. Of Caius, 444. For the banishment of Agrippa, 448. Of poisoning Octavian, 475. Her new names, honours, &c. 477, 478. Prostituted to Sejanus, 626. Incensed against Agrippina, 631. Her death and character, 666.

—— the portico of, why so called, xiii. 410. The temple of, dedicated, 426.

Livian family, an account of, xiii. 498, n.

Livilla, the daughter of Drusus, xiii. 421.

—— the wife, brought to-bed of two sons, xiii. 594. Her death, 681.

—— sister of Caligula. See Julia, xiv. 43, n.

Livisa, slain by Theodoric, xix. 186.

Livius defeats Antiochus, ix. 30. Success in the Hellespont, 31. Succeeded by Æmilius, 32.

—— Andronicus turns satires into regular plays, xi. 623. His extract, works, &c. xii. 157.

—— Salinator reduces Illyricum, xii. 180. Tried and condemned, ibid. Revenge on the tribes, ib. Chosen consul against Asdrubal, 269.

—— Drusus, set to undermine Gracchus, xii. 405, & seq.

—— Caius, betrayed by the Tarentines, xvii. 430. Escapes drunk into the citadel, 431.

† Lixus in Mauritania described, xvii. 6. The same with Tingis, ib.

† —— the river of, xviii. 7, 13.

† Locha, taken by Scipio, xii. 279.

Locharis seizes the sovereignty of Athens, vi. 375. Deposed by Demetrius, ibid.

† Lochore, the frith of, xiv. 475. The battle of, ib. &c.

Lockman, a Persian philosopher's character and writings, v. 290, & seq. The same with Esop, 291, 292, & n. & seq. n.

—— king of the Adites, xviii. 216.

—— the famed Arab fabulist, xviii. 249, n.

† Locri city relieved by Hannibal, xii. 268. Taken by Scipio, 277. Surrendered to Hannibal, xvii. 408. Besieged by Clusius, 455. Taken by Scipio, 477.

† Locris, part of antient Greece, v. 604. How divided, vi. 82. Plundered by the Athenians, 238. Invaded by the Phocians, 488.

Locusta poisons Claudius, xiv. 164. Executed, 310.

Locusts, the plague of, in Egypt, ii. 568. Pernicious in Persia, &c. iv. 547. How destroyed, ib. & 548, & n. The food of the Ethiopians, xviii. 130. How caught, ib. Why so unwholesome, ib. & n.

Lodbrng, king, his requiem before his death, xviii. 603, n.

Lollia, Paulina, married to Regulus, xiii. 433. To Caligula, xiv. 57. Her great beauty, ib. & n. Proposed to Claudius, 140. Put to death by Agrippina, 144. & n.

Lollius, a Samnite revolts from the Romans, xii. 93.

—— M. refuses the consulship, xiii. 390. Defeated by the Germans, 403. Commands under Caius, 433. His disgrace and death, 436.

—— Urbic. his success in Britain, xiv. 668. Works, ib. & xviii. 707, & n.

—— Spurius, proclaimed in Gaul, xv. 246. His rise, death, &c. ib.

Lombards, their origin, &c. xix. 374. Why so called, 376. Wars with the Gepidæ, 337, & seq. Settle in Pannonia, 376. Their character, kings, &c. ib. Success against the Vandals, 377. In Gothland, 378. Against the Heruli, 379. Gepidæ, ib. Settlement in Pannonia, 380. Success and conquests, 384. Begin a kingdom,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Kingdom, 386. Split it into dukedoms, 390. Why, ib. Chuse a new king, 391. Their language, 396, n. Break into Gaul, 510. Defeated by Ennius, ib. Fall out with the Saxons, ib. Chuse Autharis their king, 512. Renounce Arianism, 518, 545. Success against the Romans, 540, & seq. The end of their kingdom, 592. Their character, &c. vindicated, 593. Extent of their dominions, 594. Laws, see under Longobardian, 530, & seq. Their first invasion of Germany, xvi. 36. Kingdom in Italy, 320. Defeat of the Romans, 345. Oppose the Iconoclasts, 361.

† Londobris, an island in Lusitania, xviii. 232.

† London abandoned to the Britons, xiv. 210. Delivered by Constantius, xv. 304. Whether it belonged to the Cantii, xviii. 661. To the Trinobantes, 662. When founded, 663. Why called Augusta, ib. Restored by Theodosius, 715.

Longinus, Cass. sent governor into Judea, x. 563. Defeated in Gaul, xii. 485. Chosen consul, 512.

—— the tribune murdered, xiv. 326.

—— over-reached by Decebalus, xiv. 571. Poisons himself, ib.

—— the philosopher, his writings and character, xv. 270, n. And of the Mosaic book, 272, n.

—— the brother of Zeno, defeated, xvi. 289. Excluded the succession, 292. Raises new commotions, 294. Stripped and banished, 296.

—— Salonicus's revolt, and dreadful punishment, xvi. 294.

—— defeated by Leontius, xix. 181. Reception of Rosamund, 389. New government, ib. & seq. Defeated and recalled, 511.

† Longobardi, who and where, xviii. 580. xix. 374. Different from the Lombards, 375. Why called Vinili, ib. The rest see under Lombards.

Longobardian laws, when and by whom compiled, xix. 529, & 530, n. Corrected by Grimoald, 544. By Hildebrand, 571. By Astuph, 577.

† Lopadusa, island, described, xvi. 588, n.

† Lorgitæ, Ilorgitæ, who, and where, xvii. 341, n.

† Lorium, the palace of, by whom built, xiv. 665.

Lot, his extract, and adoption by Abraham, ii. 93. Parts from him, ib. Rescued by him from the Canaanites, ib. & seq.

Leaves sodom, 96. His wife's crime and punishment, ib. & n. Incest with his two daughters, 99, & seq.

† Lotophagi, who and where sited, xviii. 77. Why so called, ib. Their customs, &c. ib. & seq.

† Lotus, the plant of, plentiful in Egypt, i. 504. Described, ib. & xviii. 77, 78.

† Loventium, Toway in Wales, xviii. 667.

† Loutain, where situate, xvii. 542.

Lua, the goddess, whence so called, xi. 36, & n.

Lucan, the poet, conspires against Nero, xiv. 236. Informs against his own mother, &c. 240. His death and last words, 248, & n. Writings, 293, n.

† Lucania, described, xi. 263, 264. Laid waste by the Romans, ix. 553.

Lucanians, hired against the Thurians, vii. 250. Over-reached by the Samnites, xii. 10, 11. Defeated by the Romans, 83. Totally subdued, 91. xvii. 451, 466.

Lucas, banished by Constantine, xv. 411.

Lucceius, L. Hir. xiii. 3, & n. Excluded the consulship, ib.

—— the tribune's proposal, in favour of Pompey, xiii. 26, 28, & seq.

Luceres, whence so called, xi. 307.

† Luceria, taken by the Romans, xii. 28. Retaken and colonied, 33, 34. Destroyed by Constans, xix. 540.

Lucian's shameful exaggeration of a Roman victory, xv. 8. Character and writings, 43, n. Over-reached by Alexander, 44, n.

Lucianus's noble defence of Nisibis, xv. 439.

—— count, misrepresented to Arcadius, xvi. 120. Put to death, ib.

Lucilius's brave expedient to save Brutus, xiii. 278. Rewarded, 279.

—— a centurion murdered, xiii. 511.

Lucilla, born to M. Aurelius, xiv. 669. Married to L. Verus, xv. 4, 10. Suspected of poisoning him, 15. Married to Cl. Pompeian, 17.

—— sister of Commodus, ravished and murdered by him, xv. 53.

—— plots against Commodus, xv. 56. Banished, and put to death, 57.

Lucillianus sent ambassador to Sapor, xv. 486. Taken prisoner by Julian, 506. Commands his fleet, 543. Made general of Illyricum, 568. Murdered in Gaul, 572.

Lucina, Juno, why so called, xi. 357.

Lucius, Cæcil, defeated and killed xii. 82.

Lucius

- Lucius Caius, killed for incontinence, xii. 486.
- Domitius, chosen to succeed Cæsar, xiii. 38.
- Cæsar, chosen to intercede for the Romans, xiii. 99. Pardoned by Julius Cæsar, 105.
- Pinarius, one of Julius Cæsar's heirs, xiii. 154.
- Cæsar, condemned by the triumvirs, xiii. 221. Saved by his sister, 226. Pardoned by Antony, 297.
- the son of Agrippa, adopted by Augustus, xiii. 402. Bold demand of him, 426. Assumes the toga, 430. Dies at Marseilles, 440.
- brother of Vitellius, defamed by Otho, xiv. 347. Sumptuous banquet to him, 377. Sent against Vespasian, 398. Success against him, 404. Surrenders, 409. His death and character, ib.
- Quietus, extract and bravery, xiv. 583. Made governor of Palestine, ib. & 592. Defeats the Jews, 592. Deposed by Adrian, 614. Put to death, 616.
- Lucretia, ravished by Tarquin, xi. 375. Her death, 376.
- Lucretius, created interrex, xi. 379. Consul, 393.
- success against the Volsci, xi. 489. Speech against Q. Cæso, 492, 493.
- Lucullea, games so called, ix. 418.
- Lucullian coin, vii. 79.
- Lucullus, general in Greece, vii. 79.
- sent by Sylla into Egypt, ix. 256. Haughty message to Tigranes, 334. March into Armenia, 335. Success, 337, & seq. Against Mithridates, 341. Forsaken, and recalled, 345. Treachery to Fimbria, 404. To Mithridates, 412. Success against him, 415, & seq. Distresses him, 415, 420. Subdues Pontus, 425. Takes Amisus, 427. Sinope, 429, & n. Forfook by his army, 433. Returns to Rome, 436. See vol. xii. 613, 627, 632, & seq.
- Licinius's cruelty to the Turduli, xii. 335, & seq.
- Salust, put to death by Domitian, xiv. 491.
- Lud, the son of Shem, where settled, i. 458, 460, & seq. Whether the father of the Lydians, v. 570.
- a fabulous British king, xviii. 686, n.
- † Ludim people part of Abyssinia, i. 464.
- whether the Ethiopians, xviii. 92. Why so like them, 112.
- Luernius's famed sumptuous feast, xviii. 532, n.
- Lugdunenses rear a temple to Cæsar, xviii.
565. An altar to Augustus, xiii. 416.
- † Lugdunensis, Gallia, seized by the Burgundi, xix. 310.
- † Luguwallum, Carlisle, why so called, xviii. 670. Its antiquities, ib.
- † Luhith, a city of Moab, ii. 100.
- Luitbert, dethroned and murdered, xix. 548.
- Luitprand, spared by Aripert, xix. 549. Conspired against, 554. Rash courage and generosity, ib. New body of laws, 555, & n. Invades Ravenna, 557, & seq. Success, 561. (xvi. 360). Reconciled to the pope, xix. 567. Reception of him, 570. Death and character, ib. & seq.
- Lupa, alias Laurentia, why so called, xi. 284. Nurses Remus, &c. ib.
- Lupercalia, the festival of, xi. 284. Described, xiii. 132, & n.
- Lupercus's writings and character, xv. 250, n.
- Lupicinus, sent against the Scots, xv. 497. Arrested by Julian, 502. Sent against Procopius, 616.
- causes the Goths to revolt, xvi. 14. Defeated by them, 15.
- Lupus's ill success against the Caledonians, xv. 109, 116, & seq. xviii. 709. — bishop of Troyes, forced to abandon it, xix. 88. — duke of Friuli, revolts, 543. Defeated and killed, ib.
- Luscus, burnt alive, xv. 468.
- † Lusitania described, xviii. 325, 326. Its cities, 327, & seq. Promontories, &c. 331. Rivers, 332. Inhabited by the Celtiberi, 384. Seized by the Alans, xvi. 180. By the Suevi, 268.
- Lusitanians, defeated by the Romans, xii. 315. By Sempronius, 318. Defeat Mummius, 333. Treacherously used by Cæpio, 364, & seq. Conquered, 366. By Brutus, 370. Make Sertorius their general, 595. Form a republic, 597. Civilized by him, 598. pass. Over-reached by Cæsar, xiii. 127. Subdued by Cariscus, 376.
- † Lustrum, at Rome, what, xi. 361.
- Lusus, an antient king of Spain, xviii. 376.
- Lutatius, Catul. success in Sicily, xii. 151, & seq. Peace with Carthage, 154, & seq. See also vol. xvii. 279, & seq. & 325.
- Cerco's success in Hetruria, xii. 155.
- defection from Brennus, xviii. 548.
- Luterius, defeated by Cæsar, xiii. 33.
- a poet, condemned to death, xiii. 613, 614.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Lutian youths punished by Scipio, xii. 373.
 Luxury, retrenched at Rome, xii. 427, 445. xiii. 566.
 Luz. See Bethel, ii. 437, 438. The meaning of that word, v. 570.
 Lybia, Lybiffa, Hannibal buried at, xvii. 512, n.
 † Lycæan Jupiter, and games, vi. 9.
 † Lycæum, at Athens, what, vi. 129.
 Lycaon, the fable of, vi. n. Second king of Arcadia, 9. His numerous issue, ib. & n. & seq. n.
 Lycaonia, made a Roman province, xiii. 377. Freed from the Persians, xv. 233. How divided by Valens, 626.
 Lycastes, king of Crete, vii. 472.
 † Lychnides, a city and lake in Macedon, viii. 11, 22.
 Lychnites, a Parian marble so called, vii. 589.
 † Lychus, a city in Crete, described, vii. 461.
 † Lycia, described, v. 589, & seq.
 † Lycians side with the Trojans, v. 553. Their origin, government, &c. 592, & seq. By whom subdued, 593. Why so called, vii. 472. Complaint against the Rhodians redressed, 443. Their freedom restored, 451. Invaded by Brutus, xiii. 246. Disfranchised by Claudius, xiv. 120, & n. By Vespasian, 441. Degraded by Rufinus, xvi. 97. Restored by Arcadius, ib.
 Lycomedes, king of Scyras, kills Theseus, vii. 610.
 Lycophron wars with Philip, viii. 87.
 † Lycopolites, a name in Egypt, so called, i. 564.
 Lycortas Achæan prætor's speech to the states, vi. 631. Revenges Philopemen's death, 637.
 † Lycosura, by whom built vi. 9.
 Lycurgus, infant prince of Nemea, killed by a serpent, v. 634.
 — king of Arcadia, vi. 11.
 — the Spartan lawgiver, refuses the crown, vi. 53, 579. New models the government, 54, & 381. His laws, 383, & seq. Approved by the Delphic oracle, 382. Why not written, 396. His death, honours, &c. 399.
 — a private man, chosen king of Sparta, vi. 539. Defeats the Macedonians, ib. The last king of Sparta, 540.
 — invades Messenia, vi. 588.
 † Lycus, the son of Pandion, king of Athens, v. 592.
 — the court of, vi. 145.
 † — the river of, different from the Marfyas, v. 498.

VOL. XX.

† Lycus, river in Assyria, iv. 197. In Armenia described, ix. 318.
 † Lydia, Described, v. 485, & seq. 570. Part of Asia Proper, 485. Its origin, 573. Government, soil, &c. 574, & seq. Revolts against Cræsus, 575, & n. Laws, customs, &c. 576. Kings, 578, & seq. Subdued by the Persians, 588, 589. Overrun with Goths, xix. 124.
 Lydians, first called Mæones, i. 460.
 Lydus, the son of Atis, i. 460. King of Lydia, v. 570, 579.
 Lysersus, father of Antenor, v. 542.
 † Lygians, Logiones, who, and where, xviii. 579. Defeated by Probus, xix. 194. Ally with the Suevi, 222.
 Lynceus, made king of Argos, v. 624.
 — why famed for his keen eyes, vi. 60.
 † — a mount in Arcadia, vi. 14. Pillar set upon it, ib.
 † Lyncesthy, who and where, viii. 14. Invaded by the Macedonians, 66.
 Lyons, in Gaul, by whom founded, xiii. 196, n. When burnt, xiv. 256, n. Declares for Vitellius, 338. Destroyed by Severus, xv. 106. Taken by the Vandals, xvi. 162. By the Burgundi, 265. Retaken by Majoranus, 268, 278. By the Burgundi, xix. 310.
 Lysander Spartan admiral's character, vi. 467. Victories, 319. Sets up thirty tyrants over Athens, 322, 471. Attempts, the sovereignty of Greece, 469. Defeats Conon, 321, 470. Dismantles Athens, 471. Outwitted by Pharnabazus, 474. Goes into Asia, 482, & seq. Raises fresh troubles, 485, & 485, n. Sent against the Phocians, 489. Killed, ib.
 — Spartan, ephorus's offers rejected, vi. 521.
 Lyfia, visited by Adrian, xiv. 619.
 Lyfias sent against the Jews, ix. 84. Defeated, 88. Seizes on Syria, ib. Defeated by Judas, 92. Afresh, 96, & seq. Assassinate Octavius, 100, & seq. Put to death, ib. See also vol. x. 129, & seq.
 Lyficles, defeated by Philip, viii. 119. Put to death, ib.
 † Lyfimachia, by whom built, viii. 465. Overturned, ib. Rebuilt. ix. 10.
 Lyfimachus tutor to Alexander, viii. 140. Post after his death, 359. Defends it against Seuthes, 363. Gains Thrace, 397. Success against Antigonus, 405, & seq. Against Demetrius, 412. Seizes on Macedon, 465. Poisons his eldest son, 466. Defeated and killed by Seleucus, ib.
 — governor of Jerusalem, x. 107. Extortions on the people, 108. Massacred, ibid.

X

Lyfimachus

Lyfimachus the brother of Apollodorus murders him, x. 213, 214.

Lyzandra, married to Agathocles, viii. 465. Persecuted by Arsinoe, 466.

Lyzanias, king of Chalcis, assists the Asmoneans, ix. 646. Put to death, ib.

M.

MAAKAH, the wife of king Rehoboam, iv. 85.

— daughter of Tolmai, married to David, iv. 13.

Mahaziah, Ahaz's son killed, iv. 140.

Macæ, who and where, xviii. 77. Their customs, &c. ib.

Macaon's strange prophecy and death, xiv. 51.

Macareus settles in Lesbos, vii. 553. His reign, &c. ib.

Maccabees, their victories, over the Syrians, ix. 84, 88, 96. Why so called, x. 125. Their wars, ib. & seq.

— the first and second book of, x. 96, n. & 126, n.

Macedo, who, ii. 8. viii. 3, 4, & n.

† Macedonia, denoted by the land of Chettim, i. 472, 473. Why so called, viii. 5, 4 & n. Described, 6. Its soil, richness, &c. 14. Antiquity, laws, &c. 25, & seq. Invaded by the Athenians, 95. By the Illyrians, 522. Subdued by the Romans, 523, & seq. Its new division, and government, 533, & seq. Various changes, since, ib. & seq. See also vol. xii. 333, & seq. Reduced by Andriscus, 346. Retaken by Metellus, 347. Taken from the senate, xiii. 547, & n. Plundered by the Huns, xix. 67.

— empire how divided after Alexander's death, viii. 358, 372.

Macedonians, originally Argives, viii. 25. Their laws, &c. 26, & seq. Religion, 31, & seq. Ignorance of sea affairs, 32. Months, 33. Coin, 35. Language, discipline, &c. 36, & seq. Encamping, fighting, 39, & seq. Kings, 43, & seq. Dependent on Persia, 52. Faithfulness to them, 53, & seq. Defeated by the Lyncesti, 66. Rewarded by Alexander, 333. Mutiny, ib. Frighted at an Eclipse, 514. Invade Persia, v. 213. Gain an immense booty, 214, & seq. War with Athens, vi. 347, & seq. Divided into two factions, 369.

Macedonius a hermit's noble speech to the Antiochian judges, xvi. 75.

— orthodox bishop of Constantinople, deposed, xvi. 300.

Macer's extortions and revolt in Afric, xiv. 315. Death, ib.

Macer Marcus's, success against Vitellius, xv. 351. Defeated and degraded, 355. Faithfulness to him, 382.

Machanidas defeated and killed, vi. 541, & seq.

Machphelah, purchased by Abraham, ii. 420. Abraham buried at, 424. And Isaac, 456.

† Macodana, where sited, xvi. 583.

† Macra, river, the boundary of Etruria, xi. 259.

Macrian legion, by whom raised, xiv. 315.

Macrianus defeated by the Franks, xix. 253. By Valentinian, 332. His death, ib.

Machæus, great conquests, xvii. 13, & n. Banishment, 14. Besieges Carthage, ib. Severity to his son, 16. Punished, 19.

— a magician, enemy to the Christians, xv. 227. Treachery to Valerian, 228. Rise and character, 236. Proclaimed emperor, ib. Success against the Goths, 239. Defeated and killed, 240.

— king of Germany submits to Julian, xv. 490. Narrow escape, 597. Peace with Valentinian, 606.

Macrinus aims at the empire, xv. 137. Murders Caracalla, ib. Chosen emperor, 139. His extract, &c. 140. Acknowledged by the senate, 142. Ill success in Parthia, 143. Wholesome laws, ib. Conspired against 144. Cowardice and flight, 147, 148. Death, 148. — Varus's success against the Germans, 160.

Macro seizes Sejanus, xiii. 674. Guards the emperor, xiv. 11. Treachery to Scaurus, 17. To Auruntius, 24. Murdered with his family by Caligula, 54.

Macrobian, why long-lived, xviii. 133. Their kings answer to Cambyfes, 153, 154.

Macrobius's writings and character, xvi. 210, n.

Macron's treachery to the king of Egypt, ix. 72, & n.

† Madai, plants Media, i. 471. The father of the Medes, iv. 445, & n. Of the Macedonians, 456, n.

† Madain, capitol of Persia, xi. 221. Beautified, 224.

† Madaura in Numidia, where sited, xvii. 548.

† Madeba, taken by Hyrcan, x. 198.

† Madian, in Arabia, xviii. 91. By whom founded, 207.

† Madrid, where sited, xviii. 349. & n.

† Madyes king of Scythia's conquests in Asia, v. 471.

Mæandrus's generosity to the Samians vii. 531

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

vii. 531, & seq. Invaded by Sylofon, 533. & seq. Retires to Sparta, 535. Forced to shelter at Samos, 536.

† Mœatæ, in Britain, where seated, xv. 116. Revolt, 119. Put to the sword, ib. Peace with Caracalla, 135. See vol. xviii. 671.

Mœnicepto, slain in Spain, xvii. 425.

Mænius, Spur. raises troubles at Rome, xi. 462. & seq. Attempts the sovereignty, 548. His accusation and death, ib. & 549.

Mæfia, conspires against Macrinus, xv. 146. Her character and issue, ib. Bravery, ib. Made a senatress, 152. Care for young Alexius, 154, 157.

† Mæfia, how divided, xv. 389, 390. Put to fire and sword, 230.

Magas's fifty years reign in Cyrenaica, xviii. 73.

† Magdala, where situate, x. 465.

Magdalen, Mary, converted by Christ, x. 477. Profusion blamed, 483. Present at the crucifixion, 512. Brings news of his resurrection, 520.

Mages, Magi, of Persia, their physiology, i. 139. Notions of the gods, and the world, 140. Enemies to idolatry, v. 35. Care of the elements, 42 & seq. Sect destroyed, 99. Religion, how old, 307, n. & seq. n.

— persecute the christians, xi. 93. Put a trick upon the king, 109. Decimated for it, ib. Cruelty to the christians, 110.

† — an island in Ethiopia, xviii. 107.

— from the east, come to Christ at Bethlehem, x. 343, & n. & seq. Presents to him, 349, n.

Magic, when, and how invented, i. 354, & n. Esteemed in Egypt, 584. Its founders according to Pliny, ii. 560, n. & seq. n.

Magicians of Egypt mimic some of Moses's miracles, ii. 559 & seq. & n. The vast disparity between them, ib. & 560, n.

Magilus conducts Hannibal over the Alps, xvii. 352.

Magister militum, his office xviii. 678.

Magistrates, how chosen by Tiberius, xiii. 503.

Magius's bold design against Hannibal, xii. 226. Bold speech against him, xvii. 392. Delivered up to him, ib.

Magentius conspires against Constans, xv. 441. Murders his friends, 443. Cruelties at Rome, 444. Deputies to Constantius, ib. Success against him, 447. Bold message to him, 448. Bloody witcheries, 449. Defeated, 450. Retires to Italy, 451. Beat out of it, 452. Treachery to Gallus, ib. Abandoned by his troops, 455. Despair and death, 456.

† Magnesia, part of antient Greece, v. 604. Of Theffaly, vi. 15.

† — a city of Lydia, v. 572.

† — the battle of ix. 45. & seq.

† Magnum promontorium, in Lusitania, xviii. 331.

Magnus conspires against Maximin, xv. 148. Put to death, ib.

Mago's genealogy xvi. 666, n. Writings, 667. Succeeds Machæus, xvii. 20. Made admiral, 87. Defeats the Syracusans, 95. Defeated Dionysius, 109. Peace with him, 111. Returns to Carthage, ib. & seq. Defeated and killed, 113.

— his son succeeds him, xvii. 114. Defeats the Syracusans, 115. Peace with them, 116. Ill success against them, 130. Outwitted by Timoleon, 132. Baseness to Ictetas, ib. Desperate end, ib.

— assists the Romans, xvii. 205. Success against Pyrrhus, 207. Sent in pursuit of the Romans, 361. Goes to Carthage with Hannibal's success, 395. Sent for reinforcements into Spain, 397. Countermanded from aiding Hannibal, 410. Sent into Spain, ib. Defeats the two consuls, 440. Defends new Carthage, 447. Raises new forces, 454. Noble defence of Locri, 456. Defeated in Spain, 465. Afresh, 467. Retires to Gades, 469. Sends for fresh succours, ib. & seq. Sent into Italy. 472. Cruelties at Gades, 473. Winters in the Baleares, ib. & seq. Reinforces himself in Liguria, 474. His column near Lacinium, ib. Speech to the Gauls, &c. 476. Defeated, 487. & seq. Sails for Carthage, 488. Dies of his wounds, ib.

† — a city in Minorca, xviii. 351.

Magoclonus's wicked reign, xix. 32.

Magog, the second son of Japhet, where settled, i. 469. Mistakes of some authors rectified, ib. & 470, &c. The father of the Scythians, v. 386.

† — a city of Cyrestica in Syria, ii. 264.

Magus, who, i. 262. And Amynus in the Phœnician records, 389.

Mahalah, married to Esau, ii. 149, 438. Why called Bethshemah by Moses, 439, n.

Mahaffrid, last princess of Persia, married to Jezid, xi. 251.

Mahaleel, a descendant of Seth, i. 236.

† Mahanaim, Jacob's vision at, ii. 447.

I N D E X to the

Maherbal commands before Saguntum, xvii. 333. Ravages Italy, 359. Defeats the Romans, 369. Speech to Hannibal, 389.

† Mahmoud-ker, a famed Persian river, iv. 548, & seq.

Mahuvias destroys and sells the Rhodian colossus, xvi. 345. His fleet burnt, 346. Success against the Romans, ib. & seq.

Maia, the daughter of Atlas, deflowered by Jupiter, v. 432.

Majesty, the law of, revived by Tiberius, xiii. 547. & seq. Becomes very dangerous, 563, 577. Revived by Caligula, xiv. 63. Abolished by Titus, 458. Repealed afresh, 549, 563, 616. xvi. 99.

Maimonides notion about the sun standing still, confuted, iii. 81, & seq.

Majoranus proclaimed emperor, xvi. 266. Success against the Vandals 268. In Gaul, ib. Defeated at sea, 269. Deposed and put to death, 270.

—— success against the Goths, xix. 163. In Afric, 209, 211.

† Majorca, island described, xviii. 351.

† Majuma, the port of Gaza, why so called, ii. 219.

Malabaaca, among the Jews, his office, x. 171. n.

Malachi, one of Ezra's assistants, x. 29. n. His prophecies, character, &c. 57, n.

Malaric, king of the Franks, xix. 240.

Maldra's ravages in Spain, xix. 162, 230. Treachery and death, 231.

† Malea, promontory of Lacedemonia, vi. 48.

Malek, first king of Hira, xviii. 280.

† Malethubalus, mount where situate, xviii. 558.

Malichus conspires against Antipater, x. 259. n. Poisons him, 260. Assassinated by Herod, 261, & n. & seq.

—— king of Arabia's ingratitude to Herod, x. 268, & seq.

† Malli confederate with Alexander, viii. 305. Defeated, ib. & seq. 315. & seq.

Mallobaudes's success against the Germans, xvi. 27.

—— against the Alemans, xix. 241, 253. Bravery and promotion, 254. Death, ibid.

Malta, surrendered to Sempronius, xvii. 365.

Maltese, language allied to the Punic, xvi. 646.

† Malva, river of Tingitania, xviii. 12.

† Malum, a city in Cyprus, vii. 487.

† Mamertini, who, and where, vii. 314. Treachery to the Messenians, 315. Defeated by Pyrrhus, 319. By Hiero, 324. See also vol. xvii. 209. Forced to invite the Romans, 220.

Mamertinus, one of the Chalcedonian judges, xv. 530. Consulship and reception from Julian, 534.

Mamilus marries Tarquin's daughter, xi. 367. Bravery at the battle of Regillus, 416. Death, 417.

† Mamfarus mount, in Numidia, xvii. 549.

Man, how created, i. 165, & n. Their happy state, at first, 167.

Man, Maneus, first king of the Celtes, v. 419.

† Manasseh born, ii. 467. Presented to Jacob, 482. Their lot in the promised land, iii. 103.

—— king, his wicked reign, iv. 156. Murders, &c. 157. Captivity, ib. Restored, ib. & seq. Repentance and death, 159, 160.

—— a Jewish apostate, x. 59.

Mandoces, king of Media's long reign, iv. 470.

Mandanius defeated, xii. 274. Sent prisoner to Acidinus, 277.

Mandonius defeated by Scipio, xvii. 380. Goes over to him, 453. Defeated by him, 472. Afresh, and punished, 474.

Mandrakes found by Reuben, what, ii. 440, & n.

Maneros, Egyptian traditions about him, i. 570.

Manes, the son of Jupiter by Tellus, v. 574. First king of Lydia, 578.

—— the arch-heretic, when he flourished, xi. 84, & n. & seq. n. Other particulars of him, 190. His true name, writings, &c. 191, & n.

Manichees suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 31. Three sects of them condemned to death, 47.

Manilian law passed in favour of Pompey, xii. 625.

Manilius, one of Catiline's conspirators, xii. 628, & seq. Proscribed, 635.

—— Nepos. See Nepos, xvii. 522.

Manis, king of Phrygia, v. 513.

Manius's desperate advice to Fulvia, xiii. 304. Bitter speech against Octavian, ib. Put to death, 318.

Mankind, incorrigible, i. 243, 244, & 254. Destroyed by the flood, 355, & seq. First migrations about Ararat, 407. & seq.

Manlius, T. intercedes for the Jews, x. 143. —— Cn. success against the Hetrurians, xi. 466, 467, & seq. Against the Veientes, 477. Driven from the forum, 478.

Manlius

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Nanlius, A. sent to Athens to compile the laws, xi. 517. Made decemvir, 519.

—— saves the capitol, xi. 584. Envy's Camillus's glory, 595. Imprisoned by the dictator, 598. Released by the senate, 599. Tried before the comitia, 600. His punishment, 601.

—— his brother chosen military tribune, xi. 602. Outwitted by the Volsci, 607, 608. Chosen dictator, 616.

—— Imperiosus chosen dictator, xi. 625.

—— Titus, his pious stratagem in favour of his father, xi. 626. Promotion, 627. Why called Torquatus, 630. Chosen dictator, 638. Defeats the Falisci, ib. Second dictatorship, 642. Consulship, 645. Success against the Latins, 655. Severity to his brave son, 658. March against the Hetrurians, xii. 53. Killed by a fall, ib.

—— his son kills Metius in single combat, xi. 657. Put to death, ib.

—— L. prætor in Gaul, xii. 183. Ill success against the Boii, 186.

—— Attilius, stratagem against the Carthaginians, xvii. 249, n. Defeats their fleet, 252. Returns to Rome, 253.

Manna rained down on the Israelites, ii. 592, 593, & n. & seq. Described, ib. & 394, 395, & n.

—— Persian, described, iv. 534, & seq.

Manfuetus unfortunately killed by his son, xiv. 390, 391. A scene of horror ensues, ib.

† Mantinea, the infamous temple and oracle of, xiv. 624.

Mantineans league with the Athenians, vi. 290, & 291, n. Expelled their city, 496, & seq. Rebuild it, 502.

† Mantua, where sited, xviii. 348. Taken by the Hunns, xix. 90. Given to the disbanded veterans, xiii. 301.

Manuel defeated in Egypt, xvi. 343. His bravery saves Theophilus, 391. Flees to the Saracens, 392. Restored to great honours, 393. Retires, 396.

—— the emperor proclaimed, xvi. 488. Treachery to the crusaders, ib. Wars against the king of Sicily, 489. Distressed by the Turks, 490. Peace with them, ib. Death, ib.

—— the son of Micheal Paleologus, killed, xvi. 525.

—— the son of John, defeated by Bajazet, xvi. 541. Resigns to his nephew, 542. Begs assistance of christian princes, ib. Restored, 543. Dies, ib.

Manumission, how performed at Rome, xi. 388, n.

† Maracanda, by whom built, ix. 629. Besieged by the Scythians, viii. 257. Relieved by Alexander, 260.

† Marah, the bitter waters of, sweetened, ii. 591.

Maran-atta, highest excommunication, iii. 342, 343.

† Maranitzæ, who and where sited, xviii. 194.

Marasas, defeated and killed, xvi. 326.

Maratæ, Cupris, the robbers of, put to the sword, xv. 624.

Marathas, bishop, in veneration among the Persians, xi. 108. Heals the Persian prince, 109.

Marathon, king of Sicyon, v. 417.

—— the famed battle of, described, vi. 183, & seq.

† Marble of Synada, famed, v. 496.

Marc, St. bishop of Jerusalem, xiv. 630.

Marcelli, patrons of the Sicilians, vii. 391.

Marcellianus, made duke, xv. 604. Treachery, ib.

Marcellinus, success against the Neapolitans, xv. 444. Lost at the battle of Marsa, 450. Sent into Gaul, 474. Leaves Julian in the lurch, 477. Accused and stripped, ib. & seq.

—— brother of Maximus, defeated and drowned, xvi. 80.

—— raises a new empire in Dalmatia, xvi. 271. Joins with the Athemius, 274. Sent to invade Sardinia, 275. Success against Genserich, xix. 214. Assassinated, xvi. 276. xix. 216.

Marcellus's conquests in Sicily, vii. 353, 357, & seq. Besieges Syracuse, 361. New-invented machine, ib. Other conquests, &c. 365, & seq. Singular clemency, 373, & seq. Plague in his army, 375. Takes Syracuse, 380, & seq. Clemency to it, 381, & seq. Other conquests, &c. 386, & seq. Unjustly accused, 389. Cleared, 392. How far to blame, 391, n.

—— the son of Claudius's signal bravery, xii. 267.

—— opposes Cæsar's designs, xiii. 32. Makes Pompey protector, 36. Pardoned, 108. Stabbed by Chilon, ib.

—— Octavia's son marries Pompey's daughter, xiii. 323. Adopted by Augustus, 379. Falls out with Agrippa, 384, 385. Dies suddenly, 385.

—— Granus, tried and acquitted of treason, xiii. 549.

I N D E X to the

Marcellus Epirus, shamefully acquitted by Nero, xiv. 184.

—— condemned for treason, xiv. 449. Kills himself, ib.

—— the false accuser of Thrasea, xiv. 260.

—— Cornel. put to death by Galba, xiv. 304.

—— puts Serenianus to death, xv. 619. Takes the imperial dignity, ib. Tortured to death, ib.

—— revolts, and stabs himself, xvi. 316.

—— success against Hannibal, xvii. 399, 416. Drives him into Apulia, 417. Treachery to the Cassilini, 422. Success in Spain and Sicily, 456. Worst, 450, & seq. Defeated and killed, 456.

—— fatal success in Britain, xviii. 708.

Marcia the wife of Regulus's bloody revenge on the Carthaginians, xii. 138.

—— a favourite of Commodus, xv. 57. Befriends the christians, ib. Doomed to death, 67. Poisons, 68. Put to death, 92.

† — the grove of, at Minturnæ, xii. 539.

Marcian's revolt and punishment, xvi. 288.

Marciana's excellent character, xiv. 562.

† Marcianopolis, where sited, xiv. 622.

Marcianus's success against the Heruli, xv. 248. The supposed murderer of Gallienus, ib.

—— general of Theodosius, taken prisoner, xvi. 221. Marries his sister, 242. Chosen emperor, ib. Why set free by Genferic, ib. Noble answer to Attila, 244. Convenes the council of Chalcedon, 252. Laws in favour of the church, 259. Takes Avitus his colleague, 262. His death and excellent character, 265.

Marcionites, their belief of two principles, i. 138.

Marcus, Caius. See Coriolanus, xi. 435. & seq.

—— C. burns the Carthaginians camp, xii. 249.

—— M. Philipp. success in Macedonia, xii. 323. Cruel terms to the Carthaginians, 329, & seq. Distressed by Asdrubal, 343. See also vol. xvii. 469, 522, & 528.

—— Q. Rex, success in Gaul, xviii. 552.

† Marcomani, where seated, xiii. 448, n. Revolt against the Romans, 448, & seq. Defeated by the Cherusci, 574. Put Domitian to a shameful flight, xiv. 500. Subdued by Trajan, 586. xv. 13. War with M. Aurelius, xv. 13. Enter Italy, 16. Miraculously defeated, 22. Treachery punished, 26. Peace with Commodus, 55. Their extract and antient feat, xviii. 576: xix. 345. Character, customs, &c. 346. Peace with Augustus, ib. & seq. Defeated and subdued, 346.

Marcomir, king of the Franks, xix. 239. Ill success against the Romans, 255, & seq. Treachery to Stilicho, xvi. 122. The supposed father of Pharamond, 123.

Marcus Cato's son dies at Philippi, xiii. 279.

—— a freeman of Marius tortured to death, xii. 573.

—— declared Cæsar, xvi. 283.

Mardi subdued by Alexander, viii. 233.

Mardonius's unsuccessful expedition against Greece, v. 116. Commands Xerxes's army, 143, & seq. Message to the Athenians rejected, vi. 208, & seq. Defeated and killed, v. 147, 149, & vi. 210. See also vol. viii. 53, & seq.

Mardoc Empad, the Merodach-baldan of scripture, iv. 381. Embassy to Hezekiah, ib.

† Mareh, river that falls into the Nile, described, xviii. 104, n.

† Mareotis, part of lower Egypt, i. 488.

Mares milk, how forced down by the Scythians, v. 460.

† Mareffa, where situate, x. 202, n.

† Marga, where situate, xv. 394.

† Margiana, in Persia, described, iv. 513. Its prodigious vines, grapes, &c. ibid. n.

Maria, the celebrated sister of Theodosius, xvi. 34.

—— daughter of Stilicho, born, xvi. 118. Married to Honorius, 137. Her death, 168. Rich tomb discovered, ib.

Mariamne, the wife of Herod, her extract, x. 262. Character, 272. Marriage, 277, & n. Alienated from him, 287. Sent to Massada, 295. Aversion to Herod, ib. & seq. Accused of treason, 296. Heroic behaviour at her death, 297, & seq.

—— daughter of Simon, married to Herod, x. 303. Accused of treason, 325.

—— daughter of Agrippa, x. 562. Her incontinency, 568, n.

Marian faction revived in Afric, xii. 582. In Spain, &c. ib.

† Mariandyni, their origin, &c. xi. 592.

† Marianni, mountains in Bœtica, xviii. 339, n. & 350, n.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Marina daughter of Arcadius born, xvi. 154. Her life, &c. 165.

Marines, a legion of, formed by Nero, xv. 308. Massacred by Galba, ib. Join with Otho against him, 396. Unshod by Vespasian, 434.

Marinus's revolt and defeat, xv. 213, 214.

— kills himself, xv. 469. A pleader put to death, 596.

Marion, prince of Tyrus, joins with Antigonus, x. 262, 263, n.

Marius, put to death by Lucullus, ix. 419.

— Caius, his character, xii. 424. Tribuneship, 425. Pretorship, 426. Ingratitude to Metellus, 551, & seq. Treachery, 455. Consulship, 458. Insolence to the Patricians, 460, & seq. Cruelty to the Numidians, 464. Dreadful slaughter of them, 468, & seq. Proconsulship in Afric, 469. Rancour against Sylla, 474. Proconsulship of Numidia, 476. Splended triumph, 480. Strict discipline, 486. Third consulship, 487. Fourth, how managed, 487. Noble canal at Provence, 489. Success against the Teutones, 490, & seq. Fifth consulship, 495. Cruelty to the Cimbri, 496, & seq. Triumph and temple, 498, & seq. Plots to enslave his country, 501. Law against the senate, 502. Treachery to Metellus, 503. To the senate, 504. Upholds the rebels, 506. Retires into Pontus, 509. Insolence to Mithridates, ib. & seq. Return to Rome, 512. Mortified by Sylla, ib. & seq. Defeated, by the Marfi, 522. Opposes Sylla, 527. Chosen general against Mithridates, 529. Forced out of Rome, 531. Proscribed, 532. Dangerous flight, 533, & seq. Seized, 537. Released by the Minturnenses, 538. Embarks for Aenaria, 539. Repulsed by Sextilius, ib. & seq. Proud answer to him, 540. Lands at Cercina, 541. Recalled by Cinna, 543. Joins with him, 544. Success against the consuls, 546. Repulsed at the Janiculum, 547. Cruelties and butcheries in Rome, 550, & seq. Seventh consulship, 554. Madness and death, ib. & seq.

— his son's dangerous escape, xii. 554 & seq. Goes into Numidia, 540. Rejoins his father, 541. Imitates his cruelty, 555. Chosen Consul, ib. Butchers Sylla's friends, 564. Defeated by him, ib. His death, 571.

— Ignatius killed, xii. 525.

— Sextus executed, xiv. 12.

— Maximus, his history lost, xiv. 582. Writings, &c. xv. 177, n.

Marius Aurel. proclaimed in Gaul, xv. 246. Murdered, 247.

Mark, the evangelist, whether the founder of the therapeutes, x. 370.

— a christian bishop, surprising martyrdom, x. 526 n.

— made emperor, and killed, xvi. 163, & xviii. 717.

— patriarch, deposed by the Trapezuntines, xviii. 314 n.

Martia's success against Perseus, viii. 501, 505. Gets into the vale of Tempe, 505. Ill luck in Macedon, 506.

† Marmarians, their site, and desperate defence, viii. 169.

† Marmarica Libya, described, xviii. 60. By whom inhabited, 62. Distinct from Egypt, 63.

† Marmora, the sea of described, vii. 544, & n.

Marna, Marnash, idol worshipped in Gaza, ii. 225.

† Maro builds Maronea in Thrace, ii. 8.

Maroboduus, driven out of his kingdom, xix. 345.

† Marobudum, by whom built, xix. 346.

Maronites, settled in Libanus, xvi. 349. Defeated by Justinian, 350. Plundered by Onomastus, viii. 487.

† Marpesus, mount, famed for marble, vii. 589.

Marriage, whether obligatory by the Mosaic law, iii. 350 n. Consanguinity, how far excluded from it, ib. & 351. Incestuous, punished with death, ib. & seq. Other laws concerning it, ib. & seq. How celebrated, 353. Talmudic precepts about it, 358, n. & seq.

— how regulated by Lycurgus, vi. 385. How performed among the Romans, xi. 300, n. Laws concerning them, 311, 317. New oaths appointed about them, xii. 164. Promoted by Augustus, xiii. 401, 455. Of nieces, &c. made capital, xv. 433. And between Jews and Christians, xvi. 84.

† Marrucini, where sited, xi. 262. Defeated by Scylla, xii. 522.

Mars, his festival at Papremis, i. 558.

— how worshipped by the Scythians, v. 450, 451. Why so called, xvii. 210 n. How worshipped by the Gauls, xviii. 448. Bloody sacrifices, 463. His other names, 464, 465, & n. Reckoned an infernal deity, 472, & n. Worshipped in Germany, 601.

— his supposed sword found, xix. 63.

— temple built by Augustus, xi. 54.

— pretended appearance to the Roman army, xii. 83 & n.

† Mart

I N D E X to the

† Marfeilles, besieged by Jul. Cæsar, xiii. 47. Surrendered, 50. Besieged by Constantine, xv. 346. When founded, xvi. 677 n. Maximians tomb there, xv. 359, n. Yielded to Theodoric, xix. 289.

† — the famed university of, xviii. 518. Founded by the Greeks, 353.

† Marfi, their antient territories, xi. 262. Origin, xii. 486. Erected into a republic, 518, 519. Invaded by Rutilius, ib. Defeated by Pompey, 523. Defeat Cato, 525. Butchered by Germanicus, xiii. 527. By Cæcina, 535, & n. Gained over by Sylla, xviii. 554.

Marfian war, whence so called, xii. 515.

Marfyas, king of Lydia, v. 579.

— famed musician, v. 498, & n. & 499 n.

— famed christian martyr, x. 529 n.

† — a river in Phrygia, v. 498.

Martace, one of Herod's wives, x. 323, n. Goes to Rome with her son, 397.

Martha's worldly care blamed by Christ, x. 477, 478.

— a famed conjurers, xii. 490.

Marthesia, queen of the Amazons, v. 465, n.

Martialis, Corn. repulsed by Vitellius, xiv. 402. Taken prisoner, 403.

— the famed epigrammatist, xiv. 529, n.

Martina, married to Heraclius, xvi. 336. Poisons the Constantines, 344. Her punishment, ib.

Martinianus, created Cæsar, xv. 397. Sent against Constantine, ib. Put to death, 399.

— sent against the Persians, xvi. 321.

Martinus's brave opposition of Catena, xv. 458. Kills himself, ib.

— his house burnt by the Eutychians, xvi. 301.

— killed before Rome, xix. 463.

Martyrdom of the first christians, an instance of the divine wisdom, x. 524, n.

† Martyropolis, taken by the Persians, xi. 153. Restored to the Romans, 160. Where situate, xvi. 308. Besieged and forsaken, ib. Betrayed and retaken, 326.

† Martyrs, the æra of, xv. 292.

Marulus, made governor of Judæa, x. 552.

— why deposed by Julius Cæsar, xiii. 133.

Mary, the mother of Christ, her lineage, x. 331, 337. Visit to Elizabeth, 337. Delivered at Bethlehem, 340. Maintained by her son, 412 n. Present at her Crucifixion, 512.

Mary Magdalen. See sub. Magdalen, x. 477, & seq.

— a christian queen of Persia. See Schirrim, xi. 236.

— princess, put to death by Andronicus, xvi. 493.

Mascezel, defeated by Theodosius, xv. 601. Singular character, xvi. 134. Miraculous success against his revolted brother, ib. & seq. Treacherously murdered, by Stilicho, 136.

† Mash, Aram's fourth son, where settled, i. 461.

Masinissa's success against the Massylians, xii. 244. Against the Romans, 247. Allies with them, 272, 273, 274. Betrays the Carthaginians, 280, 281. Success against Syphax, 284. Marries Sophonisba, ib. Forced to poison her, 286. His reward, ib. & 294. Wars with Carthage, 336. Valour and victories, 337. Defeated by Syphax, xvii. 427. Assists the Carthaginians in Spain, 440. Sent to ravage Hispania Citerior, 454. Defeated by Scipio, 467. Abandons the Carthaginians, 468. Consults with Aldrubal, ib. & seq. Interview with Scipio, 472. Reasons of his defection, 478. Joins with him, 479. Burns Syphax's camp, 483. Gallantry at the battle of Zama, 493. Seizes on the Carthaginian territories, 498, 515. Disputes them before the Roman senate, ib. & seq. Takes a number of their cities, 517. Succours the Romans, 519. Defeats Aldrubal, 521. Last message to Æmilianus, 529. Recovers his kingdom, 574. Defeats Syphax, ib. Ravages the Carthaginians, ib. Narrow escape, ib. & 576. Fresh defeat, ib. & seq. Recovers Syphax's kingdom, 578. Forces Carthage to make peace, 579. Disobliges the Romans, ib. His death and character, 580. Kingdom how divided, 482. Genealogy, see Table at the End.

† Masis, mount, whether the ark rested on it, i. 323, 324. Described, 325, & seq. Masistes Xerxes's brother put to death, v. 152, & seq.

Masistius famed general of Persia, v. 145.

† Masius, mount in Armenia, ix. 321.

Masor, Egypt why so called, i. 484.

Masruk, the last Ethiopian king in Yaman, xviii. 277.

Massa, Bebius, one of Domitian's informers, xiv. 491. Condemned for extortion, 510.

† Massada, besieged by Antigonus, x. 272. Taken by the zealots, 576. By the Romans, 619, & seq. The Jews desperate end there, 620.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Maffaga, taken by Alexander, viii. 292.
 † Maffagetæ, Scythians described, v. 467.
 — defeated by Craterus, viii. 282. Invade the Romans, xvi. 308. When first called Turks, 320. Where situate, ib.
 Defeated by Ottoman, 520. Ravage Hellespont, ib.

† Maffah, where Moses smote the miraculous rock, ii. 597.

Maffala's speech in favour of Herod, x.
 270.

Maffana surprised, v. 314.

Maffilians, illusory answer to Cæsar, xiii.
 47. Bloody sacrifices, xviii. 414.

Maffiva begs the Numidian crown, xii.
 443. Murdered by Jugurtha, ib. & xvii.
 588.

Maffyli and Masæfyli, part of Numidia, xvii. 541, 542. Of Mauritania, ib. Their site, extent, &c. 542, 552. Government, 561.
 Become a Roman province, 604.

Maffanabal's succession and death, xvii.
 582.

Maffich of Chios famed, vii. 559.

Maffiffs of Adranum, why famed, vii.
 153.

Matafuenta married to Germanus, xix.
 476.

Maternus, a famed philosopher put to death, xiv. 492.

—revolt and death, xv. 61.

Matheas, Macheas, king of Scythia, v.
 481.

Mathos, a ring-leader of the Libyan war, xvii. 288. Besieges Hippona, 300. Takes Hannibal and other prisoners, 308. Crucifies them, ib. & seq. His dismal end, 310.

† Matronæ, in Germany, who, xviii.
 599, n.

Matronalia, the festival of, at Rome,
 xi. 309, n.

Mattaniah, See Zedechiah.

Mattathia's noble zeal for his religion, x.
 119, & seq. Decree for self-defence on the sabbath, 121. Restores the temple-worship,
 122. Dying advice to his sons, 123, 124, n.

—a high-priest deposed, x. 391.

Matthew, St. called by Christ, x. 439.
 His readiness justified, ib. n.

—the son of Cantacusen assumes the purple, xvi. 539. Defeated and resigns it, ib.

Matthias defiled on expiation eve, x.
 325, n.

—a tumultuous doctor, burnt alive, x.
 390, & seq. A disciple of Christ, chosen apostle, x. 533, & n. A jew, made high-priest, 559. Lets Simon into the city, 592.
 Put to death, 606.

† Mattiacum, capital of the Mattiaci,
 xviii. 576.

† Mattium, metropolis of the Catti, xiii. 535, n. Burnt by the Romans, ib.

Matuta, goddess, who, xi. 610.

Mavia, sends succours to the Romans,
 xvi. 29. Against the Goths, xviii. 302.

† Mauresii, where seated, xviii. 4.

† Mauri, who and why so called, xviii.
 3. Obscure origin, 36.

Mauringa, seized by the Lombards, xix.
 378.

† Mauritania, described, xvii. 542,
 & seq. Why called Tingitania, ib. Its extent, ib. Whence called Maurusia, xviii.
 3. How divided, 4. Its rivers, &c. 12,
 & seq. Mountains, 15. Natural rarities,
 21. First inhabitants, 22. Government,
 24, & seq. Religion, 25. Language, 26.
 Customs, &c. 27. Habit, 28. Arts, &c.
 29, & seq. Riches, 30. Kings, 31. Conquests and division, 43. Delivered by Ser-torius, xii. 594. Subdued by Geta, xiv.
 114. Declares for Vitellius, 367. Secured to the Romans, xvi. 226.

—nova, whence so called, xvii. 598.

Mauritius's friendship to Cōsrhoes, xi.
 160, 161, & seq. Ill requited by him,
 164. Sent against the Persians, xvi. 323.
 Extract and character, ib. Success against them, ib. Crowned Cæsar and emperor,
 324. Kindness to young Cōsrhoes, 327.
 Delivered from the Avari, ib. Insulted by his soldiers, 328. Put to death with five of his children, 329.

—a wicked tool of Gordian, xv. 202.
 Banished, ib.

—bishop crowns Julian, xv. 500.

† Mausoleum, of Doris, described, vii. 121.
 Mausolus, king of Caria, oppresses the Rhedians, vii. 411.

Maxentius's extract, &c. xv. 293. Rejected from being Cæsar, 314, 342. Proclaims himself emperor, 347, & seq. Deposed by Maximian, 352. Protected by the soldiers, ib. Success and cruelties in Afric, 363. At Rome ib. & seq. Witchcrafts and butcheries, 364. Breaks with Constantine, 365. Defeated by him, 372.
 Falls upon himself, 373. His defeat and death ib. Carried to Rome, 374. The first raiser of the follis tax, 418.

Maxima, the wife of Chilo, accused of magic, xv. 595.

Maximian chosen partner with Dioclesian,
 xv. 293. Rise and character, ib. Success in Gaul, 294. In Germany, 295. Defeated in Britain, 296. Success in Afric, 300.
 Against the Moors, 306, & seq. Resigns the empire, 314. Resumes it, 348. Defeats Severus, 350. And Maxentius, ib.
 &c.

& seq. And Constantine, 356. Taken prisoner, ib. Ingratitude and death, 358, & seq.

Maximin, chosen Cæsar, xv. 314. Preferred to Maxentius, 342. Extract, &c. ib. Share of the government, 343. Consulship, 349. Made filius Augustorum, 355. Agrees with Licinius, 361. Cruelty to Valeria, 362. To Dioclesian, 363. Joins with Maxentius, 366. Enmity to christians, 376, 380. Brings sad calamities on the empire, ib. Marches against Licinius, 384. Defeat and flight, 385. Poisons himself, 386. Dreadful end, ib. Followed with that of his friends, &c. ib. & seq.

—— brother-in-law to Valentin. his rise and cruelties at Rome, xv. 595. Promotion, 596, 598. Bloody prefectship, ib. Enmity to the Quadi, 604. Put to death, xvi. 8.

Maximinus condemned to death, xv. 58.

—— a Gothish general, revolts in Gaul, xv. 170. Murders Alexander, 171. Declared emperor, 181. His extract, strength, and gigantic stature, 182. Devouring stomach, 183. Rise, and horrid cruelties, ib. & 184. Wastes Germany, 185. March into the north, ib. Proscribed, 187. Mad behaviour, 189, & seq. March into Italy, 190. Assassinated, 198. His head brought to Rome, 199.

—— his son declared Cæsar, xv. 181. His character, 183. Made colleague, ib. Proscribed, 187. Assassinated, 198.

Maximus, Pupien. Vid. Pupien, xv. 193.

—— Julian's magic master, xv. 523. Carested at court, 533. His character and arrogance, ib. Writings, 560, n. Put to death for his witcheries, 579. xvi. 3.

—— the father of Euclid, different from the magician, xvi. 3.

—— general in Britain's revolt, xvi. 48. Extract, &c. 49. Crosses into Gaul, ib. Defeats and kills Gratian, 50. A scurvy pun turned into a prophecy by his tools, 52. Acknowledges Theodosius's colleague, 58. Invades Valentinian, 78. Defeated, and put to death, 80.

—— made emperor in Spain, xvi. 179.

—— Petronius undermines Ætius, xvi. 254. Murders Valentinian, 256. Mounts the throne, 257. Marries his widow, 258. Murdered, ib.

† Maxula, where situate, xvi. 575. Described, ib. &c.

† Mazaca, metropolis of Cappadocia, ix. 458.

—— taken prisoner, xv. 603. Death, ibid.

Mazaces surrenders to Alexander, viii. 217.

Mazedek, a Manichee, impostor in Persia, xi. 214. Put to death, 218. See vol. xviii. 282, 283.

† Mazices, who, xv. 601. Submit to Theodosius, ib. Defeated by him, 602.

† Mazichi, where situate, xvi. 160. Ravage Egypt, ib. &c.

† Meander, a river in Phrygia, vi. 497, 570.

Mebaranes, king of Adiabene, driven out ix. 641. Treachery to Trajan, xiv. 581.

Mebodes, made trustee of Cavades's testament, xi. 127. Defeats the Romans, 153.

Mæcenæ reconciles the triumvirs, xiii. 316. His character and pedigree, ib. n. Diverts Augustus from resigning, 367. A sketch of his politics, 368. Cuckolded by Augustus, 401, Death, and character, 424. Works, 425.

† Mecca, where situate, xviii. 203. Described, ib. How supplied with water, &c. 204. Its vast concourse, ib. Temple and Sharif, 205. By whom built, ib. Seized by Mohammed, xvi. 342.

Medad, a camp-prophet of the Jews, iii. 5, n.

† Medea, princess of Colchis, whether carried off by the Greeks, v. 550.

—— daughter of Aetes, procures Jason the Golden Fleece, vi. 22, & n. Cruelty to her brother, ib. & seq. Banished to Corinth, 24. Sad effects of her jealousy there, 42.

† —— city taken by the Saracens, xvi. 356.

† Medes, why called Madai in Scripture, i. 471. Shake off the Assyrian yoke, iv. 278. Their origin, 456. Government, &c. 457, & seq. Kings, ib. & seq. Religion, laws, &c. 458, & seq. Chronology, 461, & seq. Subdued by Pul, 462. Fall into anarchy, 464, & seq. Their kings from Dejoces, 466. History, 468. Revolt from the Persians, v. 166. Reduced, ib.

† Media described, iv. 445, & seq. Invaded by the Scythians, 478. See Medes above. Subdued by Cassius, xv. 10.

† —— Atropatia, see Atropatene, ix. 626, & seq.

† Medina taken by Mohammed, xvi. 342. Where sited, xviii. 203. Described, 206.

† Mediobrigæ

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Mediobriga, the lead-mine of, xviii. 332.
 Mediocritus, Melitarchus, the first discoverer of the British isles, xviii. 648.
 † Mediolanum in Wales, where sited,
 xviii. 667.
 † — in Italy, taken by the Romans,
 xii. 178.
 † Mediomatrici, who, and where sited,
 xviii. 577.
 † Mediterranean, how called by the Jews,
 iii. 120.
 Medon, the son of Codrus, first Archon of Athens, v. 658.
 Medontidæ of Athens, why so called, v.
 658. Their office, &c. ib.
 Medo-Perfic empire, conjectures about it out of oriental writers, v. 272, & seq.
 † Medulia, taken by Tullus, xi. 333.
 By Ancus, 336.
 Medus, the supposed father of the Medes,
 iv. 445, n.
 Megabyfus revolts from Artaxerxes, v.
 160, 161. His bravery ill repaid, 161.
 Message to Amyntas, viii. 510.
 Megacles's severity against Cylon's confederates, vi. 101. His party condemned for it, 111. Joins with Pisistratus, 156, & seq. Discomfited, 158.
 † Megalia taken by the Romans, xii.
 349.
 Megallis, a bloody mistress to her slaves,
 xii. 387. Her cruel death, 388.
 † Megalopolis, built by the Arcadians, vi.
 502. Taken and ruined by Cleomenes,
 566.
 † Megalopolitans sent to beg Antiochus's aid, vi. 564. Besieged by Polyasperchon, viii. 439, & seq.
 Megapentes king of Tyrin, exchanges it for Argos, vi. 625, 627. — A bastard-son of Menelaus king of Sparta, vi. 61, 62.
 † Megara, part of antient Greece, v.
 604. Join'd to Attica by Theseus, 652.
 Revolts, vi. 243. Besieged by the Athenians, 284, & seq. Relieved by the Spartans, ib. Fortified by Phocion, 238.
 Taken by the Romans, 664. Taken by Æmilianus, xvii. 531.
 † — one of the three parts of Carthage,
 xvi. 567.
 Megareans, outwitted by the Athenians, vi. 107. Revolt from them, 243. Join in the Peloponnesian war, 263. Reject the Nicean peace, 287. Defeated, 358.
 Subdued by the Romans, 664.
 Megaric philosophers held the world eternal, i. 85.
 Megas, put to death by his brother, ix.
 214.

Megasthenes's character and writings,
 viii. 580, & n. & seq.
 Megastus, the Spartan soothsayer's tomb,
 v. 442, n.
 Meherdates set up against Gotarzes, xi.
 60, 61. Betrayed by Abgarus, 61. Defeated, 62.
 Mejellus, Luc. Posth. success in Sicily, xvii. 235, & seq.
 † Mejerda river, stops up the Carthaginian harbour, xvi. 570.
 Mela, Pompon. where born, xviii. 338,
 362.
 Melambolus, Egypt, why so called by the Greeks, i. 485.
 Melampus obtains part of Argos, v.
 625.
 Melanchrus, tyrant of Lesbos, vii. 555.
 Melanthus, chosen king of Athens, v.
 657.
 † Melanchenoe, a kind of canibals, xix.
 355.
 † Melano-Gætuli, who and where sited, xviii. 51. Their tribes, cities, &c. 52.
 Known to the Carthaginians, 54, & n.
 Their way of fighting, travelling, &c. 54,
 55.
 † Melas, Meles river in Ionia, vii. 105.
 — in Cappadocia, ix. 458.
 Melchiades, bishop of Rome, esteemed by Constantine, xv. 376.
 Melchizedec, who, ii. 193. Blesses Abraham, 194, 195. Opinions about him, 193, n.
 Meleager's hunting the famed Calydonian boar, vi. 77, & n. The fable of his birth and death, 78, 79, n.
 — declares for Arideus, viii. 353.
 Supplanted by Perdiccas, 356.
 — brother of Ceraunus chosen king of Macedon, viii. 469.
 Melenus, confined for his great wealth,
 xvi. 435, 436.
 † Melians, who and whence, vii. 580.
 Cruelly used by the Athenians, 581.
 Melicartus, Hercules, son to Demaroon,
 i. 397. His temple at Gadez, ib. n.
 — a Phenician deity, ii. 347, 348.
 Melissa, one of Jupiter's nurses, vii.
 471.
 Melisseus introduces worship in Crete, vii.
 471.
 † Melita, the island of, taken and plundered by the Romans, xii. 120, 184.
 † Melitene, become an opulent city, xiv.
 580.
 — the legion of, why called thundering, xv. 23.
 Melitus, the false accuser of Socrates, vii.
 331.

I N D E X to the

Mella, An. put to death by Nero, xiv. 257.
 Mellobaudes's success against the Alle-mans, xix. 333.
 † Melos island described, vii. 580. Taken by the Athenians, ib. & vi. 295. Subdued by the Romans, vii. 580.
 Meltas, king of Argos, deposed, v. 639.
 Memmia, married to Alexander, xv.
 158.
 Memmius, Q. friendship to the Jews, x.
 143.
 — Caius accuses Jugurtha, xii. 437.
 His speech to the Comitia, 441, & seq.
 Murdered by Equitius, 505.
 — a centurion's bravery against the mutineers, xiii. 521.
 Memnon's unsuccessful expedition, v.
 546. Brave exploits, ib. Vocal statue, ib.
 Described, xiii. 399.
 — defeated by Alexander, viii. 164.
 Defends Halicarnassus, 166, & seq.
 — wars with the Egyptians, xviii.
 149. The same with Menes, 150.
 † Memphis, Moph, metropol. of middle Egypt, i. 488. By whom built, ib. See
 vol. xviii. 150. Taken by Cambyfes, v.
 87. His cruelty to her priests and citizens,
 89, 90. Taken by Alexander, 220, 221.
 Memrumus, in the Phenician cosmogony, who, i. 253.
 Men, whether any before Adam, i. 172,
 &c.
 Menahem murders the king of Israel, iv.
 132, 133. Cruel tyranny, 133. Invaded by Pul, ib. Death, ib.
 — an Essenian foretells Herod's rise,
 x. 281, n.
 — head of the zealots massacred, x.
 376.
 Menalcidas, why accused to the Romans,
 vi. 653. Breaks the truce with Achaia,
 656. Kills himself, ib.
 Menalipe, the famed Amazon's contest with Hercules, v. 466, n.
 Menander king of Bactria's conquests, ix.
 630.
 † Menapii, who and where, xiii. 19, &
 xviii. 559, n. Subdued by Cæsar, ib.
 Menas sets Pompey against the triumvirs, xiii. 319. His advice rejected, 322. Goes over to Octavian, 328. Defeated by Pompey, 330. Returns to him, 333. Treach-ery to him, 338.
 † Mendes's labyrinth in Egypt, ii. 46.
 Menelaus marries the fair Helen, v. 551.
 Embassy after her, 553. Whether he left her in Egypt, 554.
 — succeeds to the Spartan crown, vi.

61. Defeated by Demetrius, vii. 506.
 Taken prisoner at Salamis, 508.
 — the Jew buys the high-priesthood, ix. 68. Apostatizes, 69. Causes Onias to be murdered, ib. Other black crimes, 71, & seq. See also, vol. x. 106, & seq. Robs the temple, 107. Hellish politics, ib. & 109. Promotes a peace with Syria, 144. Cruel death, 151.
 — a famed archer killed by Romulus,
 xv. 450.
 Menecæus sacrifices his life for his country,
 v. 670.
 Menenius defeated by the Hetrurians, xi.
 474.
 — the son of Agrippa condemned by the tribunes, xi. 475. His death, 476.
 Menes, the supposed 1st king of Egypt,
 i. 601, n. & ii. 14. Whether the son of Noah, ib. n. Diverts the Nile's course, &c. ib. Introduces luxury, ib. & 15. His death, i. 601, n.
 Menesarchus, tyrant of Eubæa, wars with the Thebans, vii. 650.
 † Menesteus, the port of, xviii. 338.
 Menidas, wounded at Guagamela, viii.
 214.
 Menetho's history, whence extracted,
 i. 244, 245, n. Egyptian chronology,
 273. Why discredited by several writers,
 615. Egyptian dynasties examined, ib. &c.
 Menevis, a bull worshipped in Egypt, i.
 554.
 † Meninx island described, xviii. 79.
 Menippus's speech to the Romans, ix.
 16.
 Menithillus facilitates Demetrius's escape,
 ix. 102.
 — speech to the Roman senate, ix.
 230, 231.
 Menius, a plebeian, chosen consul, xi.
 662. Makes the first rostrum, 663.
 Chosen dictator, xii. 25. Tried and acquitted, 26. Rechosen, 34.
 Menocrates defeated by Menas, xiii. 329.
 His death, ib.
 Menon, the husband of Semiramis, iv.
 234.
 Menophilus's defence of Aquileia, xvi.
 197.
 Mento, C. Julius's fatal quarrel with his colleague, xi. 552.
 Mentor, the Rhodian commands the Greeks in Egypt, ii. 85. Goes over to the king of Persia, 371, & seq. Betrays Sidon to him, ii. 371. Amply rewarded by Ochus, v. 201.

† Menta;

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Mentz, the inventress of Printing, xviii. 594. Put to fire and sword by the Hunns, xix. 78. By the Vandals, 196. By the Allemans, 331.

† ——— Drusus's monument at, xviii. 591.

† Menutia island in Ethiopia, xviii. 107. Whether the present Madagascar, 109.

Meon, whether the name of an idol, ii. 102, n.

——— the father of Cybele, v. 508, n. 570.

† Meonia, the antient name of Lydia, v. 486, n. 570.

Mephibosheth kindly treated by David, iv. 25, & seq.

Merari, one of the three chief branches of Levites, iii. 251.

Merbalking of Tyre, ii. 385.

Mercenaries revolt against the Carthaginians, xvii. 284, & seq. Odd mixture and arrogance, 287, & seq. The rest see under Libyans.

——— in Sicily, revolt and cruelties, xvii. 310.

Mercidinus mensis, what, xiii. 117, 118, n.

Mercidonius dies, what, xi. 319, & n.

Mercury, the son of Jupiter by Maia, v. 432. Where born, vi. 10, n. Why so called, v. 413, & n. Why worshipped by the Celtes, ib. His other names, ib. & 433, & n. Succeeds his father, ib. Polishes the Celtes, 434, &c. Worshipped by the Carthaginians, xvi. 627, & n. By the Gauls, xviii. 448, 469. His Gaulish names, 470, & n. Why reckoned an infernal deity, 472, & n. The god of riches, 473. Supposed tomb in Spain, 474. Why styled Augustus, 473, n. His heaps or mounds, what, 474, n. Why represented of no sex, 475, n. Why in guise of Hercules, 525, & n.

——— his temple consecrated at Rome, xi. 425.

Mercy-Seat, or oracle of the Jews, described, iii. 296, & seq.

Meribah, the station where Moses smote the miraculous rock, ii. 597, iii. 22.

† Meridah, Emerita, Augusta, by whom built, xiii. 376. New-colonied by Otho, xiv. 343. Taken by Rechila, xvi. 226. Taken and ravaged by the Goths, 277. By the Visigoths, xix. 161. By the Suevi, 226.

Meriones king of Crete, vii. 479. Adored by the Cretans, ib.

Mermeroes defeated, xi. 125. Outwitted by the Martyropolitans, 126. Sent to relieve Petra, 144, & seq. Death and character, ib. & 145, & n. See also vol. xvii. 306, 313.

Mermnades, a race of Lydian kings, v. 574.

Merobaudes kills Macrinus, xv. 606. Proclaims young Valentinian, xvi. 7. Commands under Gratian, 50. Put to death by Maximus, 53.

Merodach, a Babylonian deity, iv. 341.

Meroe, daughter of Cyrus, married to Cambyfes, v. 91. Killed by him, ib. & seq.

——— persuades Porus to submit to Alexander, viii. 303, 304.

† ——— an island in Ethiopia, xviii. 107. Its site, ib. & 108, n. Described, ib. & seq. Priests in high power, 115. Observe the Mosaic law, 118.

† ——— the city of, the seat of the Candaces, xviii. 108, 109.

† Meronea, taken by the Macedonians, vii. 433.

Merone outwitted by Aetius, xix. 87. Cared at Rome, 264. Succeeds Clodio, 265. His noble services to the Romans, ib. Reign, character and death, 266, & n. His line, ib.

Merula, Corn. success against the Gauls, xii. 303. Chosen consul, 543. Resigns to Cinna, 549. His death, 553.

Mesades king of the Odryssæ, ix. 519.

† Mesembria taken by the Bulgarians, xix. 402.

Meseus sent to assist the Tyrians in Spain, xviii. 385.

Meser divides Egypt among his three sons, ii. 89.

Mesessimorchadus king of Babylon, iv. 382.

† Mesha and Sephar of Moses, where sited, i. 473, 474.

† ——— the mount of, various opinions about, i. 473, 474.

† Meshech, where seated, i. 473.

† Mesian Forest, taken by Ancus, xi. 337.

† Mesopotamia conquered by Tigranes, ix. 332. By Mithridates, xi. 11. Plundered by Cosrhoes, 165. Subdued by Trajan, xiv. 581. Put under tribute, 586. Reduced by Lætus, xv. 103, &c. Revolts, 159. Ravaged by the Persians, 163. Recovered by Gordian, 204. Invaded by the Persians, 433, 473. Put to fire and sword by the Saracens, xvi. 283. By Cosrhoes, 311.

† Mesr,

† Mefr, Egypt fo called by the Orientals, i. 484.

Meflala, Valer. efcape from the triumph, xiii. 227. His account of Caffius's laft words, 262, & n.

—— L. Corvin. lands in Sicily, xiii. 334. Flagrant flattery to Tiberius, 479. Well raifed by Nero, xiv. 185.

—— Vifpanus commands the 7th legion, xiv. 387.

—— proſcribes Julianus, xv. 93.

—— Silius put to death by Heliogabalus, xv. 136.

Meflalina married to Claudius, xiv. 102. Great ſway over him, ib. & 113, 114. Cruelty and incontinency, 116, 117. Murders, &c. 127, & ſeq. Marriage to Silius, 135. Accuſation and diſtreſs, 136. Death, 139, & ſeq.

—— Statilia married to Nero, xiv. 253.

Mefſalinus, M. Valer. ſent into Dalmatia, xiii. 450. Motion againſt Piſo, oppoſed, 605, & n.

—— Catul. one of Domitian's informers, xiv. 491. His death, ib.

† Meſſana, Meſſina, a city in Sicily, deſcribed, vii. 141. Why ſo called, ib. Razed by the Carthaginians, 239. Rebuilt by Dionyſius, 248. Attacked by the Carthaginians, 324, & ſeq. Relieved by the Romans, 326. Beſieged by Hanno, 318. Inveſted by Octavian, xiii. 337. Seized and plundered by Plennius, 339. Inveſted by Himilco, xvii. 90. Taken and razed, 91. By Timoleon, 131. Maſſacres the Corinthians, 210. Invites the Romans, 220. Receives them, 225. Beſieged by Hanno, 226. Taken by the Romans, 229.

† —— the ſtreights of, deſcribed, vii. 139.

† Meſſene beſieged by Demetrius, viii. 409.

Mefſengers of good-news, their extorſions reſtrained, xv. 613.

† Meſſenia, Mycene, part of antient Greece, v. 604. The kingdom of, formed by Accriſius, 620. The kings of, 621, & ſeq. Challenged by the Heraclidæ, 631. Taken by them, 638. Regal dignity, aboliſhed, 639. Invaded by the Lacedæmonians, vi. 404. & ſeq. Subdued, 418, & ſeq. Recovered under Ariſtomenes, 419. Betrayed by Ariſtocrates, 420, & ſeq. Inſlaved by the Lacedæmonians, 425.

Meſſenian war, the cauſe of it, vi. 403. Second war, 418. & ſeq.

† Meſſenia, Mycene, a city in Argos, v. 619. Founded by Perſeus, 627.

† Meſſenians driven out of Peloponneſus, vi. 455. Rebel againſt the Achæans, 634. Rout them, ib. & ſeq. Poison Philopemen, 636. Punished by his ſucceſſor, 637.

Meſſian family, an account of, xv. 217. Meſſianus's embaffy and entry into Toulouſe, xvi. 257.

† Meſtella, a city in Iberia, ix. 608.

† Meſtroï, the ſecond race that governed Egypt, i. 273, & n.

Metellus reſcues the Palladium from the flames, v. 532. xii. 156, 157. His noble triumph over Afrubal, and ſucceſs in Spain, 134.

—— roman general's ſervices to the Achæans, vi. 655. To the Spartans, 659. His deputies affronted by the Achæans, 661. Defeats them, 663. Takes Thebes, &c. 664. Offers of peace rejected, ib. & 665. Goes into Macedonia, 666.

—— Q. Cæcil. conquers Macedon, xii. 323. & ſeq. Succeſs and noble behaviour in Spain, 358, & ſeq. Reſentment againſt his ſucceſſor, 361. Affaſſinated by Labeo, 393. His character of Scipio Africanus, 395. Cruelty to the Balerians, 402.

—— L. Cæcil. choſen conſul, xii. 422. Second conſulſhip, 427.

—— Caius Cæcil. ſucceſs in Macedon, xii. 430. Character, 447, 448. March into Numidia, 448. Succeſs againſt Jugurtha, 449. Proconſulſhip, 451. Siege of Zama, 452. Supplanted by Marius, 455. Succeſs in Numidia, 460. Triumph at Rome, 462. Enſnared by Marius, 503. Banished, 504. Biting farewell to Rome, ib. Recalled, 508. Noble ſpeech to Sylla, 571. Ill ſucceſs againſt Sertorius, 597. Defeats Hirtuleius, 607. And Perpenna, 609. Forced into Gaul, ib. & ſeq.

—— Quint. Cæcil. choſen conſul, xii. 509. Strict diſcipline, 511. Sent to defend Rome, 546. Retires into Afric, 548. Choſen conſul, 622. Oppoſes Pompey, 646. Seized by the tribune, ib.

—— Pius, ſucceſs againſt the conſuls, xii. 564, 565.

—— Scipio recalls Cicero, xiii. 15. Allies with Pompey, 31. Commands the centre at Pharfalia, 63. Paſſes into Afric, 86. Succeſs againſt J. Cæſar, 93. Rejects Cato's advice, 95. Defeated and killed, 96.

—— Luc. ſent to judge Jugurtha, xvii. 590. Excellent character, ib. & ſeq. Succeſs, ib. Threatning meſſage to Bocchus, 594.

† Metheg Amnia, Gath, ſo called, why, ii. 256, & n.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Methodius's learned confutation of Porphyry, xv. 329, n.

Methona, razed by Philip, viii. 85, 86.

Taken by Agrippa, xiii. 355.

Methufelah, the grandfather of Noah, i. 236.

† Methymia, a city in Lesbos, described, vii. 550.

Metius, Car. one of Domitian's informers, xiv. 491.

— Cassius's son put to death, xv. 333.

— F. Nichomach. speech to Tacitus on his election, xv. 276.

Metoicoi, at Athens what, vi. 132.

Metrodorus's principles of indivisible bodies, i. 114. Where born, vii. 560, & 562, n.

— ambassador to Tigranes, ix. 331. His death, 333.

Metrophanes ravages Eubea, ix. 398.

Metropolis surrendered to Cæsar, xiii. 59.

Mettinus, king of Tyre, father of Pygmalion, &c. ii. 380.

Mezentius's dreadful punishment revived, xv. 144.

Mezizius proclaimed at Syracuse, xvi. 347. Put to death, ib.

Micha, robbed of his Teraphim, iii. 488. & seq. The prophet, iv. 149.

Michaiah's prophecy against Ahab fulfilled, iv. 98, & seq.

Mice, bred in sholes in the Nile's mud, i. 537.

Michal, Saul's second daughter, married to David, iii. 544. Stratagem to save him, ib. & seq. Given to another, iv. 4. Restored to him, 5. Despises David's piety, 21.

Michael, chosen emperor, xvi. 380. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ib. Resigns to Leo, 381. Imprisoned by him, 382.

— Traulus forces Leo to assume the empire, xvi. 381. His treason and condemnation, 382. Mounts the throne by murder, 383, 384. Cruelty to Theodosia and her sons, 384. Horrid heresies, ib. Defeat, 385. Wicked and calamitous reign, 388. Death, 389.

— the son of Theophylus made colleague, xvi. 393. Becomes a second Nero, 397. Defeated by the Saracens, 398. Expedition into Crete, ib. Murder'd by Basilus, ib. Feneral honours, 400.

— a Paphlagonian raised to the empire xvi. 443. Leaves the government to his brother John, 444. Resigns and dies, 446, 447.

Michael Calaphates raised to the empire, xvi. 447. Cruelties and deposition, ib.

— Stratonicus chosen emperor, xvi. 454. Inability, ib. Conspired against, 455. Defeated, and resigns, 456, 457.

— Ducas set up by his uncle, xvi. 463. Fatal indolence, ib. Why nicknamed Parapanaces, 465. Forced to resign, 466. Flees to Robert Guiscard, 470.

— Paleologus defeated by the Turks, xvi. 520. By the Catalans, 521. Dies for the loss of his son, 525.

— forced to turn monk, xix. 410. Lays claim to the crown, ib. Dies, ib. & seq.

† Michmash, where fitted, x. 178, n.

Micipsa, educates Jugurtha, xii. 432. Books of Agriculture, brought to Rome, 354, n. Succeeds Masinissa, xvii. 582. Jealousy of Jugurtha, 584. Adopts him, ib. Dies, 585.

† Micri Canini island described, vii. 575. Micythus, a regent of Rhegium, retires into Greece, vii. 180.

Midas, king of Phrygia, v. 513.

— the son of, Gordius, v. 514, 515, n. Riches, &c. 515.

— II^d.

— III^d.

— IVth.

} v. 118.

Midian, the 4th son of Abraham by Keturah, ii. 130.

† Midianites, descend from him, ii. 130. Confounded with the Ishmaelites, ib. Their country, Arabia Petrea, described, ib. 131. Early use of writing, 132, 133. Wars, &c. 134, & seq. Sell Joseph to Potiphar, ib. Debauched the Israelites 140. Punished, ib. & seq. New wars against them, 141. Defeated by Gideon, 142, 143, & seq. Downfall foretold, 143. When blended with the Arabians, ib. & 144. See vol. xviii. 184.

† Migdol, a tower in Hebrew, ii. 578, & n. A city on the Nile, xviii. 89 n.

† Migdonia, conquered by Tigranes, ix. 332.

† Milan, declares for Vitellius, xiv. 239. Seized by Aureolus, xv. 238. Taken by Constantine, 371. Why the metropolis of Italy, 122, xvi. 250. Taken by Attila, ib. By Theodoric, xix. 185. By the Lombards, 386. By Belisarius, 465. Taken and put to the sword by the Ostrogoths, 469. Opens to Grimoald, 537.

Milcha, the wife of Nahor, ii. 417, & n.

Milesian fables what, xi. 28.

† Milesians, their state and character, vii.

I N D E X to the

vii. 117. How cultivated by the Parians, 5b. Transplanted by the Persians, 118, & seq.

† Miletum, by whom founded, vii. 116. Taken by the Persians, v. 175. By Alexander, 207. The state of it described, vii. 116, & seq. The tyrants of, 119.

—— tragedy of, vii. 118.

—— the temple of, to Caligula, begun, xiv. 60.

Miletus, chief of the Ionian confederacy, turns pirate, vii. 102.

† Milias, part of Lycia, so called, v. 589.

Milichus discovers a conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 239. His reward, 249.

Milinus, king of Crete, vii. 471.

Military treasure at Rome, what, xiii. 551, & n.

Militiæ magistri, their office and number, xv. 422.

Millo, that proclaimed Abimelech, who, iii. 504, & 505, n.

Milo surrenders Tarentum, ix. 576. Punished for his double parricide, 578. See also vol. xii. 90. & seq.

—— forwards Cicero's recall, xiii. 15. Bloody encounter with Clodius, 27. Banishment, 29.

Miltiades defeats the Persians, v. 119. vi. 183. His speech to Callimachus, 181, & seq. Unfortunate expedition against Paros, 188, & seq. See also vol. vii. 591, & seq. Death, and extract vi. 189, n. & seq. n.

—— chosen king of the Dolonci, ix. 513. Rescued by the Lampfacians, ib. Death, ib.

—— Ild, seizes on the throne, ix. 514.

† Miltine, where situate, xvii. 553, n.

Mina, its value, vi. 113.

—— of silver, x. 13, n. of gold, 247, n.

Minacius, Mag. his faithfulness to the Romans, xii. 519, 520.

Minchah, the offering of, among the Jews, its various kinds, iii. 232, n.

Mindarus defeated and killed, vi. 316, 468.

Minerva, how celebrated at Sais, i. 558. by the Trojans, v. 531. Her temple burnt at Affesses, 583. Her temple at Stymphalus, vi. 4. at Tegea, 11. of brass, built by Castor and Pollux, 59. At Agrigentum, why burnt, xvii. 65.

Minerva's target, a large dish, so called, xiv. 377.

Minervina married to Constantine, xv. 342.

Minervius's writings and character, xv. 512, n.

Mines king of Lyrnessus in Cilicia, v. 601.

Minios's haughty speech to the Roman ambassadors, ix. 23, 24.

† Minnith, a considerable city of the Ammonites, ii. 117.

† Minoa, by whom built, vii. 166.

† Minoas island, where, vi. 275. Taken by the Athenians, ib.

† Minorca island, described, xviii. 351.

Minos king of Crete, his bloody tribute on the Athenians, v. 649. Gives laws to his island, vii. 466. Whose son he was, ib. His reign, 472. Fleet, wars, &c. ib. &c. Cruelty to the Athenians, 473. War with Cocalus, 474. Murdered, ib. His laws, 475, & seq. Vid. & pag. 160. & seq.

Minotaur, described, vii. 475. v. 649, n.

Mint, when said to have been first erected, i. 382, n.

Minturniensis's high regard to distressed Marius, xii. 538.

Minutianus's writings and character, xv. 215, n.

Minutius's speech in favour of Coriolanus, xi. 440, 443. His speech to him, 450.

—— L. surprized by the Æqui, xi. 548. Degraded by Cincinnatus, 507.

—— L. M. superintendant of the provisions, xi. 548. Discovers Mælius's conspiracy, ib.

—— Tib. Augur. chosen consul, xii. 48. Slain by the Samnites, 49.

—— Rufus chosen general of horse, xii. 208. Accuses the dictator, 209, & seq. Disobeys him, 211. Made equal to him, 212, & seq. Submits to him, ib. Killed by the Carthaginians, 220. See also vol. xvii. 376, & 387.

Miriam, Moses's sister, whether one of the Hebrew midwives, ii. 520, n. Sent to fetch a nurse for him, 522. Smitten with leprosy for ill-language, iii. 8. Cured, ib. Her death, 21. Sepulchre, ib. n. Character and office, ib. &c.

—— a Jewish lady, eats her own child, x. 603.

Miseto of the oak, sacred among the Gauls, xviii. 412, n. Its virtues, &c. 416. 417, & n.

Misitheus, chief minister to young Gordian, xv. 203. Letter against his wicked

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

ed ministry, 203. Signal merit, 204. Honoured by the senate, 205. Death, ib.

Misor in the Phœnician records, the Mizraim of Egypt, i. 389, & n.

Missio, among the Romans, what, xiii. 505, n.

† Misna, where situate, xvi. 576.

Mithras, the Parthian name of the sun, xi. 7.

Mithradates, Astyages's herdsman, ordered to murder young Cyrus, v. 59. Brings him up, 60. Confesses it, 61. Punished for it, ib. & seq.

Mithridates I. 3d king of Pontus, ix. 379. Goes over to Alexander, viii. 169.

—— IId, war with Antigonus, ix. 380.

—— IIIId, his reign, ix. 381.

—— IVth, invaded by the Galatians, ix. 381.

—— Vth, wars with the Synopians, ix. 381.

—— VIth, a firm ally to the Romans, ix. 384. Murdered, ib.

—— VIIth, his glorious reign and conquests, ix. 385, & seq. Treachery, 388. Invades Bithynia, 390. Defeats the Romans, 393. Cruelty to them, 394, & seq. Defeated by the Rhodians, vii. 454, & ix. 397. Ominous prodigies against him, 399, n. Defeated by Sylla, 400. By Fimbria, 403. Peace with Sylla, 407, & seq. Cruelty to his son, 409. New war, 410, & seq. Ill-success before Cyzicum, 415, 417, & n. Defeats the Romans, 422. Forfok by his army, 424. Murders all his wives, &c. ib. Renews the war against Rome, 429. Defeated, 431. Letter to Arsaces, 339, n. Beats the Romans, 432, & seq. Besieged by Pompey, 436. Defeated again, 438. Flees into Scythia, 439. Appears afresh, 441. Forfok by his army, 443. Betrayed by his son, 444, & seq. Kills himself, 445. His character, 446, 447. Funeral, 448.

—— Iberus crowned king of Armenia, ix. 352. Invaded by Artabanus, ib. Sent prisoner to Rome, ib. Restored, ib. & seq. Betrayed by Pallio, ix. 354. Murdered, 355.

—— IId king of Armenia, joins with that of Pontus, ix. 383.

—— king of Parthia, takes Demetrius prisoner, ix. 135.

—— king of Pergamos's great services to Julius Cæsar, ix. 282, 286. Made king of Bosphorus, 624. Killed, 625. See also vol. xiii. 83.

VOL. XX,

Mithridates IId and IId kings of Iberia, ix. 610, & seq.

—— king of Atropatene, ix. 627.

—— of Comagene, made so by the Romans, ix. 644.

—— rescued by Antipater, x. 250, & 251, n.

—— IId king of Parthia's vast conquests, xi. 10, 11. Excellent character, ibid.

—— IId, murders his father, xi. 13. Driven out, ib. Put to death, 14.

—— king of Iberia, wars against the Parthians, xi. 56, 57. Restored by Claudius, xiv. 82.

—— put to death by Galba, xiv. 307.

Mithridatic War, vii. 75, & seq. ix. 387, & seq. Renewed, 390, & seq. Its duration, 446, n.

Mithrobarzanes restored to his father's crown, ix. 329.

Mitre of the Jewish high-priest described, iii. 266, 267, & n.

Mitula defeats the Romans, xix. 541. Made duke of Spoleto, 543.

† Mitylene, metropolis of Lesbos, vii. 550. Its worthies, ib. The seat of learning, 551. Taken by Mnemon, 557.

† Mitylenians, invaded by the Athenians, vi. 274. Succoured by the Peloponnesians, ib. & vii. 554. In high favour with Alexander, 557. Compassion for Pompey, xiii. 71, 72.

† Mizpah, where, x. 130, n. A place of worship to the Jews, ib.

Mizraim, the beginning of his reign, i. 363. The 2d son of Ham, 464. Why of the dual number, ib. The scripture-name for Egypt, 484.

† Mnemium, promontory in Ethiopia, xviii. 106.

Mnemon the Rhodian, invades Lesbos, vii. 557.

Mnemofyne, whence so called, viii. 465.

Mnester, a comedian, debauched by Messalina, xiv. 138, & n. Put to death, 139.

—— Agrippina's freedman, stabs himself at her funeral, xiv. 200.

Mnestheus undermines Theseus at Athens, v. 654. Ascends the throne, 655. Death after the Trojan war, 557, 656.

—— Admiral of the Rhodians, xiii. 243.

—— Conspiracy and cruel death, xv. 268, 269.

Mnevis, whether the same with Apis, xviii. 146, & n.

Z

Moab,

I N D E X to the

Moab, the father of the Moabites, born, ii. 93.

† Moabites, their origin, ii. 93. Where settled, 99. Their religion, customs and government, 100, & seq. Drive out the Emims, and driven by the Amorites, 103. Why not admitted to intermarry with the Israelites, 109. Subdue them during 18 years, 109, 110. Defeated by Ehud, 111. Hospitality to David, ib. Confederacy against him punished, ib. Rebel against Ahaziah, 112. Defeated by Jehoshaphat, 113, 114. Cruelty to the Edomites, 115, & seq. Subdued by Nabuchadnezzar, ib. Made tributary to Alexander Janneus, x. 216.

Moawias sells the Colossus, vii. 401.

† Moca, Moka, a city in Arabia Petraea, xviii. 186. Arabia Felix, 199. In Yaman, described, 200.

Modieratus's writings and character, xiv. 453, n.

Modares goes over to the Roman, xvi. 38. His character, 39.

Moderatus, one of Faustina's gallants, raised, xv. 36.

Modestus's cruelties in Palestine, xv. 491. To the orthodox, 625.

† Moedi plunder the Delphic oracle, ix. 524.

Moeris king of Egypt, made the famed lake of that name, ii. 22. His two pyramids, i. 508, & ii. 22. Other particulars of him, ib. & n.

† Moeris, the famed lake of, described, ii. 530, & seq. Its two pyramids in the midst, 532. The fishery of it, ib. Why called the lake of Charon, ib.

† Moesia described, xiii. 465, n. Yielded to Theodoric, xix. 183.

† Moesians subdued by Crassus, xiii. 376. Declare for Vitellius, xiv. 381, 382.

† Mogli, the antient name of Muscovy, whence, v. 389, 438.

Mohammed defeated in Persia, xi. 175. His successors subdue it, 176.

—— the impostor, spreads his doctrine, xvi. 342. His death and successor, ib.

—— tomb at Medina, xviii. 206. His birth and extract, 306.

—— general of the Saracens, his success against Justinian, xvi. 350. Recovers Armenia, 353.

—— invites the Turks to his assistance, xvi. 449. His death, 450.

—— the son of Bajazet defeats his four brothers, xvi. 543.

—— the son of Amurath, butchers all his brothers, xvi. 546. Shuts up the mouth of the Bosphorus, 547. Besieges Constantinople, 548. His fleet forced by the Genoese, 550. Impotent rage against them, ib. Vast causeway and bridge, 551. Cruelty to the Constantinopolitans, 554.

Mohammedan divines, their wretched philosophy, i. 118. And theology, ibid. & 175.

Molae, the primary particles of the earth, i. 129.

† Moldavia, part of antient Dacia, xix. 367.

Molech, Moloch, a deity of the Ammonites, ii. 118. Described, ib. & 119, n. Opinions about it, 120, n. The same with Chronos, xvi. 609, & n.

Molo, a prince of Syria, revolts from Antiochus, viii. 600. Success against him, 601. Defeated, 606. Kills himself, 607. His body crucified, ib.

† Molochath, where situate, xviii. 9. Molon, not the same with Apollonius, xii. 603, n.

Molouch-Al-Thoraif, the third Persian dynasty, why so called, xi. 177.

† Molossi, antient inhabitants of Greece, v. 604.

† Molossis, a province of Epirus, described, ix. 528. Famed for its mastiffs, 531. Subdued by Pyrrhus, 533.

Molossus king of Epirus, brought up by Helenus, ix. 536.

† Mona, Anglesey, by whom conquered, xviii. 667. Some antiquities of, ib.

Monad of Pythagoras, what meant by, i. 126.

Monarchical government, how introduced, i. 478.

Monarchs, how honoured by the Medes, iv. 458. By the Scythians, v. 448, & seq.

† Monastery of the Ark on the Cardu mountains, i. 321.

Monaxes's house burnt at Constantinople, xvi. 181.

Monaxius chosen consul with Plintha, xvi. 200.

† Mondars, their extract, kingdom, &c. xviii. 279.

† Mondus, an island and port in Ethiopia, xviii. 106.

Moneses goes over to Mark Antony, xi. 47.

—— general of Parthia sent into Armenia, xi. 63.

Moneta, money, whence so called, xi. 645, 646.

Moneta

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Moneta, silver, when first coined at Rome, xii. 94. When first alloy'd with copper, 225.

—despised by the Spartans, vi. 392.

—the temple of Juno Moneta built at Rome, xi. 645, 646.

Monima put to death, ix. 425, n.

Monks confined to their deserts, xvi. 89. Suppressed by Constantine IVth, 367.

† Monmouthshire, formerly part of Wales, xviii. 665.

Monobasus I. king of Adrabene, ix. 635.

—IId, made regent, ix. 636. Mounts the throne, 640.

Monomachus sent to poison Cantacusen, xvi. 537.

Monothelites, their doctrine, xvi. 342. Condemned, 349. Revived by Philippicus, 356.

Montanus, Traul. one of Messalina's gallants, put to death, xiv. 139.

—Jul. his chastising of Nero, xiv. 183. Forced to kill himself, ib.

—Alpinus sent into Germany with the news of Vitellius's death, xiv. 394.

Months, Jewish, their names, how ancient, iii. 205, 206, n. Roman, how corrected by Numa, xi. 318. Their names, whence, 319, n. How changed by Commodus, xv. 66.

Montius's noble speech to Gallus, xv. 463. Miserable death, 464.

Mont Morillon, the Gaulish temple of, described, xviii. 459, n.

Moon, when created, i. 147. How worshipped by the Egyptians, 556, 557. By the Ethiopians, xviii. 121. By the Gauls, 460, n. By the Saxons, xix. 11, 12.

—the temple of, at Rome, burnt, xiv. 229.

Moons, new, how observed by the Jews, iii. 201, & seq. How fixed, 202, n. Laws concerning that festival, 201, & seq.

Moors, see Mauritanians, xviii. 22. Defeated by the Romans, xiv. 669. Driven out of Spain, xv. 19. Defeated and transplanted, 306.

† Moph, Noph, see Memphis, xviii. 150.

† Mopsucrene, where sited, xv. 508. The place where Constantine died, ib.

† Mopsuestia, preserved by Antoninus, xiv. 667. Fortified by the Saracens, xvi. 353.

Mopsuestians murder Seleucus, ix. 155. Punished by Eusebes, ib. & seq.

† Mopsueta, a city in Cilicia Propr. v. 597.

Mopsus, who, xvi. 631. Worshipped at Carthage, ib.

† Moraw river in Germany, xviii. 592.

Mordecai, one of the heads of the returning Jews, x. 9. Who, ib. n. Esther's uncle, his genealogy, &c. 24.

More majorum, the punishment of, what, xiv. 287.

† Morea, where, and why so called, vi. 673.

† Moreh, the land of, where, ii. 399. Why so called, ib. n.

† Morena, part of Mysia, v. 561.

† Moresby, the famed antiquities of, xviii. 669.

Morgages, how made among the antient Athenians, vi. 113, 114.

† Morgantia, see Murgantium, vii. 142.

Morgantines, their treachery to the slaves, xii. 485.

Morgetæ, who, vii. 142.

† Moriah, the famed mount of, where sited, ii. 416, n. Why so called, ib. n.

† Morimena, Jupiter's temple at, ix. 461.

† Morini in Gaul, who, xiii. 19, xviii. 489, n. & 687. Subdued by Cæsar, 559. Attend him into Britain, 687.

Morinus's judgment of the Karaites, x. 375, n.

† Morocco, its extent, xviii. 2.

Mortagon relieves Constantinople, xvi. 386. Defeated, ib. Assists Michael against the rebels, xix. 404.

Mosaic account of the creation, i. 146, & seq. Explained, 160.

—laws, whether copied by Aristotle, viii. 170, n.

† Moschic mountains in Armenia, described, ix. 320.

† Moschiti, who and where sited, i. 469. Whether the Moscovites descended from them, ib.

Moschus, author of the atomic system, who, i. 113. Thought by some to be Moses, ib.

Moscovites, descended from Magog, v. 389, & seq. Have sainted Constantine the Great, xv. 416.

Moses born, i. 436, n. ii. 520. Concealed three months, ib. & 521. Brought up by Pharaoh's daughter, 522. His universal learning, 523. His forty years in Egypt, how spent, 525, & n. Forced to flee into Midian, 527. Lives forty years with Jethro, 529. Supposed to have writ the book of Job there, ib. & seq. Vision of the deity in the bush, 534. Returns into Egypt, 536. Bid to bring Israel out of Egypt, 545, & seq. Excuses himself from it, 547. Obeys and sets out, ib. & 548. Why smitten by an Angel in the inn, 550, 552.

I N D E X to the

M. His son circumcised by Zipporah, 544. Joins Aaron at Horeb; ib. & seq. Message to Pharaoh rejected, 555, 556. Turns his rod into a serpent, 559. The waters into blood, 561. Brings multitudes of frogs, 563. Of lice, 564. Of flies, 565. A murrain on the cattle, 566. Hail and thunder, ib. Mischiefs done by them, 568. Locusts, ib. A three days darkness in all the land, 569, & seq. How long time all these took him up, 570, n. Institutes the passover, ib. Prepares the people for their departure, ib. & seq. The death of the Egyptian first-born, 574. Order'd to depart, ib. & seq. Encamps at Succoth, 576. Consecrates the first-born there, ib. & seq. Removes to Ethan, 579. To Pihahiroth, 581. Overtaken by Pharaoh, ib. & seq. Divides the Red-sea, 582. The deed whether miraculous, 583, n. Song after the crossing it, 590. Brings manna for their food, 592, & seq. Waters out of the rock, 596. Whether this done in two several places, 597, n. Defeats the Amalekites, 598. Appoints judges under him, 600. Encamps at the foot of mount Sinai, 601, & seq. Goes up to it, ib. Receives the decalogue, 602. And the ceremonial law, 608. Ratifies the covenant, 614. Takes seventy elders with him up the mount, ib. Stays there forty days, ib. & seq. Given over for lost, 616. Comes down again, 619. Breaks the two tables, and destroys the golden calf, ib. & seq. Returns up to the mount, 621, & c. And stays another forty days, 623. Comes down with a radiant face, 624. Exacts a general offering for the tabernacle, ib. Appoints the grand council of seventy, iii. 4. The manner of their election, 4, 5, n. Heals Miriam's leprosy, 8. Sends twelve spies to view the promised land, ib. Quells a rebellion raised on their ill report of it, 9, & seq. Who are defeated by the Amalekites, 11, & seq. Condemns the sabbath breaker, 13. And Korah, Dathan, & c. to a dreadful end, 16, 17, & seq. Stays a second plague against the rebellious, 17. Smites the rock a second time, 21. Why excluded from entering to Canaan, ib. & seq. Sets up the brazen serpent against the fiery ones, 23. Consigns all the Midianites to destruction, 30. The occasion of it, ib. & 31, & n. Divides the land by lot, and takes a view of it on mount Nebo, 31, 32, 33. Invests Joshua his successor, 33, & seq. Speech to the Israelites, 38. Second, 39, & seq. Appoints a form for bringing the first fruits to God, 40. And blessing and curses to be set up on Ebal and Garizzim, ib. & seq. Confirms the covenant of Horeb, 42. His prophetic song, 43. And last blessing to the tribes, 45. Dies on mount Nebo, 46. Burial, character, & c. ib. & seq. Rabbinic and Mohammedic dreams and additions to his life, writings, & c. 47, & 50, & seq. His fabled conquest of Æthiopia, xviii. 140.

—one of the four Bulgarian kings, his death, xix. 413.

Mosolam, a noted Jewish marksman, the story of, x. 78, n.

Mosoles's rise and punishment, xvi. 373.

† Mosylon, a promontory in Ethiopia, xviii. 106. Its port, ib.

Mot, what in the Phenician cosmogony, i. 96.

Mother, a title given to the chief goddesses, vii. 155, n.

Motion of matter eternal, repugnant, i. 92.

† Motya described, vii. 236. Taken by Dionysius, 237. Its situation, xvii. 81. Stout defence, 83. Plundered, 84. Retaken by the Carthaginians, 88.

† Mount, sacred, why so called, xi. 434.

—the law of, what, xi. 519. Of offence, where situate, iii. 145.

Mountains, their greatest height, i. 295, n.

Mourning, how regulated by Moses, iii. 392, & seq. & n. By Lycurgus, vi. 384.

Mouse, one sold for 300 denarii, xvii. 402.

† Mozarabes, who, xviii. 256, & n. Officium Mozarabicum, in Spain, what, ib. & n.

† Muah, the royal residence of Yaman, xviii. 201.

Mucia, the festival of, whence so called, xii. 511.

—The lewd wife of Pompey divorced, 645.

Mucianus sent governor of Syria, xiv. 267. Declares there for Otho, 342, 378. Allies with Vespasian, ib. Marches against Vitellius, 380. Untimely jealous of Primus, 405, n. Entry into Rome, 417. Motly character, ib. Treachery to Primus, 430. Pleads in favour of informers, ib.

Mucius Cordus's unparallell'd bravery, xi. 399. Whence stiled Scævola, ib. Outwits Porfenna, 400. Chosen consul, xii. 371, & n.

Mugaris, king of the Hunns, takes Bosporus, xix. 98. Repulsed by John, ib.

† Mulotikum, where situate, ix. 510.

† Mulucha, Mollochath, river, boundary of Numidia, xvii. 541.

† —the castle of, described, xii. 465. Taken by Marius, ib.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Mummies, of Egypt, described, i. 573, & n. & seq. Of Persia, iv. 536.

Mummius, the consul, sent against the Achæans, vi. 664. & seq. Blockades Corinth, 666. Defeats the Achæans, 667. Takes and plunders Corinth, 668. His ill taste of architecture, 669. Triumph at Rome, 672. Ill success in Lusitania, xii. 333. Repulsed by the rebels, 618.

† Munda, where situate, xiii. 121, & n. Besieged, 124. Taken, 129.

— the battle of, xiii. 122.

Mundo's revolt in Pannonia, xix. 433. Submits to Theodoric, ib.

Mundon, the Goth, invades the Romans, xvi. 299.

Mundus's treachery to Paulina punished, xiii. 596, n.

— quells a riot at Constantinople, xvi. 309.

— success against the Bulgarians, xix. 394. Against the Ostrogoths, 452, n. Defeated and killed, 455.

Mundzuchus, king of the Hunns, xix. 44.

† Munichia, a sea-port in Attica, vi. 130. A prophecy about it fulfilled, 103. Garrisoned by the Macedons, 366. Taken by Dem. Polycertes, 372. Garrisoned by him, 376. Sold back to the Athenians, 377. Repaired by Adrian, vii. 87.

Munichian month, why changed, vi. 372.

Municianus, An. conspires against Caligula, xiv. 90. Against Claudius, 118. Kills himself, ib.

Muraena, left Prætor of Asia, ix. 409. Defeated by Mithridates, 410. His son more successful against him, 422 & n. Noble speech to Augustus, xiv. 389. Conspires against him, ib. Put to death, ib.

Mural crown, on whom bestowed, xi. 321. Who first obtained it, 601.

Murcia, the goddess of cowards, xviii. 478, n.

Murcus Stat. sent against Bassus, xiii. 116, n. Joins Cassius in Syria, 210. Defeats Dolabella's fleet, 213. The triumvir's fleet, 272. Forsakes his colleague, 310. And Pompey, 319. Murdered, ib.

Murder, wilful, no place of refuge for, iii. 282. Moses's law against it, ib. & 344. God's abhorrence of it, 344. How punished, ib. & seq. By whom cognisable at Athens, vi. 140.

† Murgantium, in Sicily, described vii. 342. Surrendered to Himilco, 367. Taken from the Samnites, xii. 56.

† Murodunum, Caermarthen in Wales, xviii. 667.

† Murfa, a city in new Pannonia, xv. 300. Where situate, 449.

— the battle of, fatal to the empire, xv. 450.

† Murfia, ruined by the Quadi, xvi. 301. Musa, princess of Bithynia, deprived of her succession, ix. 601.

— recovers dying Augustus, xiii. 384.

Musæum, of Alexandria, described, ix. 187.

† Musæum, taken and garrisoned by Demetrius, vi. 376. Re-sold to the Athenians by Diogenes, 377.

Music disapproved of by the Egyptians, i. 568. In high request among the Jews, iii. 531, 532, & seq. & n. Improved by David and his band, ib. & seq. Introduced into Persia, v. 348. Admired by the Spartans, vi. 391. Concerts of, at Rome, xii. 427. Used in Gaul at their banquets, xviii. 532, & seq.

Musical instruments, the first inventor of, i. 243.

Musicanus's submission and presents to Alexander, viii. 319, 320. Revolt, and crucified, 320, 321, & n.

Mustai of Athens, what, vii. 67, n.

Mustapha, strangled by Amurath, xvi. 544.

† Musulanians, who, and whence, xvi. 566, n. Where sited, xviii. 41. Serve under Tacfarinas, ib. Defeated, 43.

Muth, the son of Chronus, the same with Pluto, i. 400.

Mutilation first punished at Rome, xii. 494.

† Mutina attempted by the Boii, xii. 185. Relieved by Attilius, 186. The siege of, xiii. 180. Raised, 188.

— taken by Constantine, xv. 372.

— the battle of, xiii. 187. When fought, 188, n.

Mutines's valour maintains the Carthaginians in Sicily, vii. 386, & seq. Envied by Hanno, 388. Ravages the island, 389. Betrays Agrigentum to the Romans, 393. Rewarded for it, 394.

† Muza, an emporium in Arabia Felix, xviii. 199.

Muzalo made guardian to young Lascaris, xvi. 513. Assassinated, 514.

† Mycaberna taken by Philip, viii. 90.

† Mycale, the battle of, vi. 210.

† Mycena, and Mycenians; see Messena and Messenians, v. 604.

Mycerinus, the son of Cheops king of Egypt, ii. 52. Erects three grand pyramids, i. 507. Burial of his daughter, ib. Vain attempt to bely the oracle, ib. ii. 53, & 54.

† Myconians,

† Myconians, why subject to baldness, vii. 595.

† Myconus island described, vii. 595.

† Mygdonia, province of Macedon, xiii.

4. Where sited, 12.

Myla, a city in Sicily, described, vii. 322, 323, & n.

Myles, the son of Eurotas, vi. 46.

Myllos, an indecent statue in Ceres's temple, vii. 67, n.

† Myra, a city of Lycia, v. 590.

† Myrmidons, where seated, vi. 16. Why so called, ib. & vii. 634.

Myronides defeats the Corinthians, vi. 235. Valour against the Thebans, 237, & seq.

† Myronis island in Ethiopia, xviii. 107.

Myrratum Vinum in request at Rome, x. 510, n.

Myrsilus tyrant of Lesbos, vii. 555.

† Myrtea in Bithynia, by whom founded, ix. 580.

† Myfia described, v. 485, 486, & seq. Part of Asia Propria, ib. 561, & seq. Its soil, antiquities, &c. 566. Conquered by Cræsus, 568.

Myfians, side with the Trojans, v. 553. Their character, 567. Subdued, 568.

† Myfias, a river in Phrygia, v. 499.

† Mysocuros, the port of, where, xviii. 16.

Myssicus, Nic. excommunicates the emperor, xvi. 404. Deposed, 405.

† Mytistratum, taken and destroyed by Collatinus, xvii. 244.

† Myus, where, and by whom founded, v. 659.

N.

NAamah, the daughter of Cain, inventress of spinning, &c. i. 234.

Naaman cured of his leprosy by Elisha, ii. 314, 315. Renounces idolatry, 316. His hospital at Damascus for lepers, ib. & n.

† Naar-Malcha; see below, Nahar-Malcha, i. 191.

† Naar-Sares, a river of Babylon, iii. 308.

† Nab, a river in Germany, xviii. 592.

† Nababurum, where situate, xvii. 557.

Nabades defends Nisibis, xi. 139. Defeats the Romans, 140.

Nabal's churlish behaviour to David, iv. 4. Death, ib.

† ——— a city in Tunis, xvi. 578.

Nabarzanes's treachery to Darius, v. 231.

† Nabathea, where situate, xiii. 582 & n.

† Nabathean Arabs, invaded by Antigonus, viii. 393. & seq. Peace with his son, 394. Fall foul on his collector of the bitumen, 395.

† Nabatheans, inhabitants of Arabia Peetrea, xviii. 181, 209. Whence so named, 184. Where sited, ib. Way of living, 189.

Nabist tyrant of Sparta's cruelty to them, vi. 541, & seq. To the Argives, 615. Treachery to Philip, ib. Defeated by the Achæans, 621. Harassed by them, 623, & seq. Defeated afresh, ib. Assassinated by the Ætolians, 548, & vii. 30.

Nabocolassar, the Nebuchadnezzar of Scripture, iv. 387. Subjects Assyria to Babylon, 388. Destroys Nineveh, 389, 390. Other conquests, ib. & seq. Takes Jerusalem and Jehoiakim prisoner, 391. His dream of the image explained by Daniel, 392. Leads the Jews captives, 395. Besieges Jerusalem, 397, 398. Defeats Pharaoh-Ophra, 398, 399. Cruelty to Zedechiah and his sons, 399. Carries the rest into captivity, ib. & seq. His vast image set up, 400. Takes Tyre after a thirteen years siege, 403, & seq. Compleats the ruin of Judea, 404. Brings Egypt, &c. under tribute, ib. & 405. Imbellishes Babylon, 406, & seq. His dream of the tree interpreted, 419, & seq. His pride and metamorphosis, 420. Recovery, ib. & seq. Death, 422. Prophecy, ib.

Nabonadius, the murderer of Laborosoarchod, iv. 433. Reduces the sceptre to the Assyrians, ib. & seq. Defeated by Cyrus, 435, 436. How used by him, ib. & seq. Whether the Belshazzar of Daniel, or Darius the Mede, 439, & seq. See also vol. v. 73, 74, 80, 81.

Nabonassar, probably the Ninias of prophane history, iv. 374 & seq. His æra, 362. First Babylonish king in Ptolemy's canon, 371.

Nabopalassar wrests the kingdom from the Assyrians, iv. 384. Transfers it to Babylon, ib. &c. The Belshis of Ctesias, and Nanybrus of Damascen, 385.

Nabuchadnozor; see Nabocolassar, iv. 387, & seq. Alliance with the king of Media, iv. 484. Joint conquests with him, ib. & seq. Of Palestine and Jerusalem, 487, & seq. Invasion of Spain, xviii. 383.

Nabuchodonosar al Chyniladan invades Media, iv. 476, 477. Builds Nineveh, ib.

Nachor, Abraham's brother, ii. 417. His issue ib. n.

Nachoragan flayed alive, xi. 144, 145.

Nachoragan

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Nachoragan defeated in Lazica, xvi. 315.
 † Nachs-rustan mountain near Persepolis, iv. 564. Tombs and other antiquities of it, ib.

Nadab, the son of Aaron, ii. 549. Consecrated by him, 624. Killed by fire from heaven, ib. iii. 3, &c.

—— king of Israel, besieges Gibbeton, ii. 259.

Nadius, 2d king of Babylon, probably the Ctesian Ninyas, iv. 380.

Næniæ, by whom invented, vii. 578.

Nænius, the augur's contest with Tarquin, xi. 347.

—— the poet, his writings, &c. xii. 158.

† Nagidus, a Samian colony in Cilicia Aspera, v. 595.

† Nahar-malcha, or Basilicos Potamos, i. 191. iv. 306, 307. Whether the same with Ceuta, an artificial branch of the Euphrates, iv. 306, 307. By whom dug, ib. Its course, ib. See also vol. xiv. 526, & xv. 108.

Nabash king of the Ammonites, ii. 123. Routed and dispersed by Saul, ib. Kindness to David, ib.

Nahor, inventions ascribed to him, i. 382, n.

Nahum prophecies in Hezekiah's reign, iv. 156, n.

† Naid, the province of, where sited, xviii. 209.

Nails, why, and how used chronologically at Rome, xi. 625. The ceremony of driving them, ib.

† Naim, where situate, x. 447, n.

† Nairam, an antient bishopric of Arabia, xviii. 237.

† Naissus, taken by Attila, xix. 60. Described, ib. & seq. & n. Taken by the Ostrogoths, 176.

Nakraus, Bakraus, the first antediluvian king in Egypt, ii. 87.

Namea, the same with Diana, ix. 142, n. Her temple attempted by Sidetes, ib.

Names, the similitude of, a deceitful guide, i. 189.

—— various, of the Romans, explained, xi. 334, n.

Nana impregnated by a pomegranate, v. 505.

Nannachus king of Phrygia, v. 513, & seq.

Nanianus's success against the Lentienfes, xvi. 81.

—— against the Allemans, xix. 333.

Nannius's defeat and flight, xv. 593.

Nanybous, his history, iv. 366.

Naoudhenghian, by whom built, xii. 189.

† Naphthali, Jacob's 2d son by Bilhah, ii. 440. Jacob's prophecy to his tribe explained, 491. How verify'd, 491, 492, n. Their lot in the promised land, iii. 103. Carried captive into Assyria, iv. 137.

† Naphtuim, who, and where situate, i. 464, 465.

Napis king of Scythia, v. 470.

† Naples taken by Belisarius, xix. 453, & n. Its dreadful slaughter, 454, n. Besieged by Totila, 482. Taken and dismantled, 483, 484.

† —— the exarchate of, xix. 516. Its extent, 523, & n. Extent of its dukedom, 595.

—— dukes, why called consuls, xix. 595, & n. Why called Sicily, 597.

—— Theodoric's ominous statue set up at, xix. 429, & n.

† Naragara in Numidia described, xvii. 548.

Narbal king of Arad, ii. 392.

† Narbonne, by whom founded, xii. 426, & xviii. 553. Burnt, xiv. 671. Restored by Antoninus, ib. Taken by Ataulphus, xvi. 192. Relieved by Littorius, 223. Betrayed to the Visigoths, 271, & xix. 153. Taken by Theodoric, 163.

† Narbonensis, Gaul, ravaged by the Cimbri, xii. 446, 451. Forced to declare for Vitellius, xiv. 342.

† Narce taken by Hannibal, xvii. 490.

Narcissus, a favourite of Claudius, xiv. 104, & seq.

—— a tool of Messalina, xiv. 117. Affronted by the Gaulish army, 122. Betrays Messalina, 135. Murders her, 139. Imprisoned by Agrippina, 167. Kills himself, ib. & seq.

—— executed, xiv. 310.

—— a wrestler in favour with Commodus, xv. 56. Strangles him, 68. Condemned to the wild beasts, 108.

† Narisci, who, and where sited, xviii. 576. Revolt from the Romans, xv. 12.

Nars worshipped by the Arabs, xviii. 230.

Narses sent to compliment Probus, xi. 87. Mounts the Persian throne, 89. Success against Galerius, 89, 90. Ill success and death, 90, 91.

—— Sapor's ambassador to Constantine, xi. 96, & seq.

—— Persian general's success against the Romans, xi. 111.

—— Roman general's success against the Persians, xi. 140.

—— sent to assist Cosrhoes, xi. 161. Ill requited by him, 163, 164.

Narses

I N D E X to the

Narjes defeats the Romans, xv. 306. Defeated by them, 307. Sues for peace, 308. Obtains it, ib. Sent with a proud message to Constantius, 485. Pardoned by Maximus, xvi. 53.

—— defeated by the Romans, vi. 203. Success against them, 304. Revolts to them ib. Spirits up Cosrhoes against Phocas, 331. Defeats Leontius, &c. Burnt alive by Phocas, ib. &c.

—— success in Italy, xix. 381: Invites the Lombards thither, 382.

—— three generals of that name, xix. 383. Joins Belisarius, 466. Falls out with him, 467. Takes Imola, 468. Accused and recalled, 469. Sent back into Italy, 498. His huge mixt army, 500. Success again Totila, ib. & seq. Conquests in Italy, 503.

Narfi, Narfes, I. II. and III^d king of Parthia, according to the orientals, xi. 180, 181, n.

—— Ist king of Persia defeated and dies, xi. 194.

—— prince of Persia, left regent by his wandering brother, xi. 204.

Narfica, the tutelar deity of Vulturnum, xiii. 623, n.

Narteas, the temple of, vii. 514.

† Nasamoneans, who, xiv. 494. Cut off by Flaccus, ib. Whether totally or no, ib.

Nasamones, where sited, xviii. 67. Customs, &c. 68, 69. Why so called, 86, n.

Nasherohnean, a magnificent king of Yaman, xviii. 271.

Nasica Scipio Corn. his character, xii. 438.

Nasidius defeated by Agrippa, xiii. 355.

Natalis confesses a conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 239, & seq. Pardoned, 249.

Nathan sent to reprove king David, iv. 28, & seq.

Nathanael called by Christ, x. 423.

Natta Pinarius, a tool of Sejanus, xiii. 689.

† Nattapa, metropol. of Æthiopia, xiii. 382. Destroyed by Petronius, ib. &c. Residence of queen Candace, xviii. 96. Razed, ib. & 162.

† Naucratis, a colony of Grecians, in Egypt, i. 599.

Naudar, king of Persia. See Nudar, v. 264.

Navigation, the first account of, after the flood, i. 393, & n.

Naulobad, heads the Heruli, xv. 248. Surrenders to Gallienus, ib.

Naulobad taken prisoner and promoted, xix. 343.

† Naupaetus, where, and why so called, v. 637. Taken by the Athenians, vi. 238. Given to the Messenians, 455.

—— the peace of, vi. 599.

Nauplius, king of Eubœa, wrecks the Grecian fleet, vii. 642. His death, 643.

† Nauportum, plundered, xiii. 509. Where situate, ib. n.

Nauruz, a Persian festival, by whom instituted, v. 248.

† Naxians, who, and whence, vii. 584. Government, 586, & seq. Treachery to the Persians, 587.

† Naxicæ insulæ, where sited, xvii. 552.

† Naxos island, described, vii. 583. Its excellent wines, 584. Taken by Dionysius, 234. By the Thessalians, 585. By the Carians, ib. Invaded by Aristagoras, 587. Subdued by the Persians, ib. By the Athenians, ib.

Naxus, the son of Palamon, king of Naxos, vii. 585.

† — metropolis of Naxos, vii. 586. Taken and destroyed by the Persians, v. 117.

Nazaleod, defeated and killed by the Saxons, xix. 23. Uncertain who he was, ib.

Nazar, defeats the Saracens fleet, xvi. 401.

Nazarite, Christ, why so called, x. 385. That prophecy explained, ib. n. The true sense of the word, 387, n.

Nazarites, who, iii. 249. Why abstained from wine, ib. Women free to the same vow, ib. & seq.

Nazarius's writings, &c. xv. 424, n. Character of Julian, 501.

Nazianzen's character of Julian, xv. 501. Just suspicion of his hypocrisy, 525. Dreadful account of the Gothish invasion, xvi. 37. Made bishop of Constantinople, 43. Letter to Ellebichus, 72.

† Nazianzum, a city in Cappadocia, viii. 458.

† Neapaphos, in Cyprus, described, vii. 488.

† Neapolis, one of the four quarters of Syracuse, vii. 144.

—— when first added to it, 146.

† — a city in Thrace, ix. 507.

† — in Italy, by whom built, xii. 7. Plundered by Calpurnius, 547.

† — of Shechem, whence so called, xiv. 451.

† — an antient emporium of the Carthaginians, xvi. 577. Where sited, ib.

Neapolitans, their unshaken fidelity to the

NINETEEN VOLUMES:

the pope, xix. 562. Whether still under the emperors, ib.

Nearchus, admiral of Alexander, viii. 314. Sails down the Indus, 323, 324, & n. Rejoins him, 330.

Nebazaradan, one of Nebuchadnezzar's generals, takes Jerusalem, iv. 399. Cruelties committed by him, 400.

Nebo, an idol of the Babylonians, ii. 102, & iv. 338. The Chemosh, &c. of the Moabites, ib.

† — the mount where Moses viewed the promised land, iii. 33. And died, 46.

† — a city of Arabia Petrea, xviii. 183.

Nebridus refuses to swear to Julian, xv. 505. Marries Salvina, xvi. 34.

Nebuchadnezzar. See before Nabocassar, iv. 387.

Nebuzaradan puts the Ammonites to fire and sword, ii. 129.

† Neckar river in Germany, xviii. 592.

Nectanebes, king of Egypt, ii. 83. Defends it against the Persians, and dies, ib. &c.

Nectanebus, king of Egypt, ii. 84. Rebelled against, ib. Invaded by the Persians, flees into Ethiopia, 86. The last king of Egypt, ib.

Nectaridus, Count, killed in Britain, xv. 588. & xviii. 714.

Nectarius, bp. burnt in his house by the Arians, xvi. 82.

† Nectiberes, where situate, xviii. 4.

Necus, king of Egypt, succeeds Samniticus, ii. 61. The Pharaoh Necho of scripture, ib. Attempts a canal from the Nile to the Red-sea, 62. Defeats king Josiah, ib. Takes Carchemish, 63. Imposes a tribute on Judea, ib. & seq. Defeated and dies, ib.

Nego, an Assyrian or Babylonian deity, iv. 341.

† Negra, where situate, xiii. 381.

† Negroes, whether descended from Adam, xviii. 81, 82. The extent of their country, 56, 60. The rest see under Æthiopia.

† Negropont, Eubœa, why so called, vii. 640, 641.

† Nebardea, or river of knowledge, where, &c. iv. 397.

Nehemiah, why his account differs from Ezra, x. 5. Succeeds him, 38. His character, 48. Repairs the city and temple, 49, 50, & n. & 54. Generosity at Jerusalem, 53, 54, & seq. Reforms the Jewish abuses, 55, & seq. His death, 60.

VOL. XX.

† Nehemiah, the well of, in Judea, iii. 144.

† Neleus river in Eubœa, vii. 643.

† Nemea, a city in Argos, v. 619.

† — river in Peloponnesus, vi. 616. & n.

Nemean games, by whom instituted, v. 619. Wood, 629, n.

Nemesis, worshipped by the Mysians, v. 567. Her statue at Rhamnus, 641, & n.

† Nemetes, who and where sited, xviii. 577.

† Nemrim, a city in Arabia Petrea, xviii. 183.

† Neocæsaria, a city in Pontus, ix. 373. Ruined by an earthquake, xv. 436.

† Neocastrum, a Turkish fort at the mouth of the Bosphorus, xvi. 547.

Neolaus, his tragical end, viii. 607.

Neomenia; see Moon.

Neoptolemus, 1st king of Epirus, ix. 528.

— Id, set up against Pyrrus, ix. 544. Put to death, ib. & seq.

— a flattering poet to Philip, viii. 126, n.

— the son of Amyntas killed, viii. 167.

— governor of Armenia, defeated, viii. 368, & seq. Killed, 369.

Nephe, Nephthys, Finis Victoriæ, Venus so called, ii. 4.

† Nephelæ mountains in Thessaly, inhabited by Centaurs, vi. 16.

Nephereus king of Egypt, ii. 82.

Nepherotes, the last of the Mendesian race in Egypt, ii. 83.

Nephilim, how interpreted, i. 250, n.

† Nephiris, where situate, xvi. 547.

† Nephthalite Hunns, where sited, xix. 41. Subdue the Persians, ib. & seq. Their character, 42. Repulsed before Edeffa, 48.

Nephthis, among the Egyptians, what, i. 465.

Nepos, Licin. his decree about fees, xiv. 569.

— deposition and flight, xvi. 281, 282.

— M. Manil. sent against Carthage, xvii. 522. Besieges it by sea and land, 528.

Nepotianus's revolt, xv. 444. Betrayed and killed, ib.

— sent against Remismond, xvi. 269.

Neptune, or Posidon, the son of Pontus, i. 396, 397. Why worshipped at Tenos, vii. 596, 597. One of the Carthaginian deities, xvi. 625. Why so called, xvii.

563, n. xviii. 515, n. Worshipped in Mauritania, 25. The first king of it, 31.

† — his famed temple at Corinth, vi. 37, & seq. At Sparta, in form of a grotto, 48, n. At Athens, 128.

Neptys, the meaning of, xviii. 25.

† Nequinium, a city in Umbria, described, xii. 52. Betrayed to the Romans, ib.

Neratius, Prisc. a famed lawyer, in favour with Trajan, xiv. 595.

Nereus, the father of Pontus, supposed to be Japhet, i. 396, & n.

Nergal, a Persian deity, iv. 203. And Assyrian, 341.

Neriglissar, Nerighsoroor, kills the king of Babylon, iv. 427. And mounts the throne, ib. Invites all nations against the Medes and Persians, ib. Defeated and slain, 430. Probably Darius the Mede, ib. See also vol. v. 70, 72.

† Neritus, mount, where situate, vii. 630.

Nero, Claud. over-reached by Asdrubal, xii. 257, & seq. Chosen consul against Hannibal, 269. Success against him and Asdrubal, 270. Chosen consul against Carthage, 289.

—— T. opposes the conspirators sentence, xii. 637. Why that name was assumed by the Claudian family, xiii. 497, n.

—— the son of Germanicus made questor, xiii. 607. Marries Julia, 608. Recommended to the Senate, 629. Betrayed by Sejanus, 656, & seq. Accused by Tiberius, 668. Banishment and death, 669.

—— the emperor, born, xiv. 51. Takes the toga, &c. 148. Commands in Spain, xviii. 483, 484. Marries Octavia, xiv. 160. First orations, ib. & seq. Proclaimed, 167. First speech to the senate, 170. Modesty and moderation, 172. Shakes off his mother's sway, 173. Poisons Britannicus, 174. Affected clemency, 181. Real debauchery, 182, & seq. Falls in love with Poppa, 186. Triumphs over the Armenians, 192. Hatches his mother's death, 194, & seq. Perpetrates it, 199. Letter to the senate upon it, 201. Grand entry into Rome, 202. Inward remorse, ib. Follows music, plays, &c. 203. Treacherous answer to Seneca, 217. Murders Sylla and Plautus, 218. And Octavia, 220. Marries Poppa, 219. Profuse shews, 222, & seq. Turns stage-singer, 223. Drops his Grecian expedition, 225, & seq. Horrid obscenities, 226. Behaviour at the burning of Rome, ib.

& seq. His golden palace described, 229. & n. Horrid extortions, 234, & seq. Threatened by dire prodigies, 135, & n. Conspired against, 236, & seq. Condemns the conspirators, 240, & seq. Cruelty to their families, 248. Resumes his harp, &c. 251, & seq. Puts many worthies to death, 257, & seq. Crowns Tiridates, 263. Mad journey to the Olympic games, 264. Buys 18000 prizes, 265. Infatuated by the Delphic oracle, 266. Strips Apollo's temple, ib. Vain attempt upon the Corinthian isthmus, 267. Fetched back to Rome, 271. Shipwrecked, ib. Pompous entry into Naples, Rome, &c. described, ib. Resumes his plays, &c. 272, & seq. Method of preserving his voice, ib. A new conspiracy, 273. His shameful unconcern, 278. Mad resentment against Vindex, ib. & seq. Against Galba, 279. Drops his desperate designs, 280. Assumes the fasces, ib. Bloody intention, ib. Incenses the people, 284. Desperate condition, ib. & seq. Retires from Rome, 286. Distress and despair, ib. & seq. Condemned by the senate, 287. Base cowardice and death, 288. The day, 289. Funeral, &c. ib. Buys a vast quantity of amber from the Etrusci, xviii. 583, 584. Several Pseudo-Nero's after him, xiv. 290. Strange notions about him, 291. Contemporaneous writers, ib. n. & seq. Obsequies performed by Vitellius, 377.

Nero, an impostor in Asia betrayed by the Parthians, xiv. 503.

† Neronia, New Artaxata, where, and why so called, ix. 315.

† Nertobrigia, xii. 360. The siege of, raised by Metellus, ib.

Nerva, Licin. bribed against the slaves, xii. 483. Defeated by Salvius, 484.

—— M. Cocceius starves himself to death, xiv. 15, 16.

—— Chosen consul, xiv. 81, & n. Amply rewarded by Nero, 250.

—— his life saved by an astrologer xiv. 491. Chosen consul, 504. Banished to Tarentum, 516. Stirred up by Apol. Tyanneus, 517, & 538.

—— Coccei, the beginning of his reign, xiv. 545. Extract, ib. & seq. Excellent character, 546. Jealous of Domitian, 547, 548. Happy reign, 548. Generosity, ib. & 550. Lenity ib. & 552. Adopts Trajan, 553. Dies, 554.

† Nervii, who, and where, xiii. 17. Bravery against J. Cæsar, ib. Defeated, ib. Tribes subject to them, xviii. 494, n. Subdued by Cæsar, 560.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Nessus the Centaur killed, vi. 57, n.
Nestor's writings and character, xv. 123, n.

— Julian put to death by Heliogabalus, xv. 152.

Nestorians driven out of Mycena, v. 638. Settle at Athens, ib.

Nestorius condemned by a council, xvi. 220.

Nethinims, who, and why so called, iii. 205, 288, 289. Their low office, 288.

Nevers, count, assists Manuel, xvi. 541. Taken prisoner, ib.

Nevila, sent into Pannonia, xv. 507. Guards Sucidava, ib. Made one of the Chalcedonian Judges, 530. Consulship and reception from Julian, 534.

† Neuri, where seated, v. 442. Described, 463. Why said to turn into wolves, xviii. 619, n.

New-year's gifts at Rome, by whom introduced, xiv. 15.

Nexi, among the Romans, what, xi. 419, n.

† Nicæa, built by Alexander, viii. 304. Taken by Triarius, ix. 420.

† — in Bythinia, by whom built, ix. 590. Described, ib.

— rebuilt by Adrian, xiv. 620. Fined for abusing Hipparchus, xv. 9.

— the battle of, xv. 98.

Nicagoras's writings and character, xv. 215, n.

Nicander king of Sparta's reign, vi. 404. Wars against the Messenians, ib: & seq.

— deputy of Ætolia to Philip, vii. 25. Carested by him, 48. Invades Acarnania, 58.

— king of Cos, vii. 553.

Nicanor, Cassander's general over the Athenians, vi. 369, & seq. His lot after Alexander's death, viii. 372. Defeated by Seleucus, 392. Rejects Polysperchon's edict, 436. Defeated by Clytus, 439. Defeats him, ib. Slain by Cassander, 140.

— fatal expedition against the Jews, x. 129, & 132. Second, 154. Peace with Maccabeus, 155. Treachery to him, 157. Cruelty to the Jews, ib. & seq. Blasphemous speech, 159. Defeat and death, ibid.

— Titus's general wounded before Jerusalem, x. 599.

Nicaria, vid. Icaria, vii. 566.

† Nice, utterly destroyed by an earthquake, xv. 537. Taken by Procopius, 615. Overturned by a second earthquake, 623. Delivered up to Sclerus, xvi. 431. Taken by the Christians, 481. Erected into an empire, 505. By whom, xviii. 307, 308. Its monarchs, ib. & seq. Taken by the Turks, xvi. 532.

Nicea, Flavia, her monument of Pierius, xiv. 468.

Nicephoras's account of Helena confuted, xv. 338.

Nicephorus rebels against his brother, xvi. 369. Banished ib. Severely used by Constantine III. 373.

— the brother of Constantine banished and murdered, xvi. 374.

— a Patrician deposes Irene, xvi. 376. Declared emperor, ib. His cruelties, 377. Defeated by the Saracens, 378. Slain, 379. His character, 380, & seq.

— Phocas's success in Crete, xvi. 418. Sent for to court, 419. Forced to take the purple, 420. Excommunicated and restored, ib. Success against the Saracens, 421. Murdered, 422. His character, ib. & seq.

— Vranus's success against the Bulgarians, xvi. 436.

— Comnenus's eyes put out for his virtue, xvi. 439.

— Outwitted by Theodora, xvi. 453.

— Basilianus taken prisoner by the Turks, xvi. 461, 462.

— Boloniates usurps and resigns the empire, xvi. 466.

— success against the Bulgarians, xix. 401. Defeated and killed by them, ib.

Nicetas conspires against Phocas, xvi. 333. Murdered by Nicephorus, 367.

Nicholaus the Syracusan's brave speech in favour of the Athenian prisoners, vii. 208.

— officer to Ptolemy, his signal fidelity, viii. 615. Made his generalissimo, ib. Defeated by Nearchus, 617.

Nicias, Athenian general's contest with Cleon, vi. 280. Takes Citherea, 283. Gives name to the Nicean peace, 287. Opposes the descent into Sicily, 296. Sent thither against his will, ib. Ill success at Syracuse, 300, & seq. Forced to surrender to Gylippus, 302. Put to death by the Syracusans, 303.

— sent into Sicily, vii. 189. Surprises Olympicum, 193. And Epipola, 194. Driven out by Gylippus, 196. Defeated at sea, 197. Frightened by a lunar eclipse, 200. Second defeat, 202. & seq. Outwitted by Hermocrates, 204, & seq. In great distress, 205, & seq. Surrenders to Gylippus, 207. Condemned to death, 210.

— Perseus's general condemned to death, viii. 506.

I N D E X to the

Nicias Pyrrhus's physician's treacherous offer, ix. 564. Rejected by the Romans, ib. His punishment, 568.

— a wit, his untimely pleasantry, vii. 386.

Nicknames, common among the Romans, xiii. 511, & n.

Nicocles, tyrant of Sicily, driven out, vi. 554, n. — 1st king of Cyprus dethroned, vii. 494. — Ild, his reign, 503.

— king of Paphos and his family kill themselves, vii. 505.

Nicocrates king of Salamis, his noble library, vii. 497.

Niocreon, 1st king of Salamis, vii. 494. — Ild, his cruelty, 498.

Nicodemus, Aristobulus's ambassador to Pompey, x. 203.

— a Jewish ruler comes to Christ by night, x. 427. The substance of his doctrine to him, 428, n. Pleads for him against the Pharisees, 475. Embalms his body, 518.

Nicodromus the Athenian invades Ægina, vi. 176.

Nicolas, the deacon, whether the author of the Nicolaitan sect, x. 541, 542, n. Ingratitude to Basilus, xix. 416.

Nichomachus's arithmetic, xv. 427, n. Writings, &c. 274, n.

Nicomedes the Spartan, defeated at Tanagra, vi. 455.

— prince of Bithynia, escapes his father's treachery, ix. 494, & seq. Takes up arms against him, 495, & seq. Puts him to death, 496. Calls in the Gauls, viii. 522, ix. 594. Gives them part of Asia Minor, 595. Builds Nicomedia, ib.

— Ild, his obscure reign, ix. 600.

— Ild, allies with Mithridates, ix. 387, 600. Driven out of Cappadocia, ib. Wars against Pontus, 391, 600. Reduced to a private life, ib. Restored and dies, ib. &c. — Lampoon'd for his familiarity with J. Cæsar, ix. 601. The last Bithynian king, ib. See also vol. xii. 482, 586.

† Nicomedia, metropol. of Bythia, ix. 581, 595. Made Constantine's residence, 581. Where situate, 591. Repaired by Adrian, xiv. 620. Plundered by the Scythians, xv. 239. Beautified by Dioclesian, 317, 318. Destroyed by an earthquake, 489. Rebuilt by Julian, 535. Taken by the Turks, xvi. 532. By the Goths, xix. 124.

— the famed palace of, burnt, xv. 311.

Nicon goes over to Hannibal, xvii. 428. Defeats the Romans at sea, 445. Noble death at Tarentum, 452.

Nicopolis, Sylla's generous courtesan, xii. 466.

† — a city in Armenia Minor, by whom built, ix. 368.

— in Thrace, by whom founded, ix. 510.

— why so called, xiii. 355. The colony of, by whom founded, xiv. 451.

— in Dacia, by whom built, xiv. 575.

— Taken by the Goths, xix. 128. By the Bulgarians, 411. Submits to Deleanus, 422. Plundered by the Ostrogoths, 498.

Nicostratus, bastard of Menelaus king of Sparta, vi. 62.

— Achæan Prætor defeats the Macedonians, vi. 616.

† Nieper river, see Borysthenes, v. 443, & 445, n.

† Niester, see Tyras, v. 443.

Niger, a Jewish captain's defeat and narrow escape, x. 579. Success in Dalmatia, xv. 55. — Pescennius made governor of Syria, 56. Success against Maternus, 61. Excellent character, 86. Rise and strict discipline, ib. & seq. Revolt in Syria, 91. Prepares against Severus, 97. Proscrib'd by the senate, 98. Defeated, 99. Defeated and put to death, 100. His black statue described, 101, n.

† — river, xviii. 53, 81, 102. Why so called, ib. Its course, &c. ib.

Night Mare, whence so called, xix. 124.

Nigrinus, Domit. put to Death, xiv. 616. Brave defence of Aquileia, xv. 507. Executed for a jest, 610.

† Nigris river where, xviii. 44.

† Nigritæ, who and where situate, xviii. 81. The same with the Metanogetuli, 53. Their Commerce, 55.

† Nigritia, by whom peopled, xviii. 53, 54, 57.

† Nile, its sources unknown to the ancients, i. 491. Their number and course, ib. How high it swells, ib. & seq. The solemnity of cutting the canal of Bulac, ib. The sacrifice of a girl abolished by the Turks, 493, & seq. The manner of conveying its water into their lands, 495. Its fecundity, 497. Of animals, ib. How they secure themselves from its inundation, 498. The causes of it, ib. Of birds peculiar to it, 501. Fish, 502. Whence called Nile, ii. 51. A further description of it, xviii. 99. Causes of its overflow, 101, & seq. How divided, 102. Pass capable of being stopped by the Abassine princes, 103, & n. Its various names, 104. Rivers, course an

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

and cataract, ib. & n. Course turned by Memnon, 149. Etymon of Nile, ib. n.

Nileus, the son of Codrus, withdraws from the Athenians, v. 658, 659. Cities built by him, 659.

Nilometers, described, i. 494.

Nilus, king of Egypt, ii. 51. Renders the Nile serviceable, ib.

Nimrod, the sixth son of Cush, j. 359. Why so called, ib. n. & seq. Why so ill thought of, 360. Thought the first king after the flood, 362. Whether the founder of Babylon, &c. 365. Whether the same with Belus, ib. Various traditions about his death, 366, & n. Makes Babel the seat of his empire, 463, 464. Supposed the first tyrant, 480.

Nineveh built, iv. 230, 231. Where sited, i. 370, & n. Destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, 390, 497. In what year of Jehoiakim's reign, 390, & 479, 487.

Ninos, Nineveh taken by Meherdates, xi. 61. By Trajan, xiv. 585.

Ninus's story a copy of that of Sesostris, iv. 224, n. Takes Babylon, 226. His conquest, 227. Return, 230. Builds Nineveh, ib. Preparations against the Bactrians, 231, 234. Smitten with and marries Semiramis, 236. Takes Bactria, ib. — king of Lydia, v. 580.

Ninyas, causes his mother to be assassinated, iv. 248, & n. Succeeds her, 250. His character, ib. & seq.

† Niphates mount in Armenia, ix. 321.

† Nisa, the plains of described, iv. 450.

† Nischabour, by whom built, xi. 189. Why so called, ib.

† Nisea, where, vi. 102. Taken from the Athenians, ib. Retaken and fortified, 275.

† Nisibis, the province of, where, xi. 58. Taken by Tigranes, ix. 332. By Lucullus, 342, 428. Why given to Izates, xi. 58. Taken by Trajan, 65. Restored to Sapor, 102. Invaded by the Romans, 112. Declares for Varamus, 154. Submits to Cosrhoes, 160.

† Nismes, the antiquities of, by whom built, xiv. 618. The birth-place of Anton. Pius, 648. Metropol. of the Volscæ, xvii. 346, n.

Nisroch, the chief deity of the Assyrians, iv. 203.

† Nissa, the place of Constantine's birth, where, xv. 335.

† Nissava river in Numidia, xvii. 559.

† Nisyra island, how parted from that of Cos, vii. 570.

Nitocris, the beautiful queen of Memphis builds its third pyramid, 604, n. Succeeds her brother, ii. 21. Revenge for her brother's death, ib. An Ethiopian by birth, 16. — Mother to Nabonadius king of Babylon, iv. 434. Fortifies her metropolis, ib. Works and monuments, ib. Supposed a Mede by Birth, ib. Has the glory of her son's reign, ib.

† Nivaria island, where, and why so called, xviii. 21.

Noachidæ, the policy of, i. 478.

Noah, the import of that name, i. 253, n. & 436, n. Preaches repentance, ib. The son of Lamech, ib. Directed to build the ark, 255. Comes into it, 302, 303. Comes out of it, 306, 341. Precepts given him by God, 341. Covenant with him, 343. The inventor of agriculture, 253, n. Where first settled, 343. Not the Chinese Fohi, ib. Acknowledged by the Turks, 254, n. His posterity, 347. Their first migrations, 407. Divides the earth between them, 444. Worshipped by the Armenians, ix. 325. Remains of his ark at Cæron, 636. Whether he came into Italy, xi. 272. His pretended coming into Spain, xviii. 372.

† Nabatæ, who and where, xviii. 92, 164. Plunder the empire, ib. Their religion, &c. ib. & n.

Nobiles among the Romans, who, xii. 513, n. Augustus's law in their favour, xiii. 412.

Nobilissimus, when first given, xv. 423.

Nobility, their arrogance suppressed by Constantine, xv. 391.

Nocca, Neptune worshipp'd by the Saxons, xix. 12.

† Nod, the land of, where situate, i. 231.

† Nola, where, xii. 34. Taken by the Samnites, ib. Besieged by Hannibal, 235. Taken by the allies, 512. Retaken by Sylla, 526. Reduced by him, 586. Amuses Hannibal till succour'd by Marcellus, xvii. 397, & seq. Divided within, 421.

Nomade, Scythians, v. 463, & seq. Libians, see Libyans, xvii. 565.

Nomen, among the Romans, what, xi. 334, n.

Nomentum, the battle of, xi. 550.

Nomes, in Egypt, their origin and number, i. 489.

† Nomohætæ, at Athens, their office, vi. 143.

Nomophilaces, their office, vi. 143.

Nonnicheas's desperate end, xvi. 187.

I N D E X to the

Nonnius Marcellinus Writings and character, xv. 514, n.

— Phil. governor of Britain, xviii. 711. Stabbed by Apuleius, xii. 501.

— Octavian's officer insulted by the veterans, xiii. 302. Drowned, ib.

Nooman brings up the young prince of Persia, xi. 201. Builds him two wonderful castles, 202. Turns Christian and hermit, ib.

† Norba prætoria, a city in Lusitania, xviii. 329. The sad catastrophe of, xii. 572.

Norbanus C. Jun. marches against Sulla, xii. 560. Defeated by him, 561. By Metellus, 565. His escape and death, 566. — Octavian's general sent to guard the Macedonian passes, xiii. 257. Driven off by Brutus, 258. — Caius chosen consul, 532. Assassinated, xiv. 105.

Norici, subdued by the Romans, xiii. 407. Defeated by Ælius, xvi. 219.

† Noricum, the kingdom of, described, xiii. 406, n.

† Northumberland, why so called, and Valentia, xviii. 670. Made a kingdom, xix. 30. Its extent, ib. & seq.

Nothos, among the Athenians, what, vi. 332.

† Noticornu, a promontory of Ethiopia, xviii. 106.

Notitia imperii, when and by whom written, xvi. 262, n.

Novellæ, the constitutions of Justinian, so called, xvi. 318.

† Novempopulania, the antient name of Antioch, xvi. 200.

Novenciles Dii, whence so called, xi. 659, n.

Novi among the Romans, who, xii. 513, n.

† Noviodunum, Noyons, xiii. 16. Taken by Cæsar, 29. Plunder'd by the Ædui, xviii. 560.

Nouschirvan, prince of Persia, why so called, xi. 217. His excellent reign, ib. & seq. Generosity, 218. Division of Persia, 219. Conquests, ib. & seq. Extent of his empire, 221. Defeats his rebellious son, 223. Defeated by the Armenians, 224. His last instructions, 225. Character, 226, n. & seq. n.

Nouschizad, prince of Persia, brought up a Christian, xi. 222. Revolts against his father, ib. Defeated and killed, 223.

† Nubians, who and where sit'd, xviii. 190, & n. By whom converted, 165. Ally with the Romans, xv. 306. Repulsed by Marcian, xvi. 354.

† Nubium, a city in Iberia, ix. 608.

† Nuceria taken by Fabius, xii. 44. Revolts, 482. Taken by Hannibal and burnt, xvii. 398.

Nudar king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 264, & seq. Put to death by Apheresia, 266.

Numa Pompilius, chosen king of the Romans, xi. 314. His religion, 315, & seq. Laws, 317. Death, 318. Obsequies, ib. Books ib. & n.

† Numantia, where, xii. 372. Besieged and destroyed, 374. See also vol. xviii. 349, & n.

Numantine war, the cause of, xii. 362. Success, ib. & seq. Peace, 367. Broken, 369, & seq.

Numantines, their desperate end, xii. 374. xviii. 349, n.

Numbers, held by Pythagoras the principles of all things, i. 128.

Numenes, writings and character, x. 78, n.

Numerarii, in Britain, their office, xviii. 677.

Numerianus's stratagem in favour of Severus, xv. 104.

— the son of Carus created Cæsar, xv. 287. Proclaimed emperor, 289. Killed by Aper, ib. His character and funeral obsequies, ib.

Numerius Fab. triumphs over the Salentines, xii. 95.

† Numidia, its boundaries, xvii. 541. Cities, 544, & seq. Mountains, promontaries, &c. 549. Natural rarities, 552, 560. First inhabitants, 560. How far under the Carthaginians, 561. When first founded, 564, & seq. Destroyed by pestilence, 583. Made a Roman province, 604. Yielded to Genseric, xix. 593. How divided by them, xii. 476. Given to Hyempsal, 583. Taken away by Cæsar, 613. Reduced and kept by the Romans, xiii. 441, 442. xvi. 226.

Numidians, their site, government, &c. xvii. 561. Religion, 563. When first called Numidians, 564. Their language, writings, &c. ib. Customs, &c. 565. Ride without bridles, 567. Arts and sciences, 569. Wars with the Carthaginians, 572. With the Romans, 588. Ravage Carthage, xii. 125. Repulsed by the Gauls, 187. How they cut through the Alpine rocks, 191 & seq. Over-reach the Ligurians, 305. Abandon the Romans, 521. Revolt to Agathocles, xvii. 182. Some of their tribes subdued by Archagathus, 191, n. Break out against the Carthaginians, 256. Cruelly

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Cruelly punished by Hamilcar, 266. Subdued by the Romans, 604.—Micatanian severely used by the Carthaginians, 572.

† —Nomonumidæ, who, and where, xvii. 596, n.

Numitor dethroned by his brother, xi. 283. Discovers his two grandsons, 285. Reinthroned by them, 286.

Numitorius's brave defence of Virginia, xi. 532. Chosen military tribune, 540.

Numonius Vala, his death, xiii. 462.

Nuns, well treated by Sapor, xv. 494.

Nyctimus, king of Arcadia, vi. 10.

Nymphidius raised by Nero, xiv. 250. Treachery to him, 285, & seq. Assumes the empire against Galba, 304, & seq. Slain by the the soldiers, 306.

Nymphius's stratagem against the Samnites, xii. 9, 10, n.

Nypsius surprizes Syracuse, vii. 278. Puts all to the sword, ib.

† Nyssa, a city in Cappadocia, ix. 458. Taken by Alexander, viii. 299, n.

† Nyza, a city in Arabia Felix, xviii. 199. A royal residence, ib.

O

OAKS, sacred among the Scythians, v. 451. Among the Gauls, xviii. 408. The symbols of the deity, 416. In vogue among the antient patriarchs, 415, & n. One dedicated to an hundred deities, 454, n. Sacred among the Germans, 595. And Britains, 656.

Oannes, a fabled monster, said to have taught letters, &c. i. 266. & iv. 349, & seq.

† Oasis, two cities of the name in Libia, i. 488. Inhabited by the Samians, vii. 518. Its dismal situation, &c. xvi. 129.

Oaths of fidelity exacted by Herod, x. 306. Opposed by the Jews, ib. How forbid by the Essenians, x. 367, & n. Military how taken by the Romans, xi. 428, & n.

Obadiah, governor of Ahab's house, iv. 92. Meeting with Elisha, ib. & seq.

Obal gives name to some parts of Ethiopia, xviii. 112.

Obed-edom made keeper of the sacred ark, iv. 20.

Obedas king of Arabia invaded by Janneus, x. 216. Protects the free-booters of Judea, 319, n. Poison'd by Sylleus, 320, n.

Obelisk brought from Egypt by Caligula, xiv. 77, n. Another, xv. 479. A third set up at Constantinople, xvi. 90.

Obodos sends 1000 Nabatheans to Augustus, xiii. 380. See also Valens, xi. 115, 116.

† Obolla, a city towards Basra, i. 475.

† Oboth Eboda, where, iii. 23.

† Obrima river in Phrygia, v. 499.

Obfidional crown, to whom given by the Romans, xi. 650.

† Oby river in Scythia, v. 441.

Occia, president of the vestals, succeeded by Pollio's daughter, xiii. 596.

Ocean, thought by some the original of all things, i. 108.

† Ocelæ, Ocelis, the port of Saana in Yaman, i. 475.

Ocellus's eternity of the world exploded, i. 77.

Ochus subdues all Phenice to Persia, i. 370, 371. & seq. Cruelty to the Sidonians, ib. 1st, changes his name for Darius, v. 164. See Darius Nothus.—2d. the son of Artax. Mnemon ascends the throne, 194, 195. Cruelties, 196. Loses several provinces, 198. Invades Egypt in person, 199, & seq. Returns triumphant, 201. Kills the god Apis, 202. Plunders the Egyptian temples, ib. Murdered by Bagoas, ib. &c.—Invades Cyprus vii. 594. & seq. Makes peace with it, ib. Expedition against the Jews, x. 63. Death, ibid.

† — a river in Bactria, ix. 629.

Ocnus, king of Hetruria, xi. 276.

Ocrisia, the mother of Servius, who, xi. 353.

Octa the Saxon comes into Britain, xix. 15. Settles in Northumberland, ib.

Octavius M. Craff. success in Sicily, xvii. 230.

Octar king of the Hunns, wars with the Burgundi, xix. 44.

Octavia married to M. Antony, ix. 282. Supplanted by Cleopatra, 294. Divorced and turned out, 298. vid. & v. xiii. 331. Reconciles him to her brother, ib. Sent back to Rome, 332. To Antony 345. Repulsed by him, ib. Moderation towards him, 346. Divorcement, 348. Piety to his children, ib. & 365. Death and character, 419. Daughter of Claudius, born, xiv. 102. Married to Domitius, 144. To Nero, 160. Divorced and banished, 219. Murdered, 220. Her character, 219, n.

Octavianus gives his sister to M. Antony, ix. 282. Marches against him, 298. Defeats him at sea, 299. Invades Egypt, 301, & seq. Takes Cleopatra prisoner, 306. Behaviour to her, 309, & seq. Outwitted by her 310. Returns to Rome, 313. The

I N D E X to the

The rest see under Augustus, x. 270, & seq. and Octavius, xiii. 154.

Octavius opposes Metellus in Crete, vii. 483. Driven out of the island, 484.

—chosen Roman admiral, viii. 511.

Brings Perseus prisoner to the consul, 520.

—sent to be guardian to young Eupater, ix. 95. Murdered by Lyfias, 100.

—Comes to Crassus's assistance, xi. 34. Killed 36.

—Roman admiral invests Samothrace, xii. 325. Takes Perseus prisoner, 326. Triumphs, 327. Assassinated in Syria, 329.

—M. Cæcina opposes the Sempronian law, xii. 380.

—chosen consul, xii. 533. His excellent character, ib. Retaliation on Cinna, 425. Assassinated by Censorinus, 550. Appointed Cæsar's heir, xiii. 154. His extract, &c. 163, 164, & n. In high favour with him, 164. Takes his three names, 166, & n. Visit to Cicero, 167. Speech to M. Antony, 169. Complaint against him, 171. Outwitted by him, 172. Second interview with him, 175. Enters Rome, 177. New honours from the senate, 179, 181. Joins with the consul, 184. Ill success against Antony, 185. Bravery at Mutinæ, 188. Interview with Brutus, 189. With Panfa, ib. Mortified by the senate, 191, 196. Reconcil'd to Antony, 197. Outwits the senate, ib. & seq. Enters Rome, 200. Age at his instalment, 201. Adoption confirm'd, 215. Outwits the senate, 215, 216. Interview with Antony and Lepidus, 219, & seq. Their execrable resolution, 221. & seq. Cruelties, 222, 223. Treachery to Gellius, 238. March into Macedon, 239. Joins Antony, 259. Cowardice at Philippi, 265. Success against Brutus, 277, & seq. Ill treatment of his corps, 289. Barbarity to the republican prisoners, 291, & seq. Passes into Italy, 294. Difficulties at Rome, 301, 302. Largess to his veterans, 302. Divorce of Clodia, 303. Siege of Perugia, 306. Cruelty to the magistrates, 309. Triumphant entry at Rome, 311. Reconciled to Antony, 316. To Pompey, 321, & seq. Passes into Gaul, 324. Falls out with Pompey, 326. Marries T. Nero's wife, 338, & n. Ill success at sea, 330, & seq. Reconcil'd to Antony, 331. Ill-tim'd expedition against Pompey, 333. Defeated by him, 335. Success and cowardice, 338. Deposés Lepidus, 340. Insulted by the soldiers, 341. Reception at Rome, 342. Popularity, ib. & seq. Chosen tribune for life, 343. Accuses Antony to the senate, 346. Wars against Cleopatra, 352. Reproachful letter to Antony, 353. Order of his fleet, 359. Stupid superstition, ib. & 360, n. Victory at Actium, 361. Settles Asia Minor, &c. 366. Treble triumph at Rome, ib. & seq. Takes the imperial title, ib. Gets the supreme authority, 370. And surname of Augustus, ib. His strength, policy, &c. 373, & seq. Success in Spain, 374. Becomes absolute, 379, 380. His will and dying behaviour, 383. Unexpected recovery, 384, & seq. New powers, &c. 385. Rejects the dictatorship, 387. New regulations, 388. 396. Passes into Sicily, 390. Into Greece, 391. Success against Phaertes, 392. Comes to Samos, 394. Reforms the state, 400, 401. Cowardice, 399, 400. Rejects the title of Lord, 402. Shameful expedition into Gaul, 403. & seq. Styled Pont. Max. 410. New laws at Rome, 411. & seq. Corrects the Calendar, 412. Obsequies to Agrippa, 414. Worship'd by the Gauls, 416. New laws, 422, & seq. Popularity, ib. Third decennial power, 423. Severity to Julia, 431, 445. Exhibits magnificent shows, &c. 432. Letter to Caius on his birth-day, 433. Conspired against, 444. & seq. Clemency to the conspirators, 445. Speech to the married and unmarried, 455. Grief at Varus's defeat, 463. Threatened by prodigies, 464, & n. Letter to the senate, 471. Fourth decennial renewed, ib. Other prodigies preceding his death, 472. Taken ill at Naples, 474. Dies at Nola, 475. & seq. Letter to Tiberius, 476, & n. Legacies and writings, 478. Funeral honours ib. & seq. Apotheosis, 479. Character, 480. Stately buildings, 485, n. Writings, &c. 489, n. Character of Claudius, xiv. 98, n. Laws enforced by him, 114.

Octavius Roman general seizes on the Carthaginian transports, xvii. 474.

October month, why called Domitian, xiv. 495.

Octomafades, king of Scythia, v. 481.

Odenatus Palmyrensis, his embassy to the Persians, xv. 234. Extract and character, ib. Noble resentment, against them, ib. Takes the royal title, 235. Promoted by Gallienus, ib. Penetrates into Persia, ib. Success there, 236. Siege of Emessa, 240. Success against the Persians, xv. 245. xi. 82. Drives the Goths out of Asia, xv. 245. His death, ib.

Odin

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Odin, worshipped by the ancient Germans, xviii. 601. Their notion of him, ib. 602, & n. Made a northern Hero, 604. King of the Asgardians, xix. 110.

Odoacer's extract and character, xvi. 284. Defeated by Childeric, 278. Puts Orestes to death, ib. Kindness to his son, 285. Defeated by Theodoric, 290. Yields his conquests to the Goths, xix. 168. Makes himself king of Italy, xvi. 285, xix. 183. Recovers part of his conquests from Theodoric, 185. Defeated afresh by him, 186. Besieged in Ravenna, ib. & seq. Surrenders and put to death, 187.—A Saxon defeated by Childeric, 269.

† Odomantes, a people of Thrace, where and who, ix. 516.

Odotheus, king of the Greuthongi invades the empire, xix. 142. Defeated and slain by Theodosius, 143.

† Odrysæ, a people of Thrace where sited, ix. 517. Their kings, ib. & seq. Country made a Roman province, 523. Their revolt and defeat, xiii. 611.

† Oebalia, an antient name of Lacedæmon, vi. 47, n. Described, 56.

Oebalus the Spartan sets up 100 tripods at Ithome, vi. 414.

Oedipus, why exposed when born v. 669. His parricide, incest and distraction, ib. & seq.

† Oenanda, where situate, xiii. 248, n.

† Oenians, who and whence, v. 444, n.

† Oenotri, where, and whence so called, xi. 271, 272.

† Oenotri, whether the same with the Aborigines, xi. 267, 268. Their origin, xi. 271, 272.

Oenotrius's arrival in Italy, xi. 271.

† Oesuna, a city of Thrace, where, ix. 507.

† Oeta, the streights of, described, v. 662.

Ofella invests and takes Præneste, xii. 565, 571.

Offerings, peace, laws concerning them, iii. 231. Meat and drink, ib. Cleansing, 232, & seq.—First fruits, 234, & seq.—First cake, 236.—Incense, 243.—Burnt-offerings, where placed, 311. Described, ib. & seq.

Offilius Calvus's, just opinion of the routed Romans, xii. 22. Bold speech to Octavianus, xiii. 341. Privately murdered, ib.

Og, king of Bashan reckoned a king of the Amorites, 199. The last king of Rephaim, 186, n. & 199. Allies with king Sihon against Israel, 200. Defeated and killed, ib. Jewish fables about him, iii. 25, 26, n.

Ogulnian laws made in favour of the plebeians, xii. 51.

Ogulnii. Quinct. & Cneius stirred up in favour of the Plebeians, xii. 50.

Ogyges's flood, i. 281, n.

† Ogygia, an antient name of Bœotia, v. 661.

† Ohud mount, where sited, xviii. 206.

Oibasus killed by the Athenians, vi. 512.

† Olanus, a city in Lesbos, by whom built, vii. 553.

† Olbia, where sited, ix. 581. Not the same with Nicomedia, ib. Taken by the Romans, xii. 117. xvii. 247.

Olbianus's success against Thomas, xvi. 386.

† Olbiopolitan Scythians, their site, agriculture, &c. v. 459.

Olbus, the temple and priesthood of, vii. 494.

† Olcades, where situate, xii. 179. Invaded by Hannibal, ib. Subdued by him, xvii. 321.

Oleanus's extortions raise a revolt, in Frisia, xiii. 663, n.

† Oleares islands described, vii. 583.

† Oleastrum, the promontory of, where, xviii. 15.

† Olenus in Achaia prop. by whom founded, vi. 86.

† Olicana, where, and by whom rebuilt, xviii. 667.

† Olisippo, Lisbon, metropol. of Lusitania, xviii. 327.—The port of, 331, 332.

† Olivet mount, why called the mount of the three lights, iii. 112. Famed on many accounts, ib. Described, ib. Held in veneration by Christians, &c. 114 & seq.

Oloaritus, one of Agrippinas's assassines, xiv. 199.

Olophernes I. king of Cappadocia, ix. 463.

—II. or Orophernes dethrones Ariarthes, 6th, 108, 465. Slain, ib.

Olthaches, king of Colchis, ix. 607.

Olybrius raised by Gratian, xvi. 32. By Theodosius, 105 & seq.—Marries Placidia, 271. Proclaimed emperor, 279. His death, 280.

† Olympia, a city of Elis describ'd, vi. 68. Besieged by the Persians, and spared, xv. 627.

Olympiads, the computation of, vi. 68, 69, & n.

Olympian temple at Athens, vi. 129.

Olympias, Philip's queen, her character, viii. 84, 124. Divorce, 125. Message to Alexander, 206, 207, & 229. Retires into Epirus, 376. Her pride and cruelty 433, n. Recalled by Polysperchon, 434, & seq. Cruel behaviour at her return, 441. Shuts herself up in Pydna, 443, & seq. Besieged by Cassander, ib. Put to death, 444.—Queen of Acarnania's alliance with Demetrius, 478.

I N D E X to the

†——the castle of, describ'd, vii. 146.

Olympic games, by whom instituted, v. 434. vi. 461, n. Restored, 68. Describ'd, ib. & n. Forbid to the women, 69, n. Exhibited by Sylla, xii. 582.

Olympics, instituted by king Philip, viii. 91.

Olympiodorus's account of the siege of Rome, xvi. 171. His other writings, &c. 207, n.

Olympius Jupiter's famous temple and statue at Elis, vi. 68. At Agrigentum, vii. 148.

——statue sent for by Caligula, xiii. 663, n.

——temple at Athens finish'd, xiv. 633.

——first king of Mysia, v. 568.

——Mnemesianus's writings and character, xv. 290, n.

——a philosopher heads the heathen against the christians, xvi. 87. Retires out of Egypt, 88.

——discovers Stilicho's treason, xvi. 167. Made prime minister, 169. His zeal against heretics, 170. Disgraced, 175.

——the Exarch's success against the Saracens, xix. 533. Death, ib.

† Olympus mount, its height, 295, n. Described, viii. 16, 17, & 20, n.

†——mountain in Thessaly, vi. 16. Where situate, v. 465. The place of Jupiter's residence, 431.

†——a city in Lycia, v. 590.

† Olynthus, the republic of, oppressed by the Spartans, vi. 496. Subdued by Polybius, 498.

Olyntians, subdued by Philip, vi. 356.

† Oman, the province of, where, xviii. 197.

†——the city of abandon'd, xviii. 201, 202.

† Omanitæ, who and where sit, xviii. 197.

Omar destroys the Alexandrian library, ix. 187.

——Calif reduces Persia, xi. 248, & seq.

† Ombros island, why uninhabited, xviii. 21.

Omoroca, in the Chaldee Cosmogony, who, i. 102. The governors of living creatures, ib.

Omphale, queen of Lydia, v. 580.

Omri, chosen king of Israel, iv. 89.

Omulus's surly answer to Antoninus, xiv. 660.

Onan, Juda's son by a Canaanish wife, i. 459. His sin and death, 460, & n.

Onasimus's writings and character, xv. 216, n. 286, n.

† Onega, the lake of, described, v. 443.

Onesicritus his character as an author, viii. 311, n. Made captain of a galley by Alexander, 314.

Onesilus king of Salamis, vii. 495. Revolts from the Persians, ib. Slain, 496.

Onias the Maccabee, Arius's letter to, vi. 417, & n.

——the worthy Jewish Pontif falls out with Simon, ix. 59. Opposes Heliodorus, 60, & seq. Deposed by Antiochus, 66. Murdered in Egypt by Andronicus, 69. See also vol. x. 99, 107, & n.

——a sordid high-priest endangers the Jewish nation, ix. 208, & seq. x. 92.

——a pontif depriv'd of the succession, x. 152. Retires into Egypt, ib. In high esteem there, 172. Builds a Jewish temple, ib. & n. See also ix. 236.

——a pious Jew murdered, x. 232, & seq.

Onion, where, x. 250. The Jews of great service to Cæsar, ib. & seq.

Onomastus conspires in favour of Otho, xiv. 323.

Onoulus, the murderer of Basiliscus, xvi. 287.

Opheltas gained over by Agathocles, xvii. 183. The sad state of his army, 184. Betrayed and murdered by him, 186, n.

Ophiogenes, who, v. 563.

† Ophiophagi, their site, food, &c. xviii. 94.

† Ophir, one of Jocktan's sons, where settled, i. 476. Conjectures concerning that land, ib. & seq.

† Ophiusa island described, xviii. 352.

† Ophiusa, Tenos island, why so called, vii. 496.

Opimaspolia, whence so called, xi. 302, & n. The second carried in triumph, 550. Third, xii. 178.

Opimius Q. Nepos, success in Transalpine Gaul, xii. 332.

——L. chosen consul against Gracchus, xii. 411. Seizes the Capitol, 413. Besieges the revolters, 415. Cruelty to the Gracchian faction, 417, & seq. To young Fulvius, 418. Tried and acquitted, 421, 422, & seq.

——Luc. basely bought by Jugurtha, xii. 434. Cruel banishment, 445.

Opimius

NINETEEN VOLUMES:

Optimius a Roman champion kills a Cimbrian in single combat, xii. 495.

Opis, why honoured by the Delians, vii. 604.

† Opiternum taken by Rotharis, xix. 532.

Opium made in Persia, iv. 535.

Opus Q. sent against Mithridates, ix. 392. Delivered up to him in chains, 394.

Oplitai, Athenian soldiers, why so called, vi. 132.

† Opoes, a city in Locris Opuntia, vi. 82.

† Opone, a port in Ethiopia, xviii. 106.

Oppian law, what, xii. 300. Repealed, 301.

Oppius Spur. a plebian, chosen Decemvir, xi. 522. His trial and death, 541, 542.

—— admired poems, &c. xv. 138, n. Statue, epitaph, &c. 139, n.

—— defeated by the Boii, xii. 296.

Ops, the festival of, by whom instituted, xi. 332, & n.

Opfius M. one of the betrayers of Sabinus, xiii. 661.

Optatianus's writings, banishment, &c. xv. 428, n.

Optatus made a patrician, xv. 423. Murdered by the soldiers, 431.

—— a Donatist bishop imprison'd for treason, xvi. 136. Death, ib.

Optila, the murderer of Valentinian, xvi. 256.

† Ora, where sited, viii. 295. Taken by Alexander, ib.

Oracles of Egypt, an account of, i. 565.

—— famed among the Greeks, v. 609, 610. How consulted, 610, n. & seq. n. Deceitful, ib.

† Orbelia, the region of, where, viii. 14.

† Orbelus mount in Thrace, ix. 510.

† Orbitum taken by the Lombards, xix. 522.

† Orcades islands discovered, xviii. 671. Plundered by the Saxons, xix. 15.

Orchanes invades the Greeks, xvi. 527. Takes Nice by an odd stratagem, 532.

† Orchemus rebuilt Alexander, viii. 149.

† Orchomenes, the city of, described, vi. 657, & n.

Orcian law, what, xii. 317.

Orcivi Liberti, why so called, xi. 388, n.

Orcini, Antony's creatures, why so called, xiii. 162.

Ordeals used in Gaul, xviii. 421.

† Ordores in Britain, who, xiv. 151. Bravery against the Romans, 152.

† Ordovices, who and where, xiv. 446. Cut a Roman station in pieces, ib. & seq. Their valour and noble character, xviii. 665, 667.

Oreb, prince of Midian, defeated by Gideon, i. 142, 143, & iii. 499.

† Oreos in Eubœa described, vii. 646. Taken by the Rhodians, 434. By the Athenians, 646. By Philip, viii. 101.

† Orespodan hills, where, xviii. 350, n.

Orestes's unhappy reign, v. 632, 633. Succeeds to the Spartan crown, vi. 62. Accused of parricide, ib. Dies in Arcadia, vi. 12, 62. His bones strangely discovered, 12, 13, n.

—— Aurelius chosen consul, xii. 486. Death, 487.

—— Aufidius's consulship, &c. xii. 618.

—— insulted by the Alexandrian monks, xvi. 196. Raised by Nepos, 282. Revolts against him, ib. His extract, &c. ib. Governs as guardian to his son, 283. Disobliges the Barbarians, ib. Put to death, 284.

—— Sent by Attila to Constantinople, xix. 69. His marriage, issue, &c. ib. n. Character and death, ib. &c. When he left Attila's service, 73.

† Orestidæ, who and where sited, vii. 14. & seq.

† Oreum, metrop. of Eubœa, betrayed to the Romans, vi. 606.

Orfitus conspires against Domitian, xiv. 516. Banish'd and dies, ib.

—— governor of Rome under Antoninus, xiv. 664.

—— one of Faustina's gallants promoted, xv. 36.

Orgetorix raises a new war in Helvetia, xviii. 556. Defeated Cæsar, 557.

Oribasus's writings and character, xv. 558, n.

† Oricum, a city in Epirus, ix. 527.

† Orient, the district of, its several provinces, &c. xv. 420.

Oriental writers account of Persia, v. 237. To the end of the section, an apology for them, 239.

Origen favours the dogm of the Platonists, i. 81. His writings against Celsus, xv. 42, n. Great credit with the empress mother, 156. Letters to Philip and Severa, 212.

Origo, one of the antient names of Carthage, xvii. 8. And of Dido, ib.

I N D E X to the

Orisso puts Hamilcar to flight, xvii. 314,
n. Defeated by his son, 316, n.
 Oristilla Livia ravished from Piso, xiv.
 57.
 † Oritæ, who, viii. 325. Subdued by Alexander, ib.
 Orithria princess of Athens, stolen by Boreas, v. 646.
 † Orkney islands discovered and taken by Agricola, xiv. 487.
 † Orleans, by whom built, xv. 267.
 Besieged by Attila, xvi. 246. Relieved by Ætius, 247. See also xix. 80, & seq.
 Taken by Childeric, 269.
 Ormozd Hormizda, the good principle held by the Magi, i. 139.
 † Ormus river in Phrygia, v. 499.
 † — city by whom built, xi. 195.
 Where removed, ib.
 Ornytion, the son of Sisyphus, king of Corinth, vi. 42.
 Oroandes's treachery to Perseus, viii.
 520.
 † Orobia, a city in Eubœa drowned, vii.
 648.
 † Orobii, antient Ligurians, where, xi.
 258.
 Orobius rescues Delos from Mithridates,
 ix. 398.
 Oroctes's misdemeanor and odd punishment, xix. 367.
 Orodes, king of Parthia, murders his father, xi. 13. Driven out, ib. Cruelty to his brother, 14. Invaded by Crassus, ib. & seq. Embassy to him, 21. Defeats the Romans, 31, & seq. Makes peace with Armenia, 38. Ingratitude to Surena, ib. Ill success in Syria, 39, & seq. Defeated by Ventidius, 44. Excessive grief,
ib. Takes Phraates into partnership, 46.
 Murdered by him, ib.
 — II. murdered, xi. 55.
 — the son of Artabanus defeated xi.
 57.
 Oroeses king of Albania defeated by Pompey, ix. 614.
 Oroestes kills the tyrant Polycrates, vii.
 527, & seq.
 † — the kingdom of described, viii.
 10, & n.
 — king of Macedon, viii. 70.
 † Orogomenes river in Bactria, ix.
 629.
 Oromasdes, one of the Persian names of God, v. 46. Whom they held self-existent, ib. & c.
 Oroaes king of Armenia, deposed by Germanicus, ix. 351.
 Oroates's treachery to Tiribazus, vii.
 502.

† Oroates, a river in Syria, ii. 265. Fables about it, ib.
 Orontobates made governor of Media, viii.
 387.
 Oropus, city of, vi. 179, 308.
 † Orosanges, who and where, vii.
 538.
 Oroscopa besieged by Masinissa, xii, 356.
 xvii. 520.
 Orosius's anachronism about a great earthquake, xiii. 574, n. Mistake about the first treaty between Rome and Carthage, rectified, xvii. 118.
 Orpheus introduces worship among the Greeks, i. 104. His tenets, & c. 105,
 & seq. Doctrine of the mundane egg, 197.
 Polishes the Greeks, v. 612. Goes with the Argonautic expedition, vi. 22, 23, n.
 Orphitus Pactius, defeated and punished,
 ix. 359.
 Orsaces, Parthian general's success against Syria, xi. 39. Defeated and killed, ib.
 & 40.
 Orsines, put to death for cruelty, viii.
 330, & 331, n.
 Ortara, queen of the Amazons, v.
 466, n.
 Orthodox favoured by Constantine, xv.
 376, 382. Restored by Jovian, 571. Persecu-ted by Valens, 621. Burnt alive, xvi. 13.
 Restored by Gratian, 40. By Theodosius,
 40. Persecuted by Anastasius, 300. Restored by Justin, 303. Persecuted by the Persians, 329.
 † Ortona, taken from the Æqui, xi.
 509.
 † Ortygia, Delos, why so called, vii.
 600.
 † — one of the four quarters of Syracuse, vii. 144. Taken by the Romans, 380.
 Orus, an Egyptian deity, ii. 4. His history, ib. Oft confounded with Apollo, i.
 553. Their last demi-god, ii. 13.
 — Sicorus, an antient Spanish king,
 xviii. 376.
 Osarsiphus, Uforthon rebels against the Ethiopians, xviii. 149.
 † Osca, where situate, xii. 589, n.
 † Osci, their origin, xi. 269.
 Oscenes among the Romans, what, xi.
 297, n.
 Oseus made admiral of Otho's fleet, xiv.
 347.
 Osius, bp. made Constantine's Almoner,
 xv. 369. His letter to him, 384.
 Osiris of the Egyptians, the same as the sun, i. 99. With Isis, their two chief deities, 549. How represented, 552. Said 10

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

to be the son and daughter of Rhea, ii. 3. Their history, ib. &c.

Osiris Defeats Geryon, xviii. 374.

† Osrhoene, where sited, xiv. 589. Subdued by Trajan, ib. By Severus, xv. 101. By Caracalla, 134.

Osrhoes's defeat and narrow escape, xv. 7, 8.

† Ossa mountain in Thessaly, inhabited by Centaurs, vi. 16.

† Osta, the port of, by whom built, xi. 337, 338. The haven of, where, xiv. 116, n.

— taken and plundered by Marius, xii. 547. The tower of, xiv. 116.

† Ostia Rheni, or Rhine's mouths, how many, xiii. 554, n.

Ostorius, Scapula's success against the Britons, xiv. 149, 150, & n. Triumph, 154. Ill success and death, 215. See also xviii. 703, 704. Ruins of its forts there, still extant, 664, 665.

Ostracism at Athens, what, and how performed, vi. 193, & 194, n.

Ostriches, how caught by the Ethiopians, xviii. 129.

Ostrogotha, a Bathian prince, xix. 118. Defeats the Gepidæ, 121.

† Ostrogoths, who, xvi. 12. Where settled by Marcan, 253. Driven out of Illyricum, 270. By the Hunns, xix. 46. Pass the Danube, 47. Settle in Pannonia, 96, 174. Whence so called, 107, 108. Where seated, 118. Subject to the Hunns, ib. & seq. Invade the empire, 143. Defeated by Theodosius, ib. & seq. Their king's history, &c. 173. Ravage Illyricum, 175. Settle in Thrace, 184. Where settled by Clovis, 288. Seize upon Arles, 297. And Pannonia, 298. Their government in Italy, 428. War against the Romans, 452, & seq. Invaded by the Franks, 470. Outwitted by Balisarius, 475. Chuse a new king, 477. War against Narses, 498. Cruelty to the Romans, 504. Defeated by them, 505. Submit to them, 506. Suffered to enjoy their liberty, 508.

Ostrovi heads the Goths against Leo, xvi. 279.

Osymanduos, Imandes buried in one of Herodotus's pyramids, i. 508.

Osymandyas, king of Ægypt, who, ii. 18, & n. Reduces the rebellious Bactrians, 19, & seq. His prodigious army, ib. Magnificent tomb, statue, &c. ib. &c.

Otacilius's election opposed, xii. 238. Sent into Sicily, ib. — Success against the Carthaginians, xvii. 418. Plundered in Afric, 439.

Otanes discovers the sham Smerdis, by means of his daughter, v. 96. Declares for a republican government, 100.

Sent to relieve Samos, vii. 534. Cruelty to the Samians, 535. Repeoples that island, 536.

Othniel takes Kirjath-sepher, iii. 486. Marries Caleb's daughter, ib. & seq. Chosen the first judge, 493. Defeats Cushan-rishatim, ib.

Otho's regulations approved by Cicero, xii. 632.

— the emperor becomes a favourite of Claudius, xiv. 119, 120, & seq. To Nero, 173. Debauches him, 182. Marries Poppea, 186, 187, & n. Upright government in Lusitania, ib. & seq. Assists Galba, 277. Goes with him to Rome, 302. Set aside from the succession, 318. Conspires against him, 322, & seq. Saluted emperor by the camp, 325, 327. Acknowledged by the senate, 331. Conspir'd against by Vitellius, 333. His dissimulation to him, 340, &c. Messages to and from him, 341. Drops the hated name of Nero, ib. Quells the Mutinous soldiers, 344, 345. Marches against Valens, 347. Takes many nobles with him, ib. Success in Gaul, 349. Against Cecina, 35, & seq. Secures himself at Broxellum, 355. Rash orders to engage him, 356. Total defeat 358. Prevented from killing himself, 360. Speech before his death, 361, & seq. Calm and obliging behaviour, 362. Consolatory letters to his friends, 363. Stabs himself, ib. Hasty funeral, ib. Character, 364.

Othoman invades the Greek empire, xvi. 519, 527. His death, 531.

Othriades, the only surviving champion of Sparta, vi. 408, & 409, n.

† Othrys mountain in Thessaly, vi. 16.

† Otranto, where, xix. 485. Relieved by Belisarius, ib. Taken by John, 491.

Otreus king of Phrygia, v. 517.

Otta, third king of Kent, xix. 28.

† Ottadim, who and where seated, xviii. 670.

Ovation among the Romans, what, xi. 407.

Ovens, chickens hatch'd in Egypt, i. 543, & n.

Ovid writes his Ars amandi, xiii. 433, n. His severe Banishment, 465, & 466, n. Death, 469, n. & 578.

Ovidius's faithfulness to Cæsonius, xiv. 249, n.

Ovidius Canid. bold attempt on the empire, xv. 159. How used by the emperor, 160. Death, ib.

I N D E X to the

Owl perches twice over Agrippa's head, x. 562, n.

Ox, why stamp'd on the Athenian coin, v. 642, 652.

— one said to have spoke at Rome, xvii. 343.

Oxathres saves Darius's life, viii. 181, n. Put to death, 332.

— the son of Dionysius's parricide and death, ix. 587.

Oxen, a famous breed of, in Thessaly, vi. 17.

Oxicanus, submits to Alexander, viii. 320, & 321, n.

† Oxius, river in Bactria, ix. 629. How passed by Alexander, viii. 253.

Oxyartes king of Bactria, ix. 630. Defeats Ninus, iv. 234. Defeated, 235. Surrenders to Alexander, viii. 286. Prevails on others to do so, 287. Rewarded for it, ib. & seq. His lot after that monarch's death, 319.

Oxydracæ, who, viii. 305. Defeated by Alexander, ib. & seq.

Oxylus, the three-eyed general of the Heraclidæ, v. 637. Whence he was, vi. 73. Made king of Elis, v. 638. vi. 73.

Oxyntas released by Apponius, xii. 521. Set up to succeed Jugurtha, xvii. 599.

Oxyntes king of Athens, v. 657.

Oxyrinchus, Calhove, a famed fish of the Nile, i. 502.

† Ozogardene, Trajan's tribunal at, xiv. 586.

† Ozolea, part of antient Greece, vi. 75. Described, ib. 80, n.

† Ozolean, whence so called, vi. 82. Blended with the Locrians, ib. Send a colony into Italy, ib.

P.

P Abec, the foster-father of Artaxares, xi. 75, 76.

Pacarius Decim. put to death, xiv. 349.

Pacatianus, the first Roman vicar in Britain, xviii. 681.

Paches, the Athenian, takes Mitylene, vi. 274.

† Pachynum, the Cape of, in Sicily, vii. 138.

Pacorus sides with Antigonus against Herod, x. 265. Defeated, 266. Treachery to Phasaël, ib. & 267.

— the son of Orodes fortifies Ctesiphon, xi. 4. Allies with Armenia, 38. Sent against Syria, ib. & seq. Conquests, 42. Driven out, 44. Outwitted by Ventidius, ib. Defeated and killed, ib. His character, ib. & 45.—First king of Parthia's alliance with Rome, xi. 12.—Ild, his reign, 65. Comes to Bassus's relief, xiii.

116. Success in Syria, 314.—King of Media invaded by the Alans, xiv. 440. Joins with the Dacians, xiv. 566.

Pactius and Vitius treat with the Romans, xvii. 451.

† Pactolus, river in Lydia, v. 573.

Pactyas delivered up to the Persians, vii. 563.

Pacurianus's singular friendship for the Comneni, xvi. 468, 471. Defeated by the Scythians, 474.

† Padua, by whom built, v. 543.

Pænius's Greek version of Ammianus, xvi. 26, n.

Pætus driven out of Armenia, ix. 362, 363.—P. Antron conspires with Catiline, xii. 628.

— Cæcina's cowardly death, xiv. 119. —Thrasea bravely leaves the slavish senate, 201. Generosity to Antistius, 215, 216. Falsely accused, 259. Condemned, 261. Signal constancy in death, 262.—Treachery to Antiochus, 439.

Paganalia instituted by Servius, xi. 357.

Paganism suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 46. Whence so called, 61. Suppressed by Theodosius, ib. & seq. Restored by Eugenius, 100. Laws against it repealed, 176. Revived, 198.

Pagans at Alexandria massacre the Christians, xvi. 87. Laws made against them, 198.

Pagi, appointed by Numa, xi. 317. Regulated by Servius, 357.

Painting when first brought to Rome, xii. 50.

† Palatine mount, Rome built upon, xi. 288.

Palatius, an antient king of Spain, xviii. 378.

† Palæna, a city in Macedon, viii. 13.

† Palæpaphos, a city in Cyprus, vii. 488.

Palæopolitans invade the Romans, xii. 7. Surrender to them, 9.

† Palæas, where and why called Cæsarea, x. 414.

Palemon, the fable of, vi. 37, 38, n.

† Palentia, by whom built, xviii. 378. Destroyed by the Goths, xix. 162.

Paleologus's timely zeal for A. Comnenus, xvi. 469. Noble defence of Dyrrachium, 471.—Michael's success against the Servii, 489. Goes over to the Turks, 513. Recalled ib. And declared guardian, 514. Proclaimed emperor, ib. Vain attempt on Pera, 515. Grand entry into Constantinople, 516. Cruelty to the emperor, 517. Defeated by the Bulgarians, 518. Forced to submit to the Pope, ib. Cruelty to the recu-

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

recusants, ib. Excommunicated for the Sicilian massacre, ib. Death, 519.—Andronicus shakes off the Pope's supremacy, ib. Cruelty to his brother Constantine, &c. ib. Defeated by them, 520. Fatal fondness for a worthless grandson, 525. Makes him his Colleague, 526. Falls out with him, 527. Peace with him, 528. Surprized and deposed by him, 530. Retires and dies, 533. His grandson's wretched character, 525. Public submission, 526. Escape, ib. Gets half of the empire, ib. Stratagem against his uncle, ib. Treachery to his grand-father, 528. Seizes on several provinces, 529. Takes Constantinople, 530. Deposes his grandfather, ib. Success against the Bulgarians, 531. Defeated and wounded, 532. His death and character, 533. —John the son of Andronicus, 534. Severity to his two sons, 539. Imprisoned, 540. Restored, ib. Dies, ib. —Andronicus the son of John, his treason and punishment, 539. Escape and revenge, 540. Obtains Selymbria for a retreat, ib. —John his son's treaty with Bajazet, 541. Crowned, 542. Banished, 543.—The son of Manuel crowned, 543. Goes to the council of Florence, 545. Dies, ib. —Constantine his embassy to Mohammed II, 546. Reunites the Greek and Latin churches, 548. Invaded by Mohammed, ib. Offers of peace and tribute rejected, 551. Noble and pious defence, 552, 553. Death, 554.—Philes begs to head the army against the Turks, 523. Surprises and defeats them, 524. Cuts them all off, ib. —Treachery to Lascaris, xviii. 313.

† Palermo al Panorus, metropolis of Sicily, vii. 152.

Pales, the festival of, what, xi. 291, & n.

† Palestine invaded by the Scythians, v. 472. By Nebuchadnezzar, iv. 487. A new division of it, xv. 626. Infested with grasshoppers, xvi. 161. By the Bulgarians, 297. Subdued by the Saracens, 344. The rest see under Judea, Canaan, &c.

Palfurnius, taken and put to death, xv. 281.

Palici, twin Gods worshipped by the Siculi, vii. 163, n. At Carthage, xvi. 639.

† Palicon, the city of, where, and whence so called, vii. 163, n. The temple of, ib. n.

† Paliuri, the lake of, where, xviii. 66.

Palladium, of Troy, what, v. 531. Brought to Rome by Æneas, ib. n. & 532, 533, n. Various accounts about it, ib. &

538, n. How found at Troy, ix. 405, n. Worshipped in Latium, xi. 279. Saved from the flames by Metellus, xii. 157.

Palladius's writings and character, xv. 426, n. —Treachery to Valentinian, 581. Hangs himself, 599. —Incredible, seven hundred miles journey in three days, xvi. 204.

—— the son of Maximus, chosen Cæsar, xvi. 257. Marries Eudoxia's daughter, 258.

† Pallantium, by whom built, xi. 277. Why made a free city, xiv. 665.

Pallas, one of Herod's wives, x. 323, n.

—— an informer against Sejanus, xiii. 670.

—— great favourite of Claudius, xiv. 103, & seq. Persuades him to marry Agrippina, 140. Honoured by the slavish senate, 157, & seq. Acquitted of treason, 181. His death, 221.

—— The palace of, burnt, xv. 65.

Palma chosen consul, xiv. 561. Success in Arabia, 575. Put to death by Adrian, 616.

† — a city in Majorca, xviii. 351. —In Italy, by whom built, xii. 402.

† Palmyra, the metropolis of Palmyrene, ii. 264. Its name and site, &c. 277. Great court, temple, &c. described, 278. Other famed ruins, 280. Great piazza, &c. ib. &c. Sepulchres, 282. Besieged by Aurelian, xv. 260. Surrendered, 261. Revolts, and put to the sword, 262.

Palmyreans defeated by Aurelian, xv. 85. Outwit M. Antony's troops, xiii. 297.

† Palmyrene, province in Syria, ii. 264.

† Palumbinum, where, xii. 70. Taken by Corvilius, ib.

† Palus Mæotis described, ix. 620.

Pamgles, the nurse of Osiris, ii. 4.

† Pampelona taken by the Visigoths, xix. 165.

† Pamphagi, their site, food, &c. xviii. 94.

Pamphila's history in 336 books, xiv. 293.

Pamphilus put to death, xvi. 332.

† Pamphylea, where, xiv. 619. Visited by Adrian, ib.

Pan worshipped at Mendez in Egypt, i. 556. By the Arcadians, vi. 4. His temple at Tegea, ib. & seq. Why worshipped by the Athenians, 179, & seq. In Ethiopia, xviii. 121.

Panathenea,

Panathenea, by whom instituted, v. 652.
 Panaetolium, what, vii. 3.
 Pancratis ravished by the Naxians, vii. 585.
 Pancratiuſ, a lying aſtrologer ſlain, xvi. 373. xix. 400.
 † Pandataria, where ſituate, xiii. 670.
 Pandeſti of Juſtinian, xvi. 318.
 Pandion, firſt king of Athens, v. 646.
 Ild expelled the kingdom, ib.
 Pandroſos, the daughter of Cecrops, the fable of, v. 646, n.
 † Panettenian, the temple of at Athens, xiv. 634.
 † Pangeas, mount, in Macedonia, viii. 15.—The mines of, ib. & 23. Mount in Thrace, ix. 510.
 † Pannonia deſcribed, xiii. 413. Subdued by Agrippa, ib. & n. Ravaged by Tiberiuſ, 415, 418. Revolts, 450. Reduced, 454. Aſreſh, 458, & ſeq. Erected, into a country, xix. 435.
 † ——— Secunda, why ſo called, xv. 300. Invaded by the Sarmatians, 479.
 Pannonian legions revolt, xiii. 504, & ſeq. Quelled by an eclipse, 515. Declare for Veſpaſian, xiv. 381.
 Panormitan coins, ſome account of, xvi. 654, 655, & n.
 † Panormuſ, where, xii. 130. Taken by the Romans, ib. & xvii. 267, n.
 † Panoti, who and why ſo called, v. 444, n.
 Panſa, Caj. Vib. choſen conſul, xiii. 180. Ill ſucceſs againſt Anthony, 185, 186. Laſt advice to Octavianuſ, 189. Death, 190, & n. Burnt, 191.
 † Pantabibla, whether the ſame with Lippara, i. 270, & n.
 † Pantalia, the city of, deſcribed, ix. 509.
 Panthea's noble death and burial, vii. 290, n.
 Pantheon at Athens, vi. 129. At Rome, when and by whom built, xiii. 378. Struck with lightning and deſtroyed, 387, & xiv. 584. Rebuilt by Adrian, 643, & ſeq.
 † Panticapeum, where and by whom built, ix. 619.
 † Panyafuſ river in Macedon deſcribed, viii. 21.
 † Paphia, one of the four parts of Cyprus, vii. 490.
 † Paphlagonia ſubmits to Alexander, viii. 176. Invaded by Mithridateſ, ix. 387.
 † Paphlagonians, their origin, &c. i. 468.
 Paphuſ, hiſ extract, vii. 492.

Papiuſ, Popean law enacted, xiii. 455.
 Mitigated by Tiberiuſ, 607. Repealed, xv. 393.
 Papiuſ's ſucceſs againſt Lepiduſ, xiii. 334. Defeated by Agrippa, 335.
 Papinian, a prime miniſter, hiſ character, xv. 114. Diſcharged by Caracalla, 125. Hiſ noble anſwer to him, 128. Put to death for it, ib.
 ——— choſen emperor in Pannonia, xv. 213. Hiſ death, ib. &c.
 Papiniuſ kills himſelf, xiv. 26.
 ——— the tribune conſpires againſt Caligula, xiv. 89.
 Pappuſ's writings and character, xvi. 116, n.
 ——— Kills Herod's brother, x. 276. Slain, ib.
 Papyriuſ, Manl. choſen Rex Sacrorum, xi. 383.
 Papyriuſ, L. Mugilan, choſen conſul, xi. 546. Cenſor, ib. & 547. Interex, 557, & ſeq. Murdered with other nobles by the Gauls, 581.
 ——— Craſſuſ choſen dictator, xii. 4. Triumphs over the Samnites, 15, 16.
 ——— Curſor choſen dictator, xii. 12. Severity to Fabiuſ, ib. Pardons him, 14. Second conſulate, 23. Deſeats the Samnites, 27. In Apula, 28. Hiſ character, ib. Second dictatorship, 42. Triumph over the Samnites, 44. Hiſ death, ib.
 ——— the ſon of Curſor ſent againſt the Samnites, xii. 68. Stratagem againſt them, 69, & ſeq. Total defeat of them, ib.
 ——— Carbo, trial and death, xii. 423, 424.
 ——— Cneuſ defeated by the Cimbri, xii. 430.
 ——— Carbo joins with Cinna and Mariuſ, xii. 545. Choſen conſul by the faction, 556. Raiſes an army againſt Sylla, 560. Hiſ judgment of him, 562. Marches againſt Pompey, 563. Tyrannical conſulſhip, ib. Defeated by Sylla, 565. Flight into Africa, 566. Proſcribed by Sylla, 573. Put to death by Pompey, 575, 576.
 ——— hiſ brother murdered, xii. 564.
 Papyruſ, Bybluſ, an Egyptian reed, deſcribed, i. 503. Its various uſes, &c. ib. The exportation of it forbid, v. 565, 566.
 Parabatuſ, the court of, its office, vi. 145.
 Parables, by whom firſt uſed, iii. 506, n. Faſſely challenged by the Greeks, ib. Why ſo frequently uſed by Chriſt, x. 453.
 Paradife, more kinds of, than one, i. 193. Some conjectures about that of Eden, ix. 320, & n.
 † Parætonium

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Parætonium described, xviii. 61.
 Parali, one of the three contending factions at Athens, vi. 111.
 † Paran, a city in Arab. Petrea, xviii. 183.—Deserta, 186.
 Parafang, whence derived, v. 275.
 Parasite, the antient meaning of it, xviii. 489, & n.
 † Paraxis, the region of, where situate, viii. 13.
 Parcouree, the first woman in the Bramin's physiology, i. 142.
 Parents, Solon's laws relating to them, vi. 121.
 † Parian marble, described, vii. 589.
 Parians, quell and civilize the Milesians, vii. 117.
 Paris, the son of Priam, v. 549. Entices Helen away, 551. Their arrival into Greece, ii. 47.
 ——— sues for Valens's protection, xv. 622, 627. Put to death, xvi. 6.
 † ——— the city of, where first sited, xv. 484. Taken by Childeric, xvi. 273. Made metropolis by Clovis, 300. See also vol. xix. 164. Becomes the capital of the Franks, 298. And of the whole monarchy, 299.
 Parisades, I. and II. kings of Bosphorus, ix. 621.
 ——— resigns his kingdom to Mithridates, ix. 623.
 † Parium, a city in Mysia, described, v. 563.
 Parmenides opinion of the origin of things, i. 85, & seq.
 Parmenio's character, viii. 183. Seizes on Darius's treasure, 183, 187, & seq. Surrounded by Persians at Guagamela, 214. Succour'd by Alexander, ib. & 215, n. Accused by his son, 243. Put to death, 245.
 † Parnassus mount in Phocis, vi. 29.
 † Paropamisus, a province in Persia, described, iv. 512. viii. 249.
 † ——— the mountain of, viii. 249.
 † Paros island described, vii. 588, & seq. Its first inhabitants, who, 390. Attempted by Miltiades, 591, & seq. See also vi. 187. The Jews of, redressed by J. Cæsar, x. 257, & 258, n.
 † ——— the city of, described, vii. 589. Besieged by the Athenians, 591, & seq. Subdued, 593.
 Parricide, no law at Rome against it, xi. 311. When first punished there, xii. 494. Laws against revived by Constantine, xv. 392.

† Parsis, a province in Persia, described, iv. 517.
 Parsodes, king of the Cadusians, revolts against the Medes, iv. 471.
 Parsondas, his history, iv. 367, & seq.
 Partanus, king of Egypt, ii. 68.
 Parthamisiris, made king of Armenia, xiv. 577, & seq. Letter to Trajan, 579. Submission and speech to him, ib. & seq. Deposition and death, 580.
 Parthamasphates, made king of Parthia, xiv. 593. Driven out, 594.
 Partharit king of the Lombards, xix. 526. Undermined by his brother, ib. & seq. His flight to Chagan, 537. Driven away, ib. & seq. Narrow escape from Grimoald, 539. Recovers his crown, 545. Dies, 546.
 Partheniæ of Sparta, why so called, vi. 417. Forced to retire into Italy, ib.
 Parthenius conspires against Domitian, xiv. 523. Helps to murder him, 525. Killed by the mutineers, 553.
 † Parthenion, of Sparta described, vi. 102, n. 129.
 † Parthia, a province of Persia described, iv. 516. — The kingdom of, when and by whom founded, viii. 587. The country described, xi. 3. How divided, ib. Wasted by the Scythians, 12. Its kings, 9, & seq. Subdued by Trajan, 67. The end of its monarchy, 72, & seq.
 Parthians, whether originally Celtes or Scythians, iv. 516. v. 417. xi. 5. Their customs, ib. & seq. Excellent archery, 6. Religion, 7. Government, kings, &c. 8, 9. Invade Judea in favour of Antigonus, x. 265, & seq. Plunder Herod's palace, 269. Set Antigonus on the throne, ib. & seq. Invaded by Crassus, xi. 15, 16, & seq. Defeat him, 29, & seq. Defeated by Cassius, 39. Driven out of Syria, 44, & seq. Subdued by the Persians, 72. Their history according to oriental writers, 73, n. & seq. n. Defeat Antony's troops, xiii. 314. Amus'd by Octavianus, 366. Famed embassy to him, 447. Invaded by Trajan, xiv. 576, & seq. Subdued 579, 585, & seq. Continue faithful to him, 593, 594. Revolt, 614. Recall Cosroes, ib. Great regard for Antoninus, 666. War against the Romans, xv. 7. Defeated, 8, 10. Invade Mesopotamia, 108. War against Macrinus, 142. Subdued by the Persians, 159.
 † Parvaim, the gold of, whether that of Ophir, i. 476.

I N D E X to the

† Paryadræ mountains in Armenia, ix. 320.

Parysatis's great sway with Darius Nothus, v. 164. Instances of her cruelty, 169, 174, 175.

† Pasargada, the Persian kings crowned at, v. 5. Cyrus's tomb at, v. 138.

Pascasius, bp's three years slavery under the Vandals, xix. 206.

Pascentius defeated by Ambrose, xix. 20.

Pashur, one of the four priestly classes, x. 11.

Pasiphae, the incontinent wife of Minos, vii. 474.

Pasiphilus, surprises Messana, xvii. 154.

Pasiphus's surprising constancy on the rack, xvi. 2.

Passaron, the grand council of, at Epirus, ix. 579.

Passover, its first institution, ii. 570, 571. The manner of it, 572, 573. Laws relating to it, iii. 185, & seq. Penalties on the neglect of it, 186, & n. Etymon of its name, 187, n. Unleavened bread eaten during it, ii. 573.

Pastor, cruelly used by Caligula, xiv. 52.

Pastors, of Egypt. See shepherds, ii. 17, & seq.

Patæci, seamen's tutelary gods in Phenice, ii. 349, & n.

Pataici, at Carthage, what, xvi. 639.

† Patara, a city in Lesbos, v. 590. Where situate, xiii. 250, n.

Patarans, their invincible love of liberty, xiii. 350. Overcome by Brutus's mildness, 251.

Pater Patratus, among the Albans, what, xi. 326, n. & seq. n.

Paternus defeats the Germans, xv. 39.

—Tarruncius put to death by Commodus, 57.

† Pathros, wrongly taken for the Pelusium of Thebais, i. 465. Where sited, xvii. 89.

† Pathrusium, where seated, i. 465.

† Patmos island, described, vii. 567.

Patibulum, whether the same with Crux, xvii. 16, n.

† Patra, where, xiii. 356. Taken by Agrippa, ib.

Patriarchs, Antedeluvian. See Antedeluvian,

Patrician, in Italy, his office, xix. 597.

Patricians, the order of, instituted by Romulus, xi. 294. Cruelty causes many revolts, 419, 427, 428. Overpowered by the plebeians, 445. By the Decemvirs, 522, 612, & seq. By Gracchus, xii. 378. Their dignity, xv. 423.

Patricius, burnt for magic, xvi. 3.

— the son of Aspar marries Leo's daughter, xvi. 278. Narrowly escapes death, ib. Defeated by the Persians, 298.

Patrimonies, of the church, an account of, xix. 549, n. That of Constantine exploded, 565, n. Confiscated by Leo, 568.

Patrobius, put to death by Galba, xiv. 310.

Patrocles forced to abandon Babylon, viii. 395. Defeated and killed by the Bithynians, 582.

Patrons of Athens, their office, vi. 132. At Rome, D°. xi. 294, 295. xii. 30, n.

† Pattala, where, viii. 322. Submits to Alexander, ib.

† Patzinacæ, who and where, xvi. 451. Defeated by the Romans, 452.

† Pavi, taken and burnt by Attila, xvii. 250. xix. 90. Taken by Theodoric, 185. By Alboinus, 386. Made metropolis of Lombardy, ib.

† Pavium destroyed by an earthquake, xvi. 386, 387.

Paul, St. his conversion, x. 543. Pleads his cause before Felix, 568. Before Festus, 570. Defence before Agrippa. ib. &c.

— Count, killed by Childeric, xix. 269.

— Brave defence of Rome, xix. 494. Kind treatment from Totila, 495.

— made exarch of Ravenna, xvi. 361. Opposes the worship of images, 362.

— church of, at Rome, by whom built, xvi. 69.

Paulicians, admitted two self-existent Gods, i. 138.

Paulina, Seneca's wife, resolves to die with him, xiv. 244. Repents her bargain, 245. Death and obscure funeral, xiv. 625.

Paulinian family converted to christianity, xvi. 85.

Paulinus Suetonius success in Mauritania, xiv. 114. In Britain, 206, & seq. Signal victory there, 212. Undermined by Clasicanus, 212, 213. Recalled, ib. Defeats Cæcina, 352. Degraded, ib. Just advice to Otho, ib. & 356. Defeat and flight, 358. Poor defence before Vitellius, 368. His character, writings, &c. 452, n.

— Pompeius's work in Germany, xiv. 189.

— bishop banished by Constantius, xv. 459.

Paulinus

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Paulinus, Eudocia's favourite, why put to death, xvi. 227, & seq.

Paulus of Tyre, favoured by Adrian, xiv. 655, n. Made counsellor to Papianus, xv. 114. To Alexander, 157.

—— Jul. recalled and promoted, xv. 159.

—— the founder of Eremitic life, xv. 217, 218.

—— bishop of Constantinople banished, xv. 412.

—— Catena, a bloody informer, xv. 457, 458. Cruelties in Palestine, ib. 491. Burned alive, 531.

—— Count, governor in Gaul, xvi. 272.

—— Exarch of Ravenna, excommunicated, xvi. 361. Murdered, 362.

—— Æmilius. See Æmilius, xvii. 381.

—— Diaconus, his writings and character, xix. 571, n.

Pausanias, the Spartan's untimely haughtiness, vi. 216. Peace with Athens, 326. Made general against Xerxes, 444. Defeats the Persians, 445, & seq. Rewarded with the tenth of their spoil, v. 148. vi. 448. His great moderation, v. 148. vi. 447. Marches against the Phocians, 490. Degenerates, 450. Starved to death, 452.

—— King of Macedon, viii. 71.

—— the murderer of king Philip, his motive, viii. 133, & seq.

—— the historian criticized, xv. 48, n.

—— the sophist an account of, xv. 48, n.

Paufiris reigns in Egypt by the consent of the Persians, ii. 81.

Paufistratus invades Caria, vii. 435, & seq. Sent against Antiochus, 437. Perishes through Polyxenidas's treachery, 439.

† Pax Julia, a city in Lusitania, xviii. 331.

Pay, when first allowed to the Roman soldiers, xi. 564.

Pays, father, his account of the Nile's course, xviii. 101.

Peace, the fam'd temple of, at Rome, built, xiv. 439. Burnt, xv. 64.

Pecunia, whence so called, xi. 361, 362.

Pedanius Secund. murdered by a slave, xiv. 214.

Pedarii, young senators, whence so called, xi. 442.

Pediæi, one of the Athenian factions, vi. 111.

Pedo, sent against the Cherusci, xiii. 538. His writings, character, &c. ib. & n.

† Pedretus river in Danmonia, xviii. 659.

† Pegasa, a sea-port of Thessaly, vi. 17.

† — the gulph of, vi. 17.

Pegasus, lent by Minerva to Bellerophon, vi. 44, & n.

Peirerius's system of the sun's standing still exploded, iii. 83. & seq.

Pekah, king of Israel's league with the Syrians, ii. 324. Vain attempts on Jerusalem, ib. &c.

Pekahia succeeds his father in Israel, iv. 133. Murdered, 136.

Pelago, sent to murder Plautus, xiv. 219.

† Pelagonia, where situate, viii. 14.

Pelasgia, one of the antient names of Peloponnesus, v. 615. Of Thessaly, vi. 15.

† Pelasgians, antient Greeks, v. 605. Settle in Crete, vii. 466. First inhabitants of Lesbos, 552. Why driven out of Attica, 616. Settle at Lemnos, ib. Murder the Athenian breed, 617. Their extract, xi. 262, 268.

Pelasgias and Peleia, the Etymon of, ix. 529, n.

† Pelasgiotis, part of antient Greece, v. 605. And of Thessaly, vi. 15.

† Pelasgus, the father of the Pelasgians, who, v. 605. Civilizes the Greeks, 607. Why surnamed Autochton, vi. 3.

—— first king of Arcadia, vi. 8.

Peleg, whether the same with Pelasgus, v. 605, 606. n. See also, i. 378. & n. & 473. Remained with his posterity in Chaldea, ib.

† Pelethithes Pelathiles, who, iv. 24, n.

Pelias sends Jason for the golden fleece, vi. 19. His treachery, 23. Death, 24.

Pelicans described, iv. 544.

† Peligni, their extract and territories, xi. 262. Invaded by the Latins, 658. Defeated by Severus, xii. 522.

† Pelion, mountain in Thessaly, vi. 15. Its height, viii. 20, n.

† Pella a city in Macedon, viii. 11. Its vast stud of horses, 24. Taken by the Romans, 517. By Alexander Janneus, x. 219. Demolished, ib. Taken by Æmilius, xii. 325.

Pella Lucius condemned for extortion, xiii. 253.

Peloponnesian war, its causes, vi. 260, & seq. Nations engaged in it, 264. Early incursions into Attica, ib. Defeated before Pylas, 279. Peace 287. Broken, 288, & seq. Disappointed by the Persians, 311. Victorious at sea, 313. Defeated at Samos, 314. By sea and land, 315, 316. The war concluded by the peace of Antalcidas, 341.

Peloponnesians, bring their fleet against Xerxes, v. 142. To Salamis, vi. 202. Their flight stopt by Themistocles, 203.

Peloponnesus, part of antient Greece, v. 604. Invaded by the Heraclidæ, 636, & seq. — The isthmus of, shut up, xv. 239. Ravaged by Genferic, xvi. 274.

Pelops comes into Peloponnesus, vi. 70. King of Pisa, ib.

— the son of Tantalus subdued by Ilus, v. 544.

† Pelorum, a cape in Sicily, described, vii. 238.

Pelastæ in Macedon, their office, viii. 37.

† Pelusium, by whom first founded, ii. 230, n. One of the keys of Egypt, v. 86. Taken by Cambyfes, ib. By Antiochus, ix. 72, 79. Surrendered to Alexander, viii. 201. Taken by Cæsar, x. 250.

Pemenes put to death, xv. 472.

Penelaus killed before Troy, v. 671.

† Peneus, the famed river described, vi. 16. viii. 20. n.

† Peniel, the place where Jacob wrestled, its site, ii. 448, 449.

Peninus, Jupiter, why so called, xviii. 462, & n.

Pentacontalitra, a Sicilian coin, why so named, xvii. 36, n.

Pentacosiomedimni, made the first order at Athens, vii. 115.

Pentadia, wife of Timasus, forced into a church for refuge, xvi. 130.

† Pentapolis, one of the finest regions in Canaan, ii. 183.

† — Cyrenaica, why so called, xviii. 65.

† — in Italy submits to Luitprand, xix. 561. Given to the pope, 579.

Pentapolitans oppose the Iconoclasts, xvi. 361, 362. How and when become subject to the pope, ib. & 363, 369.

Pentecost, the feast of, why instituted, iii. 191. How and when kept, 192 & seq. & n.

Penthesilea, queen of the Amazons, v. 466, n.

Pentheus, torn in pieces by his mother, v. 666.

Penthilus, king of Mycenia, v. 663.

Penuel, put to the sword by Gideon, iii. 499, 500.

Penula, M. Cent's rashness and defeat, vii. 437.

† Peparethus island, described, vii. 612. Famed for its winds, ib.

Pepin presents Ravenna to the pope, xvi. 368. Assists him against the Lombards, xix. 577, & seq. Success against Astulph, 579. Answer to Copronymus's ambassadors, 581. Donations to the pope, ib. Confirmed and enlarged by Charlemagne, 591.

Peponilla, vid. Emponia, xiv. 448.

† Penæa, the Greek name of the country of Bashan, i. 396, n. Where sited, iii. 102.

Percennius's revolt in Hungary, xiii. 504. Speech to his accomplices, 505. Put to death, 515.

† Percole, a city in Phrygia Minor, v. 520.

Perdicas 1st, 4th king of Macedon, viii. 45. — IIId. son of Alexander, his reign, 60, & seq. Wars with Athens, 61. Joins Brasidas against the Lyncesthei, 66. Death and character, 67. — IIIId. set on the throne by Pelopidas, 75.

— Alexander's general, his advice after his death, viii. 353. Character, 354, ib. & seq. Treachery to Meleager, 356, 357. Great sway, ib. & seq. Subdues Cappadocia, 364. Marries Nicæca, 365. Wars with Ptolemy, 367. Murdered by his men, 371.

— a traitor to Eumenes hanged, viii. 373.

† Perca recovered by the Rhodians, vii. 435.

Peredeus's noble defence of Ravenna, xix. 557. Death, ib.

Perennis Commodus's favourite put to death, xv. 58. His character and crime, 59. Complained against, xviii. 708. Fatal end, ibid.

Perga, where sited, ix. 52, & n. Delivered up to the Romans, ib.

Pergamenian library given to Cleopatra, xiii. 350.

† Pergamos, a city in Mysia, described, v. 487, 465.

† Pergamus, the kingdom of, described, ix. 472. & seq. Laid waste by the Bithynians, 491. Bequeathed to the Romans, 499. Becomes a Roman province, 504 & seq.

† Pergamus city disfranchised by Macrinus, xv. 144. Taken by the Saracens, xvi. 358. A just punishment for their horrid witcheries, ib.

Pergamus,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Pergamus king, rather the improver than inventor of parchment, iii. 462.

Peri, a kind of faries among the orientals, i. 181.

Periander's revenge on the Corcyreans, vii. 520.

Pericles, the son of Xantipus, head of an Athenian faction, vi. 229. His character, 230. Outwits the Lacedæmonians at Megara, 243. Reduces Eubæa, 244. Severe ordinance against the Athenians of half blood, 245, & seq. Attachment to Aspasia, 247, & seq. & n. Reduces the Samians, 251. Funeral oration for the slain, ib. Gets Thucydides to be banished, 257. Accused of divers crimes, 259. Acquitted, ib. His conduct at the opening the Peloponnesian war, 264. His family visited with the plague, 270. Dies himself of it, 271. His character, ib. & seq. His son unjustly put to death, 320.

Perillus presents his brazen bull to Phalaris, vii. 395.

† Perinthus, Perynthus, by whom founded, ix. 509. Besieged by Philip, vi. 357, & seq. viii. 103, & 113. Relieved by Phocion, 114. The battle of, won by Niger, xv. 98.

Periscus, a famous engineer at Byzantium, xv. 102. Saved from the massacre, 103.

† Perizites, antient Canaanites, ii. 184. Why so called, ib. n. Invaded by Simeon and Judah, 206. Some spared to live among them, 209. Inslaved by Solomon, 214.

Perjury made capital by Moses, iii. 367.

Peronia, the betrayer of Constantina, xvi. 332.

Peroses king of Persia's fatal expedition against the Hunns, xi. 114. Perfidy to them, ib. 115, & n. Death, ib.

Perozes defeated by the Romans, xvi. 306.

Perpenna, a soldier, chosen consul, xii. 393. Defeated by the allies, 520. Forced out of Sicily, 575. Passes into Spain, 605. Joins Sertorius in Lusitania, ib. Repulsed by Pompey, 607. Defeated by Metellus, 609. Treachery to Sertorius, 614, & seq. Defeated and taken, ib. Put to death by Pompey, ib.

† Perfamenians, who, xvi. 306. Defeated by the Romans, ib. Submit to Justin II, 320.

† Persepolis, capital of Persia, described, iv. 523, n. & seq. The ruins of, 551, & seq. & n. Various conjectures about them, 562, & seq. D. Siculus's account of that city, 563 n. And of its being destroyed by Alexander, ib. & xviii. 226. Other noble Antiquities of it, 564, & seq. Why also called Elymais, 569, n. How taken and burnt, v. 229, 230.

Perfes, who, v. 29. No idolaters, ib. & seq. Falsely accused by the Turks, 33, 34 n. Their religion displayed, 35, 38. Its origin, whence, 40, 307 & seq. Veneration for the elements, 41, & seq. Temples, 44, & seq. Account of the creation, 48. Priests, ib. & seq. Initiating of children, 51. Marriages, ib. & seq. Funerals, 54.

Perfes succeeds Philip in Macedon, vi. 642. Courts the Greeks against the Romans, ib. His letter to the Achæans, 643. Rejected, 644. Defeated by the Romans, 646. Treachery to Eumenes, xii. 320. Punished by the Romans, 321, & seq. Defeat, 325. Taken prisoner, 326. Led in triumph, ib. & seq. Miserable end, 328.

Perseus, the son of Jupiter by Danae, v. 626. Fetches the famed Gorgon, and saves Andromeda, ib. & seq. Kills his father-in-law, 627. Exchanges Argos for Tyrrin, ib.

——the natural son of Philip, cabals against his brother, viii. 486, 492. Disinherited, 493. Mounts the throne by force, 495, & seq. His character, &c. ib. & seq. Falls out with the Romans, 496. Goes to Delphos, 497. Undermined by Eumenes, 498. Accused to the Romans, ib. & seq. Success against them, 503. Pusillanimity, 504, & seq. Mad actions, 506. Covetousness, 508. Defeat, 516, & seq. Miserable flight, ib. Refuge in Samothrace, 518. Surrenders to Octavius, 420. How treated by the Consul, ib. & seq. Vindicated against the Roman writers, 525, n. Miserable end, 528. Character and progeny, 532.

——His high regard for his master Antigonus, xiv. 270. Writings, character, and death, 292, n.

† Persia, the kingdom of, described, iv. 503, & seq. Its climate, 527. Seasons, 528. Rivers, 530. Produce, 532, & seq. Fruits, grain, &c. 534. Mines, 540. Poisonous plants, 546, & seq. Government, v. 4. Kings how respected, ib. & 22, & seq. Palaces described, 7, 8, & seq. Education of children, 10, & seq. Divided into 20 satrapies, 101. Exempt from all taxes, ib. Its kings according to oriental writers, 240, & seq. —The continuation of its history, xi. 73, & seq. Visited with a six years drought, 210. Subdued by the Caliphs, 249, & seq.

Persian,

I N D E X to the

Perſian religion vindicated from idolatry, v. 29, & ſeq.

—ambaffadors, how treated by the Macedonians, viii. 50, & ſeq.

† Perſians, their manners, customs, &c. v. 11. Punishments, 12, & 13. Polygamy and inceſt, 14, & ſeq. Coins, arts, &c. 15, & ſeq. Military diſcipline, 15, 16 & ſeq. Severity, 16, 17 n. Chariots, weapons, marching, &c. 16, 17, 18, 19. Muſter-rolls, 19. Laws, ſchools, &c. 21. Slavishneſs to their kings, 22 & ſeq. Secrecy, 25. Presents, ib. Their wives and revenues, 27, 28. Wars with the Greeks, 335, & ſeq. Deſeat at Salamis, 123, & vi. 204, & ſeq. By land under Mardonius, v. 147, & ſeq. Camp forced by the Greeks, ib. Army deſtroyed, ib. & ſeq. End of the Grecian war, 148, 149. Oppreſs the Cypriots, vii. 493, & ſeq. Peace with them, 498. Deſeat the Grecian fleet, 537. The occaſion of that war, viii. 52, & ſeq. Put to flight by Leutychides, vi. 438. Worſhip Alexander, viii. 274, & n, & ſeq. Subdue the Parthians, xi. 72, & ſeq. The ſequel of their hiſtory, 73, & ſeq. End of their monarchy, 175, & ſeq. Hiſtory according to oriental writers, 177, & ſeq. End of their monarchy according to them, 249, & 250 n. Threaten the Roman Territories, xv. 200. Deſeated by Balila, 233. Invade them aſreſh, 432, & ſeq. Deſeated by them, 438. Before Niſibis, 440. Renew the war, xvi. 203. Deſeated by Ardaburius, ib. & ſeq. Invade them aſreſh, 230. Peace renewed, ib. And war, 304. Outwitted before Martyropolis, 308. Conclude a peace, ib. Four thouſand deſeat 30,000 Romans, 312, & ſeq. Deſeated by the Lazi, 313. Invade Lazica, 314. Deſeated, 315. Ravaged by Juſtinian, 323. By Mauritiuſ, ib. By Heracliuſ, 325. By Germanuſ, &c. 326. By Heracliuſ, 338. End of their kingdom, 342, & ſeq. Courtſhip to the Romans, 392. Help to form the Numidians, xvii. 563. Why called Numidæ, ib.

—modern, their tradition about the origin of the world, i. 141. About the flood, 306.

Perſic alphabet, xviii. 245.

† Perſtalba rebuilt, and called Pannopolis, xvi. 426.

Pertinax's ſucceſs in Pannonia, xv. 18. Promoted by M. Aureliuſ, ib. Succeſs in Illyricum, 36. In Britain, 60. Narrow eſcape, 61. Succeeds Dionyſiuſ at Rome, 63. Made proconſul of Afric, 64. Governor of Rome, 65. Obſequies of Com-modus, 68. Proclaimed emperor, 72. Speech to the ſenate, 73. Riſe and extract, 74. Excellent character and government, 76. Diſobligeſ Lætuſ and the army, 77. Signal intrepidity, 78. Death, 79. Funeral honours, ib. &c. Pompouſ apotheoſis by Severuſ, 97.

—Hecatuſ put to death for his biting ſarcaſm againſt Caracalla, xv. 129.

† Peru, not the true name of that country, i. 476.

† Perugia taken by Totita, xix. 491, 493.

† Peruſia, beſieged by Octaviuſ, xiii. 306. Its noble defence, 308. Surrendered and burnt, 309, 311.

† Peruſians, 300, put to death by Octaviuſ, xiii. 309.

† Perynthians, beſieged by king Philip, vi. 357.

Peffinuſ, whence ſo called, v. 545.

Peffuthneſſ aſſiſtſ the Samians, vii. 540.

Petalifm at Syracuſe, what, vii. 185.

Petavia deſtroyed by the Quadi, xvi. 30.

Peter, the apoſtle, called, x. 423, 438 & 444 n. Surnamed Cephaſ, ib. Walks on the ſea, 460. His noble confeſſion, 461, 466. Why blamed for his modeſt reſuſal, 495 n. For his zeal, 500. Denies his Lord, 502. Haſtens to his ſepulchre, 520. His commiſſion and martyrdom, 524. Firſt ſermon, and 3000 converts, 534. Second, and 5000 converted, 538, & ſeq. Speech to the Sanhedrim, 539. Second defence, ibid. Miraculoſly delivered from priſon, 561. Prophecy againſt the Jews, 581, 582, & n.

—tortured by Honoriuſ, xvi. 168.

—a frier ſtirſ up the mob againſt Hypatia, xvi. 197.

—made duke of Naples, xvi. 362.

—order'd over the Danube, xvi. 328. Put to death by Phocaſ, 330.

—the hermit, ſtirſ up chriſtians to the holy war, xvi. 477. Marches at the head of them, 478. His ill conduct, 479. And deſeat, 480.

—earl of Auxerre crowned emperor, xvi. 508. Put to death by Theodoruſ, 509.

—ſucceeds his father Simeon, xix. 410. Peace and alliance with Romanuſ, 411.

—ſent duke of Naples, xix. 562.

† Petilia, by whom built, vii. 478. Noble defence againſt Hannibal, xvii. 403, 408. Surrendered, 408. Diſarmed, 481.

† Petiliuſ

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Petilian women, their signal bravery, xvii. 408.

Petilius's inveteracy against the two Scipio's, xii. 310, & seq. Killed by the Ligurians, 319. Takes flying Pompey on board, xiv. 70 & n.

——Cerealis's success in Britain, xviii. 705.

Petinus put to death by Galba, xiv. 310.

† Petor, where situate, x. 344, n.

† Petra, a city of Edom, ii. 154. Placed under the Amalekites by Josephus, 175, n.

†——metropolis of Palestina tertia, xv. 626.

†——of Arabia Petrea, xviii. 180, 181. Why so called, ib. Described, 181, 182, & n.

——plundered by Antigonos, viii. 393. Besieged by the Romans, xi. 143.

Petræ, two Roman knights put to death, xiv. 130.

Petreius's signal bravery and reward, xii. 495. Defeats Catiline, &c. 641. Commands in Hither-Spain, xiii. 47. Submits to Cæsar, 49. Goes over to Pompey, 90. Gratitude to Cæsar, 94. Death, 96.

Petronius sent to persecute the Jews, x. 555. Success against Candace, xiii. 382, & seq. — P. Succeeds Vitellius in Syria, xiv. 69.

——Caius, his lewd character, xiv. 268. Prudent government, ib.

——Turpilianus put to death by Galba, xiv. 307. Encourages Nerva to assume the purple, 547. Killed by the mutineers, 553.

——Mamercus put to death by Commodus, xv. 64. Extortions at Constantinople, 614.

Peucesta's lot after Alexander's death, viii. 372. Outwitted by Eumenes, 380, & seq. Treachery to him, 385. Punished, 387.

Peutinger's itinerary, xvi. 213, n.

Phædra's incontinency, vii. 478.

——one of Herod's wives, x. 323, n.

Phædrus the fabulist, when he flourished, xiv. 37, n.

Phagrus, a noted fish peculiar to the Nile, i. 503.

Phalangius, a bloody governor of Bætica, xv. 596.

Phalanx, Macedonian, how disposed, viii. 39, 40. By whom invented, 79, n. & seq. Revived by Severus, xv. 164. The bravery and reward of six of them, ib.

Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigentum, vii. 395. His brazen bull, 223, & n. Death, 395.

Phalerum of Athens described, vi. 130.

Phalis king of Sidon, when he flourished, ii. 369. Styled most illustrious by Homer, ib. &c.

Phameas brought over to the Romans, xii. 346. And deserts the Carthaginians, xvii. 529.

† Phanagora, metropolis of Bosphorus, ix. 623.

Phanagorium betrayed by Costar, ix. 442.

Phanes of Halicarnassus revolts from the king of Egypt, ii. 74, 75. v. 85. His children murdered before his face, 86.

Phannias, an obscure priest, made pontiff by the zealots x. 586, n.

† Phara, where sited, xviii. 177, 183. One of the boundaries of Arabia, 177.

†——the promontory of, xviii. 185.

Pharaimanes, king of Chorasmene, viii. 280. Embassy to Alexander, ib. &c.

Pharamond, the time of his defeat and death, xix. 240. Of his reign, 257, & seq. Where buried, 258. Whether author of the Salic law, 259.

Pharaoh, its etymon, ii. 90. Common title to Egyptian kings, 390. Who first took it, 90.

——Pharaoh, the lame, king of Egypt, ii. 92. Refuses to deliver up the refuged Jews, ib. Hanged for it by Nebuchadnezzar, ib.

——his two dreams interpreted by Joseph, ii. 464. Cruel orders to the Hebrew midwives, 515. Cruelty to the Jews, 512, 514. In what sense his heart was hardened by God, 558, n. Dismisses the Israelites, 575. Pursues them and perishes in the red sea, 581.

Pharasmenes, king of Iberia, recovers Armenia, ix. 352. Supplants his brother, 353. His cruelty to him, 354, & seq. & 610.

——king of Albania, favoured by the Romans, ix. 615. Ravages Armenia, xiv. 631. Comes to Rome, 635. Kind reception by Adrian, ib. Great respect for Antoninus, 666.

I N D E X to the

Pharez and Zara born to Judah by Thamar, ii. 463. Strange birth, ib. & n.

Pharizates married to Alexander, viii. 332.

Pharisees, their rise, x. 204, 352. Enmity to Hyrcan, 205, & n. Cause a revolt against Alexander Janneus, 216. Insolent answer to him, 217. Impudent behaviour to his queen, 222, & seq. Cruelty to the Sadducees, ib. & seq. Requited by Aristobulus, 227, & seq. Their peculiar tenets, 352, & seq. Cause of their infidelity, 354. Reproved by the Baptist, 423. By Christ much more, 463. Two false notions of theirs confuted, 475, & seq. & n. Put to silence by Christ, 491. The rest, see Jews.

† Pharmacusa island described, vii. 567.

Pharnaces 1st, king of Pontus, wars with Eumenes, ix. 381, & seq. Peace with him, 383.

—— II., revolts against his father, ix. 444, & seq. Made king of Bosporus, 449. Recovers part of Pontus, 450. Defeats the Romans, 451. Defeated by J. Cæsar, 453, & seq. Slain, 454. See vol. xiii. 81.

—— king of Cappadocia, ix. 460, 462.

† Pharnus king of Media, conquered by Ninus, iv. 469. Crucified with his wife and children, ib.

† Pharos island taken by the Romans, xii. 180.

† ——— city razed by them, xii. 180.

† ——— the famous tower of, described, ix. 180.

† Pharpar and Abana, streams of the Chrysorrheas, that water Damascus, ii. 265.

† Pharsalia, the plains of, where situated, vi. 16. Described, xiii. 60. The battle of, 62.

† Pharufii, from whom descended, xviii. 22, & 23, n. A tribe of Gætulians, 46. Of Persian extract, 37.

Phasaël, Herod's brother, x. 253. Made governor of Jerusalem, 260. And tetrarch, by M. Antony, 265. Betrayed by Pacorus, 267. Kills himself, 269.

—— the son of Herod by Pallas, x. 323, n.

† Phasaëlis, the fortress of, built by Herod, x. 315. Bequeathed to Salome, 406.

† Phasellis, a city in Lycia, vi. 590.

† Phaselus the tower of, described, ix. 181, n.

† Phasis, a city in Colchis, ix. 603.

† ——— a river in Armenia, ix. 318, 603. Mistakes of the learned about its source, i. 187. Arrian's observations on it, xiv. 632.

Pheasants whence brought, ix. 603.

Phelles, Helles, kills his brother Astarimus, ii. 379. Murdered by Ithobal, ib.

† Phenaeus lake in Arcadia, vi. 4.

Pheneas the Ætolian deputy's conference with Æcilius, vi. 46. With Flaminius, 51. With Fulvius, 60. Peace with the Roman senate, 62.

Pherecides of Siros, master of Pythagoras, i. 126. Notion of the world's origin, ib.

—— first prose-writer, where born, vii. 593, & seq. His doctrines, 594, n. Other works, i. 111, n.

Pherenice, princess of Rhodes, carries her son to the Olympic games, vii. 408.

Pheretima, driven into Cyprus, vii. 494. Reception at Salamis, xviii. 70. Gets the government of Cyrenaica, 72. Her revenge on the Barcæ, ib.

Pheron, Sesoosis, succeeds Sesostris, ii. 43. Struck blind, ib. Recovers his sight, and rears two obelisks, 44.

Pherocunes sent against Varamus, xi. 155. Murdered, ib.

Pheroras, Herod's fourth brother, x. 254, n. Made tetrarch, 305, & n. Accused by Alexander, 318. Joins with him against Herod, 322, & seq. Leaves the court, 324. Refuses to return to his sick brother, ib. His death discovers the whole plot, ib. & seq.

Phial, holy, at Rheims, the fable of, xix. 283.

† Phiala, the lake of, the true source of Jordan, iii. 125, & n. Described, ib.

Phicol, chief captain of Abimelech, ii. 232. Probably his prime minister, 235, 236, n.

Phidemon's fidelity to Trajan, xiv. 595.

Phidias, the Athenian statuary, condemned, vi. 257.

Phidipedes's vision of the God Pan, vi. 179.

Phiditia at Carthage, what, xvi. 604, n.

Phiden,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Phidon, the first coiner of money, vii. 635.
 † Philadelphia, antiently the metropolis of the Ammonites, ii. 117.
 † — a city in Lydia, v. 572. Besieged by the Turks, xvi. 520.
 Philadelphian works, why so called, ix. 205.
 Philaeni, worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 633. Why, xvii. 40.
 Philanorum Aræ, their distance from Hercules's pillars, xvi. 570, 571, n.
 Philæus, king of Salamis, yields that island to the Athenians, vii. 639.
 Philammon murders Arsinoe, ix. 220. Assassinated by her women, 222.
 Philanthropenus's success against the Turks, xvi. 519. Revolt, 520. Punishment, ib.
 Philarchus, a bitter enemy to the Jews, killed, x. 131.
 Philip of Macedon's wars with the Athenians, vi. 347, & seq. Corrupts the Greeks with his gold, 351. Seizes the freights of Thermopylæ, 353. Subdues the Olympians, 356. Puts an end to the Phocian war, ib. Driven away by Phocion, 358. Invades Phocis, ib. Defeats the confederates at Cheronea, 359. Where brought up, viii. 75. Comes into Macedon, 76, & seq. Signal policy, 77, & n. Defeats Argeus, 80. Peace with Athens, 81. Conquests, 83, & seq. Loses an eye, 86, & n. His success in Thessaly, 87, & seq. Against the Olynthians, 89, & seq. Peace with Athens, 92, & seq. Ends the sacred war, 94, & seq. Invades Thrace, 96, & seq. And Eubæa, 101. Propontis, 103, & seq. Letter to the Athenians, 104, & seq. Repulsed by Phocion, 114. Defeats the Treballi, 114, 115. Chosen general by the Amphictyons, 116. Defeats the confederates, 118. Peace with Athens, 121. Armament against Xerxes, 122, & seq. Marries Cleopatra, 125. Murdered, 133. His character, 135, & seq.
 — the son of Antigonus, his moderation to the revolted Spartans, vii. 538. Beaten out by Lycurgus, 539. Assists the Achæans, 577. Defeats the Eleans, 578, & seq. Takes Psophis, and gives it to the Achæans, 580. Ravages Elis, ib. & seq. Kindness to the Achæans, 581. Besieges Paleis, 586. Invades Ætolia, 587. Takes Thermæ, 588. Invades Lacedæmon, 591. Appeases a sedition at Corinth, 592.

Truce with Ætolia, 594. Takes Thebes and Phthiotis, 596. Peace of Naupactus, 599. Designs against the Grecian liberty, 600, & seq. Invades Epirus, 601. Defeated by the Romans, ib. Poisons the noble Aratus, 602. Defeats the Ætolians afresh, 604. Defeated before Elis, 605, & seq. New peace with Ætolia, &c. 609, 610. Breaks it, 610. Forsook by the Achæans, 613. Invades them, ib. Takes Argos, and gives it to Nabis, 614. Forced to peace with Rome, 617. Siege of Lamia, vii. 45. Harasses Ætolia, 49, 50. Recovers some important places, ib. Ravages Attica, 70. Fatal fury against the Athenians, 72. Forced to defend Macedon, ib. & seq.
 Philip, regent of Athanania joins with Antivelius, vii. 38. His pretensions to Macedon, ib. & n. Taken by the Romans, 40.
 — Cassander's general, success in Ætolia, viii. 449.
 — the son of Demetrius II^d, left an infant, viii. 479. Prospers under his uncle Doson, ib. & seq. Mounts the Macedonian throne, 483. Treachery to the two Arati, 484, & seq. Overpowered by the Romans, 485, & seq. Family broils, 489. Cruelty to his son, 493. Runs mad, 494. Death, ib.
 — the supposed son of Perseus, vid. Andriscus, viii. 534.
 — another, pretender to the Macedonian crown, defeated, viii. 545.
 — regent of Syria, ix. 91. Defeated and killed by Lyfias, 99.
 — the son of Grypus, defeats the Mopsuestians, ix. 155. And Eucherus, 156. Invaded by Eusebes, &c. 157.
 — the Acarnanian's faithfulness to Alexander, viii. 177, 178. His lot after his death, 372.
 — a Phrygian and cruel governor of Judea, ix. 75. x. 111. Murders a thousand Jews on the Sabbath, 117. Destroys the sacred books, ib.
 — the son of Herod by Mariamne, x. 322, n.
 — by Cleopatra made tetrarch, x. 323, n. His share of the Jewish kingdom, 406. Death and character, 541.
 — the apostle called by Christ, x. 423, & 444, n. Preaches at Samaria, 543.

I N D E X to the

Philip, the murderer of Gordian, makes peace with Sapor, xi. 81.

—— king of Macedon, allies with Hannibal, xii. 235. Invades Sicily, 242. Surprized and driven out, ib. & seq. Defeated by Flaminius, 298. Condemned by the Roman commissaries, 314.

Philip, Pompey's freedman's piety to his dead master, xiii. 76.

—— Julius's treachery to Misitheus, xv. 206. Succeeds him as captain of the guards, ib. Treachery to Gordian, 207. His extract, &c. 209. Whether the first christian emperor, 210. Acknowledged by the senate, 211. Makes peace with Sapor, ib. Submission to the bishop of Antioch, 212. Success against the Carpi, ib. Edict against the Catamites, 213, & seq. March against Decius, 214. Defeat and death, ib. Zeal for christianity, 215.

—— his son chosen colleague, xv. 211. Consul, 213. Killed by the Pretorian guards, 214. His singular gravity and religion, 215.

—— Flavius, an Arrian consul, xv. 437.

—— emperor of Germany's treaty to enthrone Alexius III, xvi. 500.

—— of Sida, his voluminous writings lost, xvi. 240, n.

—— Embassy to Carthage, xvii. 411. Treaty, ib. Ambassadors sent prisoners to Rome, 414. Second treaty, 416. Separate peace with Rome, 457. Assists the Carthaginians, 492.

† Philippi, by whom built, viii. 14. Its situation, &c. xiii. 258.

—— the first battle of, xiii. 264, & seq. Second, 277, & seq.

Philippicus's success against the Persians, xi. 152, & seq. Put to flight by Cardariga, ib. Recalled, xvi. 325. Repulsed by the army, ib. Reconciled and victorious, 326, & seq. Banished by Tiberius, 353. Proclaimed emperor, 355. Marches to Constantinople, ib. & seq. Favours the Monothelites, 356. Blinded and deposed, ib.

Philipion put to death by his father, x. 249.

† Philippopolis in Thrace, by whom built, ix. 510. Taken by the Goths, xv. 218. 100,000 Romans put to the sword in it, ib. Plundered and taken by the Hunns, xix. 66. By the Goths, 121.

Philippus, L. Marc. chosen consul, xii.

515. Opposes Drusus's scheme, 516. Sent into prison, 517.

Philippus Lucius's motion in favour of Pompey, xii. 600.

—— L. Mar. marries the mother of Octavian, xiii. 164. Why surnamed Thuri-nus, ib.

Philistides, tyrant of Oreus, vii. 652. Made so by Philip, viii. 102, n.

† Philistines, their extract and antient territories, ii. 216. Seize on Palestine, 217, & n. Their country described, ib. Names, cities, &c. 18, & seq. Present ruins, 219, 220, n. Government, kings, &c. 222, & seq. Enmity to the Israelites, 224. Religion, idols, &c. 225. Drive out the Avim, 228, 229. Obligingness to Abraham 230, & seq. To Isaac 233, & seq. Invaded by Simeon and Judah, 236. Defeated by Shamgar, ib. & seq. Plun-dered by Zebah and Zalmunah, 237. Op-press the Israelites, ib. & seq. Defeated by Jephtha, ib. & seq. Seize on the sa-cred ark, and plagued with it, 241, & seq. Send it back with proper expiatories, 243, & seq. Defeated by the Jews, 245, 246. By Jonathan and Saul, ib. By David, 252. Jealousy of him, 254. War against him, 255. Defeated seven times by him, 255, & seq. Apply themselves to trade, 258, & n. Harassed by Nadab king of Israel, 259. Tributary to Jehoshaphat, ib. Retaliate on Jehoram and his family, ib. & seq. Subdued by the Assyrians, 260, & seq. & n. 200 of them killed for their fore-skins, 252. War with Judas Macca-beus, x. 142.

Philistus the historian, his character, vii. 266. Treachery to Dion, 267. De-feated at sea, 275. Kills himself, ib. See also vol. xvii. 73, & n.

Philla married to Craterus, viii. 429.

Philo the Jew's account of the Septua-gint version, x. 85, & 86. Of the Esse-nian sect, 363, & seq. Why he differs from Josephus, 366, n. His account of the Alexandrian persecution, xiv. 676. Sup-posed to have exaggerated it, 681. His character, 683. Successful embassy to Ca-ligula, ib. & seq.

—— stirs up the Lusitanians against Cæ-sar, xiii. 127.

—— A. Publ. Success against the Pale-politans, xii. 8. Consulship 23.

Philobasilei at Athens, their office, vi. 143.

Philologus, whether the betrayer of Ci-cero, xii. 231, & n.

Philocle

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Philocles sent to ravage Attica, vii. 72.
 — betrays young Demetrius, viii. 492.
 Put to death, 493.

Philomel, the fable of, vi. 33, & n.

Philomenes betrays Tarentum, to Hannibal, xvii. 428. & seq. Treachery and dismal end, ib. n.

Philomedes's affront to Posthumius, xii. 84.

Philopœmen, general of the Achæans, his character, vi. 606. Valour at the battle of Salefia, 569, 570. Defeats the Spartans at Mantinea, 541. Kills Mechanidas, ib. & 609. Noble speech to the Achæan states, 621. Defeated at sea by Nabis, ib. Beats him at land, 622. Harasses the Spartans, ib. & seq. Defeats Nabis, 623. Instances of his generosity, 624. Brings the Spartans into the Achæan league, 548, 624. Chosen prætor of Achia, 626. Wars against the Lacedæmonians, 628, & seq. Subjects them to the Achæan laws, 629. Marches against the rebellious Messenians, 634. Taken prisoner by them, 635. Poisoned, 636. His murderers sacrificed at his tomb, 638. Other funeral honours, ib.

Philosophers banished Athens, vi. 273. Recalled, ib. Expelled Rome, xiv. 436, 442, 517. Carested by Julian, xv. 533.

Philostorgius's writings and character, xvi. 240, n.

Philostratus's fabulous account of Apollonius Tyanæus, xiv. 515, 526. & seq. of Babylon, 34. And of the Parthian kingdom, 535. Exploded, 540.

— his writings and character, xv. 123, n.

Philotænus, first king of Pergamus, viii. 577, n. Buys the body of Seleucus, 580. Seizes the castle of Pergamus, ix. 472.

Philotas suspected of treason, viii. 241. Tortured and put to death, 243. His character, 244, & seq.

— account of Antony's extravagance, xiii. 312, n. & seq. n. His sophistry rewarded, 313, n.

Philoxenus's lot after Alexander's death, viii. 372.

Phineas, the grandson of Aaron, ii. 549. Zeal rewarded, iii. 30.

— the son of Eli, slain, iii. 522.

Phineus the blind south-sayer, infested with harpyes, vi. 21 n. Rid of them by Hercules, ib.

Phiton plots against Perdiccas, viii. 362.

Phlegon's eclipse quoted by the fathers, x. 513, n. His account of it, xiv. 17. Of a dreadful earthquake, xiii. 575. Of two strange births, xiv. 598. His writings, character, &c. 649, n. Story of an apparition, ib.

Phliasians oppressed by the Lacedæmonians, vi. 496. Reduced by Agesilaus, 498.

Phlox in the Phenician history, who, i. 258.

† Phoea, by whom founded, v. 659.

Phocas, the murderer of Mauritius, xi. 165. Declared and crowned emperor, xvi. 329. Cruelty to that prince, 330. And to his friends, ib. Image sent to Rome, ib. Character, ib. Calamities of his reign, ib. Treachery to Narfes, 331. Horrid butcheries 332. Insulted and conspired against, 333. Butchered by Heraclius, 334.

† Phoea, metropolis of Ionia, described, vii. 100. Taken by Harpagus, 101. By the Romans, 102, n.

Phocian games, why instituted, vii. 102, n.

Phocian wars, its causes, &c. vi. 350.

— despair, a proverb, whence, vi. 27.

— Phocians discomfit the Theffalians, vi. 26, 27, & seq. Condemned by the Amphictyon court for sacrilege, 30, & seq. Invade Locris, 488. War with Philip, viii. 88. & seq. With the Carthaginians, xvii. 27.

Phocion, Athenian general, his character, vi. 354. Relieves Byzantium, 358. Carested by Alexander, 362. & seq. Antipater, 365, & seq. Put to death by the Athenians, 370. Funeral honours, ib.

† Phocis part of ancient Greece, v. 404. Described, vi. 29. Invaded by Philip, viii. 94.

† Phocra mount, where sited, xviii. 13. n.

Phocrites made chief magistrate of Heraclea, ix. 588.

Phocus, the son of Ornytion, father of the Phocians, vi. 29. — The son of Æacus king of Phocis, ib.

Phæbe, Julia's band, kills herself, xiii. 432.

† Phæbi promontory, where, xviii. 25. Phæbidas takes Thebes, vi. 497. Killed, 499.

Phæbus, why fabled in love with Rhodes, vii. 396. 402, & seq.

I N D E X to the

Phæbus, brutishness to Vespasian, how requited, xiv. 436.

Phædra's incestuous love to Hippolytus punished, v. 654, n.

† Phænice, whence so called, ii. 328. Where sited, 329. Division, cities, &c. ib. & seq. Soil, &c. 335. Natural and artificial rarities, ib. & seq.

Phœnicians, their origin, ii. 339. Government, 340. Religion, ib. & 341. Ceremonies, 350. Circumcision, 356. Arts and sciences, ib. & seq. Trade and navigation, 358, & seq. Shipping, 360. Series of kings, 363. From the fabulous times, 365, & seq. Shake off the Persian yoke, 370. Betrayed by Mentor and Tennes, 371. Subdued by Ochus, 372. Origin of the world, i. 95, & seq. Tends to atheism, 96. Whence brought, 97. Antediluvian history, 256. From Sanchoniatho, 387. Bp. Cumberland's comment upon it, ib. Invaded by Alexander, v. 217. Conquered by Tigranes, ix. 333. Plundered by Cosrhoes, ix. 165.

Phœnicopteri, Flamingos, bird of Egypt, i. 501.

Phœnix, the son of Agenor, and his supposed successor in Phenice, ii. 368. The pretended inventor of scarlet, ib.

—— the famed fabulous bird, some account of, i. 564. One seen in Egypt, ix. 213. xiv. 19. n. The antients opinion of this creature, 20, n.

Phonaicus, a new employ given by Nero, what, xiv. 273.

Phorbos king of Argos, v. 622.

—— why admitted into Rhodes, vii. 403.

Phormio, the philosopher, reproved by Hannibal, xvii. 501.

Phoroneus king of Argos, v. 622:

† Phoronium, a city of Argos, v. 622.

Phos, in the Phœnician history, who, i. 258.

Photinus's advice about Pompey's reception, xiii. 74. Stratagem against Cæsar, 78. Raises new troubles, 80. Slain, ibid.

Phraartes, defeated by Sidetes, ix. 141. Destroys all the Syrians, ib. & seq.

Phraatides murders his father, xi. 54. Banished, ib.

Phrahates, king of Parthia defeats the Mardi, xi. 10.

—— II^d, defeated by Antiochus, xi. 11. & seq. By the Scythians, 12. His death, ibid.

Phrahates, III^d. wars with Tigranes, xi. 13. Murdered by his sons, ib.

—— IVth, his bloody reign, xi. 46. Defeats the king of Media, 52. Dethroned, ib. Peace with Octavian, 53. Poisoned, 54.

—— message to Augustus, xiii. 386. Submits to his conditions, 393. His motives for it, ib. Submission to him, 435, 436.

Phraartes king of Media, iv. 475. Whether he subdued the Persians, ib. & n. His reign and conquests 476. Defeated by Nebuchodonozor, 477.

† Phraræsus mount, where sited, xvii. 558. By whom inhabited, xviii. 46.

Phreatum, an Athenian court, its office, vi. 145.

Phridun, king of Persia according to oriental writers, v. 254. His singular character, 256.

Phronima, princess of Crete, how saved from death, vii. 480.

† Phrygia, part of Asia proper, v. 485, & seq. Described, 490, & seq. Whether Æneas reigned in it, 558, n. & seq. n.

† ——— Minor, vid. Troas, v. 492. Beautified by Adrian, xiv. 619. Destroy'd by famine, xv. 625. Ravaged by the Goths, xix. 124, 148.

Phrygians, their origin, character, &c. v. 500. Government, trade, &c. 502. Religion, 504. Kings, 511. Invaded by the Cymmerians, 518. Subdued by the Lydians, ib. & seq. Side with the Trojans, 553. Why submit to Midas, viii. 175.

Phrymon defeated by Pittacus, vii. 355.

Phrynicus, the Athenian, betrayed by Alcibiades, vi. 306, 307. Promoter of Oligarchy, 308. Stabbed to death, 312. His writings and character, xv. 46, n. & 70, n.

Phrynon, basely killed by Pittaccus, vii. 100.

† Phryx, a river in Phrygia, v. 499. Phtha, among the Egyptians, the same as Vulcan, i. 100.

† Phthia, part of antient Greece, v. 604:

† Phthiotis, part of Thessaly, vi. 15. Drowned in Deucalions's flood, ib.

† Phunon, one of the encampments of the Israelites, iii. 23.

† Phut, who and where first settle xvii. 560. & seq. xviii. 22, 23.

Phu!

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Phut, river, where, ib.
Phutei, their excellent use of the shield, xviii. 28.

Phya, a base woman set up to represent Minerva, vi. 157.

† Phylace, a city in Macedonia, viii. 11, 12.

Phylarchi at Athens, their office, vi. 143. Among the Gætulians, xviii. 49, & n.

Phylæus the son of Augeas, banished for siding with Hercules, vi. 71. Restored by him, 72. Retire into Dulichium, 73.

Phyllis's piety to the Flavian family, xiv. 526.

Physic, owing probably to the Egyptians, i. 580.

Physicians, in Egypt, could cure one disease only, i. 581. Provided for by the public, 582. Their method &c. ib.

— fees from the poor regulated at Rome, xv. 590.

Phyto defends Rhegium against Dionysius, vii. 533. Barbarously murder'd by him, 254.

Pia & Pialia, the games of, described, xiv. 668.

† Picentes, who, xii. 94. Conquered by Corn. Sophas, ib.

† Picentium, its territories described, xi. 363.

† Picenum, the country of, xi. 261. Submits to Cæsar, xiii. 41. Laid waste by the Romans, xix. 464.

Pico de Adam, why so named by the Turks, i. 167.

† Picts, who and where sit'd, xv. 345. Defeated by Constantius, ib. Join with the Scots, 497. Invades North Britain, xvi. 54. Their origin and old site, xviii. 650. Whether the same with the Britons, 651. Differ from the Scots, 672.

When first distinguish'd in history, 714, & n. Submit to Julian, ib. Invade the Romans, ib. Subdued by Theodosius, 715.

By Constantine, 717. Repulsed by Honorius, 718. Fresh invasion, xix. 3. And repulse, 5.

Picus, a fabulous king of Latium, xi. 277.

Pietus, king of Epirus, ix. 536.

† Pieres, a people of Thrace, ix. 537.

† Pieria, the region of, described, viii. 11. Its mines, 23.

† — part of Seleucis, ii. 263.

† Pierian hill, described, viii. 24.

† Piereus river, in Achaia prop. vi. 86.

† Pietas Eusebia, the diocese of, by whom founded, xv. 453.

† Pihahiroth, Avitas Heroum, where sit'd, ii. 579, 580, n.

Pilate, Pontius, governor of Judea, x. 413. His character, ib. n. Exasperates the Jews, 414, & seq. Reproved by Tiberius, 417.

Attempt on the temple treasure, ib. & seq. Tries and condemns Christ, 506.

Severity to the Samaritans, 544. Deposition and Banishment, ib.

Pilate, Pontius, his acts, the validity of discussed, x. 544, n. & seq. n. His account of Christ crucifixion, xiv. 23.

Pileus at Rome, what, and to whom given, xii. 409, n.

Pillars, one of stone, and one brick, rear'd by the sons of Seth, i. 243, 244. Josephus's mistake about them, ib. & n.

— from which Manetho extracted his history, i. 244, 245. Others sacred to fire and wind, 259 & n.

— of Hermes in Egypt, i. 589. Their use, &c. ib. & seq.

— of cloud and fire that followed the Israelites, ii. 580.

† Pimplia hill described, viii. 24. Its poisonous fountain, ib.

Pinacles, at Rome, what, xiii. 138, n.

Pinaria, a vestal burnt alive, xi. 351.

Pinarius, saves Enna from being betrayed, vii. 367.

Pindarus, tyrant of Ephesus, vi. 114.

† Pindenissimum, taken by Cicero, xiii. 32.

† Pindus, the famed mount of, ix. 531.

† — river, boundary of Phocis, vi. 29.

Pins, why consecrated by the Argives, vii. 638 n.

Pipa, whether married to Gallienus, xix. 243.

Piram, king of Jarmuth joins the confederates against the Gibeonites, ii. 203.

Miraculously cut off, ib. & seq.

Pirithous, king of the Lapithæ, vi. 16. Delivered from the centaur by Hercules, ibid.

— the constant companion of Theseus, v. 653, & seq.

† Pifa, a city in Elis, by whom founded, vi. 69, 70. Why destroyed by the Eleans, ib.

Pisander, promotes oligarchy at Athens, vi. 308, & seq. Goes over to the enemy, 313.

† Pisaurum, destroyed by an earthquake, xiii. 352 n.

I N D E X to the

Piscladian dynasty of Persia, described, v. 240.

Pisgah mount, an encampment of the Israelites, where, iii. 24, 25.

† Pisidia becomes a Roman province, xiii. 377. Ravaged by Tribigil, xix. 148.

Pisistratus's expedition against Salamis, vi. 106. His popularity reproved by Solon, 150. Stratagem to obtain a guard, ib. & seq. Vainly opposed by Solon, ib. & seq. His letter to, and answer from him, 153, 154. Usurps the supreme power, ib. & seq. His reign, 156, & seq. Death and character, 160, 161, & seq. n.

Piso comes over to Sylla, xii. 561. Forced to divorce his beloved Annia, 585.

—— Calpurn, speech against Pompey, xii. 623.

—— Cn. Calp. conspires with Catiline, xii. 628. Made guardian of Cæsar's will xiii. 153. Speech to the senate, ib.

—— Luc. Calpur. success in Thrace, xiii. 418. Noble speech in the senate, 566. Trial and death, 634, 635, & n.

—— Cneius's noble question to Tiberius, xiii. 549. Signal pride, 572, 573, & n. Towards the Athenians, 580. To Germanicus, 581. Suspected of poisoning him, 586. Letter to Tiberius, 591. Defeated by Sentius, ib. Arrival at Rome, 601. Arraigned by Vitellius, 592.

—— Lucius killed in Spain, xiii. 649.

—— the governor of Rome dies, xiv. 9 & n.

—— Caius head of the conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 236. His character, ib. Put to death, 242.

—— Licinianus, adopted by Galba, xiv. 318. His behaviour on that occasion, 321. Speech to the cohorts in favour of the emperor, 325. Murdered by Otho, 329. Buried by his wife, 332.

—— sent against Valens, xv. 237. Takes the imperial title, 238. Murdered, ib. His extract and divine honours, ib. & seq.

† Pison river, whether the same with Pifitigris, i. 187.

Pissamina, the mother of Lætus, her extraordinary charity, xvi. 51. During the siege of Rome, 172.

† Pithecusæ cities, where, and whence so called, xvii. 192 n. Taken by Eumachus, 193.

Pitholaus left guardian of young Commodus, xv. 17.

Pithon chosen protector of Macedon, viii. 320. Put to death by Antiochus, 387.

—— his attempt against Eumenes, viii. 378.

† —— a city in Arabia Petrea, xviii. 183.

Pitolaus, a chief of the Roman faction in Judea, x. 243. Goes over to Aristobulus, 245. Put to death, 248.

Pittacus, where born, vii. 550.

Pittacus, king of Lesbos, his character, vii. 555. His laws and writings, ib.

Pitteus king of Troezon, gives his daughter to Oegeus, v. 647.

† Pityus, metropolis of Colchis, ix. 602.

† Pityusæ islands described, xviii. 352.

Pius, Metellus's son, whence so surnamed, xii. 508.

† Placentia put to the sword, xii. 297.

—— the garrison of, sallies against the Vitellians, xiv. 350. Besieged by Cecina, 351. Drive him off, ib.

—— the large amphitheatre of, burnt, xiv. 351.

Placidia, the mother of Valentine II, born, xvi. 35. Consents to Cerena's death, 172. Carried captive by Alaric, 185. Married to Ataulphus, 193. Ill used by Sigeric, 196. Sent back to Honorius, 198. Married to Constantius, 199. Retires to Theodosius, 206. Restored to her titles, &c. 215. Returns with her son into the west, ib. Declared regent, 216. Instigated by Felix against Bonifacius, 217, 218. Invites him into Italy, 220. Reconciled to him, 221. Carried captive by Genserich, 259. See also vol. xix. 153.

—— daughter of Eudoxia, married to Olybrius, xvi. 271.

Placidus's success in Judea, x. 593.

—— Jul. the discoverer of Vitellius, xiv. 408.

Placilla, Theodosius's wife. See Flacilla, xvi. 34.

Plætorius, Mart. put to death for his compassion, xii. 573.

Plagues of Egypt, ii. 559, & seq. How long they took in bringing on, 570, n. A grievous one at Athens described, vi. 266, n. & seq. n. Another brought into Italy, xvii.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

xvii. 11. Under Gratian, xvi. 17. Under Constantine IV. 366.

Plancina's extract, pride, &c. xiii. 573, & n. Lewd popularity, 581. Abandons her husband, 603. Pardoned by Tiberius, 604. Her death, xiv. 15.

Plancus, Munatius's friendship to Julius Cæsar and Antony, xiii. 192. Wary behaviour to the latter, 194. Goes over to him, 195. His triumph, 235. Consulship, 238. Sent to relieve Lucius, 306. Leaves him in the lurch, 307. Forced off by Octavian, 310. Treachery to Antony, 349. Wretched character, ib. n. Consulship, 354. Made purveyor to Rome, 387.

Plane-tree in Crete described, vii. 461.

Planets, how they came first to be worship'd, iii. 468, n. The planetary division of the week, whence, ib. & seq. Why worship'd by the Arabs, xviii. 224. Their seven temples to them, ib. Names, rites, &c. ib. & seq.

Plantation, the order of the first, i. 456. That of the earth, 457.

Plantius's success against the Britons, xviii. 700, & seq. Joined by Claudius, 701. Made governor, 703. His further conquests, ib. & seq.

† Platea, where situate, vi. 262. Betrayed to the Thebans, ib. Burnt by the Lacedæmonians, 271. Razed, 275, 458. Rebuilt by Alexander, viii. 149.

Plateans, why attach'd to the Athenians, vi. 188 & n. Bravery against the Peloponnesians, 187, 174. Reduced, 275.

Plato's doctrine about God and the world, i. 77, & seq. Misunderstood by his followers, 80. His own notion on that head, 131, & seq. System of ideas, ib. Two principles, 126. Finite and infinite, 127. Whence he had his philosophy, 589. Hindered from pleading for Socrates, vi. 333. His account of his death, 334, 335 n. Invited into Sicily by Dionysius, vii. 264 n. Punished for his free speech, ib. Comes thither a second time, 265. Polishes his son, 266. A third time, 268. Goes back into Greece, 269.

Platonism, how early received into the church, i. 80, & seq.

Plautianus seizes Pescennius's children, xv. 94. Brings them to him, 97. His character, wealth and sway, 111. Consulship, ib. Vast dowry to his daughter, 112. Becomes obnoxious to the emperor, 113.

Accused of treason, ib. Put to death, 114.

Plautilla, Nerva's mother's descent, xiv. 546.

——daughter of Plautianus, married to Caracalla, xv. 112. Becomes hateful to him, 113. Banished into Liparis, 114. Put to death, 125.

Plautius, L. Venno, made consul, xii. 5. Success against the Privernates, 6. Obtains their pardon, 7.

——M. Sylva's wholesome laws, xii. 524.

——Firm. dissuades Otho from killing himself, xiv. 360.

——put to death by Caracalla, xv. 125.

Plautus sent into Britain, xiv. 122. Success there, ib. Obtains an ovation for it, 133.

——Rubellus's high descent and merit, xiv. 204. Sent into Asia, ib. Assassinated there, 218, 219 & n.

Players, Stage, their licentiousness suppressed, xiii. 550. Expelled the empire, 632. Driven out of Italy, xiv. 183. Recalled, 204. Forbid by Trajan, 563. Recalled, 568. Regulated by Valentinian, xv. 596.

Pleaders, Lawyers, their extortions complained of to the senate, xiv. 130, & seq. Truncated, 132. Deprived of their fees, 569.

Plebeians, the order of, instituted by Romulus, xi. 294. Raise a tumult against the Patricians, 420, & seq. How quelled, 422. Inraged by Appius, 425, & seq. By the senate, 427. Revolt, 429, & seq. Resume the claim of the Agrarian law, 511, & seq. Dispersed by the Patricians, 512. Three of their order chosen decemvirs, 522. Fall out with the Patricians, 559. Redressed by the senate, 563. Raised to the military tribuneship, 568, & seq. Shake off the Patrician yoke, 610, & seq. Procure new laws in their own favour, xii. 320, & seq. Raise new tumults, 79. Raised to the consulship, 320. To the censorship, 592. Triumph over the Patricians, 481. Treachery to Antony, xiii. 350.

Plennius delivers up Messana to Lepidus, xiii. 339.

Pleuratus king of Illyrium, leagues with Rome against Ætolia, vii. 7.

† Pleuron, a city of Ætolia, vi. 78.

Pleurones, why called Curetes, vi. 78.

I N D E X to the

Plinthia's revolt and rise, xvi. 200.
Shameful peace with the Hunns, xix. 57.

Pliny held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 89.

—— his account of the Essenians, x. 364.

—— destroyed by mount Vesuvius, xiv. 460. His judgment of Domitian's poems, 469.

—— junior his character of Virginius, xiv. 283. Pleads for the Bithynians against Massa, 510. His intrepidity when accused by him, 511. Pleads in favour of Helvidius, 513. Generosity to Artemidorus, 516. Panegyric on Trajan, 565. Speech against lawyers fees, 569. Sent governor into Pontus, 570. His writings and character, 603, n. Character of Suetonius, 655, n. Partial account of the Gauls, xviii. 483.

Plistarchus, king of Sparta's short reign, vi. 453.

† Plistia taken by the Samnites, xii. 31.

Plistoanax succeeds Plistarchus, vi. 453. Sent to invade Attica, 456. Betrayed by his tutor, 243, 456. Banished 456. Recalled by means of the oracle, 460. His death, 464.

Plotina Trajan's wife's excellent character, xiv. 561. Raises Adrian to the empire, 596. Obsequies of her husband, 595. Death and funeral honours, 620.

† Plotinopolis, a city in Thrace, ix. 510.

Plotinus goes voluntier to the Persian war, xv. 206. His writings and character, 271, n.

Plotius, C. an inhuman usurer, xii. 79. Condemned to death, ib.

—— condemned by the triumvirs, xiii. 221.

—— Primus, promoted by the soldiery, xiv. 331.

Plutarch's opinion of the world's origin, i. 135, & seq. Why prejudiced against Cassius, xiii. 268, n. Cotemporary with Favorinus, xiv. 650, n. His works and character, 652, n.

Plutarchus tyrant of Eubœa, expelled, vii. 652.

Pluto, see Dis. v. 419, &c. Of the Gauls, who, xviii. 472, & seq.

Plutonium of Herapolis described, v. 495, n.

† Po river, boundary of Liguria, xi. 257. Described, 258. Whence called Bondicus, ib. & 271. Its head, 264. Golden sand, xii. 359.

Podarces, the son of Laomedon. See Priam, v. 549.

Pœon, the son of Eudymion, settles in Pœonia, vi. 70.

Poetry, Hebrew, its metre, &c. very uncertain, iii. 455, & seq.

—— Lyric not invented by Orpheus, iii. 428, 429. How used among the Celtes, v. 409, 412.

Poets, old pagan, the depravedness of their theology, i. 104. And cosmogony, ib. & seq.

—— in high esteem among the Arabs, xviii. 251.

Points, Hebrew, when introduced, iii. 455 & seq. An account of them, ib. & 456, & n. See also vol. x. 34, n.

Pole over Apollo's statue, what xviii. 468, & n.

Polemarchus at Athens the third magistrate, vi. 90. His office, 142.

—— in Bœotia, vii. 89.

Polemocratia pus herself under Brutus's protection, xiii. 206.

Polemon made king of Pontus, ix. 454.

—— Ild, turns Jew, ix. 455. Exchanges his kingdom, ib. & 626. Marries Berenice, x. 567, n. See also vol. xiii. 408. & xiv. 51.

—— Remmius, a master of rhetoric under Nero, xiv. 292, n.

—— an arrogant sophist under Adrian, xiv. 653, n. Buries himself alive, ib. His ill-manners to Antoninus, how requited, 660.

† Polemonium, a city in Pontus, ix. 373.

† Polignac, the Gothish temple of, described, xviii. 468.

† Politorium, taken by Ancus, xi. 336. Where sited, ib. & n.

Polenius put to death for subornation, xv. 116.

Pollentia's constancy and death, xiv. 255.

† —— city, by whom built, xii. 402. The famed battle of, xvi. 155.

† —— in Majorca, xviii. 351.

Pollentius, an extraordinary youth slain, xvi. 21.

Pollio's

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Pollio's policy to gain Herod's favour, x. 281, n.

—— Afinius, a friend of Cæsar and Antony, xiii. 192, 194. Goes over to the latter, 195. Sent against Salvidienus, 305. Forfook by Plancus, 306. Retires to Ahenobarbus, 310. Persuades him to submit to Antony, 315, & n. Frank answer to Augustus, 350. Death, 410.

—— Vedius, a cruel upstart's death, xiii. 410.

—— Annius impeached by Senecio, xiv. 240.

—— Afinius, murdered by the Moors, xiv. 367.

—— F. Anver promoted by Vespasian, xiv. 464.

—— Trebellius's history sadly curtailed, xv. 236. His writings and character, 321, n.

Pollux his fabulous origin, vi. 58, n. One of the Argonauts, 20 n. Kills Amicus, ib. Recovers his sister, out of Aphidne, 59. His other exploits, ib. & seq. & n.

—— Jul. his writings, &c. xv. 69, n.

Poltron, whence that significant word, xviii. 478, n.

Polyœrnius's speech to the Syracusans, vii. 346.

Polyœnus's writings, &c. xv. 48, n.

Polybius the historian, sent deputy to the Roman consul, vi. 645. Kept prisoner, 651. Lifts under Scipio, 652. Present at the siege of Corinth, 668. Vindicates the great Polypæmen, 671. In great esteem with the Romans, 672. Advice to young Demetrius, ix. 101, & seq. & n. Accompanies Scipio Æmil. xii. 348. Great sway with Claudius, xiv. 103.

Polycletus's despicable expedition into Britain, xiv. 213. Put to death by Galba, 310.

Polycrates enslaves the Samians, vii. 521. Allies with Ægypt, ib. Subdues his neighbours, 522. The odd adventure of his seal, 523. Sends a fleet to Cambyfes, 524. Outwits the Lacedemonians, 525. Outwitted by Oroetes, 527, & seq. Crucified, 528. His character, 529.

—— prime minister of Epiphanes, his character, ix. 226.

Vol. XX.

Polydamas sent to kill Parmenio, viii. 245.

Polydectes king of Seriphus, vii. 579.

Polydorus the son of Cadmus, king of Thebes, v. 666.

—— king of Sparta, invades Messenia, vi. 406, & seq. Defeats the Argives, 408. The Messenians, 415. His character and death, ib. & 416.

Polygamy, allowed by the Jews, iii. 531, & n. Distinguish the first from the other wives, ib. n. The latter not mentioned in the sacred text as wives, & 352, & n.

—— allowed by the Persians, v. 12. By the Scythians, 460.

Polymestor king of Arcadia, defeats the Lacedemonians, vi. 13, 14.

—— king of the Thracian Chersonesus, ix. 525. Murders Polydor, ibid.

Polynices prince of Thebes, comes to the Argolic court, v. 633. His war with his brother, 634, & seq. Kills, and killed by him, 670. Buried by his sister, 671.

Polyspherchon head of the Macedonian faction, vi. 369. Cabals against Cassander, ib. &c.

—— governor of Alexander's sons, viii. 375. Left with the care of Macedon, &c. 430. Appointed Antipater's successor, 434. Character and wrong measures, ib. First edict confuses all Greece, 436. Cruelty to the Peloponnesians, 438. Defeated by Callas, 442, & seq. Flees into Greece, 445. Murders Hercules and his mother, 451.

Polyxenidas's treachery to the Rhodians, vii. 437, & seq.

—— defeated by the Romans, ix. 30.

—— Second defeat, ix. 38.

Polyzelus, prince of Syracuse envied by his brother vii. 178. Reconciled to him, 179.

† Pomerania invaded by the Gauls, xix. 107, & seq.

Pompedius diverted from invading Rome, xii. 518. Outwits Cæpio, 520. Defeated and killed, 528.

Pompeia Cæsar's wife's incontinence, xii. 542.

E e

Pompeia

I N D E X to the

Pompeia Macrina banished, xiv. 12.
Her family put to death, ib. & seq.

Pompeii, the two sons of Pompey, their success in Spain, xiii. 119.

† ——— the city of, where, xii. 525.
Taken by Sylla, ib. Overturned by an earthquake, xiv. 222.

† Pompeiopolis Soli, where, and why so called, xii. 625. Relieved by Balista, iv. 233.

Pompeius, Cn. defeated by the Allies, xii. 519. Whence called Strabo, 523. Victory over the Marfi, ib. Severity to Ausculum, 526. Triumph over it, 527. Subdues the Vestini, 528. Success against the Allies, 541. Treachery to Rufus, ib. Outwits the senate, 543. Goes over to the consuls, 545, 547. Killed by lightning, 547.

——— Rufus assaulted by Sulpicius, xii. 528. Deposed, 529. Seizes the Collinum gate, 530. Undermined by Pomp. Strabo, 541. Murdered, ib.

——— Geminus put to death by Tiberius, xiv. 10.

——— Cn. Magn. put to death by Messalina, xiv. 127.

——— Propinq. put to death, xiv. 336.

——— defeated by the Getæ, xvi. 301. Put to death for treason, 309.

Pompey the Great opposes Metellus in Crete, vii. 483. Haughty answer to Asiaticus, ib. ix. 154. Seizes on Syria, ib. Pontus, 434. Defeats Mithridates, 438, & seq. Pursues him into Scythia, 440. Subdues Pontus, 449. Generosity at his triumph, 450. Friendship to Auletes, 266. Sent into Armenia, 343. Re-inthrones Tigranes, 346. Succeeds Lucullus in his expedition against Iberia, 450. Against Albania, 609, & seq. Invited by Aristobulus, x. 232. Arbitrates between the two brothers, 233. Partiality for Hyrcan, 235, & seq. Besieges Jerusalem, 236. Takes it, 238. Enters into the most holy place, 240. Returns to Rome, 241, & seq. His birth and extract, xii. 476. First campaign, 547. Saves his father's life, ib. First success against the consuls, 562. Saluted emperor by Sylla, 563. Success against the consuls, 565. In Sicily, 575. Cruelty to Carbo, ib. Success in Afric, 582. Why surnamed the Great, 583. Triumph, 585. Opposes Sylla, 588. Defeats Lepidus, 591. And Brutus, ib. Made governor of Lusitania, 601. Passes thither, 604, 605. Foiled by Sertorius, 605, & seq. Defeated and wounded, 607. A fresh, 609. Doleful letter to the senate, 610. Ends the Spanish war, 617. Defeats the rebels, 619. Consulship, 620. Reconciled to Crassus, 621. Extensive power at sea, 623, & seq. Swift success against the pirates, 625. Power by sea, and land, ib. & seq. Gross dissimulation, 627. Sumptuous triumph, 644. Generosity, to his captives, ib. Wrong politics, 645, & seq. Reconciled to Cæsar, 648, & seq. Ingratitude to Cicero, xiii. 7. Despised by Clodius, 15. Second consulship, 19, & seq. Sumptuous theatre and shows, 23. New troubles at Rome, 26, & seq. Chosen sole consul, 28. Takes Metellus his colleague, 31. Promotes Cæsar's enemies, 34. Betrayed by Curio, 35. High contest with Cæsar, 36. Chosen general, 38. Upbraided by his party, 41. Quits the city, ib. Illusory answer to Domitius, 42, n. Escape out of Brundisium, 43, &c. Raises a vast army, 51. And navy, ib. Assembles the senate at Thessalonica, 52. Goes to Dyrrachium, 53. Besieged in his own camp, 56. Forces and defeats Cæsar, 57, 58. Forced to fight him, 60. Speech to his army, 61. Defeat and shameful behaviour, 66. Imbarks, 69, 70. Doleful meeting with Cornelia, 71. Flight, 72. Arrival in Egypt, 74, & seq. Basely murdered there, 76.

——— his tomb repaired by Adrian, xiv. 622.

——— theatre burnt and rebuilt, xiii. 620. xv. 213.

——— Cneius success in Spain, xiii. 120. Defeated by Cæsar, 122, & seq. Flight and death, 125, & seq.

——— Sextus's flight into Celtiberia, xiii. 126. Opposes the triumvirs, 292. Shameful indolence, 310. Comes over to Antony, 316. Interview with Octavian, 319. Treaty with him, 321. Generous answer to Menas, 322. Returns into Sicily, 323. Elated with his success, 334. Total defeat at sea, 335. Quits Sicily, 338. His last efforts defeated, 343. His death, ib.

Pompey

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Pompey Quinct. ill success and conduct in Spain, xii. 361, 362, & seq.

Pompilia, Numa's daughter, her offspring, xi. 321, & n.

Pompilius Numa. See Numa, xi. 314. & seq.

Pomponia Græcina turns christian, xiv. 184. Tried and acquitted, ib.

Pomponius Matho triumphs over the Sardinians, xii. 166. Made prætor of that island, 167. Stratagem to save himself, xiii. 228.

—— Secundus imprisoned, xiii. 678. Chosen consul, xiv. 87. Assembles, the senate, 106. Respected by Claudius, 110. Success and triumph over the Catti, 147. Poems, ib.

—— Flaccus's death, xiv. 16.

—— Labeo's death, xiv. 17.

—— Vejetanus defeated by Hanno, xviii. 428.

—— the Gaulish bard, his danger and vow, xviii. 488, n.

—— Mela. See Mela, xviii. 338, 362.

Pomposianus, Met. banished into Corsica, xiv. 491. Put to death by Domitian, ib.

† Pomptin the territory of, xi. 592. Seized by the Patricians, ib. Invaded by the Antiates, ib.

Pompus king of Arcadia, opens a trade into that country, vi. 13, 14.

Ponticus Valer. a cheating lawyer, banished, xiv. 214.

Pontiff of Alexandria, who, xiv. 623.

Pontifex Maximus among the Romans, his office, xi. 316, n. Forbid to assist at funerals, xiii. 540, n. That title assumed by the Roman Emperors, xiii. 410. First rejected by Gratian, ib.

Pontifices at Rome, their office, xi. 316. Augmented by Sylla, xii. 579.

† Pontine Lake, where and whence so called, xi. 423, n.

—— Marshes, Trajan's causeway over, xiv. 576.

Pontius Pilate. See Pilate, x. 413, & seq.

—— the Samnite general's stratagem against the Romans, xii. 17, 18. Forces them into a shameful peace, 20. Reproves their known faithlessness, 24. Defeated, 26, 27. Forced to pass under the yoke, 28. Led in triumph and beheaded, 76.

Pontius Herennius defeated, xii. 72.

—— Flagellanus degraded, xiv. 26.

† ——— Pontus, the kingdom of, why so called, ix. 371. Described, ib. & seq. Ravaged by the Scythians, xv. 229.

† Polemaicus, where and whence so called, ix. 373.

† ——— Cappadocius described, ix. 374. Its famed honey, 376. Origin and government, 377. Kings, 379, & seq. Reduced by Lucullus, 425. Made a Roman province, 428. Its various changes since, 455, & seq.

† Pools of Solomon described, iii. 154.

Popes, their power how founded, xvi. 362. By whom granted, 368, 369. Hatch the downfall of the Lombard kingdom, xix. 556. The beginning of their sovereignty, 562, & n. How confirmed, 574. Put in possession of Ravenna, &c. 582. Whether made sovereigns over them, ib. & seq.

Popilius's speech to Antiochus, ix. 81.

—— Lænas ravages the Faliscis, xiz. 635. Chosen consul, 640. Wounded by the Gauls, 641.

—— severity to the Stelates, xii. 319. Condemned by the senate, ib.

—— made to pass under the yoke, xii. 459, xviii. 553.

—— ingratitude to Cicero, xiii. 231.

Poplicola. See Valerius, xi. 383, & seq.

Poppea's friendship to the Jews, x. 569, n. & 570. Josephus's flattering character, of her, ib. n.

—— Sabina put to death by Messalina, xiv. 130. Her daughter captivates Nero, 186. Lewd character, ib. Supplants Agrippina, 192. Married to Nero, 219. Treachery to Octavia, ib. Honours on the birth of her daughter, 222. Death and pompous funeral, 253. Statues reared afresh by Otho, 343.

Porphyry's notion of Daniel's weeks confuted, x. 18, n. xv. 329, n. His writings and character, 271, n. Extract, travels, &c. 323, n. Death and works, 326, n. Why an enemy to the christians, 328, n.

I N D E X to the Porfena's attempt in favour of Tarquin, xi. 397. Outwitted by M. Scævola, 399. Discards the Tarquins, 402. Kindness to the Romans, ib.

—— Goods, whence that proverb, xi. 402.

† Porthmos, a sea-port in Eubœa, viii. 101. Taken by Philip, ib.

Porta, arrived at Portsmouth, xix. 22.

—— a city-gate whence so called, xi. 289.

† Portæ Caucaſia & Caſpita, where xix. 40.

Portia's ſurpriſing courage and conſtancy, xiii. 139, & 140, n. Dread for Brutus, 141. Doleful parting from him, 203, & n. Death, 290.

Portian Law, what, and by whom obtained, xii. 300.

Port-Reve cinque-port, whence ſo called, xviii. 661.

† Portugal, Portugal, whence ſo called, xviii. 343, n. The reſt, ſee under Luſitania, 325. & ſeq.

† Portus Herculis, whether the ſame with Monæci, xi. 257.

† — Lunæ, a city in Liguria, xi. 257.

Portus Magnus, Portsmouth ſo called, xviii. 659.

Porus king of Babylon, iv. 38.

—— in India oppoſes Alexander, viii. 300, & ſeq. Loſes his ſon, 302. Deſeated, 303. How honoured by the conqueror, 304.

—— another of that name abandons his kingdom to Alexander, viii. 305.

—— embaffy to Auguſtus, xiii. 395.

Porſidon, Neptune, the ſon of Pontus, i. 397.

Poſſides's great ſway with Claudius, xiv. 103, & n.

Poſt & Ante Verta, Diana, why ſo called, xvii. 473, n.

Poſtdiluvian Patriarchs, a table of their years down to Abraham, i. 333. Of the ſame, according to the Hebrew computation, 334. According to the Septuagint and Samaritan, 336.

Poſthumius deſeats the Sabines, xi. 403. Honoured with the firſt ovation, 407, & n.

—— Aul. choſen dictator, xi. 415. Deſeats the Latins, 417.

Poſthumius P. ſlain by his exaſperated army, xi. 560, & ſeq.

—— Spur. choſen conſul, xii. 17. Shameful expedition againſt the Samnites, ib. & ſeq. Forced to paſs under the yoke, 21. Delivered up to the Samnites, 23. Released by Pontius, 24.

—— Megilthus choſen conſul, xii. 48. Deſeats the Samnites, ib. Successful diverſion in Hetruria, &c. 61. Againſt Samnium, 65. And Hetruria, 67. Affronted by the Tarentines, 84.

—— L. a haughty conſul, xii. 73. Succeſs in Hetruria, 75, & ſeq. Mortified by the ſenate, 76.

—— A. choſen conſul and prieſt, xii. 151.

—— Albinus's ſucceſs in Illyricum, xii. 168, & ſeq. Retalled, 169. Killed by the Boii, 233.

—— Albin poiſoned by his wife, xii. 331.

—— Q. put to death by Antony, xiii. 357.

—— ſucceſs againſt the Gauls, xv. 226. Proclaimed emperor there, 231, 232.

—— ſucceſs againſt the Germans, xv. 232. Excellent government, &c. ib. Beloved by the Gauls, 241. Repulſes Gal-lienus, ib. & 243. Killed by his ſoldiers, 246.

—— ſucceſs againſt the Franks, xix. 245.

† Potidea in Macedon, by whom founded, viii. 13. Declares againſt the Perſians, 55. Surrenders to the Athenians, 61, 62. Taken by Philip, 83. Revolts from the Athenians, vi. 256. Reduced by famine, 270. Taken by Timotheus, 347.

† Potii, who, xii. 35. Punished by Hercules, ib.

Potinus's treachery to Cleopatra, ix. 275. To J. Cæſar, 280. Put to death, 282.

Potiphar, Joſeph ſold to, ii. 458. Over-reached by his wife, 459, & ſeq. Sends him to priſon, ib.

Potipherah, prieſt of On, gives his daughter to Joſeph, ii. 465.

† Potter's Field, Campo Santo, the extraordinary nature of its earth, iii. 144 & n. Foretold to be the burying-place of ſtrangers, x. 504.

Pourous, the firſt man according to the Bramins, i. 142.

† Praaſpa, where, xi. 48. Beſieged by Antony, 49.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Præ-adamites, their doctrine, i. 172
 Confuted, ib. & seq.

Præfecti Prætorio, their office, xv. 420.
 Province, ib. & seq. By whom founded, 422.

Præfectus Vigilum at Rome, his office, xiii. 352.

——— Castrorum, what, xiii. 509, n.

——— Prætorii, xiii. 512, & n.

——— Ærarii, Militaris, xiii. 551, n.

——— in Britain, their office and stations, xviii. 679.

† Præneste taken by T. Quinctius, xi. 607. Invaded by Sylla, xii. 565. Surrendered, 571. Totally ruined, ib.

——— the oracle of, ominous to Domitian, xiv. 521.

Prænestines waste the Roman territories, xi. 602. Cruelly butchered by Sylla, xii. 571.

Prænomen among the Romans, what, xi. 334, n.

Præpotes at Rome, what, xi. 297, n.

Præpositi in Britain, their office, xviii. 678.

Prætexta Toga at Rome, what xi. 334, n.

Prætextatus made prefect of Achaia, xv. 535. Wise and excellent Character, xvi. 65. Oration in the capitol, 66. Funeral honours ib.

Prætorian Guards discarded by Severus, xv. 94. A new set chosen, 96. Their tyranny, 373. Disbandment by Constantine, 374.

Prætorium among the Romans, what, xiii. 512, & n.

Prætors, Achæan, their office, vi. 558.

——— at Rome when first chosen, xi. 619. Their office, ib. n. Taken from among the Plebeians, xii. 3. Their number augmented by Cæsar, xiii. 131.

——— at Carthage their office, xvi. 608.

——— Peregrini at Rome, when first created, xii. 151. Their office, ib.

Prætus king of Argos, v. 625. His behaviour towards Bellerophon, ib. & c.

Prasutagus, highly injured by the Romans, xiv. 207. Causes a revolt, ib. & seq.

† Prasum promontory in Æthiopia, xviii. 106.

Praxagoras's writings and character, xv. 424, n.

Praxo discovers Perseus's treachery viii. 499.

Preconæfian marble famed, vii. 545.

† Preconnesus island described, vii. 544. Whether the same with Elaphonnesus, 545, n.

† Premnis taken by Petronius, viii. 382. xviii. 96.

† Prepesinthus island described, vii. 583.

Presenteius's success against the Romans, xii. 520.

Priam king of Troas, whence so called, v. 549. His reign, power, &c. ib. & seq. Progeny, ib. Whether the first king of the Franks, xix. 239.

Priapatius, third king of Parthia, xi. 10.

† Priaps, Phalli, vast columns in the temple of Hierapolis, ii. 258. An odd ceremony performed upon them, 293.

Priapus worshipped at Lampfacus, v. 563.

† Priene, by whom founded, v. 659. Where situate, vii. 115.

Priest, High, head of the Jewish church, iii. 252. Final judge of all controversies, ib. & seq. Laws relating to his office, &c. 253, & seq. Consecration, &c. 255, 258. & seq.

——— become prefects of Judea, xi. 62. Fall into a civil war with the lower class, 569, & n.

Priesthood among the Jews given to the first-born, iii. 250. Afterwards to the tribe of Levi, ib. & 251.

——— High, given to the family of Aaron, ii. 251. Become venal under the Roman power, x. 106, & 413.

Priestly Garments, ii. 274. Where kept after the captivity, x. 208.

Priests among the Jews, their consecration, iii. 270. Office, 272. Dress, 274. Subordinate to the High Priest, 270.

Those who returned from Babylon, x. 11. Admirable constancy amidst their slaughter in the temple, 239. Oppressed by the deposed Pontiffs, 568, & 569, n. Sent to Rome, ib. n.

——— Roman, how chosen and ordained, xi. 296, & seq. Fruitless embassy to Coriolanus, 451.

Priests,

I N D E X to the

Priests of Jupiter, not suffered to leave Rome, xiii. 617, & seq.

Primus Anton. Vid. Antoninus, xiv. 381.

Principes among the Romans, whence so called, xi. 655, n.

—— Juventutis. See youth, xiii. 427, n.

Principius killed at Rome, xix. 463.

† Prion, a city, where situated, ib. & seq. Whence so called, xvii. 307, n.

† ——— river, where, xviii. 202.

† Prionotus mount in Yaman, xviii. 202.

Prisca, the wife of Dioclesian, a christian, xv. 291.

Priscianus accused of treason, xiv. 666. Kills himself, ib.

Priscus's success against the Parthians, xi. 68.

—— Tarquil expelled the senate house, xiv. 161.

—— Julius great sway with Vitellius xiv. 376. Sent to guard the Apenine passes, 397.

—— Marius condemn'd for extortion, xiv. 564.

—— Statius's success in Syria, xv. 9.

—— Philip's brother made governor of Syria, xv. 212. His extortions cause a revolt, 213. Proclaims himself, emperor. ib. Proscribed, ib. & seq.

—— a conjuring philosopher in favour with Julian, xy. 533. His writings, &c. 562, n. Killed by the Goths, ib. & xix. 146.

—— the historian assisted by Euphemius, xvi. 241, n.

—— Mauritius's general repulsed by the army, xvi. 325. Destroys 30000. Avari, 328. Conspires against Phocas, 333.

Prisoners of war, when first exposed to sale, xi. 310, n.

Prisoners in the Roman camp, how order'd, xiii. 510, n.

Privateers, when first allowed by the Romans, xii. 147. Shipwreck'd, 149.

† Privernium, taken by the Romans, xi. 635. Revolts from them, xii. 5.

Retaken, 6. Made a municipal city, 7.

Proba, the wife of Probus, her excellent character, xv. 609.

—— opens the gates of Rome to the Goths, xvi. 183.

Probinus, chosen consul by Theodosius, xvi. 105.

Probus Bæb. banished for extortion, xiv. 564.

—— marries Severus's daughter, xv. 97.

—— the emperor's success against the Sarmatians, &c. xv. 227. Defeated in Egypt, 253. Proclaim'd, 279. His extract and character, ib. Success against the Gaul, ib. & 280. The Germans, ib. In Thrace, 881. Egypt, ib. Triumph at Rome, 242. Success against the revolters, 283. His works, 284. Murdered by the soldiers, 285. Epitaph and character, ib. & seq.

—— governor of Illyricum, a rank coward, xv. 604. Extortions discovered to the emperor, 608. His character, &c. ib. Death, 609. Success against the Goths, xix. 130. Against the Vandals, 194. Against the Franks, 246. The Quadi, 350, 351. Permits Vines to be planted in Gaul, &c. xviii. 589.

Procession, a long Egyptian one mentioned by Clement Alexander, ii. 6.

Procles and Eurysthenes, partners in the Spartan kingdom, vi. 51, 52.

Proclidæ so called from him, vi. 51, 52. A list of them, 379.

Proclus a champion for the worlds eternity, i. 80.

—— opposes the adoption of Cosrhoes, xvi. 304.

† Proconsularis, yielded to Genseric, xix. 204.

Proconsuls, why and first created, xi. 469, & n. Their number and office, xv. 421.

Procopius defeats the immortal troop, xi. 113.

—— his history defective, xix. 288.

Procofia, the festival of Ceres, vii. 65, n.

Proculus conspires against Galba, xiv. 323. Raised by Otho, 331. Unexperiences science in war, 347. Succeeds Celsus, 353. Rash advice to Otho, 354. Defeat and shameful flight, 358. Mean defence to Vitellius, 368.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Proculus the Astrologer foretells the day of Domitian's death, xiv. 522. Rewarded by Nerva, ib.

—— his writings and character, xv. 49, n.

—— rise and revolt in Gaul, xv. 283. Defeat and death, 284.

—— Deposed for extortion, xvi. 60.

—— the son of Titianus, put to death for extortion, xvi. 96, 97.

—— bp. sermon against the Hunns, xix. 53.

Prodictators why chosen by the Romans, xii. 208.

Proedei, at Athens, their office, vi. 136.

Proereses, a christian sophist, his writings and character, xv. 557, n.

Profuturus, defeated by the Gauls in Thrace, xvi. 16. His writings and character, 207, n.

Progne, the fable of, vi. 33, n.

Proletarii, who, xii. 88. Inrolled in the army, ib.

Prometheus's flood, in Egypt, i. 281, n.

—— a Titan, the first striker of fire, vii. 465.

† Promontorium magnum, where, xvii. 558.

Promotus's success against the Greuthongi, xvi. 68. Sent against Maximus, 79. Saves Theodosius from the barbarians, 91. His death, 92.

† Pronectus, a city in Bithynia, ix. 581.

Propedius accused and acquitted, xiv. 89.

Property, laws against coveting another man's, iii. 370.

Prophet, the import of that name, iii. 471, n. A list of them from Abraham to Malachi, 474. Of the prophetesses, ib. n. How God revealed himself to them, 475. Their food, dress, and manner of living, 472. Number, 474.

—— Among the Scythians describ'd, vi. 448, 449, & n.

† Propontis describ'd, vii. 554, & n. Invaded by Philip, viii. 103.

Prosecutions, how regulated by Solon's laws, vi. 144.

Profelytes, several sorts among the Jews, iii. 319. Regulations concerning them, 320, & seq.

Proserpine, princes of Epirus, guarded by Cerberus, v. 654. Where ravished, vii. 154. Worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 602, 627. Her temple plunder'd by Hamilco, xvii. 97.

Prosper, an extortionate Successor of Urfinus, xv. 465, 473.

Prostitutes, at Rome, laws against, xiii. 595. Encouraged by Caligula, xiv. 67. Forced to pay a tax, xvi. 293. Banished by Theophylus, 395.

Protagoras I. king of Cyprus, vii. 498.

—— II. an usurper of it, vii. 504. Makes peace with Persia, ib.

Proterus, an orthodox bp. murdered by the Eutychians, xvi. 266.

Proterus the philosopher put to death by the Goths, xix. 146.

Protesilaus killed by Hector, v. 555. His tomb, 523, n. Rifled by Artayctes, vi. 211.

Proteus, Cetes, king of Egypt, ii. 46. The fable of, whence, 47.

† ——— temple erected at Memphis, ii. 47. Various opinions about him, 46, n.

Protogenes, a famed painter, protected by Demetrius, vii. 427. His master-piece described, ib. v. & seq.

—— a tool of Caligula's cruelty, xiv. 85.

Protogonus and Eon, the Adam and Eve of Sanchoniatho, i. 256, & n. Their issue, 257.

Protopaschites suppressed, xvi. 193.

Provinces, Roman, divided into imperial and senatorial, xiii. 371. How governed, ib. Regulated by Adrian, xiv. 646.

Prudentius's character of Maxentius, xv. 365.

† Prusa, a city in Bithynia, described, ix. 581. Taken by Triarius, 420. By the Scythians, xv. 228. By Orchanes, xvi. 527.

Prusias,

Prusias, king of Bithynia, assists the Rhodians, vii. 429. Joins with them in the peace, 430, 431. Rejects Antiochus's offers, ix. 36, 37. Defeats the Pergamenian fleet, 479, & seq. Makes peace with Eumenes, 481. Invades Pergamos, 491. Treachery to Attalus, 492, & seq. Forced to a peace by the Romans, 493. Treachery to his son, 494. To Hannibal, 597. Mean behaviour at Rome, 598. Taken by Triarius, 420. Deposed by his son, 496. Assassinated, ib. His character, 599. Betrays Hannibal to the Romans, xvii. 511.

Prytanes, chief magistrates at Corinth, vi. 40. At Athens their office, 136. A new set of them, 308. Of Rhodes their office, vii. 445, n.

Prytanæum, the court of its power, &c. vi. 145. Abolish'd by Theseus, v. 652.

Prytanis king of Sparta wars with the Argives, vi. 64.

——king of Bosporus killed by his brother, ix. 622.

Psalms xxii. in what sense repeated by Christ on the cross, x. 513, & n. Its truelection vindicated, ib.

Psalms, how collected by Ezra, x. 34, & seq. Their meter, elegancy, &c. proved against bishop Hare, ib. 35, 36, & seq. & n.

Psammenitus, the son of Amasis king of Egypt, ii. 76. Defeated by Cambyfes, ib. Loses his kingdom, 77. His captivity and death, ib. & seq. See also vol. v. 85, 86, 87.

Psammis king of Egypt, dies in an expedition against the Ethiopians, ii. 64.

Psammitichus, I. king of one of the 12 toparchies of Egypt, ii. 58. Falls out with the rest, and reduces the whole country, ib. His extract, 60. Buildings, vast army, &c. ib. Opens the Egyptian ports to strangers, 61. Takes Azotus after a 29 years siege, ib. Invites the Scythians in vast numbers, ib. Expedient to find out the primitive language, i. 431, n. Dies, ii. 61.

Psammitichus, second king of Egypt, ii. 81. An inhuman prince, ib.

Psammuthis, king of Egypt, ii. 83.

† Pseboa, lake in Ethiopia, xviii. 106.

† Pseboa Island described, xviii. 107, n.

† Pselcha, Psecha, where situate, xiii. 382. Taken by Petronius, ib. xviii. 96.

Psephium at Athens, what, vi. 257.

Psilli, a kind of snake doctors, xiii. 88, n.

† Psillis, a river in Bithynia, ix. 591.

† Psophis described, vi. 579. Besieged, ib. Taken, 580.

† Psyche's intrigue with young Cato, merrily punned, xiii. 105.

† Psylli, who and where sited, xviii. 68. Their tragical end, ib.

† Pterium, a city in Cappadocia, ix. 458.

† Ptolemais, St. John de Acra, the ruins of, described, iii. 458.

† Ptolemais described, ix. 254. Betrayed to Antiochus, 200. Besieged by Alexander Janneus, 248. Taken by Cleopatra, 249.

† Ptolemais, Barce, a city in Cyrenaica, xviii. 65.

† Ptolemeus king of Thebes, v. 672.

——king of Egypt leagues with the Achæans, vi. 630.

——Chennus's writings and character, xiv. 623, n.

——the astrologer, his writings, &c. xiv. 674, n.

Ptolemies of Egypt, a list of them, ix. 173, & seq.

Ptolemy Soter, his extract, ix. 175, & seq. Miraculous cure, 176, 177. Sent to seize Bessus, viii. 253, & seq. Defeats the Aspii, 291. His lot after Alexander's death, ix. 177. Post and government, viii. 279, 272. ix. 178. Flourishing kingdom, viii. 367. Invaded by Perdiccas, viii. 370. Allies with Seleucus, 389. Takes Syria from Antigonus, 391, & seq. Beaten out of it, ib. & seq. Succours the Rhodians, vii. 421, 422. Whence surnamed Soter, 426. ix. 177. Defeated by Demetrius, viii. 398, & seq. Takes the title of king, 400 & ix. 178. Allies with Antigonus, viii. 405.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

viii. 405. Invades Judea, &c. 407. Makes his son colleague, ix. 179. Builds the tower of Pharos, 179, 180. Procures the Sinopian Serapis, 181, & seq. Founds the Alexandrian library, 184, & seq. and museum, 187. His death and character, 190. Subdues the Jews, x. 68. Kindness to them, 69, & 78. Issue, ix. 191.

Ptolemy Ceraunus disinherited, ix. 179, 191. Persecuted by Lyfimachus, viii. 465, 466. Treachery to Seleucus, 466, 467, 579 & ix. 191. Seizes the Macedonian crown, viii. 519. ix. 191. Treachery to Arsinoe, viii. 468. ix. 192. & seq. Slain by the Gauls, ix. 193.

—Philadelphus succeeds his father, ix. 193. Enmity to Demetrius Phaler. ibid. Marries his sister Arsinoe, 194. Embassy to Rome, 195. Invites Magas, 197. Improves the Egyptian commerce, &c. 198. Kindness to the Sicyonians, 200. Love to Arsinoe, 201. Death and character, 202. & seq. Works, 204, & seq. Friendship to the Jews, x. 82. Procures a version of the bible, ibid. & seq. & n. Embassy to Rome, xii. 90.

—Evergetes, whence so called, viii. 592. ix. 205. His conquests, 206. Sacrifices to the God of Israel, 207. Improves his father's library, ib. Kindness to Joseph the Jew, 209. His conquests, 212. Assists Cleomenes, ib. His death and character, 213.

—Philopater, why so called, ix. 213. Cruel character, 214. Peace with Antiochus, 216. Persecutes the Jews, ib. & seq. Takes them into favour, 218. Receives a Roman embassy, 219. Murders his wife, 220. Attempt on the Jewish temple punished, x. 94. His death, &c. ix. 221. & seq.

—Epiphanes born, ix. 220. Succeeds his father, 221, & seq. Invaded by Philip and Antiochus, 4. & seq. Protected by the Romans, ib. & 224. Degenerates into a tyrant, 226. Allies with Rome and the Achæans, ib. & 227. Poisoned, ibid.

—Philometor succeeds his father, ix. 228. Invaded by Antiochus, ib. & 71. Taken by him, 74. Restored to his crown, 79, 228. Divides his kingdom with Physcon, 79, 229. Goes to Rome, 82, 229. & seq. Speech to the senate, 230, & seq. Opposed by Physcon, ib. Rejects the Roman decree in his favour, 233. Defeats him, 235. Marches into Judea, 119, & seq. Allies with Demetrius, 120, & seq. Re-inthrones him, ib. Falls out with him, 235. His death and character,

VOL. XX.

122, 235. Favour to the Jews, 236, and to their High Priest, x. 174, 175, & seq.

Ptolemy Physcon disputes the crown with his brother, ix. 75, 228. Divides it with him, 229. Outs him, ib. & seq. Goes to Rome, 77, 230. Attempt on Cyprus, 232. Repulsed by the Cyrenians, 233. Defeated and caressed by Philometor, 235. Cruelty to his son and widow, 237. To the Jews and Egyptians, 238. & seq. Awkward reception of the Roman ambassadors, 240. Driven out for his cruelties, 243. Returns, 244. Sets up Zebina against Demetrius, 146. Defeats him, 150, 244. His death, learning, &c. 245. & seq.

—Lathyrus, why so called, ix. 246. Dethroned by his mother, 248. Defeats the Jewish king, 249. A bloody action of his, 250. Driven out of Judea, 251. x. 212. Restored to his kingdom, ix. 253. Takes Thebes, 256. His death, 257.

—Auletes, an effeminate prince, ix. 262. Driven out of his kingdom, 263. Interview with Cato, ib. Retires into the Ephesian azylum, 268. Bargains with Gabinius, 269, 270. Restored to his crown, 272. His cruelties, ib. & seq. Death, 275. See also vol. xiii. 79.

—his son drives his sister from the crown, ix. 275. & seq. Stirs up the Alexandrians against Cæsar, 279. Treachery to him, 285, & seq. Defeated, 286. Drowned, 287.

—the son of Pyrrhus left regent at Epirus, ix. 549. Subdues the Theſſalonians, 569. Killed, 570.

—the son of Alexander, his short reign, ix. 578.

—prince of Chalcis, ix. 646. Puts his son to death, ib.

—the son of Seleucus killed at Iſſus, viii. 180.

—the son of Lathyrus, his wealth and fordidness, vii. 509. Stript of Cyprus by the Romans, 510. Kills himself, 512.

—a natural son of Amyntas, viii. 73. His treasons, ib. & 75.

—general of Antigonus, his treachery, viii. 451. Poisoned by the king of Egypt, 452.

—Macron sent against Judas Maccabeus, x. 129. Turned out by Lysias, 138.

—the treacherous son in law of Simon, x. 191. His perfidy and parricide, ib. & seq. Ill success against Hyrcan, 193, & n.

—Menneus's kindness to Aristobulus's family, x. 249.

F f

Ptolemy

I N D E X to the

Ptolemy king of Cyprus deposed by Claudius, xiii. 10, 11.

——the son of Cleopatra made king of Phœnice, xiii. 346.

——king of Mauritania complimented by Tiberius, xiii. 636. Massacred by Caligula, xiv. 82. His descent, ib. n.

——a friend to Otho incenses him against Caligula, xiv. 323.

——the son of Juba, his pedigree, xviii. 40. n.

† Ptychia island, where situate, vii. 629.

Publicans, when first created at Rome, xii. 156. Suppressed by Nero, xiv. 128.

Publicola, Gellius, one of the commanders at Actium, xiii. 359, 361, & seq.

——chosen consul, xiv. 81.

Publius, a plebeian chosen prætor, xii. 3. Triumphs over Palepolis, 10.

——Philo. See Philo, xii. 23.

——a young slave cruelly used by Papirius, xii. 11.

Publipol. defeated by Pompey, xii. 619.

Publius Malleolus's parricide and punishment, xii. 494.

——a famed Syrian pantomime, xiii. 111. n.

——Mark an astrologer put to death, xiii. 566.

——ill success in Spain, xvii. 424.

† Pucetia described, xi. 263. Whence so called, 272.

Pudens at thirteen years of age wins the prize of poetry, xiv. 576.

† Pudni, a city in Arabia Felix, xviii. 399.

Pul, Phul, and by the Septuagint Phua, iv. 261. The supposed founder of the Assyrian monarchy, ib. & 463. Who, ib. & n. Receives 1000 talents from the king of Israel, 263, 463.

Pulcheria, daughter of Theodosius, born, xvi. 35. Her death and character, 67.

——daughter of Arcadius, his character, xvi. 165. Takes the administration upon her, 195. Her signal piety, ib. Marries her son to Eudocia, 202. Her death and character, 244.

——sister of Theodosius, her stratagem to make him read what he signed, xvi. 237. Resigns after his death, 242. Marries Marcianus, ib. & seq. Her death, donations, &c. 253.

Pulcio Titus attacked by Cæsar, xiii. 58.

Pulio, a German of extraordinary strength, xiii. 454.

Pullio's treachery to Mithridates and Iberus, ix. 354.

Pullus, Jun. chosen consul, xii. 142. Sails to the siege of Lilybæum, 144. & seq. Suffers a dreadful shipwreck, 145. His death, ib.

Pulvilius, Horatius, chosen consul, xi. 396. Consecrates the capitol, 403.

Pumice-Stones cast up by the sea, vii. 574, 575.

Punic war, the first, the causes of, xii. 100. & seq. Ended, 163, second 182, & seq. Concluded, 292. & seq. third proclaimed, 339, & seq. See also xvii. 325, 336. End of it, 497.

——tongue allied to the Hebrew, xvi. 644. Its numbers of the same nature, 648.

Punishments among the Jews before the captivity, iii. 338, & seq.

——among the Persians, v. 12, & 163, 164, n.

——among the Macedonians, viii. 33.

——how regulated by Solon, vi. 122.

Pur in the Phœnician history, who, i. 258.

Purim or Lots, the Jewish feast of, iii. 204.

Puruli, the last rank of Athenian citizens, vi. 132.

Purple of Elis famed, vi. 66, & n. & 67, n.

——fish, plentiful in Gætulia, xviii. 46.

——why worn by the Macedonian nobles, viii. 29.

† Purpurariæ Insulæ, where, xviii. 17. Whether the modern Madeirais, ib. n.

† Puteoli regulated by Sylla, xii. 589. Damaged by an earthquake, xiv. 459.

——the monstrous bridge of, xiv. 64.

——the games of, instituted, xiv. 668.

Putienus chosen emperor by the senate, xv. 193. His mean extract and rise, ib. & seq. Excellent character, ib. March against the Maximins, 195. Swift return to Rome, 198. Fills it with utmost joy, 199. Insulted by the Pretorian guards, 200. Murdered by them, 201.

† Pydna, a city in Macedon, viii. 11. Subdued by Archelaus, 69. By Philip, 83. Besieged by Cassander, 443.

——the battle of, vi. 646.

Pygmalion king of Tyre's murder of Sichæus, ii. 380, 381. Said to have built Carpathia in Cyprus, 382. Presents to Hercules's temple at Gades, ib. See also vol. vii. 492, & seq. xvii. 3. Over-reached by Dido, 4.

† Pygmies,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Pygmies, where sited, xviii. 93.
 Pylades, the faithful friend of Orestes, v. 633.
 —bold speech to Augustus, xiii. 403.
 —a famed gladiator, xiv. 568.
 † Pylaicum, the grand council of Greece, vii. 24.
 † Pylæ Ciliciæ described, v. 595.
 † Pylos, three cities of that name, vii. 13, n.
 † Pylus the promontory of, vi. 278, & seq. Fortified by the Athenians, ib. Taken by the Lacedæmonians, 317.
 Pyrachmes king of Eubœa slain by Hercules, vii. 650.
 Pyramidal figure, why used in monuments, i. 510.
 † Pyramids of Egypt, about 20 in number, described, i. 505. Whence so named, ib. By whom built, 506. & seq.
 —others long since ruined, i. 508. When built, ib. Why, 509.
 —three of the most famed described, i. 507, 511, & seq. Dimensions of the first, ib. & seq. Its in and outside, 512, 515.
 2d Pyramid described, i. 520, & seq. Priests lodging near it, 521.
 3d and 4th Pyramids, i. 521, 522. How built, 523. Ancient inscriptions on them, 507.
 † Pyramus river in Cilicia, v. 598.
 Pyrates swarmed in ancient Greece, v. 608.
 —take J. Cæsar prisoner, xii. 602. Crucified by him, 603. Cause a famine in Rome, 606. Defeated by Servilius, 612. Whence called Phaselli, ib. Defeat M. Antony, 613 & seq. Supported by Mithridates, 622. Their strength and horrid cruelties, ib. & seq.
 † Pyrene, the famed fountain of, at Corinth, vi. 37.
 Pyreneans submit to Scipio, xii. 214.
 † —mountains, where, and why so called, xviii. 350, n. Set all on fire, 382.
 † Pyreum, one of the havens of Athens, v. 640. vi. 128. Improved by Themistocles, 216. Demolished by Lyfander, 322. Garrisoned by Demet. Polyorcetes, 376. Sold to the Athenians, 377. Rebuilt by Adrian, vii. 87.
 † Pyrra, a city in Lesbos, overtuned, vii. 549.
 † Pyrrea, an ancient name of Theffaly, vi. 15.
 Pyrric dance, what, vii. 475.
 Pyrrhus, the son of Achilles, vi. 16.
 —1st king of Epirus, his extract, ix. 534. Killed before Troy, 535.

Pyrrhus 11d, his descent, ix. 543. Brought up by Glaucias, viii. 455. ix. 544. Allies with Demetrius, viii. 412. ix. 545. With Ptolemy, ib. Drives Demetrius out of Macedon, viii. 463. Made king of it, 464. Outed by Lyfimachus, ib. Recovers it from Gonatus, 472. Succours the Tarentines, ix. 546. His projects wittily checked by Cyneas, 548. Sails for Italy, 549. His wives and children, ib. n. Reforms the Tarentines, 551. Outwitted by Aristarchus, 552. Haughty letter to the Roman consul, 553. Defeats him, 555, & seq. Forced back from Rome, 557. Receives an embassy from thence, 558. His offers rejected by the senate, 561. Message to Decius, ib. Defeated by Sulpitius, 563. In danger of poison, 564. Invited into Italy, vii. 315, & seq. Oppresses the Sicilians, 317. Defeated at sea, 319, & ix. 565. Cruel revenge on the Locrians, 566. Sacrilege and punishment, ib. & seq. Defeated by Curius, 567. Returns to Epirus, ib. & seq. Seizes on Macedon, 568. Unsuccessful attempt on Greece, 569. Against Argos, 570. Defeats the Spartans, ib. Enters Argos, 571. Killed by a woman, 573. His character, ib. & seq. & n. See also vol. vii. 315, 319.
 —general of Ætolia defeated by Philip, vi. 604. And vol. xvii. 203, 205. His prophetic farewell to Italy, 208.
 —111d, murdered, ix. 578.
 —the worthless patriarch of Constantinople, xvi. 344. Flees into Afric, ib. &c. Betrays Antioch, 482.
 Pythagoras's doctrine of two self-existent principles, viz. God and Matter, i. 126. His dyad and monad, what, ib. Why he abstained from beans, 127. His Theology, whence borrowed, ib. & 589. How he was admitted to the knowledge of it, 590. A further account of him, vii. 530, n. & seq. His doctrine held by the Essenians, x. 367. His journey into Gaul, xviii. 471. n. 480, n.
 —tyrant of Ephesus, vii. 114.
 —Nero's catamite and husband, xiv. 226.
 Pythagoreans, their reasons why God should be called Tetractys, i. 128.
 Pythia's admirable constancy, xiv. 220, n.
 Pythian games in honour of Apollo, vi. 17.
 † Pythion, a city in Theffaly, vi. 17.
 Pythius, a Lydian immensely rich, v. 577, 578.
 Python sent to reduce Musicianus, vii. 319, 320. His lot after Alexander's death, 358. Slain by Ptolemy, 391.
 F f 2

I N D E X to the

Python, a serpent killed by Apollo, vi. 17. & n.

Pythones, the woman who delivered the oracle at Delphos, v. 611, n.

— their frequent cheats and evasions, v. 637.

† Pytus taken by the Borani, xv. 28.

Q.

† Quaderna taken by Maximus, xvi. 79.

† Quadi, who, and where sited, xii. 583, & n. xviii. 578. xix. 349. Their cities, &c. ib. Wars with Rome, ib. Submit to Antoninus, ib. & seq. (xiv. 666.) New peace with Commodus, 350. Ravage Illyricum, ib. Defeated by Carus, 351. Fresh ravages, ib. Peace with Constantius, 352. New ravages and conquests, ib. & seq. in Gaul, 353. Invaded by Domitian, xiv. 500. Put him to a shameful flight, ib. Revolt against M. Aurelius, xv. 12. Driven out of Pannonia, 18. Over-reach the Romans, 21. Destroyed by a miraculous fire, 22. Sue for peace, 25. Break it, ib. Defeated and punished, 26, by Probus, 227. by Regilianus, 230. Invade Pannonia, 473, 486. and Illyricum, 604. Defeat the Romans, 605. Waste their country, xvi. 29. Their end, xix. 353.

Quadratus Numidius governor of Syria, ix. 354. Message to Vologeses, 358, & x. 565. Severity to the Jews, ib. n.

— Seius's arraignment, xiv. 6.

— apology for the christians, xiv. 647.

Quadrigati, a coin so called, whence, xvii. 398, n.

Quadriremes first invented by the Carthaginians, xvi. 670.

Quadruplatores, informers, why so called, xv. 184.

Quails sent to the Israelites, falsely supposed locusts, ii. 592, 593, n.

† Quadrantana, the supposed mount where the devil tempted our Saviour, iii. 136.

Quartinus chosen emperor, xv. 184. Betrayed and murdered, ib.

Questors at Rome, their office, xi. 394, & n. New disputes about it, 557. Their number augmented by Cæsar, xiii. 131, and power enlarged, 422. At Carthage, their office, &c. xvi. 601.

— Provincials instituted, xii. 96. Their limits, ib.

Quietus, the son of Macrianus, chosen tribune, xv. 236. Left in Syria, 240. Killed by the Emessans, ib.

Quince tree, whence brought, vii. 460°

Quintilianus conspires against Nero, xiv. 236, & seq. Informs against his accomplices, 240, & seq.

Quinctilia, an actress, her signal bravery, xiv. 89.

Quinctilian reproved by Tiberius, xiv. 9. — wounds Commodus, xv. 57.

Quinctiliani, Lupercalian priests, whence so called, xi. 285, n.

Quinctius, Tit. Flam. See Flaminius, vi. 611, & seq.

— Luc. ravages Carystia, vii. 434.

— T. his wife measures against Vole-ro, xi. 480, & seq. Appeases the Plebeians, 483. Success against the Æqui, ib. Against the Volsci, &c. 486. Made pro-consul, 487. Dictator, 607. Subdues the Prenestines, ib.

— Cincinnatus's defence of his son, xi. 492. Retires to his farm, 495. Chosen consul, 502. Admirable policy, ib. & seq. Chosen dictator, 505. Defeats the Æqui, 506. Abdicates, 507. Timely advice to the senate, 509. Success against the Volsci, ib. & seq. Chosen inter-rex, 546. Consul, ib. Dictator, 548.

— the son of Lucius defeated by the Volsci, xi. 551.

— Pennus chosen dictator, xi. 629. Severity to the Tarquinenses, 637. Forced to head the revoltors, 651.

— Cæso's bold opposition against the Plebeians, xi. 491. Trial, ib. Banishes himself, 495. Recalled, 507.

— Crispinus chosen consul, xii. 266. Surprized and wounded, 267. Death, 269.

— Lælius chosen consul, xii. 304.

— a senator degraded, xii. 315.

— defeated by Lucullus, xii. 566.

— an officer of Dolabella betrays Laodicea, xiii. 213.

— D. slain by the Carthaginians, xvii. 345.

† Quinda, where, viii. 409. The treasure of, plunder'd, ib.

Quinquatrus, the festival of, xiv. 194.

† Quinguegentiani, who, and whence so called, xv. 297. Over-run Afric, 298. Defeated by Maximian, 300.

Quinqueremes, a fleet of, built by the Romans, xii. 151. By whom invented, xvii. 78.

Quinquevirate at Carthage, what, xvi. 597.

Quintili, the two brothers, their consulship and high merit, xiv. 670. Put to death by Commodus, xv. 58.

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Quintilian the orator, where born, xviii.

^{362.} Quintilius Varus put to death, xiii. 291.

—— Plantianus put to death by Severus, xv. 115.

—— Marcellus, one of Alexander's counsellors, xv. 157.

Quintillus, the brother of Claudius, proclaimed emperor, xv. 254. His death, ib.

—— success against the Goths, xix. 128.

—— Quintinus's unhappy expedition against the Franks, xix. 254. See also vol. xvi. 81.

Quintus Lutat. See Catulus, xii. 487.

—— Pedius, one of Cæsar's heirs, xii. 154.

—— Cicero's brother. Vid. sub Cicero, xiii. 25.

—— Veranius made governor of Cappadocia, xiii. 581.

—— Severus governor of Comagene, xiii. 581. Saves himself by informing, xiv. 6.

—— Curtius's anachronism about the Tyrian embassy rectified, xvii. 147.

Quirinalis, Clodius, accused, xiv. 183. Kills himself, ib.

Quirinus, Romulus, why so called, xi. 312.

—— the temple of, built by Papyrius, xii. 70. "

—— Publius chosen governor to Caius, xiii. 436. Good offices to Tiberius, ib. & 440. Sent governor to Judea, 453. Interceeds in vain for Libo, 565. Sues the divorced Lepida for adultery, 606. His death and public funeral, 613. Character, ib. & seq.

Quirites, whence so called, xi. 260 & 305, "

† Quisa, where situate, xvii. 556.

R.

† R Aamah, Rhegma, where situate, i. 462.

† Rabbah, metropolis of the Ammonites, ii. 117. Og's large bed kept at, ib. Taken and destroyed by Joab, 127. Whence called since Philadelphia, 117. Taken by Antiochus, viii. 616.

Rabbirus, Auletes's usurer, ix. 271, & seq. Requited by him, 273. Prosecuted by the senate, 274.

Rabshakeh. See below Rashakeh.

Rabuleius's crafty speech to the Roman consul, xi. 459.

Rachel, Laban's daughter, given to Jacob, ii. 438. Brought to bed of Joseph, 442. Seals her father's gods, 443, 445, & ". Dies in labour of Benjamin, 455.

Buried at Ephrath, ib. Her pretended miraculous tomb, iii. 135.

Rachis chosen king of the Lombards, xix. 571. His new edict, 572. Conquests, ib. Turns monk, ib. His statue at Barletta, 573, ". Diverted from resuming the crown, 584.

Racius, Constans, condemned for affronting Plautianus, xv. 113.

Rack, one of the Babylonish and Assyrian deities, iv. 340.

Radagisus king of the Hunns, invades the Romans, xvi. 150, & seq.

—— His formidable invasion, xvi. 160. Defeated before Florence, 161. Taken and put to death, ib.

—— repulsed by Stilicho, xix. 51.

† Radiva mount, where, xviii, 207.

† Rætia, how divided, xviii. 580.

† Rætii, who, and where sited, xviii. 580.

† Ragaba, where, x. 220. Besieged by Alex. Janneus, ib.

Ragaisus, when he reigned over the Franks, xix. 241.

† Rages, a city of Media, iv. 447.

Ragilo slain by the Franks, xix. 511.

Raguacharius king of the Franks, xix. 275. Assists Clovis against the Romans, 276. Betrayed and murdered by him, 302.

Raguel, the same as Jethro, ii. 138, "

† Rahab of scripture supposed the Deltha of Egypt, i. 489.

—— the harlot spared at the siege of Jericho, ii. 200. iii. 74. Her reception of the spies, 66, 67. Rather a hostess than a harlot, 65, ". Preserved from the common slaughter, 74. Married to Salmon, 75.

Rain, whether any on the primitive earth, i. 315.

—— of stones which fell on the Canaanites examined, iii. 91, 92.

Rainbow, whether any before the flood, i. 316.

Ram-battering described, xvii. 68, "

Ram-Berfius's success against Noufchizad, xi. 223.

† Rameses, Moses's dwelling-place in Egypt, ii. 576. Its distance from Canaan, ibid.

Ramizsus ravages Palestine, xvi. 335.

Rammius discloses Perseus's treachery to the Romans, viii. 499.

Rapax Legion, its furious onset against the Adjutrix, xiv. 358. Defeated by Primus, 389.

Rape, how punished at Athens, vi. 120.

† Raphia,

I N D E X to the

† Raphia, where sited, ix. 20, n.
The battle of, viii. 616, 617. Taken by Alex. Janneus, x. 213.

† Raphon, where situated, x. 146.

† Raptum, a promontory in Æthiopia,
xviii. 106.

Rashakeh, the Assyrian general's boasting speech to Hezekiah, iv. 271.

Raspah ravages Asia, xix. 123.

† Ratifbon, where, and by whom built,
xviii. 594.

Raven, why sent out of the ark by Noah,
i. 305, & n.

† Ravenna besieged by Belisarius, xix.
473. Taken, 475. Erected into an ex-archate, 508. Plundered by Luitprand,
557. Reduced into a dukedom, 558.
Retaken by Scholasticus, 559. The end of its exarchate, 575. Duration, ib. Given to the pope, 582.

— bishops of, claimed the precedence of all others, xix. 575, & seq.

† Rauraci, who, and where seated,
xviii. 577.

† Rauracum, where situate, xv. 461.

— the battle of, ib.

Raufimedes defeated and killed, xv. 394.
xix. 362.

† Rauwolf's account of the ruins of Babylon, i. 420, n. & seq.

Raymond succeeds Gualtier in the crui-sade, xvi. 480.

Razastes, a Persian general, defeated and killed, xvi. 339, 340.

Razis, signal zeal for his religion, x. 158.
Desperate death, ib.

Reanus put to death by Heliogabalus,
xv. 152.

Reason, how far bound to yield to revelation, x. 432, n.

Rebak king or prince of Midian, ii. 139.

Rebaptizers suppressed by Gratian, xvi.
36. by Theodosius II, 193.

Rebecca born to Bethuel by Milkah, ii.
417, n. Married to Isaac, 422. Barren
19 years, 426. Delivered of Esau and Jacob, ib. & seq. Favours the youngest, 432.
Obtains the elder's blessing, ib. & seq.

Rebilus, Canin. kills himself, xiv. 183.

Reccard king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Rechabites, who, and by whom founded,
iv. 114, n. & seq. Some wild notions about them confuted, 116. n. How far bound to his rule, ib. Benj. of Tudela's fabulous account of them, 118, n.

Recharius crowned at Merida, xix. 227.
His plunders, ib. Peace with Rome, ib.
Invades it, 228. Turns christian, 232.
Invades Carthagenæ, 227. Haughty answer to Theodoric, 228. Defeated and put to death by him, ib.

Rechila, made king of the Suevi, xix.
226. Conquests, ib. Death, 227.

Rechilus's success in Spain, xvi. 234.
Death, 235.

Rechimir king of the Visigoths, xix.
118.

Rectores, among the Romans, their office, xv. 422.

— in Italy, xix. 596.

† Red Sea, or Arabian Gulph, ii. 152,
n. Why called in Hebrew Yam Suph. ib.
and Erithrean, ib.

Rediculus, a deity, why so called, xii.
254, n.

Reelajah, one of the heads of the Jewish return, x. 9.

† Refuge, cities of, among the Jews, iii.
282. Their design, ib. & seq. Laws relating to them, 284, & seq. The tabernacle and temple places also of Refuge,
287, & seq.

† Regem river in Bohemia, xviii. 592.

Regeneration preached by Christ to Nicodemus, x. 428, & n.

Regillianus's success against the Sarmatians, xv. 230. Proclaimed emperor, ib.
His extract and rise, ib. Murdered, 231.
See also vol. xix. 360.

Regillus put to death by Commodus,
xv. 63.

† Regium, an imperial palace near Constantinople, xvi. 130.

† Regilus, the battle of, xi. 416.

Reguares, killed for his treachery to Narces, xix. 507.

† Regni, in Britain, where sited, xviii.
660.

Regnomer, murdered by Clovis, xix. 303.

† Regnum, now Ringwood, xviii. 660.

Reguli, in Gaul, their limited power,
xviii. 495, & n.

Regulus, P. M. appointed to try Sejanus, xiii. 674. Condemns him 676.

— Roscius, his one day's consulship,
xiv. 395.

— Marc. the accuser of Jun. Rusticus,
xiv. 514, 515.

— Attilius's success against the Carthaginians, xvii. 251. Ravages Afric, 253.
Kills a monstrous serpent, 254. Defeats the Carthaginians, 256. High demands upon them, 257. Defeated by Xantippus, 259. Taken prisoner, ib. Cruel treatment, 260. Dismal end, 262. His widow's bloody revenge, 263, n.

Rehoboam succeeds Solomon, iv. 82.
His folly causes the ten tribes to revolt, ib.
His death, 85.

† Reho-

† Rehoboth, the city of, where sited, i. 371, n.

Rehum, one of the heads of the Jewish return, x. 9.

† Reidogothland. See Jutland, xix. 112.

Rekem, king of Midian, ii. 139.

† ——— city, the same with Petra and Jokteel, xviii. 181.

Relics, the oldest consecration of them to be found in history, i. 400, n.

Religious concerns committed to the Areopagi, vi. 140.

——— war, the first waged by the christians, xv. 381.

† Reman surrendered to Sapor, xv. 493.

Remigius, his extortions under Valentinian, xv. 580. Strangles himself, 598.

——— bp. converts the Franks, xix. 281. His character 282.

Remismund, ravages Lusitania, xvi. 269, & xix. 163, 165, and Galicia, 230. Succeeds Malera, 231. Peace with Theodoric, 232. Broken, 233. Ravages Lusitania, ib. Peace with Euric, 234. Death, ib.

Remora, a shell-fish which stoped Caligula's Galley, xiv. 86, n.

Remphan, one of the Jewish idols in the wilderness, iii. 19, 20. Some conjectures concerning it, xvi. 611, n. & seq. n.

† Remuria, the burying place of Remus, xi. 288, n.

Remus, taken up by Faustulus, xi. 283, & seq. Falls out with his brother, 287. Killed, 288, & n.

† Rephaim, or vale of giants, where, &c. iii. 115.

——— one of the ten nations of Canaan, ii. 186, n.

——— a gigantic race that reigned there, ii. 186. Whether the Gephyreci who followed Cadmus into Greece, ib.

† Rephidim, the place where Moses smote the miraculous rock, ii. 596.

† Repta, where, x. 319, n. The receptacle of the Jewish banditti, ib.

Requarius. See Recticarius, xvi. 235, & xix. 228.

† Resem city, where situate, i. 371, n. Resmagas's interview with Adrian, xiv. 622.

Restio, saved by his generous slave, xiii. 227, & seq.

Resurrection, the state of, described by Christ, x. 492.

Retiarii, net slingers, how they fought, vi. 100, n.

† Retiarium, taken by Attila, xvi. 232. xix. 60. Described, ib. n.

† Retimo, a city in Crete, described, vii. 462.

Reu, the supposed author of sundry inventions, i. 381, 382, n.

Reuben, Jacob's first-born, ii. 439. What mandrakes he found, 440, n. His incest, 455. Saves Joseph from being murdered, 457, 458. His lot in the promised land, iii. 103.

Reuda, heads the Scots into Britain, xviii. 652.

Revenue, at Rome, how regulated, xii. 96.

Reverendus, a vile minister of Gordian discarded, xv. 230, n.

Reviling forbid by Solon, vi. 118.

Rex, whence that word, xviii. 495, n.

——— Sacrorum, at Rome, his office, xi. 377, 378, & n.

Rezin, last king of Syria, ii. 323, 324. League with Pekah against Ahaz, 324. Vain attempt on Jerusalem, ib. & seq. His colony at Elath, ib. Plunders Judea, 325. Defeated and killed, ib, & seq.

Rezon, first king of Damascus, revolts from Hadadezer, ii. 307. Founds a kingdom there, 308.

† Rhabbothim, Phenice, why so called, ii. 328, n.

† Rha, Wolga, river in Scythia, v. 441.

Rhadamanthus, whose son, vii. 467. His colonies, ib. Gives laws to the Cretans, 471.

Rhadamistus, king of Iberia, ix. 610.

——— the son of Pharasmenes cunningly sent into Armenia, ix. 353. Treachery to his uncle, 354, & seq. Seizes on his throne, 355. Outed, 356. Put to death by his father, 359.

† Rhæti, who and where seated, xiii. 404, n. Dreadful irruption into Italy, ib. & seq. Defeated by Drusus, 407.

† Rhætia, described, xiii. 405, 406, n. Ravaged by the Franks, xv. 239. Peace with Constantius, 476. Invaded by the Suevi, 479.

† Rhætinum, the dreadful siege of, xiii. 457.

† Rhamanitis, where situate, xiii. 381.

† Rhamnus, a city in Attica, v. 641, & n.

Rhamfinitus. See below Remphis.

Rhascipolis, joins Brutus and Cassius, xiii. 256. Conducts them to Philippi, 258. Forsakes Brutus, 272. Defeated and killed, 418.

Rhea,

I N D E X to the

Rhea, the daughter of Uranus, i. 394.
Sister and wife to Saturn, v. 424. A Titaness, vii. 465.

— Silvia, made a vestal, xi. 283.
Her crime and punishment, ib.

† Rhebus, Rhebecus and Rhebanus, a river of Paphlagonia, i. 468.

† Rhegians, defeated by Dionysius, vii. 248. Contemptuous answer to him, 252, n. Murdered by the Campanians, xii. 92. Outwit the Carthaginians, xvii. 124.

† Rhegium, besieged by Dionysius, vii. 249, 252. Famished into a surrender, 253, & seq. Battered by Mago, xvii. 205. Seized by Decius, 216. Noble defence against Hannibal, 409.

Rheims, the states of, convoke those of Gaul, xiv. 425. Resolve upon a peace, ib.

Rhemetacles defeated, xiii. 418. Besieged by the Odrysians, 611. Restored by Caligula, xiv. 51.

† Rhemi, subdued by Cæsar, xiii. 16, xviii. 562.

Rhemphis, Rhamsinthus, king of Egypt, ii. 47. Builds the western portico of Vulcan's temple, 48. His treasury plundered by the Architect's sons, ib. Said to have gone down into hell, 51.

† Rhenea, island, described, vii. 608, & seq. The burying place of the Delians, 609.

Rheob, the first sole king of Zobah, ii. 307.

Rhescuporis, over-reached by Tiberius, xiii. 584, & n. His death, ib.

† Rhetia, ravaged by the Franks, xv. 229. Peace with Constantius, 476. Invaded by the Suevi, 479.

Rhetianus, conspires against Caracalla, xv. 137.

† Rhetium, a city in Asia, taken by some fugitives, vi. 285.

Rhetra, Lycurgus's laws, why so called, vi. 396. Approved by the Delphic oracle, 399. How enforced on the Lacedæmonians, ib. & seq.

† Rhetum, a city in Phrygia Minor, v. 523.

† Rhine river, used for trying the fidelity of wives, xviii. 421, & n. Its head and course, 591. Three mouths, ib. & vol. xiii. 554, n. Fortified by Valentinian, xv. 585, 591.

† Rhing, the royal palace of the Hunns, where, xix. 103. Plundered, ib.

† Rhinoculura, in Egypt, where and by whom built, ii. 59.

† Rhizophagi, who and where seated, xviii. 93, 94. Infested with lions, 129.

Rhodagune, given to Nicator, xi. 11,

Rhodanes, bp. banished, xv. 477.

Rhodanus, burnt alive for extortion, xv. 592.

† Rhodes island described, vii. 396. Whence so called, ib. & n. By whom peopled, 402. Taken and plundered by Cassius, xiii. 244, 245. Made a Roman province, xiv. 441.

† — the city of, by whom built, vii. 397, & seq. & n. Described, ib. Taken by Artemisia, 412. In danger of being drowned, 414. Besieged by Demetrius, 416. The siege of raised, 431. Damaged by an earthquake, 436. Besieged by Mithridates, 453. Taken and plundered by Cassius, 456. See also vol. xiii. 244, 245. Made a Roman province, xiv. 441. Overturned and rebuilt by Antoninus, 671. Conquered by the Saracens, xvi. 345. Plundered, 378.

— the knights of, settle in Malta, vii. 402.

— the Colossus of, its first shake, xiv. 622. See also Colossus, vii. 400, 401, & n.

— writers, an account of, vii. 404, n. & seq. n.

Rhodians, outwit the Grecian states, vii. 401, 431. Expert mariners, 404, & seq. Their government, kings, 404, 405, & seq. Become a commonwealth, 408. Join in the social war, 409. Peace with Athens, 411. Oppressed by the Carians, ib. Subdued by Artemisia, 412. Recover their freedom, 413. Surrender to Alexander, 414. War with Antigonus, ib. & seq. Peace with him, 425, 426. Gratitude to Ptolemy, 426. War with the Byzantines, 429, & seq. Peace with them, 430. War with Philip of Macedon, 432, & seq. Defeat him in Caria, 435. Message to Antiochus, 436. Defeat at sea, 437, & seq. Send Eudamedus with a new fleet, 440. Defeat that of Syria, 441. Rewarded by the Romans, 443. Complained against by the Lycians, ib. Join the Romans against Perses, 446. Haughty embassy to the senate, 447. Humbled by them, ib. & seq. Admitted to a fresh alliance, 452. Invaded by Mithridates, 453. Defeated at sea by Cassius, 455. Subdued by him, ib. & seq. Ally with Perseus, viii. 511. Haughty message to Antiochus, ix. 9. Signal services to Cæsar, 283, & seq. Confederacy against the Athenians, vi. 348. Assist them against Philip, vii. 78. Repulse Pompey's friends, xiii. 72. Embassy to Cassius, 243. Twofold defeat at sea, 244. In high favour with Antony, 297. Disfranchised by Claudius

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Claudius, xiv. 124. Restored by Nero, 160. Settle in Spain, xviii. 381, 382. Rhodobartes, 2d king of Pontus, ix.

379. † Rodope, a mountain in Thrace, ix.

510. Rodoptis, mistress to Charaxus, the pretended builder of one of the Egyptian pyramids, i. 507. The occasion of that story, 509.

† Rhoffi, a people on the Rhoss, or Araxes, i. 469.

Rhymetalces defeats the two Batos, xiii. 452.

Ricared king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Richarius murdered by Clovis, xix. 302, 303.

Riches despised by the Scythians, v. 446.

Richomeres sent against the Goths, xvi.

16. Arrival at Valens's camp, 19. Vain efforts to make him stay for Gratian, 28,

29. Success against the Saracens, 59.

Consulship, extract, &c. 60.

Ricimir's success against Genseric, xvi.

264. Rise and character, ib. Deposits

Avita, ib. Causes Marjoranus to revolt,

266. Treachery to him, 270. Raises

Severus to the throne, ib. Absolute sway during the inter-regnum, 273. Marries

Anthemius's daughter, 274. Revolts and besieges him in Rome, 279. Puts him to death, ib. Dies, 280. See also vol. xix.

208, 241.

Ricomar promoted by Theodosius, xvi.

38.

† Riisland, where, xix. 111.

† Rimini, Arminium, where situate, xvii. 359. Taken by the Lombards, xix.

389. by the Romans, 465. Besieged by the Ostrogoths, ib. Relieved, 467.

Rimmon, an idol of the Syrians, ii. 286.

Why so called, ib. n.

Rings, whether worn at Rome by any but Roman knights, xii. 227, n. Three buffels of them sent by Hannibal to Carthage, ib.

Riotham, one of the kings of Britain,

xvi. 54.

— king of Bretagne defeated by Euric,

xvi. 278. xix. 38, 166.

† Riphæan mountains, where, v. 439,

& n. Uninhabited, 443, n.

— people mentioned by Pliny, i. 468.

† Riphat, Riphath, one of Gomer's sons, where seated, i. 468. v. 440, n.

† Ripuarian Franks, who and where sited, xix. 279. Proclaim Clovis their king, 300. Their territories, 301. Charafter, laws, &c. ib.

Vol. XX.

† Riverines, who, and were sited, xvi. 246.

† Rivers that watered Eden, i. 187, & seq.

— worshipped by the Carthaginians,

xvi. 632. by the Gauls and Germans,

xix. 421, 454, n. 457, n. 595, & seq.

Riyan king of Egypt when Joseph was fold there, ii. 90.

Rizpah, one of Saul's concubines, piety to him and her sons, iv. 44, 45.

Roas, Rougas, king of the Hunns, defeated and killed, xix. 53, & 54, n. Succeeded by Attila and Bleda, 570.

Robbers swarmed in Ancient Greece,

v. 608.

Robert crowned Latin emperor, xvi. 509.

Defeated by John Ducas, ib. His death, and the occasion of it, 510.

† Robur, the fortress of, where, and by whom built, xv. 604.

† Rochetaillée, the castle of, by whom built, xvi. 191, n.

Rod of Moses, stories of the Rabbies concerning it, ii. 548. Turned into a serpent, &c. 559.

Roderic king of the Visigoths, xix.

118.

Rodoald defeats the Slavonians, xix.

535. Made duke of Benevento, ibid.

Dies, ib.

— king of the Lombards murdered,

xix. 535.

Rodolinda, and her son, seized by Gri-moald, xix. 527.

Rodolphus defeated by the Lombards,

xix. 344, 379.

Roger king of Sicily, wars with Manuel, xvi. 489. Peace with him, 490.

† Roma, Rome, whence so called, xi.

390, n.

† Romania, Romagna, where, whence so called, xvi. 159. Submits to Luitprand, xix. 561. Given to the pope, 581.

† Roman Fortune, the temple of, built,

xiv. 621. Destroyed, ib.

— senate's partiality to Herod, x.

270. The rest see under Senate and Romans.

— empire visited with pestilence, xi.

69. When, and by whom first instituted,

293. Inlarged by Tarquin, 340. Decree against Tarquin the Proud, 379. Restored by the consuls, 383. Contest with the Tribunes, 437, &c. Its beginning, xiii.

372. Extent, revenue, &c. 371, 372.

Strength, 373.

— legions, their mutiny and outrages in Gaul, xiv. 422. Swear allegiance to the Gauls, 424. Their dismal end, ib. & 425.

I N D E X to the

Roman slaves redeemed by the Achæans, vi. 619.

Romans, their origin, government, kings, &c. xi. 293, & seq. First alliance with the Jews, x. 160, & seq. Style Hyrcan king, 200, n. Friendship to the Jewish nation, ib. & seq. Defeated by the Parthians, xi. 33, 34. Wars with the Latins, 332, & seq. Gratitude to Porfena, 402. Alliance with Carthage, 643, & seq. Hemmed in by the Samnites, xii. 18. Forced to pass under the yoke, 21. Retaliate the same to them, 28. First war with Carthage, 100, & seq. New-built fleet, 110. Shipwreck, 130. Peace with Carthage, 153. War with Illyricum, 167, & seq. New treaty with Carthage, 170. Superstitious butchery, 171. Vast army against Gaul, ib. Complaint against Hannibal rejected, 182. Causes a new war, ib. & seq. Defeat their fleet, 184. Surprized by them, 187. And defeated, 195. Massacred by the Gauls, 196, & seq. Defeated by Hannibal, 200. At Thrasymenus, 206, & seq. In Apulia, 219, & seq. Surrender on hard terms, 221. Why not redeemed by the senate, 225, & n. War against Perses, 320. Injustice to Demetrius, 328, & seq. Letter to him, 329. Ill success in Spain, 332. Third war with Carthage, 339. Demand its demolition, 341, & seq. Ill success against it, 343, & seq. Cause it to be destroyed, 356. Ill-luck in Spain, 359, & seq. Treachery to Viriathus, 364. Defeated by the Numantines, 366, 367. Treachery to them, 368. Disturbed by the Gracchian faction, 380. Invaded by the Cimbri, 429, & seq. 8000 killed by them, 477. War against Jugurtha, 433, & seq. Defeat in Lusitania, 478. Terrified at the second approach of the Cimbri, 494. Defeated by the allies, 520. By the Marfi, 522, & seq. Degenerate under Augustus, xiii. 372. Under Nero, xiv. 203. Forbid to follow the Gothic dress, xvi. 133. Famine and distress in Spain, 180. Submit to the Barbarians, 181. Panic before Nisibis, 204. In Italy, revolt from Leo, 362. Submit to the pope as a temporal prince, ib. Treaty with Carthage discussed, xvii. 204. How early acquainted with sailing, 223, n. Loss of their fleet, 261. Famine and pestilence in Sicily, 271. Harassed before Lilybeum, 275, & seq. Treachery to the Carthaginians, 311, & seq. Embassy to Hannibal, 330. To Carthage, 335. Frighted by omens, 343, 360. Their camp burnt, 362. New defeat, 368. at Cannæ, 387. by Mago, 438. Success against him, 446, 492. Peace with the Carthaginians, 494. Betray them to Masinissa, 497. Jealousy against Hannibal, 499. Treachery to them, 515, & seq. Send Cato to them, 519. New war against them, 521. Perfidy exposed, 526. Government in Britain, xviii. 677. Officers, ib. & seq. Stations, 679. Give names to the principal towns, 682. Highways made there, ib. & seq. Exhaust it of its prime youth, 683, 684. Forsake it, 720. Driven out of part of Gaul, xix. 153, 164. out of Spain, ib. & seq. Defeated in Afric, 204. In dread of the Vandals, 205. Driven out of Gaul, 284. Invasion of Gaul, Germany, &c. see under these names.

— called into Sicily, vii. 324. Success there, 330, & seq. Treaty with Hiero, 332, 338. Embassy ill received at Syracuse, 342. War against Philip, 434. Alliance with Rhodes and Pergamos, ib. Peace with the Macedonians, 437. Join against Antiochus, ib. Gratitude to Eumenes, 443. Answer to the Rhodian ambassadors, 447, & seq. Fresh alliance with them, 452. War against Crete, 481, & seq. Conquest of it, 483, & seq. Take Cyprus by treachery, 509. Protect young Ptolemy, ix. 5. And the free cities of Asia, 10. First embassy to Antiochus, 11. Second, 22. Success against him, 30, & seq. At Magnesia, 49, & seq. Peace with him, 51, & seq. The treaty at length, 52, n. & seq. n. Degeneracy from that time, 55. Partiality to Physcon, 231. Embassy to him, 240. Take possession of Cyprus, 263. War with Mithridates, 391, & seq. 150,000 massacred by his order, 395. Cruel revenge, 401, & seq. Defeated by him, 432. Joy at his death, 447.

— invited into Greece by the Ætolians, vi. 603. Peace with the Achæans, 609. Alliance with them, 611. Send commissaries into Greece in favour of the Lacedæmonians, 631. Insincerity to the Achæans, 638, & seq. Tyranny over them, 641, 646, & seq. Affront their deputies, 658, & seq. Ally with the Ætolians, vii. 7. Surprized at Tanagra, 38. Send forces against Antiochus, 40. Distress the Ætolians, 42. Truce with them, 55. Peace, 62. Fresh opposition, 63. Admitted to the mysteries of Ceres, 70. Reduction of the Athenians, 85, & seq. Of the Bæotians, 93, & seq. of the Acarnanians, 95, & seq. Of Epirus, 97, & seq.

Romanus's success against the Persians, xi. 154.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Romanus poisoned by Nero, xvi. 221.
 — extortions in Afric, xv. 580. Gains over Palladius, 581. Arrested by Theodosius, 599, 600.

— defeats the Scenitæ in Palestine, xvi. 297. Put to death by Phocas, 332.

— Zoe's. General, his treason, xvi. 411. Cruelty to Leo, 412. Assumes the purple, ib. Allies with the Bulgarians, 413. Outwitted and dethroned, 414. Banishment and death, ib.

— the son of Constans crowned, xvi. 415. Poisons his father, 417. Reign and character, ib. Success against the Saracens, 418. Death, 419.

— Illd. forced to marry Constantine's daughter, xvi. 440. Ill success against the Saracens, 441. Works of piety, 443. Death, ib.

— Diogenes. See under Diogenes, xvi. 460.

— sent prisoner to Constantinople, xix. 411, 413. Why unfit for the crown, ib. &c.

— exarch of Rome defeated by Agilulf, xix. 519.

† Rome, the capital of Latium, xi. 260. How, and by whom built, 288, & 290. n. When, 290, & 291, n. Described, 292, & n. How peopled, 299, 300. Enlarged by Romulus, 302. By Tullus, 331. By Ancus, 337. By Servius, 356. Visited with pestilence, 374. Formed into a republic, 379, & seq. The time of it according to the Newtonian chronology, 391, n. Plagued with intestine broils, 408, & seq. 419, & seq. With famine, 437. Invaded by Coriolanus, 448, & seq. By a fresh pestilence, 487, & seq. Assaulted by the Volsci, 488. Falls under the decemvirs, 523, & seq. Plague and famine, 553, 561. Forsaken at the approach of the Gauls, 579. Ruined by them, 580, & seq. Saved by Camillus, 586. Rebuilt, 587, & seq. New famine and pestilence, 602, 621. An earthquake in the forum, 627. A new census taken, 651. In general mourning, xii. 22. A fresh census, 30. Severe plague, 71. Fresh census, 78, 90. Embassy to the king of Egypt, ib. Severity to the Campanians, 92. Extent of its territories taken, 95. A fresh pestilence, 98. New census, 133. Fleet built, 134. Inhabitants diminished, 86, 675. Overflowed and burnt, 148, 156. In dread of Hannibal, 207. Streets when first paved, 319. A new census, 328. In an uproar from the Gracchi, 415.

— Its history from the Gracchian faction, xii. 422, & seq. A new census, 427. Consternation from the Gauls, 478. Purified and how, 507. Blocked up by Cinna, 545. Fresh famine, 548. Invaded by the Samnites, 567, & seq. Saved by Crassus, 569. Opens her gates to Sylla, 565. Made a shamble by him, 572. Enslaved, 576. Restored by his abdication, 587. In danger from Lepidus, 590. From a fresh famine, 606. A new census, 621. Again, xiii. 34. In a civil war, 38, & seq. Deep and sad consternation, 40. Abandoned, 43. Confusion at Cæsar's death, 146. And a civil war, 176, & seq. Under the triumvirate, 215, & seq. 297, & seq. In flames and confusion, 223, & seq. And slaughter, 224, & seq. Split in two factions, 303. A fresh famine, 319. Enriched by Augustus, 366. A fresh census, 369, & n. Joy at Augustus's recovery, 384. Depopulated by plague and famine, 387. as appeared by the next census, 424. Destroyed by fire, 426. Divided into wards, ib. Under a new famine, 446. The next census attended with prodigies, 472. In deep mourning for Germanicus, 589, 590. A new famine, xiv. 60. Want of horses to grind corn, 76. A fresh one under Claudius, 115. The city enlarged by him, 145. Degenerates under Nero, 203, 222. Burnt, 226, & seq. Whether by him, 228. Rebuilt in a new form, 121, & seq. A grievous plague, 256. And famine, 284. Affronts Nero, ib. & seq. Joy at his death, 288. Damaged by an earthquake at Galba's entry, 308. Dread at Vitellius's approach, 340. From a mistaken sedition, 344. Prodigies and famine, 346. Dreadful case after Vitellius's death, 410. Beautified by Vespasian, 435. A new census, 442. Burnt, 461. Repaired by Titus, ib. &c. A grievous pestilence, 462. Dismal state under Domitian, 511, & seq.

— Suffers by fire, water, and famine, xiv. 671. Under two emperors, xv. 5. Laid under water, 6. And other great calamities, 12. A three years pestilence, 61. Fire and Famine, 62. Celebrates her Millennium, 213. Walls repaired by Decius, 218. New pestilence, 239. Maxentius's tyranny, 363. Why disliked by Constantine, 406. In deep mourning for him, 416. A new famine, xvi. 66. A fresh one caused by Gildo, 133. Greatly frightened by Alaric, 171. Relieved at a vast charge, 172. Blocked up afresh, 174. Submits to him, 177. A grievous famine, 180, 181. Taken and burnt by the Goths, 183. Plundered by Genseric, 258. Besieged by Ricimer, 279. Covered vered with the cinders of Vesuvius, 280.

I N D E X to the

Submits to Odoacer, 285.

— Taken by Belisarius, xix. 458.
Besieged by Vitiges, 462, & seq. Under a plague and famine, 463. Relieved, 464. Besieged by Totila, 486. Its dreadful condition, ib. Surrendered and plunder'd, 487. 488, & seq. Retaken and rebuilt by Belisarius, 490. Betrayed to Totila, 494. And repaired, 495. Retaken by Narses, 504. Stript of its privileges, 508. Reduced into an exarchate, 516. The extent of ib. &c. Ravaged by the Lombards, 519. Revolts from the emperor, 562. Besieged by Luitprand, 567. Subjected to the Pope. See sub Pope, xix. 562. & seq.

Romilius's treachery to Sicinius, xi. 514. Revenged, 516. Proposes introducing of Solon's laws, 517. Chosen Decemvir, 519.

Romuald I. receives the Bulgarians into Benevento, xix. 395. Defends it against Constans, 540. Defeats him, ib. Dies, 553.

—II. conquests in Naples, xix. 553. Death, ib.

Romula, the mother of Galerius, xv. 299. Instigates him against the Christians, ib.

† Romulea Colonia, in Spain, where, xviii. 336.

— Put to the sword, xii. 356.

† Romulianum, where and by whom so called, xv. 299.

Romulus, by whom brought up, xi. 283. Re-inthrones his father, 286. Builds Rome, 288, & 289, n. His palace described, 292, & n. Chosen king, 293. His conquests, &c. 301, & seq. Wounded by the Sabines, 304. Triumphs, 310, & seq. Laws, 311. Death and Apotheosis, ib. & seq.

—augural staff preserved, xi. 388.

—the son of Maxentius, chosen consul, xv. 354.

— Sent ambassador to Attila, xix. 73.

Romus prince of Troy, one of the founders of Rome, v. 547.

— an ancient king of Spain, xviii. 377.

Ronzerius revolts against the Greeks, xvi. 520. Put to death by Michael, 521.

Rosamond, causes Alboinus to be murdered, xix. 387, & seq. Her flight and punishment, 389.

Roscillus and his brother's treachery to Cæsar, xiii. 57.

Roscius, a companion of Sylla's debauches, xii. 589.

Roses, Cyrenean, their excellence, xviii. 67.

Rosicrusian notions, their origin, xviii. 600, n.

† Rossi, invade the Romans, xvi. 414. Defeated by Bardas, 424. By Zeminifces, 426. By Monamachus, 448.

† Rostan, among the Persians, what, xi. 38. See below Rustan, v. 273, & seq.

Rostral crown, at Rome, what, xiii. 338.

† Rostrata, Columna of Duilius, described, xii. 115, n.

† Rostratæ naves, whence so called, xvii. 241, n.

Rostrum, whence so called, xi. 663.

Rotrudis, taught Greek by Elizeus, xvi. 231.

Rotharic, put to death by Aripert, xix. 548.

Rotharis, chosen king of the Lombards, xix. 529. Gives the first Laws to them, 530, & n. His conquests, 532. Death and character, 534.

— a traitor against Luitprand murdered, xix. 554.

Rouas's designs against the Boisi, xvi. 231. Proud message to the Romans, ib. Death, ib.

Rougas, killed by lightning, xvi. 216.

Rouillé's father, partiality exposed, xiii. 218, & xiv. 38, n.

Rowena, Hengist's daughter, whether married to Vortigern, xix. 14.

Roxana, put to a cruel death by Parysatis, v. 169.

— taken prisoner by Alexander, viii. 286. Captivates him, ib. Her cruelty, 362. Imprison'd by Cassander, 451. Murder'd by him, ib.

— Herod's daughter by Phædra, x. 323, n.

† Roxolana, Ryssland, see Risland, xix. 117.

† Roxolani, who and where seated, xix. 354, & seq. Success in Mæsia, 355. Cut off by M. Aponius, ib. Become pensioners to Rome, 357. Defeated by the Romans, xiv. 343.

Rualdus's just censure of Suetonius, xiv. 657, n.

† Rubricatus river in Numidia, xvii. 551.

— in Tarracon, xviii. 342.

Rubrius accused of treason, xiii. 549.

Rucata, betray'd by the Donatists, xv. 600.

Rufilla, Annia's forgery and punishment, xiii. 610.

Rufinus, sent ambassador to Cosrhoes, xi. 129.

— Cornel, a senator degraded, xii. 90. Rufinus

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

- Rufinus Cæcil, a senator degraded for dancing, xiv. 472.
 — escapes Constantius's snare, xv. 461.
 — treachery to Commodus, xvi. 92.
 To Talianus, &c. 96. Made guardian to Arcadius, 116. His rise and character, 117. Avarice and ambition, 119. Cruelty to Lucianus, 120. Sets the empire on fire, 121. Sues to be colleague, 123. Murdered by Guinas, 124. Indignities shewed to his corps, ib.
 — Stirrs up the Hunns, xix. 48. & Visigoths, 144. Undermines Stilicho, 145.
 Rufus Annius, sent governor into Judea, x. 413.
 — Vibulus, sent by Cæsar to Pompey, xiii. 53.
 — Trebell. made governor of Thrace, xiii. 584.
 — Tinnius's success against the Jews, xiv. 626. Razes Jerusalem, 627.
 — Vetius put to death by Commodus, xv. 58.
 — Volusius sent into Afric, xv. 363.
 — revolts against Philippicus, xvi. 356.
 † Rugians, who and where sited, xix. 478. Settled in Illyricum, 96. Submit to Attila, 62.
 Rugula the Hunn assists OEtius, xvi. 221. Killed by Lightning, 230.
 † Rumestan, vid. Greeks, xi. 206.
 — Rumitalces, bravery at Nice, xv. 615.
 Rufius, P. Cornelius, degraded, xii. 466.
 Runic character, what, and why so called, xviii. 620, & n. Brought by Woden from Asia, xix. 112. Why condemned, ib.
 Rupilius Publ. quells the Sicilian rebels, xii. 391. His Code of Sicilian laws, ib.
 Ruritus, sent into Afric, xv. 580. Put to death 582.
 † Rysadir, Rysadir, where situate, xviii. 8.
 † Rufatus, where situate, xvii. 553.
 Rusbeck's whimsical notion of the Atlantids, xii. 594, n.
 † Rusciana, where sited, xix. 491.
 Taken by Totila, ib.
 † Rusconium, where situate, xvii. 553.
 Rufelius's revolt, xvi. 464. Taken prisoner, ib. Sent in chains to Constantinople, 465.
 † Ruspina, where situate, xvi. 581.
 † Russians, Ruffi, from whom descended, i. 469. Subdued by Mithridates, ix. 398. Seizes on Bulgaria, xix. 412. Driven out of it, ib.
 Rustan and his father re-inthroned the right line of Persia, v. 273, & seq. Made generalissimo, 277. His noble exploits, 276, & seq. Against the Turks, 286. Kills the prince of Persia in single combat, 339. Betrayed by his brother, 346. Murdered ib. Remarks on his romantic history, 347. 348, n.
 Rusticana, saved by Totila, xix. 488.
 Rusticus's mild advice to the senate, xiii. 668.
 — Junius put to death by Domitian, xiv. 492, 514.
 — Auruleus insulted by the Vespasians, xiv. 405.
 — Jun. in high esteem with M. Aurelius, xv. 3.
 † Rufucurium, where situate, xvii. 554.
 Rutilius's success against Jugurtha, xii. 450, & seq. Supplanted by Scaurus, 459, n.
 — Rufus raises an army against the Gauls, xii. 479. Unjustly banished, 514.
 — Ruf. Petil. the betrayer of Sabinus, xiii. 661, 662.
 — P. Lupus chosen consul, xii. 518. Defeated and killed, 520.
 — Trebellius put to death, xiv. 20, & seq.
 — Fenius promoted by Nero, xiv. 181. Made his Pretorian captain, 216.
 — Musonius, a stoic knight insulted by the Vespasians, xiv. 406, n.
 — Petil. chosen consul, xiv. 473.
 — his rise, writings and character, xvi. 208, n. Itinerary, 209, n.
 Rutilius Corn. defeats the Volsci, xii. 562.
 — C. M. a Plebeian chosen dictator, xi. 634. Censor, 639. Sent to quell a mutiny, 651.
 † Rutubis, the port of, where sited, xviii. 8. 16.
 † Rutuli, war against Latinus, xi. 277. Defeat the Trojans, 280. Invaded by Tarquin, 375. Make peace with the Roman consuls, 381.
 † Rutupæ, Portus Rutupiensis, where situate, xviii. 660, 661.
 Ruza, a fabulous chief of the Samaritans, x. 73.
 S.
 † SABA, March, the ancient metropolis of Arabia Felix, i. 463. By whom built, ib.
 — metropolis of the Sabæi, i. 476. xviii. 192.

I N D E X to the

Saba, the famed reservoir of, xviii. 278.
Broken and drowns the country, ib.

† —the district of, and its towns, &c. xviii. 192, 201.

† Sabæan nations, their extent, cities, &c. i. 475. Origin, site, &c. xviii. 192. Government, 223. Religion, ib. Peculiar tenets, 226 & n.

Sabbaco, Sabbacon, drives Anyfis out of Egypt, ii. 55. Whether the So of scripture, ib. His piety, wisdom, reign and retirement, 56. See also vol. xviii. 151.

Sabajarus, Valens, why so nicknamed, xv. 615.

Sabaras, the Persian, ravages Asia, xvi. 337.

Sabatha Sabota, metropolis of the Adramitæ, xviii. 194.

Sabbath, Jewish laws, positive and negative concerning it, iii. 178, & 181, n. Why and when instituted, 182, n.

Sabbatians suppressed, xvi. 193.

Sabbatic year, laws concerning it, iii. 206. When it was to begin, 207, n.

Sabian religion, by whom founded, iv. 317, 318. Its steps and progress, ib. & seq.

Sabina Julia, Titus's daughter, xiv. 466.

—married to Adrian, xiv. 565, 608. Ill used by him, 613. Her character, ib. Death, ib.

† Sabines, Sabini, who and where sited, xi. 260. Whence so called, 271. Invade Romulus, 303, & seq. Incorporate with the Romans, 305. Defeated by Tarquin, 350, & seq.

—Subdued, 369, 403, 404, 407.

—women, the rape of, xi. 300. Mediate a peace with their parents, 305. Privileges granted to them, 307, 308, n.

Sabiniana Ala, whence so called, xviii. 673.

Sabinianus's revolt in Afric, xv. 202. Defeat, ib.

—succeeds Ursinicus in the East, xv. 492. Treachery to him, 495.

—success against the Ostrogoths, xvi. 288. Defeated by Pitya, 299, xix. 180, & seq.

Sabinus, sent to seize Herod's treasure, x. 397. Besieged by the seditious Jews, 400. Sets fire to the temple, ib. Sneaks out of Judea, 404.

—Sent against the robbers about Rome, xiii. 342.

—Pop. success in Thrace, xiii. 649. Death and character, 451, —Titius accused of treason, xiii. 661. Death, ib. & 662, n.

—Cornel, plots against Caligula, xiv. 90, 95. Pardoned by Claudius, 111. Kills himself, ib.

Sabinus Obultronius put to death by Galba, xiv. 304.

—Flavius succeeds Macer in the government of Rome, xiv. 355. Cowardice and indolence there, 400, & 401. Whethro' envy, ib. Besieged in the capitol, 401. Taken prisoner, 403. Murdered, 404. His character, ib.

—Publ. great sway with Vitellius, xiv. 276. Clapt in irons by him, 395.

—Julius heads the revolted Gauls, xiv. 423. Proclaims himself Cæsar, 424. Defeat and escape, ib. Nine years concealment, and adventures, 448. Discovery and execution, 449.

—Flavius chosen Domitian's colleague, xiv. 472. Put to death by him, 473. Character and pretended crime, 518, 519.

—Fabius recalled from his government, xv. 145. Chosen one of Alexander's council, 157. Killed by the mob, 188.

† Sabit, a ruined port in Æthiopia, xviii. 107.

Sabius stirs up the Romans against the Capuans, xvii. 393.

† Sabtah, where sited, i. 462.

† Sabtecha, where sited, i. 463.

Saburrus's valour and defeat, xix. 542.

Sabus king of Arabia Felix, invaded by Gallus, xiii. 380, & seq.

Sabylinthus, a faithful guardian of Epirus, ix. 537.

Sacca, the festival of, among the Babylonians, what, iv. 347.

† Saccæ, who, and whence sprang, iv. 472. v. 416, 417, n. Possess Armenia, ib. & seq. Since called Titans, 414, & 415, n. Wars with the Medes, iv. 472. Heroic queen, ib. & seq.

Saccophori, Manichees, why so called, xvi. 47.

Sacculo, a snarling buffoon, put to death, xiii. 274.

Sacerdos Gravidus banished, xiv. 26.

Sacred Cohort at Carthage, what, xvii. 167, n.

Sacrifice, the daily, Moses's law concerning it, iii. 230. When it ceased, x. 608, & n.

—Human, offered by the Egyptians, i. 566.

—among the Scythians, how performed, v. 451. The rest see sub Victims.

Sacrificing

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Sacrificing Children to devils, whence, i. 383, n.

———Living Creatures, how performed by the Jews, iii. 242, n.

Sacrovirs revolt in Gaul, xiii. 611. Defeated and desperate end, 612.

† Sacrum Promontorium in Lusitania, xviii. 331.

Sad's conquest of Persia, xi. 248, & seq.

Sad-dar, or symbol of the old Persic faith, still extant, v. 40, n. Compendium of the Zendevasta, 328.

Saddoc, the father of the Sadducees, his doctrine, x. 81.

Saddocus king of Thrace's friendship to the Athenians, vi. 270.

Sadducees, their rise, x. 81. Why favoured by Alex. Janneus, 206, & seq. Persecuted by the Pharisees, 222, & seq. Peculiar tenets, 356, & seq. The cause of their infidelity, ib. Their character, 357. Downfal, 358. Confuted by Christ, 492, 493, & n.

Sadyates king of Lydia, v. 582.

Saes the Persian, his treachery to Heraclius, xvi. 337. Flayed alive, ib.

† Sagapola, a mount in Gætulia, xviii. 46.

Sagillus king of Scythia, v. 471.

† Sagunti, the port of where, xviii. 16.

† Saguntines, their origin, xvii. 327. Threatened by the Carthaginians, 321. Implore the Romans protection, 323. Besieged, 324. Noble defence, 327. Sad catastrophe, 334.

† Saguntum, where situate, xvii. 327. Siege and massacre, 327, 334. Vid. xii. 181. Rebuilt by Hannibal, 214.

† Sahara, river in Gætulia, xviii. 46.

† Sais, an ancient city of lower Egypt, i. 489.

———defeated by the Romans, xi. 168.

† Sala, where situate, xviii. 8.

†———river described, xviii. 13.

† Salabes defeated by Geta, xiv. 114. xviii. 43. Peace with him, ib.

† Salacia, a city in Lusitania, xviii. 330.

Saladin bribes Isaac against Barbarossa, xvi. 497.

† Salah, the son of Arphaxad, i. 374. Conjectures about him, ib. & n. Where settled, 460. One of the chiefs at the dispersion, 458.

———a prophet of the Arabs, who, xviii. 217. His miracles and death, 16, & 218.

Salamba, an Assyrian goddess, the same with Astarte, iv. 338.

† Salaminiae, one of the four parts of Cyprus, vii. 490.

† Salamis, the kingdom of, by whom founded, vii. 493. Kings of, ib. & seq. The end of, 505, 536.

†———island taken by the Megareans, vi. 102. Retaken by Solon, 107, & seq. Described, vii. 638. Yielded to the Athenians, 639. By whom subdued, ib.

† Salamis, the city of, by whom built, v. 557, vii. 486, 492. Besieged by the Persians, 501, 502. By Demetrius, 506. Retaken by Ptolemy, 509. Burnt by the Jews, xiv. 591.

———the famed naval fight of, v. 141, & seq. & vi. 204, & seq.

† Salapia, where situate, xii. 258. Taken by the Romans, ib. & xvii. 445.

† Salasci, Salassi, who, and where sited, xi. 255, 256. Defeated, ib. Subdued by Varro, xiii. 376.

† Salathus, a river in Getulia, xviii. 46.

Salatis, the first king of Egypt. set up by the shepherds, ii. 17.

Salca Bæbius basely bribed by Jugurtha, xvii. 588.

† Saldæ, where situate, xvii. 553.

† Salem, Solyma, and Jerusalem, by whom founded, ii. 194, & n.

———a place near Shechem in Canaan. ii. 451, 452.

† Salentines, who, xii. 46. Subdued by Volumnius, ib. by Attilius, 95.

† Salera, where, xvii. 480. Taken by Scipio, ib.

† Salernum in Italy, said to have been founded by Shem, i. 369, n.

† Salices, the battle of, xvi. 16.

Salia, Flavius, an orthodox consul, xv. 437. Sudden death, xvi. 2.

Salian Hymn, what, xiii. 592, & n.

Salii among the Romans, their office, ix. 40, n. xi. 316.

†———who and where sited, xv. 487. Subdued by Julian, 488. See also vol. xix. 235, & seq. 238, & 253.

Salinator sent to guard the Pyrenees, xii. 592. Murdered by Calpurnius, ib.

Salustius Crispus, his extract, xiii. 292, & n. Privy to Agrippa's murder, ib. Over-reaches the sham Agrippa, 560.

———legate of Britain put to death, xviii. 706.

† Salmantica, Salamanca, a city in Lusitania, xviii. 330.

Salome, queen of the Jews, x. 211. Sets Jannæus on the throne, ib.

Salome,

Salome, Herod's sister, her character, x. 254, n. Hatred to Mariamne, 288. Hellish plots against her, 296. Divorces her own husband, ib. & n. Cabals against Herod's sons, 313, 317, & n. Accused by Alexander, 318. Raises new Accusations, 320. Releases the Jewish chiefs, 393. Betrays Archelaus, 397. Death and last will, 412.

——the daughter of Herod by Elpis, x. 323, n.

——the dancer begs the baptist's head, x. 434.

† Salona, where situate, xii. 423, & n. Besieged by Batto, ib.

† Salone taken by Theodosius, xvi. 215.

Salonicus's birth celebrated by Virgil, x. 273, n.

——put to death by Posthumius, xv. 232.

Salonius, a strict commander, hated by his soldiers, xi. 652.

——Afinius's death, xiii. 621.

† Salpinates, who, xi. 575. Take up arms against the Romans, ib.

† Salfum flumen in Numidia, xvii. 559.

† Salt, the famed valley of, where, ii. 156. iii. 115.

——of Jupiter Ammon, a royal present, viii. 206.

——houses built with it in Lybia, xviii. 81.

Salvianus. Calp. an informer banished, xiii. 641, 642.

——character of the northern nations, xvi. 227.

Salvidienus comes to Octavian's assistance, xiii. 305. Harassed by Lucius, ib. & seq. Betrayed by Antony, 318. His death and extract, ib. & seq. & n.

——writings and character, xv. 286, n.

Salvius chosen king of the slaves, xii. 484. Treachery to Athenio, 485. Cowardly flight out of his capital, 499.

——Coccianus put to death by Domitian, xiv. 492.

Salus, the temple of, decreed by the senate, xiv. 251.

Salust the historian degraded, xiii. 34. Sent against the 10th legion, 90. Restored by Cæsar, 105. and promoted, 114.

——Secundus, Agricola's supposed successor in Britain, xiv. 489.

——a great favourite of Julian, xv. 528. Made prefect in Gaul, ib. Narrow escape, 549.

——Secundus, different from the former, xv. 530. Made prefect in the east, ib. Saves the philosopher Maximus from the mob, 561, n. Refuses the empire, 574. Promotes Valentian's election, 575. Resigns through old age, 621.

——the stately palace of, burnt, xvi. 184.

Salustius legate of Britain put to death, xviii. 706.

† Salyes, who, and where, xii. 402. Subdued by the Romans, ib.

† Samachonite lake, whence so called, iii. 125. Described, ib. & n.

Samachus, Constantine the Great's fool, xv. 418.

† Samaria, by whom built, iv. 90. Why called Sebaste, iii. 149. (x. 244, & 301, n.) Its ruins, iii. 149, & seq. Besieged by Benhadad, ii. 310. Relieved by Ahad, iv. 104, & seq. Miraculously delivered from famine and the Syrians, ii. 318, & seq. Taken by Shalmaneser, iv. 146. Taken by Hyrcan, ix. 154, & x. 203. Demolished, ib. Rebuilt by Gabinius, 244. by Herod, 301, & n.

Samaritan Pentateuch, an account of, x. 74, & n.

——alphabet described, iii. 444. Whether it was the antient Hebrew, 446. Whether the same with the Phœnician, xvi. 650.

† Samaritans, their origin, x. 14 n. Fall out with the Jews, 15. Obstruct the building of the temple, 18. v. 83, 99. Pay tribute to it, x. 23. Petition to Alexander rejected, 65. See vol. viii. 198, & 208. Banished Samiria, x. 67. Build Schechem, 69. Their religion, 70 & n, & seq. Corrupt the Pentateuch, 74, & n. Claim the Septuagint version, 88. Ravage Judea, 94. Impious policy, 115. Invaded by Judas Maccabeus, 142. Subdued by Hyrcan, 198, & 202, & n. Pollute the Jewish temple, 411. Converted to Christianity, 543. Deceived by an impostor, 544. Fall out with the Jews, 565. Cast at Rome, 583. Defeated by Cerealis, 583.

Samarius, the bloody butcher of Trebonius, xiii. 182.

† Samat, or Great City, taken and razed, xvii. 164.

Sambuca, a warlike engine, described, vii. 362.

Sambus submits to Alexander, viii. 320, & 321, n.

† Same, the metropolis of Cephalonia, vii. 630.

Sameas's noble speech to Herod, x. 255, & 306.

† Samega taken by Hyrcan, x. 198.

† Samercand,

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

† Samercand, by whom built, xviii.

271. Samian War, the grounds of, vi. 247.
 ——— Worthies enumerated, vii. 530, n, & seq. n.

——— Exiles assisted by the Spartans, vii, 524, 525, & seq.

——— Earthen-ware famed, vii. 517.

† Samians, great navigators, vii. 515.
 Worshippers of Juno, 516. First builders of transport ships, 517. Their government, laws, &c. ib. & seq. Plant a colony in Egypt, 518. War with the Æginates, 519. And Megareans, ib. Inslaved
 By the Geomoroï, ib. By Sylofon, 520.
 by Æaces, 521. By Polycrates, ib. By Meandrus, 531. By Sylofon Ild. 536.
 Abandon their country, ib. Inslaved by Æaces, ib. & seq. Treachery to the Ionians, ib. Subjected to the Persians,
 538. Revolt to the Greeks, 539. Ally with Athens, ib. Revolt, ib. Subdued by Pericles, 540. Their various changes since, 542, 543.

Samlah, king of the Horites, ii. 160.
 In whose time Esau peopled part of that country, ib. &c.

Sammonicus's writings, noble library, and death, xv. 138, n.

† Samnites, who, and where sited, xi,
 262. Ally with Rome, 637. Defeated by Val. Corvus, 648. By Cossius, 649.
 Invaded by the Campanians, 653. Haughty answer to the Romans, xiii. 8. Outwitted at Paleopolis, 9, 10. Defeated by Fabius, 12. By Crassus, 16. By Fabius, ib. Force the Romans to a shameful peace, 20. Defeated by Lentulus, 27.
 By Papyrius, 28. In Apulia, ib. Twice more by Fabius, 31. Lose 30,000 men, 34. Defeated by other consuls, 44, &
 seq. Ally with Rome, 49. Driven out of their country, 57. Slaughtered by Fabius, 62, & seq. Oath given to their army, 67. Totally defeated, 70. New alliance, 77. Defeated by Fabricius, 83.
 Quite abolished, 91.

——— Defeated by Sylla, xii. 525.
 Brought over by Marius, 546. March to Rome, 567. Success against Sylla, ib. & seq. Defeated by Crassus, 569. Their miserable end, 570.

† Samnium, where situate, xi. 262.
 Entered by Julius Cæsar, xii. 519. Plundered by Hannibal, xvii. 372. Taken by the Lombards, xix. 516.

Samona's rise and treachery to Leo, xvi.
 406. Disgraced, 407.

† Samos island, described, viii. 513, &
 seq.

† Samos, metropolis of that island, described, vii. 514, & seq. By whom built, ib.
 Its rarities, &c. ib. & seq. Taken by Pericles, 542. Subdued by the Athenians, vi. 250. Revolts, ib. Retaken and destroyed, 251. Made free by Augustus, xiii. 395. Disfranchised by Vespasian, xiv. 441.

† Samofata, a chief city in Comagene,
 ii. 263. Whence called Samothracia, vii.
 513. Taken by Heraclius, xvi. 331.

† Samothrace, where, vii. 621. Described, 622.

† ——— the gods of, dreaded by all nations, vii. 624.

——— the deluge of, vii. 625. Government, &c. 626.

† Samfirenus, founder of the Emessan kingdom, ix. 634.

——— II. His reign, ix. 635.

Samson's birth and prowess foretold by an angel, iii. 520. Marriage at Timnath, ii. 237. Riddle, and dire Revenge on the Philistines, ib. & seq. Betrayed to them by the Jews, 239. Carries off the gates of Gaza, ib. Betrayed by Dalilah, ib. & 240. His slavery and death, 240,
 241, n. See also, iii. 520.

Samuel, the prophet, born and dedicated, iii. 523. Denounces God's judgments against Eli, 524. Obtains a signal victory over the Philistines, 528. Dissuades the people from having a king, 529. Anoints Saul, 530. Justifies his past conduct before him, 532, & seq. His view in it,
 ib. Falls out with Saul, 535. Anoints
 David in his stead, 540. His death, iv.
 1. Apparition, 8. Discussed, ib. & n.

——— chosen king of the Bulgarians, xix.
 413. Horrid ravages, ib. Defeated by the Romans, ib. & xvi. 436. Fresh conquests, xix. 414. Defeated by Uranius, 415. By Basilus, 517. Breaks his heart,
 ib. See also, xvi. 436.

Sana, Sa, the supposed founder of Sais,
 ii. 89.

† Sanan, the metropolis of Yaman, i.
 475. Called by the Jews Uzzah, ib.
 xviii. 193. Described, 201.

——— the palace of, ib.

Sanballat, why called the Horonite, x.
 49. His spight against the Jews, ib. &
 seq. Encourages their renegadoes, 59.
 Whether two of that name, ib. & n.

Sanchoniatho, his origin of the world,
 i. 95. Idolatrous line of Cain, 256. Production of the first pair, ib. Pedigree compared with that of Moses, 264, & seq. History continued, 387. Bishop
 Cumberland's amendment of it considered,

I N D E X to the

402. His account of the flood. See De-luge.

Sanctuaries at Rome, their number lessened, xiii. 617.

Sandabad queen of Persia's unlawful amour with her son-in-law, v. 278.

Sandarion left governor at Palmyra, xv. 261. Murdered, 262.

Sandrocolus drives the Macedonians out of India, viii. 561, 562.

† Sangarius, river in Phrygia, v. 499.

† ——— in Bythinia, ix. 591.

† Sangata, where, viii. 306, 307. Razed by Alexander, ib. & seq.

Sangiban, king, who, xix. 83, & n.

Sanhedrin, Jewish, where the council of 70 continued, iii. 6, 7, & n. No mention of it till the Maccabees, ib. Their various consults against Christ, x. 479, 483, 497. Unjust Sentence against him, 501. Horrid hypocrisy, 502, n, & 503. Inveteracy against him, 505, & seq. Revile him on the cross, 511. Obduracy, 516, 517. Suppress the truth of his resurrection, 521. And the propagation of the gospel, 539.

Santabarinus's treachery to Leo, xvi. 401. Punished, 403.

† Santorin island, see Thera, vii. 570, 575.

Saon polishes the Samotracians, vii. 626.

Saolduchinus, king of Assyria, whether the Nabuchodonozor of Judith, iv. 282, & n.

Saouk murdered, xi. 214.

† Sapeans, first inhabitants of Lemnos, vii. 615.

† ——— in Thrace, their kings, &c. ix. 524.

Saph, the son of Goliah, slain by Sibbechai, ii. 257.

† Saphar, described, xviii. 196. The frankincense of, ib.

Sappho, where born, vii. 550.

† Sapporitæ, who, and where sited, xviii. 196.

Sapor, Sapoires, king of Persia's success against the Romans, xi. 80, & seq. Shamefully repulsed by Gordian, ib. & xv. 205. Defeated, 206. Ravages the empire, 228. Ill treatment of Valerian, ib. New conquests, 233. Death, xi 83, & n. & seq. n.

— IId, his character, xi. 91. Persecutes the christians, 93. Ill success against the Romans, 96. Letter to Constans, ib. & seq. Success against him, 97. Against Julian, 100, & seq. Haughty message to Odenatus, xv. 234. Defeated by him, 235. Embassy to Constantine, 409. Repulse before Nisibis, 436. Defeated by Constantius, 438. Before Nisibis, 440. High demands on Constantius, 485. Renews the war against him, 492. Cruelty to the Amidans, 494. Takes several cities, 496. Frighted back by ill omens, 508. First offers of peace rejected, 540. Second, 547. Sudden fall on Julian's army, 548. Peace with Jovian, 565. Treachery to Arfaces, 626. Invades Armenia, 627. Defeated by Valens, 629. Death and long reign, xvi. 63. See also vol. xi. 100, & seq. & n.

Sapor IId, his wicked reign, xi. 106.

—— Roman general sent to surprize the heretics, xvi. 43.

Sapping, when first brought into use, xi. 337.

† Saptesyte, the rich mines of, ix. 508.

Sapur's cruelty to the Arabs, xviii. 280.

Sarablagas's ill success against Heraclius, xi. 169, & seq.

Sarac, the last king of Assyria, iv. 292. Invaded by Nabopolassar, &c. ib. Burns himself and his palace, 294, 295. Whether the Sardanapalus of prophane History, 295.

Saracenic Alphabet, xviii. 248.

† Saracens, whence so called, i. 463. Their extract, ib. Who, and where sited, xviii. 185, 197. Origin of their name, 212, & n. Pensionary to the empire, 302. Burn the Alexandrian library, ix. 186, & seq. 100,000 of them cut off by the Romans, xi. 111. Invade Persia, 174. When subdued by Trajan, xiv. 589. Invade Mesopotamia, xv. 459. Go over to the Persians, 540. Repulsed by the Goths, xvi. 29, & seq. Waste Egypt, Syria, &c. 189. Desperate Panic under Alamundarus, 204. Repulsed by Marcian, 252. Join with Mohammed, 342. Success against the Romans, 343. Swift conquests, ib. Peace with Constans, 346. Cruel ravages in Afric, 348. In Sicily, ib. Repulsed before Constantinople, ib. Peace with Constantine IId, 349. Defeated in Syria, ib. Repulsed before Antaratadus, 353. Driven out of Armenia, ib. Fresh Invasion, 356. Defeated at sea, 365. By Leo, 369. Persecute the christians, ib. Repulsed by Irene, 370. Bought off by the Persians, 371. Repulsed in Cilicia 374. Success against Irene, 375. Against Nicephorus, 378. Defeated by Leo, 380. Settle in Crete, 387. Signal victory there 388. Seize on Sicily, 389. Defeated by Petrona, 398. By Basilus, 401. New Conquests on the Romans, 405. Defeated by Heraclius, 406, 407, 415. In the east, 418, 421, 424.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Saragossa, by whom built, xiii. 376. Plundered by the Suevi, xvi. 235. Taken by the Visigoths, xix. 165.

Sarah passes for Abraham's sister, ii. 396. Taken and restored by the king of Egypt, 397. By Abimelech, 398. A son promised to her, 411. Severity to Hagar, 414. First called Sarah, 406, & n. Death and burial, 418, 520.

† Saramael, conjectures concerning that place, x. 83, n.

Sarames put to death by Varamus, xi. 154.

Sarbanazas, defeated by Heraclius, xi. 168.

Sarbaratas murders the king of Persia, xi. 173. Mounts the throne, 174. Murdered, ib.

Sarbarazes, repulsed before Chalcedon, xvi. 34. Revolts to Heraclius, ib. Put to death by Cosrhoes, ib.

Sarbarus's stratagem to save his own life, xi. 171.

† Sarcinates, who, and where, xii. 95. Conquered by the Romans, ib.

Sardanapalus's character, iv. 253. Reign, 254, & seq. Success against the revolted Medes and Babylonians, 255. Surprized and routed by them, 256, 267. Besieged in Nineveh, 257. Destroys himself and his riches, 259. Pillar erected to him, ib. n, & seq. Probably the same with Sarac, 292.

† Sardi, send an embassy to Carthage, xvii. 410. Defeated by the Romans, 417.

Sardinians, to sell, whence the proverb, xi. 310.

† Sardica, taken by Crumus, xvi. 379. Bp the Bulgarians, xix. 401.

† Sardinia, conquered by the Romans, xii. 117. Seized by the Carthaginians, 160. Recovered, 161. Made a Roman province, 164. Regained from the Carthaginians, 167. Taken by Genferic, xvi. 271. Reduced by Marcellinus, 276. By Scipio, xvii. 243. Yielded to the Romans, 326, & seq. Taken by the Vandals, xix. 211. By Marcellinus, 214. By Genferic, 217.

† Sardis, a city of Lydia, v. 571. Taken and spared by Cyrus, 77. Taken and burnt by the Ionians, 113. Surrenders to Alexander, 207. Taken by the Cimmerians, 582.

Sari, a measure of Time in Berofus, i. 269, & n.

† Sarmatia, its extent, site, &c. xix. 354. Various nations, ib. Submits to Trajan, xiv. 580. See Sauromatia, v. 439, 442.

Sarmatian Giant killed by Constantine, xix. 361.

— Games, whence, xv. 394. xix. 362.

† Sarmatians, from whom descended, v. 439, 461, & n. Quelled by Domitian, xiv. 511. Defeated by Adrian, xiv. 615. War against M. Aurelius, xv. 12. Defeated, 13. By Gordian, 204. By Constantine, 394. Ingratitude to him, 408. Severely punished, ib. Driven out by their own slaves, 409, 410. Settled by Constantine, 410. Restored and enfranchised, 487. Defeated in Mæsia, 606. Sue for peace, 607. Cruelties in the Roman Territories, xvi. 29. Cut off by Theodosius, 64. Settled in Illyricum, xix. 96. Their names, character, &c. 354. First irruptions, 355. Submit to Adrian, 357. Peace with M. Aurelius, ib. New settled, 358. Defeated by Caracalla, ib. & seq. By Maximus, 359. Peace with Probus, 360. Defeated by Carus, ib. & seq. By Constantine, 361. Defeat the Goths, 362. Submit to Constantine, ib. & seq. Beat by the Goths, ib. Restored to their country, 365. Fresh inroads and Defeats, ib. Subdued by the Huns and Goths, 366.

Sarnabazus sent against Heraclius, xvi. 338. Defeated by him, 340.

† Saron, Saronas, the northern part of the Legionie plain, iii. 118.

† — the gulph of, described, vii. 632, n.

Sarpedon, Ist, and IId, kings of Crete, vii. 472. Driven from it, v. 592. Settled in Lycia, ib.

Sartamas, the Persian governor of Egypt, ii. 80.

Sarus, sent against the Goths, xvi. 161. Against Constantine, 163. Disoblige A-laric, 182. Noble Defence and death, 190.

Sasales, king of the Odryssæ, ix. 521.

Sasan, the father of Artaxerxes, xi. 76.

† Sason, an island of Greece, where, vii. 627.

† Sassanian Dynasty, a list of, according to oriental writers, xi. 179. The end of it, 251, & seq.

† Sasus, the golden Mines of, xviii. 159, n.

Sasychis, king of Egypt, a second Legislator, ii. 21.

† Sathagetes, who, xix. 62. Submit to Attila, ib.

Satibarzanes,

I N D E X to the

Satibarzanes murders Darius, viii. 232.
 Revolts from Alexander, 234. Killed by Erigus, 248.

† Saticula, where, and taken by the Romans, xii. 70.

Satirical Libels forbid by Octavius, xiii.
 470.

† Satricum burnt by the Latins, xi.
 610. Taken by Valerius, 645.

Saturatius lays the Sclavi under tribute, xvi. 371. Conspires against Irene, 375.
 Dies of grief, ib.

—made colleague with Nicephorus, xvi. 378. Narrow escape, 379. Retirement and death, 380.

Saturn first king of the Celtes, v. 423.
 His other names, ib. & seq. & n. Marries his sister Rhea, 424. Taken prisoner and released by Jupiter, ib. Dethroned by him, 427. Civilizes the Cretans, vii. 465.

—the chief deity at Carthage, xvi.
 608. Whence the fable of his devouring his children, ib. & 609, n. The same with Moloch, 609, n.

—the festival of, by whom instituted,
 xi. 332, & n.

—temple, the treasury at Rome, xiii.
 46.

—inhuman worship at Carthage, xvi.
 602. And by other nations, 613, n.

† Saturni Promontorium in Ethiopia,
 xviii. 106.

† Saturnia, Italy, why so called, xi.
 252.

† Saturnine Hill; see Capitol, xi. 303.

Saturninus Pompon. his writings and character, xiv. 605, n.

Saturnius pleads for the sons of Herod,
 x. 321.

—chosen consul, xiii. 394. Governor of Syria, 441, n. Commands under Tiberius, 446. Sent against the Marco-mani, 449. Speech to the senate, xiv.
 106.

Satyrus first king of Bosporus, ix. 621.
 Tribute to Demosthenes, ib.

—Ild, killed. ix. 621.

—tyrant of Heraclea, ix. 386.

—request to king Philip, viii. 92.

† Savernæ, where situate, xv. 481.
 Rebuilt by Julian, ib. Fortified, xix.
 326.

Saul anointed king of Israel, iii. 529,
 530. Received with universal applause,
 530. Success against the Ammonites, 581.
 Against the Philistines, ii. 247. Tortured by an evil spirit, 540. Ingratitude to David, 543, & seq. Cruelty to Abime-lech and the other priests, 547. To the whole city of Nob, ib. &c. Consults the witch of Endor, iv. 8. Displeases Samuel,

 iii. 525. Conjectures about his crime, 535, n. Rejected by God, 536. Defeated and killed by the Philistines, ii.
 254. His body mangled and hung up,
 iv. 12.

Saul Saulius king of Scythia, v. 479.

—the apostle converted; see Paul,
 x. 542.

—a Gothish general under Theodosius,
 xvi. 101.

—a pagan one under Honorius, xvi.
 155.

Saurid believed by the Copts to have built the Pyramids before the flood, i. 508.

† Sauromatia, Sarmatia described, v.
 439, 442.

Sauromates's embassy to Trajan, xiv.
 570. Driven from Iberia, 627. Restored to half of it, 628.

† Savus river in Numidia, xvii. 559.

† Sawa worshipped by the Arabs, xviii.
 230.

—a city in Parthia, xi. 4.

Saxa defeated and killed, xiii. 314.

† Saxon Shore, where, and whence so called, xviii. 661.

† Saxon, first south kingdom, xix. 18.

—second, xix. 22.

—third, west, xix. 28.

—fourth, east, xix. 30.

—fifth, ib.

—sixth, East-Angles, xix. 34.

—seventh, Mercia, xix. 35.

† Saxons, their origin and settlements,
 xix. 8. Why so called, 10. Their manners, &c. 11. Government, religion, &c.
 ib. Sail into Britain, 6, 7, & n. Success there, 14. Driven out by Vortimer, 17.
 Treachery to the Britons, 18. Victories over them, 19. Invade the Romans, xviii.
 714. Quelled by Stilicho, 716. Leave
 Italy, and cut off by the Suevi, xix. 510.
 Repulsed by Theodosius, xv. 389. By Severus, 593. Settle at Nantes, &c. xvi.
 273.

Scæva Memor. a dramatic poet's writings and character, xiv. 532, n.

—Mucius; see Mucius, xii. 511. &
 seq.

† Scalabis, a city in Lusitania, xviii.
 328.

Scaldi, Scaldri, Gothic bards, why so called, xix. 112.

Scamander, the father of Teucer, v.
 535, 536, n.

† —river of Troas, v. 525.

† Scandea, the temple of Venus at described vii. 632.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Scandoloro, a city in Cilicia, v. 596.
Scandinavia, the original seat of the Lombards, xvi. 36.

—of the Goths, xix. 104. Described, ib. & seq. Whence so called, 105. By whom peopled, ib.

† Scaptēsylæ, the rich mines of, ix. 508.

Scaptius procures an unjust sentence against Ardea, xi. 544.

Scapula defends Corduba against J. Cæsar, xiii. 126. His death, ib.

† Scardian mountains in Macedon, viii. 15.

Scarlet, a fine dye of, among the Persians, xv. 262.

—coat of arms, the Roman signal of battle, xiii. 263.

Scaurus gained by Aristobulus, x. 233. Letter to Aretas, ib. Made governor of Syria, 241.

—Æmilius chosen consul, xii. 427. Success in Gaul, ib. Against Jugurtha, 436. Corrupted by him, 437. Goes with Bestia against him, 439. Severity against his bribed accomplices, ib.

—the noble consul wounded by the mob, xii. 478. Severity to his own, 494.

—M. Aurel. chosen consul, xii. 450. Taken prisoner by the Gauls, 477. His brave advice to them, 480. Stabbed by Bojorix, ib.

—Mamercus discarded by Tiberius, xiii. 496.

—Æmilius kills himself, xiv. 17.

—a grammarian under Adrian, xiv. 658, n.

—general in Gaul, his success, and roads there, xviii. 553.

Scendelaidas, king of Illyricum, accedes to the Achæan league, vi. 576. Reprials on the Macedonians, 597, n.

Scenes, painted, when first introduced, xii. 508.

† Scenitæ Arabs, who, xvi. 297. Defeated, ib. & seq. See also sub Arabs.

Sceptre, when wholly departed from Judah, x. 549, & n. & seq.

Scevinus Fl. the conspirator. See Flavius, xiv. 236. & seq.

Schabour, the Sapor of oriental writers, xi. 185.

—1st king of Parthia, according to the same, xi. 179, n.

—1st king of Persia born, xi. 185. His reign, 188. & seq. Death, ib.

—11d. why cruel to the Arabs, xi. 196. Wars with Constantius, 197. Against the Delemites, 198.

—111d. allies with Theodosius, xi. 209.

Shekeriar's bloody rebellion, xi. 241. Assassinated, 243.

† Schirvan, a province of Persia, described, iv. 527.

Schismatics, suppressed by Constantine, xv. 384.

Schirin, a christian queen of Persia, xi. 236.

—Stratagem to come at her husband, xi. 247.

Schirousch, king of Persia, vid. Khobad, xi. 239.

Scipio Cornel. chosen general of horse, xi. 570. Success against the Hetrurians, xii. 54. Commands the Roman fleet, 111. Taken by the Carthaginians, ib.

—L. Cornel. sent consul against the Ætolians, vii. 54. Against Antiochus, ix. 30. Comes to Troy, 40. Defeats Antiochus, 49, & seq. Peace with him, 51. & seq. Commands the Roman fleet, xii. 116. Takes Corsica and Sardinia, 117. Outwitted by Hannibal in Gaul, 187. & seq. Returns into Italy, 193. Wounded and defeated by the Carthaginians, 195. Passes the Trebia, 197. Retires to Placentia, 200. Sent proconsul into Spain, 201. Joins his brother there, 214. Defeats the Carthaginians, 228. Their farther success there, ib. & 242. Defeated and killed, 247, & seq.

—Sent consul into Asia, xii. 307. & seq. Defeats the Syrians, 308. Tried, 312. His few effects confiscated, 313. Reduced to poverty, ib. Enriched, ib. Degraded by the censor, 315.

—the sons of Corn. Scipio, chosen Ædiles, xii. 244. The rest see under Scipio Africanus, I. & II. under the two next articles.

—Africanus, the eldest sent proconsul into Spain, xii. 258. Takes and plunders New Carthage, 260. His signal continence, &c. 261. Drives the Carthaginians out of Spain, 265, & seq. Victory at Bætica, 272. Alliance with Syphax, 273. & seq. With Masinissa, 274. Recalled, 275. Chosen consul, ib. & 276. Embarks for Afric, 278. Success and severe discipline, 279. Proconsulship lengthened during the war, 282. Burns the enemy's camp, ib. Amused by the Carthaginians, 286. Ravages their country, 288. Interview with Hannibal, 289. Success against him, 291. & seq. Proposes him Peace on the hardest terms, 292. Which are accepted, ib. & seq. Triumphs, and is surnamed Africanus, 295. Disobliges the Plebeians, 304. & seq. Serves under his brother, 307. Prosecuted,

I N D E X to the

Prosecuted, 310, & seq. Dies, 312. See also vol. xvii. 349, & seq. ix. 30, 42, 43.

Scipio Æmilianus, or younger Africanus's noble speech to the Romans, xii. 335. Gallantry in Spain, ib. Saves the Roman army, 344. Vast success in Afric, 346. Chosen consul, 348. Success against the Carthaginians, 351, & seq. Takes and utterly razes Carthage, 355, & seq. Triumphs over it, 356. Success and cruelty to the Numantines, 370, & seq. Sweet retirement with Lælius, 393. Murdered, 395. Character, ib. & seq. See also vol. xvii. 531, 535. Immense booty at Carthage, 536. Library, ib. n. Divides Masinissa's kingdom, 582. Speech to Antiochus's ambassadors, ix. 50, & seq.

—— Cn. Sent against Asdrubal, xii. 193. Success in Spain, 204, 214.

—— proconsul's noble speech to his cowardly Romans, xii. 222.

—— Nasica's success in Lusitania, xii. 303. Triumph over the Boii, 306. Affronted by the Carthaginians, 334. Fury against Gracchus, 384. Success in Macedon, viii. 539. Character, xii. 438. Death, xii. 407, n.

—— Hispalis, dies of an apoplexy, xii. 319.

—— L. Corn. chosen consul, xii. 560. Surprized and released by Sylla, 561, 562. Deserted by his army, 562. Proscribed, 573.

—— general of the Pompeii kills himself, xiii. 106.

—— P. Corn. consulship, xiii. 403.

—— over-reached by Hamilcar, xvii. 239. Success in Corsica, &c. 245, & n.

—— Lucius's success against Oringis, xvii. 465.

Sciron, an infamous robber killed by Theseus, v. 648, n.

† Sclavi, who, xvi. 327. Join with the Avari, 328. Against Heraclius, 339. Defeated by Constans, 346. Forsake Justinian, 350. Cruelly punished for it, ib. Invade the empire, xix. 498.

† Slavonia, where and whence so called, xvi. 346.

Scolopitus, settled in Thermosciria, v. 465, n.

Scopos, the Ætolian, ravages Macedon, vi. 578.

—— signal services to Egypt, ix. 6, & n. Taken prisoner, 7. Treasonable attempt against Ptolemy, 13. Punished, ib.

† Scordisci, who, xii. 428. Defeat the Romans, ib. Defeated by Metellus, 430. Repass the Danube, 431. Defeated by Minutius, 441. Forbad the use of gold and silver, xviii. 528, n.

† Scots, who, see Caledonians, xiv. 461, & seq. Unconquered by the Romans, xiii. 382. Invaded by Agricola, xiv. 461, Irruption on the Romans, xv. 497. Invade North Britain, xvi. 54. Receive and assist the Picts, xviii. 650. Their origin, 652. Whether different from the Caledonians, 672. When first distinguished in history, 714, n. Submit to Julian, ib. Invade the Romans, ib. Repulsed by Constantine, 717. By Honorius, 718. Fresh invasions, xix. 3. Retire into Ireland, 5. Repulsed by the Saxons, 14.

† Scour river, the battle at, xviii. 692, n.

Scribonia, divorced by Octavian, xiii. 328, & n.

—— the wife of Crassus put to death, xiv. 127.

Scribonius seizes on Dynamis's kingdom, xiii. 408. Put to death, ib.

—— Proculus murdered by the senate, xiv. 85.

—— Driven out of Bosporus, ix. 625.

Scudilio sent to fetch Gallus into Italy, xv. 466. Hatches his downfall, 467.

Scutarii, among the Romans, what, xv. 577.

Scuthes, I. mediates a peace for Perdiccas, viii. 63. Mounts the Odrysian throne, 64. & ix. 518, & seq. II. III. & IV. Their wars with the Macedonians, 519, 520.

Scydrotheus sends the Serapis into Egypt, ix. 183.

† Scylaceum, retaken from Pompey, xiii. 334.

† Scyras river in Macedon, whence so named, vi. 50.

† Scyros island, where, vi. 225. Taken by Cimon, ib.

† Scyrri, who, xvi. 45. Defeated by Theodosius, ib. In Thrace, 174. In Corsica, &c. xvii. 245, & n.

Scytha, a fabulous founder of Armenia, ix. 323.

Scytale, Spartan, what, vi. 474, 475, n.

Scythes, the fabled father of the Scythians, v. 470.

—— king of Scythia, killed for introducing of Greek customs, v. 479, 480.

—— king of Zancle banished, vii. 537.

† Scythia, described, v. 439, & seq. Uninhabited towards the North, 440.

—— in Europe described, v. 442. The extent of both, 444.

—— submits to Attila, xix. 62.

† Scythians, the opinion of the fathers about their origin, i. 469. Whence so called, v. 438. Described, 439, & seq. Descended from Magog, 384, & seq. Different ferent from the Celtes, ib. & seq. Their migrations towards Europe, 390. Territories described, 439, & seq.

† Scythians, royal Scythians, where situate, v. 440. Their government, laws, &c. 444. Character, valour, &c. 446. Why misrepresented by the Greeks, 452. Very populous, 455. Language, trades, &c. 457, 458. Discovery of the Amazons, 464, n. & seq. Kings, 469, & seq. Conquest of Asia, 471. Dispossessed by treachery, 472. Their return opposed by their slaves, ib. & seq. Invade Media, iv. 478. Prevented from conquering Egypt, 480. Plunder the temple of Ascalon, v. 472. Punished, ib. &c. Invaded by Darius, 105, & 474. Message to him, 475. Brave defence against him, ib. & seq. Force him out of Scythia, 478. Betrayed by the Ionians, ib. Outwit the king of Macedon, 482, & seq. Overthrown by him, 483. Some accounts of the other Scythian tribes, 481, 482, n.

— driven out of Bactria, ix. 631. Defeated by Alexander, viii. 258. And reduced, ib. & seq. Peace with him, 259. Friendship to the Jews, x. 148. Invade the Romans, xv. 102. Driven back by storm, ib. Invade Asia, 222. Desperate defence, xvi. 425, 426. New invasion, 473. Total defeat, 474. New war, 475. Repulsed before Adrianople, ib. By John Comnagen, 486.

— of Bede, who, xviii. 650.

— Hunns, their bloody character, &c. xix. 42. Government, 43. The rest see under Hunns.

† Scythopolis, Bethshean in Judea, so called by the Scythians, v. 472. Betrayed to Hyrcanus, ix. 154, & x. 203. Made the metropolis of Palestina Secunda, xv. 626.

Sea, salt, and dead, see Asphaltite, iii. 121, & seq.

— overflows in Gallienus's reign, xv. 239.

Seal royal, sacred among the Macedonians, viii. 30.

† Seba, where sited, i. 462. By whom founded, xviii. 191.

† Sebastia, antient Samaria, its ruins, iii. 149. Why so called, x. 244, & 301, n.

† Sebaſte, a city in Cilicia, v. 595.

† Sebastia, the second city in Armenia, x. 316.

— in Pontus, ix. 373.

Sebastian, Julian's general, persecutes the christians, xv. 543. The orthodox, 590. Supplies Jovian with provisions, 568. Success against the Goths, xvi. 18, 19.

— made colleague to Jovinus, xvi. 190. Murdered by Ataulphus, ib.

Sebat, the fifth Jewish month, answering to our January, iii. 606, n.

† Sebita, Ceuta, a maritime town in Afric, i. 369. Said to have been built by them, ib. & n.

Sects, among the Jews, according to the Talmudists, iii. 473, n. Alluded to by St. Paul, ib. Four principal ones described, x. 252, & seq.

Secular games under Antoninus, xiv. 669.

Secundus Satr. a tool of Sejanus, xiii. 639.

— of Nero's rapines, xiv. 234.

— Julius, his writings and character, xiv. 452, n.

† Secut, the head of the Nile, xviii. 99.

Sedochus's treachery to Anicetas, xiv. 411.

† Sedusi, who and where, xviii. 576.

† Segesta, a city in Sicily, described, vii. 151, & seq. Taken by the Romans, xvii. 234. Why so named, ib. n.

Segestani reduced, xii. 423, & n.

Sejestes, a friend to the Romans, xiii. 534. Speech to Germanicus, 537.

† Segobria, capital of the Celtiberi, xviii. 349, n.

Segovesus settles in Bohemia, xi. 576.

Seguntines submit to Cæsar, xviii. 695. Where sited, ib.

† Segusia, Susa, metropolis of the Segusians, xi. 256.

† Segusiani, where situate, xi. 255.

Sejanus, whence his hatred to the Jews, x. 415, & n. Made governor of young Drusus, xiii. 512. Ill offices to Agrippina, 545. Great sway, 608. Statue set up in the theatre, 620. Character and views, 622, & seq. Attempt against Drusus, 626, & seq. Against the sons of Germanicus, 631, 633. Petitions to marry Livia, 644. Persuades Tiberius to retire, 646. Hatches Agrippina's ruin, 649, & seq. And of her two sons, 652. Excessive arrogance, 665, 673. Bold letter to the senate, 669. Honours decreed to him, 670, & seq. Chosen consul, 671, & n. Over-reached by Tiberius, ib. & seq. Forlook by his creatures, 676. Imprisoned, ib. Put to death with his children, 677, & seq.

— L. affronting behaviour to Tiberius, xiv. 8.

Seif-ebn D'hu, drives the Ethiopians out of Yaman, xviii. 277. The last of Hamyar's race, ib.

† Seir mount, the settlement of Esau, ii. 149.

— a Horite, who gave name to it. ii.

ii. 151. His descendants reigned as dukes there, 160.

—— the wilderness of, iii. 11.

Sejus, the father of Sejanus, his extract, xiii. 623.

—— Carus put to death by Heliogabalus, xv. 153.

† Sela, Petra, a city in Edom, ii. 154.

† —— capital of Arabia, ii. 154. Taken by Amaziah, 168. And called Jockthel, ib.

† Selasia, the famed passage of, described, vi. 568.

—— the battle of, vi. 569.

Selene, wife of Antiochus, keeps Ptolemais, ix. 159. Put to death by Tigranes, 163.

† Seleucia, a city in Seleucis, ii. 263.

† —— in Cilicia, by whom founded, v. 596. viii. 569, n. Recovered from the Egyptians, 611.

† —— Trachiotis, by whom built, ix. 13, n.

† —— on the Tigris, described, viii. 566.

† —— Taken by Alex. Janeus, x. 219.

† —— subdued by Trajan, xiv. 586.

† —— demolished by Cassius, xv. 10. By Severus, 108. By Carus, 288.

† —— the famous port of, built, xv. 436.

Seleucidæ, whence so called, viii. 552. A list of them, ib. Their reigns, &c. ib. & seq. —— the æra of, how and whence viii. 558, & seq.

† Seleucis, part of Syria, its situation, ii. 264.

Seleucus Nicator, founder of the Syromacedonian kingdom, viii. 553. Various attempts against Eumenes, 378, 554. Attachment to Antiochus, 387, 488. Falls out with him, 389, 555, & seq. Reception at the Egyptian court, 555. Invades Babylon, 556. Defeats Nicanor, 557. Gains Susiana, Media, &c. 558. Vast strength, ib. Recovers Babylon from Demetrius, 560. Assumes the Royal title, 561. Goes into India, ib. & seq. Defeats and kills Antigonus, 408, 563. Builds Antioch, 563. Allies with Demetrius, 566. Strips him of Sicily, 567. Imprisons him, 418, & seq. 573. Yields his wife and part of his dominions to his son, 576, & seq. Kindness to Ptol. Ceraunus, 466, 578. Defeats and kills Lyfimachus, ib. & 578. Takes the Name of Nicator, 579. Basely murdered by Ceraunus, 467, 569. His character, 580, & seq. Coin, ix. 165, n.

Seleucus Callinicus mounts the throne by parricide, viii. 589, & seq. Invaded by Ptolemy, 592. And defeated, 593. By his own brother, 595. Drives him off, 597. Taken prisoner by Arsaces, ib. Dies, 598. Why called Callinicus, ib. Coin, ix. 166, n.

—— Ceraunus, his character and death, viii. 598.

—— Pilopater's success in Asia, ix. 31. Driven out of Pergamos, 34. Succeeds his father, 57. Generosity to the temple of Jerusalem, ib. & seq. Poisoned by Heliodorus, 62. His coin, 167, n. See also vol. x. 100.

—— the son of Demetrius Nicator murdered by his mother, ix. 149.

—— the son of Gryphus defeats his uncle, ix. 150. His defeat and death, ib. & seq.

—— king of Bosporus, ix. 620.

—— Cybiosactes, why so called, ix. 264. Sent to Rome, 159. Made king of Egypt, 164. His death, ib. & 165, n. & 265.

† Selga, where situate, ix. 21, n.

† Selgovæ, who, and where sited, xviii. 671.

† Selinuntines, who, and where sited, vii. 188. First war with the Egestines, ib. & seq. Second war, 211, & seq. See also vol. xvii. 41. Defeated by the Carthaginians, 43.

Selinus king of Ægialeæ, gives his daughter to Jon, vi. 86.

† —— the city of, described, vii. 149. Taken and razed by Hannibal, 213. xvii. 49, 50.

† —— the river of, vii. 149.

—— temples of, plundered, xvii. 50.

† Selli, who, and where sited, ix. 533.

† Selymbria inclosed within Anastasius's long wall, xvi. 299. Noble defence against the Turks, 548. Taken, ib.

Semiramis, her birth, iv. 231. Married and carried to Nineveh, 234. Goes to Ninus's camp at Bactra, 235. Causes the city to be taken, ib. Married to Ninus, 236. Her character, 238, & n. Builds Babylon, 239. By the lake she dug, 240. Temple of Belus, &c. ib. & seq. Wars with the Medes, 242. Invasion of India, 244, & seq. Mock elephants, ib. Passes the Indus, 246. Routed by Strabrobates, 247. Assassinated by an Eunuch, 248. Etymon of her name, 332, n. Her passing for her son Ninyas exploded, 237, n. Worshipped in the form of a Dove, 205. Who she probably was was, 375. Her reign in Babylon accounted for, 376. Why so short, 377. Other particulars of her, 378, & seq. And fabulous exploits in Media, iv. 469, & seq.

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Semno taken prisoner by Probus, xv. 280. xix. 194. Released by him, xv. 280.

† Semnones, Sennones, who, and why so called, xviii. 581. Ally with the Ædui, 494, n. Invade the Clusians, 499. Noble answer to the Romans, ib. & 500.

Sempronia's treachery to her husband, xii. 395.

Sempronian Law, what, xii. 277. Causes new troubles at Rome, 394.

Sempronius Attratinus's speech against the Agrarian law, xi. 460. Chosen consul, 546. Censor, ib. Ill success against the Volsci, 555. Tried and acquitted, 556. Tried again, and fined, 558.

— Sophus's success against the Æqui, xii. 50. Against the Picentes, 94.

— Blæsus triumphs over Sicily, xii. 132.

— Tuditanus sent to seize on Sardinia, xii. 160. Success in Gaul, 244. Repulsed by Hannibal, 278. Defeats him, 279. Killed by the Spaniards, 299.

— Tib. Long. defeats the Carthaginians at sea, xii. 184. Sent against Hannibal, ib. Joins Cornelius Scipio, 198. Defeated, 200. Bold journey to Rome, ib. & seq.

— Tib. Gracchus chosen consul, xii. 233. Defeats the Campanians, 235. Saves Beneventum, 239. Defeats the Carthaginians, ib. Betrayed and murdered, 246, 247.

— Gracchus debauches Julia, xiii. 502. Banishment and death, ib.

— a valiant friend to Galba, xiv. 329. His death, ib.

— a vile Eunuch made governor of Rome, xv. 130. His revolt and death, 242.

— Sextus Jul. revolts, xv. 282. Defeated and put to death, 283.

— the base judge of Timasius, xvi. 128. Delivered up to Guinas, 146. Banished, and escapes to Constantinople, ib.

— recalled against Hannibal, xvii. 358. Fatal rashness, 362. Defeat, 363. Watches him at Luceria, 420. Surprized and slain, 436.

Senate of Athens, vi. 116. Increased, 132. How chosen, 136, & seq. A new one of four hundred chosen, 308, & seq. Augmented to five thousand, 313.

— of Sparta, instituted by Lucurgus, vi. 382.

— of Rome, how, and when instituted, Vol. XX, ted, xi. 295, & seq. Partiality to Herod, x. 270, & seq. Disobliged by Romulus, xi. 311. Partiality to Jugurtha, xii. 437. Power curtailed, 481. Threatened by Marius's faction, 502. Deputation to Sylla, 559. Cowardice to Pompey, 623, & seq. Fatal decree in his favour, xiii. 38. Affronted by Cæsar, 132. Divided on occasion of his death, 150. General amnesty to the conspirators, 152. Base submission to Octavian, 217. And flattery to him, 342. How regulated by him, 368, 371. Heap new titles, &c. on him, 370, 374. And larger power, 376, 377, 379, & 385. Reformed by him, 400. Regulated afresh, 422. Recommended to Tiberius, 471. Flattery to him, 493. Highly respected by him, 531. Base flattery to him, 566, 616. Honours to Germanicus, 592. Servility to Sejanus, 670, & seq. To Caligula, xiv. 60, 64, 77. Cruelly requited by him, 84. Makes a push for liberty, 88. Outwitted by Agrippa, 108, & n. Proclaims Claudius, 118. Slavishness to Pallas, 157. To Nero, 201, 219, 221, 250. To Nymphidius, 304. To Otho, 330. Partiality to their own body, xiv. 551. Honours to Trajan, 586, 590. Favour for Adrian, 642, 662. Honours to Antoninus, 663. Flattery to M. Aurelius, xv. 37. To Commodus, 68. Fury against him after his death, 68. Acknowledge Pertinax, 73. And Julianus, 82. Proscribe him. 92. Submission to Severus, 95. Hatred against Caracalla, 141. Acknowledge Macrinus, 142. Resentment against Maximin, 188, & n. Applied to for a new emperor, 275. Chuse Tacitus, 276. Restored by Constantine, 375. Embassy to Theodosius for the altar of victory, xvi. 8. Converted to christianity, 85.

— of women, instituted by Heliogabalus, xv. 152.

Senate house burnt by the mob, xiii. 28.

Senators of Athens, their power, &c. vi. 138, & seq. Salary, 139.

— of Rome, the age required, xi. 431, 432, n. Degraded for luxury, xii. 96. A new set of them raised, 232. Murdered by Marius, 541. Forty proscribed by Sylla, 572. Butchered by Catiline, ib. & seq. & 586. Six hundred and forty degraded by Catulus, 621. Their number augmented to nine hundred, xiii. 131. Three hundred more proscribed, 224. Carried away by Otho, xiv. 347. Ill-treated by the soldiers, 365. Augmented to one thousand by Vespasian, 434. Honoured by Antoninus, xiv. 666. Forty put to death by Severus, xv. 107. Forbid to live live far from Rome, 485. How to be tried, xvi. 8.

I N D E X to the

Seneca's base adoration of Drusilla, xiv. 56. Narrow escape, 70. Character of Caligula, 94. Banished by Claudius, 114. Recalled by Agrippina, 143. Unjust character of Claudius, 166. Made one of Nero's governors, 168. Blamed for his remissness to him, 173, 179. Charged with divers shameful crimes, 185. Advice about Agrippina's murder, 198. Extortions in Britain, 207. Whether ever chosen consul, 215. Accused to Nero, 217. Retires, 218. Close confinement and abstinence, 235. Accused by Natalis, 240, 242. His death and character, 243, & seq. Whether in the conspiracy against Nero, 245. His writings, &c. 293, n. Life and blemishes, 294, n. Date of his works, 296, n. Forged letters to and from St. Paul, 297, n. Where born, xviii. 362.

Senecio, a lewd favourite of Nero, xiv. 173.

—— Tullus conspires against Nero, xiv. 237. Turns informer, 240.

—— put to death by Domitian, xiv. 513. His crime, ib.

—— chosen consul, xiv. 561.

—— treachery to Constantine, xv. 388.

Senes, whence so called, xvii. 226, n.

Seniauchus murdered in Gaul, xv. 572.

† Senjar city, its site, ix. 409, & n. Called also Samaria, ib.

† Sennaar of Babylon, ix. 409.

Sennani, druids, why so called, xviii. 479.

Sennacherib, Sankherib, succeeds Shalmanezzer in Assyria, iv. 271. Besieges Lachish, ib. Proud letter to Hezekiah, 154. Unsuccessful expedition against the Jews, 276. One hundred and eighty thousand smitten by an angel, ib. What is meant by it, ib. n. Tyranny to the captive Jews, 277. Murdered by his two sons, ib. & c.

† Sennar, watered by the Nile, xviii. 100. Whether different from Nubia, ib. n.

† Sens, where, xv. 477. The siege of, raised, ib.

Sentius's bravery in Parthia, xiv. 581.

† Senones, where situate, xi. 576. Invade Hetruria, ib. Defeat a Roman legion, xii. 61. Murder the Roman deputies, 82. Defeated, ib.

† Sephar and Mesha of Moses, where sited, i. 473, 474. Various opinions about those two mounts, ib. & seq.

† Sephoris made one of the five courts, x. 244. Where situate, 401, & n. Taken and destroyed, 404. Rebuilt and fortified by Antipas, 414.

† Sepinum taken by the Romans, xii. 70.

† Septa; see Ceuta, xviii. 2.

September, the month of, why called Germanicus, xiv. 495.

Septimius the base murderer of Pompey, xiii. 76.

—— a centurion insulted by his soldiers, xiii. 518.

—— his writings and character, xv. 176, n.

Septuagint Version, when, how, and by whom made, x. 82, 83, & n.

† Sepulchre of the kings at Jerusalem, iii. 151, & n. Described, ib. & 397, 398.

—— of the common Jews, iii. 397.

—— that of David still to be seen, iii. 151, 152. Broken up by Hyrcan, and 3000 talents taken out of it, 398. Another vast treasure taken out by Herod, ib. & c. The story examined, x. 196. n.

—— at Athens, Solon's laws relating to them, vi. 122.

† Sequani, who, and where seated, xviii. 494. Subject to the Arverni, ib. Invaded by the Germans, xiii. 13. & n. Faithfulness to the Romans, xiv. 425.

Sequinius, the famed story of, xi. 325.

Seraia, one of the heads of the returning Jews, x. 9.

† Serapeum described, ix. 183, n. & seq. The famed library of, 184.

Serapion murdered by Achilles, ix. 281.

Serapis, one of the Egyptian deities, i. 550. Whether the same with Osiris, ib. How represented, 552.

† —— the statue of, brought into Egypt, ix. 183, & seq. Whence so called, 184, n. Broken, xvi. 88.

—— the temple of, demolished by Theod. xvi. 87.

Seras, an informing philosopher, executed, xvi. 549. Found innocent, 551.

† Serbetis, Yser river in Numidia, xvii. 559.

† Serbonis, a dangerous lake between Egypt and Phœnice, v. 200.

Serena, the celebrated daughter of Theodosius, xvi. 34. Married to Stilicho, 105. Plunders the statue of Cybele, ib. Put to death, 172.

Serenianus delivers up the city of Cyzicus, xv. 616. Put to death, ib. His reason for surrendering it, 619.

Serenus, Vib. See Vibius, xiii. 631.

† Seres, the same with China, xii. 378, n.

Sergia, a poisoner at Rome put to death, xii. 5.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Sergius the martyr prayed to by Cosrhoes, xi. 162, & 162, n.

—his revolt and death, xvi. 316.

—patriarch of Constantinople left prime minister by Heraclius, xvi. 337.

—governor of Sicily, raises a revolt, xvi. 359.

Seriphean frogs dumb, vii. 580.

† Seriphians, who, and whence, vii. 579. Their government, &c. ib. &c.

† Seriphus island described, vii. 579.

Seron defeated and killed, x. 128.

Serpent, the body of, why used to tempt Eve, i. 199. What kind, 201, 202.

Its punishment reasonable, 203. Supposed by Josephus endued with speech, 199, & n.

—Mahomedan traditions about it, i. 200, n.

—fiery Serpents that annoyed the Israelites, their nature, iii. 22, n.

—craft of enchanting of Serpents considered, iv. 187.

—a dangerous kind of them in Numidia, xvii. 184, n. Which live upon dust, ib. And their monstrous size. 254, n.

Sertorius saves himself in his first campaign, xxi. 478. Bravery in Spain, 510. And against the Allies, 520. Against Cinna, 545. Advances against Marius, 546, & seq. Proscribed by Sylla, 573. Success in Spain, 592. Forced into Afric, 593. Shipwreck'd, ib. & seq. Success in Mauritania, 594. Heads the Lusitanians, 595. & seq. Excellent character, and success, ib. &c. Civilizes the Lusitanians, 598. Gains on their superstition, ib. & seq. Success against Pompey, 606, & seq. Defeats him, 607. Contemptuous sarcasms on him, 606, 608. Second victory, 609. Forces him out of the field, ib. And two other generals out of Spain, 610. & seq. Filial love, ib. Glorious treaty with Mithridates, 611. Conspired against, 613. Severity to the Lusitanian hostages, 614. Assassinated, 616.

Servants, their condition at Athens, vi. 133.

Serug, the supposed invenrer of coining, i. 382, & n.

† Servia taken by Basilus, xix. 416.

Servianus's consulship and character, xiv. 578. Success in Pannonia, ib. Put to death by Trajan, ib.

—ill offices to Adrian, xiv. 608. Put to death, 637.

† Serviere, the famed lake of, in High Dauphine, v. 401.

Servii defeated, xvi. 486.

Servilia's love-letters to J. Cæsar, xii.

637, n. Divorced by Octavius, xiii. 222, n.

Servilia, the daughter of Thrasea tried, xiv. 261. Noble defence before the Senate, ib. Death, ib. & 262.

Servilius, C. defeated by the slaves, xii. 500.

—Q. murdered by the Aufculans, xii. 319.

—P. Vatia, chosen consul, xii. 580.

—Isauricus defeats the pirates, xii. 612.

—Nonnianus's writings and character, xiv. 292.

—Sentius defeats and takes Piso prisoner, xiii. 592.

—success against the Carthaginians, xvii. 379. Defeated and killed, 387.

Servius Maluginus succeeded by his son, xiii. 633.

Sesac's conquest of Æthiopia, xviii. 143. Civilizes it, 144, 145.

Seshac, a Babylonian deity, iv. 338.

Sesochris king of This in Egypt, i. 602. His monstrous stature, ib. & n.

Sesosis king of Egypt; see Pheron, ii. 43.

Sesoses's fidelity to Cavades, xi. 119. Rewarded, 120. Put to death, 124, & seq.

Sesostis king of Egypt, ii. 22. Whether the Sesac of scripture, ib. Or the Pharaoh who perished in the red-sea, 27, n. All the boys gathered that were born on the same day with him, 31, 32. Undertakes to subdue the world, 36. Divides Egypt into thirty-six nomes, ib. Military order, 37. Conquest of Ethiopia, ib. Institutes the maritime order, ib. Over-runs Asia, and part of Europe, 38. Plants a colony in Colchis, 39. His pillars and statues, ib. Return into Egypt, 40. Miraculous deliverance from his bloody brother, ib. His religious, civil, &c. works, 41, &c. Insolence, 42, & seq. Kills himself, 43. See also vol. xviii. 114, 143.

Sestorian church, built by Constantine, xv. 378.

† Sestiarium, the promontory of, where, xviii. 15.

Sestius opposes the Terentian law, xi. 517, 518. Yields it to the tribunes, 518. Made Decemvir, 519.

Sestius P. receives the fasces from Augustus, xiii. 385.

† Sestos, where, vi. 211. Taken by the Athenians, ib.

I N D E X to the

Seth, the son of Adam, when born, i. 232. His offspring, supposed meant by the sons of God, 235. Their religious life, 243. Defection, whence and when, 244. Who meant by his children in Balaam's prophecy, ii. 108, n. His name known in Egypt, i. 245, n. Line according to Sanchoniathon, 387, & n. Worshipped by the Sabians, xviii. 228, n.

Sethites, their impiety, i. 250.

Sethon, king and priest of Egypt, ii. 57. Miraculous victory over the Assyrians, 58. His statue why represented with a rat, ib. See also vol. xviii. 151, & seq.

Seven, some curious remarks on that number, xvi. 615, n.

Severa, the wife of the emperor Philip, xv. 210. A good christian, 215.

—— the mother of Gratian divorced, xv. 587, & seq. Recalled by him, xvi. 8.

Severianus made governor of Macedon, xv. 212. Recalled, 214.

—— the son of Severus put to death, xv. 387.

—— defeated and killed by the Germans, xv. 583.

Severinus, totally defeated by the Parthians, xv. 7.

Severus's success in Parthia, xi. 69, 70. Against the Persians, 78.

—— one of Nero's architects, xiv. 230.

—— Cat. made governor of Syria, xiv. 614.

—— Julius ends the war with the Jews, xiv. 627, & seq. Equity to the Bithynians, 637.

—— grandson of M. Aurelius, born, xv. 4. Commendation of Pesc. Niger, 61. Accused and acquitted, 62. Sent into Illyricum, 64. Funeral honours to Commodus, 68. To Perainax, 79. Becomes suspected, 83. His extract, rise, &c. 88. & seq. Proclaimed emperor, 91. Proscribed by the senate, ib. Refuses the copartnership with Julianus, 92. Acknowledged by all, 93. Reception of the hundred senator, 94. Disbands the prætorian guards, ib. & seq. Entry into Rome, 95. Speech to the senate, ib. Chuses a new guard, 96. Success against Niger, 97. Cruelty to all his friends, 100. Treachery to Albinus, 103. Damned piece of witchcraft, 104. Cruelty to Albinus, &c. 106. Threats to the senate, 107. Cruelty to them and others, ib. Success against the Parthians, 108. Baffled before Afræ, 110. Expedition into Syria, Egypt, &c. ib. Edict against the Christians and Jews, ib. Partiality to Plautianus, 112.

Reformation of some abuses, 114. Severity, parsimony, &c. 115. Expedition against Britain, 116, & seq. Taken ill at York, 118. Behaviour to the parricide Caracalla, 119. Severity to his accomplices, 120. Last legacy and works, ib. Death and funeral honours, ib. & seq.

Severus's wall in Britain, when built, xviii. 674. Severe expedition against the Caledonians, 710.

—— one of Alexander's counsellors, xv. 157.

—— chosen Cæsar, xv. 314. Why preferred to Constantine, 342. His extract, character, &c. ib. Share of the government, 343. Extortions in Italy, ib. & 347. Sent against Maxentius, 348. Chosen consul, 349. Deserted by his troops, 350. Imprisonment and death, ib. & seq.

—— the successor of Marcellus in Gaul, xv. 478.

—— stands candidate for the empire, xv. 586. Success in Germany, 590.

—— Acilius's writings and character, xvi. 26, n.

—— a priest put to death by Theodosius, xvi. 228.

—— raised to the empire by Ricimer, xvi. 270. Consulship, ib. Death, 273.

—— Valentinian's general sent into Britain, xviii. 714.

—— the senator, sent to treat with Genferic, xix. 217. His amiable character, ib. Obtains the release of the Roman prisoners, 218.

† Seville, where, xvi. 233. Taken by Attila, ib. By the Vandals, xix. 200. By Rechila, 226.

† —— the church of, given to the Arians, xix. 201.

Sewers, common, built at Rome by Tarquin, xi. 345, & n.

Sextia's signal constancy and death, xix. 254, 255.

Sextilia, honoured with the title of Augusta, xiv. 375.

Sextius revives the contest of the Agrarian law, xi. 560, & seq.

—— a plebeian chosen tribune, xi. 611. Consul, 619.

—— Tull. speech to the dictator, xi. 632.

—— subdues the Salyes, xii. 502.

Sextus, Pompey's son's narrow escape, xiii. 76. Brings Cato the news of his death, 88. Follows him, 90. Kind reception of the proscribed citizens, 226, 227.

Sextus

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Sextus, his grandson chosen consul, xiii.
472. Swears allegiance to Tiberius, 493.
—— Caius, a corrupt senator, xiv. 6.
—— the stoic, an account of, xv.

45, n.
—— Condiarius put to death by Commodus, xv. 58.

Shaddad, prince of the antient Arabs, xviii. 215, 270.

Shallum, the murderer of Zecharia, iv. 132. Murdered by Menahem, ib.

Shalmanezar succeeds Tiglath-Pilefar in Assyria, iv. 267. Reduces Samaria after three years siege, ib. & seq. Transplants the ten tribes into Assyria, 146, 147. Vain five years siege of Tyre, ii. 383. Defeated at sea, iv. 270.

Shamar Yarash, twenty fourth king of Yaman, xviii. 271.

Shammai, a famed Jewish doctor, x. 256, n. Opposes Herod's oath of allegiance, 306.

Shamgar delivers Israel from the Philistine yoke, ii. 236. Kills 600 with an ox goad, ib. & iii. 494. This event not mentioned by Josephus, ib. n.

Shanater D'hu, deposed for his incontinence, xviii. 273.

Shang-Ti, the supreme Being in the Chinese Theology, i. 144.

Sharazer murders his father in the temple of Nisroch, iv. 277. The motive of his parricide, ib. n.

† Sharon, the country of, described, iii. 118, 119, n.

† Shaveh, the valley of, described, iii. 117, & n. Famed for the meeting of Abraham and Melchizedek, ib.

† Sheba, what countries peopled by him, i. 463.

—— raises a revolt against David, iv. 42. Murdered, 43.

—— the queen of, visit to Solomon, iv. 74, 75, n. A doubtful tradition of her, xviii. 117. Her country, religion, &c. ib. & seq. The Abassines account of her, 141.

† —— a city in the land of Sechem, ii. 452. Where sited, x. 435, n. Made the metropolis of Samaria, 67. Beautified, 69. Taken by Hyrcan, 198.

† Shechemites, and the men of Millo, who, iii. 504. Proclaim Abimelech king, ib.

Shekel, Jewish, an account of, iii. 449.

Shek-kia, who, i. 123.

Shekas Arab, their office, power, &c. xviii. 221.

Shelah, Judah's son by a Canaanitish wife, ii. 459, 460.

Sheliah Zibber, his office among the Jews, x. 57, n.

† Sheleph, one of Joktan's sons, uncertain where settled, i. 474.

† Shem, and his posterity, i. 366. When born, 367. The pretended inventor of Astronomy, 368. Confounded with Melchisedek, ib. His death and supposed works, 369, 370. Whether the same with Pluto or Typhon, ib. & n. Countries planted by his descendants, 458.

Shemaia, a prophet of the Jews, iv. 85.

Shemmata, the highest excommunication of the Jews, iii. 342, & n.

Shemeber, king of Zeboim, routed by Chedarlaomer, ii. 192.

Shepherds, the irruption of, into Egypt, ii. 17. Hold that country 511 years, 18. Whence and when they were, 17, 18, & n. Driven out of it, 44, 45. Build Jerusalem, 45. Mistaken for Israelites, ib. & n.

Sheshai, the son of Anac driven out of Hebron by Caleb, ii. 307, & n.

Shetarbosnai, governor of Samaria, an enemy to the Jews, x. 21.

† Shewa, the mountains of, where, xviii. 97.

Shewbread, why called the bread of faces, iii. 233. How made, &c. ib. &c.

—— the table of, described, iii. 206.

Shezbazzar, whether the same with Zerubabel, x. 8, & n.

Shibboleth, a word by which the Ephraimites were discovered, iii. 518.

Shibkah, among the Arabians, what, xvi. 580, n.

† Shihr, the country of, where, xviii. 200. Famed for its frankincense, ib.

Shiloh, what meant by Jacob in his prophecy, ii. 486, n.

Shimei's villainous behaviour to David, iv. 36. How to be treated by Solomon, 52. Put to death, 54.

† Shimram, where, ii. 204. The king of, defeated by the Jews, ib.

† Shinaar, the plain of, where, i. 407. Extent, 408. Etymon, ib. & n. Footsteps of it in authors, 409.

Shiprah and Phuah, two religious midwives in Egypt, ii. 515. Rewarded for not obeying Pharaoh's bloody orders, 516, & n. & seq.

† Shittim, the vale of, its uncertain situation, iii. 115.

—— wood, various opinions about it, iii. 292, n.

† Shoaib, the same with Jethro, xviii. 207, 208.

Shoaib,

I N D E X to the

Shoaib, the cave of one of the stations from Egypt to Mecca, ii. 144, & n.

Shobach, an Assyrian general, defeated and killed by David, ii. 308.

† Shur and Cadesh, two deserts, where sited, ii. 412, & n.

Shusan, the metropolis of Susiana, iv. 396. Sometimes the imperial residence, ib. See also Susa, v. 6, n.

— a gate of the Jewish temple, why so called, x. 22.

Siamek, second king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 243.

Siamese, hold the stoic doctrine of the destruction and renewing of the earth, i. 125.

Sibylline books brought to Tarquin, xi. 371, 372, & n. By whom kept, ib. Consulted, 568. A law for preserving them, 614, 617. Consulted by Sylla, xii. 579. An account of them, ib. n. Purged by Augustus, xiii. 402. A new one proposed by Gallus, xiv. 9. Opened a-fresh, xv. 239. Answer to Maxentius, 373.

Sibyls, who, and how many, xii. 579, n, & seq.

Sibyrtius, promoted by Antiochus, viii. 387.

† Sicambri, who, xiii. 21, n. xix. 220. Defeated by Drusus, xiii. 417. Ravaged by Cæsar, xviii. 641, & n. Submit to Tiberius, xix. 220. Why so soon extinct, 221. Some notions about them exploded, 235.

† Sicani, who, and whence, xi. 269, & vii. 257, & seq. Go over to the Carthaginians, xvii. 88.

† Sicania, the antient name of Sicily, vii. 138.

Sicanus, a fabulous king of Spain, xviii. 376.

Sicarii, in Judea, their cruelties, x. 566, & n. Horrid insolence, 571. Join with the zealots, 576, & seq.

— a new set of them, x. 190.

Sicca venerea, an ancient deity, probably Succoth Benoth, xvi. 642.

† — city, where sited, xvii. 548.

Siceleus, a fabulous king of Spain, xviii. 376.

Sichæus, priest of Hercules, murdered by his brother Pygmalion, ii. 380, 381.

† Sicily, island, described, vii. 138, & seq. Whether ever joined to the continent, 139. Famed for learning, 156. Its first inhabitants, 157, & seq. Invaded by the Athenians, 189. By the Carthaginians, 218, & seq. 237, & seq. 310, & seq. Invite Pyrrhus, 315, & seq. Oppressed by him, 317. Drive him away, 318, & seq. Divided into two factions, vi. 277. The war of, ib. &c. Quelled by Hermocrates, 283, & seq. Invaded by the Athenians, 297. By the Romans, xii. 106, & seq. Yielded to them, 153. Made a Roman province, 155. Revolts, 387, & seq. Laid waste by the slaves, 484, & 488. Subdued by Pompey, 575. Visited by Adrian, xiv. 620. Infested with Banditti, xv. 239. Submits to Constantius, 452. Plundered by the Vandals, xvi. 326. Ravaged by the Saracens, 348. Subdued by Genferic, xix. 217. Yielded to Odoacer, ib. Subdued by Totila, 497. Recovered by the Romans, 499.

— the Thema of, of, xix. 597, & seq. & n.

Sicinius Bellutus, chosen head of the Revolters, xi. 430. And first tribune, 434. Speech against Coriolanus, 440, 441. Accusation against him, 444.

— Sabinus defeats the Volsci, xi. 457.

— Dentatus. See Dentatus, xi. 511.

— a buffooning tribune baffled, xii. 601. Assassinated, 602.

† Sisoris, river in Spain, xviii. 376.

Siconulphus made Duke of Salerno, xix. 604.

† Siculi, who, and whence, xi. 268, 269. Why so called, ib. vii. 158, & seq. Their kings and government, 162, & seq. Various changes, 166. Assist Hannibal before Agrigentum, 201. Dismissed by him, 217.

† Sicyon gives name to a kingdom, and to Peloponnesus, v. 615, 618.

† — the kingdom of, part of ancient Greece. v. 604. Its site, names, &c. 615. Kings, &c. 617. Afterwards governed by priests, ib. Invaded by the Heraclidæ, 618, &c. Accedes to the Achæan league, vi. 554, & seq.

† Sidenici, who, and where, xi. 646. Invaded by the Samnites, ib, & seq. Subdued by the Romans, xii. 3.

† Sidim, Siddim, the vale of, invaded by Chedorlaomer, ii. 191. Five of its kings defeated by him, 192, 193. Inhabitants destroyed by fire from heaven, 196, & n.

Sido king of the Suevi assists Vespasian, xiv. 384. xix. 22.

† Sidon, eldest son of Canaan, the founder of that city, ii. 330, 369.

— the daughter of Pontus, the inventress of Hymns, i. 397.

† — the metropolis of Phœnice, whence so called, ii. 230. Various Opinions

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

nions about the etymon, ib. n. Its harbour described, ib. & seq. History, kings, &c. 369, & seq. None mentioned in scripture till Jeremiah, 370, &c. Betrayed to Ochus by Tennis and Mentor, ib. Set on fire by its inhabitants, 372. The ashes of it sold for a vast sum, ib. Rebuilt by its absent citizens, 373. Taken by Alexander, ib. By Antiochus, ix. 7.

† Sidonians, their extract, ii. 330, 369. 40,000 burn themselves and their city, 372. Revolt from the Persians, v. 198, & seq. Betrayed by Mentor, 199.

Sidonius, a zealous orthodox Bishop, xix. 167. His character of Euric, 169. Retreat from Lions, 311.

† Siga, where situate, xvii. 556.

† Sigæum, a city in Phrygia, v. 523. Taken by the Athenians, vii. 554.

Sigebert invaded by the Allemans, xix. 279. Murdered by his son, 299.

Sigeric chosen king of the Goths, xvi. 196. Murders Ataulphus's children, ib.

—succeeds him in Gaul, xix. 118, 154. Assassinated, ib. & 315, & xvi. 196.

Sigg made king of Franconia, xix. 111.

Sigismund sent to assist Manuel, xvi. 541. Defeat and narrow escape, ib.

—made a patrician, xix. 306. Submissive letter to Anastasius, 314. Murders his son Sigeric, 315. Retirement and penance, ib. Defeated by Chlotidis's sons, 316. Death, ib. &c.

Sigisvult's success against Bonifacius, xvi. 218.

Signet-ring, by whom first worn in Persia, v. 250.

† Sigtunum in Sweden, built by the famed Woden, xix. 112.

Sihon the Amorite disposses the Ammonites, ii. 121. And Moabites beyond Jordan, 198. Refuses Moses a passage, 199. Defeated by him, ib.

Silana divorced by Silius, xiv. 134. Accuses Agrippina, 180, & seq. Her character, ib. Banishment, 181.

Silanus's success in Spain, xii. 272. Treaty with Massinissa, 273.

—Jul. chosen consul, xiii. 402.

—Caius's trial and banishment for extortion, xiii. 617, 618, & n.

—Appius betrayed to death by Messalina, xiv. 116.

—Lucius betrothed to Octavia, xiv. 142. Betrayed by Vitellius, ib. Kills himself, 143.

—Junius put to death by Agrippina, xiv. 168.

Silanus Torquatus put to death by Nero, xiv. 253.

† Silingians, who, and where, xix. 155, 199.

Silius's trial, xiii. 633, & 634, n. Death, ib.

—Publius banished, xiii. 639.

—Caius's speech against pleaders, xiv. 130. Becomes Massalina's stallion, 134. Marries her, ib. Put to death, 138.

—Italicus chosen consul, xiv. 274.

—the poet. See Italicus, xiv. 531, n.

Silk, when first brought into Europe, xiii. 378. & n. Law made against wearing it, 379, n.

Sillanus defeated in Gaul, xii. 446. Chosen consul, 637. Condemns the Conspirators, ib.

—M. put to death by Caligula, xiv. 55.

Silo's falsehood to Antigonus. x. 272. To Herod, 273.

† Siloam, the famed pool of, iii. 144, & n.

† Siloe, where situate, iii. 145.

† Silphium, the famed plant, described, xviii. 66. Where it grows, ib. & seq.

Silvanus Plaut. kills his wife, xiii. 635. His death, ib.

—Gran. one of Nero's conspirators, xiv. 237, & seq. Kills himself, 249.

† Silures, who, and where sited, xviii. 665. Brave defence against the Romans, 704. Subdued by Frontinus, 705.

—in Britain, who, xiv. 151. Treachery to the Romans, ib. & seq. Success against them, 155.

Simeon, Jacob's second son born, ii. 440. Kept by Joseph in Egypt, 468. Jacob's prophecy against him, 485. How fulfilled, ib. n. His tribe, why omitted in Moses's blessing, iii. 45, 46. His lot in the promised land, 103.

—his testimony of the child Jesus, x. 350. Who he was, ib. n.

—a seditious Jew burns and wastes Judea, x. 402, & seq. Beheaded, 403.

—wars against the Romans, xv. 403. Cruelty to them, 404. New invasions, 409. Alliance with Romanus, 413. Success and ravages in Macedon, xix. 405. Defeated ib. Treachery to Leo, ib. & seq. Peace with him, 406. Falls out with Alexander, ib. Takes Adrianople, 407. Defeats the Romans, ib. & seq. Cruelty to Leo, 409. Besieges Constantinople, ib. Peace with Romanus, 410. Defeated by the Chiohati, ib. Dies, ib.

Simeonites

I N D E X to the

Simeonites defeat and destroy the Amalekites, ii. 180.

Similis promoted by Adrian, xiv. 613. His character, ib. & seq. Resigns and retires, 617.

† Simois river described, v. 525.

Simma adopts Semiramis, iv. 233.

Simon the Just, High priest of the Jews, his character, writings, &c. x. 80, & n.

———Id, Onias's successor's excellent character, x. 94. Death, 69.

———the Maccabees exploits against Demetrius, ix. 130. Succeeds Jonathan, 132. Allies with Demetrius, 135. With Sidetes, 137. Success in Galilee, x. 141. Made General by Antiochus, 176. Takes Bethzurah, 177. Joppa, 179. Outwitted by Tryhon, 181. Sundry alliances, ib. Letter to Demetrius, ib. & seq. Takes the title of Prine, 183, & n. His character, 186, & n. Alliances with Rome, &c. 188. Coin described, 187 n. Answer to Antiochus, 189. Riches and death, ib. & 191.

———a Benjaminite falls out with good Onias, x. 100, & seq. & n. Betrays the temple-treasure to the Syrians, 101.

———father-in-law to Herod, made high priest, x. 303. Deposed, 325.

———Peter the Apostle. See Peter, x. 413.

———the Canaanite, why so called, x. 444, n.

———a proud pharisee offended at Christ's charity, x. 449.

———the leper entertains Christ at supper, x. 494, & n.

———a Cyrenian bears the cross of Christ after him, x. 508.

———Magus converted, x. 543. Gives a new name to an old sin, ib. &c.

———Cantharas mane high priest, x. 559.

———a surly lawyer mollified by Agrippa, x. 559. n.

———the son of Judas Galileus crucified, x. 564.

———a Jew of Scythopolis, his desperate end, x. 577, n.

———head of the Sicarii, raises an army against the zealots, x. 590. Invades Idumea, 591. Marches against Jerusalem, 592, & seq. Besieges John in the temple, 593. Holds the city against him and the Romans, 599. Bloody ingratitude to Matthias, 606. Taken prisoner, 617. His punishment, ib.

Smonides's wife instructions to Hiero, vii. 181, 182.

Simonides, two worthies of that name at Coos, vii. 577, 578, & n.

† Simple-Gades, two dangerous rocks, where, vi. 21, n.

Simplicius's opinion of the Eleatic system, i. 85. Contender for the world's eternity, 101. Reflexions against the Mosaic creation, ib. &c.

———his banishment, xvi. 492.

———vicar of Rome, his cruelties there, xv. 604. Put to death, xvi. 8.

† Sin, the famous desert of, xviii. 186.

† Sinai, the sacred mount of, xviii. 186.

† Sindia, where situate, xviii. 178. n.

Sinex's treachery and death, xvi. 218.

† Singara, where situate, xv. 496. Taken by Sapor, ib. Demolished, ib. Yielded to the Persians, 566, & seq.

———the famed battle of, xv. 437.

† ———the city and mountain of, i. 409.

† Singidunum, taken by Attila, xix. 60. Described, ib. & seq. n.

† Singillic bay in Macedon, viii. 21.

Sinnaces conspires against Artabanus, xi. 56. Put to death, ib.

† Sinope, where, ix. 381. Taken by Pharnaces, ib. By Lucullus, 429, n, & seq. n.

Sintula carries off part of Julian's forces, xv. 497, & seq. Brings them back to him, 500.

† Sion Mount described, iii. 115.

† Siphnus island, its riches, &c, vii. 525, 526, & 582. Plundered by the Samian exiles, 526, 582.

† Sipilus, a city in Phrygia, v. 496.

† Sippara, a city of the sun, where, i. 271.

Sira, a christian lady married to Cosrhoes, xi. 162, 163.

Sirbon, the famed lake of, in Egypt, described, ii. 11, & n.

† Siriad, the land of, where situate, i. 244, & n.

† Sirmium, metropolis of Pannonia, xiii. 452. Besieged by him, ib. Burnt with lightning, xv. 611. Taken by the Avari, xv. 324. By Attila, xix. 60. Described, 62, n.

† Siroco, the wind of, described, xviii. 384, n.

Siroe's treason and parricide, xi. 171, & seq. Peace with the Romans, 173. Death, ib. & seq. Vid. & xvi. 340.

Siromus king of Salamis, vii. 494.

Sirpicus the centurion, whence so called, xiii. 512, & n.

Sisachthia at Athens, what, vi. 114.

† Sisaris,

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

† Sifaris, a river in Numidia, xvii. 558.

Sifebalus, Sifenand, kings of the Visigoths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Sifera, general of Jabin, routed by Deborah and Barac, ii. 211, & seq. Killed by Jael. 212.

Sisnac, king of Egypt, strips the temple of Jerusalem, iv. 85.

Sisygambis, how treated by Alexander, viii. 183, & seq. 222. Her death, 362.

Sisyphus, the supposed founder of Corinth, vi. 34. His punishment in hell, ib. n.

† Silana, where sited, xvii. 248. Taken by the Romans, ib.

Sitalces put to death for oppression, viii. 328.

—— Ist king of the Odryssæ, ix. 518.

—— Ild, his warlike reign, ix. 518.

† Sittacene, a province of Assyria, iv. 196.

Sittas, king of the Deuceletæ, wars against the Bastarnæ, ix. 515.

—— the betrayer of Martyropolis to the Persians, xi. 153. Burnt alive, 160.

—— defeated by the Persians, xvi. 304. Success against them, 306.

† Sitifi, where situate, xvii. 557.

Sitius's signal services to Jul. Cæsar, xiii. 106. And rewarded, ib.

—— Publ. success in Numidia, xvii. 602. Death, ib. n.

—— success against Juba rewarded, xvii. 604.

† Sittiorum, Colonia Cirta, whence so called, xviii. 326.

Sittones, who, and where sited, xix. 105.

Sivan, the month of, answering to our May, iii. 206, n.

Skiold, made king of Jutland, xix. 112.

Slaves, how used at Athens, vi. 133.

—— at Sparta, vi. 396, & seq. & n.

—— favoured by Servius, xi. 357.

—— their conspiracy and punishment at Rome, xi. 409. A new one formed to burn the city, 558. A third discovered by Errius, xii. 116.

—— enlisted into the army, xii. 224.

—— raise a rebellion in Sicily, xii. 387, & seq.

—— their desperate end, xii. 484.

—— raise a new war, xii. 482.

—— defeated by Licinius, xii. 499.

—— revolt over to Cinna, xii. 548.

—— butcher the Romans, xii. 550.

—— 10000 made Roman citizens by Sylla, xii. 581.

VOL. XX.

Slaves, new revolt in Italy, xii. 617. Defeated by Crassus, 619.

—— generosity of some to save their masters, xiii. 226, 231.

—— their oaths how admitted in court, xiii. 422.

—— a severe law against them, xiv. 184. 400 of them executed by it, 214, 215.

—— forbid to inform against their masters, xiv. 549.

—— Adrian's law concerning them, xiv. 645.

—— their manumission facilitated by Constantine, xv. 391.

—— encouraged by Honorius to take up arms, xvi. 162.

—— 40000 desert over to Alaric, xvi. 175.

Slavonians, Sclavonians, their signal hospitality, xviii. 539, n.

† Sleswick, the ancient seat of the Angels, xix. 9.

† Smenus, river in Lacedemon, vi. 50.

Smerdis put to death by Cambyfes, v. 90, 91.

—— the Mage, substituted to the real one on the throne, v. 94. Discovered by the want of ears, 96. Murdered by the Persian nobles, 98. Called Artaxerxes in scripture, 99, 100, n.

—— king of Cappadocia, ix. 462.

Smoke, the selling of, at Rome, what, xv. 162. Its punishment, 163.

† Smyrna, a city in Lydia, v. 487. By whom built, vii. 103. Described, 104.

—— the modern one described, vii. 105. Subject to earthquakes, ib. & n. Confederates with Seleucus, viii. 594. Besieged by Antiochus, xi. 10. Repaired by M. Aurelius, xvi. 38.

Smyrneans build a temple to Tiberius, xiii. 632. Their contest with ten other cities about it, 650, & n. Surprised by the Colophonians, vii. 106.

So, in scripture, probably the same with Sabbaco, ii. 56.

Socrates, Prytanis of Athens's, singular integrity, vi. 320. Character and accusation, 328, 329, & seq. Defence, 331. Glorious death, 333, & seq. & n. Court-ed by Archelaus, viii. 69. Vindicated from Cynædism, ix. 197, n. His writings and character, xvi. 238, n.

—— island, where, xviii. 211.

† Sodom and Gomorrah, where, &c. ii. 193. Taken by Chedorlaomer, ib.

I N D E X to the

Destroyed by fire from heaven, ii. 96, 412, & seq.

Soemis, the mother of Heliogabalus, xv. 146. Signal bravery, 148. Vile character, 150. Made president of the petticoat senate, 152. Murdered, 155.

† Sogdia, where, viii. 252. Invaded by Alexander, ib. & seq.

† Sogdian rock, taken by him, viii. 284, & seq. Described, 285, & 283, n.

Sogdians revolt against Alexander, viii. 281.

Sogdianus murders Xerxes, v. 162. Mounts the throne, 163. Cruel Death, ib. & n.

† Sohar, where sited, xviii. 202.

Sohemus betrays Herod's bloody orders to Mariamne, x. 295. Put to death for it. 296, 297.

—made king of Sophene, xiv. 171.

—king of Edessa declares for Vespasian, xiv. 379. Driven from his throne, xv. 7. Restored by M. Verus, 9.

Soily, Henry de, erects a new monument to king Arthur, xix. 26, n.

† Soissons, erected into a small kingdom, xvi. 372.

—city, made metropolis by Clovis, xix. 276.

Soldiers, Roman, their pay, &c. xiii. 507, n. Raise Otho to the empire, xiv. 328, & seq. Become too powerful under him, 331. Relieved from a grievous impost, ib.

—esteemed by the Spartans, vi. 390. Lycurgus's laws concerning them, 393, & seq. How regulated at Macedon, viii. 37. & seq.

Solduri, among the Gauls, what, xii. 599, n.

Solecism, whence derived, v. 596.

† Soli, Solæ, a city in Cilicia Propria, v. 596.

—of Cyprus, why so called, vii. 485.

† Solicinium, where situate, xv. 591.

† Solis mons, the promontory of, xviii. 15.

Solomena and her seven sons martyred, x. 118, 119, n.

Solomon, several kings of that name before Adam, according to oriental writers, i. 181.

—king of Judea born, iv. 29. Proclaimed, 40. Puts Adonijah and Joab to death, 54. And Shimei, ib. Marries Pharaoh's daughter, ib. Signal proofs of his wisdom, 56. Magnificence, ib. Builds the temple, 59. And dedicates it, 64, & seq. Its utensils, &c. 64, 65, n. Vast number of victims, 66, 67. Palaces, 67. Navy, 70. Visit from the queen of Sheba, 74. Defection from God, 77. Idolatries, ib. &c. Death, ib. Whether he ever repented, 77, 78, 79, 80, & n.

Solon the Athenian law-giver's extract and character, vi. 104, 105. Elegy on the loss of Salamis, ib. Recovers it from the Megareans, 106, & seq. Gains his cause against them, 109. Stratagem against the Cyrreans, ib. Chosen archon, 113. Legislator, 115, & seq. Builds the city of Soli, 117. His body of Laws, ib. & seq. Regulation of the Athenian months, 123, & seq. & n. Travels into Egypt, Cyprus, &c. 147. Interview with Thales, ib. With Cræsus, v. 585. vi. 148, n. Quells the Athenian factions, 149, & seq. Just reproof to Thespis, 150. Letter to Epimenides, 152. Answer to Pisistratus, 154. Death, ib. & seq.

—his laws introduced at Rome, xi. 517.

† Solos, in Cyprus, whence so called, vi. 147.

† Solva, the metropolis of Noricum Mediterraneum, xiii. 407. n.

Solyman's irruption into Thrace, xvi. 358. Death, ib.

—the son of Cutlumeses, make peace with Rome, xvi. 470. Attempts to save Nice, 481.

—the successor of Orchades, invades Europe, xvi. 539, & seq.

Sons of God, weo meant by, i. 244.

Sopater's writings and character, xv. 429, n. Put to death, 430, n.

† Sopheme, where situate, xv. 308. Yielded to the Romans, ib. See also Zobah, Sophia, the empress, instigates Justin to cruelty, xvi. 320. Moving letter to Cosrhoes, xi. 147, 148. xvi. 322. Obtains a three years truce from him, xi. 147, 148. Cabals against Tiberius, xvi. 323. Stript of her treasure for it, ib.

† —the famed church of, built by Constantine, xv. 511. By whom burnt, xvi. 83.

Sophonisba married to Syphax, xii. 278. To Massinissa, 284. Her character and death, 286. See also, xvii. 578, 577.

Sophronia yielded to Maxentius, xv. 364. Kills herself, ib.

Sophronius Tigillin. banished by Caligula, xiv. 78.

† Sora, where, xii. 32. Taken by the Romans, ib. & seq.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Soranus Bareas unjustly accused, xiv. 259. Condemned, 261. Signal intrepidity and death, 262.

Sorex, the companion of Sylla's debauchees, xii. 529.

Sofarmus, king of Media, iv. 470.

† Sofia, the metropolis of New Dacia, xv. 268.

Sosibius, Philopater's wicked minister, ix. 215, & seq. Murders the queen, 220. Turned out, 221. Made guardian of Epiphanes, 222. His character. ib. & seq.

—— the false accuser of Valerius, xiv. 128, & n. Put to death by Agrippina, 146.

Sosipater's speech to the Syracusans, vii. 350.

—— Char. his writings and character, xvi. 212, n.

Sosis head of a faction at Syracuse, vii. 345, & seq.

Sosistratus tyrant of Syracuse, deposed, vii. 299. Opposes Tœnion, 315. Revolts from Pyrrhus, 318, & xvii. 150. Applies to the Carthaginians, ib. Received again at Syracuse, 151.

Sosius left governor of Syria, x. 276. Assists Herod, 277. Contempt of Antigonus, 278.

—— the consul retires to M. Antony, xiii. 348. Defeated and killed, 356.

Sosthenes chosen general of Macedon, viii. 469. Slain by the Gauls, ib.

Sostratus builds the tower of Pharos, ix. 180. Outwits Ptolemy in the inscription, ib. & seq.

—— foretells Titus's advancement, xiv. 378.

Sotades the Cynedic poet put to death, ix. 197, & n.

Sothymus king of the Odrysæ, ix. 521.

Soul of man, a spiritual substance, i. 170. How infused, ib. Various opinions about it, 171, & seq.

Sous king of Sparta, his valour and conquests, vi. 63, & seq.

Sow sacrificed in ratifying of treaties, xi. 326, n.

—— with pig, sacrificed to Juno, xi. 645.

Sozomen's account of Sapor IId, xi. 94, n. Other writings and character, xvi. 239, n.

† Sozopetra destroyed by Theophilus, xvi. 394.

† Sozopolis taken by stratagem, xvi. 486.

† Spain described, xviii. 322. Its limits, names, &c. ib. & seq. How divided, 325. Its cities, colonies, &c. 327.

How governed under the Romans, 357, & seq. Suffers a twenty-six years drought, 381. By what nations invaded, ib. & seq. When, and how subdued by the Carthaginians, 385. By the Romans, 387. Stript of its immense riches, 388, & n. Abandoned by the Vandals, xix. 197. Its dreadful state occasioned by it, ib. & seq.

—— first inhabited by Celtes, v. 396, & seq. Why called Iberia, 389, n. xviii. 322.

Spain its total destruction by Scipio, xii. 275.

—— made a Roman province, xii. 299.

—— fundry revolts, xii. 299.

—— recovered by Metellus, xii. 360,

—— visited by Adrian, xiv. 618.

—— invaded by the Franks, xv. 244.

—— submits to Constantius, xv. 452.

To the British Constantine, xvi. 166.

—— invaded by the Barbarians, xvi. 180.

—— cruelly ravaged, xvi. 180. How divided amongst them, ib. & seq.

—— part of, subdued by Attila, xvi. 223. By the Goths and Suevi, 285.

—— when first invaded by the Carthaginians, xvii. 23, & seq.

† Spalato, the palace of, described, xv. 315.

† Spaniards, their extract, &c. v. 396, & seq. xviii. 322, & seq. Declare for the Pompeii, xiii. 119. Subdued by Augustus, 376. Antiently brave soldiers, xvii. 27. Begin to court the Romans, 444. Revolt under their Reguli, 471. Defeated, 472. Take up arms, 474. Forced to peace, ib. & seq. Their religion, xviii. 353. Government, 357. Laws, 359. Valour and discipline, 360. Why so hardly conquered, 361. Arts, sciences, &c. 362. Antient language, 363. Why mixed with Hebrew, 364. When exchanged for the Latin, 365. Writing, 366. Odd way of computing time, 367. Education of children, 368. Riches and commerce, ib. Character, 369. Fabulous history, 370.

Spanish bishops zeal for their flocks, xix. 198.

—— women, their hardness, xviii. 340.

† Sparta, whence so called, vi. 45, 46. Described, 47, 48, & seq.

—— their kings; see sub Lacedæmon.

—— betrayed to the Heraclidæ, vi. 62, 63. Damaged by an earthquake, 454. Defended by the valour of her women,

I N D E X to the

514, & seq. Burnt by the Heruli, xv. 247.

Spartacus, 1st king of Bosporus, ix. 620.
——— Ild, ib.

——— Ild, ix. 623.

——— head of the Capuan slaves, xii.

617. Defeats the consul, ib. Defeated and killed, xviii. 555.

† Spartans, whence so called, vi. 46,

47. Treatment of Darius's heralds, v. 117. Brave defence against Xerxes, 135, & seq. Defeat, 147, & seq. The rest see under Lacedemonians.

Spartianus's writings and character, xv. 319, n.

Spartus whose son he was, vi. 46.

† Spauhan, Hispahan, the metropolis of Persia, described, iv. 516, 517, & n. seq.

——— by whom built, according to oriental writers, ib.

Speech, the origin of, i. 426. How formed, 427. Whether under more tongues before the flood, 430. Which was the original one, ib. 431, & seq. & n.

Speluncæ, in great use among the Romans, xiii. 655.

Spendius raises a tumult among the Carthaginian mercenaries, xvii. 288. Sent against Hamilcar, 300. Defeated, 301. Seized by him, 307.

Spendosthalbus makes peace with the Romans, xvi. 427.

† Spermatophagi, their site, food, &c. xviii. 94.

Spacteriæ islands, where sited, vii. 632. Taken by the Lacedemonians, vi. 279. Retaken by the Athenians, 281.

Sphinxes, shewed the beginning of the Nile's rising, i. 495. Some relics of them, ib.

Sphodrias, king of Sparta's, attempt on the Pyræum, vi. 498.

Spider, immense, the cause of all things, according to the Pendets, i. 122.

Spies, twelve sent to view the promised land, iii. 8. Bring an ill report of it, 9. Destroyed by sudden death, 10. Jewish fast kept on that account, ib. &c.

——— sent by Joshua to Jericho, iii. 65. Concealed by Rahab, 66. Their return and brave report, 67.

† Spina, by whom built, xi. 268.

Spinoza, the first who reduced atheism into a system, i. 84. Monstrous system of the universe, 89. Of the sun standing still, confuted, iii. 81.

Spintrix, driven from Rome, xiv. 45.

† Spire, taken by the Vandals, xvi. 162.

Spirits, good, see angels, i. 175, & seq.

Spirits evil, not mentioned by Greeks or Romans, i. 182.

Spitamenes, offers to deliver up Bessus to Alexander, viii. 253.

——— Besieges Maracanda, viii. 257, & seq. Defeats Pharnaces, 259. Driven off by Alexander, 261. Heads the revolted Sogdians, 282. Defeated by Cænus, 283. Murdered by the Scythians, ib.

Spoils, among the Romans, how bestowed, xi. 423, n.

Spoletto, made the capital of Umbria, xix. 386. Taken by Belisarius, 490. Confiscated by Sylla, xii. 574.

——— the dukes of, xix. 543, 544. Extent of their territories, 595.

Spolia opima, see Opima, xi. 302.

Spoliarium, among the Romans, what, xii. 408, n.

† Sporades islands in Ethiopia, xviii. 107. Whence so called, vii. 548. Described, ib.

Sporus, a Catamite married to Nero, xiv. 226. Accompanies him in his flight, 286.

Spurinna, the augur's warning to Cæsar, xiii. 137.

——— Vestrius, commands in Placentia for Otho, xiv. 350.

† Squirri, Scirri, who and where, xix. 52. Defeated by the Romans, ib. Submit to Attila, 62. Regain their liberty, 95. Settle in Mæsia, &c. 174. Defeated by the Ostrogoths, 175. Settled in Scythia minor, xvi. 253.

† Stabiæ, where situate, xii. 525. Taken by Sylla, ib.

Stabrobates, king of India, defeats Semiramis, iv. 247.

Stabuli præfectus, his office, xv. 578.

† Stæni, who and where situate, xii. 426. Their desperate end, ib. xviii. 553.

† Stagira, a city in Macedon, viii. 12.

Standards, Roman, why abhorred by the Jews, x. 415. Brought into Jerusalem by Pilate, ib.

——— how respected by the Romans, xi. 429, n.

Staquinus's interview with Adrian, xiv. 622.

Star, miraculous, at the birth of Christ, x. 347, & n.

——— a blazing one before Valentinian's death, xv. 611.

——— fixed, why worshipped by the Arabs, xviii. 223. Their names, worship &c. 225.

Stater, Roman, what, x. 470, n.

——— a beautiful Cyzican coin, 562.

Statianu

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Statianus cut off by the Parthians, xi. 48, & seq.

Statilia, see Messalina, xiv. 253.

Statilius, a young Roman's bravery, xiii. 99, & n. His death prevented, 105, 136. Answer to Brutus, ib. Slain by the Triumvirs army, 281.

—— Taurus, lands in Sicily, xiii. 333. Chosen consul, 374.

—— falsely accused, xiv. 161. Kills himself, ib.

Statira, the wife of Artaxerxes her power and cruelty, v. 169. Poisoned by Parysatis, 175.

—— her death and burial, viii. 208, 209.

—— daughter of Darius, married to Alexander, viii. 332. Murdered by Roxana, 362.

Statius, Gell. taken prisoner, xii. 49.

—— the poet, an account of, xiv. 530, n.

—— Priscus, see Priscus, xv. 8.

Stator, Jupiter, whence so called, xi. 304, & n.

Statorius sent to discipline the Numidian youth, xvii. 427.

Statuary, in great perfection in Egypt, i. 588.

Statues, how and to whom erected by the Romans, xiii. 593, & n.

—— of emperors become sanctuaries, xiii. 610. The excess of them regulated, xiv. 124.

—— heathenish, demolished in Egypt, xvi. 88. At Rome by the Goths, 184.

† Stella, a famed mount in Pontus, ix. 373.

† Stelliates, who, xii. 319. Subdued by the Romans, ib. & seq.

Stembal, the son of Masinissa, xvii. 581.

Stenobia, the unchaste wife of Proetus, v. 625.

Stephanio whipped out of Rome, xiii. 403.

Stephanophoros, the priest of Ceres, why so called, vii. 65, n.

Stephanus conspires against Domitian, xiv. 523. Stabs him, 525. Killed in the fray, ib.

Stephen the protomartyr, his character and death, x. 541.

—— a cruel minister of Justinian, xvi. 351. Burnt alive, 352.

—— the son of Basilus turns monk, xvi. 400. Made patriarch of Constantinople, 403.

—— the son of Romanus crowned, xvi. 412.

Stephen over-reaches Basilus, xvi. 432. ——— king of Hungary's success in Bulgaria, xix. 424, 425.

—— IIIId pope, makes peace with the Lombards, xix. 574. Invaded by Astulph, 576. Goes to king Pepin, 577. Stirs him up against the Lombards, 578. Enriched by him, 581. Bought off by Desiderius, 584.

Stertinius's success against the Bructeri, xiii. 539. Sent against Arminius, 555. Against the Cherusci, 559.

Stefagorasking of the Dolonci, ix. 514.

Stefanor's lot after Alexander's death, viii. 372.

Stefenor king of Curium's treachery to the Salaminians, vii. 496.

Stefichorus the poet, where born, vii. 152.

Stefimbrotus, an account of him, vii. 621, n.

Sthenelaides decrees war against Athens, vi. 457.

Sthenelus king of Argos, v. 633.

Sthenis's brave answer to Pompey, xii. 576.

Stilicho's revenge on the Bastarnæ, xvi. 92. Commands the Romans against Eugenius, 101. Plunders Jupiter's temple, 105. Made guardian to young Honorius, 116. His rise and character, 118. Avarice, 119, & seq. Hatred against Rufinus, ib. Assumes an unlimited power, 121. Peace with the Germans, 122. Stopt short by Arcadius, 123. Defeats Alaric in Greece, 126. Suffers him to escape, ib. Undermined by Eutropius, 127. Falls out with St. Ambrose, 131. Success against Gildo, 134. Treachery to Mascezel, 136. Exploits in Britain, 137. Chosen consul, 145. Suspected to have stirred up Alaric, 153. Marches against him, 155. Peace with him, 156. Success against Radagaisus, 160. Invites the Northern nations into Gaul, 162. Private correspondence with Alaric, 166. Secures Britain against the Picts, xviii. 716. Success against the Hunns frustrated, xix. 48. March against the Goths stopt, 145. Partiality to them, 146. Disgraced and put to death, xvi. 167. And all his friends after him, ib. His character, ib. & 169. Estate confiscated, 169.

Stilpo held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 84, & seq.

† Stoboreum, the promontory of, in Numidia, xvii. 550.

Stoics, their two principles, one active and one passive, i. 119. Notion of the deity, ib. & seq. Confounded it with nature, ture, 120. Their notions not unlike those of the Pendets, ib. And of the Suffies of Persia, ib.

Stonehenge, by whom reared, xviii. 430. Whence so called, 432. Not a temple, ib. & seq. Errors about it confuted, 433 & n. The fabric described, 435, & seq. New conjectures concerning it, 438, & seq. Its stones, whence brought, 441. Huge bulk and weight, 442. Disposition, &c. 444.

Stones, rain of, on the Canaanites, iii. 91. Instances of the like nature, ib. & 94. How engendred, 95.

—— their growth seen at Olearos, vii. 583.

Stoning, the capital punishment of the Jews, iii. 338. How performed, 339.

† Stora, the gulph of, where, xvii. 546. Strabo's writings and character, xiv. 36, n.

Strangers, Solon's law about their naturalization, vi. 132.

Strangling, one of the capital punishments of the Jews, iii. 341. How performed, ib.

† Strata Julia & Marcella, by whom made, xviii. 683.

Strateges, their office at Athens, vi. 558.

† Strathern, the battle of, xiv. 484, 485 & n.

Strato of Lampfacus's opinion of the origin of things, i. 86.

—— a lewd king of Sidon, deprived by Alexander, ii. 373.

—— king of Tyre, how raised to the throne, ii. 385. & seq.

—— king of Arados submits to Alexander, viii. 184.

—— the murderer of Brutus, xiii. 282.

Stratocles's device to alter the months, vi. 374.

† Straton's tower, by whom built, x. 301, n. See also Cæsarea.

—— a gallery in the royal palace so called, x. 210 n.

Stratonice builds the famed temple at Hierapolis, ii. 292. Her story with relation to Combabus, ib. & seq.

—— married to Seleucus, viii. 409. Yielded by him to his son, 574.

† ——— three cities of that name, where, ix. 503 n.

† Stratzburgh, the metropolis of the Trebocci, xviii. 593 & n. Taken by the Vandals, xvi. 362.

—— the battle of, xv. 483. xix. 327.

† Strombolo, the island of, described, vii. 157.

† Strophades islands described, vii. 631.

† Strompitza, where, xix. 418. Taken by Basilus, ib.

† Struthophagi, who, and where sited, xviii. 93.

† Strymon, a river in Macedon, viii. 22. The boundary of it, xiii. 259.

† ——— a river in Thrace, ix. 510.

† Strymonic Bay, where, viii. 22.

Stuff the Saxon arrives in England, xix. 430.

Stukely's noble description of Stonehenge, xviii. 430.

Stylita, the hermit, foretells the ill-success of the Vandals, xix. 212.

Stymphalian birds killed by Hercules, v. 629, 630 n. vi. 44.

Styrax defeated and sent prisoner, xix. 98.

† Styx river, why the Gods swear by it, i. 108.

—— in Arcadia, described, vi. 44.

† Suani, who, xix. 510. Defeat the Saxons, ibid.

† Subalpine Gaul described, xi. 255.

† Sublicius's bridge, how, and by whom built, xi. 337, & n.

† Subur River in Tingitania, xviii. 13.

—— in Gætulia, xviii. 46.

† Suburbanicæ provinciæ, what, xv. 422. Suburbanus, Trajan's speech to, xiv. 558.

† Succoth, a city in Canaan, why so called, ii. 451.

—— one of the encampments of the Israelites, 576. Different from the former, 579, n. Called by Josephus, Lalopolis, ib. Severely punished by Gideon, iii. 499, 500 & n.

Succoth Benoth, the Assyrian Venus, iv. 327. Conjectures concerning it, xvi. 642.

† Succosi, who and where sited, xviii. 4.

† Suedava, the famed pass of, xv. 507. Taken by Julian, ib.

† Sueffa, Pometia, where situate, xi. 369, & n. Taken by Tarquin, ib. Ruined by the Romans, 423.

† Suesulani, invaded by the Samnites, xi. 650.

Suetonius disgraced by Adrian, xiv. 618. His writings and character, 655 n.

—— Paul, his success in Britain, xviii. 704. See also Paulinus, xiv. 114.

† Suevi, who and where sited, xiii. 21 n. Invade the Romans, 490. Rhætia xv. 479. Enter Gaul, xvi. 162. Spain, 234. Submit to Theodoric, 263. Chase Maldi their king, 264. Fall out among themselves, 267. Reconciled by him, 267. Other Settlements, xviii. 580. xix. 581.

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Submit to Attila, 62. Defeated in Spain, 161. Retire into Galicia, 162. Assist the Vandals, 196. Re-enter Spain, 197. Their territories there, 199 & seq. Various tribes, 219. Whence called Suevi, ib. Their government, 220. Submit to Augustus, ib. Part settle in Gaul, 221. Some in Frisia, 222. Defeat the Romans in Pannonia, 223. Defeated in Italy, ib. Divide Spain, 224. Defeated by Wallia, ib. Shut up in Biscay, 225. Defeated in Germany, ib. Ravage Galicia, ib. Submit to Theodoric, 229. War against each other, 230 & seq. Kill the Romans on Easter-day, 231. Turn Christian, 232. Infected with Arianism, ib. &c. Ravage Spain, 233. Settle in Galicia, ib.

† Suevus river, where and why so called, xix. 219.

Suffeius advises the burning of the capitol, xii. 506. His death, 507.

Sufes, at Carthage, what, ix. 14.

Suffetes, judges, who governed at Tyre for some years, ii. 384. Etymon of that name, ib.

— at Carthage, their office, xvi. 593 & n. Whence so called; 598, 599 n.

Suilius's trial and banishment, xiv. 185.

† Suizzers invade Gallia Narbon. xii. 476. Italy, 489.

† Suiones, who and where sited, xix. 105.

Suinthila, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

† Sukkim, who and where sited, i. 465.

Sulmona, confiscated by Sylla, xii. 574.

Sulpitia, famed for her chastity, xii. 429.

— writes a bitter satyr against Domitian, xiv. 517.

Sulpitianus Flav. brings up Pertinax's son, xv. 74. Sent to quell the Pretorian troops, 78. His baseness to them, 79.

Sulpitius, the Roman prætor, defeats Philip at Elis, vi. 605. Invades Sicyon, vii. 14. Retires into Ægina, 15. Assists the Athenians against Philip, 72. Sent against Macedon, vii. 434. Relieves Athens, ib.

— sent to Antiochus, ix. 21. & seq.

— P. his sad character, xii. 527. Popular laws, ib. Treacherous attempt on the consuls, 528. Proscribed and beheaded, 552.

— Serv. subdues the Marruccini, xii. 525.

— Apollinar's writings and character, xiv. 674, n.

— the consul subdues Sardinia, xvii. 248.

Sun, when created, i. 147. Its inverted course out of Herodotus, 213, n. When begun to be worship'd, 257, 258, & n. Its standing still at Joshua's prayer, iii. 78, 79, 80 & n. Maimmon's and Spinosa's account of it exploded, 81, &c. Of Grotius and Le Clerc's, &c. confuted, 82, 83, 85. & seq. Its going back ten degrees, how understood, iv. 150 n. & seq. n.

— in what sense worshipped by the Perses, v. 35 & seq. The deity of the Persians, 101.

— darkened at the crucifixion of Christ, x. 513 n. Worshipped by the Parthians, xi. 7, 8.

— strangely darkened in Gallienus's time, xv. 239.

— worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 627. By the Mauritanians, xviii. 25. By the Gauls, 463. & seq. Germans, 604. Saxons, xix. 11, 12.

† — the famed temple of, consecrated, xv. 266.

† the fountain of, xvii. 63, & n.

Sunday, work forbidden on, xv. 394.

Suniator, a betrayer of his country, xvi. 603, n.

Sunieric's success in Lusitania, xvi. 269, 270. Against the Suevi, xix. 163, 230. Ravages, 231.

† Sunium, the promontory of, vi. 304. Fortified by the Athenians, ib.

Suomarius sues to Julian for peace, xv. 488. xix. 328.

Sunno, king of the Franks, xix. 239. Ill-success against the Romans, 255.

Suovetauralia, the sacrifice of, xi. 361.

Suphian repulsed before Constantinople, xvi. 358. Defeated by Florus, xvi. 348.

Suphis, king of Memphis, strange things reported of him by the Egyptians, i. 603 n.

† Sur, the famed desert of, described, xviii. 186.

† Sura, a city in Iberia, ix. 608.

Sura, chosen consul, xiv. 568. His extract, &c. ib. & seq. Death, 569.

Surena's character, xi. 21. Recovers Mesopotamia, 22. Stratagem against the Romans, 25, 27. Defeats them, 31. & seq. Takes Crassus, 34. Mock cavalcade, 37. Put to death by Orodes, 38.

Sureta's Notitia, when first published, xvi. 112, n.

Surgery, when first brought into Rome, xii. 181.

† Susa, Shushan, metropolis of Persia, v. 6, n. Taken by Alexander, 227, & seq. & viii. 220, & seq. Taken by Adrian, xiv. 589. By Constantine, xv. 370, 371.

† Su-

I N D E X to the † Sufiana, a part of Elam, taken to be part of Assyria, i. 459. Described, iv. 524.

† Suffex, seized on by the Saxons, xix. 18, 20.

Suburbulus, made guardian of Bulgaria, xix. 410.

† Suthul, where situated, xvii. 548.

† Sutrium, where situate, xiii. 306. Taken by V. Agrippa, ib.

Swine abhorred by the Scythians, v. 452.

— the herd of, drowned by the devils, x. 454, & 455, & n.

Syagrius, governor of Soissons, xix. 276. Defeated by Clovis, ib. Beheaded by him, ib. See also vol. xvi. 272.

Sygarus's escape and disgrace, xv. 592.

Syavec, Prince of Persia, according to oriental writers, his signal chastity, v. 278. Affassinated at Turkestan, 280. His death revenged by Rustan, ib. &c.

† Sybarites, an ancient people of Italy, vi. 245. Defeated by the Crotonians, 246, n. Restored by the Athenians, ib. & seq. Join in the Achæan league, 552.

Sybota island, where situate, vii. 629.

Sydic in the Phœnician records, who, i. 389, n.

† Sydon, the antiquities of, to be still seen. 337, 338.

— series of the kings, ii. 363. Assist the Jews, x.

† Sydra, a city in Cilicia Aspera, v. 595.

† Syebi, who, and where situate, xix. 111.

† Syene, an ancient city of Thebais, i. 488.

Syeneſis, Iſt, II^d, and III^d kings of Cilicia, v. 601.

Sylla sent against Mithridates, vii. 77. Besieges Athens, 77, 78. Plunders the Greek temples, 79, 80. Turns the siege into a blockade, 83. Takes it. 85. Severity to the Athenians, ib. & seq. Vast tribute extorted by him, 137, 138. Chosen dictator, ix. 258. Success against Mithridates, 400, & seq. Peace with him, 407. Return to Rome, 408. Haughty behaviour to the Parthians, xi. 13. Sent into Numidia, xii. 465. His character and bravery, ib. & seq. Chosen proquestor, 469. Whence surnamed the Fortunate, 471. Interview with Bocchus, ib. & seq. Success in Gaul, 482. Rivals Marius at Rome, 512. Public shews, 514. Receives an embassy from Arbaces, ib. & seq. Defeates Marucius, 522. Baffles the Al- lies, 525. Defeates the Samnites, 526. Consulate and triumph, ib. Retires from Rome, 529. Marches with an army against it, ib. Enters it, 531. His new laws, ib. Prosecution of Marius, 523. Sails for Asia, 542. Proscribed, 551. Success in Pontus, 554. Expostulatory letter to the senate, ib. Marches against Fimbria, 558. Answer to the senate. 559. Lands in Italy, 560. Outwits L. Scipio, 561. Defeats young Marius, 564. Enters Rome, 565. Defeats the consuls over and over, ib. & seq. Defeated by the Samnites, 568. Bloody revenge on them, 570. Speech to the senate, ib. Barbarity to the Preneſtines, 571. Horrid proscriptions and butcheries, 572. Perpetual dictatorship, 577. New set of laws, ib. & seq. Tyrannic speech, 578. Grand triumph, 581. Title of Fortunate, 582, n. Grows jealous of Pompey, 583. Profuse consulship, 583. Marries Valeria, 584. Envy to Cæsar, 585. Abdicates his dictatorship, 587. Speech to young Pompey, 588. Debauched life, 589. Death and character, ib. & seq. Funeral honours and epitaph, 590.

— P. Cornel. conspires with Catiline, xii. 628.

— Faustus, Pompey's son-in-law, defeated, xiii. 106.

— Cornel. unjustly banished, xiv. 187. n. Affassinated by Nero, 218.

Syllæus's hatred to Herod, whence, x. 319, n. Accusation of him to Cæsar, ib. Put to death, ib.

— treachery to Augustus, xiii. 380.

— to Ælius Gallus, xviii. 300. Punishment, ib.

Syllanus, Jun. accused by the Macedonians, viii. 546. Condemned by his own father, 547. Hangs himself, ib. &c.

— retires from Antony, xiii. 351.

— joins with Gordian, xv. 187.

— left to awe the Spaniards, xvii. 446. Brings Masiniſſa over to the Romans, 468. Retires to Tarraco, 469, & seq.

Syloſon Iſt, inflaves the Samians, vii. 520.

— invades Samos, vii. 533, & seq. Cruelty to them, 536.

Sylvanus raises a revolt in Gaul, xv. 232. Put to death, ib.

— goes over to Constantius, xv. 448. Betrayed by Arbetio, 469, 470. Assume the purple, 471. Acquitted, ib. Murdered, 472. His character, ib.

Sylvius, the son of Lavinia, born, x

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

281. Made king of Alba, 282. His successors, 283.

Symmachus interceeds for the Cæsareans, xv. 600. Answer to Theodosius, xvi. 83. Recalled and promoted by him, 84. Sent by the heathen to Valentian, 93. His writings and character, 109, n. Extract and rise, ib.

—Pope confirmed by Theodoric, xix. 434. Put to death by him, 438.

Synademus's success against the rebel Andronicus, xvi. 527, & seq.

Synagogue, the grand, the Rabbies account of, confuted, x. 28, n.

Synagogues, when first brought into use, iii. 470, & x. 57, n. How regulated, ib. n.

† Synneda, a city in Phrygia Salutaris, v. 496.

Syncellus's series of kings considered, i. 612, 623.

Syphax allies with the Romans, xvii. 426. Flattering letter to the senate, 450. Gained by Scipio, 469. Brought off by Asdrubal, 477. Letter to Scipio, 478. Defeated. 488. Joins Asdrubal with fresh forces, 484. Taken prisoner, 486. Defeated by the Numidians, 573. Success against Masinissa, 576. Dethroned by him, 578. His end ib. Defeated by the Massylians, xii. 244. Whether led in triumph, 295.

Sypilene, the Cybele of the Lydians, v. 576.

† Sypilus, mount in Lydia, v. 572.

† Syracuse, head of the Doric faction, vi. 277. Besieged by the Athenians, 298. Relieved by Gylippus, 300. Metropolis of Sicily described, vii. 143. Its harbour, &c. 145, 146. By whom founded, 159. Temples adorned, 172. Besieged by the Athenians, 194. By the Carthaginians, 241. Surprised and plundered by Nypsius, 278, & seq. Put to the sword, 280. Besieged by Marcellus, 361, & seq. Under a grievous pestilence, 375. Forced to capitulate, 377, & seq. Taken, 379, & seq. Plundered by the Saracens, xvi. 348. Taken by them, 401. By the Franks, xix. 246. By Totila, 497. The rest see under Syracusians.

—a three-headed monster born at, xiv. 317. How interpreted, ib.

† Syracusians, their origin, government, &c. vii. 166, & seq. Chuse Gelon their king, 174. Defeat the Carthaginians, 171, & seq. Set up a popular government, 183, & seq. Repeal the law of Petalism, 185. Tyrannise in Sicily, 186. Why invaded by the Athenians, 187, & seq. Outwitted by Nicias, 192, 193. Streightly besieged by him, 194. Defeat the Athenians by land, 195. Beaten by sea, 197. Beat them before Syracuse, 199. And at sea, 201, & seq. Force them to surrender, 206, & seq. Cruelty to their prisoners, 210. Enslaved by Dionysius, 228, & seq. Revolt from him, 229, 231. Reduced, 233, & seq. Defeat the Carthaginians at sea, 242. Crown Dionysius II. 263. Joy at Dion's reception, 271. Make him their general, 272. Mutiny against him, 274, & seq. Butchered by Dionysius, 278, 280. Enslaved by Calyppus, 284. By Hipparinus, 285. Restored by Timoleon, 292. Repeopled by the Corinthians, 293. Gratitude to Timoleon, 297. Enslaved by Sosistratus, 299. Massacred by Agathocles, 301, & seq. Groan under several tyrants, 315. Under new troubles, 343, & seq. Regain their liberty, 348. Put the royal family to death, 351, & seq. Invaded by the Romans, xii. 105. Success against Carthage, xvii. 43, 58, & seq. New preparations against them, 59. Go to the relief of Agrigentum, 61. Receive the fugitives, 67. Send Dionysius against Imilcar, ib. Disarmed and enslaved by him, 76. Approve of his war against Carthage, 79. Cruelty and injustice to them, ib. Victory and rejoicings, 102, & seq. Peace with them, 151. Besieged by Hamilcar, 159. Deceived into a belief of Agathocles's death, 171. Undeceived and raise the siege, 172. Revenge on the Carthaginian general, 176. Get fresh supplies from Agathocles, 196. New peace with Carthage, 199. Divided between Thinyon and Sosistratus, 202. Besieged by the Carthaginians, 203. Plundered by the Franks, xix. 246. Subdued by Totila, 497.

Syrgianes, a wicked tool of Andronicus, xvi. 525. Abandoned by the Turks, 528.

† Syria, from whom named Aram, ii. 262. Where situated, 263. How divided, ib. Under the Romans, 265. Its climate, soil, &c. ib. & seq. Natural rarities, 266. Artificial, 269.

—the kingdom of, described, viii. 551. Its boundaries after Alexander's death, ib. & 564. Kings, 552. Why called Tetrapolis, 566. Surrendered to Alexander, v. 216. Conquered by the Persians, according to oriental writers, 220. Invaded by Eumenes and Attalus, viii. 595. Invaded by the Parthians, xi. 41, & seq. Revolts from the Romans, ibid.

I N D E X to the

Syria ravaged by Cosrohes, xi. 165. By Vologeses, xv. 7. Sides with Cassius, 37. Forgiven by Aurelius, ib. Threatened by the Persians, 158, 163. By Sapor, 233. By famines and pestilence, 409. Under Theodosius, xvi. 61. Invaded by the Goths, 122. Persians, 310. Subdued by the Saracens, 343.

† Syria Dea, her temple at Hierapolis, ii. 288. Its statues, lake and oracle, described, ib. & seq. Different sorts of priests, 391. Sacrifices, &c. how performed, 393.

—how worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 630.

Syriac, the antientest oriental tongue, i. 433, & n. Where used in Jacob's time, ii. 298. Character in vogue three hundred years before Christ, ii. 298. Two kinds, ib. et seq. Without points till the eight century, 301. By whom restored to its primitive purity, ib. Grammar, &c. ib.

Syrian Goddess. See Syria Dea, ii. 288, & seq.

—coins described, ix. 165, n. & seq. n.

† Syrians, ancient, their origin, ii. 284. Monarchy in Saul's time, 285. Various kingdoms, ib. Changeable religion, 286. Idols, temples, &c. ib. & seq. Sacrifices, festivals, &c. 293. Traditional customs, ib. & seq. Temper, arts, and sciences, 297, 298. Alphabet, ib. Trade, 301. Chronology, ancient kings, &c. 303, 307, & seq. Kingdom, when abolished, 325.

—older than the Assyrian, iv. 217.

—defeated by the Maccabees, x. 127, & seq. By the Romans, xii. 306. Fifty thousand slain by Scipio Asiaticus, 308.

† Syringes, a place so called, where, i. 245, n.

Syrophœnician woman, her singular faith, x. 463, 464, & n. Country, ib. n.

† Syrophœnicians, who, ii. 329, n.

† Syros island, described, vii. 593.

† Syrtica regio, described, xviii. 66. Its limits, 67. Nations, mountains, &c. 75.

† — islands, xviii. 79. To whom subject, 80.

Sytalces's war and peace with Macedon, viii. 62.

T.

TAautus, the same with the Thoyt or Hermes of Egypt, i. 95. The first inventer of letters according to the Phœnician records, 390.

† Tabæ, where sited, ix. 88, & n.

Tabellæ Votivæ described, vii. 569, n.

† Taberah, burning, a murmuring station of the Israelites, iii. 4.

Tabernacle set up at mount Sinai, ii. 624. Built by God's direction, iii. 290. Whether borrowed from the Egyptians, 291. Described, 292, & 307, & seq.

Tabernacles, the feast of, why instituted, iii. 193. How celebrated, 194, & seq.

Tabili, the Scythian name for Vesta, v. 450.

Tables, the ten, when first introduced, xi. 520. Augmented to twelve, 524.

—eating, how regulated at Rome, xii. 445.

Tables of Cain's descendants from Sanchoniatho and Moses, i. 265. Of the Chaldean kings before the flood, 268, & seq. Of the gods and demi-gods of Egypt, 274.

Tables; Whiston's computation of mankind down to the flood, i. 311, & n. Of the postdeluvians down to Abraham, according to the Hebrew, 333, 334. According to the Septuagint, 335. And the Samaritan Pentateuch, 336.

—of the descendants of Noah, i. 347. Increase of men after the flood, 450, & seq.

—of the Egyptian dynasties, from the old Egyptian chronicle, i. 601.

—from Manetho, out of Josephus, i. 611.

—of the Theban kings out of Eratosthenes, ib.

—of the Egyptian kings, out of Syncellus, i. 612, & seq. Out of Herodotus and Diod. Siculus, 613.

—of the Israelitish judges, iii. 483.

—of the Jewish kings before Jeroboam's revolt, iii. 484.

—of the decalogue, Talmudic comments on them, ii. 615, 616, n. How written and given to Moses, 615. Fables of the Mahomedans about them, 616, n.

† Tabraca in Numidia, its ruins, &c. xvii. 547.

† — island, where sited, xvii. 552.

Tabrimon, king of Damascus's friendship with Judah and Israel, ii. 209. Who he was, ib. n.

Tacalhaimanout, a Coptic saint and apostle, xviii. 167. Etymon of his name, 168.

† Tacatua, where situate, xvii. 546.

† Tacazi

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Tacaza river falls into the Nile, xviii. 100. Described, 104, n.

Tacfarinas raises a revolt in Afric, xiii. 578. Defeated, ib. By Apronius, 606. Bold embassy to Tiberius, 621. Narrow escape, ib. Defeated and killed, 636. See also vol. xviii. 41, 42, 43.

Tachos, king of Egypt, ii. 83. Impolitic conduct towards Agefilaus, 84. Driven out by his subjects, ib. & seq. Flight into Persia, ib. & v. 193, n.

Tacitus's consulship, xiv. 552. Account of the Germans, 560. His writings and character, 601, n. Character of Felix, x. 566, n. Of Augustus, xiii. 482, n, & seq. Of the christians, xiv. 232, & seq. n. His own, 234. A sad chasm in his Annals, 262. Funeral oration of Virgilius, 283. Character of Agricola, 508, & seq.

—emperor chosen by the senate, xv. 275, 276. High respect for the historian, 276. Character, laws, &c. 277. March against the Barbarians, 278. Death, ib.

† Taci, Tavi Ostium, where situate, xviii. 671.

Tafia and her daughters turn nuns, xix. 573, 574.

Tagonius Gallo's rank flattery to Tiberius, xiv. 4.

Tagus, a fabulous king of Spain, xviii. 373.

† —river in Lusitania, xviii. 332.

—the golden sand of, ib.

Tahmurah, a fabulous king of Persia, said to have warred with the Oenii, iv. 181.

Tamurash, fourth king of Persia, according to oriental writers, v. 246.

† Taifalæ, who, and where, xix. 130. Their inroads into the empire, 132. In Sarmatia, xv. 487. Driven out by Athanaric, xvi. 14. Join with the Greuthongi, ib. & seq.

† Talabrica, a city in Lusitania, xviii. 327.

† Talabrissa surrendered to the Romans, xii. 367.

† Taloura, where, ix. 449. The vast riches of, ib. & seq.

Talicius's success against the Scythians, xvi. 474.

Talmaj, the son of Anac, driven out of Hebron, ii. 207, & n.

—king of Geshur, gives his daughter to David, ii. 327.

Talmudists, their extravagant notions of the first man, i. 167.

† Taluda river in Tangitania, xviii. 12

Tallutius defeated by the Olynthians, viii. 72.

Talus's reign in Crete, vii. 470.

Tamar, Er's wife, married to Onan, ii. 460. Over-reaches Judah, 461. Condemned, and afterwards absolved by him, 462, 463. Brings forth twins, ib. & n.

—David's daughter ravished by Hammon, iv. 30.

† —the mouth of, near Plymouth, xviii. 659.

† Tamna, a city in Arabia Fælix, xviii. 195, 209.

Tamocorhoes defeated by Mauritius, xvi. 324.

Tamsapor treats for peace with the Romans, xv. 480, 485.

Tamus basely murdered by Psammitichus II, ii. 81.

Tanaim among the Jews, their office, x. 8.

Tanais worshipped by the Armenians, ix. 325. Her stately temple at Acilefina, ibid.

† —an ancient city in lower Egypt, i. 489.

† —river, parts the two Scythias, v. 439, & n.

Tanaquil, Tarquin's wife, her proud character, xi. 338. Politic stratagems in favour of Servius, 352, 353, & 356.

—her distaff hung in Hercules's temple, xi. 356.

† Tanara, the promontory of, in Lacedemon, described, vi. 48, & n.

Tancred the Norman, his rise and progeny, xvi. 570.

† Tanfana, the temple of, what, and where, xiii. 527, & n. & xviii. 599, & n. Destroyed, xiv. 527.

—worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 12.

† Tangier. See Tingis, xviii. 7.

—the famed cave of, xviii. 22.

Tangripermes repulsed by Alexius, xvi. 483.

Tangrolipix's success against Mohammed, xvi. 450, & seq. Made king of Persia, ib. Ill success against the Arabians, 451. Huffing message to the emperor, ib. n. Excursions into Iberia, 453.

Tanitic mouth of the Nile, why abhorred by the old Egyptians, ii. 9.

Tantalus king of Sypilus in Phrygia, v. 502. His resentment against Tros, 540. Subdued by Ilus, 544.

—defeated by the Romans, xii. 366.

† Taphene given to the fugitive king of Edom, ii. 163.

† Taphiæ islands described, vii. 630.

Taran,

I N D E X to the

Taran, the Gaulish Jupiter, why so called, xviii. 462.

Tarbigil; see Trebigil, xvi. 140.

Tarcon king of Hetruria, xi. 276.

† Tarentines invite the Epirots into Italy, xi. 654. Their extract and character, xii. 81.

— stir up fresh enemies against Rome, ib. & seq. Hostilities against them, 84. Invite Pyrrhus to their defence, 86. Subdued by Papyr. Cursor, 92. By Fabius, 264. Their miserable state, ib. Invite Hannibal, xvii. 423. Surrender to Valerius, 431. Besiege the citadel, 438. Annoyed by the Carthaginians, 445. Their sad catastrophe, 452.

† Tarentum, where, and whence so called, xii. 81. Dismantled by the Romans, 92. Betrayed to Hannibal, 244. Retaken by Fabius, 264. See also vol. xvii. 452. Betrayed by Milo to the Romans, 215. Retaken by Belisarius, xix. 490. By Totila, 496.

† Tarichæ islands, where sited, xvi. 586 n.

† Tarichea, where, x. 583 & n. Taken by the Romans, ib.

Taricheutæ, the embalmers of Egypt so called, i. 573.

Tarpeia betrays the Roman citadel, xi. 303. Her death, ib.

† Tarpeian mount, why so called, xi. 303. Jupiter's temple built on it, 350.

Tarpeius made governor of the Roman citadel, xi. 302.

Tarquin, his pedigree, xi. 338. Gallantry, 339. Chosen king, 340. Defeats the Latins, ib. & seq. The Hetrurians, 342, & seq. Outwitted by an Augur, 347. Wars with the Sabines, 346, & seq. Murdered, 352.

— Lucius married to Tullia, xi. 358. Incestuous marriage with the younger, 363. Plots against Servius, 364, & seq. Murders him, 366. His tyranny, 367. Treachery to Herdonius, 368. War with the Volsci, 369. With the Sabines, ib. Outwits the Gabini, 370, & seq. Buys the Sibylline books, 372. Consults the Delphic oracle, 374, & seq. Banished by the senate, 379.

— Sextus's shameful stratagem against the Gabini, xi. 370. Cruelty to them, 371. Rape of Lucretia, 376. Banishment, 379. Plot against the Roman consuls, 388. Estate confiscated, ib. & seq. Defeated by Valerius, 392. Attempt on the Roman ladies frustrated, 400. Conspiracy defeated, 409, & seq. His death, 418.

Tarquin's accusation of Crassus, xii. 636. Punishment, ib.

† Tarquinienfes, who, xi. 632. Defeat the Romans, ib. & seq. Defeated by Quinctius, 637. Make a forty years truce with Rome, 639.

Tarquini, their fruitless embassy in favour of Tarquin, iv. 384. Discover a plot against Rome, 409.

† Tarracô, Tarragona, metropolis of Tarracon, xviii. 341. Described, 346. Visited by Adrian, xiv. 618. Taken and destroyed by the Franks, xv. 245. xix. 245. By the Visigoths, 165.

† Tarracon, the province of, described, xviii. 341. Its various nations, 342 & n.

— the city of, where situate, xviii. 346 & n. Councils held at, 347. By whom built, 383.

† Tarsenses, who, xiii. 239, 240. Heavily fined by Cassius, ib.

† Tarsish, where settled, i. 472. Gave name to Cilicia, ib.

— sometimes denotes Carthage, xvii. 8.

† Tarsus, a city in Cilicia Propria, i. 472. v. 596. By whom built, ib. & seq. Taken by Alexander, 210. Taken and plundered by Sapor, xv. 233. Designed for Julian's residence, 539. Proved the place of his burial, 351, 368.

Tartan, the Assyrian, takes Asdod from the Philistines, ii. 260. iv. 280.

† Tartars, who, xvi. 510. Their success against the Turks, ib. & 513, 519.

† Tartary, part of ancient Scythia, v. 440.

† Tartesa, where sited, v. 429, n. Jupiter defeated at, by the Titans, ib. Often mistaken for Gadir or Cadiz, xvii. 24 n.

† Tarteſſus, where situate, xviii. 337 & n.

† Tasm, an ancient Arabic tribe, xviii. 218.

Tassilo, duke of Bavaria, revolts against the emperor, xix. 102.

Taster, the office of, its origin, xiv. 164 & n.

Tatian's character of the heathen philosophers, xv. 41, 42, & n.

Tatianus's friendship to Adrian, xiv. 596. Severe advice to him rejected, 609. Promoted by him, 613. Made a senator, 616.

— Attil. banished for treason, xiv. 666.

— bravery in Syria, xv. 8.

— accused by Rufinus, xvi. 96. Banished, ib.

Tatienſes, the order of, whence so called, xi. 307.

Tatilius

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Tatilius, destroys the crusado fleet, xvi. 483.
 Tato and Caco, murdered by Gregory, xix. 527.
 Tatus, king of the Lombards's, success against the Heruli, xix. 379. Death, ib.
 Taverns, suppressed by Tiberius, xiii. 532.
 † Taulantii, who and where sited, viii. 6, & 7 n.
 † Taurasia, metropolis of the Taurini, xi. 255.
 † Tauri, who and where sited, ix. 619.
 † Taurian Scythians, their site, customs, &c. v. 462.
 † Tauris, the ancient Ecbatane, iv. 448, n. Famed for its wines, 451.
 † Taurinum, where sited, xii. 192. Taken by Hannibal, ib. And put to the sword, xvii. 358.
 Taurinus, chosen emperor, xv. 159. Flees and drowns himself, ib. & seq.
 † Taurisci, who and where, xii. 429. Ravaged by the Cimbrians, ib. & seq.
 † Taurominium, a city in Sicily described, vii. 141. Delivered up to the Romans, xii. 104. Seized by the revolted slaves, 390. Retaken by Rutilius, ib. Taken by the Saracens, xvi. 405. Yielded to Dionysius, xvii. 111.
 † Taurominius river, described, vii. 141.
 † Tauropolium, Diana's temple, why so called, vii. 567.
 Taurus, banished by Julian, xv. 531, 532.
 † — mount in Scythia, v. 441. The biggest in all Asia, 591. Where situate, xvii. 92, n.
 Tausias, the murderer of Pertinax, xv. 78.
 Taxes, regulated by Nero, xiv. 188. By Constantine, xv. 393.
 † Taxila, a city in India, described, viii. 299, n.
 Taxiles's submission and presents to Alexander, viii. 289, 298. Speech to him, 299. Sent back to his dominions, 303.
 Taygeta, daughter of Atlas, ravished by Jupiter, vi. 46 & n.
 Taytæ, kings of Hira, xviii. 285.
 † Teckoa, its situation, &c. x. 165 & n. The famed battle of, ib.
 † Tectosagi, who and where sited, xviii. 585. Defeated by Sylla, 554. Their treasure, whether brought from Delphos, xii. 475.
 † Tegea, metropolis of Arcadia, vi. 11 & n.
 — Orestes buried at, vi. 12 & n.

Tegea the battle of, vi. 14, 401, 402.
 Tegean women, their signal bravery, vi. 14, 401, 402.
 † Tehama, the province of, where, &c. xviii. 208. & seq.
 Teia, chosen king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 119, 503. Cruelty to the Romans, 504. Goes to relieve Cumæ, ib. & seq. Defeated and slain, 505.
 Teichomerus chosen king of Bulgaria, xix. 422. Stoned to death, ib.
 — betrayed and murdered, xvi. 446.
 † Teios, where sited, ix. 382. Taken by Leocritus, ib. & seq.
 Telamon's ill treatment of Hésione, v. 548, 550.
 — king of Salamis, vii. 639.
 † Telchinæ, who and where sited, vii. 402. The first inhabitants of Rhodes, ib.
 † Telcines, who and where, vii. 623 n. & seq. n.
 Telestes, one of the artists of Apollo Pythius's statue, i. 588.
 Teleclus, king of Sparta's character and reign, vi. 402 & seq.
 Telemachus, a hermit, stoned to death, xvi. 157.
 Telephus, the son of Hercules, king of Mysia, vi. 568.
 — the fable of him, vi. 11 n.
 — writings and character, xiv. 674 n.
 Telestinus, Pont. outwits Sylla, xii. 567. Marches to Rome, ib. Defeats Sylla, 568. Defeated and killed, 569, 570.
 — Lucius banishes himself from Rome, xiv. 515.
 Telesis chosen king of Bulgaria, xix. 398.
 Telestes last king of Corinth murdered, vi. 39, 40.
 Teleutias slain by the Olynthians, vi. 497.
 Telias the soothsayer's stratagem against the Thessalians, vi. 28.
 Telissila's bravery against the Lacedæmonians, vi. 434 n.
 Telinus made high-priest of the Jeleans, vii. 167 n.
 † Tellus, the temple of, built, xii. 94, n.
 — the Athenian, why counted the happiest man, v. 585.
 Telmessans, great sooth-sayers, viii. 173, v. 513.
 † Telmessus, where sited, v. 589. viii. 173. Taken by Alexander, ib. & seq.
 † Teman, a famed city of Edom, ii. 154.
 † Temani, the country of, one of Job's friends, ii. 154.

I N D E X to the

Temenus one of the Heraclidæ, made king of Argos, v. 628. Murdered, ib.

— the fabulous story of, viii. 46, 47, n.

† Tempea, the valley of, in Thessaly, described, vi. 16.

† Temple of Jerusalem, built by Solomon, iv. 95. Dedicated, 64. Its ornaments, utensils, &c. 64, 65, n. Vast number of victims, 66, 67. Twice plundered by Nebuchadnezzar, 175, 176. Burnt to the ground, 180. Described, according to the sacred books, append. after page 62, & seq. The rebuilding of it begun, x. 8, & seq. Dimensions, ib. & seq. Disparity from the old one, 13, n. & seq. Discontinued, 20. Resumed, 21. Dedicated, 22. By Nehemiah, 50. How, ib. n. Profaned by Sanballat, 54. By Antiochus, 111. Its worship suppressed, 113. Polluted with Jupiter's statue, 115, & 116, n. Purified by Judas Maccabeus, 134. Walls demolished by Alcimus, 166, & n. Most sacred place entered by Pompey, 240. Rebuilt by Herod, 306, 307, & n. Described, ib. 308, & n. Dedicated, 319. Polluted by the Samaritans, 411. Forced by the Zelots, 586. Defended by Gischala, 600. Gates burnt, 609, & seq. Sanctuary burnt, 611, & seq. Plundered and filled with blood, ib. & seq. Demolished and ploughed, xiv. 627. Its materials used to build a heathen temple, 631.

† — of Samaria, built on mount Gerizzim, x. 65, & n. & seq.

† — in Egypt, built by the schismatic Jews, x. 172, n. Described, ib. n. Shut up and plundered, 621, & n.

† Temples of Egypt, their structure, i. 567.

— of Greece, destroyed by Darius, v. 113, 117, 150. By Xerxes, why, vi. 202. By Sylla, vii. 79, 80.

— of Thermæ, burnt by Antigonus, vi. 589.

— hated by the Scythians, v. 451.

— at Rome, stript by Carbo, xii. 563. By Nero, xiv. 234.

— how built in honour of the Roman emperors, xiii. 642, 643, n.

— pagan, suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 46. Forsaken under Theodosius, 85.

— demolished under Arcadius, xvi. 144. Turned into churches, 145.

† Tempyrium, a city in Thrace, ix. 510.

† Tencteri, who, and where sited, xviii. 576. Defeated by Cæsar, 641. By Drusus, xiii. 417.

Tenedian Piper, a proverb, v. 528, n.

† Tenedos island described, v. 526, 527. Why so called, ib.

Tenes, his character, &c. v. 199.

† Teneriff, the pike of, its height, i. 295, n.

Tennes king of Sidon, ii. 370. Conspired against by his subjects, ib. Joins Ochus against them, 371. Put to death, 372, vii. 199.

† Tenos island described, vii. 596. Famed for its wines, ib. Subdued by the Persians, 597.

— metropolis of the island, vii. 596.

Tents, Macedonian, how made, viii. 41.

† Tentyris, an ancient city of Thebais, i. 488.

† Teos, by whom founded, v. 659. The state of it, vii. 108.

— described, ix. 38.

Terah, the father of Abraham, his age at his son's birth, i. 337, & n. Affirmed the inventor of coinage, &c. 382, n. Supposed the Azer of the Asiatics, 385. Sundry traditions about him, ib. & seq. Leaves Ur, 386. Dies in Haran, ii. 394.

Teraphim, what meant by, in the Hebrew, ii. 444, 445, n.

Terebinthus, a heretic; see Buda, xi. 85.

Terence, the poet, taken captive, xii. 295. In high esteem, 328. His plays gathered upon Scipio Æmilianus, 348. His writings and character, xvi. 669, n.

Terentia, Mæcenæ's wife, her intrigue with Augustus, xiii. 403.

Terentian Law, what, xi. 489, 491. Opposed by Q. Cæso, 491. Revived by the Tribunes, 511. Passed, 517, & seq. Ratified, 521.

Terentianus's writings and character, xiv. 532, n.

Terentius, Arsa, proposes fixing a body of laws, xi. 489.

— Varro sides with Minucius, xii. 212. Chosen consul against Hannibal, 215. Defeated horse and foot, 218, & seq. Flees to Venusia, 219. To Canusium, 222. Reception at Rome, 224.

— Marc. noble defence before the senate, xiv. 6. Acquitted, 8.

— sent into Iberia, xv. 628. Sacrificed to the mutinous soldiers, xvi. 175.

Teres, a warlike king of the Odryssæ, ix. 418.

Tereus, the fable of, vi. 33, n.

— a long-lived king of Characene, ix. 643.

Terillus, invites the Carthaginians into Sicily, xvii. 32.

Termatians defeat the Romans, xii. 362.

Terminalia

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Terminalia, the festival of, xi. 317.
 Termini Dii, not impunedly removed, xi. 317.
 † Terra Sigillata, of Lemnos, famed, vii. 614.
 Terracina, the port of, repaired by Antoninus, xiv. 665.
 Terrible Jupiter, why so called, xi. 434.
 Tertullian's judicious remarks on Trajan's persecution, xiv. 599.
 Tertullus, one of Faustina's gallants, promoted, xv. 36. Exposed on the stage by a mimic, ib.
 † Tervingæ, war against the Vandals, xv. 297.
 Tefamenes, king of Thebes, v. 671.
 Testa, an ancient king of Spain, xviii. 377.
 Tethy's care for her son Achilles, vi. 24, 25.
 Tetractys, God, why so called by the Pythagoreans, i. 128.
 Tetramnestus, king of Sidon, ii. 310. Assists Xerxes with three hundred galleys, ib.
 Tetricus, declared emperor in Gaul, xv. 247. Sacrifices his men to Aurelian, 263. Led in triumph by him, 265. And promoted by him, ib.
 — his son also promoted, ib. House described, ib. See also vol. xviii. 568.
 Teucer, supposed the first king of Troy, v. 529, 535.
 — the son of Telamon settles in Cyprus, v. 557.
 — founds the kingdom of Salamis, vii. 493.
 — introduces human sacrifices, ib. & seq.
 † Teucra, see Troas, v. 536.
 Teuta, queen of Illyricum's treachery to the Roman ambassadors, xii. 168. Invaded by the consuls, ib. Shameful peace with them, 169.
 Teuthras, king of Mysia, v. 568.
 Teutobocchus defeated by the Romans, xii. 492, 493. His gigantic stature, 493, n. & 498.
 † Teutoburgium, the forest of, where situate, xiii. 539, & n.
 Teutones, Germans, why so called, xviii. 573, 585, n. Invade Italy, 635, & seq. See also vol. xii. 429. Their taunts to the Roman army, 490. Above one hundred thousand killed by Marius, 492, 493.
 † Tezaga taken by Scipio Æmilianus, xii. 346, & n. By Manil. Nepos, xvii. 529.
 † Thabir mount, where sited, xviii. 206.

† Thabor mount, described, iii. 109. In high veneration, 111. Whether Christ was transfured upon it, ib.
 Thaddeus, see James the less, x. 444, n.
 † Thaifa, a city in Hejax, xviii. 206.
 Thair's wars with Persia, xi. 196. Betrayed by his daughters, and put to death, ib.
 Thais, the Athenian harlot, causes Xerxes's palace to be burnt, v. 230.
 † Thala, where situate, xvi. 583. Taken by the Romans, xii. 460, 461. Its dreadful fate, xvii. 593.
 † Thalana, a city in Lacedemon, vi. 49, 50.
 Thalassus's pride exasperates Gallus, xv. 460, 461.
 Thales, prince of the Ionic philosophers, i. 108. His first principle of all things, 109. The first who foretold an eclipse, 580, & iv. 483, & n. New division of the year, vi. 125, n. Converse with Solon, 147. Prophecy concerning the Milesians, vii. 118.
 — a Lyric poet, companion of Lycurgus, vi. 380.
 † Thambes mount in Numidia, xvii. 549.
 Thammuz, Adonis, how worshipped by the Phœnicians, ii. 354, & seq.
 Thammuz, the month of June of the Jews, iii. 206, n.
 † Thamud, a tribe of antient Arabs, xviii. 217. & seq. Their impiety, ib.
 † Thamydeni, who and where sited, xviii. 198.
 Thamyris, a boasting musician punished, ix. 516.
 † Thanet island, where, xix. 7. Given to the Saxons, ib.
 † Thapfacus, a city in Arabia Deserta, xviii. 191.
 † Thapfus, where situate, xvi. 582.
 — the battle of, xiii. 96.
 Tharamis, worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 11.
 Tharymbas, a wise king of Epirus, ix. 537.
 † Thasians, who and where situate, vi. 227. Reduced by Cimon, ib. & seq. War with the Athenians, vii. 620.
 † Thasos island, described, vii. 619, & seq. By whom inhabited, 620. Subdued, ib. & c.
 † Thasus taken from the Athenians, vi. 321.
 Theano, wife of Antenor, priestess of Pallas, v. 544.
 Thearides, made admiral by Dionysius, vii. 250. His descent on Lippari, 251.
 Theatres,

Theatres, at Rome, divided into factions, xiii. 505, n. Regulated, 550.

† Thebais, Upper Egypt, why so called, i. 486. And in scripture, Pathros, ib. Described, ib. & seq. Worshipped the eternal Cneph, 550. Destroyed by Dioclesian, xv. 305.

† Theban kingdom, part of ancient Greece, v. 604. By whom founded, 660. Its government, kings, &c. ib. & seq. Dissolution, 672. Cause and success of its war, 634, & seq. Fatal catastrophe, 670, & seq.

† Thebans, their treachery to the Greeks, v. 138. Part join with the Ionians in quest of new settlements, 659.

—— war with the Athenians, vi. 237. Surprise Platea, 262. Kindness to the fugitive Athenians, 324. Subdued by the Lacedemonians, 342. Reject the common peace, 346. Separate one with Persia, ib. & seq. War with them, 347. Subdued by the Spartans, 497. By the Romans, 664. Join with Philip against Sparta, viii. 301. Join the Greeks against him, 118. Defeated, ib. Revolt from Alexander, 147. Defeated by him, 149. The rest see under the next article † Thebes, metropolis of Thebais, i. 487. Why called Diospolis and Hecatompylos, ib. & n. Described, ib. & seq. Destroyed by Lathyrus, ix. 256.

† — in Bœotia, by whom founded, ii. 366. Enlarged by Amphion and Zetus, ib. & seq. Made capital of Bœotia, v. 664, 665. Why so called, ib. & n. Fortified by Amphion, 668. Destroyed by the Epigoni, 671. Plundered by Cambyfes, 89. By Alexander, vi. 361. Betrayed to the Lacedemonians, 497. Abandoned to the Romans, 664. Destroyed by Alexander, viii. 164, & seq. By Cassander, 445. Taken by Demetrius, 469. Stripped by C. Gallus, xiii. 377.

† — capital of Phthiotis taken by Alexander, vi. 596.

Thebet Month, the Jewish December, iii. 206, n.

Theft, how far capital among the Jews, iii. 364, & seq.

—— other thefts, how punished, iii. 364, & seq.

—— a capital crime among the Scythians, v. 446.

—— Solon's laws against it, vi. 121.

—— how far allowed by the Spartans, vi. 391.

† Thema, a city in Arabia Deserta, xviii. 191.

Themata in Italy, what, xix. 597, n.

Themis, the first diviner, vii. 465.

† Themiscira, a city in Pontus described, ix. 372, & seq. Surrendered to the Romans, 425.

Themison, tyrant of Oropus, vii. 652.

Themistias plots against the Republicans, vii. 349. Put to death, ib. & seq.

Themistius the philosopher, raised by Constantius, xv. 469. Flattery to him, ib. Sent with a golden crown to him, 479. His reward and gratitude, ib. Sent ambassador to Gratian, xvi. 10. Worthless speech to the senate, ib. Embassy to Theodosius from the Constantinopolitans, 38. Fifteenth oration addressed to him, 44. His extract, rise and character, 112, n.

Themistocles chosen admiral against the Persians, vi. 179, & seq. His power against Aristides, v. 144, vi. 191, & seq. Sails against Xerxes, 197. Stratagem to detain the fleet at Salamis, v. 142, vi. 203. Success against the Persians, 204, & seq. Highly rewarded by the Athenians, v. 144, vi. 207. Outwits the Lacedemonians, 214, & seq. Why banished Athens, 220. Goes into Persia, ib. & seq. His speech to Artaxerxes, ib. n. & seq. n. Reception and death, ib.

† Thena, where situate, xvi. 583.

Theoclymenes king of Lydia, v. 579.

Theocritus, where born, vii. 560, & 562, n.

—— a worthless slave made captain of the guards, xv. 130. Defeated in Armenia, 134.

—— executed for treason, xvi. 303.

Theodatus's treachery to Amalasunta, xix. 448. War against Justinian, 454. Deposed, 457. Murdered, ib.

Theodemir king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 118. Serves under Attila, 173. Defeats the Suevi, &c. 176. Invades Illyricum, 177. His death, ib.

Theodomir, where settled with his Goths, xvi. 253. Invades the eastern empire, 280. His death, ib.

—— king of the Franks, xix. 239. The same with Pharamond, ib. & 242.

Theodora married to Constantius, xv. 298, 334.

—— her magnanimity supports the frightened Justinian, xvi. 309. Inclined to Eutychianism, 319.

—— widow of Theophilus, takes the administration, xvi. 395. Severity to the Manichees, 396. Resigns, 397. Dies, ib.

—— Constantine's daughter raised to the imperial government, xvi. 447. Mounts the throne, 454. Her good but short reign, ib.

Theodore's

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Theodore's treachery to Ptolemy, x. 94.
Theodoret's treachery to the Goths, xix.
459, 471. Retires loaden with spoil, ib. &
472.

———censure on Porphyry, xv. 329,
n. Character of Julian, 551.

Theodoric succeeds Vallia in Spain, xvi.
200. Besieged by Littorius, 225. Takes him prisoner, ib. Peace with the Romans,
ib. Success against Attila, 247, & seq.
Bravery at the battle of Chalons, 248.
Death, ib. See also vol. xix. 84. Funeral, ib. 86.

———the murderer and successor of Thorismond, xvi. 252, & seq.

———embassy to Requiarius in Spain,
xvi. 263. Defeats him, ib. Returns to Toulouse, 267.

———defeated by Majoranus, xvi. 268.
Sues for peace, ib. Murdered by his brother, 273. See further under Theodoric
Ist. The son of Triarius, invades Zeno, xvi. 287. Enters Macedon, 288. Peace with Zeno, 289. Success against Leontius, ib. New treaty with Zeno, 290. Invades and subdues Italy, ib. Acknowledged king of it, 295. With a submission to the emperor, ib. Assists Mundon against him, 299. Favours the Arians, 304. See under Theodoric IId.

———Ist king of the Visigoths in Gaul,
xix. 118. Reduces Italy, ib. Peace with the Romans, 156. Repulsed before Narbonne, ib. Defeated by OEtius, ib.
Defeats Littorius, 157, & seq.

———IId peace with Rome, xix. 159.
His death, 160. See under Theodoric
IId.

———IId, his character, xix. 159. Alliance with Rome, ib. Success against the Suevi in Spain, 161. Ravages in Lusitania, 162. Conquests in Gaul, ib. &c.
Death, 164.

———III, sent hostage to Leo, xix. 175.
Returns richly loaden, 176.

———Success against the Sarmatians, xix.
176. Invades the empire, ib. Succeeds his father, 177. Carested and deserted by Zeno, ib. & seq.

———ravages Thrace, xix. 179. Defeated, 180. Goes to Constantinople, 181.
Retires, 182.

———marches into Italy, xix. 183.
Victories and conquests there, 185. Betrayed and shut up in Pavia, ib. Assisted by the Visigoths, 186. Reduces all Italy,
ib. & seq.

———treachery to Odoacer, xix. 187.
Subdues Sicily, 188.

Theodoric IId, confirms the Roman laws,
&c. xix. 189. His courts of judicature, ib.

———protects the Alamans, xix.
280. Letter to Clovis in their behalf,
ib. Outwits him, 288, & seq. Interposes between him and Alaric, 289. Second letter to Clovis, 290. To Gundebald, 291. To the Heruli, ib. & seq. Opposes the Franks, 295. Falls out with Sigifmond, 315. Outwits the Franks, 316.
His glorious reign, 426, & seq. Acknowledged by the emperor, 427. Vast territories, ib. Great moderation, 428. With regard to the Romans, 430. To religion, ib. & seq. Singular justice, 431. Temperance, 432. Generosity to his captive subjects, ib. & seq. War with Anastasius, 433. Peace, 434. Entry into Rome, ib. & seq. Munificence there, 435. War with the Burgundi, 436. With Clovis, ib. Chosen guardian to Amalaric, 437.
Restores him to his crown, ib. Cruelty to Boetius and Symmachus, 438. Great grief for it, 440. Death and offspring, 441.

———success against the Hunns, xix.
102.

———Basilicus's general's treaty with Theodoric, IId, xix. 178. Forces Zeno to shameful articles, 179.

Theodorician Laws, whence so called,
xix. 171.

† Theodoropolis, where, and why so called, xvi. 428.

Theodorus's noble speech against Dionysius, vii. 243.

———the betrayer of Antony's son to Octavian, xiii. 365.

———put to death for magic and treason,
xvi. 1.

———Manilius's consulship, xvi. 138.
Rise and character, ib. & seq.

———the reader, his history imperfect,
xvi. 240 n.

———joins in Longinus's revolt, xvi.
294. Taken and beheaded, 296.

———prefect of the east, put to death,
xvi. 332.

———the Cappadocian, conspires against Phocas, xvi. 334. Put to death, ib.

———the brother of Heraclius, his success against Sais, xvi. 339. Defeated by Haumar, 342.

———revolt and banishment, xvi. 454,
455.

———despot of Epirus, xvi. 508. Treachery to Peter, 509. Assumes the purple, 510. Defeated by John, ib. His eyes put out, ib. & seq. Restored by Azen, 512.

I N D E X to the

Theodorus Calliopa, chosen exarch, xix. 533.

Theodosiolus, put to death by Valens, xvi. 4. Not the same with Theodosius the great, 8.

† Theodosiopolis, where, xix. 317, n. Burnt by the Turks, ib. Defended by Eumenius against the Persians, xvi. 204. Taken by Cabades, 297. Retaken by Constantine IV. 366.

Theodositius, driven out of Spain, xvi. 366.

Theodosius left under the guardianship of Isdegerdes, xi. 107. War against the Persians, 111, & seq.

— sent into Britain, xv. 588. Success there, 589. In Mauritania, 600. Outwitted by Firmus, ib. & 601, & seq. Success against him, 602. Triumphs over him, 603. Unjustly put to death by Gratian, xvi. 9. Honours conferred on him after his death, ib. See also vol. xviii. 715.

— his son's bravery against the Sarmatians, xv. 600. Retires into Spain, xvi. 10. Sent for back by Gratian, 30. Success in Sarmatia, 31, & seq. Raised to the throne, 32. Signal modesty and valour, ib. Extract and rise, 33. Why called Theodosius, 34. Addressed to by several cities, 38. Success against the Goths, ib. & seq. In Thrace, 39. Sickness, baptism, and recovery, 40. Zeal for Orthodoxy, ib. Wholesome laws, 41. Victory over the Goths, 42. Honours to their king, 44. Summons an œcumenic council, 45. Success against the Goths, ib. Subdues and settles them, 47. Allies with the revolted Maximus, 58. Success against the Saracens, ib. Great sway over Valentinian II. 60. Severe laws against idolatry, 61. Against incestuous marriages, 63. Against heretics, ib. And Jews, ib. Supplies of corn to Rome, 66. Clemency to the conspirators, 67. Success against the Greuthongi, 68. Clemency to them, ib. Marries Galla, 69. A noble wish of his, 70. Insulted by the Antiochians, ib. Severity to the ungrateful city, 71. Yet mitigated by him, 72. Wholly forgives them, 77. Letter to them, ib. & seq. Succours Valentinian, 78. Success against Maximus, 79. Clemency to his adherents, 81. To the Arians, 82. Laws against Heretics, 84. Entry into Rome, ib. Proves the means of converting it, 85. Clemency to the Alexandrian pagans, 87. Demolishes idolatry there and in Egypt, ib. His silver statue reared, 90. Laws against apostates and heretics, ib. Dreadful havock of the barbarians, 91. In great danger from them, ib. Laws against extortion, 97. Against the Lycians, ib. March against Eugenius, 98. Fresh laws against heretics, &c. 99. Forces the Alps, 101. Defeats Eugenius, 102. Supposed by a miracle, ib. Clemency to the revolted, 103. To Eugenius's family, 104. Divides the empire between Arcadius and Honorius, 106. Death, obsequies, and character, ib. & 107. Massacre of the Thessalonians, 108. Repentance for it, ib.

Theodosius, his square and column finished at Constantinople, xvi. 100.

— Id. the son of Arcadius baptized, xvi. 152. Created emperor, 153. But eight years old when his father dies, 164. Peaceful state of his empire, 172. Piously brought up by his mother, 195. Removes to Eudoxiopolis, 199. Refuses to acknowledge Constantius, 201. Marries Eudocia, 202. Success against the Persians, 203. Peace with them, 205. Kind reception of Placidia, 206. Proclaimed emperor of the west, 211, 212. Sends Placidia thither, 214. Makes her son emperor, 216. Peace with the Vandals, 222. Destroys all the relicks of paganism, 223. His code published, 224. Jealousy of Eudocia, 227. Sends a fleet to Valentinian, 228. Shameful peace with the Hunns, 231. Slavery to Attila, 232. More shameful peace with him, 235. See also vol. xix. 60. Treachery to him, 69. To Constantius, 71. Receives the Goths into Thrace, 140. Blamed for it, ib. & seq. Death and character, xvi. 237.

— the son of Ataulphus born, xvi. 194. Dies in Spain, 195.

— of Mauritius, put to death by Phocas, xvi. 330.

— brother of Constantius II. put to death by him, xvi. 346.

— an obscure person proclaimed emperor, xvi. 357. Enters Constantinople, ib. Resigns to Leo, 358.

Theodota, married to Constantine Porphyry, xvi. 373. Brought to bed of a prince, 374.

Theodotus's surprising constancy on the rack, vii. 341. Becomes head of a faction, 345, & seq.

— 1st founder of the Bactrian kingdom, viii. 587, ix. 630. Invades Syria, viii. 596.

— Id. allies with Arsaces against Seleucus, viii. 596, & seq. Defeated by Eutydemus, viii. 2, 3, & ix. 630.

— Ptolemy's general goes over to Antiochus, viii. 612. Made governor under him, ib. Attempts on his life, 616.

Theodotus

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Theodotus the Egyptian rhetorician advises the murdering of Pompey, ix. 276. Presents his head to Cæsar, xiii. 77. His miserable end, 80, 252.

——— stript of his immense treasure by the Maccabees, x. 219.

——— defeats Æmilianus, xv. 242. Why not promoted, ib.

——— forgiven and caressed by Julian, xv. 536.

——— king of Italy's reign, &c. xix. 119.

Theodulus's writings and character, xvi. 291, n.

——— a cruel minister of Justinian, xvi. 351. Burnt alive, 352.

Theognes, the Arian, banished, xv. 401. Recalled, 405.

Theomestor, tyrant of Samos, vii. 538.

Theon's writings and character, xvi. 116, n.

Theophanes persuades Pompey to steer for Egypt, xiii. 73.

——— put to death, xvi. 332.

Theophania, married to Saturatius, xvi. 379. Retires from the world, 380.

Theophano, takes the Government upon her, xvi. 419. Intrigues with Nicephorus, 420. Married to him, ib. Treachery to him, 422. Banished, 423. Recalled, 429.

Theophilus of Edeffa, the supposed introducer of Syriac points, ii. 301.

——— made high-priest, x. 547.

Theophobus, his extract and successful stratagem against the Saracens, xvi. 391. Singular fidelity to Theophilus, 393. Death, 395.

Theophylact, the son of Romanus, designed for the church, xvi. 412. Dethrones him, 414. Falls out with his brother, ib. Banished, 415.

——— cut off by the Bulgarians, xix. 418.

Theophylas's writings and character, xv. 49, n.

——— governor of Syria, murdered by Gallus's treachery, xv. 462.

——— bishop of Alexandria exasperates the heathen, xvi. 86, 87, & seq.

——— one of the compilers of the Justinian Pandects, xvi. 318.

——— stratagem to find out the murderers of Leo, xvi. 389. Ingratitude to Manuel, 392. Great honours done to him, 393. Pardons the revolted Persians, ib. Grief for the loss of Amorium, 394. Death and character, 395. Burns his wife's ship, ib.

Theopompus, king of Lacedemon invades Messenia, vi. 406. Creates the Ephori, 411, & 412, n. Takes Ithome by strata-gem, 415. His character and death, ib. & seq.

——— the fabulist gratified by Cæsar, xiii. 74.

——— where born, &c. vii. 560, n. & seq. n.

Theoris, the name of the Delian ship, vii. 606.

Theotechnes, a magician, put to death, xv. 387.

† Thera, the island of, described, vii. 571, & seq.

† ——— city, the ruins of, vii. 575.

——— the son of Auctesion, the story of, vii. 571, & seq.

Theramenes, Athenian general, vi. 315.

Treachery to his colleague, 320, & seq.

One of the thirty tyrants, 323. Put to death, ib.

Therapeutes, their sect, life, &c. x. 365.

Prophetic spirit, 367. Austerity, ib. Whether Jews or Christians, 370.

Thereans, vii. 572, & seq.

Thermantia, the celebrated daughter of Honorius, xvi. 34.

† Thermæ, where situate, vi. 588.

Taken and burnt by Antigonus, ib. In Sicily, by whom founded, xvii. 58. Where sited, 242, n.

† Thermessa, the hot waters of, described, vii. 157.

† Thermeus bay, described, viii. 21.

† Thermodon, a river in Pontus, ix. 376.

——— the famed battle of, vi. 466, n. & seq.

Thermophoria, one of the feasts of Ceres, vii. 65, n.

Thermophorion, what, vii. 66.

† Thermopylæ, the streights of, described, v. 662. Guarded against the Goths, xv. 239.

——— the famed battle of, vi. 440, & seq. & n.

† Thermus, metropolis of Ætolia, described, vi. 76. Why called Panætolum, 77.

——— his stratagem against the Ligurians, xii. 304. Defeats them, 305.

Thermusa married to Phraates, xi. 54. Poisons him, ib.

Theron's monument struck down with lightning, xvii. 60.

Thersander, king of Thebes, killed before Troy, v. 671.

Thervingi, driven out by the Hunns, xvi. 12. Fall foul upon the Romans, 15.

The rest see under Visigoths, xix. 47, 142.

I N D E X to the

Theseus, where born, v. 648. First adventures, ib. & n. Sails with the unhappy victims to Crete, 650. Kills the Minotaur, ib. Forgets to hang out his victorious flag, 651. Succeeds his father, ib. Becomes a follower of Hercules, ib. Expedition against the Amazons, 652, 653, n. Steals Helen away, ib. & seq. Dangerous attempt upon Proserpine, ib. & seq. Undermined at Athens, 654. His death, 655. Cruelty to Hippolytus, 654 n. Supposed the founder of the Isthmian games, vi. 38, n.

—his famous pillar on the Isthmus, v. 652.

—temple at Athens, vi. 129. Made a sanctuary, 133.

—tomb discovered, and bones brought to Athens, vi. 225, n.

Thesmotelæ, at Athons, their office, vi. 98, 144.

† Thespia, a city in Bæotia, v. 662.

† Thesprotia, the cities of, ix. 528.

† Thessalians, who, and where seated, v. 604. vi. 18. Brave warriors and horsemen, ib. Their government, 19. Kings, 20, & seq. Drive out the Bæotians, 25. Hatred and wars against the Phocians, 26, & seq. Highly rewarded by Alexander, v. 216. Treachery to the Athenians, vi. 236, & seq. Punished by Myronides, 238. Over-reached by the Macedonians, viii. 73. Defeats Alaric, xvi. 153. The rest see under Thessaly.

† Thessaliotis, part of ancient Greece, v. 604. Part of ancient Thessaly, vi. 15.

† Thessalonica, by whom founded, viii. 12, & n. Taken by the Romans, 517. Besieged by the Goths, xv. 239. Taken by the Saracens, xvi. 405. Betrayed to the king of Sicily, 494. Taken by the Bulgarians, xix. 414.

Thessalonians, seven thousand massacred by Theodosius, xvi. 108.

Thessalus the son of Græcus, vi. 15.

—a name used by ancient poets for poisonous drugs, vi. 16.

† Thessaly, part of ancient Greece, v. 604. Whence so called, vi. 15. Its site, division, &c. ib. Famed for oxen and horses, &c. 17, 18. Subdued by Acilius, xii. 306. By Æmilius, 324. By the Macedonians, 346. Ravaged by the Goths, xix. 127.

Thessa's noble answer to Dionysius, vii. 244.

Thetes, the lowest rank of Athenians, vi. 115.

Theudas, a Jewish impostor beheaded, x. 563, 564, & n.

Theudelinda takes Agiluf for her husband, xix. 517. And converts him, 518.

Theudis, king of the Goths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Theudisalus, king of the Goths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Theutat, one of the names of Mercury, its etymon, v. 434, n. Worshipped in Gaul, xviii. 469, 470, & n. & seq. By the Saxons, xix. 11.

† Thia, a new island described, vii. 574.

† Thiasus river in Lacedemon, vi. 50.

Thief, the penitent, why absolved, x. 512, & n.

Thieves crucified with Christ, who, x. 510, & 511, n.

Thimbrio defeated and crucified, viii. 367.

† Thimnatha, where, x. 166. Fortified by Bacchides, ib.

† Thirmida, its true situation uncertain, xvii. 548.

This, an ancient city in Thebais, i. 488.

Thoas king of Corinth, vi. 43, n.

—king of Lemnos, vii. 618.

—prætor of Ætolia, opposes the Romans, vii. 25. Convenes the general assembly in favour of Antiochus, 26. Haughty Answer to the Roman consul, ib. & 28. Sent to surprize Chalcis. 28. Disappointed, 31. Goes over to Antiochus, 32. Famed speech to him, ix. 27.

—his speech against Hannibal, xvii. 505.

† —river in Ætolia. See Achelous, vii. 75.

Thola, the son of Phuah, sixth judge of Israel, iii. 510.

† Tholosan Temple and Treasury, by whom built, xviii. 466, 467, & n. Plundered by Cæpio, 553. Described, 455, n. Taken by the Visigoths, xix. 153.

† Tholus, where sited, xii. 281. Taken by Syphax, ib. & seq.

Thomas, Didymus, one of the twelve apostles, x. 444, n. His incredulity reprov'd, 523.

—usurper, his extract, treason, and conquests, xvi. 384. Repulsed before Constantinople, 385. Defeats and kills Gregory, 386. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ib. Imprisonment and death, ib.

Thor worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 11.

Thoranius sacrificed by the triumvirs, xiii. 221.

Thorismond's bravery at the battle of Chalons, xvi. 248. xix. 84. Narrow escape, 85. Proclaimed king of the Goths, 86, & xvi. 248. Returns to Gaul, 249. xix. 86,

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

86, & 158. Success against Attila, xvi. 252. Succeeds Theodoric in Gaul, xix. 118, 153. Wars with Rome, ib. Murdered, 159.

Thorismond, king of the Ostrogoths, his short reign and death, xix. 173.

Thomyris queen of Scythia's encounter with Cyrus, v. 67, 474. Bloody revenge on him, 474.

† Thouloufe. See Toulouse, xvi. 192.

† Thrace, the kingdom of, described, ix. 507. Its soil, customs and government, 511. Invaded by Philip, viii. 99, & n. Subdued by the Romans, 523. Made a Roman province, xiv. 441. Ravaged by the Goths, xv. 218, 239, & xvi. 16. Abandoned to them, 17. Destroyed by the Quadi, 30. Freed by Theodosius, 32. Ravaged by the Hunns, 216. Repeopled by the Barbarians, 253. Wasted by the Hunns, 283. By the Turks, 521, 523. By Attila, xix. 68.

† Thracians greatly skilled in musick, ix. 525. In eloquence, ib.

Thrasamond king of the Vandals in Africa, xix. 192.

† Thrasea Pætus. See Pætus, xiv. 259.

† Thrasians, where situate, viii. 23.

Thraso unjustly put to death, vii. 341.

Thrasylbulus victorious at sea, vi. 316. Endeavours to rescue Attica, 324. Recovers Pyreum, 325. Peace with Sparta, 326, & seq. Hopeful expedition into the Hellespont, 338. Slain at Aspendus, 339.

—tyrant of Miletum's stratagem to obtain peace, v. 583. Advice to Perianther, vii. 120.

—king of Syracuse, his cruel reign, vii. 182. Banishment, 183.

—foretells Alexander what death he should die, xv. 170.

Thrasyldeus, tyrant of Agrigentum, defeated by Hiero, vii. 180. Kills himself, ib.

—the murderer of the king of Cyprus, vii. 503.

—made king of Thessaly for his flattery, viii. 126, n.

Thrasyltras of Elis procures a peace with Sparta, vi. 465.

Thrasyllus unjustly put to death, vi. 320, & seq.

—a famed astrologer beloved by Tiberius, xiii. 440. Deceives him, xiv. 26, & n. His death and character, 37, n.

† Thrasymenus, the battle of, xii. 206, & seq.

† Thronium, metropolis of Locris Epichnem, vi. 83.

† Thronium, city and promontory of Cyprus, vii. 487.

† —in Abantis, built by the Eubæans, vii. 650.

Thucydides descended from the Sapean kings, ix. 524. Commands in Macedon, vi. 285. Saves the city of Jone, ib.

† Thule island discovered, xiv. 487. Where situate, xix. 341.

Thundering Legion, an account of, xv. 23, 24.

Thurians revolt from the Carthaginians, xvii. 428. Receive them afresh, 436. Plundered by Hannibal, 481.

† Thuringians, who, xix. 274, n. Oft confounded with the Tongrians, ib. Where seated, 276.

Thurimus, third king of Macedon, viii. 45.

† Thurium in Sybaris, whence so called, vi. 247, n. Taken by the Tarentines, xii. 85.

Thurneldis carried off by Arminius, xiii. 534. Her signal bravery, 536, 537. Deliverance, ib. & n.

Thuscus Arabian, his treason forgiven, xv. 144.

Thia, a feast of Bacchus described, vi. 67, 68, n.

† Thyatira, a city in Lydia, v. 572.

Thyestes, brother of Atreus, his incest, v. 630, 631, & n.

† Thymaterium, where situate, xviii. 7.

† Thymbria, where, and by whom founded, v. 537.

† Thyni. See Bithynians, ix. 517.

Thyras, the son of Japhet, settles in Thrace, ix. 507.

† Thyrræa island, where, vii. 526. Given to the Samian fugitives, ib.

† —city taken by the Athenians, vi. 283.

† Thydras, where situate, xv. 186. Gordianus proclaimed at, ib.

† Tiber river, boundary of Etruria, xi. 259. Whence so called, 283. Its spring-head, 264. Overflows, xii. 156. Drowns part of Rome, xiv. 22. Under Otho, 346. Fresh overflows, 598, 671. More dreadful, xv. 6. Lays Rome under water, 611. Reckoned ominous, ib.

† Tiberias, the sea of, described, iii. 124. Whence it had all its other names, ib. And that of Tiberias, x. 414, & n.

—city, by whom built, x. 414. Taken by the Romans, 583, & n.

Tiberinus king of Alba drowned, xi. 283.

Tiberius, Claud, Nero, ill success in Campania, xiii. 310, 311. Flight into Sicily,

I N D E X to the

- Sicily, 311. Return to Rome, 323. Cru- elty to the Astures, 375, 376.
- Tiberius Augustus, son-in-law made ques- tor, xiii. 380. Success against the Germans, 407. Succeeds Agrippa, 415. Marries the infamous Julia, ib. Reduces the Pan-nonians, 417, 418. Sent against the Germans, 423. Triumphs over them, 426, Sudden retreat to Rhodes, 427. Behaviour there, 429. Forbid to return, 430.
Divorces Julia, ib. Letters to Augustus,
435. Return to Rome, 439. Adoption,
444. Success against the Germans, 446.
Slow expedition against the Marcomani,
449. Jealousy of Germanicus, 451. Sur-prized by the Dalmatians, 458. Triumphs over them, 459. 464. Quinquennial tri-buneship renewed, 471. Recalled from Illyricum, 474. Assists at Augustus's last moments, ib. & seq. Declared his successor, 476. Why, ib. n. Murders young Agrippa, 484, & 493, n. Declared emperor, 493. His extract, &c. 497, n.
Where born, 500, n. Ingratitude to his mother, 499. Cruelty to Julia, 501, &
n. Letter to the revolted legions, 513.
Jealousy of Germanicus, 529. Signal modesty, 530. Reformation, 531. Jealousy of Agrippa, 545. Affected popularity, 546, & seq. Severely lampooned, 547, &
n. Outwits the Veterans, 551, 552.
Saluted emperor by Germanicus, 559.
Grows suspicious of him, 562. Treachery to Libo, 563. To Archelaus, 571.
Liberality to the twelve ruined cities, 575.
To that of Rome, 596. Edict against mourning for Germanicus, 600. Speech to the senate about Piso's trial, 601, 602.
Partiality to Plancina and hers, 604, & seq. & n. Fourth consulate, 608. Excuse for not going against the Germans, 612.
Law for reprieving criminals ten days, 614,
& n. Speech againg suppressing luxury,
616. Diffimulation to Livia, 617. Speech in favour of young Drusus, 627. On the greatness of his army, ib. n. Why nicknamed Callipedes, 628, n. Honoured with a temple, 632. Singular knowledge of mankind, 639. Answer about building temples to him, 643, & seq. To Sejanus's petition, 645, & seq. Suspicions against Agrippina, 649, & seq. Contest between eleven cities about building a temple to him, 650, & 651, n. Retires from Rome, 652. His motives, ib, n. & seq. n. His life saved by Sejanus, 655. Grows suspicious and cruel, ib. & seq. Retires to Caprea, 659. Letter on the execution of Sabinus, 663. Hatred to his mother,
667. Letters against Agrippina and Nero,
668. Cruel usage of them, 669. Informed of Sejanus's designs, 670. Letter to the senate against him, 674. Butchers all his friends, 677. Other cruelties, 680.
Dreadful condition, xiv. 5, 6, & n. Murders all his old friends, 8. Sham approach towards Rome, 10. Seizes on Marius's estate, 12. His baseness and cruelty, 13,
14. Generosity to the Roman sufferers,
21. Publick buildings, 23, n. Taken ill out of Caprea, 24, & n. Deceived by an astrologer, 26, & n. Whether, and how he settled the succession, 28. Foretells Gemellus and Caligula's deaths, 31. Stifled by Macro, ib. & seq. Burial, 33. Character, ib. & seq. & n. Anniversary instituted, 82. The twelfth year of his reign, how computed, x. 413. Embassy and defeat of Cosrhoes, xi. 148, 149. An error about him corrected, xviii. 450,
451, n.
- Tiberius, Gemellus Nero, whether named to succeed his grandfather, xiv. 27, 28, & seq. Adopted by Caligula, 49. His dismal end, ib.
- the son of Brutus cabals against him,
xi. 385. His death, 386.
- an obscure usurer of the empire,
xv. 412.
- Justin's prime minister governs during his madness, xvi. 332. Created Cæsar, ib.
Chosen emperor, 323. Creates Anastasia empress, ib. Generosity to Hormisdas, 324. Death, ib. & seq. Character, ib.
- brother of Constantine III, dis- figur'd by him, xvi. 348.
- Apfimar deposes and confines Justi- nian, xvi. 352. Driven out by him. 354.
Put to death, ib.
- the son of Justinian II, murdered in a sanctuary, xvi. 355, 356.
- an impostor proclaimed emperor,
xix. 567.
- Tibites sent to raise disturbances in Bi- thynia, vii. 430. Dies in his journey, ibid.
- king of Bithynia deposed by his brother, ix. 595.
- Tibni elected king of Israel, iv. 90.
Builds Samaria, ib. A wicked person ib.
& seq.
- † Tibur, put to the sword by Attila,
xix. 484.
- † Ticinum, Pavia, fortified by Scipio,
xvii. 539.
- the battle of, ib. & seq.
- Tidius Sextus goes over to Pompey, xii.
52.
- Tigillinus's sumptuous banquet for Ne- ro, xiv. 225. Judges the conspirators, 241, 246.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

246. His reward, 250. & seq. Treachery to Nero, 289. And escape by dint of bribery, 311. His death, 341, & seq.

Tigellus promoted by Nero, xiv. 216. Leud character, ib. Bloody advice to him, 218.

Tigillum fororium, the yoke under which criminals were made to pass, xi. 329.

Tiglath-Pileser, king of Assyria, who, iv. 264, 265, & n. Carries the Jews into captivity, 266. And the whole tribe of Naphthali into Assyria, 137.

Tigranes I. king of Armenia, ix. 330. Invades Cappadocia, ib. & seq. Chosen king of Assyria, ib. & 158. Driven out by Pompey, 163, 330. His conquests, 331. Alliance with Mithridates, 329, 332. Cold reception of him, ib. & seq. vid. & 428 & n. New conquests, 332, 333. Excessive pride, 333. Answer to Lucullus, 334. Invaded by him, 335. Defeated by Sextilius, 336. By Lucullus, 337. Jointly with Mithridates, 341. Defeats his rebellious son, 344. Submits to Pompey, 345. Strong attachment to the Romans, 346. Death, ib. See also vol. x. 225. xi. 63.

— his son, rebels against him, ix. 344. Leads Pompey into Armenia, 345. Sent in chains to Rome, 346.

— IIId, crowned by Tiberius, ix. 349. Put to death, ib. & xiii. 394, 437.

— IIIId, defeated by Caius, ix. 350.

— promoted by Nero, xiv. 205. His extract, ib. n.

— yields his share of Armenia to Theodosius, xvi. 230.

† Tigrano-certa, by whom built, ix. 316, 331. Besieged by Lucullus, 336. Betrayed to him, 340 & n. Taken by the Parthians, xi. 62.

† Tigre, the mountains of, where, &c. xviii. 96.

† Tigris river described, i. 188. & seq. iv. 197. Why so called, ib. n.

— in Armenia, described, ix. 319.

— Trajan's bridge over, xiv. 581.

† Tiguri, who, xii. 459. Defeat the Romans, ib.

Timæus Locrus's account of the origin of things, i. 130.

— Siculus's writings and character, xvii. 45 n.

Timarchus, king of Atropatene, ix. 627.

— a tool of Antiochus put to death for oppression, ix. 106.

Timasius sent against Maximus, xvi. 79. Commands the Romans against Eugenius, 101. Betrayed by Eutropius, 128. Dreadful banishment, 129.

Timea, the wife of Agis debauch'd by Alcibiades, vi. 465, 466.

Timius, the accuser of Propidius, xiv. 88.

Timo, priestess of Ceres, her advice to Miltiades, vii. 591. Cleared by the oracle, 592.

Timolaus reigns jointly with his father Odenatus, xv. 246. &c. 257. His death, 261.

Timoleon's aversion to tyranny, vii. 286. & seq. Kills his brother, ib. & 287. Sent general into Sicily, 287. Takes Syracuse, 292. & seq. Repeoples it, 293. Establishes democracy in it, 294. Defeats the Carthaginians, 295. Peace with them, 296. Clears that island of its tyrants, ib. xvii. 121. & seq. Success against Icetas, 124. Outwits the Carthaginians, 125. & seq. Defeats them, 125. Takes Meflana, 131. His merry cry after the Carthaginians, 132. Storms Icetas, 133. Deposes the Sicilian tyrants, ibid. Quells the mutinous mercenaries, 136. Defeats the Carthaginians, 137, 138. Gets an immense plunder, 142. Fresh defeat of Icetas, 144. Puts him and his family to death, ib. Defeats Mamercus, 145. Peace with Carthage, 146. Death and funeral honours, vii. 296.

Timotheus's epitome of the Orphic cosmogony, i. 105. Testimony of Orpheus, 106.

— Athenian general, his character, vi. 343. Defeats the Lacedemonians, 344. & seq. Success in Macedonia, 347. Disgrace and death, 349.

— tyrant of Heraclea, ix. 586.

— governor of the Ammonites, defeated by Judas Maccabeus, ix. 96 & x. 131. Afresh and killed, 139.

— invades Gilead, and defeated, x. 140. A second time, 145, & seq. Taken prisoner, 147.

— the Eutychian raises new troubles in the empire, xvi. 300.

Tin, fetched from Britain by the Phœnicians, xviii. 648. & seq. Discovered by the Greeks, 655.

† Tina, the true Pelusium, i. 466.

† Tinda, the metropolis of the Bistones, ix. 516.

† Tingis, Tangier, metropolis of Maurit. Tingitania, xiv. 115 & n. xviii. 1. When and by whom built, 5. A gigantic corps dug up at, ib. Its other names, ib. Taken by Sertorius, xii. 595.

† Tingi-

† Tingitania, see Mauritania, xviii. 1, 2. When made a Roman province, 38, 39.

† Tingitanum, taken by Theodosius, xv. 602.

† Tipasa, where situate, xvii. 554.

† Tiras and his descendants, where settled, i. 473.

Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, probably the same with the Sabbaco of Herodotus, iv. 274 n. & xviii. 152.

Tiribafus the Persian general, invades Cyprus, v. 185. Recalled and disgraced, 187. Saves Artaxerxes and his army, 188, &c. Restored, 189. Put to death for treason, 194. See vol. vii. 501, & seq.

Tiridates, opposed by Corbulo, ix. 358. Driven out of Armenia, 360. Sues to Rome for the crown, 363. Interview with Corbulo, 364. Crowned by Nero, 365. xiii. 386. & seq. Rank flattery to him, xiv. 263. Narrowly escapes the Alani, 440. His successors, ix. 366. See also vol. xi. 64. & seq.

— set upon the Parthian throne, xi. 52. Wars with Phraates, 53, & seq.

— the son of Phraates set up by Tiberius, xi. 56, 57. Outed by Artabanus, 58, & seq.

— kills the king of Armenia, xv. 7. Taken prisoner, ib.

— restored to the Armenian crown, xv. 143.

Tirshata, its office, x. 8 n.

† Tifata, where situate, xvii. 416. Hannibal's camp at, ib. & seq.

† Tifidium, where situate, xvii. 590 n. Tisamenes, king of Lacedemon, outed by the Heraclidæ, vi. 62.

Tisamenus king of Mycenia, v. 633. Killed in Achaia, ib. & vi. 87.

Tisri, the sept of the Jews, iii. 194. The first month of the civil year, 199, 206 & n.

Tissaphernes's expedition into Greece, v. 175. Influenced by Alcibiades, vi. 306. Cowardice, v. 176. Treachery to Agesilaus, 177. Put to death, 178 & vi. 486.

Tit, the Celtic name for the earth, v. 422 & n.

Titan, brother of Saturn, disputes the crown with him, v. 425. And with Jupiter, 428, & seq.

Titanic war, an account of, v. 428. & seq.

Titanides, Artemides, the seven daughters of Astarte, i. 395.

† Titans, ancient Gomerians, v. 392.

War against Jupiter, 428, & seq. Defeated in Spain, 429. In Crete, described, vii. 465, & seq.

Titea, the jealous wife of Uranus, v. 424.

Tithes, the chief income of the Levites, iii. 239. Which to be redeemed, ib. The manner of decimating the cattle, 199.

Tithraustes embroils the Grecian states, vi. 487, 488.

Titianus Salvus, left to govern in Rome, xiv. 349. Sent to succeed Paulinus, 353. Rash advice to Otho, 354. Defeat, 358. Surrenders, 359. Pardoned by Vitellius, 368.

— insulting message to Constantius, xv. 448. Breaks his heart at his kindness to him, 457.

Titianus, Caius, betrays the revolted slaves, xii. 484.

— Cassius's friend, the unfortunate cause of his death, xiii. 266. Kills himself, 267.

Titius Sextus banished, xii. 508.

— Marc, defeats Pompey, xiii. 343, & 344. Murders him, ib. Made consul, 354.

Titles, unknown among the ancient Jews, iii. 391.

Titonus, the son of Laomedon, v. 545. His bravery, ib. & seq.

Titus Tatius, king of the Sabines, wars with Romulus, xi. 303, & seq. Peace with him, 305. Dies, 309.

— the son of Brutus cabals for Tarquin, xi. 385. Put to death, 386.

— the son of Vespasian joins his father in Judea, x. 580. Puts off his journey to Rome, 593. Left commander in Judea, 594. Gratitude to Josephus, ib. n. Marches against Jerusalem, 596. & seq. Order of his army, ib. n. Besieges the city, 598, &c. Offers of peace rejected, 599. Swears the destruction of it, 604. Endeavours to save the temple, 611. Enters the sanctuary, ib. Carries off the sacred utensils, ib. & seq. Mercy to many Jews, 612, n. & seq. Enters the city, 613. His triumph and trophies, 618 & n. Cuts off the relics of the house of Judah, 621. His fondness for Berenice, ib. Sent to congratulate Galba, xiv. 302, 378. Is promised the empire at Paphos, ib. A further account of his Jewish war, 416. And triumph, 439. Saluted emperor ib. & seq. Private life recapitulated, 454. Pathetic apology for his worthless brother, 455. Private character abhorred by the people, 456. Public one as much admired,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

red, ibid. Discards his dear Berenice, ib.
 Profuse generosity and clemency, 461. Success in Britain, xviii. 703. Triumphs over it, xiv. 460. Munificence to the Campanians, 461. To the city of Rome, 462.
 His death and excellent character, 465,
 466.

Titus's stately amphitheatre dedicated, xiv.
 462. Other famous buildings, &c. ib.

— triumphal arch still extant, xiv.
 439.

† Tivoli, Adrian's palace at, xiv. 643.
 Tlepomenus settles in Rhodes, vii. 403.
 Made king of it, 406.

— Alexander's general's lot after that monarch's death, viii. 372.

— prime minister of Philopater, ix.
 221. Falsely accused, 222. Cleared, ib.

† Tob, the land of, where, x. 140.
 The Jews of, massacred, ib. Country invaded by the Maccabees, 146.

Tobiah, endeavours to obstruct the rebuilding of the Jewish temple, ii. 129.
 Prophanes it, x. 54.

† Tocolosida, where situate, xviii. 10.
 † Tocas, where situate, xvii. 191 n.

Taken by the Sicilians, ib.
 Todasius, chosen king of the Heruli,
 xix. 344.

Tænion, tyrant of Syracuse, vii. 315.

† Togarmah, the last son of Gomer, where settled, i. 468. Peoples Cappa-docia, ix. 459.

† Togata Gallia, whence so called, xviii. 395. Described, ib. &c.

Togodunus, defeated by the Romans, xviii. 700. Killed, 701.

Toi, Thoenus, king of Hamath in Syria,
 ii. 326 & n. Delivered by David from Hadadezer, ib.

† Toletum, Toledo in Spain, where sited, xviii. 348. & seq.

Tolmides, the Athenian's expedition into Laconia, vi. 238. Defeated and killed in Bœotia, 244.

† Tolosa, Toulouse, metropolis of the Visigoths, taken and plundered by the Romans, xii. 475. By Ataulphus, xvi.
 192.

† — its temple and treasure, see sub Tholousan.

Tolumnius, kills the Roman Ambassadors, xi. 550. Slain by Cornel. Cossus, ib.

† Tomos, metropolis of Lower Mœsia, xiii. 465 n.

† Tongres, where sited, xix. 77. Taken by Attila, ib.

† Tongrians, who, xix. 276, 277. Subdued by Clovis, ib.

Tongues, the confusion of, at Babel,
 Vol. xx.

whether a punishment, i. 412. How effected, 439. Whether a new language was formed from them, ib. & seq.

† Topiris, a city of Thrace, ix. 507.

Torch-bearers at Athens, their office,
 &c. vi. 186 n.

Torfin's signal fidelity to Ildisgus, xviii.
 539, n.

† Torone, a city in Macedon, viii. 13.
 Taken by the Athenians, vi. 347.

† — the bay of, viii. 21. Taken by Brasidas, 65.

Torpedos, their strange effects, xviii.
 104 n.

Torquatus, Tit. Man. an instance of his great justice, viii. 547. The rest see under Manlius, xi. 625, & seq.

— sent against Antony, xiii. 191.

— Silanus condemned to death by Nero, xiv. 224.

† Toryne, where sited, xiii. 355. Surprised by Octavian, ib. Cleopatra's pun upon it, ib. n.

Tosorthrus, king of Memphis, the Egyptian Æsculapius, i. 602 & n. Other of his discoveries, ib. n.

Totila, chosen king of Italy, xix. 119, 479. Defeats the Romans, 481. His other conquests, 482. Letter to the senate despised, 484. Pursues his victories, ib. & seq. Enters Rome, 487. Stern speech to the senate, 488. Carries them prisoners, 489. Second attempt upon Rome abortive, 490. Takes it afresh, 494. Repairs it and the senate, 495. Conquests in Sicily, 496. Reduces it, 497. Plun-ders Greece, 498. Offers to the emperor rejected, 499. Subdues Sardinia, ib. And Corsica, ib. Marches against the Romans,
 500. Defeated and killed, 501, 502.
 His character, ib. & seq.

Touran-dock, princess of Persia, causes the usurper to be assassinated, xi. 242, 243. Mounts the throne, 243. Her reign and character, 244, & seq.

† Tournay taken by Clodio, xix. 263.

† Tournefort's account of Mount Ararat, i. 328 & n.

Tours, Gregor. de, his history defective,
 xix. 288.

Tower of Babel; see Babel.

Towers for sieges, by whom invented,
 xii. 3.

† Toxandria, where situate, xv. 487,
 488.

Toxatæ at Athens, their office, vi. 143.

Trachalus's consulship, xiv. 274.

Trachondimotus follows Antony, xiii.
 353. Defeated and killed, 356.

† Trachonitis, where situate, x. 338 n.
 N n Given

I N D E X, to the

Given to Herod, 304 n. Infested with Banditti, 319, 338. Destroyed by Zamaris, 339. Bequeathed to Philip, 339. Trading forbid to men of quality, xvi. 170.

Tragedy, by whom invented, vi. 150.

Tragicus lets Hannibal into Tarentum, xvii. 430.

Trajan sent against Japhia, x. 582. Success against Cosrhoes, xi. 66. Subdues Parthia, ib. & seq. Adopted by Nerva, xiv. 553. Created Cæsar, ib. His extract and character, 555, 556. Failings, 558. Why called Parietarius, 559. Saluted emperor, ib. Entry and reception at Rome, 561. Signal generosity there, ib. & seq. Modesty, 563. Impartiality, 564. First war with the Dacians, 566. Triumph, 568. Finishes the port of Centum Cellæ, 570. War against Decebalus, ib. & seq. Bridge over the Danube, 571. Subdues Dacia, 573. Cities built by him there, 574. Triumph and conquests, 575. Conspired against, 576. Expedition into Parthia, 577. Entry into Antioch, ib. Presents brought to him, 578. New conquests, 580. Whether he returned to Rome, 582. Why surnamed Parthicus, ib. Vast and swift conquests, ib. & seq. Hurt by an earthquake, 587. Sails to the Persian gulph, 588. Expedition against Hagaræus, 593. Narrow escape before Atræ, ib. Falls ill and embarks for Italy, 594. His death, obsequies, &c. ib. & seq. State-ly works, 597, & seq. Misfortunes following his death, 598. His character, ib. & seq. Fruitless attempt against Arabia, xviii. 300, 301.

—— square and column, xiv. 597.

—— triumphal arch, xiv. 590.

† —— the castle of, repaired by Julian, xv. 484.

† —— canal of, cleansed by Julian, xv. 546.

—— cotemporary authors, xiv. 600 n.

—— the son of Decius, xv. 217. His death, 221.

—— general of Valens, defeats the Persians, xv. 629. Murders the king of Armenia, xvi. 6. Sent against the Goths in Thrace, 16. Defeated by them, ib. Degraded, 18. Noble speech to Valens, ib. Death, 21.

† Trajanopolis Selinus, whence so called, xiv. 594.

† Tralles, where situate, viii. 168. Razed by Alexander, ib. & seq.

† Transylvania, part of ancient Dacia, xix. 367.

† Trapeza made the metropolis of Arcadia, vi. 12.

† Trapefond, the empire of, when, and by whom founded, xvi. 506. xix. 311 & n. & seq. The emperors of, 313, & seq. Subdued by the Turks, 322, & seq.

† Trapezontines, their religion, customs, &c. 313, & seq.

† Trapezus, a city in Pontus, ix. 375. The residence of the Comeni, ib. Taken by the Scythians, xv. 228. Made metropolis of the empire, xviii. 311. Described, ib. n. See below Trebisond.

Traustila, the assassin of Valentinian, xvi. 256.

Treacle, by whom invented, xiii. 382. Made by Demetrius for M. Aurelius, xv. 3.

Treason, High; vid. sub Majesty, xiii. 547, & seq. How punished in men of quality, xvi. 41. Laws against it mitigated, 99.

Treasury, Roman, their decrees preserved in, xiii. 614 n.

Treaties, how ratified at Rome, xi. 326 n.

† Treballi, who, and where, viii. 114. Defeated by Philip, ib. &c. Make peace with Alexander, 146, & seq.

Trebatius defeated by Cosconius, xii. 525.

Trebellis's kindness to Justinian, xvi. 354. Rewarded, ib. Success against him, 355.

Trebellius Annianus's revolt and death, xv. 244.

† Trebia river, the boundary of Liguria, xi. 258.

† —— the battle of, xvii. 363.

† Trebisond, the temple of Mercury at, by whom built, xiv. 632. The port of, begun, 633.

Trebonian Law, when first introduced, xi. 543 & xiii. 23.

Trebonianus, a compiler of the Justinian Code. &c. xvi. 318.

Trebonius rewarded by Marius, xii. 486. Besieges Marseilles, xiii. 47.

—— Caius, one of Cæsar's conspirators, xiii. 135. Amuses Antony, 143 & n. His cruel death, 182 & n. Character, 183.

—— one of Cæsar's murderers, xiii. 136. & seq. Reception of Brutus, 209.

Tree of knowledge in paradise, why so called, i. 204. The heathen retained some notions of it, ib. & seq.

† Tremitus, a city in Cyprus, described, vii. 486.

† Treves, revolts against Galba, xiv. 334. Rebuilt by Constantine, xv. 357. Stands up for Constantius, 452. Burnt by the

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

the Franks, xvi. 191, & xix. 257. By Attila, xix. 77.

† Treviri, cause a revolt in Gaul, xiii. 29. Subdued, 33. Who, and where sited, xviii. 576, & n. Subdued by Cæsar, 562. New wars against the Romans, 642.

Triarii amongst the Romans, whence so called, xi. 655. n.

Triarius, success against Mithridates, ix. 420, 425. Takes Heraclea, 426. Defeats and defeated, 431, 432. Counsel to Pompey censured by Cæsar, xiii. 64, n.

—slain at Argentaria, xvi. 27.

† Triballi, who, and where sited, xii. 440, n. Defeated by the Romans, 441.

Tribelin assists Anastasius, xix. 397.

Tribes, at Rome, increased to twenty-five, xi. 592. Two more added, xii. 4. Increased to thirty-one, 29. The last augmentation, 157. All but one disfranchised, 180.

Tribigil revolts against Arcadius, xvi. 140. In great distress, 141. Succoured by Gainas, ib. Plundering march against Constantinople, 145. Death, 147. See also, xix. 148.

Tribocci, who, and where sited, xviii. 576, 577.

Tribunals, how reared among the Romans, xiii. 507, & n.

Tribune, whence that word, xi. 357.

Tribunes, when first created, xi. 434. Their office, &c, ib. Contest with the senate, 435, 437. Against Coriolanus, 439, & seq. Increased to ten, 509. Suppressed by the decemvirs, 524, & seq. Restored, 538. Strengthened by new laws, 540. Ambitious views, 543, 544, 552. Cabals against the Patricians, 611, & seq. Obtains seats in the senate, xii. 394. Sulla's laws against them, 578. Humbled by Curio, 601. Regain their power, 606.

—in Britain, their office and stations, xviii. 679, 680.

—military chosen by the army, xi. 538. Invested with consular power, 545. Lay it down, 546. Resume it, 548, & seq. Defeated by the Æqui, 559. Their office suspended, 574, & seq. Chosen from among the plebeians, 607.

—legionary, their office, xii. 37, n.

Tribute, whence that word, xi. 357. How levied, ib. & seq.

† Triers, capital of the Treviri, xviii. 576. By whom built, 594.

† Trinacrea, Sicily, why so called, vii. 138. Destroyed by the Syracusans, 165.

† Trinassus, a sea-port in Lacedemon, vi. 48.

† Trinobantes, who, and where seated, xviii. 662. Subdued by Cæsar, ib. & seq.

Trio, Fulcin. put to death, xiv. 20. His satyr against Tiberius, ib.

† Triocala, where, xii. 485. Made the capital of the revolted slaves, ib.

Triopas, king of Argos, v. 623.

† Triphalians, who, vi. 582. & n. Invaded by the Achæans, ib.

Tripod, an immense one presented by Gelon, xvii. 37.

† Tripolis, where, and whence so called, ii. 334. Described, ib. & ix. 100, n, xv. 580.

† —another in Pontus, ix. 375.

† Tripolitana Libya, where, xv. 580. Harassed by the Asturians, ib.

Tripudium, a kind of augury among the Romans, xi. 298. n.

† Triquetra, Sicily, why so called, vii. 138.

† Trifanto, ancient Southampton, xviii. 659.

† Trifidis, where situate, xviii. 10.

Trismegistus, Hermes, secretary to Cronus, i. 393.

Triton worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 631.

† —river described, xvi. 584.

† Tritum, a promontory in Numidia, xvii. 550.

† Triventum, taken by the Romans, xii. 65. Where, ib.

Triumph of Tarquin described, xi. 345.

Triumphs forbid by Augustus, xiii. 416, 418.

Triumvirate, how, and by whom first hatched, xii. 648. The second, xiii. 222, & seq. Their first edict, ib. Butcheries, 223, & seq. Extortions and cruelties, 235, 237. Their army in sad distress, 260. In a worse case after the battle of Philippi, 271. Defeated at sea, ib. & seq. Victory over the Republicans, 277. Cruelty to them, 291.

Triumviri monetales, their office, xiii. 494, n.

Triumvirs, first chosen at Rome, xi. 486. A new set chosen for the Sempronian law, xii. 381.

—capitales, their office, xii. 78.

† Troas, where situate, v. 492.

—called Phrygia minor, v. 519, 520.

Its rivers, cities, &c. ib. & seq.

—Alexandria described, v. 525.

—taken by the Mitylenians, vii.

554.

Trochilus, a bird of the ancients, the Sack of Egypt, i. 501. The only creature with which the crocodile is at friendship, ib.

I N D E X to the

† Trocni, Trogni, Trocmeni, who, and where situate, i. 486. Described, ix. 459.

Trocondus sent against Zeno, xvi. 286. Revolts, ib. Beheaded, 289.

† Trœsen, in Argos, the seat of Pitheus, v. 619.

† Trogilorum portus, described, vii. 370, & n.

† Trogilus, a port in Sicily, vii. 146.

† Troglodytes, why called in scripture Ziyim, i. 465. Where situate, ib. & xviii. 92. Their country barren, 93. Way of living, 131, n. Inhuman customs, ib.

Trogus Pomp, an account of his works, xiv. 672, n.

† Trojan kingdom, its extent, v. 550. Origin, &c. 529. Blended with other nations, 530. Government, religion, &c. ib. & seq. Kings, 535.

—war, the cause of, 549. Fatal end of 557.

—horse, how explained, ib.

† Trojans, who, xi. 278. Settle in Latium, ib. Deify Æneas, 280. Follow Remus and Romulus, 287.

† Troies, Troyes in Gaul, forsaken, xix. 88. Burnt by the Goths, 123. Repopled by the Franks.

† Trophæus, Jupiter, his temple built by the Dores, vi. 85.

Trophies, mistaken for idols by the zealous Jews, x. 300.

† Trophonian cave in Bœotia, described, v. 662, & n.

Tros, king of Troas, the founder of Troy, v. 540. Unsuccessful war with Tantalus, ib. & seq. Numerous progeny, 541.

Trossulum, where, xii. 70. Taken by the Romans, ib.

Troy built and described, v. 523. Different fates, ib. & 540, & seq. Its walls, how, and by whom built, 547, & 548, n. Taken and burnt, 557. By whom rebuilt, 559, 560. Its poor condition at the coming of Scipio, ix. 41, & n. Taken by Fimbria, 405. And burnt, ib. & seq.

Trumpets, the feast of, among the Jews, iii. 199. Why instituted, ib. How kept, 201.

Tryphæna married to Gryphus, ix. 150. Cruelty to her sister, 153. Punished, ib.

Tryphon's character, ix. 127. Sets up the son of Balas, 128, & n. Treachery to Jonathan, 132. To Simon, 133. (x. 180, & 187.) To Antiochus, ix. 134. Seizes the crown, ib. Rejected by the Romans, ib. Forsaken by his forces, 136. Flight, 138. Death, 139. Coin, 170, n.

† Tubal, where settled, i. 473. Whether he peopled Spain, v. 389, n. 439. Said to have been the first inhabitant of I-peria, ix. 608. Coming into Spain confuted, xviii. 371, & n.

—Cain, the Vulcan of the Gentiles, 234, n. & 277, † Tubantes, who, and where situate, xiii. 529, n. Defeated by Germanicus, ibid.

Tubero Sejus's success against the Germans, xiii. 560. Accused of Treason, 637.

† Tubieni, Jews whence so called, x. 146.

Tubulus, C. Host. saves the Salentines, xvii. 458. Sent to reinforce Fulvius, 459.

† Tubusuptius, where situate, xvii. 557.

—the battle of, xv. 601.

Tufa's double treachery, xix. 185.

† Tugurt, metropolis of Wad-Reag, xviii. 52.

Tuisco worshipped by the Saxons, xix. 11, 12.

Tulga king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Tulis king of Egypt, in whose reign Abraham came thither, ii. 89.

Tullia, Servius's two daughters married to Tarquin's grandsons, xi. 358. Their different characters, &c. ib. & seq. The younger plots against her father, 363. Cruelty to him, 365.

Tullius, M. Cicero's son's friendship to Brutus, xiii. 204. Defeats Caius, 208. Returns to Rome, 323.

Tullus, Hostil. succeeds Numa Pompilius, xi. 321. Generosity to the Romans, 322. Wars with the Albians, ib. & seq. Subdues the Fidenates, &c. 331. & seq. The Sabines, 332, & seq. His death and character, ib. & 333, & n.

—Servius made commander under Tarquin, xi. 350. Allies with, 351. Mounts the throne, 352, 353. His extract and character, 353. Liberality, 355. Chosen king of the Curia, 356. His laws, 357. Alliance with Tarquin's sons, 358. Wise regulations, ib. & seq. Curtails the regal power, 362, & seq. Undermined by his family, 363. Murdered, 366. His character, ib. & seq.

—Attius. See under Attius, xi. 446, & seq.

† Tunes,

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

† Tunes, Tunis, the city of, described, xvi. 574. By whom founded, ib. Taken by the revolted Africans, xvii. 108. Taken and razed by Agathocles, vii. 306. xvii. 164. Besieged by the Carthaginians, 173. Relieved, ib. Taken by the Romans, xii. 124, 256. Invaded by the mercenaries, 286. Taken by Scipio, xii. 283. Abandoned by him, xvii. 485.

† Tungarians, who, xiv. 420. Revolt from the Romans, ib.

† Tungri, Tongri, who, and where seated, xviii. 576.

Tunica Palmata among the Romans, what, xi. 344. n.

Turbo's success against the Jews, xiv. 591. Sent governor of Pannonia, 617.

† Turdetani, where sited, xii. 242. Severely treated by the Romans, ib. & xvii. 425. Go over to Scipio, 468. Settled in Lusitania, xviii. 396.

† Turduli, whether the same with the Turdetani, xviii. 326, 333, & n.

Turdulus Gallus's writings and character, xv. 286, n.

Turf, tribunals made of, xiii. 507, & n.

† Turin, where sited, xv. 371. Opens her gates to Constantine, ib.

Turinus, Vetr, put to a new kind of death for extortion, xv. 162, 163.

Turk, the son of Japhet, an account of, from oriental writers, v. 255. 256.

† Turks, whence so called, v. 256. War with Persia, ib. & seq. Subdued by them, 288, & xi. 205. Their first appearance, xvi. 449. Conquests, 458. Defeated by Diogenes, 461. New inroads, 470. Success in Asia, 472. Defeated by the Crusaders, 481. By Alexius, 484. By John, 486. Peace with Manuel, ib. & 490. Totally defeated by him, 491. Driven out by the Tartars, 510, 513. Success on the Mediterranean, 520. First invited into Europe, 521. Betrayed by the Greeks, 522. Revenge on them, ib. Victory over Paleologus, ib. Defeated by Philés, 524. Shut up by sea and land, ib. & seq. Totally cut off, ib. New invasion, 527. Success against Andronicus, 532.

Turma, among the Romans, how composed, xiii. 527. n.

Turnus, the satyr, his writings and character, xiv. 532, n.

—goes over to the Rutuli, xi. 278. Killed, ib.

† Turoni, who, and where, xiii. 611. Defeated by the Romans, ib.

Turpentine-tree, why abhorred by the Jews, xiv. 628.

Turpilianus, Petron. his quiet government in Britain, xiv. 213. Honoured by Nero, 250. Put to death by Galba, 307.

Turpilio sacrificed to the mutinous soldiers, xvi. 175.

Turpilius betrayed by the Vaccæ, xii. 454. Unjustly put to death, 455.

† Turvel, the supposed capital of the Turdenati, xviii. 335, 336, & n.

† Tusca river, one of the boundaries of Africa Propria, xvi. 72. Whether the modern Zaine, xvii. 541, 551.

† Tuscans, their account of the creation of the world, i. 138. The rest see under the Heturians, xi. 259.

Tuscany. See Heturia, xi. 259, & n.

† Tusculans, who, and where, xi. 605. Join with the Volsci, ib. & seq. Forgiven by Camillus, ib. Wasted by the Latins, 610. Relieved by Quinctius, ib.

Tuscus, king of the Heturians, xi. 276.

Tuta succeeds her husband in Illyria, viii. 477.

Tutia, a vestal, condemned to death, xii. 165.

Tutor, Julius, heads the revolted Gauls, xiv. 423. Success against the Romans, 424. Defeated by Felix, 426. By Cerealis, 428.

† Twont, an Algerine frontier, xvii. 542.

† Tyana, where situate, xv. 258. Made the metropolis of Cappadocia secunda, 626. Betrayed by Heraclion, 258.

† Tyannæans, who, and where, xiv. 543. Worship their Apollonius, ib. Spared by Aurelian on his account, ib.

† Tyburtes, who, and where, xi. 629. Join with the Gauls, ib. & c. Defeated by P. Libo, 631. Subdued, 635.

† Tyche, one of the four poets of Syracuse, vii. 144. Taken by the Romans, 372.

Tycheus assists Hannibal, xvii. 490. At the battle of Zama, 492.

Tydæus's success at Argos, v. 633, 634. Bravery against the Thebans, 635. Wounded by Menalippus, vi. 79. Eats his brains in revenge, ib.

Tyndareus, the father of Helen's oath to her suitors, vi. 57, 58. Made king of Lacedæmon, ib. & seq.

† Tyndenses, defeated by Theodosius, xv. 601. Who, and where, ib.

Typhon, who, i. 276, & seq.

—the Egyptian, brother to Osiris, i. 550. His history, ii. 3. Kills his brother, 8.

Typhonian,

I N D E X to the

Typhonian, in Egypt, a name given to the men that were sacrificed, i. 566.

Tyrach defeated by the Romans, xvi. 452.

Tyrannus Talus, one of the heads of the Sabines, xi. 306.

Tyrants, the thirty, vi. 323. Expelled, 325.

—— Tyrannis, its antient meaning, xviii. 495, n.

† Tyras river in Scythia, see Niester, v. 443.

† Tyre, in Phenice, its site, ii. 331. Three different cities in order of time, ib.

Its names, ib. n. Four places of that name, ib. n. Height of its walls, 333. Besieged by Shalmaneser, 382. The siege raised, 383. Taken and raxed by Nabuchadnezzar, ib. Rebuilt by its fugitive inhabitants, 384. Governed by Suffetes, ib. Royal dignity restored, ib. Taken by Alexander, ii. 386, v. 218. viii. 194, & seq. The dreadful catastrophe of it, ii. 391. Rebuilt by him, and resettled, ib. & viii. 196, & seq. Now called Sur, ii. 333. Its present forlorn situation, ib. n. Described in all its parts, ib. n. Remaining antiquities, 336, & seq. Solomon's wells there, ib. Its kings, judges, &c. 364. Their history, 374, & seq. Taken by Antigonus, viii. 390. By Ptolemy, 391. Betrayed to Antiochus, 615. Why made independant, ix. 147, n. Noble defence against the Romans, xiii. 314. Declares for Niger, xvi. 99. Taken and put to the sword, ib.

† Tyrians with twelve vessels disperse the Assyrian fleet, ii. 382. Five years defence against Shalmaneser, ib. Tributary to the Assyrians seventy years, 384. 385. All murdered in one night by their slaves, 385. Except Strato raised to the crown, 386. Stout defence against Alexander, viii. 188, 190. Cruelly butchered by him, 194. Murder king Demetrius, ix. 147, & n. Assist the Jews, x. 19. Why spared by Herod, 263. Build several cities in Spain, xvi. 559. Worship of Hercules, 628. Embassy to the Carthaginians, xvii. 147.

† Tyren, the kingdom of, where, v. 625. Severed from that of Argos, ib.

† Tyrrhenians. who and whence so called, v. 577. The rest see under Hetrurians, xi. 259.

Tyrrhenius's arrival into Italy, xi. 270.

Tyrteus, the lame Athenian schoolmaster, chosen general of Sparta, vi. 149. His signal wisdom and bravery, ib. & seq.

Tzachus erects a principality at Smyrna, xvi. 475. Treachery to Delassenus, ib. Death, 476.

† Tzana lake, crossed by the Nile, xviii. 100, & 102, n.

† Tzani, who, xi. 125. Revolt to the Romans, ibid.

Tzibas, Tzibus, outwits the Lazi, to a revolt, xi. 138. Driven out by Cosrhoes, xi. 138.

† Tziym, in scripture, what, and who, i. 465, & xviii. 93.

V.

† VABAR, the promontory of, where, xvii. 558.

† Vacca, where sited, xvii. 590. Taken by Metellus, ib. & xii. 448. Betrayed to Jugurtha, 454. Retaken by the Romans, 459, & xvii. 591.

† Vaccæi, who, xii. 303. Defeated by Fulvius, ib. By Sempronius, 318. Defeat Lepidus, 369.

† Vacuata, where situate, xviii. 4.

Vacuum, see Matter, i. 75, & seq.

Vadomarius's treachery to Julian, punished, xv. 505. Sent against Procopius, 615.

† Vaga, in Numidia, described, xvii. 545.

Vageses's noble answer to Crassus, xi. 21.

† Valachia, part of antient Dacia, xix. 367.

† Valemir, king of the Goths, where settled, xvi. 253.

—— a great favourite of Attila, xix. 62, 173. Serves under him, 76. Defeats the Hunns, 96, 174. Slain by the Squirri, 176.

Valens, king of Persia, subdues the Hunns, xi. 116.

—— Fabius, stirs up Vitellius to revolt, xiv. 333.

—— salutes him emperor, xiv. 335, & seq. Sent against Otho, 336.

—— his success through Gaul, xiv. 337. Extortions and degeneracy, 338. Passes the Alps, 340. Defeated, 349. Joins Cecina, 353. Repulsed at Bedriacum, 357. Infamous rapines, 385, & seq. Retires into Hetruria, 395. Design against Vespasian frustrated, ib. Taken prisoner, 396. His head struck off and exposed, 399. See also vol. xviii. 567, & seq. & n.

—— Pinar. chosen commander of the guards, xv. 194, 195.

—— sent against Macrianus, xv. 237. Assumes the purple, ib. Murdered, ib.

—— created Cæsar, and deposed, xv. 389.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Valens brother of Valentinian, where born, xv. 575. Promoted by him, 578. Chosen his colleague, ib. His share of the empire, 579. Goes into Syria, 613. Sends to oppose Procopius, 615. Baffled before Chalcedon, ib. Success against Procopius, 617, & seq. Against Marcellus, 619. Severity to the revolted, ib. Baptized into Arianism, 621. Success against the Goths, ib. Peace with them, 623. Cruelty to the orthodox, 625. Sends forces against Sapor, 628. Severity against philosophers, &c. xvi. 2, & seq. Against the Theodosians, 4. Against Paras, 5, 6. Peace with Persia, 6. Settles the Goths in Thrace, 13. Assaulted by them, 15. New offers to Sapor, 16. March against the Goths, 18. Defeated and killed, 21. His character, 22. Fatal jealousy of Gratian, 28.

— success against the Goths, xix. 138. Peace with them, ib.

† Valentia, the province of, in Spain, described, xviii. 341, & seq.

† — the city, by whom built, xviii. 347, & n. & 377. Described, ib.

† — the colony of, when, and by whom settled, xii. 366.

† — a new province in North-Britain, xv. 589. Whence so called, xviii. 677. Governed by Consulars, ib. Made a fifth province, 715.

Valentine's revolt in Britain suppressed, xv. 589. xviii. 715.

— general of Honorius, his narrow escape, xvi. 175. Promotion, ib.

— marches against the Quadi, xix. 352. His sudden death, 353.

Valentinian Ist, cashiered by Barbetio, xv. 481. Narrow escape, 572. Chosen emperor, 474. His extract, rise, &c. 575. Zeal for christianity, 576. Ill used on that account, ib. Proclaimed, 577. Intrepid speech to the soldiers, 578. Divides the empire with Valens, 579. Success against the Germans, 585. Creates his son emperor, 586. Whether guilty of Bigamy, 587. Betrays his cruel temper, 589. Enacts some excellent laws, 590. Success against the Allemans, ib. Countenances Maximin's cruelties, 595. Favours the pagans, 597. Vain attempt against the Allemans, ib. Severity to Hymetius, &c. 598. March against the Germans, 604. Peace with Macrianus, 606. March into Illyricum, 607. Ravages the Quadi, 610. Harshness to their ambassadors, ib. Sudden death, ib. Omens foregoing it, 611. Buried by Theodosius, ib. His character, ib. & seq.

Valentinian IId, chosen emperor, xvi. 72. Governed by his mother, 59, 60. Defeats the Sarmatians, 64. Rebuilds St. Paul's church at Rome, 69. Invaded by Maximus, 78. Persuaded to renounce Arianism, ib. Succoured by Theodosius, 79. Restored by him, 82. Rejects the request of the heathen, 93. Desires St. Ambrose to baptize him, ib. Murdered, ib. & seq. His character, obsequies, &c. 95.

— IId the son of Placidia, born, xvi. 201. Created Cæsar, 215. Crowned emperor, 216. Marries Eudoxia, 223. Yields part of Illyricum to Theodosius, 224. His offering to Eudoxia, ib. First embassy to Attila, 244. Second, and truce with him, 251. Murders Oetius and his friends, 254. Overreached by Attila, xix. 75. Preparations against Genseric, 205, 207. Peace with him, 207. Murdered by Maximus, xvi. 256, & seq. His character, 257.

Valentinian, a tribune, racked by Constantius, xv. 490.

— Galata, xv. 620. His death, 625.

Valentinus Tullus excites the Treverians against the Romans, xiv. 425. Defeated and taken prisoner, 426.

Valeria's noble advice to the Roman matrons, xi. 451. And speech to Veturia, 452.

— married to Sylla, xii. 584.

— the wife of Gallerius, ill-treated by Maximin, xv. 361, 362. Her wandering, flight, and death, 387, 388.

— Severa, the wife of Valentinian, xv. 575. Her offspring by him, ib.

† — New Pannonia, why so called, xv. 300.

Valerian Law. what, xi. 412.

Valerianus, one of Niger's generals, defeated, xv. 99.

— Pætus, put to death by Heliogabalus, xv. 153.

— chosen censor, xv. 219. Sent against Ammianus, 222. Proclaimed emperor, 223. His rise, character, &c. 224. Raises the eighth persecution, 226. Marches against the Persians, 227. Taken prisoner by Sapor, ib. Cruel treatment and death, ib. See also vol. xi. 82, 83, & n.

— master of the horse slain, xvi. 21.

— killed before Rome, xix. 463.

Valerius sent into Sicily, vii. 331. Success there, ib. &c.

— Volesus, one of the heads of the Sabines, xi. 306.

— Poplicola takes an oath against the Tarquins, xi. 376. Surprizes the conspirators, 385. Chosen consul, 391, & n.

Defeats

Defeats the Tarquins, 392. His laws, 394. Rechosen consul, 396. Valour against the Sabines, 403, 404. His death and character, 406.

Valerius his brother's bravery at the battle of Regillus, xi. 416.

— Marius chosen dictator, xi. 427. Defeats the Sabines, ib. Resigns, 428. Advice to the senate, 431.

— Publius, chosen consul, xi. 495. Stirs up the Romans to a brave defence, 501. Slain by the Sabines, 521.

— Potitus's speech against the decimvirs, xi. 525, & seq. 528. Chosen consul, 540. Defeats the Volsci, 542.

— Poplicola II, general to Camillus, xi. 593. Defeats the Hetrurians, 594. Chosen prætor, 640.

— Corvus, why so called, xi. 642. Chosen consul, 644. Defeats the Volsci, 645. Rechosen consul, nem. contr. xii. 53. His death and character, ib.

— Manlius Flacc. triumphs over Sicily, xii. 105, & seq.

— Falto, chosen Prætor Peregrinus, xii. 151. Defeated by the Gauls, 159.

— Maximus, his writings and character, xiv. 36, n.

— Asiaticus's brave speech to the senate, xiv. 106. Accused of treason, 128. Noble defence, 129. Death, ib.

— declares for Vitellius, xiii. 591.

— Marinus set aside by Vitellius, xiv. 374.

— Festus cabals in favour of Vespasian, xiv. 382, 383.

— Catul. sent against Severus, xv. 91. Sides with him, ib.

— Flaccus rescued by Probus, xv. 227. Success in Sicily, xvii. 230.

— success against the Carthaginians, xvii. 456, 466.

Valhala, Odin's paradise described, xviii. 602, & n.

Valhall, among the Saxons, xix. 42.

Vallia, chosen king of the Goths, xvi. 196. Peace with Honorius, 198. Wholesome advice to him, ib. Success against the Silingi, 199. And Albani, 200. His reward and death, ib. & seq.

† Vallona river in Tingitania, xviii. 12, 13, n.

† Vandals, their origin, xix. 191. Over-run Pannonia, xv. 17. Repulsed by Aurelian, 256. Enter Gaul, xvi. 162. Defeated by the Franks, ib. Over-run Gaul, 179. And Spain, 180. Defeated by Oëtius, 216. Over-run Afric, 221. Peace with the Romans, 222. Conquests in Afric, 226. Repulsed by Majoranus, 268. Defeated by the Goths, xix. 131, & seq. Driven out of Andalusia, 155. Their character, religion, &c. 192. Alliances, conquests, &c. 193. Defeats and repulses, ib. & seq. Settled in Cambridgeshire, 195. Others in Thrace, ib. Revolt and defeated, ib. Horrid ravages in Gaul, ib. Defeated by Constantine, 197. Enter Spain, ib. Divide it with the Alans and Suevi, 199, & seq. Humbled by Vallia, 200. Fresh ravages, ib. In Afric, ib. Refuse to return into Spain, 203. Repulsed before Hippo, 204. Beat the Romans, ib. Defeated in Campania, 209. Vain attempt on Alexandria, 212. Settled in Afric, 217.

† Vandalusia, Andalusia, whence so called, xvi. 180, xix. 199.

† Vandelsburg in Cambridgeshire, whence so named, xix. 195.

Vangie and Sido, reign over the Suevi, xix. 222.

† Vangiones, who and where sited, xviii. 577.

Vannius driven from his kingdom, xiii. 583. Made king of the Suevi, xiv. 147. Driven out, ib. xix. 222.

Varamus's ill success against the Romans, xi. 154. Revolt against Hormisdas, ib. Disdainful answer to Cosrhoes, 158. Conspired against, 160. Defeated, 162. Poisoned, 164.

Varanes I. king of Persia, xi. 86. — II. kept under by the Romans, xi. 86.

— III. Why surnamed Sengansaa, xi. 88.

— IV. why surnamed Cermasaa, xi. 106.

— V. Persecutes the Christians, xi. 110. Wars with Theodosius, ib. Invites the Saracens, 111. Defeated by the Romans, 112, 113. Makes peace with them, 113.

— VI. obscure reign, xi. 114. Vardenes, when he reigned in Parthia, xiv. 535.

† Vardei, who, xii. 373. Subdued by Flaccus, ib.

† Vargunteius, slain by the Parthians, xi. 33.

Varhanes betrays his own father, xi. 131.

† Varica, a city in Iberia, ix. 608. Varius Alphenus defeats Otho's gladiators, xiv. 538.

Varranes sues Probus for peace, xv. 282. Success against the Segetani, 287. Defeated by Carus, ib. Restores his conquests to Dioclesian, 294. Murdered, 294.

Varranes

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Varaneshosen consul of the east, xvi. 181.
Renews the war against the Romans, 203.
Repulsed before Theodosiopolis, 204. Defeated, 205. Makes a hundred years peace with him, ib. & seq.

Varro commands in further Spain, xiii.
47. Surrenders to Cæsar, 49. Put to death by Antony, 391.

— Terentius sent against the Salasi,
xiii. 374.

— Cigon. put to death by Galba, xiv.
307.

— character and fatal rashness, xviii.
381. Defeat and flight, 387. Ill advice to the Romans, 392.

Varus Quintil. extortions in Germany,
xiii. 460. Defeated, 461. His death,
462. Buried six years after, 539. Monument demolished by the Germans, 553.
Standard recovered from them, 562.

— accused of treason, xiii. 659. n.

— Arrius defeated by Primus, xiv.
388. Sent to guard the Appenine passes,
397. Chosen prætor, 410. Undermined by Mucianus, 431.

Vase, golden, presented to the delphic oracle, xi. 572.

† Vasso, the famed temple of, in Gaul,
xviii. 458.

Vataces, John Ducas, the second emperor of Nice, xviii. 309.

Vates, among the Carthaginians, in great esteem, xvi. 660.

— among the Gauls, their office,
xviii. 489.

† Vatican church, built by Constantine,
xv. 377.

Vatinius, affronted by Pompey's men,
xiii. 54.

— a man of wretched character, xiv.
224, & n.

† Ubii, who and where seated, xiii. 21,
& 516, n. xviii. 576, 593. Outwitted by Cæsar, 641, & n. Build an altar to Augustus, xiii. 522, n.

Uchanias, king of Edeffa, ix. 632.

Uchoreus, king of Egypt, ii. 21. Removes the imperial seat to Memphis, ib.

Ve, We, one of the sons of Woden, xix.
111.

Veadar, the intercalary month of the Jews, iii. 206, n.

† Vectones, who, xii. 303. Defeated by Fulvius, ib.

† Vediantii, who, and where seated, xi.
255.

Vegdeg, Wegdeg, made king of East
Saxony, xix. 111.

Vegetius's writings and character, xvi.
112, n.

VOL. XX.

† Veientes, who, and where sited, xi.
310, & n. Defeated by Romulus, ib.
Treachery to Tullus, 329. Severe punishment, 330. Defeated by C. Servilius, 461.
Return with fire and sword, 464. Defeated by Mamercus, 550. By Priscus, ib. Defeat the Romans, 553. Expel their ambassadors, 563. Alter their government, 565. Subdued, 571. Their lands divided among the Romans, 574.

† Vcii, where situate, xi. 565. Belie-ged by the Romans, ib. Taken after a ten years siege, 571.

Veil of the tabernacle described, iii. 294.

— of the temple, rent at the death of Christ, x. 516.

Velir, one of the sons of Woden, xix.
111.

† Veliterni, who, and where, xi. 602.
Revolt from the Romans, ib. &c. Defeated by Papyrius, ib. Totally subdued, 613.

Velleius, Caius, kills himself, xiii. 311.

— Paternulus, his shameful partiality against Pompey, xiii. 322. Follows Tiberius into Germany, 446. His writings and character, xiv. 35, n.

Velleius Publius's success in Thrace, xiii.
611.

† Velpi, mountains in Cyrenaica described, xviii. 66.

† Venedi, who, xviii. 559. Subdued by Hermanaric, ib.

† Venedic Bay, whence so called, xix.
105.

† Venedotia, the ancient name of South
Wales, xix. 37.

Venephes, king of This, builds the Pyramids at Cocheme, i. 601, n.

† Veneti, ancient Ligurians, xi. 258.
Subdued, xviii. 559.

† Venetia, the country of, abandoned, xvi. 250. The rest see under Venice and the Venetians

† Venetians, their origin, &c. xvi. 250.
Their low beginning, xix. 90, & n. Territories, trade, &c. 594. Support Gregory II, xvi. 361. Success against Rob.
Guiscard, 471, 473. Assist young Alexius,
500. At the siege of Constantinople, 504.
Their share of the empire, 505. Settle at Constantinople, 517. Recover the islands of the Archipelago, 518.

† Venice, the foundation of, xvi. 250,
& xix. 90. Taken by the Franks, 494.

Venones made king of Parthia, xiii. 447.
Deposed, 572. Sent to Pompeiopolis, 582.
Slain, 585, & n.

† Venta Bulgarum, Winchester, xviii.
659.

O o

Venta

† Venta Silurium, Kaerwent, xviii. 666.

Ventidius sent against the Parthians, xi. 42. Defeats them, ib. Stratagem against Pacorus, 43. Defeats him, 44. Sent back to Rome, 45. His triumph, rise, &c. ib. & seq.

— P. an infant led in triumph, xii. 527.

— a soldier, raises forces for Antony, xiii. 184. Surprised and dismissed by Octavian, 192. Made consul, 224, & n. Success in Parthia, 324, 324. Dismissed by Antony, 326.

Ventilianus succeeds Libo in Syria, xv. 11.

† Venus the Assyrian, why called Succoth-Benoth, iv. 327. Her name masculine and feminine, 328. Whether the same with the Phœnician Astarte, 329.

— the worship of introduced into Persia, v. 35. Condemned by their Magi, ib. Worshipped by the Scythians, 450. By the Trojans, 533.

— her temple at Ascalon plundered, v. 472.

— at Aphrodisia, a stately building, v. 595.

— at Cyprus, by whom built, vi. 12.

— at Sparta, vi. 59, & n. Statue, why bound with chains there, ib.

— at Erix, vii. 151.

— at Soli in Cyprus, vii. 486. At Amathus, 487.

— at Paphos, how worshipped, ib. & seq.

— in Cytherea, vii. 490.

— at Cyprus, vii. 492.

— her festival at Delos, vii. 607.

— temple at Scandia vii. 632.

— Apatura near Phanagoria, ix. 617.

— at Erica, xii. 149.

— Verticordia, the temple of, why so called, xii. 429.

— at Paphos, described, xiv. 378.

— Calva, her temple at Aquileia, xv. 197.

— at Carthage, how worshipped, xvi. 618.

† Venusia, where situate, xvii. 372. Taken by Hannibal, ib.

† Venusium, where sited, xii. 75, & seq. Taken and colonied by the Romans, ib. & seq.

Venutius's bravery against the Romans, xvi. 156.

Ver Sacrum, what, xii. 208.

† Verbica, where situate, xviii. 4.

Vercingetorix defeated by Cæsar, xiii. 29. xviii. 560, 561. Surrenders Alesia to him, xiii. 31 Led in triumph by him, 109.

Vergelianus killed by an earthquake, xiv. 587.

Verginius, his success against the Gauls, xiv. 281. Unspotted character, 282. Refuses the empire, ib. Faithfulness to the senate, 301, 303. Coldly received by Galba, 303. Undermined by T. Vinus, ib. Saved by Otho, 363. Rejects the second offer of the empire, 364, 365. In danger for it, ib. Saved by Vitellius, 372.

Verianus killed by the Heruli, xv. 247.

— driven out of Spain, xvi. 165. Put to death, ib.

Verina obtains Basilicus's pardon, xvi. 277. Conspires against Zeno, 283.

Vermina joins Hannibal in Afric, xvii. 490. Defeated, 494. Success against Masinissa, 578.

† Verona, where situate, xv. 372. Taken by Constantine, ib. The Roman shameful attempt against, xix. 479. Taken by the Hunns, 90. By the French, 589.

Verres, his villainy to Antiochus, ix. 160, & seq. Comes over to Sylla, xii. 561.

Verronianus's extract and character, xv. 563. Made his son's colleague, ib. Death, ib.

— the son of Jovian made Cæsar, xv. 563.

† Verrugo taken by the Volsci, xi. 562.

Versotina worshipped by the Ethiopians, xviii. 121.

Vertabiets, in Armenia, their office, ix. 326, & n.

Vervain, used in ratification of treaties, xi. 326, n.

† Verves, who and where sited, xviii. 4.

† Verulam, St. Albans, taken by J. Cæsar, xviii. 662, 696.

Verulamians, massacred by the Britains, xiv. 210.

Verus sent against the Parthians, xi. 68, 69.

— Aurel. Commod adopted by Adrian, xiv. 635. Chosen consul, 637. Sicknes and death, 638, & seq. Apotheosis and character ib.

— L. his son adopted by Antoninus, 639, 662. Takes the manly robe, 668. Despised by Antoninus, 669. Made quæstor,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

stor, 671. Consul, ib. Savage disposition, xv. 5. Created Cæsar, and colleague with M. Aurelius, ib. Sent against the Parthians, 6, 7. Horrid debaucheries and neglect, 7. Success and triumph, 8, 11. Spreads a plague wherever he comes, ib. Goes with Aurelius into Germany, 12. Dies, 13. His obsequies and character, 13, 14. Supposed to have been poisoned, 15. Letter concerning Cassius, 29.

Verus Martius's bravery in Syria, xv. 8. Informs Aurelius against Cassius, 31. Supposed to have been defeated by him, 32. His generosity, &c. ib. & seq.

— L. Ann. the son of Aurelius, dies in Palestine, xv. 17.

Vespasian, Flavius, sent into Judea, x. 579. Enters Galilee, 580. Reception of Josephus, 581. Politic way at Cæsarea, 589. Wastes Idumea, 593. Goes for Rome upon his election, 594, & seq. Base flattery to Caligula, xiv. 77, 80. Bravery and success in Bravery, 123, (xviii. 703) In danger from Nero, xiv. 253. Sent against the Jews, 267. Sends six thousand of them captives to him, 268. And his son to congratulate Galba, 302, & 378. Declares for Otho, ib. Dissimulation to Vitellius, ib. Saluted emperor at Alexandria, 379. In Judea, Syria, &c. ib. Success against the Vitellians, 383, 389. At Cremona, 389. Proclaimed in Spain, &c. 396. By the Samnites, 399. By the senate, 410. His extract and private life, 412, & seq. Prodigies foretelling his rise, 414, & n. Gratitude to his friends, 416. Timely supplies Rome with corn, 417. Second consulship, 429. Miracles at Alexandria, 431. Consults the Gods there, 432. Reception at Rome, 433. Wholesome regulations there, ib. & 434. Censorship, ib. Beautifies the city, 434. Recovers three thousand records, 435. Clemency and contempt of titles, ib. Of informers, 436. Of injuries, ib. Of money, 437. Jokes upon it, ib. & seq. Signal generosity, 438. Triumphs over Judea, 439. Publick edifices, ib. Kindness to Antiochus, 440. Disobliges Vologeses, 441. Reduces several provinces, ib. & seq. Takes a new census, 442. Severity to Sabinus, 449. To two conspirators, ib. Death and character, 450. Obsequies, 451. Colonies, ib. Contemporary authors, 452, n. & seq. n. Converse with Apollonius Tyaneus, 537.

Vespilio, Q. Luc. chosen consul, xiii. 394.

Vespronius Candid. sent against Severus, xv. 91. Confirms him in the empire, ib. Defeats Niger, 98.

Vesta worshipped by the Scythians, v. 450. Challenged as their progenitrix, 475. Worshipped by all the Greeks, 533. Esteemed the first builder, vii. 465. Worshipped in Latium, xi. 279. Said to have affrighted Nero, xiv. 225.

† — the temple of, at Rome, xi. 279, xii. 156. Burnt, ib. & xiv. 226, xv. 65. The fire of, carried to that of Heliogabalus, 153.

Vestals, instituted by Æneas, xi. 279. Their office, 316. Punishment for breach of vows, 351. Remove to Cæræ, 579, 580. Punished for incontinence, xii. 428. Their seat at the theatre, xiii. 633. Four of them condemned for incest, xiv. 474. Deflowered and put to death, 598, & seq. Executed by Caracalla, xv. 129, 130. Suppressed by Gratian, xvi. 46.

Vestilius kills himself, xiv. 8.

Vestilla's signal impudence, xiii. 595. Banishment, ib. & seq.

† Vestini, their country described, xi. 261. Subdued by the Romans, xii. 12.

† Vesuni, who and where seated, xviii. 45, 46, n.

† Vesuvius mount, where, xiv. 459. A dreadful irruption of, ib. Another, xvi. 280.

† Vetera, the old camp of, where, situate, xiii. 524, & n.

† Veteræ. the Roman station of, described, xviii. 669.

Veteranio's revolt in Pannonia, xv. 443. Deputation to Constantius, 445. Outwitted by him, 446. His pious end, ib. & seq.

Veterans regulated by Augustus, xiii. 411. Who were properly such, 505, n. Revolt in Pannonia, 504, & seq. And in Germany, 516. Discharged by Germanicus, 520. Whence called Vexillari, 521, n. Fresh revolt, 524. Quelled by Germanicus, 525. Outwitted by Tiberius, 551, & seq. Shamefully dismissed by Caligula, xiv. 72.

Vetienus Montanus banished, xiii. 647, & n.

Vetilus defeated and killed, xii. 345, 346.

Veto, the tribune's word, to signify his dissent, xi. 434.

Vettius raises a revolt at Capua, xii. 482. His death, 483.

— Cato's victory over the Romans, xii. 520. Defeated by Pompey, 525. Betrayed and stabbed, 528.

I N D E X to the † Vettones, who, xvii. 315. Their pretended stratagem against Hannibal, ib.

Veturia's answer to the Roman matrons, xi. 452. Speech to her son Coriolanus, 454. Success and reward, 455.

Veturius, C. chosen consul, xi. 510. Fined by the people, 516.

——T. chosen decemvir, xi. 519,

——consul shamefully defeated by the Samnites, xii. 18, & seq.

——his son cruelly treated by Plotius, xii. 79.

——one of the conspirators against Galba, xiv. 323.

Vetus acquitted of adultery, xiii. 610. Banished for treason, 611.

——his noble project obstructed by Gracilis, xiv. 189. Put to death by Nero, 254.

Vexalla, the estuary of, xviii. 659.

Vexillum, among the Romans, what, xi. 430, n.

Vezina's narrow escape, xiv. 499.

Vhahalet, the son of Odenatus, xv. 246. His joint reign, ib. & 257. Spared by Aurelian, 264. Made king of Armenia, ib.

Uffa founds the seventh Saxon kingdom, xiv. 34. His ditch, 36.

Vibidia interceeds for Messalina, xiv. 336.

Vibius, a noble exploit performed by, xii. 245.

——Serenus condemned by Tiberius, xiii. 631. Re-accused by his own son, 637, n. Banished, 638.

——a noted informer, xiii. 642.

——Vir poisons himself at Capua, xvii. 444.

† Vibo, the name of ancient Hippo, xvii. 116.

Vibulenus's mutinous speech to his general, xiii. 510. Put to death, 515.

Vicars among the Romans, their office, xv. 422.

——in Britain, xviii. 677. Ensigns, 678.

——the first, xviii. 681.

Vicellius goes to view the dead body of Nero, xiv. 288. His surprising speed to bring Galba the news of it, 301.

Victims, human, offered by the Romans, &c. xiv. 598. Forbid by Adrian, 645. The priests of them crucified, ib. & seq. When utterly abolished, ib. Practised by Severus, xv. 104. By Heliogabalus, 153. By the Carthaginians, xvi. 602, 608. Abolished by Tiberius, 639. The horrid excess of them, 640. Especially in calamitous times, ib. & n.

Victims, used by the Gauls, xviii. 410, 463, & seq.

——by the Germans, xix. 410, n, & 463.

† Victobates, who, and where, xix. 363. Receive the Sarmatians, xviii. 363.

Victor Aurelius, made governor of Pannonia secunda, xv. 507. His writings and character, 515, n.

——made general of Julian's foot, xv. 539. Advice at the battle of Adrianople rejected, xvi. 19. Bravery and death, 21.

——the son of Maximus made his colleague, xvi. 53. Put to death by Theodosius, 81.

——the younger, his writings and character, xvi. 111, n.

Victorina's great sway in Gaul, xv. 247.

Victorinus declared partner by Postumus, xv. 243. His motly character, ib. Murdered by his men, 246.

Victory, the temple of, demolished, xv. 435.

——the altar of, destroyed by Gratian, xvi. 46.

† Victumviæ, where situate, xii. 202. Taken by Hannibal, ib. xvii. 366.

Vidimir, king of the Ostrogoths, serves under Attila, xix. 173. Settled in Pannonia, 174. Invades the empire, 176. His death, ib.

† Vienne, fined and disarmed by Valens, xiv. 337. Taken by Gerontius, xiv. 186. Yielded to the Burgundi, xix. 310.

Vigilantius sacrificed to the mutinous soldiers, xvi. 175.

Vigilius's ingratitude to Cicero, xiii. 9.

——obtains a peace from Attila, xix. 67. Order to murder him, 69. Forgiven by him, 70.

Villian law received at Rome, xii. 317.

Villius, P. sent to Hannibal, xvii. 503. Undermines him, 504.

† Viminicum, where situate, xvi. 232. Taken by the Huns, ib. & xix. 60.

† Vindebona, Vienna, capital of Austria, xviii. 577.

Vindicius discovers the conspiracy of the Equitii, xi. 385. His reward, 388.

† Vindelici, who, and where sited, xviii. 577. Quelled by Aurelian, xv. 267. Subdued by Oetius, xvi. 219.

† Vindelicia, where situate, xii. 429, n. Described, xiii. 404, 405, n. Subdued by Tiberius, 407.

Vindimir

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Vindemir invades Italy, xvi. 280.

—his son abandons it, ib.

Vindemius's writings and character, xv. 514, n.

Vindex, Jul. his character, xiv. 274. Revolt in Gaul, ib. & seq. Biting edicts against Nero, 278. Contempt of him, 279. Interview with Virginius, 281. Defeat and death, ib. See also vol. xviii. 565, 566, & n.

—defeated at Aquileia, xv. 16.

Vine, a rich golden one sent a present to Pompey, x. 233.

Vinegar, why given to Christ, x. 510, n.

Vinicius M. chosen consul, xiii. 670. Marriage with Julia, ib. Poisoned by Messalina, xiv. 125.

—forms a conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 273.

Vinius confirms the news of Nero's death, xiv. 302. Treachery to Verginius, 303. Ill advice to Galba, 304. Great sway over him, 308. His motly character, ib. & seq. Cabals in favour of Otho, 317. Assassinated by his troops, 329.

Viomald procures Childeric's liberty, xix. 268, 269. And restoration, 270.

Vipsania, one of the three daughters of Agrippa, xiii. 606, & n. The only one who died a natural death, ib. n.

Virgil writes his eclogue on Salonicus, x. 272, 273, n. Narrow escape, xiii. 301. Goes to Rome, ib. His death, monument, &c. 396, & n. Whether guilty of anachronism in coupling Dido and Æneas, xvii. 9, & seq.

Virgilianæ sortes, how imitated by the Jews, x. 489, n.

Virginia, her excellent character, xi. 530. Treacherously claimed by Claudius, 532. Her noble defence, 533, & seq. Killed by her father, 536.

Virginity, how far encouraged by Octavian, xiii. 456.

Virginius's prosecution against young Cæso, xi. 492. Hellish plot against the patricians, 496. Speech to the senate, ib. Raises new troubles, 503, & seq.

—why recalled from the Veii, xi. 567. Fined, ib.

—the father of Virginia. See Virginia, xi. 531, & seq.

—Rufus's consulship and death, xiv. 552.

Virgins, Phrygian, obliged to wash in the Scamander before marriage, v. 526.

—Spartan, their immodest dress, vi. 388.

—Roman, not to be executed till deflowered, xiii. 679, & n.

Virgins, sacred, protected by Jovian, xv. 571.

Viriathes defeats the Romans, xii. 345. Defeated by Fabius, 358. Obliges the Romans to make peace, 363. Murdered by Cæpio, 365. See also vol. xviii. 389.

Virius's desperate advice to the Capuans, xii. 356.

† Virocomium, capital of the Cornavii, xviii. 665.

† Visigoths, who, and where seated, xvi. 253. Defeated by Ægidius, 272. More successful in Spain, ib. And in Gaul, ib.

—permitted to settle in Thrace, xix. 47. Invade Italy, 117, 118. Found a kingdom in Gaul, ib. Where seated, ib. Settled in Thrace, 142. Serve under Theodosius, 144. War with the Romans, 153. In Spain, 155. Return into Gaul, 162. Defeated by the Romans, 163. Conquests in Gaul, 166. Profess Arianism, 167. The end of their Gaulish kingdoms, 173.

Vismar killed by the Goths, xv. 409.

Vistnow, the supreme deity among the Bramins, i. 143.

† Vistula river in Sarmatia, v. 443.

† —in Germany, xviii. 591.

Vismar defeated by the Goths, xix. 131.

† Visurgis, river in Franconia, xviii. 592.

Vitalianus put to death by Gordian, xv. 187.

—raises a revolt in favour of the orthodox, xvi. 301. Over-reached by Anastasius, ib. Consulship and death for treason, 303.

Vitellii cabal in favour of Tarquin, xi. 385. Put to death, 387.

Vitellius's arrival in Judea, x. 543. Kindness to, ib. Deposes Pilate, 544. Comes with Herod to Jerusalem, 547.

—dismal journey down the Amasia, xiii. 345. Arraignment of Piso, 601. Rewarded by the senate, 605.

—Publius's arraignment and death, xiii. 678.

—L. chosen consul, xiv. 17. Sent into Syria, 19. Forces the Parthians to peace, 46. Saves himself by his baseness, 68, 69. Left governor of Rome, 122, n. Fulsome Flattery Messalina, 126, & n. Treachery to Valerius, 129. To Claudius, 137. To Silanus, 142. Accused of high treason, 149.

—Aulus, the emperor, made Governor of Lower Germany, xiv. 316. On the bare merit of his gluttony, ib. & seq.

His

His behaviour there, 333. Revolt against Otho, ib. &c. Saluted emperor, 334. Assumes the purple, 335. Displays his Voluptuousness and sloth, 337. Messages to and from Otho, 341. Gains many cities in Italy, 350. Defeats Otho's army, 358, & seq. Congratulated on it by the senate 366. Comes to Lions, 568. Severity to Otho's Centurions, ib. To Dolabella, 369. His monstrous gluttony, ib. Raises a degeneracy and discord in his army, 371, & seq. Disbands part of it, 372. Inhuman delight in viewing his slain enemies, ib. Other instances of his cruelty, 373. Shameful imitation of Nero, ib. Corrupts his whole army, 374. Which murders the whole populace in their cups, 375. Entry into Rome, ib. Awkward function of the pontifical office, ib. Swayed by two sycophants, 376. Profuseness in his gluttony, 394. Preparations against Vespasian, 382, 385. His statues overthrown, 387. Cavalry routed, 389. Army defeated, 390, & seq. Resumes his gluttony, 394. Conceals his defeats from the senate, Guards the Appenine passes, 397. Marches to Mevania, 398. Threatened by sundry omens, ib. n. Returns to Rome in a fright, ib. First assumes the title of Cæsar, 399. Exhorted to resign, 400. Hindered by the people, 401. Treachery to Sabinus, 402, n. Burns the capitol, 403. Offers to Primus rejected, 406. Abandoned and discovered, 407. Grievously insulted, 408. Executed, ib. His character, ib. & seq.

Vitellius, his son murdered by Mutianus, xiv. 409.

Vitheric abandons his country to the Hunns, xix. 46, 139, Retires into Podolia, 173.

Vithicabius murdered, xv. 588, xix. 331.

Vithimir, king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 46. Slain by the Hunns, 173.

Vitia barbarously executed, xiv. 8.

Vitiges, Vittiges, king of the Goths, stirs up Cosrhoes against Justinian, xi. 133.

—king of Italy, xix. 119. His election, 457. Betrayed by Matafuenta, ib. & seq. Wars with the Romans, 459, Marches against Belisarius, 460, & seq. Repulsed by him, 461. Ill success before Rome, 464. Repulsed before Rimini, 467. Embassy to Cosrhoes, 470. Besieged in Ravenna, 473, &c. Offers of peace rejected, 474. Carried off prisoner, 476. His death, ib.

Vitulus, Q. Man. success in Sicily, xvii. 235.

Vitus defeated in Spain, xvi. 234, By the Suevi, xix. 226.

Vixerunt at Rome, a word to signify they are dead, xii. 638.

Uladislaus defeated and killed, xii. 544.

Uldes defeats Gainas, and sends his head to Arcadius, xvi. 149, 150.

Uldin sent against the Goths, xvi. 161. Driven out of Thrace, 174.

—king of the Hupns, xix. 44. Assists the Romans, 51. Defeats and kills Gainas, 52. Invades the Romans ib. Defeated, ib.

Ulysses's adventures, an account of, v. 558.

Ulitheus defeated and killed, xix. 465.

† Ulla, where, xiii. 120. Besieged by Cn. Pompeius, ib.

Ulphilus, a Gothish bishop, infects them with Arianism, xvi. 12, 13. Stratagem against Constantine, 188.

Ulphianus, Dom. made Counsellor to Papianus, xx. 114. To Alexander, 157. Murdered by the Prætorian guards, 159.

Ulpus, Marcell. success in North-Britain, xv. 56. Ill requited by Commodus, ibid.

Ulpus, Julianus's timely advice to Macrinus, xv. 137. Sent against Heliogabalus, 147. His head sent to Macrinus, ib.

† Ulprana, where sited, xix. 177. Taken by Theodric, ib.

Ulus, a fabulus king of Spain, xviii. 376.

† Umbri, a branch of the Gomerians, v. 395. First Inhabiters of Italy, ib. & seq. Their names and extract, xi. 271. Defeated in the social war, xii. 522. Reckoned the Aborigines of Italy, xviii. 398.

† Umbria, part of Italia Propria, xi. 259. Described, 260. Invaded by the Sennones, 577. By the Romans, xii. 42. Plundered by Hannibal, xvii. 370. Made a dutchy by Albonius, xix. 386.

Unclean Meats, the prohibition of, whence, i. 317, & iii. 372, 373. How distinguished, ib. The fat of beasts esteemed such, ib. & n.

† Unelli, who, and where sited, xiii. 19, & n. Defeated by Cæsar, ib. Subdued, xviii. 559.

† Universe. See World, i. 75, & seq. Unulf's fidelity to Partharit, xix. 538.

Voconian law at Rome, what, xiii. 456, & n. Abrogated by Augustus, ib.

† Vocontii,

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

† Vocontii, who and where, xiv. 338.
Oppressed by Valens, ib.

Vocula, Dell. sent against the revolted Batavians, xiv. 421. Defeated by them, ib. Fortifies his camp, 422. Marches against Civilis, ib. Betrayed and murdered by his troops, 424.

† Volana, where situate, xii. 70. Taken by the Romans, ib.

† Volaterra in Hetruria, reduced by Sylla, xii. 586.

Volero raises a new faction at Rome, xi. 478. Chosen tribune, 479. His law opposed by the consuls, 480. Forced upon them, 483.

† Volga, a river in Scythia; see Rha, v. 442.

† Voliba, ancient Falmouth, xviii. 659.

Vologeses, Ist king of Parthia, assists his brother Tiridates, ix. 358. Wars against the Romans, 362. Drives them out of Armenia, ib. & seq. Sends an embassy to Rome, 363. Opposed by the Romans, xi. 62, 63. Success against them, ib. & seq. Alliance with Vespasian, 64. Death, 65. See vol. xiv, 417. Kindness to Antiochus's sons, 440.

— IId, invades Armenia, xi. 68. Confirmed by Antoninus, 69. His death, ibid.

— IIIId, wars with several states, xi. 69. Death, 65.

— a Thracian priest seizes on Chersonesus, ix. 515.

— success in Thrace, xiii. 418.

— refuses Nero's invitation to Rome, xiv. 263.

— complaint to Adrian, xiv. 634. Revolt, xv. 7. Signal victory over the Romans, ib. Defeated by Cassius, 9, 10. Wars against Severus, 108. Peace with him, 109.

† Vologesocerta, where, and by whom built, xi. 65.

Volones, slaves, whence so called, xii. 224.

† Volscæ, Volsci, their site, cities, &c. xi. 261 & xvii. 346 n. Origin uncertain, xi. 269. Alliance with Tarquin the Proud, 368. War with the Romans, 419. & seq. Defeated, 433. By Virginus, 427. Driven out of Rome, 427. Defeat Appius Clodius, 484. Defeated by Valerius, 542. By Rutilius, &c. 562. By Camillus, 604. Plunder the Roman camp, 608. Wasted by the Romans, 609.

† — Tectosagi, subdued by Marcius, xviii. 553. The rest see under Tectosagi, xii. 475.

† Volscentes, who, and where, xviii. 451. Submit to the Romans, ib.

† Volsciani, who and where, xvii. 340. Noble answer to Q. Fabius, ib. &c.

† Volscinii, where sited, xi. 575. Oppressed by the freemen, xii. 98. Taken and razed, 99.

Volscius's malicious accusation of Cæsar, xi. 493. Banished, 507.

† Volubiliani, who, and where sited, xviii. 4.

† Volubilis, where situate, xviii. 4.

Volumnia goes with Coriolanus's mother to him, xi. 453.

Volumnius condemns Herod's two brave sons to death, x. 321.

— defeats Hardonius, xi. 501.

— Flamma's success against the Samnites, xii. 56. Falls out with Appius, 57. Defeats the Hetrurians, ib. Sent to cover Samnium, 60.

— a biting buffoon, put to death, xiii. 274, 275.

— the historian's account of Brutus, xiii. 275, & seq.

Volusenus sent into Britain, xiii. 22.

Volusianus declared Cæsar, xv. 221. Various names, ib. Death, 222.

Volusius, Quint. his extreme old-age and death, xiv. 184.

— Proculus discovers the conspiracy against Nero, xiv. 237, & seq.

— Caius's bravery before Cremona, xiv. 392.

Vonones, Ist king of Parthia, defeated by Artabanus, xi. 55. Killed by Remmius, 56.

— IId, his short reign, xi. 62.

— king of Armenia, driven out, ix. 351.

Vopiscus, Caius, animadverted upon, xi. 87, n. His character of Suetonius, xiv. 657 n. Other writings, &c. xv. 319 n.

Vortigern consents to invite the Saxons, xix. 6, 7. Heads them against the Picts and Scots, 14. Deposed by his subjects, 16. Taken prisoner by the Saxons, 18. Retirement and death, ib.

Vortimer's success and valour against the Saxons, xix. 16, & seq. Death and last command, 17. Where buried, ib.

Vortipora's wicked reign, xix. 32.

Vows, of a two-fold nature among the Jews, iii. 245. Of things vowed to destruction, 247, & seq. Laws concerning all sorts of vows, 245.

† Ur, the land of, where situate, xv. 568.

Uraia sent against Belisarius, xix. 470. Against Against Thomas, 474. Refuses the Gothic crown, 477. Murdered by Ildebald, ib.

† Urania, worshipped at Carthage, xvi. 615.

† — a city in Cyprus, taken by Demetrius, vii. 506.

Uranus, why so called, i. 263 & n. The heaven, ib. His sons, 390. Killed by his son Chronus, or Ilus, 397.

— second king of the Celtes, v. 422. Imprisoned by his son, and breaks his heart, ib. & seq. His revolt and defeat, xv. 159.

— defeats the Bulgarians, xix. 415.

Urban Ild, Pope, encourages the Holy war, xvi. 478.

— IVth, supports the tyrant Paleologus, xvi. 518.

† Urbinum, and Urbiventum, where sited, xix. 468. Taken by Belisarius, ib.

† Urce, part of the country of the Bastitani, xviii. 336.

Urgulania, cast by the brave Piso, xiii. 567 & n.

Uriah, killed by David's direction, iv. 27.

— the prophet put to death by Jehoiakim, iv. 172.

Urim and Thummim, an appendage of the Jewish high-priest's garment, iii. 33 & n. The meaning of those two words, 34. How and by whom consulted, 35 n. Various opinions about its origin, form, &c. 263, & seq.

Ursacius exasperates the Germans into a revolt, xv. 582.

Ursicinus opposes Gallus's misconduct, xv. 464, & seq. Goes to Rome, 465. Narrow escape, 468. Sent against Sylvanus, 471. Treacherously murders him, 472. Stripped of his power, 474. Restored and sent into the east, 480. Betrayed by Eusebius, 492. Gallant behaviour there, 493. Tried and disgraced, 495.

Ursinus sent against Sapor, xi. 97, 98.

Ursula ungratefully put to death by Julian, xv. 531.

— the martyr and her 11000 virgins, the story of, exploded, xvi. 55.

Ursus ordered to assist the African clergy, xv. 384.

— the murderer of Maximus, xvi. 258.

† Ufargatæ mountains described, xviii. 51, 52

† Uscudama, metropolis of the Bessi, ix. 515.

Ufdrilas, slain by the Ostrogoths, xix. 500.

† Ufentine tribe, whence so called, xii. 29.

Usher, archbishop, vindicated and cleared up, xvi. 687 n. Procures several copies of the Samaritan pentateuch, x. 77 n.

† Ufipetes, who and where sited, xiii. 21, & n., 529 & n. Defeated by Cæsar, 21. By Drusus, 416, 417. By Germanicus, 529.

† Ufipii, Ufipians, who, and where sited, xviii. 575. Defeated by Cæsar, 641. Dangerously tossed round Great Britain, xiv. 476.

Ufous, in the Egyptian Cosmogony, who, i. 259 & n.

† Uftrigoths, who and whence, xix. 339. Refuge among the Lombards, ib.

Ufury, how far forbid by Moses, iii. 368. How punished, xix. 23, &c.

Uther, whether the same with Nazeleod, xix. 23, & seq.

† Utica, taken by the Romans, xii. 124. Evacuated, 129. Besieged by Scipio, 280. Abandoned by him, 281. Defended by Cato, xiii. 97. Her grief for his death, 104, &c. Surrendered to Cæsar, ib. See also vol. xvii.

— Described, xvi. 573. Becomes the metropolis of Afric, ib. Taken by Agathocles, xvii. 189, & seq. By Regulus, 256. Revolts to the Mercenaries, 304. Destroy'd by pestilence, xvii. 583.

Uticans, come to congratulate Dido's arrival, xvii. 7.

Util's, one of Faustina's gallants promoted, xv. 36.

† Uturgurian Hunns, whence so called, xix. 41. Where sited, ib. Fall foul on their Caturgurian brethren, 99, 100.

Vulcan, one of the demi-gods that reigned in Egypt, i. 274 & n. Invents the working of metals, 277. Supposed the same with Tubal Cain, ib. &c.

— his reign in Crete, vii. 470 & seq. Why worshipped at Lemnos, 614. And in what sense by the ancient Germans, xviii. 606 n.

† Vulcania island, where, xvii. 364. Seized on by the Carthaginians, ib.

Vulcutius Terentius's writings and character, xv. 209, n. & 319 n.

Vulger heads the Bulgarians into Mœsia, xix. 393.

† Vulsinii, a city in Etruria described, xiii. 623 & n.

Vulso, L. Manlius's descent into Afric, xii. 121, 122. Sent into Sicily, 134.

— Cn. Manlius's success against the Galatians, xii. 308, & seq.

Vulturius, one of Catiline's conspirators, seized, xii. 635.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Vulturnus invaded by Hannibal, xvii. 172. Whence so called, 384 n. Why worshipped by the Etruscans, ib.

† ——— the wind of, whence so called, xvii. 384 & n.

Vulturs appear at Augustus's installation, xiii. 201.

Vulphilas, the apostle of the Goths, xix. 134 n. His old Gothic character described, 110, 113.

† Vurglah, a city in Gætulia, xviii. 53.

† Uxellodunum, where situate, xiii. 33 n. Taken by J. Cæsar, ib. xviii. 562.

† Uxians, who and where sited, v. 228. Subdued by Alexander, vi. 298. viii. 222.

Vyftney, what meant by, in the Bra-min physiology, i. 142.

Uz, the son of Aram, the founder of Damascus, i. 460.

† ——— the country of Job different from this, i. 461. Where situate, ii. 153, 154 & 531.

† Uzal, one of Jocktan's sons, i. 475. His name given by the Jews to the capital of Yaman, ib. &c.

† Uzians, who, and where sited, xvi. 458. Invade the Romans, ib. Defeated by the Hungarians, 459.

† Uzita, where situate, xvi. 583.

Uzzah, smitten with death for touching the ark, iv. 19.

Uzziah, king of Judah dismantles the cities of the Philistines, ii. 260. Builds fortresses to keep them in subjection, ib. &c.

W.

WACHO, his reign, wives, &c. xix. 379.

† Wadd-reagh, the district of, xviii. 52. How supplied with water, ib.

Walamir, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

† Waleka, the mountains of, where, xviii. 97.

† Wales, retains the pure ancient Celtic, xviii. 514. The reason of it, 515. Its ancient inhabitants, 658, & seq. Whence so called, xix. 36. Its six regions, ib. & seq. Dismembered of some of its provinces, ib. & 37.

Valid, first king of Egypt, of the race of Amalek, ii. 90. Why surnamed Pharaoh, ib. & seq. Supposed the Pharaoh of Moses, 91.

† Wall built by Sesostris in Egypt, ii. 41.

† Wall's-End, Finis Walli, in Northumberland, xviii. 679.

Wallia, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118. Succeeds Sigeric, 154. Peace with the Romans, ib. War with the Vandals in Spain, 155 & 200. Settles in Aquitain, 155. His death, ib.

Walterus, king of the Lombards, xix. 379.

Wamba, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

† Wanashreefe mountain in Numidia, xvii. 558.

Wandalar, king of the Ostrogoths, xix. 118, 173.

War, Holy, in Greece, why so called, vi. 31, 32.

——— Theban, an account of, v. 634 & seq.

——— Peloponnesian, the history of, vi. 260.

——— Ægeinean, vi. 229, & seq.

——— Macedonian, vi. 347.

——— Social, vi. 348, & seq.

——— Messenian, the first, vi. 405.

——— ——— the second, vi. 418.

——— Bæotian, vi. 498, & seq.

——— Cleomenic, vi. 527, & seq.

——— Confederate, vi. 576.

——— Athenian, in Sicily, vii. 188, & seq.

——— Carthaginian, vii. 211.

——— Mithridatic, ix. 387, & seq. Renewed, 410. The length of it, 446, n.

——— how declared among the Romans, xi. 335 & n.

——— social, the causes of, xii. 513, 515. The success of, ib. & seq.

——— noble, why so called, xvi. 367.

——— holy, see Crusade, xvi. 477.

——— unjust, the æra of, xviii. 306, & n.

——— Carthaginian, and other nations, see under their respective names.

Wards, Solon's laws concerning them, vi. 121.

Warne Cant, duke, put to death, xix. 520.

Warnefrid, defeated and killed, xix. 544.

† Warni, who, and where sited, xix. 161.

† Warnsdike, the battle of, xix. 35.

Washing the feet, how and whence the ceremony among the Jews, iii. 383.

Water, supposed by many ancients the original of all things, i. 108. Why the Gods swore by it, ib.

I N D E X to the Waters, what is meant by those above the firmament, i. 285 n.

——— turned into blood by Moses, ii. 561. How long they continued so, ib. & notes.

——— of jealousy, instituted by Moses, iii. 347. How the ceremony was performed, ib. & seq.

——— Solon's laws concerning them, vi. 120.

——— mineral of Hierapolis, v. 495.

——— of Thermopylæ, described, v. 662.

† Watling-street, where and why so called, xviii. 683. Its extent, ib. & seq.

Wayel, sixth king of the Arabs, xviii. 269.

Weeks, the Jewish feast of. how computed and kept, iii. 191, 192 & n.

Welcar, made duke of Friuli, xix. 544.

† Westphalia, where situate, xix. 8. Inhabited by the Saxons, ib.

Westrogoths, Visigoths, who, and why so called, xix. 107. Where seated, 117.

† Wetalla-heedh, Cimbrian islands, where, and why so called, xix. 106.

Whales, a particular kind of in the Mediterranean, x. 453 n.

† Whallop castle, the ruins of, extant, xviii. 669.

Whips, why presented by the Muscovite brides to their husbands, v. 474 n.

Whiston's theory of the earth examined, i. 153, & seq. Account of its changes after the fall, 213, & seq. And after the flood, 292.

† White Hunns, see Nephthalites, xix. 41.

Widimer, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Widows forbid to marry during the year, xvi. 41.

† Wight island, where, xiv. 123. Taken by Vespasian, ib. Inhabited by Jutes, xix. 10. Put to the sword by Cerdic, 29. Given to his nephew, ib.

William, lord of Sicily, wars against Andronicus, xvi. 494.

Wills, Solon's laws concerning them, vi. 118.

† Wine, the making of, ascribed to Bacchus, v. 665 n. How and when introduced into Persia, 248. Muscate of Tenedos, famed, 529 n. Of Lampfacus, 563. Of Tmolus, 573. Of Lydia, 576. Forbid the Carthaginian soldiers whilst in the field, xvi. 659. And to the magistrates during their office, 660.

——— mingled, why given to malefactors, x. 510.

Winitar, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Wiomand's signal fidelity to Childeric, xix. 76, 77.

Wisemen, from the east, come to pay homage to Christ, see Magi, x. 343, & seq.

Wishtnown, a deity of the Malabarians, i. 143.

Wisimar, king, defeated and killed, xix. 363.

Witgar, the Saxon's arrival in Britain, xix. 27.

Witchcraft, some account of its origin, iv. 182, 185, & seq.

Witness, false, Moses's laws against, iii. 369. Who excepted from being witnesses, 370, n.

Witteric, king of the Visigoths in Gaul, xix. 118.

Wittizia, king of the Visigoths, xix. 118.

Woden, king of the Goths. See part of his character under Odin, xviii. 601, & seq. His reign and conquests, xix. 110, 111. Settles and dies in Sweden, 112. His character, acts, &c. ib. & seq. Worshipped by the Saxons, 11, 12.

Wolf, why adored by the Egyptians, i. 564.

Wolves, a reward for destroying them, vi. 120.

——— Nerians, famed to turn once a year into Wolves, v. 463.

——— the fable explained, xix. 619 n.

Women, Solon's laws concerning them, vi. 119. Against the infamous sort, 120.

——— esteemed great prophetesses amongst the ancient Celtes, &c. v. 464 n. Held in common amongst some Scythians, 463. Their marshal bravery, 454, 459. Way of preserving their beauty, 461.

——— Sarmatian, their martial genius, v. 462. Treachery to their husbands, 472. Punishment, 473.

——— Spartan, their dress, vi. 388. Singular hardiness, 392. Bravery, 395.

——— Arcadian, their surprizing valour, vi. 5.

——— Tegean, defeat the Lacedemonians, vi. 14.

——— of Argos, drive the Spartans from it, vi. 43.

——— Roman, a number of them turn poisoners, xii. 5.

——— two die for joy at the unexpected sight of their sons, xii. 400. Turn gladiatrices, 409.

——— their inheritance confined by the

N I N E T E E N V O L U M E S.

Vaconian law, xiii. 456 n. Degeneracy in Nero's reign, xiv. 203.

—— Gaulish, in high repute, xviii. 450 n. Their signal bravery, ib. & seq.

—— German, their bravery, &c. xiii. 536 n. xviii. 596 n.

—— old, supposed prophetesses, xviii. 596 & n.

—— married, their slavish fidelity, xviii. 624 & n. Hard laws against them, ib. & 629.

—— old, esteemed in Æthiopia, xviii. 131.

Wonderful, one of the peculiar characters of the Messiah, x. 336, 341, 343.

Wood, carried to the temple once a year, x. 474.

Wool of Laodicea, famed, v. 494.

—— of Carmania drops off the sheep, iv. 509, n.

—— rains down in Artois, xv. 590.

Work-houses among the Romans abused, xiv. 645. Regulated by Adrian, 646.

World, how created, i. 75. Its origin, 76, & seq. Whether possible to be eternal, 77, & seq. Opinions of philosophers about its matter and form, 78, & seq.

Whether eternal, 81, & seq. Its creation of a late date, 94, & seq. And liable to dissolution, 138, & seq.

—— its creation as delivered by Moses, i. 146, & seq. Whether completed in six days, 174. In what season of the year, ib. Whether any thing before it, 175. Destroyed by the flood, 255. Changes made in it according to Burnet and others, 313, & seq.

—— its production according to the Phœnicians, Egyptians, Chaldeans, &c. See under their respective names.

† Wormes, a city in Germany, xvi. 162. Taken by the Vandals, ib. & seq.

X.

X Amolxis's reign in Thrace, xix. 107.

Who he was, 367.

† Xanthians, who, and why so called, vi. 591. Their brave defence against the Romans, xiii. 247. Betrayed by the Oenandes, 248. Their desperate end, 249, & seq. Dreadful instances of their love of liberty, ib. Favoured by M. Antony, 297.

† Xanthus, metropolis of Lycia, xiii. 246, & n. Besieged by Brutus, ib. Burnt by its inhabitants, 249.

—— king of Bœotia's contest with the Athenians, v. 657.

Xanthus prince of Pelasgia, comes to Lesbos, vii. 552, 553.

—— † river in Troas, v. 525. The same with Scamander, ib.

—— River of Lydia, v. 591.

Xantippus, Athenian general, defeats the Persians, v. 148, vi. 210. Conquers the Thracian Chersonnesus, v. 150. Takes Sestos, vi. 211. Impales Artayctes for sacrilege, 212.

—— the son of Pericles, dies of the plague, vi. 270.

—— general of the Carthaginians, xii. 126, & seq. Defeats the Romans, 127. Retires to Lacedæmon, ib. & seq. New disciplines the Carthaginians, xvii. 258.

Xenagoras measures the height of Olympus, viii. 18.

Xenarchus, the Achæan Prætor, declares for Perseus, vi. 643.

Xene sent prisoner to Constantinople, xvi. 527. Released, 528.

Xenias, the Elean, expelled by Thrasydorus, vi. 465.

Xenidochus, general of the Agrigentines, xvii. 177. His success in Sicily, ib. Defeated by Demophilus, 191.

Xenoclydes's descent on Corcyra, vi. 254.

Xenocrates, his principle of indivisible particles, i. 114. Character, writings, and death, viii. 428, n.

Xenoctas, general of Antiochus, defeated and killed, viii. 602.

Xenoi, strangers so called at Athens, vi. 132.

Xenon's noble speech to the Roman deputies, vi. 649.

Xenophanes held God and the world to be the same, i. 84. Founder of the Eleatic sect, ib. How far he held the eternity, &c. of the world, ib.

—— sent from Philip to Hannibal, xvii. 411. Treaty with Carthage, ib. & seq. Forced by the Romans, 414.

Xenophon's noble retreat out of Persia, vi. 174, & seq. V. 174

—— Claudius's physician, highly extolled by him, xiv. 160, n.

—— a commander under Arrianus, xiv. 632.

Xerolybia, where situate, xviii. 82.

Xerxes succeeds his father Darius, v. 124, & seq. Confirms all his grants to the Jews, ib. Dissuaded by his uncle from invading Greece, 125. Pushed on by a three-fold dream, 126, 127, & n. Allies with the Carthaginians, 127, & seq. Grows insolent, 129. His army and fleet, 131. Defeats the Spartans at Thermopylae, 131.

P p 2

I N D E X to the

1æ, 139, & seq. Engages the Athenians at sea, 140, & seq. Outwitted by Themistocles, 142. His fleet defeated at Salamis, 143. Flees to Sardis, 144. The hardship of his army, ib. & seq. Goes into Persia, 149. Burns all the Grecian temples, 150. Passion for his brother's wife, 151. His wife's cruelty to her, ib. & seq. His barbarity to his brother, ib. To the body of the Spartan king, vi. 441. Killed by Artabanus, v. 153. See also vol. viii. 53. Divjoins Athos from the Land, 16, n. & 54.

Xerxes IId, his short reign, v. 162. Murdered by Sogdianus, ib.

Xeuxes's salutary advice to Antiochus, viii. 650.

† Xibam, Shibam, a city in Arabia Felix, xviii. 194.

Xiphares put to death by his father, ix. 442.

Xiphias, Niceph. saves Basilus from the Bulgarians, xix. 417.

Xiphilin's abridgment of Dio Cassius imperfect, xiv. 582, xv. 180, n. Account of Antoninus Pius, xiv. 663. Of the Thundering Legion, xv. 24. His character, 180, n.

—— the paariarch, outwitted by Eudocia, xvi. 460.

Xiphius's revolt and submission, xvi. 438.

Xisuthrus, the tenth of the Chaldean kings, according to Berofus, i. 269. Reigned before the flood, ib. & 271.

† Xoïs, one of the chief cities of Lower Egypt, i. 489.

Xuthus, the grandson of Deucalion, vi. 86. Adjudges the Athenian crown to Cerope, ib. & vi. 86. Settles in Achaia, ib.

Xylophoria, a festival of the Jews, so called by Josephus, iii. 289. How kept at Jerusalem, x. 474.

Xystos, or Olympic stadium of Elis, vi. 67, & n.

Y.

YA, emperor of China, i. 145.

Yafar, eighth king of Yaman, xviii. 269.

Yagudh, an idol of the Arabs, xviii. 230.

† Yamama, the province of, described, xviii. 209.

—— city, ib. Princes, ib. Fountain, ib.

† Yaman, or Arabia Felix, described, i. 463. The meaning of that name, 476. By whom inhabited, xviii. 139. Its extent, &c. 192. Description, 200. Towns, soil, &c. ib. & seq. Mountains, &c. 202, & seq. By whom founded, 222. Its kings, 268. End of their kingdom, 278. Seized by the Abassines, 305.

† Yambô, Yanbo, a port in Arabia, xviii. 207.

Yarah, succeeds Jocktan in Arabia, i. 474, xviii. 264, 268.

† Yarah, the son of Joktan, gives name to Arabia, i. 381. And to the Arabic tongue, ib. Founder of the Yamanik kingdom, ib. & seq.

Yafdejird, king of Persia; see Jisdegerdes, xvi. 139.

Yashub, the successor of Yarah, xviii. 268.

† Yatreb, the antient name of Medina, whence, xviii. 206.

Yauk worshipped by the Arabs, xviii. 230, & n.

Year, how amended by Numa, xi. 318. Of the Carthaginians, how computed, xvi. 675.

Years, Antedeluvian, how computed, 314, n. Four sorts distinguished by the Mosaic law, iii. 205. Those of the Jews, how long, ib. n.

—— Sabbatic and Jubilee; see under those words.

—— Macedonian, how calculated, viii. 33.

Yemen, the king of, his war with Keykaus king of Persia, v. 277. Subdued by him, xi. 206, 207.

Yezed, Jezadan, the good principle among the Persian Magi, i. 139, v. 309. Some accounts of him, 309, & n.

Yiar, the 8th month, or April, of the Jews, iii. 206, n.

Yn, in the Chinese physiology, what, i. 144.

Yoke, prisoners of war, made to pass under, xi. 329.

Youth, how educated at Sparta, vi. 388, & seq. In Macedon, viii. 31.

—— the goddess of, xi. 350.

—— her temple, xi. 357.

—— prince of the Roman Youths, his office, dignity, &c. xiii. 427, & n.

† Yfel, Ifala, river in Germany, xviii. 592.

Yufef introduces judaism in Yaman, xviii. 236. Persecutes the recusants, 273.

Z.

† ZAab, the district of, where, xviii. 52.

Zab, river in Assyria, iv. 198, n.

—— king of Persia, v. 267.

† Zabache,

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

† Zabache, the sea of, where, &c. xvi.

11. Zabas defeated by the Romans, xv. 279.
Zabdiel murders Alexander Balas, ix.

121. Zabians, corrupt the Persian religion, v.

34. † Zabulun, Jacob's sixth son by Leah, born, ii. 442. His lot in the promised land, 488, & n.

Zachariah, the Jewish high-priest, slain by Joash, iv. 124.

— the Baptist father's vision in the temple, x. 326, & seq. Noble canticle at the birth of his son, 338.

— patriarch of Jerusalem, carried prisoner into Persia, xi. 166, xv. 336. Released by Siroes, xi. 173.

— the son of Barachias, murdered by the zelots, x. 588. Some conjectures about him, ib. n.

— pope's embassy to Luitprand, xix. 570. Sway over him, ib. Over Rachis, 572. His death, 574.

† — the famed sepulchre of, in the vale of Jehoshaphat, iii. 159, & n.

Za-cho-ne, a remarkable fruit in the plain of Jericho, iii. 137.

Zacynthus peoples the island of that name, v. 539.

† — the island of, described, vi. 625, 626, n. Reduced by the Athenians, 238. Wasted by the Peloponnesians, 270. Bought by the Achæans, 625, 626. Given to the Romans, ib.

Zadesprates put to death, xi. 161, & seq. & n.

Zadoc, the son of Ahitub, high-priest of the Jews, iv. 51.

Zadriades, one of the founders of the Armenian monarchy, ix. 328.

Zagan diverts Mohammed from raising the siege of Constantinople, xvi. 552.

† Zagaria, where sited, xvi. 354. Given to Trebelis, ib. &c.

† Zagreusii, who and where sited, xviii. 4.

† Zaine river in Numidia, xvii. 551.

† Zaitha, Zantha, where sited, xv. 207. Gordian buried at, ib. His tomb at, 544.

Zala, a famed old woman, i. 306. Traditions of the orientals about her, ib. &c.

† Zalacus mount, where sited, xvii. 558.

† Zalissa, a city in Iberia, ix. 603.

† Zalmonah, a place so called from the brazen serpent erected there, iii. 22.

Zalmunna's cruel war against the Jews, ii. 141. Defeated and killed by Gideon, 142, 143.

Zalzer, Zal-zer, the father of Rustan, his history, v. 261. Recovers the Persian crown from the Turks, 267. Taken prisoner by the Persians, 345.

† Zama, where situate, xii. 289. The battle of, 290, xvii. 492, & seq. Besieged by the Romans, xii. 450.

— Hannibal's camp at, xvii. 490.

— the fountain of, xvii. 551.

† Zamar, the city of, where situate, xvii. 552.

Zamaragdus's success against the Lombards, xix. 511.

Zamarga, defeated by the Romans, xix. 100. By Zandilichus, 101.

Zambades, chosen king of Persia, xi. 118. Deposed and punished, 120.

Zames, prince of Persia, why excluded the succession, ix. 123. Plots against his brother, 130.

Zamolxis, a Dacian philosopher and law-giver, xiv. 496.

Zamzumim, a gigantic race driven out by the Ammonites, ii. 116.

Zanara, queen of the Saccæ, a famed heroine, iv. 472. Her exploits and stately monument, ib. & n.

† Zancle, Messina, antiently so called, vii. 141. When and by whom built, 160.

† Zancleans, who and where sited, vii. 141. Defeated by Anaxilas, ib. Invite the Samians to settle among them, 537. Outed by them, ib.

Zangruf, duke of Verona, put to death, xix. 520.

Zantiches, king of the Jazyges's submission to M. Aurelius, xv. 26.

Zantichus's peace with the Romans, xix. 357.

Zantzias, removes the mart to Thessalonica, xix. 404, 405.

Zaphir, Moses's rod, so called by the Jews, ii. 548, & n. Their fables concerning it, ib. n.

Zaphnath paaneh, the name given to Joseph in Egypt, ii. 465. Its meaning, ib. &c.

Zarah, the supposed father of Job, ii. 530. The brother of Phares born to Judah, 463.

Zarbienus, king of the Gordians put to death, ix. 334, 335. His funeral obsequies, 341.

† Zarcæum, a mountain said to have been levelled by Semiramis, iv. 243.

† Zarethán, since Zeredathan, where sited, iii. 69, n. Famed for the copper-works cast there for Solomon's temple, ib.

Zarmar, the gymnosophist, burns himself, xiii. 395.

† Zarvaspa,

† Zarvaſpa, whether the ſame with Baſtra, ix. 628. Surrendered to Alexander, viii. 261.

† — a river in Baſtria, ix. 629.

Zarxas joins with the revolted mercenaries, xvi. 265.

† Zea, St. the famed church of, built by Marſian, xvi. 265.

Zeal, the right of, among the Jews, its extent, iii. 345.

† Zealand, where ſited, xix. 8, 9. Inhabited by the Saxons, ib.

Zealots, in Judea, the ſpawn of the Gauloniſh faction, x. 411. Join with the Sicarii, 576, & ſeq. Defeat the Romans, ib. Put all to the ſword, 578, & ſeq. Their curſed character, 586. Seize the temple, ib. Set up a high prieſt of their own, ib. & n. Their horrid butcheries, ib. & ſeq. Abominable crimes, 592, n. Joſephus's character of them, 601. Their deſperate defence, 605, & ſeq. Suit to Titus rejected, 612. Seized with a fatal deluſion, 613. Raiſe new troubles in Egypt, 621, n.

Zebah heads the Midianites, &c. againſt the Jews, ii. 141. Defeated and killed by Gideon, 142, 143.

Zebedee, the ſons of, become apoſtles, x. 444, n.

Zebina, Alexander. See Alexander, ix. 146.

Zebul kills Abimelech by his command, iii. 510.

Zebulun, Jacob's bleſſing to, ii. 488. His lot in the promiſed land exactly fulfilled, ib. & n.

Zechariah ſucceeds his father Jeroboam, iv. 129. Maſſacred after a fix months reign, 132.

—prophecies to the returned Jews, x. 22. Aſſiſts Ezra in his reformation, 29, & n. His character and prophecies, 55, n. Thoſe particularly which concern Chriſt's ſufferings, 500, n. And the deſtruction of the Jewiſh commonwealth, 607, n.

—the ſon of Baruc, x. 585.

Zedekiah's impious reign, ix. 177. Deceived by his falſe prophets, 178. Rebels againſt Nebuchadnezzar, ib. Carried into captivity, 179. His miſerable end, ib.

Zeeb, prince of Midian, defeated and killed, ii. 142, 143.

† Zeira, where ſited, viii. 90. Taken by Philip, ib.

† Zela, a city in Pontus, ix. 373.

—king of Bithynia, killed by the Galatians, ix. 595.

† Zelis, where ſituate, xviii. 6. Whether the Roman Arzilla, ib.

† —river in Tangitania, xviii. 12, 13.

Zelophehad's five daughters obtain an inheritance from Moſes, iii. 32. A law made on that occaſion, ib.

Zelotes, Simon, the apoſtle, whence ſo called, x. 444, n.

Zelus, Belus, Baal, &c. one of the Phœnician deities, ii. 340.

Zembla, north part of ancient Scythia, v. 441.

† Zemzem, the famed well of, at Mecca, xviii. 204. The Turks tradition about it, 205.

Zenadika, a Mohammedan ſect hold that whatever we ſee is God, i. 88.

† Zendera iſland, ſaid to be governed by a dog, xviii. 115, n.

† Zenderoud, a river in Perſia, deſcribed, iv. 519, n.

Zendeſtaſta, the famed book, v. 328, & 329, n.

Zengitæ, the third rank among the Athenians, vii. 115.

† Zengiza, a promontory in Æthiopia, xviii. 106.

Zeno, held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 84. His notion of the origin of things, 121. Where born, vii. 121, 489.

Zeno, general of Antiochus, defeated, viii. 601.

—king of Armenia. See Artaxias III, ix. 351.

—emperor, marries Ariadne, xvi. 277. His extract and riſe, ib. Promotion oppoſed by the Romans, 280. Declared his ſon's colleague, 281. His wicked character and flight, 283. Purſued into Iſauria, 216. Dethrones Baſiliſcus, ib. Shameful peace with Theodoric, 287. Beſieged by Marſian, 288. Yields Italy to Theodoric, 290. Horrid cruelties, 291. Treachery to Conſtantius, xix. 71. To Theodoric, 178. Rejects his offers, 180. Beſtows great honours on him, 181. Treaty with Genſeric, 547. Death and character, xvi. 290, 291.

—a prieſt, his zeal for Cunipert, ix. 347.

Zenobia's adventures, ix. 356, 357. Married to Odenatus, xv. 234. Created queen, 235. With the title of Auguſta, 243. Whether acceſſory to her husband's death, 245. Her reign, 246. Conqueſt of Egypt, 253. Pedigree, learning, and valour, 257. Noble exploits, 258. Defeated by Aurelian, 259. Brave defence of Palmyra, 260. Letter to Aurelian, ib. Pursued, and taken in her flight, 261. Led in triumph under a huge load of jewels, 263. Her retirement and death, 264.

NINETEEN VOLUMES.

Zenobius's writings and character, xiv. 654, n.

—bishop, whether descended from queen Zenobia, xv. 264.

—oppresses the Chians, vii. 566.

Zenodotus, library-keeper to Ptolemy Soter, ix. 189.

Zenodorus, why stripped of his toparchies, x. 304, & n.

† Zenodotia, where sited, xi. 18. Taken by Crassus, ib.

Zenodotus, the first corrector of Homer's works, ix. 203.

Zenonides, Zeno's empress, declared Augusta, xvi. 283. Her death, 287.

Zenus's success against Alexander, xv. 363.

† Zephyrian Venus, her temple, ix. 206.

† Zephyrium and other cities submit to Antiochus, ix. 9.

Zerah the Ethiopian, at the head of 10,000,000 men defeated by king Asah, iv. 87. xviii. 114, 149.

† Zerbi island, where sited, xviii. 79, n.

† Zermisegethusa, where, and by whom founded, xiv. 574.

Zerubabel heads the returning Jews, x. 9. His genealogy, 8.

Zethus, tyrant of Athens, killed by his own mother, v. 668.

Zeüda Crarta, where, viii. 235. Surrendered to Alexander, ib.

† Zeugitania described; xvi. 573.

—the sea and inland towns of, xvi. 579.

† Zeugma, where situate, xi. 24, n.

Zeus, Belus, the son of Chronus, whether the same with Mizraim, i. 396, & n.

—one of the Phœnician deities, ii. 340.

Zeuxdias, Prætor of Acarnania, attached to the Romans, vii. 94. Deposed, ib.

Zeuxippus, last king of Sicyon, v. 617.

—a Roman kills the Bæotian Prætor, vii. 91.

† Zia island, where situate. See Cea, vii. 576.

Ziba, the treacherous servant of Mephibosheth, outwits him and king David, iv. 36.

† Zidon. See Sidon, ii. 330, & seq.

† Ziglag, David's retreat, taken and burnt, ii. 179. iv. 5, 6, 7.

Zilpah, Leah's maid, bears Jacob two sons, ii. 440.

Zimisces, John's success against the Saracens, xvi. 421. Ill requited by Nicephorus, 422. Murders him, ib. Submission to Polyencius, 423. Crowned, ib. Takes Romanus for his colleague, ib. Success against the Rossi, 425. Peace with them, 427. Poisoned, 428. His character, ib.

Zimri brings a Midianitish princess into the Jewish camp, ii. 30. Slain with her by Phineas, ib.

† Zin, the famed wilderness of, iii. 20. xviii. 168,

† Zion, the fortress of, where, iv. 17. Taken by Joab, ib. Enlarged and fortified by David, ib. &c.

Zipetes, 1st king of Bithynia, wars with the Heracleans, ix. 594. Dies for joy, ib. & viii. 582.

Ild, defeated by his brother, viii. 582. Dies in banishment, ix. 595.

Zipporah married to Moses, ii. 135. Falls out with, and parts from him, 136. Reconciled, ib, &c. Why called a Cushite by Miriam, 547, n. Circumcises her child, 554. Comes with her father and children to her husband, 600.

Zisais, Zizais, made king of Samaria, xv. 487. xix. 364.

—Put to death by Phocas, xvi. 332.

† Zyim, Troglodytes so called in scripture, who, and where sited, i. 465.

† Zoa, where, and by whom built, xviii. 70.

Zoak, a tyrant of Persia. See Dehoc, v. 251.

† Zoar, the country of, where, ii. 199.

—king of, defeated by Chedorlaomer, ib. &c.

† Zobah, the kingdom of, in Syria, ii. 285. On the ruins of which rose up that of Damascus, 286. The chronology of its king, 304. Why called also Sopheme, ibid.

Zobair's vain attempt and insignificant aqueduct, xviii. 204.

Zobores king of Albania, defeated by M. Antony, ix. 615.

Zochares defeated before Antioch, xvi. 423.

Zeo 1st, married to Leo, and dies, xvi. 332.

—Ild, the mother of Constantine, xvi. 404. Banished by Alexander, 409. Recalled by her son, 410. Assumes the government, ib. Defeated by the Bulgarians, 411, & seq. (xix. 407.) Confined by Romanus, xvi. 412.

Zeo,

I N D E X to the

Zeo, Constantine's daughter, married to Romanus IId, xvi. 440. Poisons and murders him, 443. Marries Michael, and makes him emperor, ib. Over-reached by his brother, 444. Confined by Calaphates, 447. Recalled, ib. Marries afresh, 448. Dies, 452.

Zoganus commands at the siege of Constantinople, xvi. 548.

Zohair Ift, a wise prince of Kelab, xviii. 291.

——IId, murdered, xviii. 292.

Zoilus's revolt from Syria, ix. 154.

——the Critic, writes against Homer, ix. 203. His miserable end, 204.

Zolicus, Heliogabalus's beastly husband, xv. 151,

Zonara's abridgment of Dion Cassius, xv. 180, n. Account of Macrianus's usurpation, 238.

Zonobarzes, king of Iberia, baptized, ix. 611.

Zophafemem, in the Phœnician cosmogony, what, i. 97.

Zopyrus's stratagem to betray Babylon to Darius, v. 104. Amply rewarded, 105.

Zoroaster, Zoroastres, Zerduft, his Chaldean Cosmogony from their ancient oracles, i. 103. Description of the supreme deity, 140. Introduces learning into Persia, v. 15. Reforms the Persic religion, 34, n. Had his own from the Mosaic writings, 40.

His life, doctrine, &c. according to oriental writers, 302, & seq. Said to have been brought up under one of the prophets, 308. Converts the king of Persia, 316, & seq. His miracles, 319. Religion, 324, & seq. Liturgy, 327. Laws, writings, &c. ib. & seq. Foretold the coming of the Messiah, 330. His death, 334.

Zoroaster king of Bactria's reign, ix. 630.

Zorus's expedition to Carthage, xvi. 559.

Zosimus, an enemy to the Christians, xv. 212. His history truncated, 319. Partiality against Constantine the Great, 418. Censured and confuted, 419. Against Theodosius, xvi. 38.

Zotto, first duke of Benevento, xix. 517. His death, ib.

Zoub, king of Persia. See Zab, v. 267.

† Zow-aan, mount, where situate, xvii. 173, n.

† Zuchabari, the spring of, in Syrtes, xviii. 79.

† Zuphons, a tribe of Numidians, where sited, xvii. 181, n.

Zur, king of Tiaian, ii. 139. Sends his daughter to debauch the Israelites, 140.

Zuxidamus king of Sparta, vi. 416.

† Zydretæ, who, and where sited, xiv. 622.

Zygritæ, who, and where sited, xviii. 61.

F I N I S.

THE CHRONOLOGICAL TABLES
TO THE UNIVERSAL HISTORY.

ADVERTISEMENT

Concerning the following

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLES.

AT our first setting out in this work (Pref. to Vol. I. pag. 1.) we gave our readers the chronology of the world from the creation to the flood, according to the various systems of the most eminent chronologists in all nations, after which we subjoined our reasons for preferring that of the Samaritan pentateuch to that of the Hebrew septuagint, Josephus's, &c. as far as relates to that remote and impenetrable epocha ; upon which account we were induced to compute all the events from the latter period by the years of the flood, rather than by those of the world. (Preface ibid. pag. ult.) We need not repeat our reasons at large here, but only remind our readers, that as we engaged to subjoin the year of the world to that of the flood in the chronological tables whenever they came to be printed, so we have accordingly performed our promise in those that follow.

As for the Julian period, we have in pursuance of our reasons there given wholly omitted it as imaginary, and therefore useless. Those readers who retain a fondness for it, may however supply it all along, by adding its complement to the year of the world ; only let them remember, that it is not (according to these tables) that of 710, which is the Hebrew computation, but of 408, which is the Samaritan, that we have here followed. The reader will find our reasons for all these in the preface above-mentioned.

It is necessary to observe furthermore in this place, that we had purposed in our original plan to insert at the end of each volume a chronological table of its particular contents : But upon mature consideration, we have thought it much more eligible to comprize the whole in one general table, that our readers may see at one view all the synchronological events of each nation and kingdom, by which means a great deal of trouble, confusion, and needless repetitions tions will be avoided, especially as the most material are purposely made so full and explicit, that a reader who even is but moderately versed in History may, by the helps here afforded, frequently spare himself the labour of consulting the volumes; whilst those that are less acquainted with it will, by the help of the two last columns in the table, be easily directed to the volume and page where the point in question is more fully discussed.

ADVERTISEMENT.

The great difficulties which the authors of the foregoing volumes have met with in the carrying on this arduous and extensive work (of which some account hath been given in the preface to the nineteenth volume,) have occasioned a number of anachronisms to creep into several parts of the history, to say nothing of typographical oversights, which are almost unavoidable in a work of this nature. For this reason the greatest care hath been taken to make the following tables so exact, that the accurate reader may, if he pleases, by the help of them rectify and adjust every error or inadvertency he meets with in the text.

The time and labour which a task like this must have taken up, will, we hope, apologise for this volume coming out so much later than was intended. And we doubt not but the kind friends and encouragers of this work will think themselves sufficiently gratified for waiting somewhat longer for it, when they find how much more useful and easy the reading this Universal History is made to them by the assistance of such a copious general index, and such full and exact chronological and other tables as are inserted in this volume.

A

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE.

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
1		4305	G OD creates the world, and with it, time and man. Places him in Paradise. Forbids him eating of the tree of knowledge, and gives him Eve for his wife - - -	I.	195
1		4305	Adam , by the persuasion of his wife, eats the fruit of the forbidden tree, and thereby introduces sin, misery, and natural death - - -	I.	196
1		4305	Cain , the eldest son of Adam, born within this year - - -	I.	224
2		4304	Abel , Adam's second son, born - - -	I.	225
129		4177	Cain slays his brother Abel , and is condemned by God to be a fugitive and a vagabond, &c. - - -	I.	227
130		4176	Seth (or the appointed one) born to supply the place of Abel , whom Cain slew, &c. - - -	I.	232
235		4071	Enos , the son of Seth , born in the 105th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
325		3981	Cainan , the son of Enos , born in the 90th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
395		3911	Mahalaleel , the son of Cainan , born in the 70th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
460		3846	Jared , the son of Mahalaleel , born in the 65th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
522		3784	Enoch , the son of Jared , born in the 62d year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
587		3719	Methuselah , the son of Enoch , born in the 65th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
654		3652	Lamech , the son of Methuselah , born in the 67th year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
707		3599	Noah , the son of Lamech , born in the 53d year of his father's age - - -	I.	221
887		3419	Enoch , the son of Jared , the father of Methuselah , as a reward for his father's extraordinary piety, is translated from earth to heaven alive, without first dying naturally, in the 365th year of his age - - -	I.	236

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
930		3376		Adam , the first man, and common parent of mankind, dies a natural death in the 930th year of his age - -	I.	239
1042		3264		Seth dies in the 912th year of his age - -	I.	221
1140		3166		Enos dies in the 905th year of his age - -	I.	221
1187		3119		Noah begins to preach repentance, and forewarn the people of the universal destruction of the world - -	I.	253
1207		3099		Japhet , the son of Noah, born in the 500th year of his father's age - -	I.	221
1209		3097		Shem , the son of Noah, born in the 502d year of his father's age - -	I.	221
1235		3071		Cainan , the son of Enos, dies aged 910 years - -	I.	221
1290		3016		Mabalaleel , the son of Cainan, dies aged 895 years - -	I.	221
1307		2999		Jared , the son of Mahalaleel, dies aged 847 years - -	I.	221
1307		2999		Methuselah , the son of Enoch, dies aged 720 years - -	I.	221
1307		2999		Lamech , the son of Methuselah, dies aged 653 years - -	I.	221
1307		2999		The flood, after 120 years preaching by Noah, is brought upon the earth; and Noah and his family by God's command, goes into the Ark, which he had built by God's own appointment, and with him all kinds of beasts and fowls, and every thing that creepeth on the earth; of the unclean by pairs, and of the clean by sevens, male and female, with proper quantities of food, &c. on the 17th day of the second month, answering to our December - -	I.	278
1308		12928		The waters being sufficiently abated, and the dry land visible, Noah, by God's direction, with all that were with him, comes out of the Ark on the 27th day of the second month (or December) having been in it a year and ten days, &c. - -	I.	306
1309		22997		Arphaxad , the son of Shem, born in the 100th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1444		1372862		Salah , the son of Arphaxad, born in the 135th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1574		2672732		Eber , the son of Salah, born in the 130th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1657		3502649		Noah dies in the 950th year of his age, and is supposed to be buried in Mesopotamia - -	I.	346
1708		4012598		Peleg , the son of Eber, born in the 134th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1708		4012598		The building of Babel; the confusion, or multiplicity, of languages, and the dispersion of mankind all over the earth - -	I.	378
1738		4312568		Nimrod , the son of Cush, is supposed to drive his cousin Ashur, the son of Shem, out of Shinaar, in Babylon, and settle in it, making it the foundation of a large kingdom, over which he reigned - -	I.	365
1738		4312568		Ashur , the son of Shem, being driven out of Babylon, by his cousin Nimrod, retires (no doubt with a large number of hands) into Assyria, and builds the cities of Niniveh, Rhehoboth, Calah, and Resen, and founds the Assyrian monarchy - -	I.	370
1747		4402559		Arphaxad , the son of Shem, dies in the 438th year of his age - -	I.	336
1809		5022497		Shem , the son of Noah, dies in the 600th year of his age - -	I.	336
1838		5312468		Reu , the son of Peleg, born in the 130th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1877		5702429		Salah , the son of Arphaxad, dies in the 433d year of his age - -	I.	336
1947		6402359		Peleg , the son of Eber, dies in the 239th year of his age - -	I.	336
1970		6632336		Serug , the son of Reu, born in the 132d year of his father's age - -	I.	336
1978		6712328		Eber , the son of Salah, dies in the 404th year of his age - -	I.	336
2077		7702229		Reu , the son of Peleg, dies in the 239th year of his age - -	I.	336
2100		7932106		Nabor , the son of Serug, born in the 130th year of his father's age - -	I.	336
2179		8722127		Terah , the son of Nabor, born in the 79th year of his father's age - -	I.	336

Y. of World.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
2200	863	2106	Serug , the son of Reu , dies in the 230th year of his age	I.	336
2216	909	2090	Ægialeus , the supposed first king and founder of the kingdom of Ægialea , since called Sicyon and Peloponnesus , began to reign and reigned 52 Years	V.	617
2247	940	2059	Ninus , son of Belus , is supposed to be the first king of Assyria , who governed that kingdom 52 years	IV.	210
2248	941	2058	Nabor , the son of Serug , dies in the 148th year of his age	I.	336
2268	961	2038	Europus , the second king of Ægialea , (or Sicyon) began to reign, and reigned 45 years	V.	617
2289	982	2017	Began the 16th dynasty of the Egyptians, which was of five Theban kings, that reigned 190 years	I.	601
2299	992	2007	Semiramis , wife of Ninus , succeeds her husband in the kingdom, as guardian of her son Ninyas , (by some called Zameis) she is said to have built the great city of Babylon , and other extraordinary and magnificent works; and to be killed by her son for tempting him to lie with her, after reigning 42 years	IV.	210
2309	1002	1997	Abram , the son of Terah , born in the 130th year of his father's age	I.	336
2313	1006	1993	Telchin or Selchin , the third king of Ægialea , (or Sicyon) began to reign, and changed the name of it into Telchinia , and reigned 20 years	V.	617
2320	1013	1986	Isab , the daughter of Haran born, who was afterwards wife of Abram , and called Sarai and then Sarah	I.	384
2333	1026	1973	Apis , (by some said to be a stranger, that came out of Ætolia , and by medicines and charms rid the country of all sorts of vermin that formerly annoyed it) the fourth king of Sicyon , changed its name into Apia , during his reign of 25 years	V.	617
2341	1034	1965	Ninyas (or Zameis the son of Ninus and Semiramis) began to reign, and reigned 38 years in Syria , whose capital city was Nineveh	IV.	210
2358	1051	1948	Thelxion or Thelasion , the fifth king of Sicyon , began to reign, and reigned 52 years	V.	617
2372	1065	1934	Chederlaomer , king of Elam , invades the inhabitants of the vale of Siddim (governed by five kings) where Sodom and Gomorrah stood, conquers and makes them tributaries	II.	193
2379	1072	1927	Arius succeeded Ninyas in the throne of Assyria , and reigned 30 years	IV.	210
2383	1076	1923	Terab , Abram , and Lot , went for Ur to dwell at Haran	I.	387
2384	1077	1922	Terab , the son of Nahor , dies in the 205th year of his age	I.	336
2384	1077	1922	This same year Abram , by God's immediate command, leaves Haran , and takes his wife and family, and Lot and his family, and goes and settles in the land of Canaan , builds an altar at Shechem , where the Lord appears to him, and promises to bestow the Land of Canaan upon his posterity	II.	395
2385	1078	1921	Abram is drove out of Canaan into Egypt by a great famine, where Pharaoh the king, and his house, are punished, for taking Sarah , Abram's wife, upon which she is returned; and the plague being over, Abram and his family return into Canaan again	II.	396
2393	1086	1913	Bera , and the other four kings of the vale of Siddim having revolted from Chederlaomer , to whom they were tributaries, he comes against them, and slays great numbers, and carries away the rest captive, among whom was Lot and his family, upon which Abram arms, pursues the conqueror, recovers his kinsman, and with him a great deal of plunder	II.	193
2394	1087	1912	Ishmael , Abram's son, by his maid Hagar , born	II.	405
2407	1100	1899	Abram's name changed to Abraham , and his wife Sarai to Sarah ; and circumcision instituted by God's immediate command, upon which he circumcises all the males in his family	II.	405

Y. of world.	Y. of Noed.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
2407	1100	1899	Isaac , promised by God to Abraham and Sarah, upon his entertaining three angels at a feast	II.	411
2408	1101	1898	The cities of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, with their inhabitants, for the unnatural sin of Sodomy, are destroyed by a rain of fire and brimstone, or a prodigious storm of thunder and lightning, and the whole valley of Siddim from thenceforward became the Dead or Salt Sea, called sometimes the lake Asphaltites	II.	196
2408	1101	1898	Isaac , son of Abraham by his wife Sarah, born, and at eight days old circumcised, Abraham being an 100, and his wife 90 years of age	II.	413
2409	1102	1897	Aralius succeeds Arius as king of Syria, and reigns 40 years	IV.	210
2410	1103	1896	Ægydrus , or Ægyrus , the sixth king of Sicyon, now Peloponnesus, begins to reign and reigns 34 years	V.	617
2414	1107	1892	Isaac is weaned, (here begin the 400 years that Abraham's seed were to be strangers, and to have no country of their own)	II.	413
2415	1108	1891	Ishmael mocking Isaac . Sarah the mother of the latter, requests Abraham, the father of both of them, to send Ishmael quite away from him, he hesitating, God assures Abraham he would make Ishmael a great nation, and thereupon he sends both him and his mother away	II.	414
2434	1127	1872	Abraham , by God's command, takes his son Isaac , and goes to mount Moriah, to sacrifice him there, but is prevented by a voice from Heaven, and the victim offered, that was found in a neighbouring thicket; upon this the covenant or promise that God had formerly made with Abraham, is again renewed, &c.	II.	417
2444	1137	1862	Tburimachus , the seventh king of Sicyon, begins to reign, and reigned 45 years	V.	617
2445	1138	1861	Sarah , the wife of Abraham, dies in the 127th year of her age, in the city of Arbah, where Abraham mourns for her, and buries her with great funeral solemnity, in the cave of Machpelah, which he had bought of Ephron the Hittite, for that purpose	II.	420
2449	1142	1857	Abraham first swears, and then sends his chief steward or servant to Mesopotamia, where his brother Nahor dwelt, with large presents, to demand one of his daughters to be the wife of his son Isaac , who was now forty years of age, upon receiving the message, and the presents, Nahor sends him his daughter Rebecca, a very beautiful virgin, who became the wife of Isaac accordingly	II.	421
2449	1142	1857	The same year Abraham marries Keturah, (which is supposed to be Hagar, the mother of Ishmael), and though he was then 141 years old, had six sons by her	II.	423
2449	1142	1857	Xerxes called also Baleus , succeeds Aralius as king of Syria, and reigned thirty years	IV.	210
2450	1143	1856	Inactus founded the kingdom of Argos, and was the first king thereof, and reigned fifty years, having by his sister Melissa, whom he took to wife, two sons, Phoroneus and Ægialeus , and a daughter called Io, supposed to be Isis the goddess of the Egyptians, whom Jupiter turned into a cow; and from her swimming over the Thracian streight, it was called the Bosphorus	V.	620
2469	1162	1837	Rebecca , after having been childless for twenty years, brings forth twins, and calls the first-born, Esau, (a child remarkably hairy) and the other Jacob, who came into the world, holding his brother by the heel	II.	431
2469	1162	1837	Apis , Osyris, or Isis, the chief God of the Egyptians, now began to be worshipped under the form of a bull	I.	554

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
2479	1172	1827	Armamitres succeeds Xerxes as king of Syria, and reigned 38 years	IV.	210
2479	1172	1827	The seventeenth Egyptian dynasty of pastors for 103 years	I.	601
2483	1176	1823	Abraham being 175 years old, dies, and is buried by his sons Isaac and Ishmael , in the cave of Machpelah , along with his wife Sarah	II.	424
2489	1182	1817	Leucippus , the eighth king of Sicyon , began to reign, and reigned 53 years, having one only daughter Chalcinia , upon whom Neptune got a son, called Eratus	V.	617
2499	1192	1807	Phoroneus , son of Inachus , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Argos , was the first that sacrificed to Juno , and the first that made laws, and governed by them, and therefore by some called, or said to be, the first man: He collected the people that were scattered up and down the country into a body, and incorporated them in a city, built by him, and called Phoroneum ; he is said to have a son by the nymph Laodice , named Apis , and a daughter called Niobe , who was the first paramour of Jupiter , and had by him a son called Argos	V.	622
2501	1194	1805	Isaac is forced to leave his habitation upon account of a great famine; and by God's direction, he goes to Abimelech , king of Gerar , who entertains him and all his family, very kindly; after staying there some time, he enters into covenant with Abimelech , and then goes and lives in the valley of Gerar	II.	433
2509	1202	1797	Esau , at forty years of age, marries Judith , the daughter of Beer , and Bashemath , the daughter of Elon , both Hittites , at which his parents are much grieved	II.	434
2517	1210	1789	Belochus succeeds Armamitres in the kingdom of Affyria , and takes his daughter Atossa , called also Semiramis , a partner with him in his kingdom, for twelve years	IV.	210
2517	1210	1789	The Telchines and Caryatæ , make war against Phoroneus and the Parrhasii	V.	622
2525	1218	1781	Apis and Niobe , born to Phoroneus	V.	622
2540	1233	1766	The Ogygian flood in Attica and Bœotia , 248 years before Deucalion's flood in Thessaly (in Note)	I.	281
2542	1235	1764	Mesapus , the ninth king of Sicyon , began to reign, and reigned 47 years	V.	617
2544	1237	1762	Messana in Sicily , was built and called Zancle , till the Messenians got it, and called it Messana , afterwards the Mamertines got it, and called it Mamertina , and now Messina	VII.	141
2546	1239	1760	Isaac being 137 years old, and grown very dim-sighted, calls his son Esau (who was a great hunter) to him, and desires him to go and get him some venison for supper; and that then he would give him his particular blessing, which Rebecca hearing, prepares a savoury dish of meat, and obliges her favourite son Jacob to disguise himself, and personate Esau , and carry the meat in to his father, in order to obtain the promised blessing, which he doing with some difficulty, succeeds just before Esau returned from hunting	II.	435
2546	1239	1760	Esau threatening to kill Jacob , Isaac , by the instigation of Rebecca , sends Jacob to his uncle Laban in Padan Aram , whom he agreed to serve seven years, to have his beautiful daughter Rachel to wife, to which the father consents; but cheats him, and in the dark puts her eldest sister Leah to bed to him in her stead, upon which complaining next day to Laban , he agrees he should have Rachel also, provided he would serve him seven years more, which he agreeing to, has both the sisters for his wives	II.	438
2547	1240	1759

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
2548	1241	1758		Reuben , the first fon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born	II.	438
2549	1242	1757		Simeon , the second fon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born	II.	439
2550	1243	1756		Levi , the third fon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born	II.	440
2551	1244	1755		Judab , the fourth fon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born	II.	440
2552	1245	1754		Rachel very forrowful that ſhe had no children, defires Jacob to take her maid Bilhah, and what children Bilhah might have, ſhe would adopt for her own; this agreed to, Bilhah conceives, and brings forth a fifth fon to Jacob, whom Rachel called Dan	II.	440
2552	1245	1754		Baleus ſucceeds Belochus as king of Syria, and reigned 52 years	II.	440
2553	1246	1753		Bilhah , Rachel's maid, conceives again, and brings Jacob a fixth fon, whom Rachel calls Naphtali	IV.	210
2554	1247	1752		Leab ſeeing the ſucceſs of her fiſter, and having ceaſed ſometime from child-bearing herſelf, takes her maid Zilpah, and defires Jacob would grant her the ſame favour he had allowed her fiſter, he conſents, the maid conceives, and brings Jacob, a ſeventh fon, whom Leah calls Gad	II.	440
2555	1248	1751		Zilpah , Leah's maid, conceives again, and bears Jacob the eighth fon, whom Leah calls Aſher	II.	440
2556	1249	1750		Reuben , Leah's eldeſt fon, having been in the fields, bringing home ſome mandrakes to his mother, Rachel defires them, and agrees, that Jacob ſhould lie with Leah that night, provided ſhe gave her the mandrakes; all parties agreed, and Jacob lying with Leah, ſhe conceives: And,	II.	442
2557	1250	1749		Leab brings forth Jacob's ninth fon, (but the fifth of her own body) and calls his name Iſſachar, (or the man of reward)	II.	442
2558	1251	1748		Leab brings forth her fixth fon, (Jacob's tenth) and calls his name Zebulun	II.	442
2559	1252	1747		Leab bears Jacob a ſeventh child, (Jacob's eleventh) which being a daughter, ſhe called her name Dinah, after whom ſhe bore no more	II.	442
2559	1252	1747		Apis , fon of Phoroneus, ſucceeds his father as king of Argos, from whom the country was called Apia, and the people Apidones	V.	622
2561	1254	1745		Rachel , to her great joy, brings forth a fon, and called his name Joſeph; this was Jacob's eleventh fon	II.	442
2564	1257	1742		The Telchines being driven out of Peloponneſus, planted Rhodes, from them called Telchini	VII.	402
2567	1260	1739		Jacob having ſerved Laban his father-in-law 20 years, and his own ſeparate family being grown numerous, while Laban was gone to his ſheep-ſhearing, moves off with all his houſe-hold, &c. in his way to Canaan, he has a viſion of the angelick hoſt, by whom he is comforted, &c. but hearing his brother Eſau was coming towards him, he ſends a very great preſent before him to pave the way, that he might have a friendly reception, &c. in the mean time an angel appears to him in the common ſhape of a man, and wreſtles with him, touches his thigh, and he grows lame: at his departure, Jacob inſiſts upon his bleſſing, and then the angel changed his name from Jacob to Iſrael, at a place from that time called Peniel	II.	448
2574	1267	1732		Shechem the fon of Hamor, falls in love with Dinah Jacob's daughter, and forces her, to revenge which affront, after having prevailed with Hamor and Shechem, to have themſelves and their ſubjects circumciſed, the brothers of Dinah enter the city, and put all the males to the ſword, while they were yet ſore	II.	198
2577	1270	1729		As Jacob (now Iſrael) was marching towards Ephrath, Rachel fell in labour, and was delivered of her ſecond		554

Y. of world.	Y. of Noon.	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page.
				son (Jacob's twelfth) whose name she called Benoni (or the son of my affliction) and died presently after, and was buried at Ephrath; she being dead, Jacob changed his name from Benoni into Benjamin, (or the son of my right-hand)
2578	1271	1728		Jacob shewing a particular fondness for Joseph and Benjamin, the other brothers are so much displeased, that they take Joseph and sell him to some travelling merchants, who carried him into Egypt, and sold him to Potiphar, a principal officer belonging to king Pharaoh	II.	455
2588	1281	1718		Sparta the capital of the kingdom of Sparta, built by Spartus, son of Phoroneus king of Argos	II.	458
2589	1282	1717		Eratus , tenth king of Sicyon, son of Chalcinia, daughter of Leucippus , eighth king of Sicyon, began to reign, and reigned 46 years	VI.	46
2589	1282	1717		Joseph having been enticed by his mistress, Potiphar's wife (one of Pharaoh king of Egypt's great officers of state) to incontinency, he refuses her, whereupon she accuses him of attempting the crime she would have persuaded him to, in consequence whereof he is cast into prison; and there interpreting the dreams of two state prisoners that were under displeasure, is greatly taken notice of, &c.	V.	617
2590	1283	1716		Isaac now 180 years old, worn out with labour and age, dies, and his two sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him in the cave of Machpelah, with Abraham his father and Sarah his mother	II.	459
2591	1284	1715		Pharaoh , king of Egypt , has two extraordinary dreams, which his magicians or wise men, not being able to interpret, Joseph is sent for, who explained them so amply and satisfactorily, that from that moment he's advanced to be the second man in the kingdom, &c.	II.	456
2591	1284	1715		This and the following six years, make up the seven years of extraordinary plenty that Joseph had foretold would happen, in which he laid up immense stores of provisions, making prodigious magazines all over the kingdom	II.	465
2594	1287	1712		Argus succeeds Apis as king of Argos, from whom all Peloponnesus was called Argos, he reigned seventy years	II.	466
2596	1289	1710		Pelagius , brother of Niobe, is said to have now founded the kingdom of Arcadia, and to be the first king thereof	V.	622
2598	1291	1708		This and the following six years, make up the seven years of dreadful famine, according to Joseph's prediction	VI.	8
2599	1292	1707		Ten of Joseph's brethren go out of Canaan into Egypt to buy corn, which he lets them have, but detains Simeon, and charges the others, that when they came again, they should bring Benjamin their other brother with them	II.	467
2600	1293	1706		The famine compels Jacob to send his sons again, and with them Benjamin, &c. after some artificial trials of them, Joseph makes himself known to them, sends presents to his father, and invites him and all his household into Egypt	II.	469
2601	1294	1705		Upon the arrival of Jacob and his family in Egypt, Joseph acquaints Pharaoh with it, who orders them the land of Goshen to dwell in, this happened in the 130th year of Jacob's age	II.	469
2604	1297	1702		Altadus , the tenth king of Assyria, began his reign, and reigned 32 years	II.	475
2604	1297	1702		According to the set time appointed by Joseph, he told the Egyptians, the following year the land would be fruitful as in common; that the Nile would overflow and restore all things to its usual course, &c. which accordingly happened	IV.	210
					II.	486

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
2607	1360	1699		Chebron , king of Egypt, began to reign, and reigned thirteen years	I.	607
2617	1310	1689		Jacob now advanced to the 147th year of his age, growing weak and sickly, sends for his son Joseph , tells him his departure (or death) was at hand, and makes him swear not to bury him in Egypt, but in the cave of Machpelah , in the land of Canaan , &c.	II.	481
2617	1310	1689		Joseph brings his two sons to his father Jacob , now on his Death bed, and desires him to bless them, which he not only does, but adopts them to be his sons instead of grandsons, and makes them the head of two tribes, &c.	II.	482
2617	1310	1689		Jacob , after having given each of his children his particular blessing, and prophetically declaring what would happen to them, dies, and with the utmost funeral pomp and solemnity is carried and interred (according to his desire) in the cave of Machpelah .	II.	495
2619	2312	1687		Prometheus , the inventor of striking fire, the use of metals, and other arts and sciences among the Greeks	VII.	465
2620	1313	1686		Amenophis king of Egypt began to reign, and reigned 21 years	I.	607
2635	1228	1671		Plemneus , eleventh king of Sicyon , son of Eratus , succeeds his father, and reigned 48 years	V.	617
2636	1329	1670		Mamitus , king of Assyria , begins to reign, and reigned 30 years	IV.	210
2641	1334	1665		Mephres , Amerfis , or Miphris , king of Egypt, began to reign, and reigned 12 years	I.	607
2653	1346	1653		Mispharmutosis , Misaphris , or Misphragmuthosis , succeeds Mephres as king of Egypt, and reigns 26 years	I.	607
2664	1357	1642		Criafus , son of Argus , succeeds his father as king of Argos , and reigns 54 years	V.	622
2666	1359	1640		Mancaleus succeeds Mamitas as king of Assyria , and reigns 30 years	IV.	210
2671	1364	1635		Joseph , being arrived to the 110th year of his age, found himself so weakened with the laborious station he had been in, for now near 80 years, that he foresaw his departure was at hand, and sending for his brethren (being divinely inspired) told them that God would certainly bring their posterity out of Egypt into the land of Canaan , and charged them absolutely not to leave his bones in Egypt, but to take his body with them, and bury it in the spot of ground that Jacob had given him by his last will, and then gave up the ghost, &c.	II.	498
2679	1372	1627		Thomosis succeeds Mispharmutosis as king of Egypt, and reigned 9 years	I.	607
2683	1376	1623		Orthopolis , son of Plemneus , succeeds his father as twelfth king of Sicyon , and reigned 63 years	V.	617
2688	1381	1618		The famous Colossus , or groaning statue, called Memnon after the name of him it was made to honour, was now supposed to be set up by Amenophis , king of Egypt	V.	546
2688	1381	1618		Amenophis succeeds Thomosis as king of Egypt, and reigns 31 years	I.	607
2696	1389	1610		Spherus succeeds Mancaleus as king of Assyria , and reigns 20 years	IV.	210
2716	1409	1590		Mamitus succeeds Spherus as king of Assyria , and reigns 30 years	IV.	210
2717	1410	1589		Epidaurus , a famous sea-port in Argos , built (by Apollo or Hercules)	VI.	49
2718	1411	1588		Pborbas , son of Criafus , succeeds his father as king of Argos , and reigned 35 years	V.	622
2719	1412	1587		Horus succeeds Amenophis as king of Egypt, builds the famous city of Memphis , (others say 'twas built by Meme their

Y. of world	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page.
				first king, Vol. I. 488.) and several others, and having reigned 38 years, dies	I.	607
2725	1418	1581		Miriam born, (sister of Moses) the daughter of Amram, the son of Kohath, grandson of Levi by his wife Jochabed	II.	520
2726	1419	1580		Hæmon , son of Pelasgus, becomes the first king of Theffaly, so called from his son Theffalus	VI.	15
2728	1421	1578		Phorbas , son of Lapithas, reigned at Ophiusa (now Rhodes) having first cleared the country of serpents	VII.	403
2732	1425	1574		Aaron , brother of Miriam and Moses, son of Amram, born	II.	520
2733	1426	1573		Pharaoh king of Egypt, publishes an edict under the severest penalties, that every Hebrew male child, should be drowned in the Nile as soon it was born	II.	519
2735	1428	1571		Moses , brother to Miriam and Aaron, son of Amram is born, and concealed three months, after which time, being forced to expose the child in a cradle, or ark of bulrushes to the mercy of the waters, Pharaoh's daughter (Thermuthis by name) attended with her maids, coming to the river Nile to bathe, seeing him to be a beautiful child, ordered him to be put to nurse, (through ignorance to his own mother) and as he grew up caused him to be instructed in all the learning of the Egyptians	II.	521
2739	1432	1567		Cydon , king of Crete, began to reign	VII.	468
2746	1439	1560		Sparetus succeeds Mamitus asking of Assyria, and reigns 40 years	IV.	210
2746	1439	1560		Marathon succeeds Orthopolis as 13th king of Sicyon, and reigned 30 years	V.	617
2749	1442	1557		Cecrops , the first king of Athens, by birth an Egyptian, brought into Attica a colony of Saits, gathered his people into 12 tribes, dedicated his city to Minerva, and set up the Areopagus, or high court of judicature. He is said to be the first that deified Jupiter, and offered sacrifices to him as the supreme Deity	V.	644
2753	1446	1553		Triopas succeeds Phorbas as king of Argos, and reigned 46 years. (His son Xanthus first planted or peopled Lesbos, a famous Greek island. Vol. VII. 552)	V.	623
2756	1449	1550		Lycaon , son of Pelasgus, reigned in Arcadia, built Lycosura in Mount Lycæus, instituted the Lycæan Games, where he is said to offer up living children to Jupiter. &c.	VI.	9
2757	1450	1549		Acencheres succeeds Horus as king of Egypt, and reigns 12 years	I.	607
2759	1452	1547		The Curetes and Corybantes built Cnossus in Crete, (in Note)	V.	508
2760	1453	1546		Scamander from Crete came into Phrygia. (See Note 536)	V.	535
2761	1454	1545		Lesbos , planted by Macar, one of the 7 brethren called He-liadæ, that built Jalyffus in Rhodes.	VII.	553
2769	1462	1537		Achoris succeeds Acencheres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I.	607
2775	1468	1531		Moses seeing the cruelties used towards his countrymen, particularly by the task-masters, one day killed one of them, and buried him in the sand, upon which he was forced to fly into Midian, or Arabia Petraea	II.	524
2775	1468	1531		Moses coming into Midian, (where he is supposed either to have composed or purchased the book of Job) Jethro, the priest or prince there, taking a liking to him, gave him Zipporah, one of his daughters to wife, with whom he lived forty years in her father's house, &c.	II.	135
2776	1469	1530		Caleb , the son of Jephunneh was one of the 12 persons sent to view the land of Canaan	III.	8
2776	1469	1530		Marathus succeeds Marathon in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigns 20 years	V.	617
2778	1471	1528		Cenchres succeeds Achoris in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 16 years	I.	607

[X]				Vol.	Page
Flood	V. of world	Before Christ
2785	1478	1521	Eryfichon , son of Cecrops , begins building Apollo's Temple at Delus , which was afterwards enlarged and embellished at the common charge of all the states in Greece -	VII.	501
2788	1481	1518	Deucalion's Flood in Theffaly , (in Note) -	I.	279
2794	1487	1512	Acherres succeeds Cenchres as king of Egypt , and reigns 8 years -	I.	507
2796	1489	1510	Echyreus , or Coronus , succeeds Marathus in the kingdom of Sicyon , and reigns 55 years -	V.	617
2799	1492	1507	Cranaus succeeds Cecrops in the kingdom of Athens , and reigns 9 years, (from his daughter Atthis dying a virgin, the country was called Attica) -	V.	645
2799	1492	1507	Crotopus succeeds Triopas as king of Argos , and reigns 21 years -	V.	623
2801	1494	1505	Apteras , son of Cydon , (by some called the Saturn of Crete) reigns as king in Crete -	VII.	468
2802	1495	1504	Cheirres succeeds Acherres in the kingdom of Egypt , and reigns 15 years -	I.	607
2804	1497	1502	Teucer , the son of Scamander , reigned in Phrygia over that People, from him called Teucris , afterwards Trojans -	V.	535
2808	1501	1498	Amphietyon , son-in-law to Cranaus , began to reign (having first expelled his father-in-law, who thereupon fled to Eleusis , and reigned there) and reigned as king of Athens (or Attica) 10 years -	V.	645
2812	1505	1494	Cadmus having built a city, and called it Cadmea , and afterwards Thebes , became the king thereof, and reigned 62 years -	II.	366
2815	1508	1491	God appears to Moses in a burning bush upon mount Horeb , which, though visibly all in flames, not a leaf is either burned or scorched, and commands him to return back into Egypt , to do miracles before Pharaoh , and to deliver his people -	II.	134
2815	1508	1491	This year the Passover was instituted and kept, and the people thrust out of Egypt -	II.	577
2816	1509	1490	In the first six months of this year the tabernacle was set up, and in it the Ark of the Covenant , and the Altar , &c. -	II.	624
2816	1509	1490	The Decalogue delivered by Moses &c. -	II.	602
2816	1509	1490	Aaron and his Sons consecrated and appointed for the performance of the priest's office for ever -	II.	625
2816	1509	1490	Nadab and Abihu , Aaron's two eldest sons, struck dead for presuming to burn incense in the tabernacle with strange fire -	III.	3
2816	1509	1490	Quails sent to satisfy the people's hunger for 30 days -	III.	7
2816	1509	1490	The messengers sent by Moses to view the land, report it, if not impossible, very hard and difficult to conquer, whereupon a general murmuring arose among the people, which so displeased God, that by Moses he assured them, that not one above 20 years of age should go into the promised land, except Joshua and Caleb -	III.	10
2817	1510	1489	Korab , Dathan , and Abiram ; three principal persons, rebel against Moses , whose undutifulness is rewarded by the earth's bursting asunder and swallowing up them, their families, and substance -	III.	17
2817	1510	1489	The Priesthood confirmed to Aaron and his family, by a miraculous budding of Aaron's rod. -	III.	18
2817	1510	1489	Armais (called by the Greeks Danaus) son of Cherres , succeeded his father in the kingdom of Egypt , and reigned there 5 years -	I.	607
2817	1510	1489	Lacedæmon (or Sparta) built by Lacedæmon , son of Jupiter , &c. -	VI.	45
2818	1511	1488	Erichthonius , son of Vulcan , drives out Amphietyon , and becomes king of Athens in his stead, and reigns 50 years -	V.	646

World	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
2820	1513	1486		Arcas , the reputed Son of Jupiter, fucceeds Nyctimus, and calls his kingdom Arcadia.	VI.	3
2820	1513	1486		Sthenelus , fon of Crotopus, fucceeds his father in the kingdom of Argos, and reigned 11 years	V.	623
2822	1515	1484		Rameffes (called by the Greeks Egyptus, from whom the land took its name of Egypt, being before called Aeria, or Aetia, from the river called first Æetus , then Egyptus, and now Nile) ejected his brother Armais, and became king of Egypt in his ftead, and reigned 68 years	I.	607
2826	1519	1480		Amyntas , king of Affyria, begins to reign, and reigns 45 years	IV.	210
2826	1519	1480		Dardanus , fon-in-law to Teucer, reigns as king of Troy for 31 years, in which time he builds a capital city called Dardania	V.	537
2831	1524	1475		Gelanor , the fon of Sthenelus, after he had reigned fome time, yielded up the kingdom of Argos to Danaus, who was come thither from Egypt in a fhip of 50 Oars, being the firft fhip in Greece, where before that time they only ufed rafts. Gelanor reigned 59 years	V.	623
2834	1527	1472		Bufiris (fon of Neptune by Libya) now exercifed his cruelty upon ftrangers	I.	566
2835	1528	1471		Oenotrus , youngest fon of Nectymus, led the firft colony out of Greece into Italy, where he reigned as king	XI.	271
2838	1531	1468		Clymenus comes from Crete into Elis, and there held the firft Olympick games. (For an Explanation of them fee Note p. 461. Vol. VI.	V.	434
2844	1537	1462		Tat , fon of Trifmegiftus, fon of Hermes flourifhed
2851	1544	1455		Corax , fon of Coronus, fucceeds to the throne of Sicyon, which he enjoyed 30 years	V.	617
2854	1547	1452		The temple of Delphos burnt by Xerxes	V.	141
2854	1547	1452		Miriam , the fifter of Aaron and of Mofes, dies	III.	21
2854	1547	1452		The Ifraelites defeated by Arad, one of the Canaanitish kings	III.	20
2854	1547	1452		Mofes fmites with his rod, brings water out of a rock to fatisfy the thirft and murmuring of the people; but being vexed, and uſing ſome cholerick expreffions, God tells him that he and Aaron ſhould only fee, but not enter the promifed land	III.	21
2854	1547	1452		Mofes commanded to take Aaron and his fon Eleazer to the top of mount Nebo, and in the fight of all the people ftrip the father of, and clothe the fon with, the prieftly robes; this done, Aaron died immediately, and was buried fo ſecretly, that the place of his interment was never publickly known	III.	22
2854	1547	1452		Balak , king of Moab, ſends for Balaam, fon of Beor, a famous prophet or diviner, to curſe Ifrael	II.	103
2855	1548	1451		Mofes goes to the top of mount Nebo (having firft fettled all the publick and private matters relating to him) and from thence views the promifed land, and preſently expired, being 120 years old, and was ſucceeded by Joshua in the command of the army, and as head of the civil government, Joshua being now 93 years old	III.	46
2855	1548	1451		Joshua ſends two ſpies to Jericho, who are ſaved by the artifice of Rahab, to whom they promiſe ſafety and protection by an oath; at their return they make an encouraging report, and tell Joshua all they had done	III.	65
				On the 10th day of Nifan (our 30th April) all Ifrael paſſed over the river Jordan into the land of Canaan	III.	68
				The 11th of the month Nifan the whole camp was circumciſed, that ceremony having been omitted for ſome years paſt	III.	70

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				The 14th of the month Nisan (our 4th May) the passover was celebrated, which had been now discontinued near 40 years	III.	72
				Jericho besieged, and by being only gone round with some priests, &c. sounding rams horns, the 7th day the whole army making a grand shout in consort, the city walls fall down, and the besiegers enter and put every creature to death, except Rahab	III.	74
2857	1550	1449		Erichthonius , son of Dardanus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, and reigned 75 years, he is reported to be the richest king of his time	V.	539
2860	1553	1446		Europa , daughter of Phœnix, (brother of Cadmus) is stole from Sarepta by the Curetes, in their ship called the Bull, and carried to their king Asterius, by whom she had three sons, Minos, Rhadamanthus, and Sarpedon	II.	366
2861	1554	1445		Joshua , having conquered Canaan, and settled the districts of land each tribe was to have, called the heads or governors of Israel together, wished them carefully to observe the laws Moses had given him, and particularly cautioned them against idolatry, died in the 110th year of his age, and was buried at Timnath serah in mount Ephraim, a part of his own inheritance	III.	485
2868	1561	1438		Pandion , son of Amphiçtyon, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigned 40 years	V.	646
2871	1564	1435		Belochus , king of Assyria, begins his reign, and reigned 25 years	IV.	210
2874	1567	1432		Polydorus , son of Cadmus, under his guardian Nycteus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigns a short time, and leaves the kingdom to his son Labdacus (which he had by Nycheis, daughter of Nycteus) under the guardianship of his grandfather Nycteus	V.	666
2876	1569	1430		Bacchus son of Jupiter, by Semele daughter of Cadmus, famous for finding out the art of making wine: He built Nyfa in India, was reputed a God whilst alive, but was not solemnly deified till 100 years after his death, in Note	V.	665
2881	1574	1425		The burning of Ida	VII.	463
2881	1574	1425		Epopeus succeeds Corax as king of Sicyon, where he reigned 35 years	V.	617
2881	1574	1425		Lynceus , king of Argos, succeeds Danaus to the crown: He is said to be the only person out of 50 brothers that escaped being murdered by his wife; for his great skill in mining, he is said to see thro' stone walls	V.	624
2882	1575	1424		King Tereus from Thrace, settled at Daulis above Chæronea	VI.	33
2887	1580	1419		Athens has war with Thebes, in which Tereus having been very serviceable, Pandion king of Athens bestows his daughter Progne upon Tereus, as a reward for his valour, by whom he had a son called Itys	VI.	33
2893	1586	1413		Micab , a great Man in the tribe of Ephraim, erects a chapel, puts up images, and encourages idolatry	III.	488
2896	1589	1410		Gusharishathaim , king of Mesopotamia, subdues and keeps Israel in subjection 8 years	III.	493
2896	1589	1410		Bellepares , son of Belochus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	IV.	210
2896	1586	1410		Corinth built by Sisyphus [Son of Æolus;] its antient name was Ephyra	VI.	34
2899	1592	1407		Minos I. reigned in Crete, and built Cydonia	VII.	472
2899	1592	1407		Side in Cilicia, built by Orion, which he called by the name of his wife Side, the daughter of Danaus	V.	595
2900	1593	1406		The inhabitants of Gibbeath in the tribe of Benjamin, having expressed their desires in a brutish manner, to have a Levite

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				delivered to them who happened to be travelling that way, so abused the woman that was with him, that she was found dead at the door in the morning; this occasioned a civil war, &c.
2900	1593	1406		Cronus , son of Sandochus, reigned at Byblus, the first city that was built in Phœnicia	III.	490
2904	1597	1402		Othniel , the son of Kenna, Caleb's youngest brother, is chose the first judge in Israel, raises an army, and marches against Cushmanrithaim, overthrows him, and delivers Israel to their full liberty	I.	393
2908	1601	1398		Erechtheus , son of Pandion, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, the people whereof till now were called Cecropii, but from henceforward Athenians, and the race of kings from this time Erechthidæ; he reigned 50 years	III.	493
2910	1603	1396		The first jubilee among the Jews observed	V.	646
2912	1605	1394		Cinyras built Old Paphos in Cyprus, and married king Pygmalion's daughter	V.	211
2914	1607	1392		Labdacus , king of Thebes, killed in a tumult, leaving Laius his son (1 year old) under the guardianship of Nycteus his grandfather who died next year of grief for the loss of his daughter Antiope	III.	353
2915	1608	1391		Epopeus , king of Sicyon, in the 35th year of his reign received Antiope, then with child and flying from Thebes from her father Nycteus, his brother Lycus in revenge made war against him, in which war Epopeus was killed	II.	366
2916	1609	1390		Lamedon succeeds his brother Corax in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 40 years	V.	617
2916	1609	1390		Lycus , brother to Labdacus, succeeds in the guardianship of his nephew Laius king of Thebes, for the space of twenty years, in the first whereof Lamedon his brother delivers up Antiope and her two twin sons, Amphion and Zethus; Lycus used her cruelly, and exposed the twins, but in vain	V.	617
2922	1615	1384		Phryxus and Helie (from whom the Hellespont had its name) went to Colchis in a ship called the ram (in Note)	V.	668
2922	1615	1384		Abas , son of Lynceus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Argos. He built Abæ in Phocis, from whence came the Abantes in Eubœa, he reigned 23 years	V.	521
2922	1615	1384		Ceres came to Athens, and both civilized the people and taught them husbandry, being the first that regularly planted corn there, and sent it out by Triptolemus her favourite to be dispersed to other countries (in Note)	V.	624
2925	1618	1381		Triptolemus plants corn in Raria at Eleusis, for the first time (in Note)	VI.	96
2926	1619	1380		The rape of Ganymede	VII.	69
2926	1619	1380		Lamprides succeeds Bellepares in the kingdom of Assyria, where he reigned 30 years	V.	540
2930	1623	1376		This year is fixed for the beginning of the 19 Egyptian dynasty of 194 years, in which they began to have kings of their own, the first whereof was Sethos, who reigned 55 years	IV.	211
2932	1625	1374		Adonis (the son of Cyniras and his wife Metharme) born, called also Thammuz or Shammuz, and Osiris	I.	607
2932	1625	1374		Tros , the son of Erichthonius, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Teucris, which from this time forward was called Troy; he reigned 60 years	II.	353
2936	1629	1370		Amphion and his brother Zethus rebels and in a battle having killed Lycus, the guardian of Laius king of Thebes, is set up by the people, and reigned 35 years: He named the metropolis of the kingdom Thebes, which he inclosed with a wall, &c.	V.	540
					V.	668

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
2943	1636	1363		Tantalus , king of Sipylus in Phrygia, before called Mæonia, was as famous for his great riches as he was infamous for his notorious wickedness	V.	502
2944	1637	1362		Eglon , king of Moab, &c. invades the eastern parts of Israel, takes Jericho, and obliges them to pay tribute 18 years	II.	110
2945	1638	1361		Prætus , son of Abas, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Argos, and reigned 17 years	V.	625
2956	1649	1350		Sicyon succeeds Lamedon in the kingdom of Sicyon; from him the city Ægiale was called Sicyon. He reigned 45 years	V.	617
2958	1651	1348		Sofares succeeds Lamprides as king of Assyria, and reigned 20 years	IV.	211
2958	1651	1348		Cecrops II. son of Erechtheus, succeeds his father as king of Athens, and reigns 40 years. It was now agreed that the Erechthidæ should be kings, and the Eumolpidæ priests	V.	646
2961	1654	1345		Prætus is driven out of his kingdom of Argos (where he had reigned 17 years) by his brother Acrisius, and flies to his wife's father, Jobates king of Lycia, who so accommodated the matter, that from this time the kingdom was divided into two parts, the one called Mycenæ, the other by its old name Argos	V.	625
2962	1655	1344		Acrisius , brother of Prætus, is made the first king of Mycenæ, and reigned 31 years	V.	625
2962	1655	1344		Prætus is made king of Argos, as divided, (which contained Midea, Heræum, and Tiryns,) and reigned 14 years	V.	625
2962	1655	1344		Ebud , the son of Gera, a Benjamite, and famous for his left-hand dexterity, is chose second judge or principal governor in Israel; he going with the annual present or tribute, gets accession to Eglon king of Moab, privately stabs him, makes his escape, raises an army, and frees his country, and under him Israel enjoyed peace 40 years	III.	494
2974	1667	1332		Amphion king of Thebes, his family, and multitudes of the people, died of the great plague that at this time raged there	V.	668
2975	1668	1331		Laius , son of Labdacus, succeeds Amphion (who had invaded his right) in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigned 55 years	V.	668
2975	1668	1331		The city of Ilion, or Ilium, built by Tros king of Troy, who also called this city Troy after his own name, and Ilium from his son Ilus; it was seated on a rising ground near mount Ida, about 5 miles from the shore	V.	523
2976	1669	1330		Janus , or Saturnus Albanus, becomes the first king of the Aborigines in Italy, who reigned 33 years	V.	427
2976	1669	1330		Bacchus deified, and Pentheus the son of Echriion was torn in pieces by his mother and sisters for profaning his rites	V.	666
2976	1669	1330		Prætus king of Argos died	V.	625
2977	1670	1329		Acrisius , king of Mycenæ, sets up the court of the Amphictyons, or general court of Greece, at Delphos, and endowed them with very great powers and privileges	VI.	31
2977	1670	1329		Megapenthes , son of Prætus, who was king at Tiryns, changes it for Argos, where his sons Argæus and Anaxagoras reigned after him, and with him in two thirds of the kingdom. Melampus, son of Amythaon and brother of Bias	V.	627
2978	1671	1328		Lampares succeeds Sofares in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	IV.	211
2978	1671	1328		The city of Crete built (in Note)	VII.	468
2984	1677	1322		Pelops , son of Tantalus, a little king in Phrygia, failing in an attempt upon Ilium, fled into Greece, and being wise, valiant, and rich, acquired the greatest part of the country which was afterwards (from him) called Peloponnesus	VI.	70
2984	1678	1321		Ramses succeeds Sethos in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 66 years	I.	608

Y. of world.	Y. of Good.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
2986	1679	1320	Shamgar , the son of Anath, was the third judge among the Israelites; he is said to have slain 600 Philistines with an ox-goad	III.	494
2992	1685	1314	Perseus , son of Acrisius, killed his father, king of Mycenæ, and changed Argos with Megapenthes for Tiryns. He built the city of Mycenæ for his feat, and reigned 32 years	V.	627
2992	1685	1314	Ilus , the son of Tros, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, where he reigned 54 years	V.	544
2992	1685	1314	Apollo and his mother Latona are said to come from Hyperborei to Delphi; Olen Hyperboreus was his first prophet there	VII.	600
2998	1691	1308	Pandion II. succeeded Cecrops as king of Athens, and reigned 25 years: In this king's reign the sacrifice of man's flesh and Lycea were shewn (perhaps revived) in Arcadia	V.	646
2999	1692	1307	In memory of king Oenomaus, whom he had driven out of Pisa, Pelops held his Olympic, which by his son Atreus was revived 100 years after	VI.	68
3001	1694	1305	Polybus succeeds Sicyon in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 40 years	V.	617
3001	1694	1305	Jabin , king of Hazor, conquers Israel, and sorely harrasses them for twenty years, &c.	II.	211
3005	1698	1301	The 1st lustration at Athens
3008	1701	1298	Panyas succeeds Lampares in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigned 45 years	IV.	211
3009	1702	1297	Cyzicus or Cyzicum, built; this city was the capital of an island of the Propontis of the same name, which Alexander the Great joined to the continent by two great bridges	V.	561
3009	1702	1297	Picus or Jupiter Albanus, the second king of the Aborigines, began to reign, and reigned 37 years (In Note)	V.	430
3010	1703	1296	Melantbus , partner with Megapenthes in the kingdom of Argos, dies	V.	625
3012	1705	1294	Marsyas , lived at Celænæ, a city in Phrygia Major; he invented the bagpipe, with which he challenged Apollo, and for his insolence was flayed	V.	498
3012	1705	1294	Oedipus , the son of Laius king of Thebes born, and exposed on mount Cithæron, and found by the shepherds of the king of Sicyon, and by him brought up	V.	669
3012	1705	1294	Bias , brother of Megapenthes, and one of his partners in the kingdom of Tyrins, dies (Note)	VI.	18
3018	1711	1288	Miletus built by Sarpedon	VII.	116
3021	1714	1285	Deborah , a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, raises an army of 10,000 Israelites, with which Barak her general engages and conquers Sisera, Jabin's general, who in his flight goes to the tent of Heber, where was Jael, Heber's wife, who gave him refreshment, and he being wearied lay down to sleep, at which time Jael drove a large nail into his temples, and so killed him. This victory obtained Israel a forty years peace	II.	212
3023	1716	1283	Ægeus , the son of Pandion, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 48 years	V.	647
3025	1718	1281	Orpheus , Musæus, and Linus flourished; the last of the three was the master of Hercules	V.	612
3025	1718	1281	The three brothers Electro, Mestor, and Sthenelus, reign as kings of Mycenæ in common	V.	623
3028	1721	1278	Eupilamus invented the anchor
3030	1723	1276	Laius , king of Thebes, going to the oracle at Delphos to enquire after his son, is killed by his son Oedipus ignorantly, who was also come thither to enquire who was his father, &c.	V.	669

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3030	1723	1276	Creon , brother of Jocasta the wife of Laius , succeeds his brother-in-law in the kingdom of Thebes , and reigns about ten years (In Note)	V.	669
3031	1724	1275	Mestor , one of the three kings of Mycenæ , dies	V.	623
3032	1725	1274	Electro , another of the three kings of Mycenæ , dies	V.	623
3032	1725	1274	Hercules , the son of Amphitryon , born; said to be the son of Jupiter by Alcmena , wife of Amphitryon (in Note)	V.	628
3032	1725	1274	Sthenelus becomes king of Mycenæ alone, his two brothers Mestor and Electro being dead, who were partners with him in the kingdom, and reigned alone 8 years	V.	623
3036	1729	1270	Androgeus , the son of king Minos , killed at Athens , as it was thought, by the procurement of king Ægeus , upon which followed war, plague, and famine: The oracle being consulted, bid the Athenians satisfy king Minos for his son; he demanded, that every 8th year, at his Ludi held in memory of his son, there should be sent him 7 young men and 7 virgins, to be given as rewards to the victors at these sports	V.	649
3037	1730	1269	The first colony of the Aborigines goes out of Italy into Sicily five years before the last colony	XI.	267
3039	1732	1267	Jason and his Argonauts went now from Iolchus over the Euxine sea to Colchis , in search of the golden fleece, from whence this is called the Argonautic expedition	VI.	19
3040	1733	1266	Atreus and his brother Thyestes (sons of Pelops) reigned in Mycenæ 65 years	V.	629
3040	1733	1266	Oedipus married his mother Jocasta , at that time not knowing she was his mother, and became king of Thebes	V.	669
3042	1735	1264	The second colony goes out of Italy into Sicily , called the Ligures , or Siculi , from their leader Siculus	XI.	270
3042	1735	1264	Meleager killed the Calydonian boar	VI.	77
3043	1736	1263	The first Pythia , or games in honour of Apollo for his killing the serpent Python , were now held by Adraftus	VI.	17
3046	1739	1260	Faunus , or Mercurius Albanus , 3d. king of the Aborigines , begins to reign, and reigned 44 years	XI.	268
3046	1739	1260	Laomedon succeeds Ilus in the kingdom of Troy , and reigned 36 years	V.	547
3051	1744	1255	Amenophis succeeds Ramses in the kingdom of Egypt , and reigns 40 years	I.	607
3053	1746	1253	Sosarmes succeeds Paryas in the kingdom of Assyria , and reigns 19 years	IV.	211
3054	1747	1252	The first tribute-children sent to Crete	V.	649
3054	1747	1252	Tyre built; the metropolis of Phœnicia , formerly called Sor , and commonly the daughter of Sidon	II.	331
3061	1754	1245	Zebab and Zalmunnah , two confederate kings of Midian , waged so cruel a war against the Israelites that they were not able to stand against them, but forced to fly into holes and corners, &c. this continued seven years	III.	495
3062	1755	1244	The second tribute of children sent to Crete	V.	649
3062	1755	1244	The Arcadians enter Italy , and settle there	XI.	268
3068	1761	1238	God raised up Gideon , who by stratagem frightened and discomfited the host of the confederate princes with the slaughter of 120,000 men, and many prisoners, particularly the two kings, Zebab and Zalmunnah , who were by him put to death; took immense spoil, and delivered Israel by destroying four kings, &c. so that they had peace 40 years, that is, all the remainder of Gideon's government	III.	502
3070	1763	1236	At the third sending of the Athenian children to Minos king of Crete , Theseus , son of Ægeus king of Athens , went to fight the champion that Minos had appointed, called Minotaur , whom Theseus killed by the help of Ariadne

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				daughter of Minos, and brought her away with him to Athens	VII.	473
3071	1764	1235		Theseus , son of Ægeus , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigned 30 years; this first year was called the year of Theseus and the Minotaur	V.	651
3072	1765	1234		Carthage , a capital city of Africa, built by Elisa , called also Dido , sister of Pygmalion king of Tyre	II.	380
3072	1765	1234		Mitreus succeeds Sofarmes in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 21 years	IV.	211
3072	1765	1234		The Pan-athenaica and Isthmia revived by Theseus	V.	652
3076	1769	1230		Hercules having killed Augeas , held an Olympick Agon at Elis	VI.	71
3078	1771	1228		Oedipus is turned out of the kingdom of Thebes, and his son Eteocles and his brother Polynices reign jointly in his stead	V.	670
3080	1773	1226		The Nemea instituted by Adrastus , &c. sacred to Jupiter and Hercules	V.	619
3081	1774	1225		Eteocles and Polynices die, and Creon (as guardian of Laodamas , son of Eteocles ,) governs the kingdom of Thebes	V.	670
3081	1774	1225		The Theban war	V.	670
3082	1775	1224		Priamus (also called Podaces) the son of Laomedon , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, and reigned 40 years	V.	549
3083	1776	1223		Pheestus , the son of Hercules , succeeds Janiscus in the kingdom of Sicyon; he reigned 8 years and went to Crete	V.	617
3084	1777	1222		Hercules (held his Olympic for Pelops) kills himself, by jumping into the flames of a great fire, he had made upon mount Oeta (in Note)	VI.	58
3090	1783	1216		Latinus , the son of Faunus , succeeds his father as king of the Aborigines, and reigns 36 years: Some say he was the son of Hercules by a daughter of Faunus	XI.	277
3091	1784	1215		Epigoni , having killed Laodamas king of Thebes, gave the kingdom to Thersander son of Polynices	V.	671
3091	1784	1215		Adrastus left the kingdom of Argos to his son Ægialeus , and went himself to Sicyon	V.	621
3091	1784	1215		Ammenemes succeeds Amenophes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 26 years	I.	607
3091	1784	1215		Adrastus (coming from Troy) succeeds Pheestus in the kingdom of Sicyon (who was gone to Crete) and reigned 4 years	V.	617
3093	1786	1213		The Amazonian war (in Note)	V.	653
3095	1788	1211		Polyphides succeeds Adrastus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigns 31 years	V.	617
3098	1791	1208		Eurystheus , king of Mycenæ, and five of his sons, killed in battle with Theseus king of Athens
3098	1791	1208		Atreus succeeds Eurystheus in the kingdom of Mycenæ, and reigns 6 years	V.	621
3099	1792	1207		Tautanes succeeds Mitreus in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 32 years	IV.	211
3100	1793	1206		Herophile (called also Sibylla Troica) priestess of Apollo Smintheus , lived about this time	XII.	579
3101	1794	1205		Menestheus succeeds Theseus in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 23 years	V.	644
3104	1797	1202		Hercules and Æsculapius deified	VII.	568
3105	1798	1201		Agamemnon , son of Atreus , becomes king of Mycenæ, and reigns 18 years	V.	621
3107	1800	1199		Eli made high priest, though of the house of Ithamar	III.	519
3107	1800	1199		Abimelech , Gideon's bastard son, sets himself up for a judge or king in Shechem, and puts his father's 70 sons to death	III.	504

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3108	1801	1198		After Gideon's death, Israel fell to worship Baal-berith, the God of Beritus	III.	503
3108	1801	1198		The Rape of Helen by Paris, which occasioned the famous ten years Trojan war, and the destruction of Troy	V.	653
3110	1803	1196		The Shechemites revolt from Abimelech's government, he conquers them, and burns 1000 persons in the temple of Baal-berith, whither they flew for safety, then razed the tower and city. Thebez, a city of Judah, had also revolted, whither he went and besieged it; but a woman, by throwing a great stone upon him, wounded him so sorely, that he commanded Zebul his servant to kill him: Tholar the son of Phuah, the son of Dodo, of the tribe of Issachar, succeeds Abimelech, who reigned 23 years as judge of north and east Israel	III.	510
3112	1805	1194		Laodamas, king of Thebes, went to Aulis to meet the Greek princes going against Troy	V.	671
3113	1806	1193		The Trojan war began with the Greeks	V.	549
3113	1806	1193		King Laodamas of Thebes is killed by Telephus king of Mysia, where the Greeks by mistake first landed	V.	671
3113	1806	1193		Menestheus king of Athens goes with Agamemnon to the siege of Troy, and dies in his return after it was ended, at Melos	V.	656
3113	1808	1193		Tisamenus becomes king of Thebes	V.	671
3117	1810	1189		Thuoeres began to reign in Egypt, and reigned 7 years	I.	607
3118	1811	1188		Castor and Pollux deified	VI.	61
3121	1814	1185		Peneleus Spartus, guardian of Tisamenes king of Thebes, killed in the Trojan war by Eurypylus. Tisamenes had a son called Autefion, who after his father's death, by the direction of the oracle, went to the Herafidæ in Doris, and left his kingdom to Damafichthon, son of Opheltas and grandson of Peneleus; next after Damafichthon reigned Ptolemeus, last of all reigned Xanthus	V.	671
3122	1815	1184		At night between the 23d and 24th of Thargelion, viz. between the 11th and 12th of June, after midnight, the Greeks entered and took Troy, when king Priam and all his children (except two or three that were made captives) were killed; thus Troy was taken 408 years before the first Olympiad	V.	557
3122	1815	1184		Æneas enters into Thrace (in Note)	V.	560
3123	1816	1183		Æneas goes from Thrace into Sicily	V.	560
3123	1816	1183		Agamemnon killed by Ægisthus, who reigned at Mycenæ	V.	632
3123	1816	1183		Cynipus dies, by means whereof all Argos comes to Cyllabarus, son of Stheneus
3124	1817	1182		The 20th Egyptian dynasty begins, being the 3d of the Diopolites for 178 years; Diopolis was Thebes, and there king Polybus and his wife Alcandra are said to have entertained Menelaus and Helen	I.	608
3124	1817	1182		Demophoon, son of Theseus, succeeded his father in the kingdom of Athens, and in his return from the siege of Troy, he was cast on the coast of Thrace: Queen Phyllis received him kindly, but having got his kingdom, he neglected her, upon which she strangled herself. He reigned 33 years	V.	644
3124	1817	1182		Æneas, with 22 ships and 600 men, goes from Sicily to Laurentum, king Latinus being at war with the Ardeans, begged his assistance, which being granted, he gave him 500 acres of land to settle in	XI.	277
3125	1818	1181		Latinus is killed in the war against the Rutuli, by king Turnus	XI.	278
3125	1818	1181		Æneas succeeds Latinus as king of the Latins, marries Lavinia the daughter of Latinus, and calls the city which he had now finished after her name Lavinium, and then reigns by her right	XI.	278
3126	1819	1180		Pelafgus becomes king of Sicyon, and reigns 20 years	V.	617

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3128	1821	1178	Anchises , father of Æneas , dies (in Note)	XI.	280
3129	1822	1177	Æneas , king of the Latins dies, and is succeeded by his son Ascanius , who reigned 38 years in Latium	XI.	280
3130	1823	1176	Ægyſthus king of Mycenæ, and his wife Clytemneſtra , killed by Orestes , son of Agamemnon , who reigned 15 years	V.	632
3130	1823	1176	Orestes having lost his wife Hermione , daughter of Menelaus , (who in his return from Troy took her with him to Sparta) runs mad	V.	633
3131	1824	1175	Tanteus , or Teuteus , succeeds Tautanes in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 40 years	IV.	211
3131	1824	1175	Orestes being cured of his madness, went to Athens to be tried for the murder of Ægyſthus and Clytemneſtra , and was acquitted by the vote of Minerva	VI.	62
3131	1824	1175	While Orestes was gone to Athens to take his trial, Aletes , the son of Ægyſthus , set himself up for king of Mycenæ, for which Orestes kills him. Soon after he got Argos, Cyllabarus being dead without heir	VI.	62
3131	1824	1175	Jesse , (the son of Obed) the father of king David , born
3133	1826	1173	Thola dies, and is succeeded by Jair , who judged north and east Israel 22 years; a man of vast possessions, having 30 cities, which he gave to his 30 sons	III.	510
3135	1828	1171	During this time the Israelites were in bondage to the Ammonites for 18 years	III.	511
3135	1828	1171	Eli now judged south and west Israel 40 years, during which time they were oppressed by the Philistines	III.	519
3135	1828	1171	Æneas was worshipped under the name of Jupiter Indiges , by the Latins	XI.	280
3135	1828	1171	Sampson born. In this year the 18 years oppression of north and east Israel by the Ammonites began, and the 40 years of south and west Israel by the Philistines	III.	520
3141	1834	1165	Hophni and Phineas , the two sons of Eli the high priest, and judge of south and west Israel, make the people by their extraordinary wickedness, forsake and abhor the worship of God	III.	522
3142	1835	1164	Pyrrhus is killed at Delphi, and so Orestes recovers his wife Hermione	IX.	535
3143	1836	1163	Tisamenus , the son of Orestes , by his father's consent reigns as king at Mycenæ, and afterwards he gave him Argos also	V.	621
3143	1836	1163	Menelaus dies, his natural sons set up at Lacedæmon, but were dispossessed by Orestes , who drove them out and reigned in right of his wife	VI.	62
3146	1839	1160	Zeuxippus succeeds Relasgus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 32 years. With him died the kingly government, it being upon his demise changed into the government of the priests of Apollo Carneus	V.	617
3149	1842	1157	Jephtha , in a quarrel with the tribe of Ephraim, cut off 42,000 of their men	III.	518
3152	1845	1154	Cleodæus , the son of Hyllus , killed in the third attempt of the Heraclidæ to get Peloponnesus
3153	1846	1153	Alba Longa , built by Ascanius , the son of Æneas king of Lavinium, which he made the capital of his dominions, and his chief residence the last 12 of his 38 years reign	XI.	282
3154	1847	1152	God raised up Sampson , who judged south and west Israel 20 years, &c. in partnership with Eli	III.	520
3154	1847	1152	Jephtha , the bastard-son of Gilead , quarrelling with the Ammonites about some of his land, assembles an army, goes against and overcomes the Ammonites, and with a prodigious spoil regains his country's liberty: Upon his return his daughter goes out to meet and congratulate him, for which she is sacrificed, in performance of a vow he had

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				rashly made before the battle. He judged north and east Israel 6 years	III.	511
3157	1850	1149		Oxintus , the son of Demophoon, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigned 12 years	V.	644
3158	1851	1148		The Temple of Diana at Ephesus, the most magnificent structure in the world, burnt by Erostratus	VII.	113
3159	1852	1147		Jephtha dies, and is succeeded by Ibzan as judge of north and east Israel, who continued in that station 7 years	III.	518
3164	1857	1142		The first Agon of the Lycæa held on the top of mount Lycæus, the Arcadian Olympus: The victors were rewarded with brazen arms
3166	1859	1140		Sylvius Posthumus succeeds his grand-father Æneas as king of Latium, and reigned 29 years: From him the kings of his race were called Silvii , upon account of his mother Lavinia retiring into a wood to grieve for his father Æneas , during which time he was born there. Now the Latins and Albans joined both their dominions into one kingdom	XI.	282
3166	1859	1140		Elon succeeds Ibzan and judged north and east Israel 10 years	III.	519
3169	1862	1137		Aphidas , son of Oxyntes , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns but one year, being killed by Thymetes , his bastard brother	V.	644
3170	1863	1136		Thymetes , the bastard son of Oxyntes , succeeds Aphides in the kingdom of Athens, and reigned 8 years, and was the last of the Erechthidæ	V.	644
3171	1864	1135		Samuel becomes known to all Israel as a prophet, by foretelling Eli the high priest's death: He was a second Moses for 40 years, in all extraordinary cases, over Israel, and now over south and west Israel in all ordinary cases	III.	524
3171	1864	1135		Thinæus succeeds Tanteus in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	IV.	211
3174	1867	1132		Sampson pulls down the temple of Dagon at Gaza, and destroys both himself and a vast number of Philistines by the fall thereof	II.	240
3174	1867	1132		The Israelites engage the Philistines, and lose 30,000 men, and the ark at Shiloh, which was carried by the Philistines to Ashdod	III.	525
3174	1867	1132		Eli the high priest, being now 98 years of age, hearing of the ark being taken, falls backwards in a swoon, breaks his neck, and dies, upon which Samuel succeeds him as judge of south and west Israel, and Ahitub as high priest	III.	525
3175	1868	1131		The Philistines send back the ark with presents; upon its coming to Bethshemesh, the people's curiosity prompts them to look into it, for which 50070 is said to be struck dead; from thence it was carried to Kiriath Jearim, and lodged in the house of Abinabab, where it continued 20 years	III.	527
3176	1869	1130		Abdon succeeds Elon in the judges seat of north and east Israel, and sat therein 8 years	III.	519
3177	1870	1129		Melanthus king of Athens kills Xanthus king of Thebes in a duel, and upon the death of Xanthus the kingdom of Thebes devolves into a democracy	V.	672
3178	1871	1128		Melanthus drove Thymetes out of the kingdom of Athens, and reigned there 37 years	V.	644
3178	1872	1128		Archelaus , priest of Apollo Carneus, reigns as chief magistrate in Athens one year	V.	617
3179	1871	1127		Automedon succeeds Archelaus in the magistracy of Athens, for one year	V.	617
3180	1873	1126		Pheoclytus succeeds Automedon in the magistracy of Athens, and holds it four years	V.	617
3181	1873	1125		Penthius , base son of Orestes , reigned 22 years in Mycenæ	V.	633

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page.
3182	1875	1124		The Bæoti being driven out of Arne by the Theffali, went to live in Cadmei, which they called Bæoti after their own name	V.	660
3182	1875	1124		The Æolian migration under Penthilus from Aulis, the famous sea port in Bæotia, where the Grecian chiefs met and swore the destruction of Troy	V.	662
3184	1877	1122		Euneus, priest of Apollo Carneus, is made chief magistrate of Athens, in which station he continued 6 years	V.	617
3184	1877	1122		Abdon dies, upon which, 'tis supposed, Samuel becomes judge over north and east as well as south and west Israel, in all cases, both ordinary and extraordinary	III.	519
3190	1883	1116		Theonimus succeeds Euneus in the magistracy of Athens, and holds it nine years	V.	617
3195	1888	1111		Æneus Sylvius succeeds his father Sylvius Posthumus in the kingdom of Latium, and reigned 31 years	XI.	283
3195	1888	1111		By Samuel's prayers, sacrifices, and encouragement, the Israelites engage the Philistines at Mizpeh, and obtain a complete victory, by which they are delivered from the yoke of bondage they had long groaned under, and a stone called Ebenezer set up in memory thereof	III.	527
3199	1892	1107		Amphigyes succeeds Theonimus as chief magistrate of Athens, and holds it 18 years	V.	617
3200	1893	1106		Orestes dies at Tegea, Ægyptus being then king of Messenia
3201	1894	1105		Dercilus succeeds Thineus in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 40 years	IV.	211
3201	1894	1105		Aristomachus, son of Cleodeus of the Heraclidæ, as king the oracle the way of entering into Peloponnesus, was answered, by the Streights, which he interpreting to be the Isthmus, was slain in the attempt; his sons Temenus, Cresphontes, and Aristodemus, enquiring again, was answered by the streights of the sea; and then they built ships at Naupactus, formerly Ætolia in Elis	V.	636
3201	1894	1105		Carnia were now instituted to Apollo, upon Hippote's killing a prophet of Apollo Carneus, which was followed by a plague, and he banished for 10 years	V.	637
3202	1895	1104		The Heraclidæ (or descendents from Hercules) return after two years, and out the Pelopidæ	V.	637
3202	1895	1104		Temenus, &c. having finished their ships, they passed the Streights, and landed at Rhium Promontory, where meeting with Oxyllus, king of Ætolia, he became their guide and commander, and in a short time made themselves masters of Peloponnesus	V.	637
3204	1897	1102		Eurysthene and Procles, sons of Aristodemus, reigned jointly at Lacedæmon	V.	638
3204	1897	1102		Now the Heraclidæ shared the country by lot thus; Temenus had Argos and Mycenæ, Cresphontes, Messenia, and the sons of Aristodemus, Lacedæmon	V.	638
				Oxyllus would have had Elis, but is refus'd	V.	638
3211	1904	1095		Samuel sacrifices as high priest of the Jews	III.	530
3211	1904	1095		Saul the son of Kish, of the tribe of Benjamin, anointed by Samuel the first king in Israel, over whom he reigned 40 years	III.	529
3211	1904	1095		This year Nahash, king of the Ammonites, besieged Jabelh Gilead; the people desirous to capitulate, are answered they must consent to have each man his right eye put out; they send word to Saul, who comes with a great army and relieves them	III.	531
3212	1905	1094		Jonathan, son of king Saul, surprizes and defeats the Philistines at Geba	III.	534

World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page
3213	1906	1093		Saul , by the fearfulness of the people, was reduced so low that not a smith was to be found in Israel; he assumes the priest's office, for which Samuel foretells the loss of his kingdom to his family	III.	534
3213	1906	1093		Abia officiates as high priest of the Jews	III.	537
3215	1908	1091		Codrus , son of Melanthus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 21 years, in which time the Iones being driven out of their country, come to Athens, are kindly received, and allowed to settle there	V.	644
3216	1909	1090		Abiathar , the son of Abimelech, born
3217	1910	1089		Gbaridemus held the magistracy one year in Sicyon, then Phalces took the city, and made it a part of Argos, and from this time the Sicyonians were called Dorians	V.	617
3218	1911	1088		The Æoles , consisting of a mixture of Achæi and others, brought by Penthilus into Thrace in 1124, now under his youngest son Archelaus move out of Thrace into Asia, and fixed themselves about Discyleum in Cyzicena, and as far as the river Granicus	VII.	122
3218	1911	1088		Another colony of the Æolians , under Cometes son of Tisamenes, and Clenas son of Doras, both descendants of Agamemnon, planted themselves about mount Phrictus in Locris	VII.	123
3221	1914	1085		David , the son of Jesse born, who afterwards became king of Israel and Judah
3227	1920	1079		In the 27th year of Dercilus, king of Assyria, the Amazons and Cimmerians make an incursion into Asia together
3231	1925	1074		Aleres , son of Hippotes and grandson of Hercules, expels the race of Sisyphus from the government of Corinth, and reigned there 38 years: From him his descendants called themselves Heraclidæ	VI.	39
3232	1925	1074		Erefus in Pityusa, built by the Phœnicians	IV.	51
3235	1928	1071		Zadock , son of Ahitub heir of Eleazer, born
3236	1929	1070		Codrus , king of Athens, falling a voluntary victim for his country in the war with the Peloponnesians, the people abolish kings and choose archons for life	V.	644
3236	1929	1070		Medon , son of Codrus, is chose first archon of Athens, and continued in that station 20 years	V.	644
3236	1929	1070		After the death of Codrus was the great remove out of Athens, under his son Nileus, of the Iones, together with the other sons of Codrus: Nileus settled at Miletus, and lived and died there	V.	658
3237	1930	1069		Lyndus , Jalyssus, and Camirus, in the island of Rhodes, built by Althemenes son of Cliffus	VII.	397
3238	1931	1068		Miletus built by the Iones, in the Lesser Asia	V.	659
3241	1934	1065		Eupales succeeds Dercilus in the kingdom of Assyria, where he reigns 38 years	IV.	211
3243	1936	1063		Saul having destroyed the Amalekites deceitfully, is rejected by God, and Samuel ordered to anoint David, the youngest son of Jesse, to be his successor	III.	540
3243	1936	1063		David engages and kills Goliath, upon which the Israelites fall upon, and overthrow and quell the Philistines, with a great slaughter	III.	541
3244	1937	1062		Saul grows melancholy through vexation, is relieved by David's musical performances, but at last endeavours to kill David, upon which he flies to the deserts of Juda	III.	544
3246	1939	1060		Mephibosheth , the son of Jonathan born	IV.	25
3246	1939	1060		Abia dies, and his brother Abimelech is high priest, whom Saul in a fury, for having succoured David at Nob, kills, with all his family, except his son Abiathar, who saved himself by flying to David, and afterwards succeeded his father as high priest	III.	547

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page
3246	1939	1060		Procles having adopted Sous for his son, who reigned (likewise in partnership in the kingdom of Lacedæmon , which had now two kings) after Procles 's death 32 years	VI.	55
3247	1940	1059		In the reign of king Agis was the third remove of the Æoles , under Grays the youngest son of Echelatus , they possessed themselves of all the country between Ionia and the Myfi , now called Æolis
3247	1940	1059		Eurysthene s dies, and his son Agis succeeds him in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon , but reigned only one year: From him the descendents of Eurysthene s were called Agidæ . The Helotæ rebelled against him upon account of a tax he imposed on them, for which he reduced them into a state of perpetual villenage	VI.	55
3248	1941	1058		Echebrates , son of Agis , succeeds his father as partner in the kingdom of Lacedæmon , which he held for the space of 35 years	VI.	55
3248	1941	1058		The prophet Samuel dies	IV.	3
3249	1942	1057		The Iones distributed themselves to make other plantations
3249	1942	1057		Myus and Priene built, by Nileus , &c. Codrus 's son	V.	659
3250	1943	1056		David flies to Ziklag to avoid Saul 's fury, from whence he makes frequent incursions against the enemies of Israel , and totally destroys men, women, and children	IV.	5
3251	1944	1055		Ziklag plundered and burnt by the Amalekites ; David pursues after the Amalekites , slew their army, and brought back the spoil	IV.	7
3251	1944	1055		King Achish goes against Israel , upon which Saul (being terrified) goes to consult the witch of Endor	IV.	7
3251	1944	1055		King Achish engages Saul upon mount Gilboa , where he and his three eldest sons are slain	IV.	12
3251	1944	1055		Upon Saul 's death the 12 tribes divide, and Judah receives David , and the other tribes set up Ishbosheth , Saul 's only son that was living, and they reign together 7 years and 6 months	IV.	13
3252	1945	1054		Grays passed over with the greatest part of his army into the isle of Lesbos	VII.	550
3252	1945	1054		Mitylene in Lesbos built	IV.	15
3253	1946	1053		Magnesia (at mount Sipylus) planted	IV.	13
3253	1946	1053		War begun between Joab and Abner	XII.	7
3254	1947	1052		Cumæ in Italy built by Hippocles and Megasthenes	V.	644
3256	1949	1050		Acastus , son of Medon , declared archon of Athens , which he enjoyed 36 years
3257	1950	1049		Androclus , son of Codrus , led his great colony to Ephesus , where having drove out the Leleges and Lydi , he added it to Samos and other neighbouring isles: The Samians flying from Samos planted themselves in Dardania , and called it Samo-Thrace	VII.	621
3258	1951	1048		Ishbosheth being murdered by Baana and Rechab , as he lay on his bed they cut off his head, and carried it to David , who having ordered them to be put to death, becomes king over all Israel	IV.	16
3258	1951	1048		Joab kills Abner treacherously	IV.	15
3261	1954	1045		Hadar-Exer , king of Zobah , so totally twice routed by David 's army, under the command of Joab , that his very kingdom was dissolved	II.	307
3261	1954	1045		The ark brought up from Keriath-Jearim , first to the house of Obed-Edom , where it staid three months, and then was placed in Sion , upon which occasion David composed the 68th psalm	IV.	18
3262	1955	1044		The first meeting of the cities or states at the Pan-Ionia , or common council of the Ionian colonies, held at mount Mycale	VII.	127

[XXIV]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
3262	1955	1044	Toi king of Hamath sends his son with great presents to David king of Israel	II.	326
3263	1956	1043	Hiram, with his father Abiblus, reign in Tyre together 19 years	IV.	17
3263	1956	1043	Abimaaz, son of Zadock heir of Eleazor, born	II.	165
3266	1959	1040	Edom subdued by Joab, David's general	IV.	25
3268	1961	1038	Nabash, king of the Ammonites dies, and war is made with his son and successor Hanun, for shamefully treating David's embassadors, &c.	IV.	25
3270	1963	1036	Ixion succeeds Aletes in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned there 38 years	VI.	45
3271	1964	1035	Rabba, the metropolis of the Ammonites, besieged and taken, where Uriah, the husband of Bathsheba was slain	IV.	26
3272	1965	1034	David reproved by Nathan for taking Uriah, the Hittite's wife, being sensibly smote with the heinousness of his crime, in a very penitential mood composes the 51st psalm	IV.	28
3273	1966	1033	Solomon is born to David by his wife Bathsheba	IV.	29
3276	1969	1030	Ammon killed by the command of his brother Absolom, for having deflowered his sister Tamar two years before	IV.	31
3277	1970	1029	Latinus dies, and is succeeded in the kingdom of Albany (or Latium) by his son Alba, who reigned 39 years	XI.	283
3278	1971	1028	Euryfion, son of Sous, upon the death of his father succeeds him in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he held seven years: From him the descendents of Procles were called Euryfiontidæ	VI.	55
3279	1972	1027	Laosthenes succeeds Eupales in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 45 years	IV.	211
3279	1972	1027	Absolom after three years returns to Jerusalem from Geshur, whither he flew upon his killing his brother Ammon, having been protected by his grandfather Talmai king of Geshur, and lived two years privately	II.	327
3281	1974	1025	Absolom being restored to favour, conspires against his father David	IV.	34
3282	1975	1024	Abiblus, joint king of Tyre dies, and Hiram his son reigned alone 34 years, was great with David and Solomon	VI.	58
3283	1976	1029	Absolom having collected an army, breaks out into open rebellion against his father king David, and is defeated and slain by Joab	IV.	40
3283	1976	1023	Echestratus dies, and is succeeded by his son Labotas in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he enjoyed 37 years. In his reign the Lacedæmonians first declared war against the Greeks	VI.	55
3284	1977	1022	Amasa, king David's general, killed treacherously by Joab; and Sheba, who was in open rebellion, beheaded by the people of Abel, and his head thrown over the wall of the city to Joab, who thereupon raised the siege, and the rebellion ceased	IV.	43
3285	1978	1021	Famine brought upon the Israelites 3 years, for Saul's killing the Gibeonites	IV.	44
3285	1978	1021	Euryfion dies, and his next son Prytanis succeeds him in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he enjoyed 35 years	VI.	55
3289	1982	1017	David, out of pride, numbers his people, and thereby offends God, who sends the prophet Gad to rebuke him, and give him his choice of three sorts of punishments; David chooses the plague, of which 70,000 die in three days	IV.	47
3290	1983	1016	Rheboboaam, the son of Solomon born
3291	1984	1015	The two books of Samuel supposed to be wrote by the prophets Nathan and Gad about this time

Y. of world.	Y. of Aeod.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3291	1984	1015		David dies, and is succeeded in the whole kingdom of Israel by his son Solomon , who reigned 40 years	IV.	53
3292	1985	1014		Adonijah and Joab both put to death for rebellion against Solomon , and Abiathar degraded from being high priest	IV.	54
3292	1985	1014		Archippus succeeds Acastus (as archon or chief magistrate) in Athens, and reigned 19 years	V.	644
3292	1985	1014		Abiathur deprived of the high priesthood, for conspiring with Adonijah against Solomon , and Zadock put into his place. From this time the high priesthood went out of the family of Ithamar , and returned into the family of Eleazar , wherein it continued, according to what had been foretold, 1 Sam. xi. 35	IV.	54
3294	1987	1012		The temple founded by Solomon , 480 years after the Israelites departure out of Egypt	IV.	59
3295	1988	1011		Shimei put to death for breaking his confinement	IV.	54
3301	1994	1005		The famous temple at Jerusalem built by Solomon king of Israel, finished	IV.	60
3302	1995	1004		The first Jewish temple at Jerusalem dedicated by king Solomon , with the utmost solemnity and magnificence, on the 8th day of the 7th month of the sacred year, and which was the first month of the civil year, answering to the latter end of our October	IV.	64
3302	1995	1004		The 21st dynasty of the Egyptians began, called the dynasty of the Tanites, the first king whereof was called Semendis , who reigned 26 years	I.	608
3308	2001	998		Agelaus succeeds Ixion in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 38 years	VI.	45
3311	2004	995		Thersippus succeeds Archippus in the archonship of Athens, which dignity he held 41 years	V.	644
3311	2004	995		Homer , the famous Greek poet, was brought up by Phemius of Smyrna, who had married Homer's mother	VII.	559
3316	2009	990		Balbazar , son of Hiram , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigned 7 years	II.	379
3316	2009	990		Abimaaz succeeds his father Zadock in the high priesthood of the Jews
3316	2009	990		Medon , king of Argos dies, and is succeeded in his kingdom by Lacidaus	II.	621
3316	2009	990		Capetus succeeds Alba in the kingdom of Latium, and reigns 26 years	XI.	283
3320	2013	986		Samos built, and Smyrna enlarged into the form of a city	VII.	514
3320	2013	986		Doryffus or Doryffæus , son of Labotas , succeeds his father in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 29 years	VI.	55
3320	2013	986		Eunomus , son of Prytanis , succeeds his father in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 79 years	VI.	55
3323	2016	983		Abdastartus , son of Balbazar , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	II.	379
3324	2017	982		Pyritiades succeeds Laosthenes in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	IV.	211
3326	2019	980		Solomon drawn into idolatry, out of complaisance to his many wives and concubines	IV.	77
3328	2021	978		Pseusennes succeeds Semendis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 41 years	I.	608
3331	2024	975		Phialus , son of Bucolion , began to reign in Arcadia, and changed the name of Phigialia into Phialia	VI.	8
3331	2024	975		Solomon repenting, writes the Ecclesiastes, and is assured his seed should reign over only Judah and Benjamin, 1 Kings, XL. 13. 32.	IV.	8c
3331	2024	975		Solomon dies, whereupon the tribes divide themselves, ten forsaking Rehoboam his son, and set up a kingdom of their own, under the command of Jeroboam, which from this time forwards was called the kingdom of Israel; and two tribes adhere to Rehoboam, under the title of king of Juda 17 years

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3331	1024	975	Jeroboam becomes the first king of Israel, and reigns 21 years, during which time he sets up two golden calves at each end of his kingdom for the people to worship, instead of going up to Jerusalem, &c. From his introducing idolatry in the first year of his reign, the 300 years of Israel's iniquity is to be reckoned, mentioned Ezekiel iv. 5. 9.	IV.	77
3332	2025	974	Ithemi , son of Glaucus, began to reign in Messenia	IV.	83
3332	2025	974	Abdastartus , king of Tyre is killed by the four sons of Narfes, the eldest of whom reigned 21 years	II.	379
3334	2027	972	The Thracians settle themselves in Bebrycia, now called Bithynia	IX.	592
3335	2028	971	Sbifhak king of Egypt goes against Jerusalem, takes it, and plunders the temple of all the golden vessels, &c.	IV.	85
3342	2035	964	Capys succeeds Capetus in the kingdom of Latium, where he reigned 28 years	XI.	283
3344	2037	962	Astartus , son of Delæastartus , becomes king of Tyre, and reigns there 12 years	II.	379
3345	2038	961	Proymnes , or Prymnes or Prumnis , succeeds Agelaus in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 35 years	VI.	34
3348	2041	958	Azariab succeeds his father Ahimaaz in the high priesthood at Jerusalem
3348	2041	958	Abijah , one of the sons of Rehoboam , succeeds in the kingdom of Judah upon the death of his father, and in a pitched battle with Jeroboam overthrew him, and killed 500,000 of his men. He reigned only 3 years	IV.	86
3349	2042	957	Agésilas , son of Doryssus , succeeds his father in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 44 years	VI.	65
3351	2044	955	Abijam , or Abijah , dies, and is succeeded by his son Afa in the kingdom of Judah, where he reigned 41 years: He was a prince of extraordinary piety, and purged out the idolatry that had crept in during the three foregoing reigns	IV.	86
3352	2045	954	Jeroboam dies, and is succeeded in the kingdom of Israel by his son Nadab , who reigned about two years	IV.	87
3352	2045	954	Pborbas succeeds Thersippus in the archonship of Athens, and holds that dignity 31 years	V.	644
3353	2046	953	Baasa , of the tribe of Issachar, kills Nadab king of Israel at the siege of Gibbiton, and succeeds him in the kingdom of Israel, where he reigns 24 years, during which time he destroyed the whole race of Jeroboam	IV.	87
3354	2047	952	Opbrateus succeeds Pyritiades in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 20 years	IV.	211
3356	2049	950	Astbarymus succeeds his brother Astartus in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	II.	379
3356	2049	950	Meltas began to reign at Argos	V.	621
3357	2050	949	Jehosopbat (son of Afa king of Judah)	IV.	91
3365	2058	941	Afa king of Judah commands all the idols that had been set up in his kingdom to be broken down, and deposed his mother from the regal dignity for being an encourager of them	IV.	87
3365	2058	941	The Cushites attack Afa 's kingdom with 1,000,000 men, commanded by Zerah the Ethiopian; Afa encounters them at Mareshah , totally routs them, and returns to Jerusalem laden with prodigious spoil, is met by a prophet who assures him of future success, &c.	IV.	88
3365	2058	941	Pbeles succeeds his brother Astbarymus in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 8 months	II.	379

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3366	2059	940	Ithobalus , priest of Astarte, succeeds Pheles in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns there 32 years	II.	379
3366	2059	940	Afa king of Judah sends ambassadors and large presents to Benhadad king of Damascus, who thereupon makes war with Baasha king of Israel, and takes several of his frontier towns, &c.	II.	309
3366	2059	940	Afa king of Judah builds Geba and Mizpeh, with the materials that he took from Baasha king of Israel, which were by him designed for the building of Ramah. Afa throws the prophet Hanani into prison for reproving him	IV.	88
3369	2062	937	Nephercheres succeeds Pseusennes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 4 years	I.	608
3370	2063	936	Capetus succeeds Capys in the kingdom of Latium, and reigns 13 years	XI.	283
3373	2066	933	Amenophis succeeds Nephercheres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I.	608
3374	2067	932	Ophratenes succeeds Ophrateus in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigned 50 years	VI.	211
3375	2068	931	Dotadas , son of Isthomius, began to reign in Messenia
3376	2069	930	Meltas dies, and thereupon the regal government of Argos becomes a democracy	V.	639
3376	2069	930	Ela succeeds his father Baasha in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned only one year, being then murdered by Zimri	IV.	89
3377	2070	929	Zimri , the general over Ela's chariots, conspires against Ela and kills him, and then proclaims himself king, and as such reigns 7 days at Tirzah, but being attacked by Omri (another general officer) Zimri, to avoid being taken, burns the king's house and himself in it: Upon this the kingdom of Israel was rent in twain, part following Thibni the son of Ginath, and the other part Omri, for 4 years they reigned together	IV.	89
3380	2073	926	Lyeurgus , (son of Eunomus by his second wife Dianissa) the famous Lacedæmonian lawgiver born
3380	2073	926	Bacchis , son of Proymnes, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 35 years: From him came the Bacchiadæ	VI.	39
3381	2074	925	Thibni , the partner king with Omri in the kingdom of Israel, being killed, Omri reigned alone 8 years	IV.	90
3382	2075	924	Onsocher succeeds Amenophis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 6 years	I.	608
3382	2075	924	Omri having bought the hill of Someron or Samaria, of one Shemer; for two talents of silver, built the famous city of Samaria thereon, and removed the royal palace from Tirzah to Samaria, and made it the metropolis of the kingdom of Israel	IV.	90
3382	2075	924	Joram (the son of Jehosaphat the son of Afa king of Juda) born
3383	2076	923	Tiberinus succeeds Capetus in the kingdom of Latium, and reigned 8 years	XI.	283
3383	2076	923	Megacles succeeds Phorbas in the archonship of Athens, and held that dignity 30 years	V.	644
3388	2081	918	Psinaspines succeeds Onsochor in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 9 years	I.	608
3388	2081	918	Abab , the son of Omri, upon the death of his father succeeds him in the kingdom of Israel, where he reigned 22 years; and having married Jezabel, daughter of Ethbaal king of the Zidonians, greatly encouraged idolatry, particularly the worship of Baal, by human sacrifices, &c. 1 Kings. xvi. 31.	IV.	90
3388	2083	916	The Rhodians become masters of the sea, by their expertness in navigation; and the Rhodian laws for many ages were the

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			standard to decide all maritime affairs ; the Romans esteem- ed them so highly as to incorporate them into their pandect of laws, &c.	VII.	404
3391	2084	915	Tiberinus , king of Latium, being killed at the river Albula and drowned, that river from him was, and still is, called the Tiber	XI.	283
3391	2084	915	Agrippa (by Ovid called Remulus) succeeds Tiberinus in the kingdom of Latium, where he reigned 41 years	XI.	283
3392	2085	914	Jehosaphat , upon the death of his father Afa, succeeds him in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 25 years: He began his reign with purging away idolatry, &c.	IV.	91
3393	2086	913	Archelaus succeeds his father Agesilaus in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon and reigned 60 years. In this year the Lacedæmonians took Agis and razed it to the ground, to prevent their revolting to the Arcadians	VI.	55
3395	2088	911	Jehosaphat caused a competent number of priests and Levites to attend some of his chief officers with copies of the Pen- tateuch, to go through his kingdom and teach the real law of Moses, which was then greatly corrupted	IV.	91
3397	2090	909	Pfusennes succeeds Pfinaspinaces in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 35 years	I.	608
3398	2091	908	Bazorus , son of Ithobalus succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigned 8 years	II.	380
3399	2092	907	Polydectes succeeds his father Eunomus (who was killed in a riotous tumult) in the partnership of the kingdom of La- cedæmon	VI.	55
3399	2092	907	Abaziah , son of Joram, (son of Jehosaphat king of Judah, by his wife Athalia daughter of Ahab king of Israel) born
3405	2098	901	Benbadad king of Syria, and his thirty-two confederate kings beaten off from Samaria, by Ahab king of Israel, with prodigious slaughter	II.	310
3406	2099	900	Metinus , son of Bazorus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	II.	380
3406	2099	900	Benbadad , king of Syria, is a second time defeated by Ahab king of Israel, with a mighty slaughter, &c.	II.	311
3408	2101	898	Polydectes , half king of Lacedæmon, is succeeded by his half brother Lycurgus, who reigned as guardian to his son Cha- rilaus, who was born 8 months after his death	VI.	379
3408	2101	898	Ahab takes his son Ahaziah into partnership with him in his kingdom of Israel	IV.	97
3409	2102	897	Ahab king of Israel, and Jehosaphat king of Judah agree to besiege Ramoth Gilead, and retake it from the Syrians, where Ahab is slain, &c.	IV.	98
3409	2102	897	Abaziah , upon the death of his father Ahab, reigned alone in the kingdom of Israel about one year	IV.	99
3409	2102	897	Amariah , or Azariah, succeeds his father Azariah in the high-priesthood at Jerusalem. 2 Chron. xix. 11.
3409	2102	897	The Moabites revolt, (who from David's time till now had been subject to Israel) but are entirely defeated by the united force of Israel and Judah	IV.	100
3410	2103	896	Johanan , or Jehoiada, the son of Amariah, succeeds his fa- ther as high-priest at Jerusalem
3410	2103	896	Elias being taken up into heaven alive, is succeeded by Elisha in the prophetic office (in Note)	IV.	100
3410	2103	896	Joram , or Jehoram, the brother of Ahaziah king of Israel, (who was killed by the bruises he received in a fall) suc- ceeds him in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned 12 years	IV.	100
3412	2105	894	Lycurgus abdicated his government of the Lacedæmonians,

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			and began his 10 years travel, to see the customs and manners of other nations	VI.	53
3413	2106	893	Diognetus succeeds Megacles in the archonship of Athens, which he held 28 years	V.	644
3414	2107	892	Joram is taken into partnership in the kingdom of Judah, by his father Jehosaphat	IV.	100
3415	2108	891	Agelas , or Agelaſtes , ſucceeds Bacchis in the kingdom of Corinth, where he reigned 30 years	VI.	39
3415	2108	891	Pygmalion , the ſon of Mettinus , ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 40 years : He is ſaid to have built the city of Carpasia in the iſland of Cyprus, and to preſent the temple of Hercules in the iſland of Gades , with an olive tree made of maſſive gold, whoſe berries were emeralds, &c.	II.	380
3417	2110	889	Joram (upon the death of his father Jehosaphat) reigns alone 4 years, during which time he debauched the peoples manners, and introduced idolatry	IV.]	102
3417	2110	889	Edom now revolted from the Iſraelitiſh government (to which they had been ſubject from David's time) and having expelled or aſſaſſinated their vice-roy, ſet up a king of their own again	II.	167
3418	2111	888	The Philiftines and Arabians invade Judah, and take and plunder Jeruſalem , and among others carry away Jehoram's wives, and all his ſons, (except Jehoahaph) and Ahaziah , captive	IV.	103
3419	2112	887	Pompus , ſon of Simus , began to reign in Arcadia	VI.	8
3420	2113	886	Jehoram king of Judah takes his ſon Ahazia partner with him in his kingdom	IV.	104
3421	2114	885	Upon the death of Joram his ſon Ahazia reigned king of Judah alone, for about the ſpace of one year, being then killed by Jehu , one of the officers of Jehoram	IV.	109
3421	2114	885	Samaria being beſieged by Benhadad king of Syria, the city is reduced to the utmoſt extremity by famine, &c. and is miraculoſly delivered by the prophet Eliſha	IV.	105
3421	2114	885	Hazael murders Benhadad king of Syria at Damaſcus , and ſucceeds him in the kingdom of Syria, which he raiſed to its meridian of glory	II.	320
3422	2115	884	Elifa , ſiſter of Pygmalion king of Tyre, (called alſo Dido) flying from Tyre upon the murder of her husband Sichæus prieſt of Hercules , in company with many others, goes and ſettles in Africa, and builds the famous city of Carthage	II.	381
3422	2115	884	Joram king of Iſrael killed by his ſervant Jehu , who reigned 28 years, and deſtroyed all the houſe of Ahab , and cauſed queen Jezabel to be thrown out of a window, &c.	IV.	112
3422	2115	884	Hazael king of Damaſcus (or Syria) warring againſt Jehu king of Iſrael , overcame him, and took almoſt all his kingdom from him, having ſlain and taken captive an infinite number of his ſubjects	II.	321
3422	2115	884	Ahaziah dies, and his mother Athalia (daughter of Ahab) reigns 6 years in Judah, during which time ſhe practiſed and promoted idolatry with all her might, and killed all his children, except Joah , whom Jehoſhaba (ſiſter of king Ahaziah and wife of Jehoiada the high-prieſt) ſaved, being then but one year old	IV.	119
3422	2115	884	Lycurgus returns to Lacedæmon from his travels, and ſettles the government by excellent laws	VI.	382
3422	2115	884	Iphitus began accounting or computing time by Olympiads , 108 years before the firſt Olympiad

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3424	2117	882		Ocraxapes succeeds Ophratanes in the kingdom of Affyria , and reigns there 42 years	IV.	211
3425	2118	881		Sybotas , son of Dotadas , was now king of Messenia
3428	2121	878		Jehoiada the high-priest shews young Joash (the son of their late king Ahaziah) to the heads and people of Judah , who being tired with the cruelty and wickedness of Athaliah , proclaimed Joash king; and the high-priest having anointed him and crowned him, slew Athaliah , Joash reigned 40 years, &c.	IV.	121
3432	2125	874		Begins the 22d Egyptian dynasty of the Bubastites , the first king whereof was Sefenchosis , who succeeded Pfusennes , and reigned 21 years	I.	608
3432	2125	874		Agrippa , king of the Latins dies, and is succeeded by Allades , or Alladius , who reigned 19 years	XI.	283
3433	2126	873		Charilaus takes the government of Lacedæmon upon himself, and reigned 64 years	VI.	55
3437	2130	869		Carthage , the famous metropolis of Africa , built by queen Dido : Phidon now governed at Argos , and made measures and scales, and coined silver money at Egina	I.	382
3441	2134	865		Pherecles succeeds Diognetus in the archonship of Athens , and reigned 19 years	V.	644
3444	2137	862		Jonas prophesied against Nineveh
3445	2138	861		Eudemus succeeds Agelas in the kingdom of Corinth , and reigned 25 years	VI.	39
3449	2142	857		Joash repairs the temple of Jerusalem , &c.	IV.	121
3450	2143	856		Jehoabaz succeeds his father Jehu (now dead) in the kingdom of Israel , and reigned 17 years	IV.	119
3451	2144	855		Allades king of the Latins , together with his palace is swallowed up by an earthquake, as he was imitating thunder, and was succeeded by Aventinus , who reigned 37 years	XI.	283
3452	2145	854		The Lacedæmonians , by the help of the Eleans , overthrew the tyrant Phidon
3453	2146	853		Teleclus succeeds Archelaus in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon , and reigns 40 years	VI.	401
3453	2146	853		Osortbon succeeds Sefenchosis in the kingdom of Egypt , and reigned 15 years	I.	608
3456	2149	850		Jehoiada the high-priest dies, at 130 years old, and is succeeded in that office at Jerusalem by his son Zachariah	IV.	123
3458	2151	848		Polymestor , son of Æginetas king of Arcadia , overcame the Lacedæmonians , and took Charilaus prisoner, whom they obliged to take an oath that he should not make war any more on the Tegæans , but some time after he broke it	VI.	135
3460	2153	846		Aripbron succeeds Pherecles in the archonship of Athens , and reigned 20 years	V.	644
3464	2157	842		Jonas prophecies of Israel's deliverance
3465	2158	841		Jehoabaz , king of Israel , takes his son Joash partner with him in the regal government	IV.	124
3466	2159	840		Zachariah the high-priest having reprov'd Joash king of Judah for falling into and encouraging and promoting idolatry, &c. is, by that king's command, stoned to death	IV.	124
3466	2159	840		Tonosconoleros , or Sardanapalus , succeeds Ocraxapes in the kingdom of Affyria , and reigned 20 years	IV.	211
3467	2160	839		Hazael , king of Syria , (or Damascus , he being called by both titles) after taking Gath and conquering the king of Judah's army, was about investing Jerusalem , but by large presents, &c. departed for that time, but soon after sent a part of his great army, who (overthrowing

Y. of world	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ	Before Christ		Vol.	Page.
				throwing Joash, &c.) sacked Jerusalem, slew the Princes, and sent a prodigious spoil to Damascus	II.	321
3467	2160	839		Joash being murdered on his bed by his servant, is succeeded by his son Amaziah, who reigned 29 years as king of Judah	IV.	124
3467	2160	839		Jeboabaz , king of Israel dies, and Joash his son reigns alone 3 years
3468	2161	838		Amaziab overcomes the Edomites, slaying 10,000 in battle, and throwing 10,000 prisoners down from the rock whereon Selah their capital city was built, &c.	II.	168
3468	2161	838		The prophet Elisha dies	VI.	126
3468	2161	831		Tachelotis succeeds Oforthon in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 13 years	I.	608
3470	2163	836		Aristodemus succeeds Eudemus in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 35 years	VI.	34
3470	2163	836		Joash king of Israel takes his son Jeroboam to be a partner with him in his kingdom	II.	323
3470	2163	836		Hazael king of Syria dies, and was deified; but being succeeded by his son Benhadad the 3d, he was thrice defeated by Jeboash , the son of Jeboabaz the king of Judah, and made a tributary	II.	322
3471	2164	835		Phintas , son of Sobyas, was king of Messenia; in his time the Messenians first sent their sacrifices to Apollo at Delos, with a chorus of men
3372	2165	834		Eumelus composed the hymn called the Profodium, to be sung by the Messenians in their sacrifices to Apollo at Dephos
3480	2173	826		Thespheus succeeds Aripbron in the archonship of Athens, and governed 27 years	V.	644
3480	2173	826		Amaziab , king of Judah, challenging Joash king of Israel, is taken by him, and a very large ransom set upon him	IV.	128
3481	2174	825		Joash king of Israel dies, and Jeroboam his son reigned alone 41 years	IV.	129
5481	2174	825		The twenty-third dynasty of Egyptians, called the Tanites, the first king whereof was Petuhastes, who succeeded Tachelotis , and reigned 25 years	I.	608
2483	2176	823		Arbaces , præfect of Media, and Belesis, a priest of Babylon and a famous astronomer, revolt against Sardanapalus king of Assyria, and besieged him with a vast army in Nineveh; in the 3d year of the siege, the river overflowed and threw down a great part of the wall, through which breach they entered and took the city, upon which Sardanapalus burnt both his palace and himself in it; Arbaces and Belesis divided the empire between them, Arbaces taking Media, Persia, and Assyria; and Belesis, Babylon, whose successors are not known till the time of Nabonassar	IV.	258
3485	2178	821		Media now freed from the yoke of the Assyrians by Arbaces, is governed by him 28 years	IV.	470
3488	2181	818		Aventinus dies, (and being buried upon a mountain, it was called from thence mount Aventine) and is succeeded in the kingdom of the Latins by Procas, who reigned 23 years	XI.	283
3492	2185	814		Caranus (one of the Heraclidæ) coming to Macedonia, founded the kingdom so called, and reigned over it 28 years	VIII.	46
3493	2186	813		Teleclus , half king of Lacedæmon, is slain by the Messenians in the temple of Diana Limnas, and succeeded by his son Alcamenes, who reigned 37 years	VI.	403
3496	2189	810		Amariab , the high priest of the Jews, dies, and his son Ahitub II. succeeds him in that office

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3496	2189	810	Amaziab , king of Judah, is driven from Jerusalem by a conspiracy that was formed against him, and which followed and killed him at Lacish, when he was succeeded by his son Uzziah, or Azariah, who reigned 52 years	IV.	128
3497	2180	809	Nicander , the son of Cherilaus, succeeds his father in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 39 years	VI.	404
3505	2198	801	Agamemnon , brother of Aristomedes, succeeds him in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 16 years	VI.	39
3505	2198	801	Capua , a noble city in Campania, built (but now in ruins) about 12 miles distant from the present city of that name	XI.	262
3506	2199	800	Joel prophesied about this time	-	-
3506	2199	800	Osothon the II. succeeds Petubastes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I.	609
3507	2200	799	Agamestor succeeds Thespheus in the archonship of Athens, and governed 20 years	V.	644
3509	2202	797	Ardysus , king of Lydia, reigns 36 years, was one of the Heraclidæ or descendants of Hercules	V.	581
3511	2204	795	Amulius , son of Procas, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Latium, having first put by his elder brother Numitor, to whom Procas had left the kingdom, and reigned 42 years	XI.	283
3513	2206	793	Sofarmes succeeds Arbaces as king of Media, and reigns 30 years	IV.	470
3515	2208	791	Psammiss succeeds Osothon in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 10 years	I.	609
3519	2212	787	Amos prophesied against Jeroboam king of Israel	IV.	131
3520	2213	786	Cænus succeeds Caranus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 12 years	VIII.	43
3520	2213	786	The Corinthians now first of all the Greeks had Triremes, or boats with 3 oars on each side	-	-
3521	2214	785	Alexander succeeds Agamemnon in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 25 years	VI.	39
3521	2214	785	Hosea prophesied against Israel	IV.	129
3522	2215	784	Jeroboam king of Israel died, upon which followed an interregnum of 11 years	-	-
3525	2218	781	Begins the 24th Egyptian dynasty of the Saites, when Bocchoris succeeds Psammiss in the kingdom, and reigned 44 years	I.	609
3527	2220	779	Æschylus succeeds Agamestor in the archonship of Athens, and reigns 23 years	V.	644
3530	2223	776	Polydorus succeeds Alcamenes in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 52 years	VI.	406
3530	2223	776	This is commonly esteemed the beginning of the first Olympiad, (vulgarly so called)	-	-
3532	2225	774	Thurimas succeeds Cænus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 45 years	VIII.	43
3533	2226	773	Zachariab , son of Jeroboam, the 4th and last of the house of Jehu (according to the prophecy 2 Kings xv. 10 succeeds in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned but 6 months, being killed by Shallum son of Jabeish, one of his own domesticks, who reigned in his stead one month, and was killed by Menahem, Zachariah's general	IV.	132
3534	2227	772	Abitub , the high priest of the Jews dying, is succeeded by his son Zadock, (called also Azariah)	-	-
3534	2227	772	Menahem succeeded Shallum in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned 11 years	IV.	133
3535	2228	771	Uzziah , king of Judah, was struck with a leprosy by Azariah the high priest, till his death, for presuming to burn incense; and his son Jotham governed the kingdom for him 13 years	IV.	135
3535	2228	771	Pul in scripture appears to be the first king of Assyria	IV.	261

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3535	2228	771	Pul king of Assyria, invading Israel, Menahem gives him 1000 talents of silver as homage-money	IV.	263
3536	2229	770	Theopompus , son of Nicander, succeeds his father in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reign'd 47 years	VI.	406
3543	2236	763	Medinus (or Mandaues) succeeds Sôfarmus in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 40 years	IV.	470
3545	2238	761	Pekaia , son of Menahem, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned 2 years	IV.	136
3545	2238	761	Halyattes succeeds Ardyfus in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 14 years	V.	580
3546	2239	760	Eſay began to prophesy
3546	2239	760	Telestes , son of Aristomedes, having killed Alexander, succeeds him in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned there 12 years	VI.	45
3546	2239	760	Theopompus sets up the Ephori at Lacedæmon, which consisted of five persons, arm'd with power to check even the king, as well as govern the people	VI.	411
3547	2240	759	Peka kills Pekaia king of Israel, in his royal palace at Samaria, and reigned in his stead 20 years	IV.	136
3548	2241	758	Uzziab king of Judah dies, and is succeeded by his son Jotham, who reigned alone 16 years	IV.	136
3548	2241	758	Nahum prophesied against Nineveh, foretelling the dreadful destruction of it, which afterwards happened in the days of Josiah (in Note)	IV.	156
3550	2243	756	Alcmaeon succeeds his father Æschylus in the archonship of Athens, and reigns 2 years, when that office for life was dissolved, and persons chose to hold it for 10 years only	V.	644
3552	2245	754	Charops begins the archonship of Athens, upon the new regulation of holding that office 10 years	V.	659
3552	2245	754	Romulus killed Amulius, and sets up Numitor	XI.	286
3553	2246	753	Romulus having built and finished the city of Rome, is chosen king, and translates the kingdom from Alba to Rome, where he reigned 37 years	XI.	293
3554	2247	752	Romulus instituted his year of 10 months, of which March was the first; this calender was corrected by Numa, his successor; as is more particularly related and described	XI.	318
3554	2247	752	Daicles now first crowned in the olympic games	XI.	300
3556	2249	750	The rape of the Sabine virgins by the Romans	XI.	300
3557	2250	749	Telestes king of Corinth is killed, and the kingly government changed for yearly magistrates, of which Automenes was the first
3557	2250	749	War between the Romans and the Sabines upon account of the rape: Romulus encounters and kills with his own hand Arcon their king; disperses their army, razes their city, and incorporates the prisoners among his own people	XI.	301
3559	2252	747	The Romans and Sabines conclude a peace, and become one people; and Tatius , then Sabine king, reigned jointly with Romulus , and the people were called Quirites	XI.	305
3559	2252	747	Tiglatb-pileser becomes king of Assyria, as successor to his father Pul	IV.	264
3559	2252	747	Nabonasser , king of Babylon, lays the foundation of the first of the four great monarchies, and reigns 14 years	IV.	371
3559	2252	747	Melles succeeds Hallyattes in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 12 years	V.	580
3562	2255	744	Æsimesdes succeeds Charops in the archonship of Athens, for 10 years	V.	659
3563	2256	743	Androcles , one of the kings of Messenia, killed in a quarrel with his brother Antiochus , soon after which accident Euphaes reigned in Messenia	VI.	404

World	V. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3564	2257	742		Tatius , joint king with Romulus, killed by the Lavinians at the foot of the altar, while he and Romulus were offering a sacrifice to the tutelary Gods -	XI.	309
3565	2258	741		Abaz fucceeds his father Jotham in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 16 years; but being a wicked prince, and committing idolatry, &c. was very unsuccessful -	IV.	137
3565	2258	741		Peka king of Ifrael warring againft Judah, kills 120,000 in one day, and carries 200,000 away prifoners -	IV.	140
3566	2259	740		Tiglatb pilefer , king of Affyria, invades Damafcus, takes Kezim their king, transplants the inhabitants, and diffolves the kingdom of Syria, and made Ahaz king of Judah tributary -	II.	325
3567	2260	739		Pekab king of Ifrael is killed by Hofea, fon of Ela, upon which followed a ftate of anarchy for 9 years -	IV.	142
3568	2261	738		The Romans make a triumph for their victory over the Camerini -	XI.	310
3569	2262	737		The 25th Egyptian dynafly called the Æthiopes , the firft king whereof was Sabacon, who reigned 12 years -	I.	609
3571	2264	735		Candaules fucceeds Melles in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 17 years -	V.	580
5572	2265	734		Clidicus , the fon of Æfimesdes , fucceeds his father in the archonfhip of Athens, for the fpace of 10 years -	V.	659
3573	2266	733		Nadius fucceeds Nabonaffar in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 2 years -	IV.	380
3573	2266	733		Naxus in Sicily built by the firft Greek colony that came from Chalcis in Eubea to fettle in Sicily -	VII.	584
3574	2267	732		The Romans make a triumph for their conquering the Veientes -	XI.	310
3574	2267	732		Syracufe , formerly the metropolis of all Sicily, was built by Archias of Corinth -	VII.	143
3575	2268	731		Cincirus and Porus fucceed Nadius in the kingdom of Babylon -	IV.	380
3576	2269	730		Euphaes being killed in battle, was fucceeded by Aristodemus in the kingdom of Meffenia -	VI.	410
3576	2269	730		Hofea becomes king of Ifrael, and reigns 9 years -	IV.	142
3577	2270	729		Perdiccas fucceeds Thurimas in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 51 years -	VIII.	45
3578	2271	728		Salmanazer , king of Affyria, conquers and makes Hofea king of Ifrael tributary -	IV.	142
3579	2272	727		Abaz , king of Judah, takes his fon Hezekiah partner with him in the kingdom: The prophet Efay foretels the birth of Emanuel (or Chrift) and that he fhould be born of a virgin -	IV.	138
3579	2272	727		Leontins in Sicily built by the inhabitants of Naxus , and afterwards Catana , another famous city of the fame ifland -	VII.	142
3580	2273	726		Upon the death of Ahaz king of Judah, his fon Hezekiah reigns alone 28 years: he endeavours to reform Judah by purging away idolatry, folemnizing the paffover, &c. in which Azariah the high prieft was greatly ferviceable -	IV.	843
3580	2273	726		Jugæus fucceeds Cincirus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 5 years -	IV.	380
3581	2274	725		So , king of Egypt, entices Hofea king of Ifrael to rebel againft Salmanafar king of Affyria -	IV.	142
3581	2274	725		The prophet Hofea declared his laft prophecy -
3581	2274	725		Sevicus fucceeds Sabacon in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns there 12 years -	I.	609
3582	2275	724		Hippomenes fucceeds Clidicus in the archonfhip of Athens, which he enjoyed 10 years -	V.	659

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3582	2275	724	The Lacedæmonians end the long war with the Messenians, with the taking of Ithome, upon which the Messenians serve the Lacedæmonians 39 years	VI.	415
3582	2275	724	Polydorus being killed by one Polemarchus , a person of mean extract, is succeeded by his son Eurycrates in the joint kingship of Lacedæmon for 17 years	VI.	378
3582	2275	724	Aristodemus kills himself at his daughter's tomb, to whom he had sacrificed 13 years before
3583	2276	723	Cardiceus succeeds Medidus in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 13 years	IV.	211
3583	2276	723	Theopompus , one of the partner kings of Lacedæmon, dying, is succeeded by his grandson Zuexidemus , (son of Archidamus , who died before his father Theopompus) who reigns 33 years	VI.	378
3585	2278	721	Mardokempad succeeds Jugæus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 12 years. (In scripture this prince is called Merodak Baladan)	IV.	381
3585	2278	721	Salmanasar , king of Assyria, takes Samaria after a siege of three years, and carried away the ten tribes of Israel into captivity, and so put an end to the kingdom of Israel, after it had stood 234 years divided from Judah	IV.	146
3586	2279	720	Azariab , the high priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded by his son Shallum
3588	2281	718	Candaules being killed by Gyges (the first of the Mermnadæ , who ruled 170 years) is succeeded by him in the kingdom of Lydia, who reigned there 38 years. Gyges sends many rich presents to the oracle at Delphos , &c.	V.	580
3588	2281	718	The Tyrians intirely defeat Shalmanassar king of Assyria's fleet	IV.	270
3589	2282	717	Shalmanassar , king of Assyria, besieges Tyre, which held out 5 years against him	IV.	270
3589	2282	717	Hezekiab , king of Judah revolts, and refuses to pay tribute to the king of Assyria any longer	IV.	271
3589	2282	717	Romulus killed, upon which followed an interregnum for upwards of one year in Rome	XI.	312
3591	2284	715	Numa becomes king or governor in Rome, but more like Pontifex than Rex, for the space of 43 years	XI.	314
3592	2285	714	Leocrates succeeds Hippomenes in the archonship of Athens, and ruled there 10 years	V.	659
3593	2286	713	Senacherib , king of Assyria, goes up against Hezekiah king of Judah, who being sick of the plague, upon his earnest prayer to God has an addition of 15 years made to his life, and Senacherib goes away against Egypt	IV.	149
3593	2286	713	Taracus succeeds Sevicus king of Egypt, and reigns 20 years in that kingdom	I.	609
3596	2289	710	Numa Marcius is made the first Pontifex Maximus among the Romans	XI.	316
3596	2289	710	Tirbaka , king of Ethiopia, helps the Egyptians and Jews against Senacherib king of Assyria	IV.	274
3596	2289	710	Senacherib , king of Assyria, returns from Egypt and besieges Lachish ; Hezekiah buys his peace, but Senacherib breaks his promise, and returns against Jerusalem with his whole army, of which God by his angel destroys 185,000 in one night	IV.	155
3596	2289	710	Senacherib , king of Assyria, returning to his royal palace at Nineveh , grew fullen and tyrannical upon his defeat at Jerusalem, and thereby becoming hateful to all about him, Adrammeleck and Sharazer , two of his sons, killed him as he was worshipping his God Nisioch , and Esarhaddon his third, son reigned in his stead	IV.	277

[XXXVI]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
3597	2290	709	Pityusa first planted with a colony of Carthaginians	XV. II.	352
3597	2290	709	An order of 12 priests instituted among the Romans and called Salii	XI.	316
3597	2290	709	Arcianus succeeds Ardokempad in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 15 years	IV.	382
3598	2291	708	Ecbatana (the metropolis of all Media, and seat of the Median and Persian monarchs) built by Dejoces , and Sybaris by the Thurians	IV.	474
3599	2292	707	The Parthenians under Phalantus build Tarentum
3602	2295	704	Arcianus dies, and an interregnum follows in the kingdom of Babylon for two years	IV.	382
3602	2295	704	Aminocles of Corinth built for the Samians their first triremes, or galleys with three oars on a side	VII.	515
3602	2295	704	Apsander succeeds Leocrates in the archonship of Athens for 10 years	V.	659
3603	2296	703	Corcyra built by the Corinthians	VII.	627
3604	2297	702	Belibus succeeds, after an interregnum of 2 years, in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 3 years	IV.	382
3607	2300	699	Apronadius succeeds Belibus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 6 years	IV.	382
3607	2300	699	Dejoces is chose the first real king of Media, (those before this time being only nominal ones) and sets about reforming abuses, &c. (Marshall's tables calls him the son of Phraortes , and puts his creation in 710.) He reigned 54 years	IV.	474
3608	2301	698	Hezekiah , the good king of Judah dies, and is succeeded by his son Manasses , a youth of 12 years old, who reigned 55 years in the most wicked infamous manner possible	IV.	156
3609	2302	697	Midas king of Phrygia dies	V.	513
3612	2305	694	Eryxias succeeds Apsander in the archonship of Athens for 10 years	V.	659
3613	2306	693	The 26th Egyptian dynasty of the Saites begins with the reign of Merres , who governed that kingdom 12 years, and succeeded Taracus	I.	609
3613	2306	693	Rigebelus succeeds Apronadius in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned but one year	IV.	382
3614	2307	692	Meseffimordachus succeeds Rigebelus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns four years	IV.	382
3616	2309	690	Anaxidamus , son of Zeuxidamus , succeeds his father as one of the two kings of Lacedæmon	VI.	418
3618	2311	688	Dejoces , king of Media, extended his empire to the river Halys (Usher)
3618	2311	688	Upon the death of Meseffimordachus king of Babylon, follows an interregnum, which lasted 8 years	IV.	382
3619	2312	687	Gela in Sicily built on a river of the same name, by Antiphemus a Rhodian , and Antimus a Cretan , who each of them heading a colony of their countrymen, came and settled here	VII.	160
3619	2312	687	Anaxander , son of Eurycrates , succeeds his father as one of the two kings of Lacedæmon	VI.	418
3620	2313	686	Archilochus , the famous inventor of Iambick verse , a native of Paros , now flourished; he wrote so satyrically against Lycambes , his father-in-law, for taking his daughter from him, that Lycambes hanged himself	VII.	590
3621	2314	685	The Messenians rebel against the Lacedæmonians , which occasions a second war, which lasted 18 years, in which the Lacedæmonians are beat at Deræ , where Aristomenes for his bravery was made general, and offered the kingdom of Messenia	VI.	418
3622	2315	684	The government of Athens is now changed into annual ar-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			chons, chose from among the most considerable of the citizens ; the first was Creon	V.	659
3623	2316	683	The Lacedæmonians are beaten again by the Messenians, under their general Aristomenes	VI.	420
3624	2317	682	Lyfias is archon at Athens	VI.	91
3624	2317	682	The Messenians are betrayed by the Arcadians to the Lacedæmonians	VI.	420
3624	2317	682	The Lacedæmonians consult the oracle at Delphos about the success of the Messenian war, and are answered, they must have an Athenian leader ; upon which, applying to Athens, they send them one Tyrtæus , a school-master, who did them mighty service	VI.	419
3625	2318	681	Stephinales succeeds Merres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 7 years	I.	609
3625	2318	681	Aristomenes , the Messenian general, celebrates a second time the Hecatombonia, or sacrifice appointed for those who had killed 100 of the enemy with their own hands ; after which he lived to do it a third time	VI.	423
3626	2319	680	Ardisus , or Ardes son of Gyges , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 49 years ; during which time the Cimmerians over-run all Asia Minor	V.	581
3626	2319	680	Assaradinus , or Esharaddon , (king of Nineveh or Assyria) makes himself king of Babylon, for the space of 13 years	IV.	278
3628	2321	678	Argæus son of Perdiccas , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedonia, and reigns 37 years	VIII.	48
3629	2322	677	Manasses , king of Judah, being conquered by Esharaddon king of Babylon, is bound with chains, and so carried prisoner to Babylon, and cast into a dungeon	IV.	158
3629	2322	677	Esharaddon transplants the remnant of the Israelites, and supplies their country with strangers ; so that from this time forward it was no more a kingdom in name or thing	IV.	279
3630	2323	676	Manasses king of Judah returns from his Babylonish captivity, and reigns 38 years in Judah, where he wrought a great reformation	IV.	160
3631	2324	675	Chalcedon , a famous city of Bithynia, built on the Bosphorus which parts Europe from Asia, and joins the Propontis with the Euxine sea	IX.	581
3632	2325	674	Nechepfos succeeds Stephinales in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 6 years	I.	609
3633	2326	673	Esharaddon , king of Babylon, reduces the Ethiopians and Egyptians to be his tributaries	IV.	288
3635	2328	671	Leostatus archon at Athens	VI.	95
3637	2330	669	Pisistratus archon at Athens	VI.	93
3638	2331	668	Necho succeeds Nechepfos in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 8 years	I.	609
3638	2331	668	Esharaddon dies, and is succeeded in the kingdom of Babylon by his son Sasduchinus , who reigned 20 years	IV.	282
3638	2331	668	Era taken by the Lacedæmonians, and Aristomenes dies, which puts an end to the war by driving the Messenians out of Peloponnesus	VI.	423
3638	2331	668	Autosthenes is made archon at Athens	VI.	91
3638	2331	668	The second Messenian war ends, and Aristocrates , king of the Arcadians, is stoned to death by his people	VI.	425
3639	2332	667	The Messenians being invited by Anaxilus , tyrant of Rhegium. they go into Sicily, settle there, and build the famous city of Messene, now called Messina	VI.	426
3640	2333	666	Tullus Hostilius succeeds Numa as king of the Romans (after a short interregnum) and reigned 32 years	XI.	321
3642	2335	664	Miltiades archon at Athens	VI.	91

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3642	2335	664	The Messenians assist Anaxilas, and take Zancle, and change its name into Messena or Messene	- - -	VIII.	141
3642	2335	664	A sea-fight between the Corinthians and Corcyrians, wherein the latter are beat, and the former take the city of Epidamnum	- - -	VIII.	61
3642	2335	664	Eurycratus the son of Anaxander, and Archidamus (or Hegicles) the son of Anaxadimus, succeed their fathers jointly in the kingdom of Lacedæmon	- - -	VI.	427
3643	2336	663	The famous battle between the three Horatii and the Curiatii, by which the kingdom of Alba was joined to Rome	- - -	XI.	328
3643	2336	663	Suffetius , the Alban king, ordered by the Romans to be tyed to two chariots, and torn to pieces by horses, for treachery, and all his accomplices to be put to the sword	- - -	XI.	330
3644	2337	662	The Romans triumph upon their conquering the Fidenates	- - -	XI.	331
3644	2337	662	Acræ in Sicily built by the Syracusans upon the mouth of the Eurotas, &c.	- - -	VII.	160
3646	2339	660	Psamniticus succeeds Necho in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 44 years	- - -	I.	609
3647	2340	659	Miltiades archon at Athens	- - -	VI.	91
3647	2340	659	Cypselas began to tyrannize at Corinth; he reigned 30 years, (being the first king after the aristocracy)	- - -	VI.	40
3648	2341	658	Byzantium built (by Pausanias, a Spartan captain) in Thrace, now called Constantinople	- - -	XV.	407
3649	2342	657	Alcmæon and Lesches flourished	- - -
3650	2343	656	Acanthus and Stagyra built, (the latter famous for the birth of Hipparchus and Aristotle, who is called the Stagyrite philosopher)	- - -	VIII.	12
3651	2344	655	Istrus , Borysthenes, Lampfacus and Abdera built	- - -	V.	563
3652	2345	654	The Romans and Sabines make war	- - -	XI.	331
3658	2351	648	Pbraortes , son of Dejoces, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Media and reigns 22 years, during which time he subdued Persia and Asia	- - -	IV.	475
3659	2352	647	Chyniladanus (called also Nebuchadonozer in the scripture) succeeds Saolduchinus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 22 years	- - -	IV.	384
3661	2354	645	Dropilus made archon of Athens	- - -	VI.	91
3661	2354	645	Terpander wrote	- - -
3663	2356	643	Ammon , the son of Manasses, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 2 years. (He was an idolater)	- - -	IV.	160
3665	2358	641	Ammon king of Judah killed by his servants, and was succeeded by his son Josiah, (but 8 years old) who reigned 31 years, and was the best king ever Judah had	- - -	IV.	160
3666	2359	640	Philip , son of Argæus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 38 years	- - -	VIII.	47
3666	3359	640	Tyrtæus , the lame Athenian schoolmaster, flourished	- - -	VI.	419
3667	2360	639	Damastias chosen archon of Athens	- - -	VI.	92
3668	2361	638	Thales , the prince of the Ionic philosophers, &c. (in Note)	- - -	VI.	124
3670	2363	636	Chyniladan (or Nebuchadonosor) conquers and kills Arphaxad king of Media, and makes his kingdom tributary	- - -	IV.	285
3670	2363	636	Holofernes , the chief general of Nebuchadonosor, (Chyniladan) besieges Bethulia with a prodigious army, is charmed by the beauty, &c. of Judith; she cuts off his head, his army flies and is plundered, &c.	- - -	IV.	290
3673	2366	633	Tullus Hostilius , king of the Romans, and all his family, is destroyed by lightning, upon which a short interregnum follows, and then the senate chose Ancus Marcius, grandson of Numa by his daughter Pompilia, king, who reigned 24 years in Rome	- - -	XI.	334
3673	2366	633	Ancus wars with the Sabines, takes Politorium, and lays it waste	- - -	XI.	336

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3674	2367	632	Sinope and Lipara built, (famous Greek cities on the coast of Paphlagonia)	IX.	381
3675	2368	631	Jeremiab began to prophesy	IV.	171
3675	2368	631	Battus , son of Polymnestus , founded and built the city and kingdom of Cyrene , and reigned 40 years	VII.	573
3675	2368	631	Sadyattes , the son of Ardysus , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia , and reigns 15 years	V.	582
3676	2369	630	Josiah , king of Judah , begins a reformation in Judah and Jerusalem	IV.	164
3676	2369	630	Zephaniab began to prophesy
3677	2370	629	Prusias in Bithynia built
3677	2370	629	Periander succeeds Cypselus in the kingdom of Corinth , and reigns 40 years	VI.	41
3679	2372	627	Epidamnus (or Dyrrachium) built, and the Megarians send a colony into Sicily	VIII.	6
3680	2373	626	Nabopolassar succeeds Chyniladanus in the kingdom of Babylon , (or Chaldæa) and reigns 21 years; during which time he transferred the kingdom of Affyria to Babylon	IV.	384
3680	2373	626	The Fidenates and Sabines rebel against the Romans	XI.	336
3680	2373	626	Lucumo Tarquin (called Priscus) an Etrurian , got a command among the Romans , and did great service against the Latins	XI.	339
3681	2374	625	Cyaxares succeeds his father Phraortes in the kingdom of Media , and reigns 40 years: He conquered all above the river Halys , and destroyed Nineveh	IV.	478
3682	2375	624	Draco (the bloody law-giver) is chose archon at Athens , and publishes his laws, which he called Sanctions	VI.	97
3683	2376	623	Hilkiab , the high-priest of the Jews , finds a true copy of the original book of the law, as they were repairing and purging the temple	IV.	165
3683	2376	623	All Israel kept the passover, and utterly destroyed idolatry	IV.	167
3684	2377	622	The Veientes conquered by the Romans	XI.	336
3684	2377	622	The Gauls , (under Ballovessus , nephew of Ambigatus king of Celtgallia) crossed the Rhone and the Alps , and settled themselves in that spot of Italy now called Piedmont and Lombardy , then inhabited by the Hetrurians	XVIII.	543
3686	2379	620	Hilkiab the high-priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded in that office by his son Azariah III.
3686	2379	620	The Veientes conquered by the Romans again	XI.	337
3686	2379	620	The city of Ostia (a sea port) built by the Romans	XI.	338
3687	2380	619	Tarquin made a patrician and a senator, as a reward for his bravery against the Veientes	XI.	339
3690	2383	616	The Samians hinder the Corinthians from carrying away 300 youth of the principal families of the Corcyrians to be made eunuchs	VII.	520
3690	2383	616	Necho , son of Psamniticus , (called in scripture Pharaoh-Necho) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Egypt , and reigned 16 years	II.	55
3691	2384	615	Heniobides chosen archon at Athens	VI.	93
3692	2385	614	Panætius was the first tyrant (or absolute prince) in Sicily
3696	2389	610	Pbaraob-Necho , king of Egypt , goes against the king of Affyria , to besiege Carchemish , (a city upon the banks of the river Euphrates)	IV.	168
3696	2389	610	As Pharaoh Necho was going against the king of Affyria , in his march through Palestine , Josiah king of Judah rashly opposes him, and is slain in battle, upon which the people set up his son Shallum (or Jehoahaz) who after a reign of three months, is carried away prisoner to Egypt by Pharaoh-Necho , who set up his elder brother Eliakim (or Jehoiakim) who reigned 11 years	IV.	169

Y. of world.	Y. of Aged.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3697	2390	609	Lucumo Tarquin , the Greek, who fled from Corinth to save his wealth and his life, took shelter at Rome, is chose to succeed Ancus (now dead) as king of the Romans, whom he governed 38 years	XI.	340
3697	2390	609	The Romans conquer the Apolani, and build the Circus for the Roman games	XI.	341
3697	2390	609	Habakkuk prophesied the Jewish captivity (in Note)	IV.	173
3697	2390	609	Jeremiah prophesies the Jewish captivity, and likewise Uriah, whom king Jehoiakim puts to death	IV.	171
3698	2391	608	Tarquin having overthrown the Hetrurians, &c. Rome, being now at peace, sets about beautifying, cleansing, and fortifying Rome, by building the walls with hewn stone, the famous aqueducts, &c.	XI.	345
3699	2392	607	Nebuchadnezzar drives the Egyptians home, and besieges and takes Jerusalem, &c.	IV.	175
3700	2393	606	Jehoiakim burns the roll of the prophecy wrote by Baruck from the mouth of Jeremiah	IV.	174
3700	2393	606	Nebuchadnezzar puts Jehoiakim king of Judah in irons, but soon releases him, and leaves him king under tribute, takes away Daniel and many others to Babylon: This begins the seventy years captivity foretold by Jeremiah the prophet	IV.	175
3700	2393	606	Pittacus , the Mitylenæan commander, kills Phrynon the Athenian commander, in single combat	VI.	100
3701	2394	605	Aristocles archon at Athens	VI.	92
3702	2395	604	Critias I. made archon at Athens	VI.	92
3702	2395	604	Nabocolasor (in scripture Nebuchadnezzar) becomes king of Babylon, and reigns 45 years	IV.	387
3703	2396	603	Daniel interprets king Nebuchadnezzar's dream, and is made governor of the whole province of Babylon, &c.	IV.	394
3703	2396	603	Jehoiakim , king of Juda, depending upon assistance from Egypt, rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, who sends a great army against him, overthrows him, kills him, &c.	IV.	175
3704	2397	602	Sappho (the famous poetess, the inventress of the Sapphick verse) now flourished	VII.	559
3704	2397	602	Æropas , son of Philip, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 26 years	VIII.	47
3705	2398	601	The Medes and Lydians being at war, while they were engaged in a battle very furiously together, happens an eclipse of the sun and parts them	IV.	483
3706	2399	600	Cylon , and his companions are killed in an attempt of aspiring to the government of Athens	VI.	100
3706	2399	600	Psamis succeeds his father Nechus in the throne of Egypt, and reigned 6 years	II.	61
3706	2399	600	Nebuchadnezzar 's army over-runs and destroys all Judah, and takes Jerusalem	IV.	175
3706	2399	600	Azariah the high-priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded in that office by his son Seraia
3707	2400	599	Mordecai , queen Esther's uncle, and Ezekiel carried into captivity	IV.	177
3707	2400	599	Jehoiakim king of Judah taken, and killed by Nebuchadnezzar, who buries him with the burying of an ass, as prophesied by Jeremiah, &c. Nebuchadnezzar sets up his son Jehoiachim (called also Conias, or Jeconias) king in his stead; but after a reign of three months and 10 days, Nebuchadnezzar takes him and all Jerusalem captive to Babylon, and sets up his uncle Mattaniah king in his stead, and changed his name into Zedechiah, who reigned tributary to Nebuchadnezzar 11 years	IV.	17
3707	2400	599	Cyrus , the son of Cambyfes king of Persia, and of Mandane

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			daughter of Astyages king of Media, born. (He was fir- named Cyrus the Great)	V.	69
3707	2400	599	The Romans, under king Tarquin, conquers the Fidenæ and the Camerini	XI.	343
3708	2401	598	The Romans entirely conquer the Latins	XI.	343
3709	2402	597	The Sabines and Romans make a drawn battle	XI.	346
3709	2402	597	Camarina (a famous city in Sicily) built by the Syracusans	VII.	160
3709	2402	597	Anaxandrides and Ariston jointly reign in Lacedæmon	VI.	429
3709	2402	597	The Sabines defeated, beg a truce of 6 years, which is granted	XI.	350
3711	2404	595	The destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians, and the restoration of Israel foretold by Jeremiah the prophet, Ch. L. LI. and Baruck in captivity read his book, and Ezekiel being in captivity, had his first vision	IV.	173
3711	2404	595	Epimenides the Phestian is sent for to Athens from Crete, to expiate the Athenians, &c.	VI.	102
3711	2404	595	Philombrotus archon at Athens	VI.	92
3712	2405	594	Apries (the Pharaoh-Hophra of scripture) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Egypt	II.	64
3712	2405	594	Solon , the wise law-giver, archon at Athens	VI.	92
3714	2407	592	Eucrates archon at Athens	VI.	92
3714	2407	592	Anacharsis having vowed to introduce the worship of the mo- ther of the Gods among the Scythians, is slain in the midst of his ceremonial performance	V.	479
3715	2408	591	Zedechiab , king of Judah rebelling, Nebuchadnezzar went up against Judea, lays all the country waste, and comes up against Jerusalem	IV.	178
3715	2408	591	Archefilaus succeeds Battus in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 16 years	VII.	573
3716	2409	590	About the middle of winter Nebuchadnezzar begins the siege of Jerusalem in form	IV.	178
3717	2410	589	Jerusalem closely besieged for 360 days; from hence the 70 years of indignation, mentioned Zench. I. 12. VII. 5. are supposed to commence
3717	2410	589	Psammitichus succeeds Periander in the government of Corinth for 3 years
3717	2410	589	Jeremiab being in prison, has his own deliverance revealed to him by God. Jer. xxxix. 15. 18.	IV.	177
3718	2411	588	Jeremiab carried captive as far as Ramah, is there released by Nebuchadnezzar, upon which he returns home, (and, 'tis supposed, wrote the two books of the Kings)	IV.	179
3718	2411	588	The famine prevailing, Jerusalem is broken up by Nebu- chadnezzar, upon which king Zedekiah flies, but is pur- sued and taken, and his sons first slain in his presence, then his own eyes are put out, and afterwards he is car- ried in chains captive to Babylon: On the third day after the taking and plundering the city, by Nebuzar-adan Ne- buchadnezzar's general, being the 10th of the 4th month, (our 27 August) the temple, palace, and whole city was burnt to the ground, &c. the walls and fortifications all demolished, and the people carried away captive: Such was the dreadful end of that glorious kingdom, and of the Is- raelitish monarchs, after it had stood 468 years from the beginning of David's reign, 388 from the revolt of the 10 tribes, and 134 from the excision of the Israelitish com- monwealth	IV.	179
3718	2411	588	Seraiab , the Jewish high-priest, killed at Riblah by Nebu- chadnezzar, and his son Jozadek carried captive to Ba- bylon	IV.	179
3718	2411	588	Nebuzar-adan leaves Gedaliah governor of Judah, with the World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.

				power of life and death, who, about three months after was treacherously killed by one Ishmael, &c.	IV.	180
3719	2412	587		Obed prophesied against the Edomites
3720	2413	586		The Pythia (or games in honour of Apollo) exhibited at Del- phos, where the victors were crowned with oak leaves	VI.	17
3722	2415	584		Astyages (called in scripture Ahafuerus) the son of Cyaxeres, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 35 years	IV.	489
3722	2415	584		Nebuchadnezzar besieging Tyre, was the last carrying away of the Jews by Nebuzar-adan, the Babylonish general	IV.	403
3724	2417	582		The victors at the Pythian games are now first crowned with laurel, from whence some call this the first Pythias	VI.	17
3724	2417	582		The Isthmean games now restored, (first instituted by The- seus at Corinth in honour of Neptune;) the victors were crowned with pine leaves	V.	652
3724	2417	582		Damascas archon at Athens	VI.	92
3730	2423	576		Alcetas , the son of Æropas , succeeds his father in the king- dom of Macedon, and reigns 29 years	VIII.	43
3731	2424	575		Batius II. succeeds Arcefilaus in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 21 years	VII.	573
3734	2427	572		Phalaris , the cruel tyrant of Agrigentum, begun his 16 years reign	VII.	395
3734	2427	572		Tyre, after 13 years siege, yields to Nebuchadnezzar. Ezek. xxix. 18.	IV.	403
3734	2427	572		Tarquin , king of Rome, treacherously murdered, and suc- ceeded by his son-in-law Servius Tullius , who reigned 44 years	XI.	353
3735	2428	571		The Jews in Egypt carried to Babylon	IV.	404
3735	2428	571		Servius Tullius defeats the Veientes, &c. for which he has a triumph, and is legally elected king by the Curiae	XI.	356
3735	2428	571		Apries , king of Egypt, is drove out of his kingdom by Ne- buchadnezzar king of Babylon	IV.	404
3736	2429	570		Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the great tree, &c. and Daniel's interpretation, &c.	IV.	419
3736	2429	570		Servius a second time defeats the Hetrurians, and has a second triumph, and then enlarges the city of Rome, &c.	XI.	356
3736	2429	570		Aristomenes made archon at Athens	VI.	92
3737	2430	569		Apries king of Egypt gives battle to Amasis, viceroy of Nebu- chadnezzar, but is defeated, taken prisoner and strangled, and Amasis reigned 44 years as king of Egypt	IV.	404
3737	2430	569		Nebuchadnezzar becomes mad, and is driven out of his king- dom for seven years	IV.	420
3739	2432	567		The Nemean games renewed
3744	2437	562		Nebuchadnezzar throws his son Evil-merodach into prison, for male administration during his illness	IV.	422
3744	2437	562		Cræsus , son of Hallyattes, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 14 years	V.	584
3744	2437	562		Nebuchadnezzar is restored to his senses	IV.	422
3744	2437	562		The first comedy at Athens made by Sufarion, and acted upon a moveable scaffold
3745	2438	561		Iloardudamus (called in scripture Evil-merodach) becomes king of Babylon, and reigns 2 years, when he is murdered by Neriglissar (his sister's husband) who succeeds him in the kingdom	IV.	424
3745	2438	561		Comias made archon at Athens. During his reign, Pisistratus set up his tyranny or absolute government in Athens	VI.	92
3745	2438	561		Evil-merodach prefers Jeconiah king of Judah above all his captive kings	IV.	421
3745	2438	561		The prophet Daniel obtains great favour in the eyes of Ne- buchadnezzar	IV.	39

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3745	2438	561	Æsop the famous fabulist dies	-	-
3746	2439	560	Pisistratus , Solon's kinsman, having obtained a guard for his private person, seizes the citadel of Athens, and turns the commonwealth into a kingdom, reigning alone under the name of a tyrant, (though a very good prince)	VI.	150
3746	2439	560	Thespis the Athenian poet, the inventor of tragedy, about this time introduced it into Athens, together with the use of masks or painted faces, &c.	VI.	150
3746	2439	560	Servius Tullius having spent his time in regulating the kingdom by good laws, &c. established a Census (or valuation of each man's estate to be taken, and the possessors to be esteemed of such and such a rank, in proportion to the value thereof,) every five years, at which time a solemn lustration, or expiatory sacrifice for all the people, was performed: From this institution the Romans computed time, making this first an Æra to reckon from. Servius is supposed to coin the first money in Rome with the figures of the animals that were then sacrificed upon it	XI.	361
3746	2439	560	Hegestratus made archon at Athens	VI.	92
3746	2439	560	Cyrus (son of Cambyfes , by Mandane daughter of Astyages) began to reign over Persia	V.	58
3747	2440	559	Solon dies, aged 79 years	VI.	154
3747	2440	559	Niricassolassar succeeds Evil-merodach in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 4 years	IV.	361
3747	2440	559	Servius Tullius makes a law to form a fourth tribe among the Romans, and abridges the royal power, by giving the judgment of all common matters to the senate, and reserving only state crimes to the crown	XI.	362
3749	2442	557	Simonides born	VII.	577
3750	2443	556	Phalaris killed by the Agrigentines, for his extraordinary cruelty and tyranny	VII.	395
3750	2443	556	Euthydemus made archon at Athens	VI.	92
3750	2443	556	Chilo , one of the seven wise men of Greece, was Euphorus
3751	2444	555	Laborosoarchod , son of Niricassolassar , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 9 months	IV.	361
3751	2444	555	Daniel has the vision of the four monarchies	IV.	393
3751	2444	555	Nabonadius (in scripture called Belshazzar) succeeds Laborosoarchod in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 17 years	IV.	361
3752	2445	554	Arcefilaus II. becomes king of Cyrene, and reigns 4 years	VII.	573
3752	2445	554	Barce (a sea port of Cyrenaica) built by the brothers of Arcefilaus king of Cyrene	XVIII.	67
3753	2446	553	Daniel sees the vision of the Persian and Grecian monarchies
3755	2448	551	Confucius born
3756	2449	550	Battus III. succeeds in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 24 years	VII.	573
3757	2450	549	Cyaxares II. son of Astyages , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 24 years. (In scripture called Darius the Mede . Dan. ix.)	IV.	499
3758	2451	548	Cræsus passing the river Halys upon a bridge built by Thales , is taken by Cyrus at Sardis , who carried him away captive, put an end to the kingdom of Lydia , after it had stood 248 years under the government of 9 kings, and made it a province of Persia	V.	588
3758	2451	548	Thales dies, aged 90 years, and is succeeded in his school by Anaximander	I.	110
3759	2452	547	Amyntas , son of Alcetus , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 53 years	VIII.	43

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3759	2452	547		Anaximander dies, aged 64 years, and is succeeded by Anaximines in his school	I.	112
3761	2454	545		The Medes go against the Ionians	V.	113
3763	2456	543		The united fleets of the Carthaginians and Etruscans engage the Phocæans in the Sardinian sea, and sink or disable their whole fleet, upon which the Phocæans are obliged to quit the island of Cyrnus (now Corfica) to the Carthaginians and Etruscans
3768	2461	538		Daniel interprets the hand-writing upon the wall to Belshazzar , and is promoted to be the chief of the three princes over the whole kingdom of Babylon	IV.	438
3768	2461	538		Daniel is cast into the lion's den, but is preserved, and sees the vision of the 70 weeks, &c.	IV.	439
3768	2461	538		Cyrus takes Babylon and kills Belshazzar ; Darius (or Cyaxares) becomes king of Babylon for 2 years	V.	81
3769	2462	537		Machæus , the Carthaginian general, gains great advantages for his countrymen over the Africans	XVI.	676
3770	2463	536		Cyrus makes a decree, and sends Zerubabel (or the supreme judge over all that returned) of the seed of David , and the high-priest Jeshua , with a great number of Jews to Jerusalem , with authority to rebuild the temple, and to have the free exercise of their religion	V.	82
3770	2463	536		Athenæus made archon at Athens	VI.	91
3770	2463	536		The first great monarchy of Babylon dissolved, after it had stood 210 years under 21 kings and two interregnums	VI.	81
3770	2463	536		Cyaxares (or Darius the Mede) dies, and is succeeded by Cyrus , whose father, Cambyfes king of Persia , dying likewise, he unites the two kingdoms, and forms the second great monarchy, under the name of the Persian monarchy, over which he reigned 7 years	V.	81
3770	2463	536		Machæus , the Carthaginian general, reduces a great part of the island of Sicily to the obedience of Carthage
3771	2464	535		The foundation of the new temple at Jerusalem is laid, and Jeshua the son of Jozadeck made high-priest: The Cuthim offer to assist in building, but being refused, get a stop to be put to it	V.	82
3771	2464	535		The plague makes dreadful havock at Carthage , whereupon the Carthaginians sacrifice their children to appease the Gods
3772	2465	534		Daniel sees his last vision, as recorded in the X. XI. and XII. chapters of the book of Daniel	V.	81
3774	2467	532		Polycrates and his brother Pantagrotus tyrants together at Samos , but Polycrates soon reigns alone	VII.	521
3776	2469	530		Machæus , with the Carthaginian army, leaves Sicily , and invades Sardinia , where he is defeated and half his army destroyed, upon which the senate banishes the general and the remainder of his army, who revenge themselves by besieging Carthage , and crucifying Cartalo , the son of Machæus ; and after the surrender of the city, they put 10 senators to death, and so re-establish the publick peace	IV.
3777	2470	529		Cambyfes (in scripture also called Ahasuerus) son of Cyrus , succeeds his father in the united kingdoms of Persia and Media , or the 2d great monarchy, and reigns about 8 years	V.	85
3777	2470	529		Tarquin (surnamed the proud) son-in-law to Servius king of the Romans , conspires against his father and murders him, ascends the throne, and reigns very arbitrarily and cruelly 25 years	XI.	366
3778	2471	528		Pisistratus the tyrant of Athens dies, after 33 years reign, though twice interrupted, and is succeeded by his sons Hipparchus and Hippias	VI.	161

[xlv]				Vol.	Page.
Before Chrifi.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
526	2473	3780	Arcefilaus III. ſucceeds Battus III. in the kingdom of Cyrene , but after one year's reign he yields his kingdom to Cambyſes king of Perſia	V.	87
525	2474	3781	Pſammenitus ſucceeds his father Amafiſ in the kingdom of Egypt , but after a reign of 6 months is conquered by Cambyſes king of Perſia , and the whole country becomes tributary to Cambyſes	V.	87
524	2475	3782	Cambyſes king of Perſia marches with a great army againſt Ethiopia , and is ſo diſtreſſed for food, that every tenth man in his army is ſlain by lot to feed the other nine. On his return to Thebes he cauſed all the temples to be pillaged and burnt to the ground; there was 300 talents of gold and 2300 talents of ſilver ſaved out of the flames; he likewise carried away the famous gold circle that encompaſſed the tomb of king Ozymandias , which was 365 cubits in circumference, and had upon it the representation of the motions of the ſeveral conſtellations, &c.	V.	89
524	2475	3782	Cambyſes firſt marries, and then murders his own ſiſter Meroe , by kicking her on the belly while great with child	V.	92
523	2476	3783	Polycrates , tyrant of Samos , is treacherouſly murdered by Oretes the Perſian governor of Sardis (under Cyrus) at Sardis ; upon hearing whereof Meandrus , ſecretary to Polycrates , ſets himſelf up for his ſucceſſor, and being eſtabliſhed in the ſupreme power, offers to reſtore the Samians to their former liberty, &c.	VII.	531
523	2476	3783	Machæus the Carthaginian general endeavours to overturn the government of Carthage , and introduce arbitrary power, for which he was put to death, and ſucceeded in the generalſhip by Mago	XVI.	678
523	2476	3783	Cambyſes king of Perſia orders his brother Smerdis to be murdered, for fear he ſhould, during his abſence, take the kingdom from him	V.	91
522	2477	3784	Cambyſes king of Perſia dies, and is ſucceeded by Smerdis , brother of Patizitbes , who being perſonally like Smerdis the ſon of Cyrus and brother of Cambyſes pretended to be the real perſon, and ſo got himſelf eſtabliſhed in the empire, and reigned about 8 months	V.	95
522	2477	3784	Darius ſon of Hyaſtaſpis , a noble Perſian of the royal family of Achamenes , governor of the province of Perſia , with 7 other lords, conſpire againſt and murder the impoſtor Smerdis , the then reigning Perſian monarch, and is choſe king in his ſtead: To ſtrengthen his intereſt he married Atoſia and Artyſtona , the two daughters of Cyrus ; alſo Parmys , the daughter of Smerdis the real ſon of Cyrus , (who was murdered by order of his brother Cambyſes) and Phedyma the daughter of Otanes , (one of the ſeven lords who aſſiſted Darius , and who detected Smerdis the impoſtor.) He reigned 36 years	V.	101
520	2479	3786	Arcefilaus III. king of Cyrene , revolts from Perſia , but being purſued to Barce was killed there; upon which his mother Pheretime , getting an army in Egypt , returns to Cyrene , and reigned there 6 years	XVIII.	72
518	2481	3788	Darius , king of Perſia , makes a decree to enable the Jews to go on with rebuilding the temple at Jeruſalem	X.	23
517	2482	3789	The Babylonians revolt from Darius king of Perſia , upon which Darius comes with a great army and beſieges Babylon ; the Babylonians to make their provisions hold out, collect the women, old men, and children, and ſtrangle them without diſtinction	V.	104

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3790	2483	516	The temple of Jerusalem finished by Zerubabel, the civil governor under Darius king of Persia, and Jehu the high-priest, in the month Adar, answering in part to our February	X.	23
3791	2484	515	Darius king of Persia puts away his wife Vashti , and promotes Esther , a Jewess, to be queen in her stead	X.	25
3791	2484	515	Darius takes Babylon, by the assistance and artifice of Zopyrus , one of his chief commanders, and broke down the walls that were 200 cubits high to 50 cubits high	V.	104
3792	2485	514	Pheretyme dying in Egypt, is succeeded by Battus IV. in the kingdom of Cyrene, where he reigned 48 years	XVIII.	72
3793	2486	513	Hipparchus , one of the tyrants of Athens, is killed by Harmodius and Aristogiton ; and then Hippias reigned alone in so cruel a manner, that the people expelled him three years afterwards	VI.	165
3796	2489	510	Cleomenes and Demaratus jointly reign kings in Lacedæmon	VI.	379
3797	2490	509	Haman , an Amalekite, having got into favour at Darius's court, out of spite to Mordecai , queen Esther's uncle, he gets an order to destroy all the Jews on the 13th of the month Adar; but Esther petitions the king, and gets an order for the Jews to kill all their enemies, on that and the following days, throughout all the provinces of his vast dominions, upon which Haman was hang'd, &c. In memory of this deliverance the Jews keep the feast of Purim to this day, on the 13th and 14th days of Adar	X.	24
3797	2490	509	The tyrant Hippias flies from Athens to Darius king of Persia	VIII.	52
3797	2490	509	In the bloody war between the Crotonians and Sybarites , Milo the general of the Crotons , conquers 300,000 Sybarites with 100,000 Crotons ; upon which Milo destroys Sybaris , &c. This Milo was the disciple of Pythagoras , and had been six times victor in the Olympic games, and often in others. (See note)	VI.	246
3798	2491	508	The Carthaginians and Romans make a league of amity together for the first time	VII.	530
3800	2493	506	Pythagoras the famous philosopher died. (In Note)	VII.	530
3800	2493	506	Tarquin , king of the Romans , buys the Sybiline books, and appoints two persons, called the Duumviri , to be their guardians, and orders them to be locked up in a vault under the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus , (the most magnificent and expensive building that ever was erected) where they remained till they and the temple were burnt together	XI.	372
3800	2493	506	Upon a raging plague breaking out at Rome , Tarquin sends his two sons to consult the oracle at Delphos , who being asked, who should be prince of Rome , answered, he that first kissed his mother; which Brutus , one of their company explained mystically, by falling down upon the ground as soon as he came within the limits of Italy , and kissed the earth, the common parent of mankind	XI.	375
3801	2494	505	Tarquin , king of the Romans , having ravished Lucretia , the wife of Collatinus , she assembles her father, &c. tells them what had happened, and then stabs herself; upon which Junius Brutus assembles the senate, inveighs bitterly against Tarquin , &c. so that the senate and people deprived Tarquin of the crown, banished him and all his family for ever, and dissolved the regal government, and turned it into a commonwealth under the management of two annual consuls, &c. the first whereof were Junius Brutus and Tarquinius Collatinus , &c.	XI.	38

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chrift	Before		Vol.	Page
3802	2495	504	Collatinus is obliged to resign the consulship with shame, and Publius Valerius is chose in his stead	-	XI.	391
3802	2495	504	Tarquin raises the Veientes , &c. and comes against Rome: The consuls command the Roman army; Brutus is slain, but Valerius comes off conqueror	-	XI.	392
3802	2495	504	Valerius summons the people, and they chuse Sp. Lucretius his Colleague; but he dying in a few days, Valerius reigns alone, and from his love to the real interest of his country was called Poplicola , or Popular	-	XI.	394
3803	2496	503	Poplicola and T. Lucretius chose consuls, they revive the Census and Lustrum, and find 130,000 men in Rome past the age of puberty	-	XI.	397
3803	2496	503	Naxos , the famous and fruitful city of the Cyclades in Sicily, besieged by Aristagoras , governor of Miletus in Ionia, assisted with 200 ships, and a considerable army of land forces from Darius king of Persia; but after 4 months, the siege was rais'd, &c. by their being forwarned of the design, by Negabates the Persian general, out of pique to Aristagoras , with whom he had quarrelled	-	VII.	586
3804	2497	502	Histiæus , tyrant of Miletus in Ionia, persuades Aristagoras to revolt from Darius , which he does, and gets many of the Greeks on his side	-	VII.	587
3804	2497	502	Porfena , king of Clusium, at the head of a great multitude of Hetrurians , espouses Tarquin's cause, which defeat and intimidate the Romans for a while; but by the bravery of Horatius Cocles the Romans were supported, and by means of Mutius Scævola's extraordinary courage a peace is made, and the Tarquins rejected by Porfenna , &c.	-	IX.	402
3805	2498	501	Spurius Lartius and T. Herminius chose consuls at Rome for this year	-	IX.	403
3806	2499	500	M. Valerius and P. Posthumius being consuls, twice defeat the Sabines , who invaded the Roman territories, for which they were decreed a triumph, and extraordinary honours and privileges	-	XI.	404
3806	2499	500	Gorgus , brother of Onesilus , being king of Salamis in Cyprus, Onesilus raises a party, drives out Gorgus and shakes off the Persian yoke	-	VII.	495
3807	2500	499	Zeno Eleates , the famous Athenian philosopher, born at Pergamus , now flourished and taught the doctrine of Xenophanes , viz. That God and the world is one and the same thing, &c.	-	I.	84
3807	2500	499	Poplicola being the 4th time consul of Rome, the Sabines resolve to renew the war; upon which Actius Clausius , the greatest man in all Sabinia , with 5000 families comes over to the Romans, and changes his name for Appius Claudius : Poplicola engages and entirely routs the Sabines , is honoured with a triumph and dies, &c.	-	XI.	406
3808	2501	498	Aristagoras , the Ionian, killed in Thrace by the Persians in battle, from whom he had persuaded the Ionians to revolt	-	V.	115
3808	2501	498	The Sabines again attack the Romans, and are entirely defeated by Menenius the consul, for which he is granted a triumph, and his colleague Posthumius an ovation	-	XI.	407
3809	2502	497	Histiæus , the Ionian, crucify'd at Sardis by Artaphernes , general of the Persian army under Darius king of Persia	-	V.	115
3809	2502	497	Hippocrates began his tyranny at Gela	-	VII.	167
3809	2502	497	The Sabines being troublesome, the new consul Cassius Ucellinus overthrows them in a pitch'd battle, kills 10,000 upon the spot, upon which they sue for peace, which is granted them upon condition of their paying great sums of	-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			money, and furnishing large quantities of corn, and yielding up 10,000 acres of arable land - -	XI.	408
3809	2502	497	Alexander , the son of Amyntas, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 43 years -	VIII.	43
3810	2503	496	The conspiracy of the Tarquins to murder the senators, and establish themselves upon the Roman throne again, is discovered by Publius and Marcus, upon which the conspirators were taken and put to death, &c. -	XI.	410
3811	2504	495	Darius , king of Persia, first reduces the Greek islands under his Dominion, and lays a tribute on all the provinces, (Esther x.) which before only paid a free gift -	VII.	585
3812	2505	494	Mardonius , the Persian general, loses 300 ships about mount Athos, and more than 20,000 men, by a violent storm that drove about half his fleet on shore, &c. -	VIII.	53
3813	2506	493	The dignity of dictator, or absolute governor in the Roman commonwealth for 6 months, is created, and Lartius the consul is made the first dictator, who promoted Sp. Cassius general of the horse, or second man in the government, which office died with the dictatorship -	XI.	413
3813	2506	493	Lartius the dictator, having made a truce with the Latins for a year, lays down the dictatorship before the expiration of the time appointed for the continuance of that office -	XI.	414
3814	2507	492	Posthumius , the Roman consul, being made dictator, goes against and engages the Latins, kills 33,000 men, and their three generals, and so ended the war. entered into to resettle Tarquin on the Roman throne, who hereupon retired to Cumæ, and died there in the 90th year of his age and 14th of his exile -	XI.	418
3815	2508	491	Hybrilides made archon (or Judge) at Athens this year -	VI.	92
3815	2508	491	Cleomenes , joint king of Sparta, thrusts out his colleague Demaratus, and Leotychides succeeds and reigns with Leonidas -	VI.	379
3815	2508	491	Cleomenes , joint king of Sparta, kills himself, and is succeeded by Leonidas, the second son of Anaxandrides -	VI.	379
3815	2508	491	The Romans make a law, that all persons entering themselves into the army should be free from all prosecutions for debt, upon which the army under P. Servilius the consul becomes very numerous, with which he engages the Volsci and defeats them entirely; whereupon demanding a triumph, he is denied it, but gives himself one by force of arms -	XI.	424
3815	2508	491	Miltiades , the Athenian general, with only 10,000 men, overcomes the Persian general Datis, with 100,000 foot and 10,000 horse, in the plains of Marathon, killing vast numbers, and driving the rest on board their ships, many of which he also burnt and destroyed -	V.	119
3816	2509	490	The book of Esther is now supposed to be wrote by Mordecai, uncle to Esther the Jewess, queen of Persia instead of Vashti, who was put away for disobedience -
3816	2509	490	Pausanias , king of Sparta, conspires with Artabazus the Persian general to make himself sovereign of all Greece, for which the allies deprive him of his command of the allied army, and even besiege him in Byzantium, from whence flying to Heraclea he returned to Sparta, where the Ephori try him, but pass him by for a time; but continuing his male practices, and being pursued, flew into the temple of Minerva Chalcidica, where he was starved to death -	VI.	452
3816	2509	490	Manius Valerius , brother of Poplicola, is chose dictator of Rome; by whose wise management the publick dissensions between the people and patricians were appeased, and all

Vol.	Page.	Before Chrif.	Y. of flood.	Y. of world.
					the foreign enemies of Rome subdued ; for which he was decreed a triumph
XI.	427			3816	2509 490 The city of Eretria in Eubæa being treacherously delivered into the hands of the Perfians, was by them first pillaged, then burnt, and the inhabitants fold for slaves.
VI.	179			3817	2510 489 Leotychides , king of Sparta, takes bribes of the Theffalians, professed enemies of his country ; but being detected, he flies to Tegea, and dies there in exile.
VI.	453			3817	2510 489 Valerius lays down the dictatorship, and the Roman people rise in arms upon account of the law of indemnity from debt, not being confirmed, &c.
XI.	429			3817	2510 489 Mago , having thoroughly introduced a strict military discipline into the Carthaginian troops, and behaved in an unexceptionable manner in all his great posts and employments, dies, and is succeeded in his honours and estates by his two sons Asdrubal and Hamilcar .
XVI.	678			3817	2510 489 The Carthaginians endeavour to free themselves from paying an annual tribute to the Africans for the ground whereon the city of Carthage stood, are beat by the Africans, and the tribute fixed more firmly than before.
XVII.	21			3818	2511 488 The Roman Senate agree to pass the law of indemnity from debt, and choose five Officers out of the people, or plebeians, called them tribunes, whose office was to examine and disannul all laws passed by the senate that were injurious to the people ; upon which the people return to their duty, &c.
XI.	434			3818	2511 488 Miltiades (one of the ten Athenian generals) going against the Perfians, miscarries ; at his return to Athens he is tryed and condemned to pay fifty talents, (the whole charge of the expedition ;) but not being able to pay, is cast into prison, &c.
VI.	189			3818	2511 488 Darius king of Persia sends embassadors to Carthage, to desire those people to abstain from human sacrifices, and the eating dogs flesh, to burn their dead and not to bury them, and to furnish him with a body of auxiliary troops against the Greeks ; all which they complied with, except the last.
XVII.	22			3819	2512 487 Cominius the Roman consul honours Caius Martius with the surname of Coriolanus , for his taking Corioli , the metropolis of the Volsci , and being greatly instrumental in defeating the armies of the Volscians and Antiates ; this consulship ended with a census and lustrum, when it appeared there were but 100,000 men in Rome fit to bear arms.
XI.	437			3820	2513 486 A great famine in Rome breeds a civil dissension, upon which the Antiates make incursions into the Roman territories, and even threaten Rome itself ; upon which Coriolanus assembles a band of voluntiers, advances into the enemies country, defeats them several times, and returns loaded with booty, &c.
XI.	437			3820	2513 486 Xerxes (son of Darius Hystaspes , by Atossa the daughter of Cyrus) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Persia, and reigned 21 years. Artamenes , his half brother, son of Darius by the daughter of Gobryas , opposed him, pleading his primogeniture, but finding himself too weak to contest it, yields the kingdom to him.
V.	123			3820	2513 486 Coriolanus , after a long dispute between the senate and people, is condemned to banishment ; upon which he goes over to the Volsci .
XI.	446

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3820	2513	486	Asdrubal , the Carthaginian general in Sardinia, dying of his wounds, the command of that army falls upon his brother Hamilcar	XVI.	678
3821	2514	485	Xerxes , king of Persia, renews, confirms, and enlarges the former privileges granted to the Jews	X.	23
3821	2514	485	Coriolanus , as general of the Volscian army, besieges Rome, is wrought upon by his mother, wife, and the Roman matrons to raise the siege, for which he was stabbed in the Volscian senate, when he appeared to answer the complaint exhibited against him	XI.	455
3821	2514	485	Gelon (a native of Gela in Sicily) upon the death of Hippocrates , under pretence of defending the rights of Hippocrates 's children, after several engagements with, and overcoming the Syracusians, &c. was declared the first king thereof, and reigned 18 years with great applause, striving all that time to do all the good possible	VII.	174
3821	3514	485	The Sicilians beg the assistance of Leonidas , the Athenian general, against the Carthaginians, but are refused; whereupon Gelon defends himself, &c.	XVII.	22
3822	2515	484	Xerxes king of Persia goes against the Egyptians, who had revolted from him, overcame them, and fixed his brother Achæmenes viceroy, and then returns to Susa	V.	124
3823	2516	483	Aristides is banished Athens, by ostracism; viz. a writing the accused person's name upon a shell by the freemen, which, if they amounted to 6000, banished the person for ten years	VI.	193
3823	2516	483	Aquilius Tuscus and Sicinnius being consuls at Rome, Tuscus gains a complete victory over the Hernici, and is voted an ovation. Sabinus overcomes the Volsci, kills their general, and takes their camp, for which he is decreed a triumph, &c.	XI.	457
3824	2517	482	The Agrarian law for dividing the conquered lands among the people, &c.	XI.	458
3825	2518	481	Cassius is accused by his own father of aspiring to the Roman sovereignty, and is condemned and executed, by being cast headlong from the Tarpeian rock	XI.	461
3826	2519	480	The Roman senate order the consecration of the temple of Castor and Pollux	XI.	462
3826	2519	480	Themistocles buys off Epycides from soliciting to be made general of the Athenian forces, and gets himself elected; procures an act to recall all the banished, by which means Aristides returns home, at the end of 3 instead of 10 years	VI.	196
3826	2519	480	Jeshua the Jewish high-priest dies, and is succeeded in that office by his son Joiakim , who held that office 36 years	X.	24
3826	2519	480	About this time the Rhodians laid aside the monarchic form of government, and introduced the republican form among them	VII.	408
3826	2519	480	Xerxes makes his first expedition into Greece, whose army, when he arrived at Thermopylæ , a narrow pass that divides Thessaly from Greece, consisted of 2,641,610 soldiers, exclusive of servants, eunuchs, women, sutlers, &c. computed at as many more	V.	132
3826	2519	480	Leonidas joint king of Sparta, and 300 Spartans, resolutely resist the Persians at Thermopylæ , and are all slain; and is succeeded in the kingdom by his son Cleombrotus , who dying very soon, was succeeded by his son Pausanias , tutor to Plistarchus son of Leonidas	V.	13

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3826	2519	480		Xerxes takes Athens, and burns the city and all its temples down to the ground, and lays waste and destroys the country all about ; but being soon after engaged by the united confederate Grecian fleet, (consisting of 380 sail, under the sole command of Themistocles the Athenian commander) at Salamis, the Persians and their confederates, being 2000 sail, Themistocles took and destroyed upwards of 200 sail, with all the men and amunition, and dispersed the rest, &c.	V.	143
3826	2519	480		Hamilcar , the Carthaginian general, is killed by Gelon the Syracusan tyrant, and their army entirely defeated ; whereupon his son Gisco is banished, and a peace concluded	XVI	679
3827	2520	479		The Spartans decree the prize of prudence to Themistocles the Athenian general, honour him with a crown of olive leaves, and bestow a most magnificent chariot upon him, and escort him home with a guard of 500 men, an honour never paid by them to any one before	VI.	207
3828	2521	478		Athens laid in ashes by Mardonius, the Persian general, a second time, who was soon after killed at Platea in a general engagement, where the Greeks overcame the Persians with so great a slaughter, that they left but 3000 persons alive out of 300,000 ; and the same day the Persians were also defeated at Mycale in Ionia, by the Greeks, under the command of Xanthippus, &c.	V.	148
3828	2521	478		Disputes arising among the Romans about choosing consuls, S. Atratinus is appointed chief governor, and is succeeded by Sp. Lartius a few days afterwards, by whose good management C. Julius Julus, and Q. Fabius Vitulanus were chose consuls	XI.	463
3829	2522	477		The Athenians take Sestos, and pursue and take Oibazus, one of the Persian generals, and put him and his men to death ; and also Artyctes, another Persian general, who offered to sacrifice 100 talents to Protefilaus, and pay 200 talents for his own and his son's life, but is refused, he being impaled, and his son stoned before his face	VI.	212
3830	2523	476		Themistocles rebuilds Athens, and makes Pyræum the Athenian port, instead of Phalerum, it being larger and more commodious	VI.	415
3830	2523	476		Anaxillas , the tyrant of Rhegium, (a famous city over-against Sicily on the coast of Italy) dies
3830	2523	476		The Romans with great difficulty defeat the Hetrurians, the consul Cn. Manlius, Cincinnatus, &c. being slain	XI.	467
3831	2524	475		The Fabii undertake the defence of the Roman frontiers against the Veientes, at their own expence	XI.	469
3832	2525	474		Cæso Fabius is made the first proconsul, which office gave him consular power over the troops that he commanded	XI.	469
3832	2525	474		Pausanias , the Spartan king, behaved so insolently and tyrannically towards the Greek confederates, that they unanimously chose Aristides the Athenian to be their chief commander, and voluntarily tax themselves, and acknowledge Athens to be the chief city of Greece	VI.	217
3834	2527	472		Gelon , tyrant, (king) at Syracuse, dies, and is succeeded by his brother Hiero, who reigned 13 years	VII.	178
3834	2527	472		Epicarmus , a famous Syracusan poet, that either invented or introduced comedy among them, flourished in the times of Gelon and Hiero, kings of Syracuse. ——— Marshall
3834	2527	472		The Roman consuls, Virginius and Servilius, entirely defeat the Hetrurians, who besieged Rome and caused a famine, by which overthrow, plenty, liberty, &c. was again restored to the city, and the inhabitants thereof	XI.	475

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3836	2529	470	The Roman consul Manlius, without any loss, reduces the Veientes to sue for peace, and a truce of forty years is granted them : For this unbloody victory, he is granted an ovation	XI.	477
3836	2529	470	Democritus , the supposed author of the Atomic system, (vol. I. page 113.) and of Fatal Necessity, &c. now flourished. He was a great Astronomer and geometrician ; he used to ridicule the Athenians unreasonable pursuit after wealth, by laughing at them ; he made himself blind, by looking upon a brazen-globe when the sun shone upon it : He was born at Abdera in Thrace, and called the Abderite	IX.	508
3837	2530	469	Pausanias joint king of Sparta dies, and is succeeded by Plistarchus , who reigned three years	VI.	379
3837	2530	469	Cimon the Athenian, (son of Miltiades by the daughter of the king of Thrace) a man of consummate wisdom, integrity, and courage, chose admiral of the Grecian fleet, and sent against the Persians	VI.	224
3837	2530	469	Leotychides , joint king of Sparta, (Lacedæmon) dies in exile, and was succeeded by his grandson Archidamus , the son of Zeuxidamus , who died before his father Leotychides	VI.	379
3838	2531	468	Diagoras the Greek philosopher, born at Melos, one of the islands in the Ægean sea, was the first that affirmed that there were no Gods, (for which he was called an atheist) now flourished.——Marshall
3838	2531	468	Cimon , the Athenian general, taking the city Eion from the Persians, the Persian commander burnt the palace, his garrison, all his wealth, and himself	VI.	225
3838	2531	468	A most dreadful earthquake happened at Sparta, in which 20,000 inhabitants and all the houses but five, were destroyed ; upon which the Helotes and Messenians , &c. revolt	VI.	453
3838	2531	468	Cimon performs great things in Caria , sails to Cyprus , and obtains a complete victory over the Persian fleet, takes 100 of their ships, pursues and attacks them on land, routs them, and so gains two victories in one day	VI.	226
3838	2531	468	Cimon , with only four ships, takes 13 of the enemies galleys, reduces all Chersonesus , conquers the revolted Thasians , recovers the gold mines from them, lying between the rivers Nyffus and Strymon , upon which the Athenians send a colony to settle in Amphipolis , a famous city of Thrace	VI.	227
3838	2531	468	The Lacedæmonians solicit the Athenians for help against their revolted subjects, the Helotes , &c. upon which Cimon is sent with an army, and does wonders	VI.	228
3839	2532	467	Aristides , the great Athenian commander, dies. (Note)	VI.	233
3840	2533	466	Arcefilaus IV. succeeds Battus IV. in the kingdom of Cyrene , and reigns 35 years	XVIII.	70
3840	2533	466	Upon the death of Hiero , tyrant of Syracuse , his brother Thrasylbulus succeeded him, but after 11 months reign, the people drove him out, and thereby enjoyed their liberty 60 years	VII.	183
3840	2533	466	Plistoanax succeeds Plistarchus in the joint kingship of Lacedæmon , and reigned 58 years	VI.	379
3841	2534	465	Appius , now out of his consulship, is cited to appear before the people of Rome ; the complaints exhibited against him ; he being conscious of his own guilt, murders himself	XI.	485
3842	2535	464	The Roman consul Servilius , defeats the Sabines , and Quinctius , the Equi and Volsci , and takes the city of Antium , and has a triumph decreed him	XI.	486
3842	2535	464	Xerxes king of Persia gives himself up to luxury, &c. Artabanus , the captain of his guards, conspires against him with Mithridates his chamberlain, and murders him upon his bed	V.	153
3842	2535	464	Artaxerxes I. (called Longimanus) succeeds his father Xerxes in the kingdom of Persia , after having killed his uncle

Y. of world	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Artabanus, who had usurped the crown seven months, and reigned 41 years	V.	155
3842	2535	464	Cimon the Athenian commander, after all his heroic actions, is rewarded with ostracism or banishment for 10 years	VI.	234
3843	2536	463	The Bactrian rebellion gives rise to the Lybian rebellion of Inaurus and the Egyptian rebellion of Amyrteus	V.	156
3846	2539	460	The Carthaginians war against the Moors, Numidians, &c. the success whereof was, that they were excused the annual tribute they formerly paid, &c.	XVII.	32
3847	2540	459	After ten years war, the Spartans reduce the Helotæ, and expel the Messenians from Ithome	VI.	455
3847	2540	459	Ephialtes , one of the great sticklers for liberty at Athens, having gained over a considerable party, became a great check upon the Areopagite court, for which he was murdered by Aristodicus, a Tanagrian, in the street	VI.	234
3847	2540	459	A dreadful plague broke out in Rome, which swept away the flower of their youth, the fourth part of the senators, the greatest part of the tribunes, the two consuls, and the two augurs, &c.	XI.	488
3848	2541	458	Ezra the Jew sent by Artaxerxes king of Persia, in the seventh year of his reign, to Jerusalem, with great presents for the temple, and full power to rectify the Jewish church and state, &c. and also to have power over life and death	X.	26
3848	2541	458	The consul Lucretius Tricipitinus , at the head of a large army, goes against the Equi and Volsci , to avenge the affronts they had given the Romans during the plague, engages and kills both their generals, and 13,460 men	XI.	489
3849	2542	457	The Athenians engage the Lacedæmonians at Tanagra , and are overcome with a great slaughter; soon after they engage again, but both sides suffering greatly, a truce is made for a short time	VI.	235
3849	2542	457	The Spartans take the Thebans into their protection, and give them Bœotia , &c. upon which the Athenians send a small army against them, under Myronides , who gained a complete victory over a very great army, then marches to Tanagra , and took it by storm, and razed it to the ground; then plundered Bœotia , and overthrew an army of the inhabitants; falls upon the Locrians , pierces into Theffaly , and chastises their treachery, and then returns to Athens, laden with riches and glory	VI.	238
3850	2543	456	Tolmides , the Athenian admiral, takes Methon , (a sea port in Lycaonia , belonging to the Spartans;) but being forced to quit it, takes Gythium , another sea port, which he burnt, with all the shipping and naval stores; then he reduced Zacynthus , and all the neighbouring cities, and also Naupactus , by composition, turns out the Spartans, and plants a colony of Messenians in their stead	VI.	238
3850	2543	456	Appius Herdonius , a Sabine, attempts the reduction of Rome by surprize, puts all to the sword he meets with, and lodges himself in the capitol, from whence he kills the consul Valerius , who went against him, &c.	XI.	501
3850	2543	456	Quinctius Cincinnatus , father of Cæso , is sent for from his country seat, where he practised farming, to be the Roman consul: As soon as his time was out, he left the city, and went home to farming again	XI.	502
3850	2543	456	The Persians, with a great army under Megabyzus , goes to raise the siege of Memphis ; Inarus and his confederates engage him, but are overthrown with a great slaughter, by which Egypt was again reduced to the subjection of Persia, and Sartamus was made governor thereof	V.	159

World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3851	2544	455	Pericles the Athenian invades Peloponnesus with 50 ships, &c. and burns and spoils all before him ; but Cimon being recalled from banishment, a peace is concluded	VI.	239
3851	2544	455	The Roman consul L. Cornelius Maluginensis entirely reduces the Equi, and the consul Fabius Vibulanus the Volsci, and make both become tributaries to the Romans, for which the two consuls have a triumph	XI.	504
3852	2545	454	Perdiccas II. succeeds his father Alexander in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 41 years	VIII.	43
3852	2545	454	Inarus , and the Athenians that escaped at Memphis, having long defended themselves in the city of Byblus in the island of Prosopotis, were at last forced to surrender upon honourable terms, and were carried prisoners to Susa	V.	159
3853	2546	453	Cimon the Athenian commander, with 200 sail of ships, attacks the Persians with 300 sail, takes 100, destroys many others, lands in Cilicia, defeats Megabyzus, the Persian general, with 300,000 men, and concludes a peace for 51 years between the Greeks and Persians	V.	160
3854	2547	452	The Romans again make Quinctius Cincinnatus dictator, and send for him from his rural retirement : He goes with an army to the relief of the consul Minucius , who was shut up by the Equi, who had revolted, overcomes them, and makes them pass under the yoke ; returns in triumph to Rome, with the enemies general at the head of his chariot, and a great number of the enemies officers in chains, &c. He abdicates his office the sixteenth day, &c.	XI.	507
3854	2547	452	The tribunes of the people are increased from five to ten persons, to be all chose new every year	XI.	509
3856	2549	450	The two books of the Chronicles in the Old Testament are now supposed to be wrote by Ezra ; the two last verses are the beginning of the book of Ezra .— Marshal
3857	2550	449	Themistocles , the famous Athenian commander, after having done abundance of noble acts for his country, was ingratelully banished ; and retiring to the Persian court, became a great favourite with king Artaxerxes , who gave him a Persian wife and a large estate, which after enjoying some years, he died, and was honourably buried	VI.	220
3857	2550	449	Cimon the Athenian general takes Citium , (where he died of his wounds) and Malus in Cyprus, defeats the Phœnician fleet, beats the Persian army under Megabyzus , and besieges Cyprus, upon which the Persians conclude a peace greatly advantageous to the Greeks	IV.	240
3857	2550	449	Inarus the Lybian king, contrary to agreement, is delivered to the mother of king Artaxerxes , who caused him to be crucified, and all his companions beheaded ; upon which Megabyzus the Persian general revolts ; raises a great army in his province of Syria, and defeats Osiris , who was sent against him with 200,000 men	V.	161
3857	2550	449	The Romans make a law, to impower magistrates to punish such as were wanting in respect to their dignity, 2 oxen and 30 sheep	XI.	516
3857	2550	449	The Romans send messengers to Greece, to collect a body of laws from all those used in the Greek cities, especially Athens	XI.	517
3858	2551	448	Megabyzus (the rebel Persian general) defeats Menostanes , the king's nephew ; upon which the king sends him his pardon, and he lays down his arms and returns to the king at Susa	V.	16
3858	2551	448	A great plague in Italy sweeps away abundance of all sorts of people, the consul and him named to succeed him, the high priest of Jupiter, the augur, and four of the tribunes	XI.	51

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3859	2552	447	Tolmides , the Athenian commander, and his army, are cut to pieces at Cheronæa by the Bœotians, &c. To redeem their prisoners, the Athenians for ever quit claim of all right over them	VI.	244
3860	2553	446	Pericles , the Athenian general, enters the island of Eubæa, takes the city of Hæstia, turns out the inhabitants, and puts a colony of Athenians therein ; upon which the whole island submits to the Athenians, and a peace is concluded between them and the Spartans for 30 years	VI.	244
3860	2553	446	The decemvirs chose at Rome, to compose a body of Roman laws, and to have the execution thereof ; at first they governed daily and alternately, &c.	XI.	519
3861	2554	445	The Roman people being assembled, the decemvirs cause the laws they had collected and composed, wrote in ten tables, to be read ; which being approved, were ordered to be transcribed on pillars of brass, and set up in the forum, as the foundation of all judicial determinations	XI.	521
3861	2554	445	Artaxerxes , king of Persia, in the 20th year of his reign, in the month Nisan, (about the 21 of our April) sends Nehemiah (who was his cup-bearer, though a Jew) governor over the Jews in Judea, &c. and commands him to rebuild Jerusalem, which he did with great expedition, the wall being rebuilt in 52 days, though strongly opposed by Sanballat the Horonite : From this year begins the 70 prophetic weeks, or 490 years, in which time was to be accomplished the 7 weeks of prophecy and anointing our great high-priest Jesus Christ, called also the cutting off the Messiah, and lastly, the covenant with many till the ceasing of the sacrifice, &c.	X.	48
3861	2554	445	Jehoiakim , the Jewish high-priest, dies, and is succeeded by his son Eliashib , who enjoyed that office 34 years	X.	60
3862	2555	444	The Athenians give the Sybarites (a people of Italy, who were a second time drove out by the Crotonians) the assistance of ten ships, with a considerable number of men, under the command of Lampo and Xenocrates , and likewise proclaim free liberty for such as were desirous to go and settle with them, which many did : The Sybarites being re-established, called their new built city Thurium , and themselves Thurians	VI.	245
3863	2556	443	The decemvirs appointed time being expired, instead of proposing the election of new magistrates, propose adding two tables of laws more to the former ten, so that there was now the twelve famous tables of Roman laws, and continue themselves by force	XI.	521
3864	2557	442	The decemvirs acting quite contrary to their institution, the people and Roman army revolt ; the senate assembles, and abolishes the decemvirs, and chose L. Valerius and M. Horatius consuls for the year ensuing, who to ingratiate themselves with the people, made many popular laws	XI.	540
3864	2557	442	The Equi, Volsci, and Sabines, having revolted, are reduced by the consuls Valerius and Horatius , for which the Roman people give them a triumph, in opposition to the senate, who refused it to them	XI.	542
3866	2559	440	The Athenians declare war against the Samians, and having conquered them, their general Pericles changed their government into a democracy, which occasioned great tumults ; the Samians being supported by Pissuthnes , the Persian general, they revolt, and expel the Athenian garrison ; Pericles going against them, defeats them at sea, &c.

Y. of World.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			and after nine months siege, takes Samos, demolishes the walls, seizes their ships, &c.
3866	2559	440	Pindar , the famous Theban poet, dies; he was chief of all the lyric poets, and so valued by Alexander, that his house only remained unburnt at his taking the city of Thebes	VI.	251
3866	2559	440	The Roman patricians and plebeians renewing their old dispute about superiority, the Equi and Volsci revolt, and ravage the country, even to the gates of Rome; upon which the consuls Quinctius and Fabius head an army of Romans, engage and defeat them	VIII.	149
3867	2560	439	Pericles , the Athenian general, pronouncing an excellent oration in praise of the slain in the several engagements he had been in, for their country's service, is crowned with garlands by the ladies at Athens	XI.	544
3868	2561	438	The office of consulship at Rome made void, and military tribunes chose; which government lasting but a very short time, T. Quinctius is named for the interrex, who summoned the people, who restored the consulship again in the persons of T. Quinctius Capitolinus and M. Geganius ; the censorship was also revived again, consisting of two persons, empowered every five years to review the estates and persons of all the Roman people; Papirius and Sempronius were now chose into that office	VI.	252
3868	2561	438	The Corcyrians beat the Corinthians and their confederates, and take Epidamnum by storm, &c.	XI.	547
3868	2561	438	Isocrates , the famous Athenian philosopher, born: His panegyrick upon Evagoras king of Salamis, was so well received, that his son Niocles gave him twenty talents as a reward for it. He died at 98 years of age	VI.	255
3869	2562	437	The Athenians assist the Corcyrians, &c. against the Corinthians, &c. they engage, and both sides getting alternate advantages, both gain the victory	VII.	503
3869	2562	437	Sp. Mælius , a Roman knight, aspires to the sovereign power. At this time a great famine happening in Rome, the senate creates a new magistrate, called the Super-intendant of provisions; who endeavouring to procure corn from the neighbouring countries, was disappointed by Sp. Mælius's having monopolized it before; and who, to strengthen his party, distributed it among the meaner people gratis, &c.	VI.	255
3870	2563	436	Anaxagoras , the famous philosopher and preceptor to Pericles , is banished Athens, under pretence of introducing novelties in religion	XI.	548
3870	2563	436	Quinctius Cincinnatus is made dictator, and having appointed Servilius Ahala his general of horse, cites Sp. Mælius before him in the forum, who refusing to appear, is arrested by the lictors, but rescued by the people, upon which Servilius rushes in among the crowd and kills Mælius upon the spot, and then his house was razed to the ground, and the vast quantities of corn he had amassed was sold to the people at low rates	XI.	54
3870	2563	436	Pericles gets Thucydides , his competitor, banished by ostracism	VI.	25
3870	2563	436	The Potideans revolt from the Athenians, upon which Callias , with an Athenian army, engages and defeats them; Callias is killed in the battle, and Phormis becomes a general in his stead, who invests the city of Potidea, and the inhabitants obstinately defend it	VI.	2
3871	2564	435	Disputes running very high at Rome, three military tribunes

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
			bunes are chose for the officers of this year, instead of two consuls	XI.	549
3872	2565	434	The Fidænae revolting from the Romans, L. Sergius the consul being unsuccessful against them, Mamercus Emilius is made dictator, overcomes them and their allies, kills Tolumnius, and overcomes the united forces of the Falisci, Fidenates, and Veientes, returns in triumph, and deposite the Spolia Opima in the temple of Jupiter Feretrius	XI.	550
3873	2566	433	Nebemiah having finished his work at Jerusalem, dedicates the temple with great joy, and afterwards goes to give king Artaxerxes an account of his proceedings, &c. Here the Old Testament history ends	X.	23
3874	2567	432	The Peloponnesian war breaking out, the Athenians and Lacedæmonians both solicit the friendship of Artaxerxes king of Persia, which he artfully evaded	V.	162
3874	2567	432	A grievous plague raging in Rome, the Veientes and Fidenates revolt again, upon which Q. Servilius Priscus is made dictator, who engages and overcomes them, and took the city of Fidenæ, &c. A census this year	XI.	550
3875	2568	431	The Athenians do infinite mischief along the Peloponnesian shore, infest the Locrians, and eject the inhabitants of Egina, and people it with Athenians: They enter Megara, &c. and burn and destroy all before them, as the Spartans had done in Attica; thus the first year of the war did immense damage to all parties	VI.	265
3875	2568	431	The Peloponnesian war actually begins in the spring of this year	VI.	264
3875	2568	431	Arcefilaus IV. king of Cyrene, being killed by his subjects, his son endeavoured to succeed him, but being repulsed by the Cyrenians, was forced to retire into the Hesperides, where he died, and so ended the kingdom of Cyrene, after it had stood 200 years, under the government of 8 kings	XVIII.	72
3876	2569	430	Jeremiah is supposed to write his book or prophecy about this time
3876	2569	430	The consuls laid aside, and three military tribunes chose for this year's government of Rome	XI.	551
3877	2570	429	Three military tribunes govern Rome this year	XI.	551
3878	2571	428	The consulship restored again to T. Quinctius and C. Julius Mento, who go against the Equi and Volsci, who had revolted, but through disagreement between themselves are defeated, near mount Algidus; upon which Posthumius Tubertus was chose dictator, who going against the rebels, defeated them; and returning to Rome in triumph, laid down his commission	XI.	552
3878	2571	428	Anaxagoras the great philosopher dies: He mended the Ionic philosophy, and first admitted an intelligent Being, distinct from matter; and also supposed the air to be the first principle of the universe. He was the first that wrote of the eclipse of the moon	I.	112
3878	2571	428	Pericles , the famous Athenian partizan, with all his family, dies of the plague at Athens	VI.	270
3878	2571	428	Archidamus , king of Sparta, besieges Plataea, with a great army	VI.	271
3878	2571	428	The Peloponnesian navy wastes the island of Zanthus, and does abundance of damage	VI.	270
3878	2571	428	The Lacedæmonians solicit the king of Persia to assist them against the Athenians, and also Sytacles king of Thrace; but Sytacles having been admitted a citizen of Athens he delivers up the Spartan ambassadors to the Athenians, who put them to death	VI.	270

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Page.
3879	2572	427	Archidamus invades Attica a third time, and wastes and destroys with implacable hatred whatever belonged to the Athenians, upon which Lesbos and Mythinia revolt from the Athenians	VI. 273
3879	2572	427	Agis succeeds his father Archidamus as joint king of Lacedæmon, and reigned 27 years	VI. 379
3879	2572	427	A law made at Rome to turn the fines for disrespect to magistrates into money; the ox to be rated at 100 asses of brass, and the sheep at 10 asses	XI. 553
3880	2573	426	The Lacedæmonians, after a siege of two years, take Plataea, put all the garrison to the sword, and sell the women for slaves; and so put an end to one of the bravest and most generous of all the Grecian people; and a while after the city was razed, and so remained till rebuilt by Alexander the Great	VI. 275
3880	2573	426	The famous Corcyrian sedition	VI. 275
3881	2574	425	The plague rages extravagantly at Athens, and carries off great numbers of all sorts of people	VI. 277
3881	2574	425	An extraordinary drought occasioned a famine, which was followed by a dreadful plague in Rome	XI. 553
3882	2575	424	Archidamus , king of Sparta, returns home from his intended invasion of Attica, being frightened by abundance of earthquakes that now happened	VI. 277
3882	2575	424	Upon the death of Artaxerxes, his only legitimate son Xerxes II. succeeded him in his kingdom of Persia, who having drank immoderately at a great entertainment, retired to his bed-chamber to sleep, whither being followed by one of his bastard-brothers, named Sogdianus, whom Pharnacus the eunuch let in, Sogdianus killed him there, after he had reigned 45 days, and set himself up in his stead	V. 162
3882	2575	424	Sogdianus , (by the murder of Darius his lawful king, and Bagorazus, his father's most faithful eunuch) became so odious and hateful, that he endeavoured to murder all those he suspected, and therefore sent for Ochus (one of his bastard-brothers, at that time governor of Hyrcania) to murder him, who being apprized of his intent, raised a great army, being joined by several of the governors of the provinces: They put the Tiara upon the head of Ochus, and proclaimed him king; upon which Sogdianus came to an accommodation with Ochus, who as soon as he got hold of him, ordered him to be smothered in ashes, after a reign of 6 months and 15 days; then Ochus changed his own name into Darius, and is commonly called Darius Nothus, or Darius the bastard, he reigned 19 years as king of Persia	V. 163
3883	2576	423	The consuls were laid aside this year, and four military tribunes governed Rome in their stead	XI. 553
3883	2576	423	Three of the tribunes go against the Veientes, who had revolted; but differing among themselves, the Veientes defeat them; upon which Mamercus Emilius was again chose dictator, who entirely routed the Veientes and the Fidenates, took the city of Fidenæ, and the Veientine camp, the whole being performed in sixteen days. Æmilius returns to Rome, had the honours of a triumph, and laid down his dictatorship	XI. 55
3883	2576	423	The Athenians having taken the island Pylus from the Lacedæmonians, and carried away all the Spartans prisoners, people it with a colony of Messenians, whom the Spartans had cruelly drove out of their own country	VI. 28

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3884	2577	422	The Athenians having overcome the Corcyrians, drew them out by 20 at a time and put them to death with the ut most cruelty, for assisting the Spartans against them	VI.	282
3884	2577	422	The Athenians suspecting the Chians intended to revolt, sent a fleet with orders to break down the walls of their city of Chios, which was done accordingly	VI.	282
3884	2577	422	The consulship again laid aside, and four patrician military tribunes chose at Rome	XI.	554
3885	2578	421	This year the government of Rome was also by four patrician military tribunes	XI.	554
3885	2578	421	The beginning of this year a great earthquake, and an eclipse of the sun, happened at Athens together	VI.	282
3885	2578	421	The Lacedæmonians and Bœotians having engaged the Athenians, who besieged Megara, got possession of the city, and drove out all those who sided with the Athenians, and then called home the exiles, who seized and got put to death 100 of their opponents, and then changed the democratic form of government into an oligarchy	VI.	285
3886	2579	420	The Lacedæmonians surprize, engage, and kill 600 Athenians, and rout the rest, with the loss only of seven men: In this battle both armies lost their generals, Brasidas for the Spartans, and Cleon for the Athenians	VI.	287
3886	2579	420	A peace concluded between the Athenians and Spartans, which continued 50 years: This was called the Nician peace, from one Nicias, a great man of Athens who brought it about	VI.	287
3886	2579	420	The consulship again restored at Rome, in the persons of C. Sempronius Atratinus and C. Fabius Vibulanus	XI.	555
3887	2580	419	Upon the conclusion of the peace, the Athenians, at the request of the Spartans, remove the Helotes and Messenians from Pylus to the island of Cephalenia	VI.	288
3888	2581	418	The Athenians conclude a league with the Argives, &c. for 100 years	VI.	290
3889	2582	417	Agis king of Sparta grants a truce of 4 months to the Argives, for which the Ephori mulct him a great fine, and threaten to raze his house, &c.	VI.	463
3889	2582	417	The Athenians bring back the Helotes and Messenians, and resettle them in Pylus	VI.	293
3889	2582	417	Agis king of Sparta and his confederates defeat the Argives, Athenians, &c. and gain a compleat victory over them	VI.	464
3889	2582	417	The tribunes opposing the election of consuls at Rome, L. Papyrius Mugellanus is chose inter-rex, who prevailed to have military tribunes chose instead of consuls, and two new questors to be added, to make up their number four	XI.	557
3890	2583	416	Four military tribunes govern Rome this year, in which a plot for setting fire to the city, and seizing the capitol by the slaves, was discovered and prevented, &c.	XI.	558
3890	2583	416	Agis king of Sparta enters Argos, where the confederate Greek army lay; and just as the engagement was going to begin, a truce was clapp'd up, &c.	VI.	293
3890	2583	416	The Athenians invade Sicily, and besiege Syracuse, which defends itself bravely, and after being reduced to extreme necessity, is relieved by Gylippus, general of the Corinthians, their confederates	VII.	195
3890	2583	416	The Athenians joining the Argives, &c. they break the truce concluded with the Spartans, the Spartans engage and overthrow them, and thereupon erect a trophy.	VI.	294
3890	2583	416	The Argives desert the Athenians, and make a league with the Spartans for 50 years, upon which they demolished democracy (or popular government) and esta-

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			blish aristocracy (or government by the nobles) among themselves	VI.	294
3891	2584	415	The Argives disliking their new aristocratic government, abolish it, and return to democracy again, and fall upon the Spartans, and such citizens as were their friends, kill some and banish others, renounce their new league with the Spartans, and confirm their old one with the Athenians	VI.	294
3891	2584	415	Three military tribunes govern Rome this year, when the city Labicum and the Equi revolt; the two tribunes who went against them, quarrelling, are entirely defeated by the Equi; upon which Q. Servilius was again chosen dictator, goes against the enemy, engages and defeats them, and takes Labicum, returns to Rome in eight days after his departure from it, and lays down his dictatorship	XI.	559
3891	2584	415	The Athenians finding themselves betrayed by Perdiccas king of Macedon, renounce their league with him, and declare war against him	VI.	294
3892	2585	414	The Lacedæmonians begin the 10 years Deceleian war
3892	2585	414	The Athenians take Melos, and put every man able to bear arms to the sword, and carry the women and children captive to Athens	VI.	295
3892	2585	414	Rome enjoyed profound peace this year under four military tribunes	XI.	559
3893	2586	413	Four military tribunes govern this year, when the 10 tribunes of the people create great disputes about (the Agrarian law, or) the distribution of the lands taken from the enemy	XI.	560
3893	2586	413	The Hermæ, or statues of Mercury, (of which there were abundance set up) were all in one night defaced in Athens, but it could not be discovered by whom	VI.	296
3893	2586	413	Pisuthnes, governor of Lydia, revolts from Darius king of Persia, being supported by a great army of Greek mercenaries; against whom Darius sent Tisaphernes, who bought the mercenaries, and forced Pisuthnes to surrender upon promise of life; which he doing, Darius ordered him to be smothered in ashes	V.	165
3893	2586	413	Archelaus, the son of Perdiccas king of Macedon, upon the resignation of his father, succeeds him, and reigns 14 years	VIII.	43
3893	2586	413	Alcibiades, an Athenian general, being wrongfully accused, runs away to the Spartans, who entertain him courteously	VI.	298
3893	2586	413	Egypt revolts from the Persians, and Amyrteus Saites, being joined by the inhabitants, came out of the Fens, and drove the Persians out of Egypt, and reigned over the whole country	V.	166
3894	2587	412	Demosthenes, the Athenian general, attacks Epipolæ, in the night, but is repulsed with a mighty slaughter	VI.	301
3894	2587	412	The Syracusans attack, overthrow, and kill and take prisoners Demosthenes the Athenian general, and his whole army; — and a few days afterward attack Nicias, the other Athenian general, who was taken prisoner, and his whole remaining army. The two generals, and many of the soldiers, contrary to the capitulation, were put to death at the instigation of the people. Thus ended the Sicilian war, with great disgrace and prodigious loss to the Athenians	VI.	304
3894	2587	412	The four military tribunes keep all things quiet at Rome this year	XI.	559
3895	2588	411	P. Posthumus, one of the military tribunes that governed this year, going against the Equi that had revolted, promised his soldiers the spoil of Bala, if they took it, but breaking

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			his word after the reduction of the place, for it, and other disagreeable behaviour, was stoned to death by his legions, being the first general that was killed by his own soldiers since the foundation of Rome	XI.	561
3895	2588	411	The Athenian fleet engages and overcomes the Peloponnesian fleet; they take a part, and a storm disperses the rest	VI.	315
3895	2588	411	The Athenians reduce the revolted Lesbians, Clazomenians, &c. to their obedience again	VI.	305
3895	2588	411	Alcibiades , &c. twice defeat the Spartans, &c. and in the last engagement gained two victories in one day, one by sea, the other by land; took the enemies whole fleet, and more spoil than his and the remains of theirs could carry	VI.	316
3896	2589	410	The consulship was again restored at Rome, in the persons of A. Cornelius Cossus, and L. Furius Medullinus. In this and the three following years, nothing remarkable but a plague happened	XI.	561
3896	2589	410	Antipbon (an Athenian of such extraordinary parts and eloquence, was so feared, that he was prohibited speaking in publick,) and Pisander induce the Athenians to abolish democracy, to choose five prytanes (or chief magistrates) who should choose 100, and each of these 100 should choose 3 colleagues, and that these 400 should be a senate with supreme authority	VI.	308
3896	2589	410	The Spartans defeat the Athenian fleet, and take 22 ships out of 36, and kill most of the men in the residue, upon which Eubæa revolts from the Athenians	VI.	314
3896	2589	410	The Spartans and Athenians engage again, the latter takes 21 of the former's fleet, which consisted of 73 sail, under Mindarus ; and the Athenians but of 55 under Thrasylbulus , and of these 19 were sunk or taken at the beginning of the fight; a few days after the Athenians took 8 Spartan gallees coming from Byzantium, which had revolted, and reduced the city, and Alcibiades took nine more	VI.	314
3896	2589	410	The Lacedæmonians besiege Pylus by land and sea; the Athenians send Anytus to relieve it, with a squadron of ships, &c. but the wind not proving favourable, he returned to Athens, where he is condemned to death for not performing his orders, and the Spartans take Pylus	VI.	317
3896	2589	410	Alcibiades takes Byzantium, and puts all the Spartan garrison to the sword, except 500 which he sent prisoners to Athens	VI.	318
3896	2589	410	Eliashib high-priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded by his son Joiada (or Judas) who officiated in that station 36 years	X.	60
3896	2589	410	Myndarus the Spartan admiral defeated and killed	VI.	316
3897	2490	409	The expiration of the first seven weeks of the seventy weeks of Daniel's prophecy	X.	60
3897	2490	409	Alcibiades and Theramenes return to Athens in triumph, with 200 ships, and an immense spoil	VI.	318
3897	2490	409	Antiochus , the lieutenant of Alcibiades , breaks his master's orders, and in his absence attacks the Spartan fleet, is defeated and killed, and 15 of his ships taken by the enemy; upon which Alcibiades is accused, and deposed by the Athenian senate, and goes into voluntary banishment	VI.	319
3898	2491	408	Pausanias , the son of Plistionax , succeeds his father in the joint kingdom of Lacedæmon	VI.	464
3898	2491	408	Hannibal (the son of Gisco the Carthaginian) makes an expedition into Sicily, takes and razes Selinus and Himera	XVI	679
3898	2491	408	Conon the Athenian general engages Callieratides the Spartan

Y. of world.	Y. of Abod.	Y. of Christ.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
				general in a sea-fight, is overcome, and loses 30 ships, and afterwards was closely besieged in Mitylene
3898	2591	408		The Athenians engage Callicratides a second time, and overcome and kill him, take and destroy 79 Spartan ships, with the loss of 19 of their own	VI.	319
3899	2592	407		Lyfander , the Spartan general, surprizes Canon the Athenian general, and intirely defeats him both by land and sea, upon which he fled to Cyprus, with only eight gallies full of men: This put an end to the maritime power of Athens at once. Lyfander visits all the neighbouring cities, and reduces them to the Spartan subjection, changes their form of government, and puts Spartan governors in them to keep them in subjection	VI.	320
3899	2592	407		Darius king of Persia invests Cyrus his youngest son, though but a youth of 16 years old, with the supreme command of all the provinces of Asia Minor	VI.	470
3900	2593	406		Three of the four quaestors at Rome were this year, for the first time, chose out of the plebeians	V.	166
3901	2594	405		This year Rome was governed by three patrician military tribunes; but the Volsci, &c. revolting, P. Cornelius Rutilus was made dictator, who gained a complete victory over the enemy, returned to Rome, laid down the dictatorship, and the military tribunes resumed their government	XI.	561
3901	2594	405		Artaxerxes II. eldest son of Darius II. succeeds his father in the kingdom of Persia, and reigned 46 years; before his ascending the throne, he was called Arfaces, (whom the Greeks for his extraordinary memory called Mnemon, that is, the Rememberer)	XI.	562
3901	2594	405		Artaxerxes (Arfaces) upon the death of his father Darius, went to Pasargada, to be there inaugurated after the Persian custom, by the priests at Bellona, where he was informed his brother Cyrus intended to murder him; upon which Cyrus was seized and condemned, but at the intercession of their mother Parysatis, he was both pardoned and restored to his government of Asia Minor	V.	168
3902	2595	404		Dionysius Miles , son-in-law to Hermocrates the great Syracusan, began his tyranny at Syracuse, having by many insinuations got himself made generalissimo, and a guard allowed him for his own person, therewith seized the government, and held it with great cruelty 38 years	VI.	168
3902	2595	404		Hannibal , the Carthaginian general, dies, with a great part of his army, of the plague, as they lay before Agrigentum in Sicily	VII.	228
3902	2595	404		Imilcar , the Carthaginian general, after Hannibal's death, takes Agrigentum and Gela, and puts an end to the war, by concluding a treaty with Dionysius the Syracusan tyrant	XVI.	679
3902	2595	404		Four patrician military tribunes govern Rome this year. The Volsci retake Verrugo, and put the Roman garrison to the sword; upon which the military tribunes go against them, surprize the Volsci while in quest of booty, and cut them all to pieces	XVI.	679
3903	2596	403		Lyfander , the Spartan general, having put Philoces the Athenian general, and 300 captives, with all their officers, to death, took Athens, and pulled down the walls, and established an oligarchic government of 30, called the 30 tyrants, and so completed the ruin of Athens. Lyfander growing insolent, the ephori send him the scytale, or counter-tally, to recal him	XI.	561
3903	2596	403		Lyfander sends immense treasure which he had taken from the Athenians, to Sparta, by Gyllypus, who stole a part	VI.	32

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			of it, but being detected, was banished and branded with infamy	VI.	471
3903	2596	403	Four patrician military tribunes are again chose, and revenge the affront offered to the Roman ambassadors, by taking Anxur by storm, &c. This year pay was first given to the plebeian foot soldiers	XI.	564
3904	2597	402	Six military tribunes chose to govern Rome, &c. this year	XI.	565
3905	2598	401	Six military tribunes chose to govern Rome, &c. this year, who closely besieged Veii, (one of the greatest cities in Italy) and took and razed the city of Artena, after having defeated the Volsci.	XI.	565
3905	2598	401	Thrasylulus , the Athenian general, marches with his army into Athens, where laying down their arms, they sacrifice with the citizens, and restore the old democratic government, and expel the 30 tyrants	V.	326
3905	2598	401	Socrates , the great philosopher and soldier, wrongfully put to death by the Athenians	V.	328
3905	2598	401	Plato pleads for Socrates at Athens, but is forced to desist by the people, who would not permit him to go on	V.	333
3905	2598	401	Cyrus , the younger brother of Artaxerxes (Arfaces) king of Persia, aspires to the throne, and wars against him, with the help of Zenophon , the famous Greek commander, with 13,000 Greeks; but Cyrus being overcome, and killed, Xenophon , with his remaining Greeks, returned home, 2325 miles through the enemies country, though continually harraßed by their army	V.	173
3906	2599	400	The Lacedæmonians make war with the Persians	V.	175
3906	2599	400	Conon the Athenian made admiral of the Persian fleet: He engages the Lacedæmonians, kills their admiral, and totally defeats their whole fleet, consisting of 90 sail, and takes 50 of them, and 500 prisoners, and reduced many of the states dependent on Sparta to change sides	VI.	336
3906	2599	400	Agis king of Lacedæmon dies, and is succeeded by his brother Agefilas , who reigned 41 years	VI.	379
3906	2599	400	Conon , after defeating the Spartans, returns to Attica, and in his way brings over the Cyclades to join the Athenians, and reduces Cythera, and confirms the Corinthian league; and upon his arrival at Athens, sets about rebuilding the walls, refortifying the city, &c. for which the Persian general puts him in prison	VI.	337
3906	2599	400	The siege of Veii still carried on with great vigour, by the
3907	2600	399	six military tribunes of this year, who are now said to invent lines of circumvallation and contravallation, and kept the army in the field all winter in wooden barracks covered with skins. This year a law was made, that the Roman cavalry should be paid out of the publick treasure	XI.	566
3907	2600	399	Agefilas , king of Sparta, routs the Persians under Tisaphernes , takes a great deal of spoil, and over-runs all Lydia; upon which Tisaphernes was put to death
3907	2600	399	Amyntas succeeds Archelaus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns only one year, and is then set aside	VIII.	43
3908	2601	398	Pausanias succeeds Amyntas in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns only one year	VIII.	43
3908	2601	398	Agefilas , king of Sparta, invades Phrygia, took many cities, amassed great sums, marched into Paphlagonia, joins Spithridates , a revolted Persian lord, then returns and takes Dascylium , a strong city of Phrygia, and winters in the palace of Pharnabazus the Persian general	V.	180
3909	2602	397	Dionysius , the Syracusan tyrant, having defeated his enemies, and confirmed himself by cruelty, slaughter, and bribery,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3909	2602	397	bery, in the government, addicts himself to poetry and other polite arts, in which he imagined himself a nonpareil	VII.	255
3909	2602	397	Amyntas is restored, and succeeds Pausanias in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 6 years
3909	2602	397	Six new military tribunes were chose to govern Rome this year ; but by the disagreement of two that commanded at the siege of Veii , they are routed by the Falisci and Capenates, and the fallies of the Veientes ; which occasioned the deposition of all the six military tribunes, and the choice of six new ones	XI.	567
3909	2602	397	Dionysius the Syracusan breaks his faith with the Carthaginians, and seizes the persons, houses, and effects of all their subjects which was very large, then trading at Syracuse	XVII.	79
3910	2603	396	Dionysius the Syracusan invests Moyta (a very strong city, in league with the Carthaginians, built in a small island about half a mile from the sea-shore, where the Carthaginians kept their military stores and provisions) and ravaged and reduced most of their other confederate cities and provinces ; after some time spent in the siege, and several times attempting to storm it, was as often repulsed, with great loss on both sides, but at last he takes it, and puts every person to the sword, except some that sheltered themselves in the Greek temples ; here he got immense riches	XVII.	85
3910	2603	396	The Carthaginians enter the port of Syracuse in the night, with 10 gallies, and sunk most of the ships then there, and returned without the loss of one man	XVII.	82
3910	2603	396	Five patrician and one plebeian (P. Licinius Calvus) military tribune chose for the government of Rome this year	XI.	568
3910	2603	396	Thrasybulus reduces Byzantium and Chalibis ; then he goes to Lesbos, and reduces all the revolted cities to the subjection of Athens ; after which he goes to Rhodes, and exacts a great sum of money ; the Rhodians, set upon him in the night, and kill him, and drive his army on board their ships
3911	2604	395	Nephereus (or Nepherites) of the Mendessii, becomes king of Egypt, and reigns 6 years	VI.	339
2911	2604	395	Licinius behaved so well this last year, that five plebeians and one patrician were chose to be the military tribunes for governing Rome this year	II.	82
3911	2604	395	The Carthaginians under Himilco retake Moyta, reduce Lipara, the capital of the island Lipara, the principal of the 7 Æolian islands ; then they invest Messina, take it, and raze it ; upon this the Siculi revolt from Dionysius, and join Hamilco : Leptines, the Sicilian admiral, engages Mago the Carthaginian, and is entirely defeated with great slaughter, losing 100 gallies, and more than 20,000 men. Himilco marches to Syracuse, lays all the country about it waste, takes Acradina, and plunders the rich temples of Ceres and Proserpina, then besieges Syracuse ; but a plague breaking out, carries off 150,000 of his men ; Dionysius attacks the remainder by land and sea, and entirely routs them, killing, burning, taking and destroying, almost all their vast fleet and army ; Himilco is forced to pay 300 talents for leave for himself and the citizens of Carthage to get away in the night. Upon Himilco's return to Carthage, he kills himself	XI.	568
3911	2604	395	Upon Himilco's defeat, the Africans revolt from the Carthaginians, and with an army of 200,000 men they take Tunis, and come to Carthage ; but mutinying among themselves, they return home again	XVII.	10
				XVII.	1

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3911	2604	395	The Carthaginians imagining all their misfortunes happened to them for violating the temple of Ceres and Proserpina at Syracuse, to appease them they dedicated temples, and set up magnificent statues to their honour, and select priests out of the greatest families to sacrifice to them	XVII	108
3912	2605	394	Upon a great mortality that happened in the Roman army, by the sudden change of the weather from extreme cold to excessive heat, the Sybyline books were consulted: The Duumviri (who were their keepers) pretended to find a new expiation, called the Lectisternium; viz. three beds were placed in a temple, round a plentiful table, and the statues of Apollo, Latona, Diana, Hercules, Mercury, and Neptune taken down from their niches, were laid on the beds, and served with magnificent repasts for eight days; These ceremonies were imitated in private families; open houses were kept for friends, strangers, and enemies; all law-suits, disputes, &c. were suspended, and even the prisoners released to partake of these publick rejoicings.	XI.	568
3913	2606	393	Conon comes to Athens with 80 ships, and 50 talents, and repairs the city of Athens, and offers a sacrifice of 100 oxen	V.	182
3913	2606	393	Six military tribunes, all patricians, chose this year, out of a superstitious notion that plebeians were of too low an extract, however well qualified, for the discharge of so high a station	XI.	569
3914	2607	392	Six patricians chose military tribunes for this year, who cause (in conformity to the answer of the oracle at Delphos) pioneers to make a canal to carry off the waters of the lake Albano, and convoy them all over the fields in trenches, which wonderful work subsists to this day: The auguries being not auspicious, these six tribunes lay down; and after a short interregnum six new ones are chose in their stead, all plebeians	XI.	579
3914	2607	392	Mago the Carthaginian endeavours, by popular means, to retrieve their affairs in Sicily, uses the inhabitants courteously, encourages all deserters from Dionysius, &c. but engaging with Dionysius, is drove out of the field, with the loss of 800 men, and retires into Abacænum, and Dionysius returns to Syracuse	XVII.	109
3915	2608	391	Dionysius the Syracusan tyrant, and Mago , the Carthaginian general, conclude a peace	XVII.	111
3915	2608	391	The two military tribunes that carried on the war were entirely defeated; upon which M. Furius Camillus was made dictator, who pushes on the siege so vigorously, that after ten years siege, Veii was taken by storm, and the dictator entered the city in triumph, drawn in a chariot by four milk white horses, and his own face painted with vermilion, which gave great offence, &c.	XI.	570
3915	2608	391	The Roman ladies, for voluntarily bringing in their golden toys to make a vase to represent to Apollo, were allowed to have funeral orations for illustrious women, like those of the men, and liberty to ride in chariots at the public games	XI.	572
3915	2608	391	Evagoras king of Cyprus revolts from the Persians
3915	2608	391	Amyntas king of Macedon is deposed by the Illyrians, who brought in Argæus, but two years after Amyntas was restored again, and reigned 19 years	VIII.	43
3916	2609	390	Six patrician military tribunes rule this year, in which a proposal is made, that half the senators, knights, and people of Rome should remove to Veii; but after vast struggles and much arguing, 'tis over-ruled	XI.	572

world	Y. of flood	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page.
3917	2610	389		Camillus (general of the Roman army, and one of the military tribunes) by an act of justice and generosity toward the children of the nobles of Falisci, and their tutor, so wrought upon them, that they submit voluntarily to the Romans	XI.	573
3917	2610	389		Acoris succeeds Nephereus as king of Egypt, and reigned 13 years	II.	82
3918	2611	388		The consulship at Rome is restored again in the persons of L. Lucretius Flavius, and Severus Sulpitius Camerinus. This year great disputes happen between the tribunes of the people and the senate; who at last decreed that six acres of the Veii land should be given to every father of a family and every freeman that was single	XI.	574
3919	2612	387		L. Valerius Potius and M. Manlius Capitolinus chose consuls at Rome, and begin their office with celebrating the great games in honour of Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva, &c. but a contagious distemper happening, with which the consuls were affected, the people depos'd them, and an inter-regnum followed, during which three presidents ruled alternately, day by day, for a small time; and then six military tribunes were again chose.—A census being taken, the number of people fit to bear arms was reported to be 152,583	XI.	575
3919	2612	387		The Spartans and Persians conclude the peace, called the peace of Antalcidas, greatly prejudicial to the Greeks	V.	183
3919	2612	387		Camillus , the great Roman commander, goes into voluntary banishment, and resides at Ardea	XI.	577
3919	2612	387		Evagoras expels Abdymon the Citian, the Persian governor for Artaxerxes , and takes possession of his paternal kingdom of Cyprus, by the help of the Athenians	V.	184
3920	2613	386		Brennus , king of those Gauls called the Senones, situate between Paris and Meaux, comes into Italy, and besieges Clusium; the Clusini beg assistance of the Romans, who send the three Fabii ambassadors to Brennus ; who behaving haughtily, the ambassadors go into the town, and head the besieged in a sally, wherein they kill a principal Gaulish officer; this enrages Brennus , upon which he demands of the Roman senate, that the Fabii should be delivered up to him; but instead thereof, the people chuse them military tribunes for the year ensuing; upon which Brennus marches towards Rome	XI.	578
3920	2613	386		Dionysius , the Syracusan tyrant, fond of being thought a great poet, sends his verses and chariots to the Olympic games, where he is despised, which makes him mad, and causes him to break out into extravagancies, killing some of his friends, and banishes others	VII.	257
3920	2613	386		The Lacedæmonians fall upon the Thebans, and seize their capital; 400 principal Thebans fly to Athens for succour, where they are kindly received, and by their assistance retake Thebes	VI.	341
3920	2613	386		The Persians under the command of Tiribazus , invades Cyprus with 300,000 men, and 300 ships, and after an engagement with Evagoras king of Cyprus, obtain a great victory; upon which Evagoras flies to Salamine, whither the Persians pursue, and besiege him by land and sea, where he is forced to yield on very hard terms	V.	186
3921	2614	385		The military tribunes assemble a Roman army of 40,000 men, and go to meet Brennus , king of the Gauls, whose army was 70,000: They meet and engage, upon the banks of the river Allia, where the Romans were intirely defeated; upon which the people fled from the city of Rome into the neighbouring cities, and four days after the battle Brennus entered Rome, killed all the people he met with, ravaged and burnt the city, demolished the temples and publick edifices, and razed the walls to the ground, and besieged the capitol

XI. 581

3921 2614 385 The Gauls besiege Ardea, with a considerable force; but thinking themselves secure, neglect discipline; where upon Camillus, the great Roman general, heads the Ardean youth, and sallies out in the night, surprizes the Gauls drowned in wine, and makes a dreadful slaughter; whereupon the scattered Romans send deputies to beg Camillus to take upon him the command of all the remaining Roman forces, but he refusing, the senate reverse his sentence of condemnation, and proclaim him dictator

XI. 582

3921 2614 385 The Gauls besieging the capitol, find a private passage of very difficult ascent, gets up it undiscovered in the night; but some geese that were kept in the court of the capitol in honour of Juno, and near her temple, making a noise at the Gauls approach, Manlius (a gallant soldier, who had pass'd the consulship) attacks them, and beats them off the walls, and so saves the capitol; for which he was highly honoured, and geese were ever after had in honour at Rome, a flock of them being always kept at the publick expence: A golden image of a goose was erected in memory of them, and a goose every year carried in triumph, upon a soft litter finely adorned. From this time the Dogs were held in abhorrence, and every year one impaled on a branch of elder

XI. 584

3921 2614 385 Gaus, admiral of the Persian fleet, revolts from Artaxerxes, is joined by the Egyptians and Lacedæmonians; but while vast preparations were making to support him, Gaus was murdered by one of his officers, and the whole affair dropt

V. 187

3921 2614 385 The plague and famine rage in Brennus's army, and so many of them died in one quarter of the city, as occasioned it to be called Busta Gallica, or the place where the dead bodies of the Gauls were burnt. Both sides suffering extremely, 'twas agreed upon oath, that upon the Romans paying 1000 l. weight of gold, the Gauls should raise the siege, and quit the Roman territories: When the gold was brought, the Gauls scales and weights were found to be false; upon which Sulpicius, one of the Roman military tribunes, complaining, Brennus, instead of excusing it, threw his sword and belt into the scales where the weights were, crying out, Væ Victis, or Woe to the Conquered. This continuing the dispute, Camillus with his army comes up, and he with a few followers gets into the city, and orders the gold to be carried back to the treasury; upon which a scuffle happens, and in the following night, Brennus and his army retires to the Gabinian way, eight miles from Rome, and encamped there; in the morning Camillus pursued, engaged, and totally overthrew them, with a great slaughter, and the remainder were cut off, as they wandered up and down the fields by the inhabitants; so that there was not one left to carry the news home; and Camillus returned to Rome in triumph, loaded with spoils, the soldiers in their songs calling him Romulus, father of his country, and second founder of Rome, at which some of the great men being offended,

Vol.	Page.	Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
					the tribunes speak disrespectfully of Camillus, insinuating he aimed to make himself king; but the senate voted, his continuing in the dictatorship for one whole year, to put their confusions to rights, which ended in a decree for rebuilding the city, which Brennus had burnt down.
XI.	587			3922 2615	384 Camillus laying down the dictatorship, an interregnum followed, wherein Camillus and P. Cornelius Scipio ruled alternately; and after some time, six military tribunes were chose, who immediately set about collecting what monuments, tables, of laws, treaties with nations, &c. that could be found in the ruins, &c.
XI.	588			3922 2615	384 The Ædiles have the care of rebuilding the city of Rome: The expence of building the private houses were defrayed out of the publick treasury; but through haste, ignorance, and covetousness, the plan was very illy projected and executed.
XI.	589			3922 2615	384 Artaxerxes , king of Persia, goes in person against the Cadusians, (a people inhabiting the mountain between the Euxine and Caspian sea) with an army of 300,000 foot and 20,000 horse; but the country being unable to furnish provisions, a famine ensues, whereby all the horse, and abundance of the foot, &c. were lost; but the Cadusians, by the artful negotiations of Tiribazus were brought to submit to the Persians.
V.	188			3922 2615	384 Achoris king of Egypt dies, and is succeeded by Psammuthis, who reigned only one year.
V.	190			3922 2615	384 Sphodrias , the Spartan commander at Thespis, attempts in the night to seize the fort of Pyræum at Athens; but the sun rising when he came to Eleufina, his men refused to march any farther; upon which the Athenians declare war against the Spartans.
VI.	343			3923 2616	383 The Lacedæmonians, under Agesilaus, one of their kings, invades Bæotia, and braves the Thebans and their allies, in the neighbourhood of their own city.
VI.	343			3923 2616	383 The hardships and misfortunes of the Romans encourage their tributaries to revolt, upon which Camillus is again chose dictator, who, at the head of an army, attacks and defeats the Volsci and Latins, takes their camp and the city of Bola, the capitol of the Equi; from whence he marches against the Volsci, whom he intirely reduced; from thence he went to Sutrium, (which the Hetrurians had taken, and turned out all the inhabitants, in which they were revelling without guard) entered the city, put many to the sword, took a vast number of prisoners, and restored the natives again, and then returned to Rome in triumph a third time. Upon his return, the captives were sold, and with part of the amount of the sale the Roman ladies were repaid for their jewels they had formerly contributed to make a present to Apollo; and the remainder bought three gold vases, which, with Camillus's name inscribed on them, were put at the feet of Juno in the temple of Jupiter.
XI.	591			3923 2616	383 Nicoreon , tyrant of Salamis, taking offence at a satyrical expression of the philosopher Anaxarchus, ordered him to be pounded to death with iron pestles in a great mortar.
VII.	498			3923 2616	383 Nepherotes succeeds Psammuthis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns only four months.
II.	83			3924 2617	382 Nectanebis (the first of the Sebennytic race) succeeds Nepherotes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 12 years.
II.	83

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.
3924	2617	382	The Romans lay the country of the Equi waste, to prevent their revolting, and demolish the two cities of Cortuosa and Contenebra, and repair and strengthen the capitol	XI.	591
3924	2617	382	Dionysius, the Syracusan, makes a descent into Hetruria, plunders a rich temple in the suburbs of Agylla, from whence he carries off 1000 talents in money, and rich spoils that he sold for 500 more	VII.	257
3924	2617	382	The Carthaginians having declared war against Dionysius king of Syracuse, he engages Mago the Carthaginian general, and kills 10,000 of his men, takes 5000, and obliges the rest to sue for peace, which is refused	XVII.	113
3924	2617	382	The Carthaginians having recruited under Mago's son, engage and defeat the Syracusans at Cronion, and kill Leptines, the king's brother, and 14,000 Syracusans on the spot; upon which, to obtain peace, Dionysius was forced to pay 1000 talents, and deliver up the city and territories of Selinus, and part of the territories of Agrigentum	VII.	258
3924	2617	382	Chabrias, the Athenian engages the Lacedæmonian fleet, and after a long and very doubtful battle, at last gained an absolute victory, though with the loss of 18 gallies, the Lacedæmonians losing 24, besides 8 that were taken with all their men	VI.	344
3924	2617	382	Chabrias, the Athenian general, after delivering the Abderites, while he was settling the affairs of the city was assassinated	VI.	344
3925	2618	381	The Athenians and Lacedæmonians make a peace, wherein it was concluded that all the Grecian cities should be free, which was neither long nor well kept, the Thebans protesting against it, &c.	VI.	344
3925	2618	381	The Persian army and fleet come upon the coasts of Egypt, and attack Pelusium; but Nectanebis, king of Egypt, having well fortified and garrisoned it, the Persians could not get any considerable advantage, and quarrelling among themselves, ended the war and returned home	II.	83
3925	2618	381	A temple, which in the Gaulish war had been vowed to Mars, is now built, and consecrated at Rome, and four tribes of the people beyond the Tiber added to make up the whole number of tribes 25, who all enjoyed the same common rights and privileges	XI.	592
3926	2619	380	Camillus chose by the Romans one of the military tribunes for this year, with full power to preside and direct in all warlike affairs; upon which he heads an army, and engages the Antiates, Latins, and Hernici, who had revolted, and overthrows them; after which, going to the relief of Sutrium, (then besieged, and in part taken by the Hetrurians) he makes a dreadful slaughter of the enemy, conquers the city, and goes to Nepet, which had submitted to the Hetrurians, and took it by assault, and put all the Hetrurian soldiers to the sword, and condemned those citizens to die by the lictors axes, that had promoted the disaffection	XI.	595
3929	2622	377	Manlius, one of this year's military tribunes, endeavours by all possible acts of popularity to engage the peoples affections, in order to grasp the supreme power; upon which the Volsci revolting, A. Cornelius Cossus is chose dictator, who marching against the Volsci, defeats them; then returning to Rome, cites Manlius before him, and condemns him for an incendiary, &c. after which he was honoured with a triumph; upon which the senate orders a colony of

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Roman citizens to be sent to Sutrium, and allotted each man 2 acres and half of arable land	XI.	598
3929	2622	377	The Carthaginians land an army in Italy, and restore the inhabitants of Hippo (built by the Locri) to their city, from whence they had been expelled for being the allies of Carthage	XVII.	116
3930	2623	376	A most terrible plague breaks out at Carthage, which swept away an infinite number of people, and almost depopulated the whole country; this distemper made the people so mad as to cause the afflicted to fall out of their houses, sword in hand, and kill all they met with: Upon this the Africans and Sardi revolt, and are reduced with difficulty: This distemper is said to afflict the Carthaginians several years	XVII.	117
3930	2623	376	Agésilas , king of Sparta, comes ambassador to Nectanebis king of Egypt, to solicit succours for the Lacedæmonians against the Thebans	II.	83
3930	2623	376	Camillus again chose one of this year's military tribunes, and Manlius condemned for aspiring to the regal dignity, and thrown headlong from the capitol; but a plague happening soon after, the populace ascribe it to be a judgment, for unjustly punishing Manlius	XI.	601
3931	2624	375	The plague sweeping away great numbers of the Romans, the Volsci, &c. revolt, the military tribunes assemble an army, but can't go against them, through the violence of the plague; upon which the Volsci, &c. commit great ravages upon the Roman allies	XI.	602
3932	2625	374	Six military tribunes govern Rome this year; and the plague being ceased, they reduce part of the revolters to their obedience again	XI.	602
3932	2625	374	Niacles killed Evagoras king of Cyprus, and reigned in his stead
3933	2626	373	Camillus is a 6th time chose military tribune, much against his will, and with L. Furius, his colleague, goes against the revolted Volsci, who overcome Furius, but are entirely defeated by Camillus	XI.	604
3933	2626	373	Jehanan (or John) succeeds his father Joiada in the Jewish high-priesthood; but Bagoses, governor of Syria, &c. having promised it to Jeshua, (or Jesus his brother) upon his coming to act, Johanan raised his passion so high, that he killed him in the inner court of the temple; for which Bagoses (the Persian general) severely mulcted the temple seven years	X.	62
3934	2627	372	The Roman patricians oppose the choice of censors, which occasions so great a disturbance, that the Prænestines revolt, and come up to the very gates of Rome, upon which Titus Quinctius was chose dictator, and the Prænestines retire from the city to the banks of the Allia, whither the dictator followed, and overthrew them: Afterward he pursued them, and overtook them before they reached Præneste, and overthrew them a second time, took all their strong holds, and appearing before Præneste, it capitulated. The dictator returned to Rome in triumph, bringing from Præneste the statue of Jupiter Imperator, which was placed in the capitol between Jupiter Capitolinus and Minerva, and then laid down his dictatorship, which lasted but 25 days; upon which three patricians and three plebeians are chose military tribunes	XI.	607
3934	2627	372	The Volsci draw the Roman generals into an ambuscade, and kill many of their men, and take their camps	XI.	608

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3934	2627	372	The Athenians and Lacedæmonians make peace again, proclaiming all the Grecian cities free, against which the Thebans again protest, &c.	VI.	346
3934	2627	372	The Thebans and Lacedæmonians being at war, the Thebans demand help of the Athenians, who send Iphicrates to their assistance, who succeeds but badly	VI.	346
3935	2628	371	The Spartans having made a truce with the Thebans, &c. in their return home meeting Archidamus coming to their assistance with a great reinforcement, return, break the truce, engage, and are totally overthrown in the battle of Leuctra, whereby they lost the empire of Greece, which they had held for 500 years. This fatal news coming to Sparta, while the Ephori were superintending the Gymnic solemnities, went on without taking any notice of the calamity	VI.	501
3935	2628	371	The Volsci entering the Roman territories, lay them waste; upon which the Romans enter the enemies country with two armies at once, and lay it waste, and return to Rome with great booty. Two censors are this year chose, but suspend their office upon account of the publick troubles	XI.	608
3935	2628	371	Cleombrotus , king of Lacedæmon, is killed in battle at Leuctra, and is succeeded by his son Agefipolis	VI.	379
3936	2629	370	The Latins and Volsci join against the Romans , but are overthrown by the military tribunes P. Valerius and L. Æmilius	XI.	609
3936	2629	370	The Latins remaining obstinate against the Romans, enter the country of the Tusculans, and put many to the sword, and take their city: The Romans come to their relief, take the place by assault, and put every Latin to the sword, and return back to Rome, having reinstated the Tusculans	XI.	610
3936	2629	370	Agefipolis king of Lacedæmon dies, and is succeeded by his brother Cleomenes , who reigned about two years	VI.	379
3936	2629	370	Agefilaus is made dictator at Sparta, with power even over the laws: He raises an army, marches into the Arcadian territories, ravages the country, takes some towns, and returns home	VI.	501
3936	2629	370	The Mantineans rebuild their city, and fortify themselves therein; and the Arcadians rebuild Meglapolis, to which they repair from all their villages: The Lacedæmonians go against them, kill Lycomedes , the Mantinean general, and 200 men; upon which the Thebans send them assistance, under Epaminondas and Pelopidas ; the Spartans being retir'd, they invade Laconia, and come even to Sparta; but by the wise management of Agefilaus , are forced to retire; and in their return laid waste the country as they marched off	VI.	502
3936	2629	370	Two hundred Spartan rebels seize the temple of Diana at Ifforion ; but Agefilaus having artfully dispersed them, all were taken and put to death, without any trouble	VI.	503
3936	2629	370	Epaminondas , the Theban general, upon his leaving Sparta rebuilt the city of Messena , and recalled and replaced the ancient inhabitants, after they had been dispossessed 300 years	VI.	503
3937	2630	369	Epaminondas , the Theban general, attacks and forces the lines of the Spartans and their confederates, and wastes the country of Peloponnesus , reduces Sicyon , and attacked Corinth	VI.	504
3937	2630	369	Taibes , king of Egypt, (the successor to Nectanebis) while he was gone to oppose the Persians in Pænicia , was

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			deposed at home, and Nectabenus his kinsman set up in his stead.	II.	84
3937	2630	369	The Roman state fall into a sort of anarchy for four years, by the contentions of the tribunes, there being only tribunes and ædiles chose governors during that time	XI.	612
3938	2631	368	The Lacedæmonians kill 10,000 Arcadians, without the loss of one man	VI.	505
3938	2631	368	Agésilas defeats the Mendesian that opposed Nectabenus, being king of Egypt, and thereby settles him upon the throne	II.	84
3938	2631	368	Dionysius the Syracusan breaks the peace, and falls upon the Carthaginians, takes several cities from them in Sicily, &c. but growing secure and negligent, the Carthaginians surprize his gallies in the port of Erix, and take and destroy most of them, upon which a peace ensues	XVII.	117
3938	2631	368	Cleomenes succeeds his brother Agesipolis as joint king of Sparta, which he held only one year	VI.	504
3939	2632	367	Cleomenes acts as first magistrate of Sparta, and Archidamus (son of Agésilas) has the command of the army: He goes into Arcadia, takes Caryæ, and puts all to the sword. Cissidas, general of Dionysius, declaring his time was out, and that he must return home, which attempting, he was in part surrounded by the Messenians; hereupon he sends to acquaint Archidamus with it, who comes to his assistance, falls upon the Arcadians, and utterly defeats them, and kills 10,000 upon the spot, without losing one Spartan; which for that reason was called the tearless battle	VI.	505
3941	2634	365	The Velitræ declaring war against Rome, and over-running the Roman territories besiege Tusculum, whose inhabitants were now admitted as Roman citizens. Six military tribunes are chose, who raise an army, defeat the enemy, relieve Tusculum, and invest Velitræ	XI.	613
3942	2635	364	The disputes between the patricians and plebeians at Rome arise to so great a height, that Camillus is chose a fourth time dictator; but the faction for the people was so strong, that he could do but little good, and therefore laid down his office; upon which, after a short inter-regnum, P. Manlius succeeded	XI.	616
3943	2636	363	Six military tribunes govern Rome this year; but upon an information that the Gauls were in full march against Rome, Camillus was a fifth time made dictator, though now 80 years of age; he goes against the Gauls, encamped upon the banks of the Anio, and by stratagem puts them into confusion, and entirely routs them; then goes against Velitræ, which immediately submits; then returns to Rome, where he is decreed a triumph both by senate and people. Rome being now delivered from publick danger, the private disputes rising too high to be allayed, the senate is forced to enact the three following laws, the 1st. for suppressing the military tribuneship and restoring the consulate, one of which was to be a plebeian, the other a patrician; the 2d. that what interest any person in debt had paid, should be esteemed as so much principal, and his debts so much reduced, and the remainder to be paid by equal payments; the 3d. that no Roman should hold more than 500 acres of land; the surplus to be divided among the poorer citizens	XI.	61
3944	2637	362	The consulate restored in the persons of L. Æmilius Mamercinus, a patrician, and L. Sextus, a plebeian. The senate orders

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			orders the great games, and a new officer, called a Prætor, is chose out of the patricians; to be a judge in all civil matters: Likewise two patrician Ædiles are chose to take care of the temples, theatres, games, markets, tribunals of justice, and the city walls, &c.	XI.	620
3944	2637	362	New commotions break out in Peloponnesus, between the Tegetæans and Mantineans, which draw in the Athenians and Spartans	VI.	505
3945	2638	361	Epaminondas , in a very obstinate battle with the Lacedæmonians, &c. is killed, and a great number of men on both sides	VI.	347
3945	2638	361	Dionysius , the Syracusan tyrant, having caused a tragedy composed by himself to be acted at Athens, for the prize of poetry at the feast of Bacchus, was proclaimed victor, upon which he treated all Syracuse for several days, and drinking excessively, contracted a violent disorder, for the cure of which requiring an opiate, his physicians gave him one from which he never awoke	VII.	259
3945	2638	361	Perdiccas , king of Macedon, goes against the Illyrians; they engage, and the Macedonians are routed with a great slaughter; among the slain was Perdiccas himself, with many of the officers; his son Amyntas , then a child, was declared his successor	VIII.	76
3945	2638	361	L. Genucius , a plebeian, and Servilius Ahala , a patrician, being Consuls this year at Rome, a dreadful plague broke out, which carried off great numbers of the people, one censor, three tribunes of the people, and one Curule ædile, and the great Camillus , whose character was, that he never fought a battle without getting a complete victory, never besieged a city without taking it, nor ever led an army into the field which he did not bring back loaded with glory, honour, spoil, and booty, &c.
3946	2639	360	Dionysius II. (the son of the late Dionysius , by his wife Doris , the Locrian) succeeds his father in Syracuse, and sends to Athens for Plato the philosopher, to instruct him in polite literature, who came accordingly	VII.	265
3946	2639	360	Dion , a great man in Syracuse, being banished, conspires against Dionysius , and comes with 800 well disciplined troops, who were immediately joined by a vast multitude of malecontents; they enter Syracuse without opposition, take Epipolæ by storm, and set all the citizens at liberty who were prisoners in the fort, and then block up all the tyrant's friends	VII.	272
3946	2639	360	Dionysius returns from Caulonia in Italy, and finding his affairs desperate, offers the Syracusans to restore the government of the democracy	VII.	273
3946	2639	360	The parties of Dion and Dionysius engage, wherein many being killed on both sides, Dion at length prevails; upon which Dion is presented with a gold crown, &c. Soon after Dionysius offers to surrender the citadel, all the troops in garrison, and money to pay them five months, and to retire into Italy; but this not being granted, he escaped in a single vessel, with his treasure, &c. into Italy, leaving his son Apollocrates governor in the citadel	VII.	276
3946	2639	360	The Macedonians, under their king Philip , defeat Mantius , the Athenian general, who was assisting Argæus , Philip's competitor for the crown of Macedon	VI.	347
3946	2639	360	Philip , brother of the deceased Perdiccas , returns from Thebes, and (though at first he pretended to act as guardian to his nephew) presently takes upon him the kingdom

World.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.	Before			Vol.	Page.
3946	2639	360	C.	Sulpitius , a patrician, and C. Licinius Stola , a plebeian, are chose consuls at Rome: The plague continuing, to appease the Gods they use the Lectisternium , and constitute new sports, called the Scenici , or pantomime dances, and revive the ceremony of driving a nail (by the dictator T. Manlius , who was now named for that purpose) into that part of the wall of Jupiter Capitolinus's temple which divided it from the chappel of Minerva , under the same roof; which being performed, he offers to raise an army to go against the Hernici , but is opposed by the tribunes, who compel him to lay down his office, then impeach him for his ill conduct		VIII.	76
3947	2640	359		Agésilæus , one of the famous Spartan kings, dies in his return from Persia, and is succeeded in the joint kingdom of Sparta by Archidamus the 2d. who reigned 23 years		XI.	626
3947	2640	359		Dion is shamefully and ingratelully forced to fly, with his adherents, from Syracuse		VI.	508
3947	2640	359		Ochus , son of Artaxerxes , succeeds his father in the kingdom of Persia, the most cruel and wicked prince that ever reigned in Persia, causing all of the blood royal of all ages and sexes to be murdered		VII.	277
3947	2640	359		Argæus (a pretender to the crown of Macedon) comes with an army as far as Ægæ ; the inhabitants oblige him to retire, upon which Philip pursues him, engages and defeats him, with great slaughter		V.	195
3947	2640	359		Philip , king of Macedon, concludes a peace with the Athenians, invades the Pæonians, takes their city, and reduces them to become his tributaries; then marches against the Illyrians, engages, totally routs, and kills 7000 upon the spot, and constrained them to buy a peace, at the expence of all their former conquests in Macedonia		VIII.	80
3947	2640	359	A	terrible earthquake making a chasm that could not be stopped up at Rome, the augurs declared it could not be done till what the strength and power of the Roman people consisted in was thrown into it, and that such victim would secure the eternal duration of the Roman state: M. Curtius , a brave young patrician, explained this answer by arms and valour, puts on his habiliments of war, and riding upon a fine horse, richly caparisoned, jumped into the gulph. Upon this, Genucius the plebeian consul goes against the Hernici , but falls into an ambuscade, and the legions flying, he is killed; upon which Appius Claudius is made dictator, who with great loss and difficulty beat the Hernici , but is refused a triumph		VIII.	82
3948	2641	358		Nypsius comes to the port of Arethusa , with a reinforcement of men and supply of corn, encourages the tyrant's friends to hold out to the last extremity: The Syracusans set upon his ships, taking some, sink others, and disperse the rest; then give themselves up to debauchery; upon which the army of Nypsius falls upon them in the night, takes the city, and kills all they meet with, &c. and then retire into the citadel; upon which the citizens that were left send deputies to Dion , who makes all the haste possible to their relief: The next night Dionysius's soldiers sally out of the citadel, murder all they meet with, and set fire to the city; in the midst of this confusion Dion comes with what Peloponnesian troops		XI.	629

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
3948	2641	358
3948	2641	358
3948	2641	358
3949	2642	357
3949	2642	357
3949	2642	357

he had, and marching through fire, blood, and dead bodies, attacked the enemy with the greatest fury imaginable; after many hours fight with a much superior number, the Peloponnesians forced the Dionysians into the citadel, after great loss on both sides: After some time, Apollocrates is allowed to retire, with all his friends and relations, to his father in Italy. Then Dionysius, having nobly rewarded those who had assisted him, dismissed his guards, lived like a private citizen, and soon after is murdered by one Callippus, an Athenian

358 Asia Minor, Syria, Phœnice and many other provinces, revolt from Ochus, now king of Persia, through their hatred of his cruelty

358 Philip king of Macedon besieges and takes the city of Amphipolis by storm, puts all the partizans against his interest to death, and uses all the common inhabitants kindly: Then he reduced Pydna, and Potidæa, which last having an Athenian garrison, he dismissed with all the marks of military honour, and delivers up the city to the Olynthians

358 C. Licinius Stolo, a plebeian, and C. Sulpitius (surnamed Peticus) being chose consuls at Rome, besiege and take Terentium from the Hernici: In their return to Rome, the gates of Tybur are shut against them, the Tyburtes being in alliance with the Gauls, who were in motion again; upon which T. Quinctius Pennus is made dictator; the Gauls advance, and encamp upon the banks of the Anio, within three miles of Rome, and the Romans opposite to them. A Gaul of gigantic size and strength, challenging all the Romans to a single combat, Manlius accepts the challenge, engages and kills him; and tearing off a gold collar from his neck, put it on his own all bloody; from whence he was surnamed Torquatus. The following night the Gauls abandoned their camp, and retired into Campania

357 Orontes, governor of Mysia, being chose general of all the provinces of Asia Minor, and upon his receiving money sufficient to raise troops, to maintain them in their revolt, makes his peace with Ochus, by delivering up those who had brought it; and Rheomitres, another chief, instead of using the help from Egypt where he had collected 500 talents and 50 ships of war, assembles the ring-leaders, and delivers them into the hands of Ochus king of Persia

357 Philip king of Macedon takes Crenides, the capital city of the country, lying between the river Strymon and Nessus, famous for its gold mines; makes great alterations in the city, and new names it Philippi, directs the working the mines, more advantageously than heretofore, and gets 10,000 talents a year from them

357 C. Petilius Libo and M. Fabius Ambustus, the two Roman consuls, having each an army, Libo goes against the Tyburtes, and Ambustus against the Hernici, who continued their revolt upon the Gauls coming into the neighbourhood of Rome, and blocks up the gate Collina; upon which Servilius Ahala is made dictator, who engaged the Gauls under the walls of Rome, from whence, after much blood shed on both sides, the Gauls are forced to run away, &c. Fabius overthrows the Hernici, in a general battle. Libo has a triumph, Fabius an ovation; and Servilius lays down the dictatorship

World.	Y. of Hood	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3950	2643	356	The Chians, Rhodians, Coans, and Byzantines, revolt from Athens, and form the social war	- - -	VI.	348
3950	2643	356	The Rhodians join in the social war against the Athenians, ravage the islands of Imbros and Lesbos, take many ships, and raise contributions sufficient to pay their fleet and army	- - -	VII.	410
3950	2643	356	Chares, the Athenian general, accuses Timotheus and Iphicrates, his colleagues, for neglect of duty; upon which they are recalled, fined, and cashiered; Timotheus unable to pay the mulct laid on him, retired to Chelos, and there broke his heart with grief at his disgrace	- - -	VI.	349
3950	2643	356	Advice is brought to Philip king of Macedon, then in the field, that his wife Olympias (daughter of Neoptolemus king of Epirus) was brought to bed of a son at Pello, whom he named Alexander, and who was afterwards surnamed the Great; at the same time he received also advice, that his chariot had gained the prize at the Olympick games, and that Parmenio his general had beaten the Illyrians.	- - -	VIII.	84
3950	2643	356	The Tyburtes come in the dead of the night to the very gates of Rome; in the morning the two consuls march out at two different gates of the city against them, and drove them away immediately	- - -	XI.	631
3950	2643	356	The Phocian, or sacred war, breaks out, about the temple of Apollo, and the things therein dedicated to his use	- - -	VI.	350
3951	2644	355	C. Fabius Ambustus the consul goes against the Tarquinienses, and is defeated, they taking 307 Romans prisoners, first treat them barbarously, and then cut their throats. C. Plautius Proculus, the other consul, goes against and entirely subdues the Hernici	- - -	XI.	632
3951	2644	355	The Boii (or Gauls) advance to Pedum, ten miles from Rome; Sulpitius is made dictator, who with his allies the Latins go against the Gauls, and after an obstinate fight obtain a complete victory, and kill and drive all away, for which he is honoured with a triumph, and lays down his dictatorship	- - -	XI.	634
3952	2645	354	Philip king of Macedon besieges Ithome, which makes a stout defence, but at last surrendered, with leave to depart the place; which being done, Philip razed the city and divided the land among his soldiers: He is said to lose an eye in this siege	- - -	VIII.	86
3952	2645	354	Interest of money is now settled at Rome, at one per cent, which heretofore had been arbitrary, according to the avarice of the lender, and necessity of the borrower. Licinius Stolo, the late plebeian consul, is fined 10,000 asses of brass, for having revolted, are defeated, and their city taken by the consul Marius. The tribunes get a law passed, prohibiting any magistrate upon pain of death, to assemble the Comitia any where but at Rome	- - -	XI.	635
3953	2646	353	Upon the death of Dion, the deliverer of Syracuse, Calippus (or Gylippus) got into the supremacy of that territory, and practised all manner of cruelties, even greater than the former tyrants had done	- - -	VII.	28
3953	2646	353	Gylippus marching his forces against Catana, Syracuse revolts, and going to Messana, the inhabitants shut their gates, and take up arms against him, and in a sally cut off the Zancynthian troops that had murdered Dion; and all the Syracusan cities refusing him admittance, he retired to Rhegium, where he was slain by Leptines and Polyperchon	- - -	VII.	28
3953	2646	353	Philip king of Macedon, having partly by fraud, and partly by force, gained possession of the Streights of Thermopylae, Demosthenes,	- - -

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Chr.	Text	Vol.	Page.
3953	2646	353	Demosthenes, to rouse the Athenians, composed the first of those inimitable orations, still in being, called the Philippics.	VI.	353
3953	2646	353	Artabazus , governor of one of the Asiatic provinces, revolts from Persia, and gets Chares the Athenian to join him with a fleet and body of troops: Ochus, king of Persia, sends an army of 70,000 men against the rebels, which Chares cut all to pieces; for which service Artabazus gives him large gifts, &c. Ochus threatens the Athenians to join the Chians, &c. with whom they were at war, if they did not recall Chares; for fear whereof they recall him, his army and fleet, with which he returns home.	V.	197
3953	2646	353	At the request of the Aleuadae, or chiefs, Philip marches his Macedonians against Lycophron, the tyrant of Thessaly, and engages him and the Phocians, his allies, who were defeated by Philip, and the Phocians driven out of Thessaly; but Onomarchus (the Phocian general) coming with his whole army to the assistance of Lycophron, defeats Philip in two general battles, and forces him to retire out of Thessaly in great distress.	VIII.	87
3953	2646	353	Philip again engages Lycophron, and his allies the Phocians, obtains a complete victory, kills the Phocian general, and 6,000 men, obliges Lycophron and his brother Pitholaus to surrender the capital city Phærea into his hands, and swear to be quiet; then he restores all the cities to their liberty.	VIII.	88
3953	2646	353	All the Hetrurians taking up arms, the Romans chuse the plebeian C. Marius Rutilus dictator, and he named C. Plantius Proculus, a plebeian, for his general of horse; which so enraged the patricians, that they used their utmost interest to hinder his having necessaries for the war; but the people being pleased with this promotion (it being the first time a plebeian had been made dictator) hasten the levies and stores, which being soon ready, he marches against the enemy, surprizes and forces their camp, kills a great number, and takes 5000 prisoners; for which, in spite of all opposition, he entered Rome in triumph.	XI.	636
3953	2646	353	The Athenians conclude the social war, upon very advantageous terms to the revolters, leaving Rhodes, Chios, Cos, and Byzantium, entirely freed from any dependency upon them.	VII.	411
3953	2646	353	Mausolus king of Caria, who had assisted the Rhodians and Cosians against Athens, declares for an aristocratic government, and makes himself master of the two islands Rhodes and Cos.	VII.	411
3954	2647	352	Hipparinus , brother of Dionysius, arriving at Syracuse, possessed himself of the city, and held it for the space of two years.	VII.	285
3954	2647	352	Artabazus , the revolted Persian, gets 5,000 Thebans, under the command of Pammenes, to assist him, by whose help he gained two victories over the king's forces; upon which Ochus bribes Pammenes, with 300 talents, to return home; which they doing, Artabazus is forced to fly to Philip king of Macedon for refuge.	V.	197
3954	2647	352	Philip king of Macedon being angry with the Athenians, arms a great number of light vessels, which continually harassed their trade, and took large prizes.	VIII.	89
3954	2647	352	After great struggles and an interregnum, two patricians are chose consuls at Rome this year, after having for 11 successive years one of them plebeians.	XI.	637

Year of world.	Year of Hood.	Before Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
3955	2648	351	Nectanebus king of Egypt and the Phœnicians revolt from Persia, and drive the Persians sent against Phœnice out of their territories	V.	198
3955	2648	351	The Sidomians being betrayed by Mentor the Rhodian, and Tennes's their king, to Ochus king of Persia, as soon as they saw the Persians within their walls, shut up themselves in their houses, to the number of 40,000, and burnt them and themselves together; upon which Ochus ordered Tennes's throat to be cut, and marched into Judea, took Jericho, and sent many Jews captive, some into Egypt, and others into Hyrcania, along the Caspian sea.	V.	200
3955	2648	351	Ochus makes peace with the Cyprians, redresses their grievances, and settles their 9 kings in their respective governments	V.	200
3955	2648	351	After great opposition, M. Fabius Ambustus and T. Quinctius Pennus, both patricians, are chose consuls to govern Rome this year. Fabius totally subdues the Tyburtes; and Quinctius in a bloody battle defeats the Tarquinienses, who puts all the prisoners to the sword (to revenge the death of the 307 Romans they had murdered) except 358 which he sent to Rome, where, after they had been scourged with rods, were beheaded: Upon this the Samnites (a people of Italy) enter into alliance with the Romans, who promise them protection, &c.	XI.	637
3955	2648	351	Mausolus king of Caria dying, the nobility and people of Rhodes drive out the Carian garrisons, and recover their former liberty and government	VII.	412
3955	2648	351	The Rhodians make a descent upon Caria; Q Artemisia (widow of Mausolus) orders the Halicarnassians to express a readiness to surrender by clapping of hands, &c. upon which the Rhodians leave their ships, and go unguarded into the city; the queen seizes the Rhodian fleet, mans it with Carians, sails to Rhodes, gets possession of the city, and put the chief magistrates to death: But Artemisia dying soon after, they recovered their city and liberty again	VII.	412
3956	2649	350	Dionysius comes with foreign troops, and defeats Nysæus, governor of Syracuse, reinstates himself in the government, and acts with the utmost revenge and cruelty towards the people, who apply themselves to Ictas, a Syracusan by birth, and at that time tyrant of Leontini	VII.	285
3956	2649	350	Ochus , with his Greek assistants, overcome Nectanebus king of Egypt, who is forced to fly into Ethiopia, so that henceforward Egypt became a province of Persia. Ochus having now quelled all disturbances in his great empire, gives himself up to ease and luxury, and the direction of publick affairs to his two favourites, Bagoas and Mentor	V.	201
3956	2649	350	Philip king of Macedon wars against the Olynthians, takes Zeira, a town in Chalcidia, and razed it to the ground; then takes Mycalerna and Torone, defeats the Olynthians twice in the fields, and shuts them up in their city of Olynthus	VIII.	90
3956	2649	350	The patricians keep the consulate, and promote T. Manlius Torquatus to the dictatorship, though he had never been consul, contrary to law; he goes against the Cærites, who had revolted, who immediately submit, and for former kindnesses to the Romans was forgiven; and a truce made with them for 100 years	XI.	638
3957	2650	349	The disputes run so high, that to avoid a civil war, P. Valerius Poplicola, a patrician, and C. Marcius Rutilus, a plebeian, are chose consuls at Rome this year, who chose

Y. of world.	Y. of Aod.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				five perfons called bankers, to regulate the payment of debts
3958	2651	348		Almost all the cities of Chalcidia, fell into the hands of Philip king of Macedon	XI.	639
3958	2651	348		Two patricians are chofe confuls at Rome this year, during which the Tarquinienfes and Falifci fubmit to the republic, and obtain a truce for 40 years; and Marcius Rutilus, a plebeian, and Cn. Manlius, a patrician, are chofe cenfors; and a law is paffed to deprive the confuls of the power of filling up the fenate, and giving it to the cenfors	VI.	355
3959	2652	347		Demofthenes pronounces three moft excellent orations, ftill in being, to perfuade the Athenians to affift the Olynthians againft the Macedonians	XI.	640
3959	2652	347		Olynthus is betrayed to Philip king of Macedon, by Euthy-crates and Lafthenes: Philip plunders the citizens houfes, and fells the citizens, and celebrates Olympic games for joy of this victory, exhibiting fplendid fhews, making magnificent feafts, and beftowing great largeffes upon thofe who had behaved gallantly in the fiege	VI.	355
3959	2652	347		L. Cornelius Scipio , one of the confuls, falling fick, M. Popilius Lænas his colleague, being a plebeian, to the great mortification of the patricians, became fole general of the Roman troops: The Gauls having entered Latium, and laid the country wafte, were advancing towards Rome; Popilius marches againft them, and though desperately wounded himfelf, after a bloody battle overthrew them, forced them to retire with precipitation, takes and plunders their camp, and returns to Rome loaded with booty, for which he is decreed a triumph	VIII.	91
3960	2653	346		A peace concluded between the Athenians and Macedonians for feven years	XI.	641
3960	2653	346		L. Furius Camillus (fon of the great Camillus) and Appius Claudius , both patricians, are chofen confuls to govern Rome this year; but Appius dying, and the Gauls invading Latium, plundered it from the mouth of the Tiber to Antium. Camillus raifes a great army, and encamps in the Pomptin rerritory. in fight of them; a fierce Gaul, cloath-ed in very rich armour, challenge any Roman to fingle combat, which is accepted by M. Valerius , a legionary tribune; they engage, but an eagle flying in the face of the Gaul, Valerius killed him; and to prevent his being ftripped of his arms, the Gauls furround and defend him; this occafions a general engagement, wherein the Gauls were entirely defeated. Valerius was rewarded by Camil-lus with a crown of gold, and two oxen, and firnamed Corvus	VIII.	93
3961	2654	345		Philip king of Macedon fubdues the Phocians, and fo puts an end to the fared war, orders the walls of their city to be demolifhed, and the people to live only in villages, and to pay 60 talents as a yearly tribute, their arms are taken from them, and their double voices in the council given to the Macedonians, by the Amphietyons, or great council of Greece, who had no voice before now	XI.	642
3961	2654	345		Popilius Lænas , and M. Valerius Corvus , (though but 23 years of age, and even too young to fit in the fenate) are chofe confuls to govern Rome this year, in which the Romans and Carthaginians make a treaty of commerce and navigation	VIII.	94
3962	2655	344		The Syracufans fend to Corinth to beg affiftance againft Dio-	XI.	644

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			nyfius and the Carthaginians, who fend Timoleon with an army to their affiftance
3962	2655	344	Diopetbes , the Athenian governor in Thrace, enters king Philip of Macedon's adjacent territories, and lays all waste with fire and sword	VII.	286
3962	2655	344	C. Plautius Hypfæus and T. Manlius Torquatus being chofe consuls to govern Rome this year, peace being abroad, the consuls fet about regulating the civil government at home, and reduce interest from one per cent to one half per cent, and allow the debtors, upon paying one quarter of their debts down, three years to pay the remainder by annual equal payments	VIII.	97
3963	2656	344	Dionysius surrenders the citadel of Syracuse into the hands of Timoleon, with all his treasure, arms, &c. and escapes to Corinth in a single vessel	XI.	645
3963	2656	343	Timoleon attacks and takes the city of Syracuse from Ictas, then assembles the citizens, who demolish the citadel, &c. and causes several edifices to be rebuilt, and proclamations to be made over all Greece, Asia, &c. to recall all the Syracusans that had fled from the cruelties of the several tyrants, promising the restoration of their lands, &c. these repair to Corinth, and with some Corinthians, &c. come and repeople Syracuse, &c.	VII.	290
3963	2656	343	Timoleon goes against Ictas, tyrant of Leontini, and compels him to renounce his alliance with Carthage, demolish his forts, and resign the sovereignty	VII.	293
3963	2656	343	The Illyrians harrafs the frontiers of Macedon, but are soon quelled by Philip	VII.	293
3963	2656	343	The Volsci revolting from the Romans, Valerius Corvus , now a second time consul, goes against them, defeats them, takes and burns Satricum, sparing only the goddess of Mantua; for which he was honoured with a triumph, in which 4,000 captives marched before his chariot, and the secular games were for the 2d time celebrated	VIII.	100
3964	2657	343	Dionysius , from a wealthy powerful prince becomes so poor, as to be necessitated to keep a school at Corinth to get a maintenance	XI.	645
3964	2657	342	Pbicion , the Athenian general, arriving at Megara, rebuilds the long walls, and joined that city to its port Nicæa, and so secures it to the Athenians	VII.	290
3964	2657	342	L. Furius Camillus is a second time chofe dictator at Rome, upon account of the Arunci becoming enemies to Rome, (a petty nation on the confines of Latium, on the coast of the Tyrrhenian sea.) Furius overthrew them in battle, and at his return to Rome built a temple, (which, during the action, he had vowed to Juno Moneta) on the capitol, in the place where the house of the rebellious Manlius formerly stood, and which afterwards became a publick mint, from whence the medals stamped for trade were called money	VI.	358
3965	2658	341	Philip king of Macedon sends his forces into the Negropont, and demolishes Porthmos, the strongest city of those parts, leaving the country to the government of three lords, or tyrants: He likewise takes Orchus, and puts it under the direction of 5 magistrates, called also tyrants	XI.	645
3965	2658	341	Jaddua succeeds his father Johanan in the Jewish high-priesthood	VIII.	101
3966	2659	340	Philip king of Macedon, marches with 30,000 men into Thessaly, and invests Perynthus, one of the most considerable cities in Propontis	X.	63
				VIII.	103

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
3966	2659	340		P. Valerius is appointed dictator at Rome, to solemnize the festival called Feræ Latinæ	XI.	646
3967	2660	339		Mago , the Carthaginian general, returns with his troops to Carthage, and there murders himself, to prevent being called to an account for his return without leave or command	VII.	292
3967	2660	339		Philip endeavours to storm the city of Perinthus, but after a vast effusion of blood on both sides, is obliged to raise the siege both of it and also of Byzantium	VIII.	113
3967	2660	339		Phocion , the Athenian general, takes several of Philip's ships, and retakes several towns, and raises contributions throughout the maritime provinces of Macedonia	VIII.	114
3968	2661	338		The Athenians very much harass and distress the Macedonians by sea, permitting none of their ships to stir out of their ports, by keeping large squadrons always cruising to take all they met with	VIII.	115
3968	2661	338		The enmity between the Romans and Samnites breaking out, upon account of the Campanians, who threw themselves into the protection of the Romans, by surrendering wholly up to them, upon which the Romans, under their consul Valerius , and the Samnites engage, and after a most desperate battle the Samnites retire in the night, and leave the Romans masters of the field and their camp	XI.	648
3968	2661	338		Cornelius Cossus , (surnamed Arvina) the other consul, being surrounded, and much harassed and endangered by the Samnites, was delivered by P. Decius Mus , a legionary, and by a very bold stratagem surprized the Samnites, took and plundered their camp, after having cut 30,000 of them to pieces; upon which the consul honours Decius with a gold crown, 100 oxen, and a white bull with gilt horns, and to his men he assigned a double quantity of corn during their life, and gave them two Saga , or military habits; the legions crown Decius with an obsidional crown, made of the grass growing on the spot, and his own men crowned him with a crown of oak leaves, called the civic crown; thus crowned with three crowns, he offered up the white bull to Mars, and distributed the 100 oxen among his companions that shared the glory and danger with him	XI.	650
3968	2661	338		The Samnites recruit, and Valerius goes against them at Suessula , a town situate between Nola and Capua , where engaging, the Romans are conquerors; 40,000 bucklers are taken from the enemy, and 120 standards, and both consuls are honoured with a triumph, and the Carthaginians present a crown of gold of 20 pounds weight to Jupiter Capitolinus , as a thanksgiving for this victory. This year ended with a census that shewed 160,000 persons fit to bear arms were in the city of Rome, and the whole closed with a Lustrum	XI.	651
3968	2661	338		Ochus having displeased Bagoas by robbing the Egyptian temples, and killing their god Apis , and carrying away the sacred records from thence, 12 years afterwards kills him, causes his flesh to be cut to pieces and given to the cats and made handles of knives of his bones, then puts Arses , Ochus's youngest son, on the throne, and murders all the rest, so gives Arses the name of king, and himself all the power	V.	202
3969	2662	337		The Macedonians engage and defeat the Athenians and Thebans in the neighbourhood of Cheronæa , with great slaughter, and thereby obtained the sovereignty of Greece;

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.
				after which they made a peace with the Athenians, and put a good garrison into Thebes, and then left the rest of the Bæotians unhurt
3969	2662	337	A	rebellion breaking out at Rome, the rebels seize T. Quinctius (an excellent commander that had retired to his country seat to die in peace) in his bed, and compel him to be their captain. Valerius Corvus is chose dictator, and goes against them, and pacifies them, and the senate not only pardon them all, but consents to pass the following laws ; 1st. That no person who was a legionary tribune one year, should be a centurion next ; 2d. That no Roman should lend money upon interest, and usury absolutely forbidden at Rome ; 3d. That both the consuls should be plebeians ; 4th. That no man should bear the same office twice in ten years, or hold two different employments the same year	XI. 658
3970	2663	336	Philip	king of Macedon convokes a general assembly of the Greeks, wherein he was recognized generalissimo of all the Greeks, is endued with power to go against the Persians ; and after appointing each state its quota, dismisses them	VIII. 116
3970	2663	336	Philip	king of Macedon repudiates his wife Olympias, mother of Alexander the Great, and espouses Cleopatra, the niece of Attalus ; upon which Alexander quarrels with his father, and retires with his mother into Epirus, the kingdom of his grandfather	VIII. 125
3970	2663	336	Philip	king of Macedon calls home his son Alexander from Epirus, and is friends with him, and also marries Cleopatra (the daughter of his wife Olympias) to Alexander king of Epirus, her brother	VIII. 130
3970	2663	336	Philip	king of Macedon murdered by Pausanias, captain of his guards, at a publick festival made for the celebration of the marriage of his daughter Cleopatra with Alexander king of Epirus, and is succeeded in his kingdom of Macedon by his son Alexander by his wife Olympias, surnamed the Great, from his great natural, and acquired parts, and from his extraordinary exploits and conquests in war	VIII. 133
3970	2663	336	Upon the death of Philip king of Macedon, the Grecian cities and states revolt from his son Alexander	VI. 361
3970	2663	336	Bagoes,	to prevent Arses bringing him to an account for his father's death, murders him and all his family, and then puts Darius the third upon the throne, before called Codomanus, governor of Armenia	V. 203
3970	2663	336	Darius	not being so tractable as Bagoas wished him to be, he purposed to poison him, of which Darius having notice, when he came with the poison potion, he compelled Bagoas to drink it, and so settled himself upon the throne	V. 203
3970	2663	336	The Privernians	revolt from the Romans, but are reduced by the consul Plautius ; and the Samnites are so harassed, by Æmilius his colleague, that they sue for peace and an alliance with Rome, which was granted	XI. 653
3971	2664	335	Alexander,	now king of Macedon, rejects the Athenian ambassadors with scorn, but upon their sending Phocion, he was so influenced as to make a favourable peace with him for the Athenians ; At the same time Alexander contracts a great intimacy with and friendship for Phocion	VI. 362
3971	2664	335	Attalus,	general of the Macedonian army in Asia, is killed by order of king Alexander for aspiring to the crown of Macedon	VIII. 143
3971	2664	335	Alexander	king of Macedon engages and defeats the Triballians, Thracians, &c. upon which all the neighbouring nations make peace with him	146

Before
Christ.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

3971 2664

3971 2664

3971 2664

3971 2664

3971 2664

3971 2664

3972 2665

335 Alexander king of Macedon defeats Clytus king of Illyria, that had revolted, and Glacias king of the Taulanii, who had come to his assistance, twice, and forces them to fly into the mountains for shelter

335 Alexander king of Macedon takes Thebes by storm, kills all he meets for several hours, without regard to age or sex, and razes all the city but the house of Pindar the poet; the lands he shared among his soldiers, and the prisoners he sold for slaves, whereby he put 440 talents into his treasury; this severity was used towards the Thebans under pretence they were the allies of the Persians, and so enemies to Greece. As an attonement for razing Thebes, he orders the cities Orchemenus and Platea to be rebuilt; upon which all the states of Greece submit to him, and he is made generalissimo of all Greece, &c.

335 Manlius Torquatus, a patrician, and Decius Mus, a plebeian, are chose consuls at Rome, when Alexander king of Epirus, uncle to Alexander the Great, came into Italy, being invited by the Tarentines to assist them against the Brutians, and concludes an alliance of friendship with the Romans

335 The consuls summon 10 of the chiefs among the Latins to declare their reason for their warlike preparations: The Latins demand, that one of the consuls and half the senate be chosen from among them; which being rejected, both sides fly to arms. Titus Manlius, son of one of the reigning consuls, having engaged one Gemenius Metjus, a Latin, and overcome him in single combat, is punished with death by the consul his father, for fighting without leave, &c.

335 The Latins and Romans engage, and the consul Decius Mus devoting himself to the Dii Manes, is slain in the midst of the Latins: The Romans having made a prodigious slaughter of the Latins, at length gain the victory over them at the foot of mount Vesuvius; after which Numicius their general recruits, and again engages the consul Manlius at a village called Trifana, where he is a second time overthrown; upon which Manlius lays all Latium waste; and all the Latin cities surrender at discretion, likewise Priver-num among the Volsci, and all Campania, with Capua its capital; the consul takes their lands from them, and distributes them among the Romans, except the lands of the Laurentini and the Campanian knights, who were not concerned in the revolt

335 The Campanian knights, to the number of 1800, for their faithfulness to the Romans, were made citizens of Rome, but without right of suffrage; and this privilege was engraved on brass, and fixed up in the temple of Castor and Pollux; and an annual portion of 45 denarii assigned each of them out of the public revenues of Campania. Manlius falling sick, L. Papirius Crassus is made dictator, and goes with his troops into the country of the Antiates, who had revolted, where he stays some months, living at free quarter, and then returns to Rome, to chuse consuls

334 Anaximenes, the great historian, comes to meet Alexander, and to intercede for Lampsacus, a city that Alexander had determined to destroy, for siding with the Persians. Upon seeing him, Alexander swears he would not grant him

VIII. 146

VIII. 149

XI. 654

XI. 658

XI. 662

XI. 662

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				what he should require ; whereupon Anaximenes begs him to burn Lampfacus, and so saved it
3972	2665	334		Alexander crossing the river Granicus in Asia, engages the Persian army, and defeats them with great slaughter, and the taking many prisoners.—Then marching to Sardis, it immediately surrenders, and with it all Lydia. Then he goes to Ephesus, and restores the democracy, and orders the tribute heretofore paid to the Persians, to be applied to the rebuilding the temple of Diana ; and by another edict, he ordered the restoration of the popular government in all the Greek cities, and sent Alcimalus with a body of troops to see it executed	VIII.	157
3972	2665	334		Miletus is taken by the Macedon troops by storm ; Alexander treats the citizens with great humanity, and sells all the strangers for slaves	VIII.	163
3972	2665	334		Alexander besieges, takes, and demolishes Halicarnassus, and makes Ada governess of all Caria. Upon this, most of the Asiatic princes revolt from Darius, and submit to Alexander ; among whom was Mithridates king of Pontus	VIII.	164
3972	2665	334		The Marmarians harass Alexander's army, upon which he pursues and besieges them ; and after defending themselves some time, the young men murder the old men, women and children, burn their houses, and cut their way through Alexander's guards, and fly to the mountains	VIII.	169
3972	2665	334		Alexander , son of Æropus , general of the Thessalian horse, corresponds with Amyntas, who was in the service of Darius. Amyntas promises him, in Darius's name, 1000 talents of silver, and the kingdom of Macedon, to murder the king. Parmenio, the Macedonian general, communicates it to the king ; upon which Alexander is seized and put to death	VIII.	169
3972	2665	334	Q.	Publius , a plebeian consul, goes against an army of the Latins, that had revolted ; overcomes them, and is honoured with a triumph : but Æmilius the patrician, his colleague, gaining only some smaller advantages against another Latin army, is denied that honour, which makes him exclaim extremely against the Patricians : They order him to name a dictator, and he chooses Publius , a plebeian, who also chose Brutus Scævola , a plebeian, for his general of the horse	VIII.	171
3973	2666	333		The Macedonians take the city of Aspendus, receive 100 talents, a great number of horses, and a constant tribute, for its redemption, and marches through Phrygia, to meet the rest of his troops at Gordium	XI.	662
3973	2666	333		Darius , by the persuasion of the Persian Lords puts Charidemus to death, who had long been a famous Athenian officer under Philip king of Macedon, for upbraiding them with cowardice, &c.	VIII.	173
3973	2666	333		Alexander king of Macedon, waiting at Gordium for the arrival of the rest of his troops, undoes the knot in the cord, by which Gordius's chariot hung in the palace of Midas their king ; concerning which the oracle is said to have declared, that he that could undo it, should reign over all Asia	VIII.	174
3973	2666	333	L.	Furius Camillus , a patrician, and C. Mænius , a plebeian, being consuls at Rome this year, overcome the united forces of the Latins, take the town of Pedum by assault, and bring all Latium into subjection ; having finished the war, the consuls return to Rome, have a triumph, and two Equestrian statues in the forum	VIII.	176
					XI.	662

[lxxxv]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
3973	2666	333	Upon Alexander's arriving at Ancyra, a city of Galatia, the province of Paphlagonia submits ; he then proceeds to reduce Cappadocia, and possess himself of Cilicia ; soon after is taken with a violent illness, of which he is cured by Philip his physician, who was accused with designing to poison him	VIII.	177
3973	2666	333	Harpalus , one of Alexander's commanders, having misbehaved, flies from Asia, where he was governor, with prodigious wealth to Athens, from whence he is banished by the senate	VI.	363
3973	2666	333	The Latins, from allies, become subjects to the Romans, and are differently treated, according as their cities had been more or less vigorous in the late revolt, &c.	XI.	663
3974	2667	332	Alexander totally defeats Darius, with an army of 600,000 men, at the battle of Issus, in which about 100,000 was killed, and the tent of Darius taken, wherein was his mother, wife, two daughters, and his little son, whom Alexander ordered to be treated with the utmost tenderness and respect, and by his universal good usage wrought upon all the provinces of Cælo-Syria to submit : Parmenio, one of Alexander's generals, takes all Darius's baggage, treasure, and equipage, left at Damascus	VIII.	187
3974	2667	332	Alexander takes Tyre by storm, after a long siege, kills about 8,000, sells 30,000 for slaves, and pardons king Azelmicus, and such Tyrian lords as were taken with him in the temple of Hercules, where Alexander, assisted with his whole army, offered sacrifice	VIII.	193
3974	2667	332	Darius offers 10,000 talents of silver for the ransom of his mother, wife, and children, that he would consent to the marriage of his daughter with Alexander, and would acknowledge him both for his friend and confederate	VIII.	196
3974	2667	332	Alexander goes with anger towards Jerusalem, where he is met by Jaddua the high-priest, and all the other priests in their vestments, at Sapha, or Tzaphap, an eminence that commanded a prospect of the whole city and temple, where Alexander pays them great respect, remits that year's tribute, and confirms them in all their privileges granted them by the kings of Persia, upon which many of the Jews list themselves in his army, &c.	X.	65
3974	2667	332	Gaza (about five miles from the sea) a large and strong town at the entrance into Egypt, and the bridge of Palestine, after a stout resistance and great slaughter, is taken by Alexander, and thereby all Syria was lost from Darius	VIII.	198
3974	2667	332	Alexander goes into Egypt, Pelusium is surrendered by the Persians, without any opposition ; from thence he sails up the Nile, lands and marches through the deserts to Heliopolis, crosses the river and comes to Memphis, and there offers sacrifice to all the Grecian deities, and to the Egyptian Apis, and celebrates magnificent games, sails down the river to the sea, passes round the city Canopus, and wherever he came, orders the erection of publick temples and structures	VIII.	202
3974	2667	332	Demosthenes the Athenian orator being convicted of bribery by the court of Areopagus, was fined 50 talents, and to avoid imprisonment flew to Ægina	VI.	363
3974	2667	332	The Rhodians submit voluntarily to Alexander the Great, which pleased him so much, that he shewed them upon all occasions marks of his esteem and friendship, and is said to have deposited his last will in their archives	VII.	414

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3974	2667	332	Publius , a plebeian, is chose prætor at Rome, which is the first time any of that order had been admitted into that dignity, which reconciled the people and nobility	XII.	3
3975	2668	331	Alexander goes to the temple of Jupiter Ammon, and sacrifices, then returns to Memphis, and settles the government of Egypt	VIII.	207
3975	2668	331	The Samaritans having killed Andromachus, governor of Samaria under Alexander, by burning his palace and him in it, and his attendants, Alexander revenged it by putting to death all who had any manner of concern in it, and drove out the rest, and then peopled the city with Macedonians, and granted the rest of their territories to the Jews	X.	67
3975	2668	331	Alexander engages Darius at the village of Guagamela, and routs his army consisting of 1,000,000 horse and foot, with great slaughter, and many prisoners, and pursues Darius himself 10 miles; Parmenio taking the enemies baggage, elephants, and camels, and so absolutely decided the fate of Asia	VIII.	214
3975	2668	331	Alexander marches against Babylon, upon whose arrival Mazæus the Persian governor retires, and the Babylonians come out joyfully to submit to Alexander	VIII.	216
3975	2668	331	Agis , king of Sparta, having revolted from Alexander's authority, is engaged by Antipater the Macedonian general, and killed, with 5,500 of his men, and the rest dispersed; which confirmed Alexander in his supremacy over all Greece	VIII.	220
3975	2668	331	Alexander marches to Susa, where was Darius's palace and treasure, which had been delivered into the hands of his general Philoxenes; here he received 50,000 talents, being upwards of 9,000,000 sterling, and furniture and curiosities of immense value; then he reduces all the provinces as he passes	VIII.	220
3975	2668	331	Bessus , governor of Bactria, Barzaentes, president of Aracosia, and Nabarzenes, a general of horse, seeing Darius's misfortunes, revolt from and seize him, with intent to set up themselves: Upon Alexander's hearing of it, he pursues the rebels, and upon his coming up to them, they stab and kill Darius, and then fly	VIII.	239
3975	2668	331	The Sidicini and Aufones, who had infested the country of the Arunci, at this time in alliance with Rome, are defeated by the consuls, &c.	XII.	1
3976	2669	330	A conspiracy is formed against the life of Alexander, which being discovered, Dymnus, the person who was to have killed the king, upon his being apprehended stabs himself	VIII.	241
3976	2669	330	Alexander , after vast marches in a very rigorous season, and through difficult ways, comes into Media, and orders a city to be built, which he called Alexandria	VIII.	250
3976	2669	330	Bessus , the Persian rebel, having changed his name into Artaxerxes, upon hearing of Alexander's march against him, wastes all the country as he passes, and burns his ships, then retires to Nautaca, a city of Sogdia: Alexander continuing his march, reduces all Bactria, and Bessus is delivered into his hands	VIII.	254
3976	2669	330	The Abii, a people of Scythia, having revolted, and taken many cities, Alexander goes against them at Gaza, takes it by storm, burns the city, kills all the males, and gives all the plunder and women to his soldiers, and went so on

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Y. of Christ	Before		Page.
				from place to place, destroying and conquering all where- ever he came.	VIII. 256
3976	2669	330		Pharnaces , one of Alexander's generals, with 2,300 men, horse and foot, is cut off by Spitamenes, all but 340 ; upon which Alexander goes against him in person, but he flying, Alexander wastes and destroys all the country, and puts the people to death ; then he marched to Zariaspa, and went into winter quarters ; here he ordered Bessus to be brought into court, to have his nose and ears cut off, and then sent him to Ecbatana, to be tried according to the laws of the Medes and Persians, for the murder of Darius late king of Persia	VIII. 261
3976	2669	330		M. Valerius Corvus , now a fourth time consul, takes Cale, the metropolis of the Aufones, by means of covered gal- leries and moveable towers, which he invented to screen his men from their darts and stones	XII. 3
3977	2670	329		Alexander changes the anniversary festival of Bacchus into the festival of the Dioscuri, i. e. Castor and Pollux ; here at a sumptuous feast were present all the principal com- manders, and particularly Clytus, the king's favourite, whom the king in a fit of drunken madness, killed	VIII. 267
3977	2670	329		Alexander king of Macedon, now called the Great King, receives divine honours, with which being much elated, a conspiracy is formed to kill him, by several young noble- men ; but being discovered, the conspirators are stoned to death	VIII. 279
3977	2670	329		The king of Scythia offers an alliance to Alexander, which he declines, but accepts of the offer of Pharamanes king of the Chorasmian, a people bordering on the Euxine sea, and makes an alliance with him	VIII. 280
3977	2670	329		The new Roman consuls enter the enemies country, and lay it waste, and then return to Rome ; when it being re- ported the Samnites had joined the Sidicini, P. Cornelius Rufinus was appointed dictator ; but the augurs declaring his nomination defective, he was obliged to abdicate. A plague being now at Rome, they declared the inauguration of the consuls was faulty, upon which they were displaced, and an interregnum followed	XII. 4
3978	2671	328		Alexander marches into Sogdia, besieges and takes a fortress built on a rock, and thereby cut off the retiring place of the revolters, wherein was Roxana, the wife of Oxycrates, the greatest beauty in the world, whom Alexander mar- ried ; upon which Oxycrates surrenders, and with him all Sogdia, and is received with all the marks of esteem and friendship	VIII. 285
3978	2671	328		Alexander coming to the river Cophenes, sends a herald to Taxiles, and all the other princes on this side the river Indus, to come and meet him, which Taxiles does, with great presents ; from thence Alexander goes to the river Choe, besieges and takes a city double walled with some difficulty, and razes it ; then proceeds to Andaca, which was surrendered on terms ; he goes on, and at last engages a great army of the natives, which he entirely conquered, killing 40,000 upon the spot, and taking 230,000 head of cattle, part of which, for their extraordinary size, goodness, and beauty, he sent to Macedon, to mend the Grecian breed, and to perpetuate the memory of this great victory	VIII. 292
3979	2672	327		Alexander passes the river Indus, and from thence goes to the river Hydaspis, where his passage is long hindered by king Porus ;

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	V. of world
			Porus; but having by a stratagem cross'd the river, engages, overthrows, and kills 20,000 foot, and 3,000 horse, hacked 300 chariots to pieces, killed and took all the elephants, and two of Porus's sons, and most of the officers of rank were also killed; Porus submits, and is received with the utmost civility by Alexander, who not only returned him his own kingdom, but added very large provinces and kingdoms to it, &c. To perpetuate the memory of this victory, Alexander ordered two cities to be built, one on the field of battle, called Nicæa, and the other on this side of the river where he encamped, called Bucephala, in honour of his horse, which died here of age, being 30 years old
3979	2672	327	Several Indian princes confederate together; Alexander engages them before the city Sangala, seated on the top of a hill, defeats them with great slaughter, and takes the city by storm, kills 17,000, and takes 70,000 prisoners, 300 chariots, and 500 horse, razes the city, and goes on to the river Hyphasis
3979	2672	327	Alexander's army mutiny, and insist upon returning home, to which he consents, and having made proper preparations, embarks his troops, &c. In his passage he reduces the Malli, by taking their city by storm, and putting all to the sword he finds in it; he then passes the river Hydraotis, and engages a large army, which defeating, he besieges and storms the city where they had retired to, and being desperately wounded, is with great difficulty preserved alive; the soldiers in revenge put all they meet with to the sword; the Malli and Oxydraci submit, and make great presents, whose example several other kingdoms and provinces follow and do the like
3979	2672	327	It being groundlessly reported the Gauls were coming against Rome, Papirius Crassus is named dictator, the City, now greatly encreasing, two new tribes, viz. the Mæcian and Scaptian, are added to those that were already in being
3980	2673	326	A great number of Roman ladies conspire and poison their husbands, which being discovered by a woman slave, the ladies drink the poison they were preparing, and so kill themselves
3981	2674	325	The Privernates and Fundi revolt from Rome, but after a long siege Privernum surrenders, and Vitrius, the author of the revolt being delivered up, was first beaten with rods, and then beheaded. The two consuls upon their return to Rome have a triumph, and Æmilius is surnamed Privernas: After punishing some of the ringleaders, Privernum was declared a Municipium, and incorporated into the Roman state
3981	2674	325	Alexander loses a vast number of his troops, &c. as he is passing through Gadosia, by drought and famine, &c. Upon his coming into Caramania, puts Clitander, Sitalces, and Heracon to death, for male administration during his absence: Orfines the Persian governor is crucified, and Peucestas appointed in his stead. Atropas, governor of Media, is put to death, for assuming the regal title and wearing the royal tiara
3981	2674	325	Calanus the Indian philosopher, tutor of Lyfimachus, obtains leave of Alexander to have a funeral pile, on which laying himself at full length, he remained without voice or motion in the midst of the flames till he was consumed

VIII. 304

VIII. 307

VIII. 318

XII.

XII.

XII.

VIII. 332

VIII. 332

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
3981	2674	325		Alexander goes to Susa, where Abulites and his son Oathres being proved guilty of male administration, are put to death; and then he gives a loose to luxury, pleasure and ease, takes Barsine, or Statira, the daughter of Darius, and Parisatis, the daughter of Ochus, for his wives: To Hephestion, Craterus, &c. he gave the greatest Persian ladies, to the number of 80, all which marriages were solemnized at once: Next, he ordered all his troops to make their demand, which coming to 20,000 talents, he pays them, and orders a crown of gold to be given to each of his favourites
3981	2674	325		Alexander being returned to Opis, a city on the Tygris, he makes a proclamation for such as were infirm, or desirous to have leave, to lay down their arms, &c. A mutiny arising, he orders 13 of the ringleaders to be put to death on the spot, and so prevented its spreading further	VIII.	333
3981	2674	325		The Macedonians came to the king's palace, and lay down their arms, protesting they would remain there day and night till he had compassion on them; which so melted him, that he came and kissed them, and ordered a publick feast, at which 9000 persons were present; the Macedonians sat next the king, next them the Persians, and next them people of all nations	VIII.	334
3982	2675	324		Harpalus having again robbed the king's treasury of 5000 talents, for fear of punishment, raises 6000 mercenaries, leaves them at Tenarus, and goes himself to Athens; but being forced away from thence, returns to his troops, where he is killed by Thimbro, his intimate friend	VIII.	335
3982	2675	324		Alexander , upon Harpalus's revolt, marches immediately to Ecbatana, where he offered sacrifice, and exhibited solemn sports; but Hephestion dying, makes him melancholy; he honours him with great marks of his esteem, and orders him a monument at the expence of 10,000 talents	VIII.	336
3982	2675	324		Near Ecbatana was a rude and barbarous people, called the Cossians, who had never been conquered by the Persians, and who continually made incursions, and committed robberies upon the neighbouring countries; these Alexander, after several encounters, forces to submit to his mercy	VIII.	337
3982	2675	324		Ambassadors come from all parts of Greece to Babylon, with garlands on their heads, presenting golden crowns to Alexander, thereby intending him divine honours	VIII.	338
3982	2675	324		Alexander quitting his throne to quench his thirst, a mean fellow a prisoner rushes through the eunuchs, and seats himself thereon, for which presumption he is put to death	VIII.	342
3983	2676	323		The Palæopolitans, who were originally Eubæans, coming into Italy, built Cumæ, and Naples, or Neapolis, make an irruption into the Roman territories: The Samnites also break the peace, Publius the late consul, a plebeian, is made Proconsul, and by stratagem takes Palæopolis, and disperses the Samnites, and in spite of the nobles enters Rome in triumph, which is denied the two consuls, though they also had gained great advantages over the Samnites	VIII.	342
3983	2676	323		Alexander dies at Babylon of a raging fever, said to be occasioned by poison given him by Antipater, &c. He left behind him a son named Hercules, by his wife Barsina, daughter of Artabazus, and widow of Memnon, who was afterward murdered; by Roxana daughter of Oxycrates	XII.	10

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
				the Bactrian, a posthumous son named Alexander, who for a time had the title of king; by Cleophes queen of part of India, a son named Alexander, who succeeded his mother in her kingdom. He died lord of a multitude of fair provinces, sovereign of many large kingdoms, and held empire more extensive than any before him: Macedon was his hereditary kingdom; great part of Thrace and Illyria he subdued, and all Greece was under his protection: In Asia his conquests reached from the Hellespont to the Indian ocean, and Egypt and Lybia were his	VIII.	350
3983	2676	323		Upon the death of Alexander king of Macedon, (called the Great King) all the great men, having various interests to promote, are much divided about a successor; at last name Aridæus, brother to Alexander, and change his name to Philip	VIII.	354
3983	2676	323		Perdiccas , master of the horse, causes a lustration of the army, takes 300 out of the phalanx of foot, and throws them to the elephants, who were openly devoured and destroyed; then pursues Meleager into a temple. whither he had fled for safety, and orders him to be murdered, and so establishes himself in the power he aimed at for a time	VIII.	357
3983	2676	323		Alexander , the new-born son of Roxana, (the late king Alexander's wife) is joined with Aridæus (now Philip) in the regal authority; and the several kingdoms and provinces distributed to the late king Alexander's favourites, generals, &c.	VIII.	358
3983	2676	323		Perdiccas and Roxana (for her son) govern without controul. Roxana sends letters under Alexander's seal for Statira, and Drypatis the daughter of Darius, wives to the late king Alexander, and Hephestion, to come to Babylon immediately, where being arrived, they are murdered	VIII.	362
3983	2676	323		The mercenary Greeks assemble themselves under one Philo, to the number of 20,000 foot and 3000 horse, and endeavour to march home. Perdiccas sends one Pithon against them, with orders to destroy them all, and to give their effects to the soldiers under him; which was accordingly executed	VIII.	363
3983	2676	323		The Rhodians revolt from Macedon, drive out all the Macedonian garrisons, and become a free people	VII.	414
3984	2677	322		Violent storms of rain, hail, thunder, &c. happen at Rhodes, whereby abundance of the inhabitants are killed and drowned, and the wall of the city broke down, which gives vent to the waters, and saves the city and people from intire destruction	VII.	414
3984	2677	322		Seutbes , descended of the antient race of the Odryssian kings, comes against Lyfimachus , governor of Thrace, with 20,000 foot and 8000 horse; which Lyfimachus is forced to engage, with 4000 foot and 2000 horse, and behaved so gallantly, that he kept the field, and preserved his government	VIII.	363
3984	2677	322		Jaddua the Jewish high-priest dies, and is succeeded in that office by his son Onias , who enjoyed that dignity about 21 years	X.	68
3984	2677	322		Upon the death of Alexander the Great, the Athenians and their allies, under Leosthenes , go against the Macedonians with a great army; they engage Antipater , who being much inferior in number, is beaten, and forced to fly to Lamia (a city of Thessaly,) whither Leosthenes follows, and besieges him; where Leosthenes being killed by a stone,

Vol.	Page.	Before Christ.	Y. of Good Y. of world.
				Antiphalus is chose general in his stead ; who engaging the Macedonians under the command of Leonatus, overthrew them ; upon which growing careless and secure, Leonatus, being joined by Antipater and Craterus, they engage and overthrow Antiphalus and Memnon, which so dispirited the confederate Greeks, that they sued to Antipater for peace, which he granted them separately, and thereby reduced the power of Athens so much, as to force them to consent to the delivering up Demosthenes and Hyperides, and that the old method of taxing in the city should be restored, that they should receive a Macedonian garrison into Munichia, defray the charges of the war, &c. This being agreed to, Demosthenes poisoned himself -
	VI.			366
				Timoleon , full of age and possessed of the love of all the people, dies, and is buried with great pomp at the public expence, 200 Mina's being decreed for that purpose : 'Twas likewise enacted, that the day of his death should annually be honoured with publick sports, horse-races and Gymnastic games ; and whenever the Syracusans were engaged in a war with the Barbarians, they should send to Corinth for a general -
	VII.			297
				Perdiccas goes against Ariarathes king of Cappadocia ; upon the frontiers they engage, and Perdiccas kills 1000, takes Ariarathes and 6000 more prisoners, and disperses the rest ; crucifies Ariarathes, and settles Eumenes governor under the two kings of Macedon, &c. -
	VIII.			365
				Perdiccas , to revenge the death of Balacrus, the governor of Lauranda, and Isaurus, whom the people had killed, assaults and takes Lauranda by storm, puts all able to bear arms to the sword, and sells the youth, women, and children, for slaves ; then besieging Isaurus, a strong and populous city, which was long defended with great bravery, but at last, rather than be taken, the Isaurians burnt the city, with their parents, wives, and children -
	VIII.			365
				The Lucanians are drawn, by a stratagem, to declare for the Samnites against Rome -
	XII.			11
				The Roman senate make a law to abrogate the power of creditors over their debtors, appointing, that no citizen's person should be imprisoned for debt, but only for criminal matters -
	XII.			11
				Agathocles , a potter by trade, being first a common soldier, for his beauty, strength, and activity, was by Demas the Agrigentine general made a Chiliarch (or commander of 1000 men) and upon Demas's dying, married his widow, and so became the richest citizen of Syracuse : But Sostistratus having usurped the supreme authority, drove him out of Syracuse ; from whence he retired to Italy, and settling at Crotona, attempted the sovereignty thereof, but was forced to fly from the rage of the multitude to Tarentum, from whence he was likewise driven for the like practices, and now all cities refusing him, he collected a body of exiles, and lived by robbery and plunder. Sostistratus coming into Italy besieged Rhegium ; Agathocles and his band unexpectedly fell upon him, and obliged him to return home, where he was soon after forced to abdicate the sovereignty, and quit Syracuse, with about 600 citizens suspected of designing to demolish Democracy, and set up Oligarchy ; upon which they apply to the Carthaginians, who espouse their cause ; and the Syracusians call home Agathocles, and make him their commander in chief, who overthrows Sosistratus and the Carthaginians in a pitched battle, wherein he received seven wounds : Upon this beginning to exercise sovereign power, the Syracusians have recourse to Corinth, who sent Acestorides to command their army, who commanded Agathocles to go out of the city ; but he got a young man that resembled him to go in his stead, who was seized, murdered, and buried, as soon as he came without the city, thinking him to be Agathocles, but were soon undeceived by Agathocles making his escape privately, and raising troops in the heart of Sicily ; upon which the Syracusians offered to recall him home, if he would disband his troops, which he agreed to, and being conducted to the temple of Ceres, swore to do nothing prejudicial to the established Democracy, then consisting of 600 of the chief citizens : He was again made commander in chief of the forces going against the revolted Erbitans ; he employs his army to seize Syracuse, under pretence of ridding them of the 600 tyrants, and their abettors, and murders all they meet with, without regard to age, sex, or rank, plundered the houses, and committed all manner of cruelties ; so that a few hours strewed the streets with upwards of 4000 dead carcases. This horrid work continued two days ; the 3d day Agathocles summons those citizens that were left alive, tells them his design was only to establish the Democracy free, and that he would live a private life : This said, his adherents proclaimed him king, with an absolute power. His first law was, that all the lands should be equally divided between the rich and the poor, which gained him the populace, and then behaved very mildly, freely, and equitably ; and thus, in about two years time, he made himself master of all Sicily, when he behaved as cruelly and inhumanly as ever any before him had done

VII. 302

3985 2678 321 Perdiccas first murders Cynane, the daughter of Philip late king of Macedon, and promotes her daughter Ada (or Eurydice) to be the wife of king Aridæus (or Philip ;) upon which Antigonus, governor of Pamphylia, &c. retires to Greece, to accuse Perdiccas to Antipater and Craterus

VIII. 367

3985 2678 321 Ptolemy, governor of Egypt, sends Ophellas against Thimbro ; who conquers, takes, and crucifies Thimbro, and so adds Cyrene to Egypt

VIII. 367

3985 2678 321 Aridæus (one of Alexander the Great's commanders) after two year's preparation for the burial of Alexander, late king of Macedon, &c. carries his body from Babylon into Egypt : Ptolemy goes as far as Syria in person, to meet and do honour to his dead master ; and conducting his corps to Alexandria, buries him in a rich temple, built there on purpose

VIII. 367

3985 2678 321 Perdiccas hearing that Ptolemy, Craterus, and Antipater designed to unite and take his power from him, (which he exercised to the dislike of every body) raises a great army, takes the two kings with him, and goes into Egypt ; where, after losing a great many of his men, by death, and desertion, &c. he is murdered by the remainder in his tent ; upon which Ptolemy comes and treats the army with great tenderness ; and Aridæus and Pithon were chosen protectors of the king's person, and chief ministers of state

VIII. 371

Before Christ.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of world.
331	2678	3985	Eumenes obtains two victories over Craterus and Antipater for Perdiccas , in which Craterus , and Neoptolemus , the revolted governor of Armenia , were slain; upon hearing whereof, in two days after Perdiccas 's death, the soldiers put all the friends of Perdiccas to death, proscribed Eumenes and 50 men of quality with him, and then left Egypt and returned into Cælo-Syria , under the command of Aridæus and Pithon . At their arrival at Tryparadifus , Antipater , governor of Greece , &c. join them. Aridæus and Pithon lay down their office, and Antipater is chose protector, with sovereign power: But Eurydice , wife of king Philip , behaving imperiously, is checked by Antipater ; upon which, in a set oration, she accused him to the army, which occasions great disorders; but after some days matters were settled, and Antipater continued in the administration; upon which he made a new division of the provinces, and declares Eumenes a publick enemy, and orders Antigonus , general of the household troops, to prosecute the war against him; then returns with the two kings into his own province, highly commended and admired by all the Macedonians	VIII.	372
321	2678	3985	The Vestini (a people on the Adriatick sea) take arms against Rome : The consul D. Junius Brutus goes against them, defeats them, and takes the cities Cutina and Cingalia from them	XII.	12
321	2678	3985	The other Roman consul L. Furius Camillus falling sick, names L. Papirius Cursor to be dictator, and to act against the Samnites . He took the field, but is obliged to return home upon account of the auspices being reported unfavourable, and ordered Fabius , his general of horse, not to engage the enemy in his absence: He disobeys, and overthrows the Samnites , and kills 20,000 of them on the spot; then burns the spoil, instead of lodging it in the hands of the Quæstor , that they might not encrease the pomp of the dictator's triumph. The dictator commands Fabius to be stripped, &c. which while the lictors are doing, he escapes, and great commotions and mutinies are in the army. Fabius goes to Rome , and appeals to the people; but the dictator gets the better of him; but all the orders of the people joining with Fabius 's submission, the dictator pardons him, and so all is quiet again	XII.	14
320	2679	3689	Eumenes collects the best army he can, but when engaged with Antigonus , is betrayed by Appollodorus his general of horse, loses 8000 men, and is totally routed, but with the remains of his army returns into the field of battle, burns the bodies of the slain, makes two heaps of their ashes, and covers them with earth; then dismisses his army, all but 600 men, takes possession of the castle of Nora , exceedingly strong, situate on the top of an inaccessible rock, which Antigonus not able to take, builds a strong wall round the bottom, leaves men to defend it, and goes against Alcetas and Attalus , who sided with Eumenes	VIII.	374
320	2679	3986	Antigonus marches into Pisidia , engages and overcomes Alcetas , who flying to Trenessus with 6000 troops, is there murdered, and his carcass delivered to Antigonus . Attalus , Decimus , and Polemon were taken prisoners, &c. Upon this Antigonus endeavours to make himself supreme in Asia	VIII.	375
320	2679	3986	Papirius being continued dictator, engages the Samnites , totally overthrows them, and then over-run Samnium , and forced

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			forced the enemy to sue for peace, which was granted them upon hard terms : Upon his return to Rome he is decreed and honoured with a triumph
3987	2680	319	The Samnites being joined by the Apulians, declare war against Rome : The consuls go against them, but they shutting themselves up in their strong holds, little could be done with them this year	XII.	16
3987	2680	319	The Carthaginians send Imilcar with a great fleet and army against Agathocles, which is much shattered by a violent storm and the remainder Agathocles attacks near Himera, forces his trenches, and cut most of his troops to pieces : But while his men were greedy after plunder, an unexpected reinforcement comes from Carthage ; they fall upon and rout Agathocles, who was forced to fly into his metropolis, whither they follow and besiege him	XII.	16
3987	2680	319	Agathocles engages the Carthaginian fleet, beats and disperses them, then lands his men in Carthage, and burns his own ships, to make his men resolutely desperate, takes and plunders a place called the Great City, and likewise Tunis, which he razed to the ground ; then advanced towards Carthage, and engaged Hanno and Bomilcar, kills Hanno and defeats Bomilcar	VII.	304
3987	2680	319	Æacides king of Epirus is deposed, by a decree of the state ; Pyrrhus his son, an infant, was conveyed to Glaucias king of Illyrium, by some Epirote lords, and by him brought up and protected against Cassander, who offered 200 talents for him. The Epirots enter into an alliance with Cassander, governor of Macedon, who sent Lyciscus his general to take the government in his name ; but the Epirots, being soon weary of the Macedonian yoke, recal their king again, who is slain in a battle with Philip, brother to Cassander	VII.	308
3988	2681	318	The Romans and Samnites engage ; the Romans by stratagem defeat and cut off almost all the Samnites, both horse and foot, and their general. Upon this the Samnites submit to the Romans, and order Erutulus Papius, the ringleader of the revolt, to be delivered up to the Romans. to avoid which he killed himself. For this eminent service the Romans honour the consuls with a triumph	IX.	542
3988	2681	318	A Cornelius is made dictator at Rome, to preside at the games, in the absence of the consul and sickness of the prætor	XII.	17
3988	2681	318	Cassander , son of Antipater, puts Nicanor in as governor of the garrison in Athens, who being opposed by Polyperchon, Cassander enters the port of Athens with a great fleet ; upon which the Athenians submit to have the garrison, and Cassander appoints Demetrius Phalereus, an Athenian, to be governor of the city ; which office he discharged so well, that the citizens set up 300 statues in honour of him in the several parts of the city and publick buildings	XII.	17
3988	2681	318	Antanarus , governor of Syracuse, sallies out upon Hamilcar suddenly, and routs his army of 120,000 men, which had long besieged Syracuse, and took Hamilcar prisoner, whom after torturing terribly, they cut off his head	VI.	371
3988	2681	318	Polyperchon and Olympias create Eumenes general in Asia, for the two kings ; but to avoid contention and take away sedition, he proposed all the commanders should be equal, and consult in common upon the publick business	VII.	309
3989	2682	317	Jerusalem being besieged by the Egyptians, through a superstitious fear of breaking the Sabbath-day, suffer the city to be	VIII.	378

Before Christ.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of world.
				taken by storm on that day, without resistance, and 100000 Jews are carried into Egypt captive, &c.	X. 69
3989	2682	317	Agathocles having greatly encreased his army, by a large addition of Cyrenians, calls himself king of Africa, and besieges Carthage, the conduct whereof he leaves to his son Archagathus, and returns into Sicily to quell and conquer the revolvers there, which he soon did, and most places acknowledged his sovereignty		VII. 311
3989	2682	317	The Romans refusing the Samnites peace, each side raise an army; the Samnites by stratagem bring the Romans into great distress, and oblige them to deliver up 600 Roman knights, as hostages for performing a very advantageous peace for the Samnites; then the consuls and soldiers pass under the yoke, man by man; and if any Roman but returned a fierce look, he was immediately knocked down or killed. This so dispirited the consuls and soldiers, that at their arrival at Rome, each man as it were banished himself, by shutting themselves up in their houses. The consuls name Q. Fabius Ambustus dictator, but some defect being found in his nomination, Æmilius Papus was substituted in his room; but the people being highly dissatisfied, an interregnum follows; and Papirius Cursor a second time, and Publius Philo a third time, are chose consuls, who refuse to perform the Samnian peace, &c.		XII. 23
3990	2683	316	Agathocles makes his escape from before Carthage, with a few friends. His two sons are murdered, and his army capitulate for themselves. Upon Agathocles 's return to Sicily, he reduces Egestæ, that had revolted in his absence, and put every person in it to the sword; and at Syracuse put all the relations of those he left in Africa to death; and even in Sicily, all that were related to the African army, from the great-grandfather to the sucking-child, were killed		VII. 312
3990	2683	316	Antigonus marching to Susa, and finding the castle held by Xenophilus, he left Seleucus with a corps of troops to besiege it, and marched to engage Eumenes; but having a part of his army cut off before his face, which had crossed the river, he retired and marched toward Media, but suffers greatly by the harassments of the Cossians, through whose country he chose to pass for the sake of nearness		VIII. 379
3990	2683	316	Eumenes and his army at Persepolis are all magnificently feasted by Peucestas; and to prevent any defection, contrives a letter to be wrote to Peucestas, as from Orontes governor of Armenia, acquainting him that the interests of the kings encreased every where, and that a great army of Macedonians were marching into Asia: This confirmed Eumenes in his authority		VIII. 380
3990	2683	316	Eumenes and Antigonus engage; Eumenes is conqueror, killing 8000 of Antigonus 's army, with the loss of only 1500 of his own men		VIII. 382
3990	2683	316	Aridæus (called Philip) joint king of Macedon, &c. is murdered by Olympias and Alexander Ægus, son of Alexander the Great bears the royal title alone		VIII. 397
3990	2683	316	Alcetas , brother of Æacides, succeeds his brother in the kingdom of Epirus, from whence after two battles with Lyciscus, general under Cassander, he is driven out, and the city of Eurymenas is taken, plundered and razed: After some time, peace being concluded with Cassander, Alcetas gets the government again		IX. 542

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3990	2683	316	Satricum revolts from the Romans, and joins the Samnites, who surprize Fregellæ, a Roman colony, where the women and children fight in their own defence; upon which the Samnites offer quarter to all those who submitted, which many do, but are burnt alive; a few only escaped, that with great desperation cut their way through the enemies troops	XII.	25
3990	2683	316	The Capuans endeavour to shake off the Roman yoke; C. Mænius is named dictator, with orders only to examine and punish crimes against the state, which so frightened the Capuans, that the chief conspirators killed themselves. Then all being quiet, Mænius lays down his dictatorship	XII.	26
3990	2683	316	Cornelius Lentulus is declared dictator, and leads his army against the Samnites; the Romans fall upon them with so much fury, that they rout them at the first onset, take and plunder the Samnian camp, and put all to the sword they meet with	XII.	27
3990	2683	316	Papirius , general of the horse to Lentulus, besieging Luceria , where the 600 Roman knights delivered as hostages were kept by the Samnites, Lentulus comes to his assistance; the Samnites keep themselves intrenched in their camp; the Romans force it, and put all they get hold of to the sword: The Lucerians distressed for food, offered to capitulate, and to release the 600 hostages; but Papirius insisted that all the soldiers should pass unarmed under the yoke, with Pontius their general at their head; all which was complied with	XII.	28
3991	2684	315	Q. Aulus Cerretanus , now consul a second time, defeats the Samnites in Apulia, and takes Ferentum. And Papirius, now a third time consul, reduced Satricum and put the Samnite garrison to the sword: The authors of the revolt were first whipped and then beheaded. At his return home he enters Rome in triumph	XII.	29
3991	2684	315	Agathocles engages Dinocrates , puts him to flight, and obtains a complete victory. The remains of Dinocrates's army capitulates; but no sooner was their arms laid down, but their throats were cut to a man	VII.	312
3991	2684	315	Eumenes is treacherously delivered to Antigonus , who after keeping him prisoner some time puts him to death. Likewise Pithon , governor of Media, deposes Peucestas governor of Persia, and takes 5000 talents out of the treasury of Susa, and 10,000 out of other places	VIII.	387
3992	2685	314	Many Samnite cities desire peace, but are only granted two years truce. Plautius the consul so frightened the cities of Teanum and Canusium , that they surrendered and gave hostages. The Capuans beg of the Romans to give them a governor, and new laws: Upon this Campania becomes a Roman præfecture. Two new tribes are added to the Roman state, being now made 31. A census being taken this year, 250,000 men fit to bear arms are found in Rome	XII.	30
3992	2685	314	The consuls reduce all Apulia to the obedience of Rome. Antium desires a Roman governor and laws, which is granted	XII.	31
3992	2685	314	Agathocles goes into Italy, and subdues the Brutii ; from thence goes to the Lipari islands, and compels the inhabitants to pay him 100 talents, and afterwards plunders and strips the temples, lading 11 ships with their gold and spoil, and returns to Syracuse ; but in his passage 10 of them are lost by shipwreck	VII.	31

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
3992	2685	314	Antigonus marches with a great army to Babylon, where he pretends to call Seleucus the governor to account; upon which Seleucus flies to Ptolemy in Egypt, raises a great army, engages Demetrius, Antigonus's son, defeats him at Gaza, and kills and takes abundance of his men. They then take Tyre, and recover Babylon, Media, and Susiana	VIII.	392
3993	2686	313	L. Æmilius being dictator, he besieges Saticula, a city of Campania. The Samnites their allies come with a numerous army to its relief; the dictator engages and defeats them; upon which they retire in the night, and leave their camp to the Romans	XII.	30
3993	2686	313	Cilles , Ptolemy's general, being negligent, Demetrius sets upon him, overthrew and took Cilles, and 7000 men prisoners, and conquers Syria, Phenicia, and Judea	VIII.	393
3994	2687	312	Q. Fabius Maximus being dictator, continues the siege of Saticula; the Samnites come again to relieve it: The two armies engage; the Samnites lose their general, and the Romans their general of horse; the Samnites are defeated, and Saticula capitulates. From thence he goes to besiege Sora, that had revolted and massacred a Roman colony, and in his way engages the Samnites, overthrows them, and takes and plunders their camp, and then forms the siege of Sora	XII.	32
3994	2687	312	The king of Egypt by great largesses, privileges, and immunities, prevails with abundance of Jews to come and reside at Alexandria in Egypt	X.	78
3995	2688	311	Sora is taken by stratagem, and abundance put to the sword. The consuls send 250 conspirators to Rome, where they are first whipped and then beheaded	XII.	33
3995	2688	311	The Aufones being accused of designing to revolt from Rome, the consular army takes Aufona, Minturnæ, and Vescia in one day, and put all to the sword; Luceria was also taken by assault, and all the defendants, whether inhabitants or Samnites, killed; and a colony of 2500 Romans put in it	XII.	34
3995	2688	311	Antigonus sends Athenæus his general to seize Petra, (a chief city of the Arabs) while the men were gone to a fair, from whence he carries away a prodigious booty, and 5000 talents in ready money. The Arabs being informed of it, pursue, surround, and cut off all Athenæus's army, and recover the booty, &c.	VIII.	393
3996	2689	310	The Campanians revolt, and C. Mænius the dictator goes against them, now joined by the Samnites; they engage, the Samnites are defeated, with the loss of 30,000 men, by the consul Sulpitius , for which he is honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome	XII.	34
3997	2690	309	A peace is concluded between Antigonus and Ptolemy, &c wherein it was agreed, that Cassander should hold Macedonia; Lyfimachus , Thrace; Ptolemy, Egypt; and Antigonus Asia; and that all the Greek cities should be free. Soon after this, Cassander puts the young king and his mother to death	VIII.	397
3997	2690	309	C. Pætilus Libo (surnamed Visolus) is chose dictator, and reduces Fregellæ, Nola, and the cities of Atina and Calatia, and keeps Bovinum blocked up	XII.	34
3998	2691	308	C. Sulpicius Longus is chose dictator, upon a report that all Hetruria would revolt; but they keeping quiet, the dictator did not think fit to meddle with them	XII.	35
3998	2691	308	Claudius Appius , the Roman censor, introduces into the fe-

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
				nate the sons of freed slaves, and slaves into the Potitii, or priests of Hercules, whose rites till now were only executed by noblemen, for which he was much hated. He made the famous aquæduct at Rome, seven miles long, which supplied Rome with constant fresh water; and the famous road from Rome to Capua, which lasted 800 years; the remains whereof are the admiration of all nations to this day
	3999	2692	307	Antigonus (one of Alexander's greatest captains) in opposition to Cassander, sends his son Demetrius with a great fleet to Athens, where he proclaims the city free, then takes the fortrefs of Munichia by storm, &c. for which the Athenians honour him and his father with the title of king, and pay them divine honours, and appoint them a priest, and call the year by the name of this priest, and put the figures of Antigonus and Demetrius his son among the gods, &c. adjudge Demetrius Phalereus (their former governor, who had deserved so well of them) to death, &c. order all his statues to be thrown down, and him to be way-laid and murdered, and democracy again restored	XII.	36
	3999	2692	307	Cleopatra , the sister of Alexander the Great, is put to death, by order of Antigonus governor of Asia, (now called king) for her endeavouring to make her escape from the confinement he had put her under	VI.	372
	3999	2692	307	Alcetas governing tyrannically and cruelly, the Epirots make a general insurrection, and murder both him and his two young sons, Hefioncas and Nifus; but Alexander and Teucer made their escape, upon which Glaucias king of Illyria sends Pyrrhus at the head of a great army, and sets him upon the throne	VIII.	397
	3999	2692	307	The new senators at Rome introduced by Appius last year are turned out, and the senate put upon its old footing: A law is likewise made, empowering the people to choose 16 legionary tribunes out of the 24; likewise two officers, called Duumviri Navales, are chose, to take care of sea affairs	IX.	544
	3999	2692	307	Æmilius Barbula , the Roman consul, goes against the Hetrurians, who had revolted; whom he engaged, and after a very obstinate fight the Hetrurians retire in the night, and leave Æmilius the field and their camp, for which he is honoured with a triumph. Brutus the other consul took from the Samnites first Clavia, and put all able to bear arms to the sword; then Bovianum was plundered by the soldiers, but the citizens lives are spared: The Samnites endeavoured to draw the Romans into an ambuscade, but the bravery and fury of the Romans cut their way through all difficulties, and killed 20,000 of them upon the spot, for which Brutus had also a triumph at his return to Rome	XII.	38
	4000	2693	306	Demetrius (son of Antigonus governor of Syria) makes a descent into Cyprus, takes Urania and Carpasia, engages Menelaus brother of Ptolemy (now king of Egypt) defeats him, kills 1000 of his men, and takes 3000, and besieges Salamis, defeats Ptolemy's fleet and army coming to relieve it, took 40 ships of war, and sunk 80, also 100 transports with 8000 soldiers on board; also the city, &c. Antigonus upon receipt of this news puts a crown of gold upon his own head, and assumes the title of king, and gave the same to his son, and they reign jointly; upon which the Egyptians also give, the title of king to	XII.	39

Y. of World.	Y. of Flood.	Before Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
			Ptolemy, and Lyfimachus and Seleucus do the fame in Thrace and Babylon; Caffander at Corinth received the title of king, but did not use it in his writing	VIII.	400
4000	2693	306	The Athenians make a law, that no philofopher fhould teach, unlefs licensed by the fenate and people; upon which Theophrastus the fucceffor of Aristotle fhut up his fchool. This law being foon found hurtful, was repealed, and the philofophers recalled, &c.	VI.	373
4000	2693	306	Fabius , now conful at Rome a fecond time, engages the He- trurians near Sutrium, totally overthrows them, takes 38 ftandards, their camp and all their baggage: The remains of them took refuge in the Ciminian foreft, whither he followed them, and got great advantages over them: But fome time after he again engages them near Sutrium, furprizes and defeats them, kills and takes 60,000, and feizes and plunders their camp: Upon this, three Lucu- monies immediately fend deputies to Rome, who obtain a fufpention of arms for 30 years	XII.	41
4000	2693	306	A Roman fleet (the firft they had ever fent out) under the command of P. Cornelius making a defcent beyond cape Palinurus, fuffering his troops to go too far up the country, had his retreat cut off; feveral of the Romans being flain, were forced to quit their booty, and were driven to their fhips. Upon this the Samnites engage the conful Marcius; the battle was extremely obftinate and doubtful, abun- dance of Roman knights and feveral legionary tribunes were killed, and a lieutenant-general, and the conful much wounded. Upon this Papirius is made dictator, goes with an army to the affiftance of Marcius, engages the Samnites, intirely overthrows them, takes and burns their camp, and upon his return to Rome has a triumph	XII.	44
4001	2694	305	Caffander (now king of Macedon) befieges Athens; Deme- trius (joint king of Syria) relieves it, and beftows feveral cities that he recovered from Caffander upon them, for which they honour him with lodgings behind the temple of Minerva, and thereby prostitute the virgins devoted to her fervice to his luft	VI.	373
4001	2694	305	Damocles , the moft beautiful youth in all Greece, jumps into a very large cauldron of boiling water, and was drown- ed, to avoid the unnatural luft of Demetrius	VI.	373
4001	2694	305	The Roman conful Q. Fabius takes Nuceria, a city in al- liance with the Samnites, and defeats them in a battle; and Decius Mus, the other confu, gained fuch advan- tages over the Hetrurians, that they all offered to be al- lies; but he only grants them a truce for a year, upon the condition of paying his troops, and finding every foldier with two fuits of cloaths	XII.	45
4001	2694	305	The Umbrians arm all their youth, with a defign to march directly to Rome; Decius marches into the Pupinian field between Umbria and Rome, and Fabius marches and encamps near Mevania, a city on the banks of the Clitumnus in the heart of Umbria, where he fubdued them without fcarce drawing blood, making their whole army prifoners; upon which the reft of the nation fub- mitted	XII.	45
4002	2695	304	The time of Fabius's confulate being expired, he is ap- pointed proconful, and fo continued general of the ar- my. He engages the Samnites at Allifæ on the banks of the Vulturnus, and gains fo compleat a victory, that to fave their lives and have the liberty of going home,

Y. of world	Y. of Rood	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			they passed under the yoke with only one garment on: Their allies, to the number of 7000, were made slaves and sold by auction, &c.	XII.	46
4002	2695	304	Antigonus (now king of Syria) besieges Rhodes by his son Demetrius, for its attachment to Ptolemy king of Egypt; but after a year's time, and the loss of abundance of ships and men, is forced to raise the siege and make peace; upon which the Rhodians dedicate a grove to Ptolemy king of Egypt, where they offer him divine honours, and call it Ptoleum, and him Soter, (or saviour) for the great assistance and relief he gave them during the siege	VII.	426
4002	2695	304	Antigonus and Demetrius (now kings of Syria in Asia) invade Egypt by land and sea with a great fleet and army, but are forced to retire with great loss and shame	VIII.	404
4003	2696	303	Marcus the Roman consul, in a few days, took three different camps from the Hernici, and obliged them to surrender at discretion	XII.	47
4003	2696	303	Marcus and P. Cornelius Arvina, the two Roman consuls, engage and defeat the Samnites, and kill 30,000 of them, take and burn their camp; and while this is doing a fresh body of recruits arrives, which are also dispersed with great slaughter: Upon this they sue for peace; the consuls first oblige them to pay the soldiers of both armies one year, to furnish 13 months provisions, and give each soldier one habit, and then referred them to the senate at Rome	XII.	47
4003	2696	303	Demetrius and the Rhodians conclude a peace	VII.	427
4003	2696	303	Demetrius sails for Attica with 330 galleys and a great army against Cassander, whom he overthrew, and has 6000 Macedonians revolt to him; elated with success, Demetrius grows proud, lives voluptuously, and very wickedly, and will be called a god	VIII.	405
4003	2696	303	Demetrius is admitted into the fraternity of the priests of Ceres, for which purpose the Athenians change the month of March first into the month of November, and then into August	VI.	374
4004	2697	302	The cities of Alatrium, Ferentinum, and Verulum, belonging to the Hernici, which had remained faithful to Rome, had the liberty either to remain under their own laws (which they chose) or have the rights of Roman citizens: The other cities were governed by the laws of Rome, and the people declared Roman citizens, but with right of suffrage	XII.	48
4004	2697	302	Deputies come to Rome from Carthage, with a compliment and presents, which the Romans accept, and return others	XII.	48
4004	2697	302	The Romans engage the Samnites, and overthrow them with a dreadful slaughter, and took one and twenty ensigns. Soon after they engage again, where the battle being very bloody and obstinate, the Roman consul Minucius was killed, and Statius Gellius the Samnite general was taken; but the Romans got the day, and took twenty-six ensigns from the enemy. Fulvius Curvus being made consul in the room of Minucius, takes Bovianum and other cities, and has a triumph	XII.	49
4004	2697	302	Cassander , Lyfimachus, Seleucus, Ptolemy, &c. confederate themselves against Antigonus, &c. and take several provinces from him in Asia	VIII.	405
4004	2697	302	Pyrrhus , king of Epirus, goes to Illyria, to be present at the nuptials of one of Glaucias's sons, when the Molossians revolt, drive all his friends out of the kingdom, and crown Neoptolemus his great uncle; upon which Pyrrhus retired to Demetrius joint king of Syria	IX.	545

[ci]				Vol.	Page
World.	Y. of Rood	Y. of Christ.	Before
4005	2698	301	Onias the high-priest and governor of the Jews dies, and is succeeded by his son Simon, who for his extraordinary virtues was surnamed the Just	X.	80
4005	2698	301	Antigonus and Demetrius are so puffed up with pride, that all the successors of Alexander confederate against them, and drive them out of Greece into Asia, where Antigonus in one battle lost both his life and kingdom
4005	2698	301	Demetrius after his defeat in Asia, sailing from Ephesus towards Athens with a small squadron of ships, is met by ambassadors from the Athenians in the Cycladian islands, acquainting him, that, for all his extraordinary services, they had just made a law that prohibited all crown'd heads entering their city; upon which he only desired his ships and queen Deidamia, which he had left with them, should be delivered to him; which they comply'd with, and he sailed to Chersonesus	VI.	374
4005	2698	301	Lacharis, an obscure citizen, seizes the sovereignty of Athens, and forces them to submit	VI.	375
4005	2698	301	Antigonus engages Seleucus king of Babylon, &c. at Ipsus, a town and river so called in Asia, where Antigonus is killed, his army cut to pieces, and his kingdom lost, which was divided among the confederate princes, his son Demetrius retaining little more than the title	VIII.	408
4005	2698	301	The Samnites desire to be admitted into their antient alliance with Rome, which the senate agrees to conditionally	XII.	49
4005	2698	301	The Equi having revolted, the Romans under their consuls go against them; but they retire into their city, which being invested, the consuls over-run all their country, and in 55 days become masters of 41 towns, most of which they razed or burnt, and so almost exterminated the whole nation. The consuls had a triumph, and the Marfi, Pelligni, Frentani, and Marrucini demand an alliance with Rome, which is granted	XII.	49
4006	2699	300	Seleucus king of Babylon builds the famous city of Antioch, upon the river Orontes, equally distant from Constantinople and Alexandria in Egypt	VIII.	563
4006	2699	300	Seleucus king of Babylon demands Stratonice, the daughter of Demetrius, in marriage; upon which he fits out a fleet to convoy her to him, and in his passage seized and took away 200 talents at Quinda, then went to Rossus, where Seleucus and Stratonice were espoused	VIII.	409
4008	2701	298	The art of painting was introduced this year at Rome, by C. Fabius, afterward consul, who painted the wall of a new temple dedicated to the goddess of health; from whence he was surnamed Pictor	XII.	50
4008	2701	298	Pyrrhus king of Epirus, being at the court of Ptolemy king of Egypt an hostage for Demetrius, so far ingratiates himself into his and his queen Berenice's favours, as to marry her daughter by a former husband; upon which he is furnished with troops, und recovers his kingdom	IX.	545
4009	2702	297	Rome had no consuls this year, but was governed by two dictators created successively, viz, Q. Fabius and Valerius Corvus. Fabius marched against the Marfi, who had revolted, and reduced them to obedience in one single battle; and Valerius against the Hetrutrians, who had beat Sempronius Sophus his general of the horse, and taken some standards, but are so mauled by Valerius, that they sue for peace, but can only obtain a truce for two years	XII.	50
4010	2703	296	Consuls chose at Rome this year, where great contests are agitated about choosing pontifices and augurs, but at last

World.	V. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				'twas agreed, four new pontifices should be chose out of the plebeians, to make their number eight, and five new augurs to encrease their number to nine	XII.	51
4011	2704	295		The consul Fulvius goes to carry on the siege of Nequinum, built on the edge of a steep rock, almost surrounded by the river Nar, and deemed almost impregnable, but by the treachery of the Nequinians the consul took it by surprize: The name of this city was changed into Narina. For this exploit the consul had a triumph	XII.	52
4011	2704	295		The consul Manlius being killed by a fall from his horse, Valerius Corvus was a sixth time made consul, who goes against the revolted Hetrurians, who fly to their cities, while he ravages their country, not daring to meet him in the field	XII.	53
4011	2704	295		Demetrius besieges Athens, and forces them through famine to surrender at discretion, when entering with his forces commands all the Athenians to be assembled in the publick theatre, which surrounding with his army, when they expected to be put all to the sword, Demetrius, after upbraiding them with their ingratitude, gave them 100,000 bushels of corn, and named magistrates agreeable to them	VI.	375
4012	2705	294		Upon the death of Cassander king of Macedon, his two sons Antipater and Alexander get the kingdom between them	VIII.	410
4012	2705	294		Alexander king of (part of) Macedon, endeavours to murder Demetrius, but falls into the snare himself, who is dispatched by Demetrius, who succeeds him in the whole kingdom of Macedon, his brother Antipater being deposed by the people	VIII.	411
4012	2705	294		Antipater and Alexander, two of Cassander's sons, contesting for the whole crown of Macedon, Pyrrhus king of Epirus comes to the assistance of Alexander, and has a great part of the country and abundance of money for his reward	VIII.	458
4012	2705	294		Demetrius king of Macedon besieges and makes Thebes surrender at discretion, after a very obstinate resistance. He only punishes 13 of the principal revoltors	VIII.	461
4012	2705	294		The Hetrurians and Samnites having revolted from Rome, were both overthrown by Fulvius the plebeian consul, for which he had a triumph	XII.	54
4013	2706	293		Mænon having dipped a tooth picker that Agathocles cleaned his teeth with after meals into poison, his teeth and gums putrified, and his whole body was tortured with most rack-ing pains, in the heighth of which he was hurried away to the funeral pile, and burnt while he was yet alive; and Mænon usurped the supreme authority, under the name of Prætor of Syracuse	VIII.	315
4013	2706	293		The consul Fabius by stratagem beats the Samnites; they fly, and he takes 23 standards; and Decius, the other consul, gains a considerable victory over the Apuleians, as they were marching to join the Samnites; then both consuls laid Samnium waste; Fabius took the city of Cimetra, and razed it, and put all that bore arms to the sword	XII.	5
4013	2706	293		Seleucus king of Macedon builds 16 cities in Lesser Asia, in which large colonies of the Jews settled, with great privileges, especially at Antioch	X.	7
4014	2707	292		The Mamertini being disbanded the service of Syracuse, are received into the city of Messana: After a small time they unexpectedly fall upon the inhabitants, killed all the men, and married the women, and not only defended themselves, but reduced the neighbouring country to their obedience	VII.	3

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.	Before			Vol.	Page.
4014	2707	292		Decius being proconsul, so harrassed the Samnites army, that he made them disband, and retire into the neighbouring countries: Then he took Murgantia, where he made 1110 prisoners: In Romulea he put 2,300 to death, and took 6000 prisoners; and at Ferentinum 3000 that defended it desperately were killed on the ramparts	XII.	57
4014	2707	292		The two consuls engage the revolted Hetrurians, and overthrow them with great slaughter, the enemy leaving 7,300 dead in the field; their camp was taken and plundered, and 2000 taken prisoners; and as Volumnius was returning into Samnium, he surprized the Samnites as they were ravaging Campania, engages them, slew 6000, and retook all the spoil they had taken	XII.	59
4015	2708	291		Decius the consul seeing the enemy very numerous and bold, devoted himself to the Dii Manes , as his father had done before, and riding into the midst of the enemies troops was there cut to pieces: Upon this the pontifex Livius cries out, We have conquered, &c. and renews the battle with great fury, and at last obtained a compleat victory, killing 25,000, and taking 8,000, &c. for which the consul Fabius had a triumph	XII.	63
4015	2708	291		Fabius returns again into Hetruria, attacks them, killed 4500 upon the spot, and took 1740 prisoners: This quelled them a while	XII.	63
4015	2708	291		The Samnites still remained very troublesome, so that the proconsul Volumnius and the prætor Appius having engaged them, kill 16,300	XII.	64
4016	2709	290		The Samnites retire upon Posthumius the consul's coming to his colleague Attilius 's assistance, upon which the Romans pillage and lay waste the whole country, and take Milionia by assault, and kill 3200 Samnites upon the ramparts, and make 4200 prisoners; then they take Triventum without striking a blow, the inhabitants having deserted it. A few days after, Attilius again engages the Samnites, and after losing 7300 Romans, overthrows them, kills 4800, and takes 7000 prisoners, which he made pass under the yoke: Afterwards in his return to Rome, he falls upon another body of Samnites, that had been ravaging the Volsci , cuts them to pieces, recovers the booty, and releases many Roman prisoners, whom they had taken	XII.	67
4016	2709	290		Posthumius marches into Hetruria without orders from the senate, took Russellæ , and obliged the three Lucumonies of Volfinii , Perrusia , and Arretium to sue for peace. The senate refuses him a triumph, but the people give him one in spite of all opposition	XII.	67
4017	2710	289		The Samnites make a law, that all persons capable of bearing arms that did not appear at Aquilonia (a city of Hirpinia) upon the first summons of the general of their nation, should be put to death immediately: 40,000 were assembled, out of which 16,000 bound themselves by a solemn oath to do extraordinary matters under a linen canopy, and were therefore called the linen legion, &c. The Roman consul Corvilius enters Samnium, takes Amiternum , (a city in Sabinia) cuts 2800 men to pieces, and takes 4270 prisoners. Papirius , the other consul, takes Furconia , and both lay the country waste where-ever they come. Papirius engages the Samnites, kills 12,000, and disperses the rest. Corvilius obliged Cominium to surrender at discretion, in which remained 15,400 persons after 4,380 had been killed in its defence. Afterwards to complete the utter de-

Before
Christ.
Y. of Aeod.
Y. of
world.

struction of the Samnites, Corvilius took Volana, Palumbinum, and Herculaneum; and Papirius took Sepinum, deemed impregnable. Corvilius returns to Rome, which he enters in triumph

4017 2710 289 The Hetrurians being again in arms, Corvilius goes against them, takes Trossulum by assault, forces the Falisci to sue for peace, but grants them only a year's truce, for which they pay 390,000 asses of brass, and then returns to Rome, whither also Papirius was come from Samnium, and has a triumph, graced by the spoils of the linen legion

4018 2711 288 Pyrrhus and Lyfimachus divide the kingdom of Macedon between them, by consent, to avoid a war

4018 2711 288 A plague raging in Rome, and two consuls not well qualified for military affairs being chose governors this year, encourage the Falisci to break their truce, and the remaining Samnites to take arms, and enter Campania: The consul Brutus over-run Hetruria, defeated the Falisci, and returned to Rome loaded with spoils: But the other consul Fabius attacking the Samnites, is defeated, has 3000 of his men killed on the spot, and has more wounded, who died soon after. Upon this, Fabius the father of the consul goes with his son, and again engages and kills 20,000 Samnites upon the spot, and takes their general Pontius, and 4000 prisoners

4018 2711 288 Demetrius preparing to recover his kingdom of Syria, is attacked by Seleucus, Lyfimachus, Ptolemy, and Pyrrhus; Demetrius is forced by his own army to fly to Cassandria, and so abdicate Macedon: Upon this his wife Phylla poisoned herself

4019 2712 287 Demetrius goes to Thebes, raises an army, assumes the regal authority, and restores democracy. The Athenians insulting him, he besieges Athens, and reduces them to the necessity of begging his pardon, &c.

4019 2712 287 Pyrrhus wars against Demetrius, and takes Athens, &c. from him, uses the inhabitants extremely well, and sacrifices in their city with them, &c.

4019 2712 287 Pyrrhus drives Demetrius out of Macedon, and becomes king thereof, but is forced to admit Lyfimachus a partner with him in that kingdom

4019 2712 287 The Sibylline books having been consulted upon account of the plague, the answer was, that the God Æsculapius must be fetched from Epidaurus in Peloponnesus, where he was worshipped under the figure of a serpent, which being done, the plague is said to cease

4019 2712 287 Posthumius the Roman consul despises the commands of the senate, and forces himself into the siege of Cominium, which Fabius, for the publick good, submits to; it is taken, and also Venusium, Lucania, and Samnium. Young Fabius is allowed a triumph, but Posthumius is refused, &c.

4020 2713 286 Demetrius going into Asia, marries Ptolemaida at Sardis; many of Lyfimachus's forces revolt to him, and bring a large sum of money with them: He takes the city, &c. but a plague breaking out sweeps away most of his army, and he is relieved by Seleucus, &c.

4020 2713 286 Seleucus being influenced by his minister Patrocles, not only withdraws his kindness from Demetrius, but actually endeavours to take him by force, and by various successes at last compels Demetrius to surrender at discretion

4020 2713 286 Posthumius's consulship being out, he is brought to a trial before the Comitia, by tribes, and accused of employing part of his troops in grubbing up a forest in his own estate, for which he is condemned to pay a considerable fine	XII.	76

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4021	2714	285	Lyfimachus drives Pyrrhus out of Macedon, and reigns king there alone	VIII.	465
4021	2714	285	The Romans having ravaged the country, and taken the city of the Samnites, obliges them to sue for peace, which being granted, put an end to a war that had lasted 49 years. The consul Manius Curius Denatus returned to Rome in triumph	XII.	77
4021	2714	285	The consul Curius goes against the Sabines, who had joined the Samnites, reduces them intirely, and returns to Rome, where he has a second triumph	XII.	77
4022	2715	284	The Romans send colonies into Adria , a maritime town that gave name to the Adriatick sea, to Castrum in Picenum , and to Seno at the mouth of the Sene	XII.	78
4022	2715	284	Mænon the Syracusan governor going against the Agrigentines , who had revolted, as soon as he was out of the city of Syracuse , one Tænon possessed himself of the sovereign power, in which he was opposed by one Sofistrates , between whom a civil war was raised and carried on	VIII.	315
4022	2715	284	Three new judges, called Triumviri Capiales , were added to the Roman prætor, who had only the power of inflicting pecuniary fines, as likewise the care of the prisons where the greatest criminals were, and the direction of their execution; they were chosen annually in the Comitia by tribes, and from their sentence lay no appeal. This year a census being made, the number of Roman citizens fit to bear arms was found to be 273,000	XII.	78
4022	2715	284	Ptolemy , being by his father admitted joint king of Egypt, was surnamed Philadelphus by many favours bestowed upon the Jews in general, and great largesses to the priests and learned men in particular, obtained from them the Greek version of the Old Testament called the Septuagint	X.	82
4022	2715	284	The famous watch-tower in the island of Pharos , esteemed one of the wonders of the world, is now finished	IX.	180
4022	2715	284	Demetrius being the prisoner of Seleucus in the Syrian Cherfonesus , dies, upon which Seleucus makes one empire of all Demetrius held in Syria and Asia	VIII.	573
4023	2716	283	The statue of Serapis is brought from Sinope (a city of Pontus) to Alexandria , and set up in a magnificent temple built on purpose	IX.	183
4023	2716	283	A great dispute and commotion happens at Rome about repealing the debtors law, which causes all the common people to leave the city; whereupon Q. Hortensius is named dictator to compose their differences, but dying before the matter was compleated, Q. Fabius Maximus was raised to that dignity, who settled all things to the peoples intire satisfaction, and laid the foundation of Rome's future greatness	XII.	80
4023	2716	283	Demetrius being dead in captivity, his ashes are carried into Greece, where being put into a golden urn by his son Antigonus , all the honours of royalty were paid to them	VIII.	420
4023	2716	283	Simon , the just high-priest of the Jews, dies, in the 9th year of his pontificate, much regretted by all for his repairing and fortifying the temple and city, and finishing the canon of the Old Testament: He was succeeded by his brother Eleazer in the priesthood, and in the civil government by Antigonus of Socho , the chief of the Sadducean sect	X.	81
4024	2717	282	Ptolemy Soter , joint king of Egypt, dies, (and leaves his son surnamed Philadelphus absolute king) after having reigned

39 years alone, and two years in partnership, being 84 years of age

- 4024 2717 282 The Tarentines, originally a colony of Spartans that settled in the south part of Italy, stir up the Boii, Senones, and Hetrurians, against Rome; the Senones go against the Aretini, the allies of Rome, upon which the Romans send ambassadors to dissuade them from their enterprize; but they murder them, and immediately march their troops before Aretium; the consul Lucius Cæcilius engages them, is killed in the battle, and seven legionary tribunes, most of the Roman knights, and 13,000 private men: The senate immediately sends the famous Curius Dentatus against them, who goes into the country of the Senones, where he plundered and burnt their houses, put all able to bear arms to the sword, and carried the women and children away captive, and so rendered the whole country quite desolate
- 4024 2717 282 Lyfimachus engages Seleucus at Corupedion in Phrygia, where himself and children are slain, and Seleucus becomes king of Macedon, &c.
- 4025 2718 281 The Romans, under the consul Cn. Domitius Calvinus, meet and engage the Senones in their march towards Rome, and entirely overthrew them, so that only a few escaped into the country of the Boii, who together with the Hetrurians raised another large army, whom the other consul P. Cornelius Dolabella meets in their march towards Rome, engages them on the bank of the lake Vademonis, now Il Lago di Bassano, kills most of the Hetrurians and Boii, and almost entirely takes away the very name of the Senones as a nation
- 4025 2718 281 Several states of Italy having confederated together against Rome, the consul C. Fabricius goes into Lucania, and engages them, kills their general Statilius, and 25,000 soldiers, and makes himself master of their camp, for which the Romans return the god Mars publick thanks, &c.
- 4025 2718 281 The Tarentines fall upon Valerius the Roman admiral and his fleet, now at the mouth of their harbour, with ten ships, sunk one and took four, all the prisoners fit to bear arms they put to the sword, and sold the others for slaves. The Romans send to demand satisfaction, but the ambassadors are treated with the utmost contempt and disrespect, and then besiege and take Thurium, defended by a Roman garrison, and send and invite Pyrrhus king of Epirus to assist them
- 4026 2719 280 Antiochus (surnamed Soter) succeeds his father Seleucus in his kingdom of Assyria, and reigned 19 years
- 4026 2719 280 Ptolemy Ceraunus stabs Seleucus, and flying to Lyfimachia, raises a company, and proclaims himself king of Macedon, &c.
- 4026 2719 280 Ptolemy Ceraunus applies to his sister Arfinoe, (widow of Lyfimachus, who was fled to the strong castle in the rich city of Cassandria) promises her marriage, to adopt her children, and make her the partner of his kingdom. She accepts the offer, puts Cassandria into his possession, and the day he celebrated the nuptials he murders her children, and turns her out, with only two servants, to lead a solitary life in Samo-Thrace, from whence she went into Egypt, where she married her other brother, Ptolemy Philadelphus
- 4026 2719 280 The Boii being defeated by the Romans, are forced to sue for peace

XII.

VIII.

XII.

XII.

XII.

VIII.

VIII.

VIII.

XII.

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4026	2719	280	The Achæans having rendered themselves famous for their regularity, justice, and impartial behaviour, induced most of the Greek cities to join their democracy, and first Patra and Dyma shewed the example - - -	VI.	554
4026	2719	280	The inhabitants of Patra and Dyma begin the Achæan league	VI.	553
4026	2719	280	Lyfimachus king of Thrace, and Seleucus king of Macedon, &c. engage, and after a long and bloody battle, Lyfimachus is killed at the head of his troops - - -	VIII.	573
4026	2719	280	Seleucus is murdered by Ptolemy Ceraunus , whom the soldiers proclaim king of Macedon, and Antiochus Soter , son of Seleucus , enjoys his empire of Asia 19 years - - -	VIII.	579
4026	2719	280	The Romans, under the consul L. Æmilius Barbula , take cities, storm castles, and lay the country of Tarentum waste, force their army out of the field to shelter themselves within the walls of their city, &c. The Tarentines admit Cyneus , general of Pyrrhus king of Epirus, with 3000 Epirots into their citadel, and depose their governor Agis for his supposed attachment to Rome - - -	XII.	87
4027	2720	279	Nicomedes succeeds his father Zipætes in the kingdom of Bithynia, and puts two of his brothers to death; Zipætes the younger brother flies, and seizing part of the kingdom, wars with his brother, who calls in the Gauls, and by their assistance gets the whole kingdom, and bestows part of Asia Minor upon them, as a reward for their help: This part of the country was afterward called Galatia, and the inhabitants Galatians - - -	VIII.	579
4027	2720	279	Ptolemy Ceraunus , king of Macedon and Syria, engages the Gauls under the command of Belgius , is taken prisoner, and has his head cut off, &c. - - -	VIII.	468
4027	2720	279	The Macedonians chose Meleager , the brother of Ptolemy , king; but finding him unfit for government, after two months, depose him, and choose Antipater the son of Philip , the brother of Cassander , who held it only 45 days	VIII.	469
4027	2720	279	Patrocles , general of Antiochus Soter king of Syria, entering into the country of the Bithynians, and committing great hostilities, is engaged by Zipætes , who drew him into an ambush, and cut off both himself and his whole army, for joy whereof Zipætes , being 76 years old, died in a transport, in the 41st year of his reign - - -	VIII.	432
4027	2720	279	Q. Marcius Philippus the Roman consul has a triumph, for vanquishing the Hetrurians; and Pyrrhus king of Epirus comes to Tarentum, where he is received with great joy: He sets himself to reform the Tarentines, and inure them to the use of arms, and proclaims those guilty of death, who either abandoned their country or absented from the common musters - - -	XII.	88
4027	2720	279	The Proletarii, or meanest of the people, who till now had never been enlisted in the Roman army, nor suffered to bear arms, were inrolled in the army along with the other Roman people - - -	XII.	88
4027	2720	279	The Roman consul P. Valerius Lævinus ravaging the Lucanians, &c. is engaged by Pyrrhus , and after a stubborn fight the Romans are forced to quit the field, with the slaughter of many thousands on both sides, and 1800 Roman knights taken prisoners. Then Pyrrhus plunders and ravages the Roman territories, and possesses himself of Campania	IX.	557
4027	2720	279	Pyrrhus surprizes Fregellæ , sits down before Prænestæ , and views Rome; but Coruncanius the other consul returning victorious over the Hetrurians, Pyrrhus returns into Campania, where he is met by Lævinus , who being recruited,

World.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Before Christ.			Vol.	Page.
			again offers to engage him, but he declines it, and retires to Tarentum		IX.	557
4027	2720	279	Ptolemy Philadelphus , king of Egypt, repudiates his wife Arsinoe, for a conspiracy, and marries his half sister Arsinoe, though past child bearing		IX.	194
4028	2721	278	Sosthenes , a young Macedonian nobleman, assembles a body of able youths, and disciplines them, and by degrees drives away the Gauls. He refused the royal honours, contenting himself with the name of general		VIII.	469
4028	2721	278	The Romans and Pyrrhus , &c. engage near Asculum, where the Roman consul Decius Mus is killed, but at length the Romans got the day, and both armies parting, they go into winter quarters		IX.	562
4029	2722	277	Nicius , physician to Pyrrhus king of Epirus, writes a letter to the Roman consuls C. Fabricius and Q. Æmilius Papus , wherein for a large reward he offers to poison the king; they abhorring the action, inform the king of it, without naming the person		IX.	564
4030	2723	276	Brennus king of the Gauls comes into Macedonia, with 140,000 foot and 10,000 horse, against whom Sosthenes makes a vigorous defence, but is at last killed, and most of his army, and then Brennus gluts himself and army with spoil		VIII.	469
4031	2724	275	The inhabitants of Eginum having driven out the Macedonian garrison, acceded to the Achæan alliance; and the inhabitants of Bura did the same, and also the Ceraunians		VI.	553
4033	2726	273	The Romans under their consul Curius Dentatus engage Pyrrhus , and finally overthrow him, killing 30,000 upon the spot, and take 1200 prisoners and eight elephants, the camp and all the baggage, &c. for which the consul has the most magnificent triumph that had ever yet been seen		IX.	567
4033	2726	273	The consul Lentulus having entirely defeated the Samnites, &c. was also honoured with a triumph, and the year ended with a census and lustrum, when 271,224 citizens were found in Rome fit to bear arms		XII.	90
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus returning to Epirus from Italy, recruits his army, and engages Antigonus Gonatus , king of Macedon, overcomes and takes all Macedonia from him, particularly Æge , the royal seat of the late kings of Macedon, where he is again proclaimed king, and uses the people with great severity: The garrison of Gauls which he left in it broke open the tombs of the kings, take out the riches buried with them, and scatter their bones about the streets, which gave great offence		IX.	569
4034	2727	272	Ptolemy Philadelphus sends ambassadors for the first time to Rome, to conclude an alliance with that republick. The Romans return the compliment, and send four ambassadors to Ptolemy , and conclude an alliance		IX.	195
4034	2727	272	Ptolemy , son of Pyrrhus , reigns in Macedon as vicegerent of his father; Antigonus Gonatus attacks him, but is entirely routed, flying only with seven attendants		VIII.	472
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus warring against the Lacedæmonians, has the rear of his army cut off by Areus king of Sparta, together with his son Ptolemy , &c.		IX.	579
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus , contrary to his word, having entered Argos with his army, an engagement ensues, wherein Pyrrhus was killed, and so Antigonus recovered the kingdom of Macedon again		VIII.	473
4034	2727	272	Upon the death of Pyrrhus , Milo the Epirot general surrenders the citadel of Tarentum into the hands of Papyrius

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				Cirso, the Roman consul, and the inhabitants also sur- render themselves - - -	IX.	570
4034	2727	272		Alexander , the son of Pyrrhus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Epirus, invades Macedon, and engaging An- tigonus, defeats him, and takes away his kingdom from him; upon which Antigonus is forced to fly into Greece for shelter - - -	IX.	576
4035	2728	271		Demetrius , son of Antigonus, raises an army, engages Alex- ander king of Epirus, and not only drives him out of Ma- cedon, but also out of Epirus, and forces him to fly to the Acarnanians, from whence coming with a large army into Epirus, Demetrius retires into Macedon -	IX.	577
4036	2729	270		Alexander reigned several years in peace, and is succeeded by his son Ptolemy, and grandson Pyrrhus, who both died young, and also by his great grand-daughter Deidamia, who being murdered, the kingdom became a republick, &c. - - -	XI.	578
4036	2729	270		Claudius Carina , the Roman consul, defeats the Samnites, &c. and has a triumph given him at his return to Rome	XII.	90
4037	2730	269		Antigonus Gonatus , king of Macedon, first wastes the terri- tories of the Athenians, and then besieges and takes A- thens, and makes them accept a Macedonian garrison, &c.	VI.	377
4039	2732	267		News coming to Samnium, &c. of the death of Pyrrhus king of Epirus, the Samnites, Lucanians, and Brutians, in de- spair engage L. Papirius Curfor and Sp. Corvilius (surnamed Maximus) the two Roman consuls, and their armies, and are totally overthrown and subdued: Thus ended this bloody war, which had lasted 72 years, and produced the Roman generals 31 triumphs - - -	XII.	91
4039	2732	267		Milo the Epirot general surrenders Tarentum to the consul Papirius, who disarmed all the inhabitants, took their ships from them, dismantled the city, and made it tri- butary to Rome - - -	XII.	92
4040	2733	266		The Roman consul L. Genucius Clepsina goes against the Roman garrison at Rhegium, where they had, under false pretences, massacred all the chief men of the city at a ban- quet, and either put the rest to the sword, or else forced them to fly the city; and obliged the women to marry the murderers of their husbands and fathers: The rebels stood out vigorously, till their number from 4000 was re- duced to 300, who were brought prisoners to Rome, and put to death by fifties - - -	XII.	93
4041	2734	265		Acrotatus king of Sparta engages Aristodemus prince of Me- galopolis, is slain, and his army routed: His young son Aræus succeeds him in his kingdom, who dies in the 8th year of his reign, under the government of Leonidas	VI.	519
4041	2734	265		C. Genucius being consul, lead the Romans against the Sar- cinates, (a people of Umbria) whom he conquered, and had a triumph - - -	XII.	93
4042	2735	264		The consuls Q. Ogulnius Gallus and C. Fabius Pictor, go against one Lollius, a Samnite hostage who had made his escape from Rome, and being joined by the Ca- racini, laid the country under contribution; but at last, after an obstinate struggle, they take the city of the Ca- racini, &c. - - -	XII.	93
4042	2735	264		The Romans for the first time coin silver money, in the temple of Juno Moneta, for the use of commerce, which heretofore were only pieces of brass, with the figures of a bull, a ram, and a boar stamped on them -	XII.	94
4043	2736	263		Margas , half brother to Ptolemy king of Egypt, being go-

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.			Vol.	Page.
			vernor of Libya and Cyrene, revolts and makes himself king in those provinces	- - -	IX.	197
4043	2736	263	Antigonus Gonatus king of Macedon besieges and takes Athens, through the misunderstanding between the Spartans and Egyptians that come to its relief	- - -	IX.	196
4043	2736	263	Patroclus the Egyptian general orders the poet Sotades to be wrapped up in a sheet of lead, and cast into the sea, for writing invectives against his master Ptolemy Philadelphus	- - -	IX.	197
4043	2736	263	The consul Appius with his Roman legions entering the country of the Umbrians, made himself master of the city of Camerinum, the people whereof, contrary to his agreement, he sold for slaves, and put the money into the publick treasury, and seized their lands; but the senate caused the people to be sought out, gave them the privileges of Roman citizens, granted them part of Mount Aventine for an habitation, and allotted each man as much land as they lost in Umbria	- - -	XII.	94
4043	2736	263	The Roman consul Sempronius Sophus takes Asculum, the capital of Picenum, and the whole nation of the Picentes gave themselves up to Rome; this added to the strength of Rome 360,000 men fit to bear arms	- - -	XII.	94
4043	2736	263	The Romans to secure their conquests send two colonies of their own people, one into Ariminum in the country of the Picentes, the other into Beneventum among the Samnites	- - -	XII.	95
4043	2736	263	The Sabines are this year admitted to the right of suffrage, and made entirely Romans, enjoying before only the right of incorporation into the Roman army, instead of serving as auxiliaries	- - -	XII.	95
4043	2736	263	Antiochus king of Syria engaging and entirely overthrowing the Gauls that were settled in Asia, by Nicomedes king of Bithynia, thereby delivered the neighbouring provinces from their frequent incursions; for which he is surnamed Soter, or the Saviour	- - -	VIII.	583
4044	2737	262	Antiochus Soter , upon the death of Philæterus prince of Pergamus, invades his dominions, designing to add them to his own; but Eumenes, nephew and successor to the deceased, engages and overthrows him, and not only settles himself in his own country, but adds several provinces to it	- - -	VIII.	584
4045	2738	261	The consuls, Numerius Fabius and D. Junius Pera, completed the conquest of the Salentines and Sarcinates, and were each honoured with two triumphs at their return to Rome, for conquest of two nations which made Rome mistress of all the countries in Italy, from the remotest part of Hetruria to the Ionian sea, and from the Tyrrhenian sea to the Adriatick	- - -	XII.	95
4045	2738	261	Apollonia , a city in Macedon, sends ambassadors to Rome to desire her protection: Fabricius and Apronius (two young patricians, Ædiles for this year) having insulted the ambassadors, are degraded, and delivered into the hands of the ambassadors, to be carried into Macedon to be tried there; and a law was made, that if any person whatever insulted a foreign ambassador, he should be delivered up to that people, to be punished at their pleasure	- - -	XII.	96
4045	2738	261	Antiochus Soter upon his return to Antioch puts one of his sons to death, for attempting to raise a rebellion in his absence, and proclaims his son Antiochus king with himself	- - -	VIII.	584

World.	Y. of flood.	Before Chrif.
4045	2738	261	Antiochus Soter, king of Syria, dies, and is succeeded by his son Antiochus , surnamed Theos , so called by the Milesians for delivering them from the tyranny of Timarchus , governor of Caria for Ptolemy ; who having revolted, chose Miletus for the seat of his government; Antiochus engaged, defeated, and slew him
4046	2739	260	Now flourished Berosus , the famous Babylonian historian, and dedicated his history to Antiochus Theos , which contained the astronomical observations of 480 years: While he taught at Athens, his reputation for astrological predictions was so great, that the Athenians erected a statue to him in the Gymnasium , with a golden tongue	VIII.	585
4046	2739	260	Rome having divided her conquests into four provinces, four new officers, called provincial Quæstors , are created, to take care of the publick revenues	XII.	96
4046	2739	260	A plague breaking out at Rome , and the Sibylline books being consulted, the answer was, some secret crimes had drawn the wrath of heaven upon the commonwealth. Upon search, a vestal named Carparania was charged with incontinence, and condemned to be buried alive, to avoid which she strangled herself. Upon a census being taken, and a lustrum made, notwithstanding the havock the plague had made, there were found in the city 292,224 men fit to bear arms	XII.	98
4046	2739	260	The Volturnenses , one of the twelve Leucumones of the Hetrurians , beg the assistance of Rome , to free them from the tyrannical and abominable government of their magistrates; upon which the consul Fabius Gurgus goes against them with a small army, and is killed in a battle with them	XII.	99
4047	2740	259	M. Fulvius Flaccus , the Roman consul, forces the Volturnenses to surrender at discretion, and puts all that had been guilty to death: The antient citizens not concerned in the revolt were transplanted to another place, and the city razed. Flaccus at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph	XII.	99
4047	2740	259	The Romans and Carthaginians declare war against each other, called the first Punic war. In the beginning the Roman general Claudius going to the assistance of the Mamertines at Messana , over-reaches Hanno the Carthaginian general, and gets the town and citadel from him; for which Hanno was crucified at his return to Carthage	XII.	103
4047	2740	259	Another Hanno the Carthaginian admiral comes into Sicily , and besieges Claudius and his Romans; and upon his refusing to surrender Messana , orders all the Italians in his army to be massacred. The consul Appius coming to Rhegium , sends from thence to Hiero king of Syracuse to desire him to withdraw his forces that he had joined Hanno with; but Hiero instead of complying, reproaches the Romans with encouraging tyrants and treachery, rebellion, &c. but Claudius having overthrown Hiero in an engagement with him, thinking himself betrayed by the Carthaginians, returns with his troops to Syracuse ; upon which Claudius falling out upon the Carthaginians, routed them with great slaughter, and so raised the siege of Messana , then over-run and laid waste the country of the Syracusans to the gates of Syracuse , for which he is said to have a triumph at his return to Rome
4048	2741	258	War breaks out between the Rhodians and Byzantines , upon account of the latter's laying a tax upon all ships trad-	XII.	105

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of World.
			ing to the Pontic sea, but is soon after composed by the mediation of Cavarus king of the Thracian Gauls
258	2741	4048	The two Roman consuls, with each a large army under his command, go into Sicily, where 68 towns heretofore subject to the Carthaginians submit to them; then besiege Syracuse, upon which Hiero desires peace, which the consuls grant, upon condition that he release all the Roman prisoners without ransom, and pay the republick 100 talents of silver; this Hiero performing, the Romans contract to acknowledge Hiero for a friend, and to protect his dominions from all hostilities
258	2741	4048	The inhabitants of Segesta and Aliena massacre the African garrison, and open their gates to the Roman consuls. The cities of Hilara, Tyrita, and Ascela are besieged, taken by assault, and treated with great rigour. Upon Valerius's return to Rome. he has a triumph. This year Cn. Fulvius Centumales was made dictator, to drive a nail into the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, to stop the plague now raging at Rome
257	2742	4049	Leonidas becomes king of Sparta, and after a reign of 13 years, was outed by his son-in-law Cleombrotus, who reigned in his stead; upon which his daughter fled with him, leaving her husband for the sake of her father
257	2742	4049	The consuls L. Posthumius Megellus and Q. Manlius Vitulus go into Sicily, and besiege Agrigentum, which the Carthaginians had made their magazine for arms and provisions, a place rendered almost impregnable by art and nature, defended by a numerous garrison under the command of Hannibal, besides 50,000 inhabitants: After five months siege comes Hanno from Carthage, with an army of 50,000 soldiers, &c. to whom Erbesa (a city where the Romans had their magazine) surrenders: After the city had been besieged seven months, both armies engage, and the Romans defeat the Carthaginians, with great slaughter on both sides; upon which Hannibal in the night sallies out, and cut his way through the Roman camp, and escapes; upon which the Agrigentines massacre all the remaining Carthaginians, and the consuls deliver up the city to be plundered, which had not surrendered at discretion, and 25,000 free persons are made slaves: This important siege, battle, &c. cost the Romans and their allies upwards of 30,000 men
256	2743	4050	About this time a dreadful earthquake happened at Rhodes, which threw down the great Colossus, the arsenal, and most part of the walls of Rhodes, towards repairing which, all the Grecian states and other princes sent them very large presents, which enabled them in a small time to appear in their former splendor
255	2744	4051	The Roman consul Cn. Cornelius Scipio, with a squadron of 17 galleys full of men, are drawn into a snare by Hannibal, and are all taken prisoners; but 103 more Roman galleys soon after fall upon, sink, take and disperse Hannibal's fleet, himself escaping with great difficulty: Quickly after the Romans, under the consul Duilius, attacked the Carthaginian fleet again, and by help of an engine called the Corvus, they grappled the Carthaginians, and boarding them, overcame and took 80 of them, and 7000 prisoners, and killed 7000 men in the two engagements, and sunk 13 ships or galleys; Hannibal a second time escaped with difficulty, and is degraded by the Carthaginian senate; then the consul going on shore, relieves Segesta, besieged by Ha-

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ.
			milcar, takes Marcella, and returns to Rome, where he was honoured with a triumph, in the most magnificent and extraordinary manner, by medals; &c.	XII.	114
4051	2744	255	During the absence of Duilius the Romans and Sicilians quarrel, and part from one another; whereupon Hamilcar attacks the Sicilians, and puts 4000 of them to the sword, drove the Romans from their posts, took several cities, and over-run great part of the country
4052	2745	254	The Roman slaves form a conspiracy to burn Rome, &c. and are joined by 4000 Samnites; but the plot is discovered by Erius Potitius, the commander of the confederates: The slaves were put in irons, and the Samnites imprisoned	XII.	116
4052	2745	254	The consul C. Aquilius Florus having the command of the Roman navy, sails to Corsica, and soon made himself master of the island: Afterwards going to Sardinia, he besieged Olbia, where Hanno the Carthaginian general was killed, whom Aquilius, after taking the city, honoured with magnificent obsequies, attending his burial in person; after which he took most of the maritime cities, driving the Carthaginians away where-ever he came	XII.	117
4053	2746	253	The Carthaginians desiring assistance of the Egyptians against the Romans, are denied by Ptolemy	IX.	196
4053	2746	253	Aquilius being made preconsul, and going into Sicily, recovers what Hamilcar the Carthaginian general had taken, and drove him quite out of the field; and besieging Mystratum, reduced it to such straits, that it surrendered to the consul Attilius soon after his arrival; and both Aquilius and his colleague Cornelius are honoured with triumphs upon their return to Rome, for their extraordinary services	XII.	118
4053	2746	253	The consul Attilius falls into an ambushade, from which M. Calpurnius Flamma, with only 300 men, relieved him, but with the loss of all his men, and himself extremely wounded, for which he was rewarded with a crown of gramen. Attilius takes Camerina, and sells all the Carthaginians for slaves; then he goes to Emma, where the people open their gates to him, and deliver up all the Carthaginians, whom he puts to the sword. Sittana he took by assault, and put the army sent to relieve it to flight. Then he went into Agrigentum, and drove the Carthaginians quite out of the country	XII.	119
4053	2746	253	Sulpicius, the Roman consul and admiral, engages Hannibal the Carthaginian admiral, but they are parted by a storm, which drove both of them into the Sardinian harbours; the storm abating, Sulpitius surprizes, sinks, and takes most of the Carthaginian ships, for which the remainder crucify their admiral; Sulpicius returns to Rome, and is honoured with a triumph	XII.	119
4054	2747	252	Aratus comes to Athens, and prevails upon Diogenes the Macedonian governor to give up the three fortresses, Pyrezum, Munichia, and Musæum, for 150 talents, towards which he paid 20 out of his own fortune, and then left the Athenians absolutely free, under the protection of the Achæans to guard their freedom	VI.	377
4054	2747	252	C. Attilius Regulus, consul for this year, having the command of the Roman fleet, goes with 10 gallies to reconnoitre the Carthaginian fleet, is surrounded, and most of them taken, but with great difficulty he escapes to the remainder of his fleet, with which he attacks the enemy, and routs them, taking 10 gallies and sinking eight, with all their crews, forces the rest to fly to the port of Lipara.

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Chrift.	Before		Page.
				Both consuls at their return to Rome are honoured with a triumph ; and Q. Ogulnius is created dictator to preside at the Feriæ Latinæ, now revived upon account of some prodigies that had appeared during the campaign -	XII. 120
4055	2748	251		The consuls Manlius Vulso and Marcus Attilius Regulus, with a fleet of 330 Roman gallies, each manned with 120 soldiers and 300 rowers, engage the Carthaginian fleet, consisting of 360 sail, (and better manned than the Romans) near Heraclea in Sicily, and after an obstinate and very bloody battle the Carthaginians were entirely routed, 30 of their ships being destroyed, and 63 taken with their crews, and the Romans had 24 sunk. After this the Romans sailed for Carthage, and took Clupea (or Apis) which they fortified, and made a key to Africa, ravaged the country, and returned with immense booty and 20,000 prisoners -	XII. 122
4055	2748	251		Arfaces , in revenge for an affront upon the modesty of his brother, by Agathocles governor of Parthia, &c. gets some friends and murders him, and at last he drove out the Macedonians, and made himself king, &c. -	VIII. 587
4055	2748	251		Theodotus governor of Bactria revolts from Antiochus, and makes himself king, &c. -	VIII. 587
4055	2748	251		Eleazer the Jewish high-priest dies, and is succeeded by Manasses, uncle of Simon the Just -	X. 91
4056	2749	250		Sicyon , by the persuasion of Aratus becomes a member of the Achæan league -	VI. 554
4056	2749	250		Attilius , now proconsul of the Roman army, besieges Adis, or Adda, not far from Carthage, and engages the Carthaginian army, kills 17,000, takes 5000 and 18 elephants: This victory brought the submission of 80 towns to the Romans, of which Utica was one. Then Regulus (Attilius , besieged Tunis, but nine miles from Carthage, and took it; upon which the Numidians entered the territories of the Carthaginians, laid all the country waste, which soon brought a famine in Carthage, the metropolis of the whole country, which Attilius had now invested, and offering conditions of peace too hard for the senate to accept, they put their army under the command of Xantippus , a Lacedæmonian auxiliary, who engaging the Romans, routs them entirely, cuts off about 30,000, and takes Attilius prisoner, with whom he enters Carthage in triumph, who was treated with all the scorn, &c. that an enraged enemy could invent, and soon after Xantippus himself was forced to retire to Lacedæmon in disgrace privately -	XII. 128
4057	2750	249		Manasses the Jewish high-priest dies, and is succeeded by Onias, the son of Simon the Just, who by his avaricious sordid way of behaving himself, had well nigh ruined the whole nation of the Jews -	X. 91
4057	2750	249		The Roman fleet under the consuls Fulvius and Æmilius engage the Carthaginian fleet off cape Hermea, or cape Mercury, and sunk 104 of their ships, took 30, and killed 15,000 men; then proceed to Clupea, where, as soon as landed, they are engaged by the two Hanno's, father and son, whom they defeat, and kill 9000 of their men, but for want of provisions are forced to quit Clupea and Utica, and instead of returning home, they go to the northern coast of Sicily, where the fleet is almost entirely destroyed by a prodigious storm, saving but 80 (and they much shattered) out of 370 sail, losing the crews, army, and riches

World	V. of	Flood.	Y. of	Before	Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
						of Africa which they had taken : This was the greatest loss that Rome had ever yet met with	XII.	130
4058	2751			248		The Romans, after recruiting their fleet and army, send their consuls and pro-consuls into Sicily, where the city of Cephalædium, near the mouth of the Himera, was delivered to them by the inhabitants; then besieging Panormus, they reduced the inhabitants to such extremities, as to give 6 l. 9 s. 2d. per head for their ransom; and those who could not do it, to the number of 30,000, were sold for slaves; but in their return to Rome, the transports that carried the money and spoils were taken by the Carthaginians	XII.	131
4059	2752			247		The Romans make descents upon the eastern coasts of Africa, where they surprize and plunder several towns and villages, and returning with great booty, were overtaken by a violent storm, and lost 160 galleys and a great number of transports; upon which the senate enact, that no more than 50 vessels should be equipped at a time for the future	XII.	132
4060	2753			246		Antiochus , king of Syria and Macedon, makes peace with Ptolemy Philadelphus king of Egypt, and contracts to put away his wife Laodicea, and marry Berenice, Ptolemy's daughter, and settle the crown upon her children	VIII.	588
4060	2753			246		The Romans take Himera in Sicily, and afterwards Lipara, by storm, and put most of the inhabitants to the sword	XII.	132
4060	2753			246		Tib. Coruncanius was this year made Pontifex Maximus, though a plebeian, who concurred with the consuls and the censors to punish the profane, irreligious, and disobedient; 13 senators were ignominiously struck off the list, and 400 knights degraded. By the census 297,797 men fit to bear arms were found in Rome	XII.	133
4062	2755			244		The Roman consul Metellus artfully draws Asdrubal the Carthaginian general into a disadvantageous piece of ground, near Panormus in Sicily, then sets upon him, kills 20,000 upon the spot, and many elephants, and takes several, which made his triumph at Rome very remarkably magnificent; but Asdrubal upon his return to Carthage is crucified for his misfortunes	XII.	135
4062	2755			244		Ptolemy Euergetes (or the Beneficent) succeeds his father Ptolemy Philadelphus in the kingdom of Egypt, who is supposed to have died of grief at the death of his beloved wife Arsinoe	IX.	202
4062	2755			244		Ptolemy Euergetes king of Egypt takes Seleucia, a famous city 15 miles from Antioch, from the Syrians near the mouth of the Orontes, and puts a strong Egyptian garrison into it	IX.	198
4062	2755			244		Conon the mathematician, to appease Ptolemy's wrath against the priests of the Zephyrian Venus, for losing the hair his queen Berenice cut off from her own head as a token of joy for his Syrian victory, points out to him seven stars, near the tail of the lion, declaring them to be Berenice's hair, and which still remain a constellation under that name	IX.	207
4062	2755			244		Antiochus Theos , as soon as he heard Ptolemy Philadelphus was dead, removed his daughter Berenice from his bed, and recalled Laodicea and her children, Seleucus Callinicus and Antiochus Hierax. Laodicea first poisons her husband, and then gets her son Seleucus Callinicus proclaimed king of Syria; she then endeavoured to murder Berenice and her son, who fled to Antioch, where she was besieged, taken and murdered, with all the Egyptians that attended her, before her brother could come with his army to her relief: But the Asians joining the Egyptians, severely

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			revenge the murder, by conquering most of the provinces, and carrying away 40,000 talents of silver, a prodigious quantity of gold and silver vessels, and 2500 statues, &c.	VIII.	592
4063	2756	243	Demetrius , the son of Antigonus Gonatus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, which he enjoyed 10 years, full of much trouble and many wars, &c.	VIII.	477
4063	2756	243	The Carthaginians send the consul Regulus (their prisoner, having sworn him to return) to Rome, with other ambassadors, to treat of a peace; Regulus persuades the Romans to continue the war, for which the Carthaginians put him to death with extreme torments, and the Romans severely revenge his death upon the Carthaginian prisoners	XII.	138
4063	2756	243	Ptolemy king of Egypt, in his return from Syria comes through Jerusalem, and offers sacrifice to the God of Israel	IX.	207
4063	2756	243	Agis and Cleombrotus , kings of Sparta, go where the Ephori were sitting, removed them from their seats, and put others in their stead, and then proposed a cancelling of debts, and an equal distribution of lands; upon which the bonds and obligations for debt were brought in and burnt, &c.	VI.	523
4063	2756	243	The Carthaginians sally out of Lilybæum in Sicily, where the Romans had long besieged them, and burn all the Roman engines, and destroy all their works, &c. which disaster raised such high disputes in the Roman senate, that they come to blows, and one senator was killed for zealously persuading the rest to conclude a peace	XII.	142
4064	2757	242	The Roman consul Claudius Pulcher , upon hearing the sacred chickens refuse feeding, takes up the coop and throws it and them into the sea, saying, If they won't eat, let them drink; and then engaging Adherbal , is defeated, with the loss of 90 vessels, 8000 men killed, and 20,000 taken prisoners, without the loss of one Carthaginian: Claudius escaping with 30 galleys, the senate order him to name a dictator; he names Claudius Glycias , (a very mean person, a viator or tipstaff of his own;) this highly affronts all, but Glycias laying down, M. Attilius Catalinus was chosen. The consul Junius Pullus goes with a great fleet towards Lilybæum, but by a mighty storm the whole fleet is intirely destroyed by being shipwrecked	XII.	145
4064	2757	242	Aratus takes Acro Corinth by surprize, and Megara , from the Macedonians, and unites them to the Achæans. Trezene , Epidaurus , and Megalopolis , by his persuasion, also join the league, and the Argives, &c.	VI.	555
4064	2757	242	The consul Junius takes Eryx (a strong city situate on the declivity of the mountain Eryx , the highest in Sicily except Ætna ;) To secure it he built a fort at the foot of the mountain, and put a garrison of 800 men in it; but Carthalo soon after took it by assault, and put the garrison to the sword, and killed Junius in the defence of it, &c.	XII.	146
4065	2758	241	Carthalo , the Carthaginian general, being forced out of Italy, his mercenaries murmured for want of pay, for which he punishes some by transporting them to desolate islands, and others he sent to Carthage, where they were executed, &c. but this severity begat a general hatred, so that Carthalo was recalled, and Hamilcar (surnamed Barcas) sent into Italy in his stead, who first appeased the discontent in the army, and took an immense booty from the Locrians and Brutians, &c.	XII.	147
4066	2759	240	Private persons in Rome build and fit out ships that make descents upon the African coasts, and do great mischiefs by

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			ravaging the country, entering into the port of Hippo, firing the ships and houses, and bringing off great booty	XII.	147
4066	2759	240	The Romans and Carthaginians exchange prisoners, and the difference in number is made up by money to the Romans, The Roman citizens appear to be but 251,220 by this year's census	XII.	148
4067	2760	239	Leonidas is restored to his kingdom of Sparta again, and Cleombrotus sentenced to perpetual banishment; and Agis the other king is strangled by order of the Ephori, together with his mother and grandmother, and Leonidas reigned alone	VI.	524
4068	2761	238	Leonidas dies, and is succeeded by his son Cleomenes III. in the whole kingdom of Sparta, who enjoyed it 16 years, when he was outed by Antigonus	VI.	527
4068	2761	238	Cleomenes king of Sparta, having built a fortress in the territories of the Megalopolitans, occasioned the war called the Cleomenic war	VI.	562
4068	2761	238	Claudia, a Roman lady is forced to appear before the tribes, and fined 25,000 asses of brass, for speaking contemptibly of the Roman populace, with which a chappel was built on the hill Aventinus, dedicated to liberty	XII.	148
4068	2761	238	The Roman privateers gain a considerable victory over the Carthaginian fleet, and are afterwards dashed in pieces by a storm	XII.	149
4068	2761	238	Hamilcar takes the strong city and forts of Eryx from the Romans by surprize, and puts all in arms to the sword, and sends the other prisoners to Drepanum	XVII.	279
4069	2762	237	The Achæans under Aratus, and Spartans under Cleomenes engage, and the Achæans are defeated; but Aratus rallying part of his troops, goes to Mantinea, and takes that important place belonging to Sparta; but the two armies meeting again, the Achæans are again terribly beaten under Lysicles	VI.	562
4069	2762	237	The Gauls deliver a fort in Eryx to the Romans, and are admitted into the Roman service, being the first time the republick took foreign forces into their pay	XII.	150
4070	2763	236	The Romans having chose C. Lutatius Catulus one of this year's consuls, the Pontifex Maximus would not let him exercise the office of a general, because he was high-priest of Mars, upon which a second prætor was chose, one to command in the army, and the other to distribute justice in the city	XII.	151
4070	2763	236	The Romans having by a voluntary contribution built 200 quinqueremes, hired the most skilful of all nations to help to man them; with this fleet the prætor Valerius Falto embarked for Sicily, where, in conjunction with the consul Lutatius, they besieged Drepanum: but Lutatius being much wounded as he was entering a breach, was carried back to the camp, and the attack given over	XII.	151
4070	2763	236	The Romans attack the Carthaginian fleet, consisting of 400 sail, overcome and defeat it, take 73 ships and their crews, and sink 125, and disperse the rest, then advance to Eryx, and cut off 2000 Carthaginians, and so put an end to the first Punic war. The consul proposed a peace upon the following terms: 1st. That the Carthaginians should entirely evacuate Sicily: 2d. That they should pay 110 talents of silver yearly for 20 years: 3d: That they should restore all the Roman captives and deserters without ransom, and redeem their own with money: 4. That they should not make war upon Hiero king of Syracuse, or his allies. But the Roman senate would have two new articles added, viz. 1000 talents down, and 220 talents yearly for 10 years, and that the Carthaginians should quit all the little islands about Italy and Sicily, and never come near them with ships of war, or raise mercenaries there. Hamilcar was forced to comply, but went home with a settled hatred of the Romans. The peace was ratified by the solemn sacrifice of a sow, and the mutual oaths of both nations. In this war the Romans lost 700 ships, and the Carthaginians 500

4070 2763 236 The disbanded mercenaries of the Carthaginian army revolt for want of their pay, and encamp before Tunis, invite all the city to accede to them, and throw off the Carthaginian yoke, by which means their number is increased to 72000. Gisco, their former general, coming to appease them, is seized and put in chains, and the military chest broke open and divided, the women of the several African cities furnish Mathos and Spendius (the rebels generals) with all their toys and ornaments to make money, &c. besiege Utica and Hippacra, and treat every Carthaginian with great cruelty, &c. that fall into their hands. Hanno goes against them at Utica, engages and defeats them; but being negligent, they rally and fall unexpectedly upon him, take his camp, and all the provision brought for the relief of the city, &c. the like he was guilty of at Gaza, where he is twice defeated by the enemy, for which he is deposed, and Hamilcar put in his stead, who with only 10000 horse and foot, and 70 elephants, engages Mathos, defeats him, kills 8000 upon the spot, and takes 2000 prisoners: A while after, 2000 Numidians revolting to Hamilcar, he engages the rebels again, and after an obstinate battle intirely routs them, with a slaughter of 10000 and 4000 prisoners, of whom Hamilcar took so many into his own army as were willing to enter, and the rest he set at liberty. Upon this the rebels put Gisco and 700 Carthaginians to death, &c. Utica and Hippacra join the rebels, and put the Carthaginian garrison to death, consisting of 500 men, and then the rebels went to Carthage, and besieged it: The Carthaginians recal Hanno, and send Hannibal in his stead, into their army under Hamilcar, who so harraressed the rebels, that they were forced to raise the siege, and soon after Hamilcar surrounded them upon a mountain, and reduced them to eat one another, when a peace was concluded, that ten of the rebel ringleaders should be delivered to Hamilcar, and that the whole army should be disbanded, every man retiring with a single coat: This agreed to, Hamilcar seized the negotiators, &c. the army not knowing the agreement, fly to arms; Hamilcar surrounds them, and cuts 40,000 of them to pieces; after which scouring the country, most of the revolted cities return to their duty: But Mathos with the remains of the army got into Tunis, where Hannibal and Hamilcar besieged them, and crucified Spendius and the rest of the prisoners near the walls in open view: Mathos makes a sudden sally into Hannibal's quarter, routs them, kills many, and takes many prisoners, and among them Hannibal, whom, after having taken Spendius down from the cross, he put on it in his stead, and thirty Carthaginians round him, who all died in exquisite torture. Many skirmishes afterwards happened, in which the rebels generally were defeated; but at last coming to a general battle, most of them were killed upon

[cxix]				Vol.	Page.
Before	Chrif.	Y. of	Good.
Y. of
world.

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Page.
4072	2765	234	Hamilcar the Carthaginian general swears his son Hannibal, a boy of but nine years old, by laying his hand upon the altar, that he would be an eternal enemy to Rome	XVII. 313
4073	2766	233	The Italic Gauls, called the Boii, join the Falisci, and defeat the consul Q. Valerius Falto, and kill and take 3500 of his men; but Valerius falls upon the enemy again, and killed 14,000, and took 2000 prisoners; and Sempronius the other consul gained a victory over the Ligurians: Then Sempronius goes into Sardinia, obliges the Carthaginians to resign that island, pay the expence of this expedition, and a fine of 1200 talents	XII. 161
4073	2766	233	Antigonus , surnamed Dofon, brother of Demetrius late king of Macedon, being appointed tutor and guardian to Philip the son of Antigonus, now but two years old, so ingratiates himself with the people and the widow, whom he married, that he is soon after saluted by the name of king, in which character he performed many extraordinary actions, as appears by his life	VIII. 479
4074	2767	232	The consul Cornelius engages the Ligurians, kills 24,000 of them, and takes 5000 prisoners, for which he is honoured with a triumph upon his return to Rome	XII. 161
4075	2768	231	The Boii make a truce with the Romans, and engage their cuntrymen the Transalpine Gauls, who came in great numbers to join them, kill their two generals or kings, Atys and Galatius, and a vast number of men, and put the rest to flight, for fear they should dispossess them of their Italian habitations; upon which Lentulus the Roman consul subdues both the Boii and Ligurians, &c.	XII. 162
4075	2768	231	The Corsicans being instigated by the Carthaginians revolt, and Claudius Glycias being sent with a Roman squadron, makes a peace; but the consul Lentulus refuses to confirm it, and reduces the island by force of arms: Claudius is delivered to the Corsicans, who send him to Rome, where he is put to death, and then dragged by an iron hook from the Scalæ Gemoniæ, and then thrown into the Tiber	XII. 162
4075	2768	231	Arfaces having established himself king of Parthia, engages, overthrows, and takes Seleucus king of Syria his master prisoner. The day of this victory was annually observed by the Parthians for many ages afterwards with great solemnity	VIII. 597
4076	2769	230	T. Manlius Torquatus the Roman consul recovered Sardinia that had revolted, and made it tributary. Rome being now universally at peace, the temple of Janus was shut	XII. 164
4077	2770	229	The Sardinians, Corsicans, and Ligurians league together, and revolt from Rome. The consul Carvilius first reduces the Corsicans, and then defeats and subdues the Sardinians, &c. The censors finding the number of Rome's inhabitants decrease, obliged all the citizens to swear they would marry only with a view of getting children: This occasioned Corvilius Ruga, a man of distinction to divorce his wife, whom he passionately loved, upon account of her being barren, and marry another: This is the first instance of a divorce since the foundation of Rome; which introduced marriage contracts, to secure the womens portions in case of a divorce, &c. This year the poet Nævius introduced the first regular comedy after the Greek manner on the Latin stage	XII. 165
4077	2770	229	Hamilcar the Carthaginian general goes with an army into Spain, and fixes his head-quarters at Gades, (now Cadiz) where he continued nine years, and gained great advantages,

Before Christ.	X. of Hood.	X. of world.
				and took abundance of spoil, which he divided among his troops and the great men at Carthage; but at last was slain in battle, with abundance of his men; upon which Asdrubal his son-in-law is chose general in his stead	XVII. 316
		4077	2770	229 Seleucus Callinicus, fits up a mighty fleet, and goes to recover what Ptolemy had taken from him in Syria; but a violent storm destroys almost all of it, himself and few more escaping with great difficulty; however, the Syrians pitying him, many of them voluntarily submit: He raises a great army, and engages Ptolemy, but is intirely defeated, and flies to Antioch, where promising his brother Antiochus the Lesser Asia, he prepares an army to assist him, upon which Ptolemy makes a truce for ten years
		4078	2771	228 The consul Fabius drove the revolted Ligurians out of the plain country, and forced them to shelter themselves among the Alps; and Pomponius the other consul gaining considerable advantages over the Sardinians, is honoured with a triumph	VIII. 594
		4078	2771	228 A new tribunal of justice established among the Romans, called the Centum Viri, though their true number was 105, who were divided into four courts or chambers, under whose cognizance came proscriptions, guardianships, last-wills, inheritances, &c. In future times these courts consisted of 180 persons, but still bore the name of Centum Viri	XII. 166
		4079	2772	227 Seleucus king of Syria, having been prisoner in Parthia four years, dies by a fall from his horse, as he was riding to take the air	XII. 166
		4079	2772	227 Seleucus (surnamed Ceraunus, or the thunderer) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Syria, who after a disagreeable reign of three years was poisoned	VIII. 598
		4080	2773	226 The consuls M. Pomponius Matho and C. Papirius Maso finished the conquest of Sardinia and Corsica, and reduced them to a Roman province. Papirius being refused a triumph, marched at the head of his victorious army, crowned with myrtle instead of laurel, to the temple of Jupiter Latialis, on the hill of Alba, in a triumphant manner, which method was afterwards followed by many others	VIII. 599
		4081	2774	225 Teuta, queen of Illyricum, having commissioned her subjects to pirate upon all ships that came upon her coasts, the Romans send ambassadors to her to demand satisfaction for themselves and allies; the queen answers haughtily, they reply, and she orders them to be put to death; which being done, the Romans order a fleet and army to go and revenge the affront: upon which the queen submits, denies the fact, and offers to deliver up the murderers; but in the mean time her fleet having got an advantage over the Achæans, and taken Corcyra, &c. she forgets to perform her promise	XII. 167
		4082	2775	224 The Romans equip a fleet of 100 gallies, and raise an army of 20,000 foot, besides a body of horse, and send them under the command of the consuls Cn. Fulvius Centumalus, and P. Posthumius Albinus: Upon Fulvius's coming with his fleet to Corcyra, Demetrius of Pharos, governor for queen Teuta, puts the city and island into his hands, and persuades the inhabitants of Appollonia to drive out the Illyrian garrison, and submit to the Romans. Upon this Posthumius penetrates into the heart of the	XII. 168

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			queen's dominions, while the fleet cruised along the coast, and the Andyaëans, Parthini, and Atintanes submit to the Romans; after which Posthumius took Nutria, a place of great strength, though with great loss, and 40 Illyrian vessels laden with booty in their return home	XII.	169
4082	2775	224	Upon the death of Seleucus king of Syria, the army and several provinces offer the crown of Syria to Achæus, but he generously refused it for Antiochus, the brother of Seleucus, a youth of 15 years of age, who, for his illustrious actions, was surnamed the Great	VIII.	599
4083	2776	223	Molo and Alexander (two brothers, governors of Media and Persia) revolt, and set up for themselves. They first defeat Zeno and Theodotus, Antiochus's generals, and afterwards in a second engagement cut off Xenætus and his whole army, and thereby acquired the province of Babylonia and all Mesopotamia without opposition	VIII.	602
4083	2776	223	Epigenes, general of Antiochus, is treacherously accused, and falsely put to death by Hermias the king's prime minister	VIII.	604
4083	2776	223	Queen Teuta sues for peace, but the Romans refuse to treat with her; but make peace with the young king upon severe terms. She lays down the regency, and Demetrius succeeds her in it	XII.	170
4083	2776	223	Rome growing jealous of her rival Carthage, upon account of her great acquisitions in Spain by Asdrubal their general, and his building the famous city of Carthage to secure his conquests, they agree, that Carthage should not extend her conquests beyond the river Iberus, and that Saguntum (a colony of Zacynthians) should remain free	XII.	170
4083	2776	223	Gleomenes king of Sparta invades Achæa, takes Pellene by surprize, then masters Phenæon and Penteleon, and Argos, and by this means raises Sparta to greater power than it ever had	VI.	531
4084	2777	222	Gleomenes king of Sparta engages Antigonus king of Macedon, &c. at Sellasia, where, through the superiority of the enemies troops and the treachery of Damoteles, he is defeated, with a vast slaughter of his mercenaries, and almost all his own troops, having but 200 left out of 6000; after which he retired to Egypt, where Ptolemy Euergetes entertained him kindly: In him ended the Herculean race of Spartan kings, and Sparta fell under the government of Antigonus	VI.	534
4084	2777	222	Antiochus king of Syria goes against the rebel Molo, governor of Media, overcomes his army, and pursues him; Molo for fear of falling into the king's hands kills himself, as does also several of his attendants: Neolaus, or Nicholas his brother, escaping, fled to his other brother Alexander, the rebel governor of Persia, who upon hearing of the defeat, &c. of his brother Molo, they first killed their mother, afterwards their wives and children, and then dispatched themselves. The rebel provinces returned to their duty, and the king was established in his authority	VIII.	607
4085	2778	221	Two Greeks, a man and a woman, and two Gauls, a man and a woman, are buried alive at the Ox-market in Rome, by command of the consuls, to appease the superstition of the commonalty	XII.	171
4085	2778	221	Asdrubal, the famous Carthaginian general, after having done his country the greatest services for eight years successively with extraordinary success, was publickly murdered

Page.	Vol.
1	1
2	1
3	1
4	1
5	1
6	1
7	1
8	1
9	1
10	1
11	1
12	1
13	1
14	1
15	1
16	1
17	1
18	1
19	1
20	1
21	1
22	1
23	1
24	1
25	1
26	1
27	1
28	1
29	1
30	1
31	1
32	1
33	1
34	1
35	1
36	1
37	1
38	1
39	1
40	1
41	1
42	1
43	1
44	1
45	1
46	1
47	1
48	1
49	1
50	1
51	1
52	1
53	1
54	1
55	1
56	1
57	1
58	1
59	1
60	1
61	1
62	1
63	1
64	1
65	1
66	1
67	1
68	1
69	1
70	1
71	1
72	1
73	1
74	1
75	1
76	1
77	1
78	1
79	1
80	1
81	1
82	1
83	1
84	1
85	1
86	1
87	1
88	1
89	1
90	1
91	1
92	1
93	1
94	1
95	1
96	1
97	1
98	1
99	1
100	1

Y. of world.	Y. of Good	Before Christ.			Vol.	Page.
			arrival of an army under Philip the son of Antigonus, they submit		VI.	538
4087	2780	219	The Roman consuls are hindered from passing the Po, and following the Gauls into their own country, by a great plague that raged in Rome and in the army		XII.	173
4087	2780	219	Hannibal besieges and takes Salmantica, and after a very resolute defence Arbucala: The Olcades and Carpetani, to the number of 100,000, endeavour to fall upon him; but he crossing the Tagus in the night, they pursue him irregularly, and are most of them destroyed in the water, &c. Then Hannibal lays the country of the Carpetani waste, upon which they all submit		XVII.	322
4087	2780	219	The Carthaginians besiege Saguntum, with 150,000 foot and 20,000 horse, which the inhabitants defend with incredible bravery, by frequent sallies, and drive the Carthaginians away with prodigious slaughter, when they attempted the place by storm; but a small time after they take the city by storm, and put most of the inhabitants to the sword, &c.		XVII.	334
4088	2781	218	The Ephori murdered by the Spartans, who choose Agesipolis and Lycurgus to be their kings: Lycurgus drove out Agesipolis; Chilo conspires against him, murders the Ephori, and forces Lycurgus to fly; but Chilo not being beloved, was obliged to retire to Macedon, and Lycurgus returned and reigned many years		VI.	540
4088	2781	218	Anticchus defeats Nicholas the Egyptian general, takes many cities, and some provinces, and then winters in Ptolemais with his army		VIII.	615
4089	2782	217	Theodotus the Ætolian going in the night into Ptolemy's camp, went to his tent and killed his physician, thinking it was the king, but Ptolemy that night lay elsewhere, and so escaped		VIII.	616
4089	2782	217	Antiochus and Ptolemy come to an engagement, wherein Antiochus is defeated, with the loss of 10,000 killed and 4000 taken prisoners; upon which he is forced to withdraw to Antioch, and quit all his conquests		VIII.	617
4089	2782	217	Ptolemy , being addressed and congratulated by all the cities of Cœle-Syria, that through force had submitted to Antiochus, goes a progress through them, restoring all to their former privileges, comes to Jerusalem, offers sacrifice to the God of Israel, and bestows great gifts upon the temple but attempts to enter the holy of holies, and is struck with a sort of madness and terror, upon which he resents it highly, and uses the Jews ill, &c.		VIII.	618
4089	2782	217	The Romans deny peace to the Insubres, cross the Po, and besiege Acerræ, whereupon the Gauls cross the Po, and with an army of 90,000 men invest Clastidium; upon which Marcellus the consul comes with a detachment, to relieve the place; they offer to attack him; both armies are ready, when Viridomarus, the Gaulish king, challenges Marcellus to a single combat, which he accepts, and kills him, and afterwards routs the whole army. While this was doing, Scipio the other consul took Acerræ, Mediolanum, &c. and so all Italy from the Alps to the Ionian sea became Roman provinces. Marcellus is decreed an extraordinary triumph at his return to Rome, and carries the rich armour and spoils of Viridomarus, and dedicated the 3d and last Opima Spolia to Jupiter Feretrius; a gold cup was sent to Apollo at Delphos, and great presents to Hiero king of Syracuse		XII.	178

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4089	2782	217	The Romans having crossed the Po, engage the Gauls, kill 9000, and take 17000 prisoners, and thereby obtain a compleat victory.	XII.	176
4089	2782	217	Ptolemy Philopater succeeds his father Euergetes in the kingdom of Egypt, murders his brother Magos , and then gives himself up to all manner of vicious living, &c.	IX.	213
4089	2782	217	Antiochus king of Syria besieges and carries by assault the city of Silecia , (then held by the Egyptians) treats the inhabitants with the utmost humanity, and restored them to their ancient privileges	VIII.	611
4090	2783	216	Antiochus cedes Cele-Syria to Ptolemy , and concludes a peace with him	VIII.	618
4090	2783	216	The Istrians having taken some Roman ships, the consuls M. Minutius Rufus and P. Cornelius Scipio Afina go against them, and reduce all Istria, but with the loss of much blood on both sides	XII.	178
4091	2784	215	A census being taken at Rome, the number of Roman citizens fit to bear arms are found to be 272,213	XII.	179
4091	2784	215	Demetrius of Pharos, whom the Romans had appointed governor of Illyricum, acts against their orders, and sets up for himself, persuading the Atintanes also to revolt, and also sent 50 ships of war to pillage the Cyclades. The Romans send an army against him, who take Dimalum , a city he imagined impregnable, in seven days: They then go to Pharos with a large fleet, which they take, plunder, and raze, and Demetrius escapes to Macedon. The consuls at their return to Rome are accused of keeping the spoil for their own use, &c. L. Æmilius Paulus is acquitted; but M. Livius Salinator is condemned; upon which he retires to his country house, and lives private	XII.	180
4091	2784	215	This year the art of surgery was introduced into Rome, by one Archagathus a Peloponnesian	XII.	181
4092	2785	214	The second Punic or Carthaginian war breaks out. The Roman and Syracusan fleet engage the Carthaginian fleet, and defeat them; take seven ships, kill abundance of men, and take 1700 prisoners, with a very small loss	XII.	184
4092	2785	214	Hannibal marching from Spain to Italy, went about 1000 English miles in five months and a half, and lost by sickness, desertion, fatigue, and various engagements 30,000 foot, and 3000 horse, having upon a review in the fruitful plains of Insubria no more than 26,000 effective men. The Taurini refusing to conclude a treaty with him, he enters their territories, and takes their capitol by storm, and put all to the sword that made any resistance; upon which all the Gauls surrender at discretion. Soon after Hannibal and Scipio engage, and after a very stubborn fight the Romans are routed, the consul being wounded, and the greatest part of the army cut off; the rest fly precipitately. Upon this the Gauls join Hannibal , recruit his army, and give him all manner of necessaries	XII.	187
4092	2785	214	The Romans and Carthaginians engage on the banks of the Trebia , where the Romans are beaten with great slaughter, &c. A small time after Hannibal takes a small city of Insubria , called Victumviæ , and commits most monstrous cruelties upon the garrison and inhabitants	XII.	202
4092	2785	214	Hannibal marches his army through marshy ground, where for the space of four days and nights they were in mud and water up to the thighs, during which time many of his men and most of his horses die with cold, and himself loses one of his eyes, but at last gets into Hetruria		203

Y. of world	Y. of Rood	Before Christ		Page.
4092	2785	214	Cneius Scipio , brother to the consul P. Cornelius Scipio, goes into Spain with an army of Romans, &c. and reduces all the country from the Pyrenees to the Iberus, then engages and entirely routs the Carthaginians under the command of Hanno, whom he takes prisoner, together with Indibilis, a Spanish prince intirely devoted to the Carthaginians; their camp was forced, 6000 slain, and 2000 taken prisoners; all the heavy baggage was taken, and many of the Spanish nations conclude an offensive and defensive alliance with Scipio	XVII. 365
4092	2785	214	Achæus , after having sustained the siege of Antiochus and Attalus king of Pergamus above a year in Sardis, was betrayed into the hands of Antiochus, by the treachery of two Cretans. Achæus is put to death, and all Asia submits to Antiochus	VIII. 622
4092	2785	214	Antiochus drives Arsaces out of Media, which he had taken from Antiochus while he was employed in Egypt	IX. 2
4092	2785	214	Philip king of Macedon forces the Ætolians to make peace upon very disadvantageous terms	VII. 15
4093	2786	213	Antiochus gains great advantages over Arsaces in Parthia and Hyrcania, but at last peace is made between them, upon condition that Arsaces shall assist Antiochus in reducing all the revolted provinces, except Parthia and Hyrcania	IX. 2
4093	2786	213	The Romans under the rash conduct of the consul Flaminius are drawn into an ambush, where 15,000 are killed, and Flaminius himself,* and 6000 taken prisoners; and of those that escaped most of them died of their wounds	XII. 207
4093	2786	213	Hannibal sends Adherbal after 6000 Romans that had escaped from the late defeat, who surrender upon condition of giving them their lives and liberty; but Hannibal orders all the Romans to be put in chains, and sets the auxiliaries at liberty, declaring he fought only against Rome. The consul Servilius having sent a detachment of 4000 Romans to reinforce his colleague, they came too late, and 2000 are killed and the rest surrender	XII. 208
4093	2786	213	The Romans raise Fabius Maximus (surnamed Verrucosus) to the power of dictator, but call him pro-dictator, as not being chose in the ordinary way; and also named Minucius Rufus for his general of the horse. Fabius consulting the Sibylline books, is told the present calamities are for the non-performance of a vow of Aulus Cornelius to Mars, to sacrifice all the pigs, lambs, kids, and calves that should be brought forth in one spring, viz. from 1st March to 1st May, called Ver Sacrum: This vow being renewed, and others made, he goes to head the army Servilius had commanded, to which he added two new legions, and appoints the city of Tybur for the rendezvous, from whence he sent orders to the country people to burn their houses, &c. He only watched and followed Hannibal, harassed his rear, and took all advantages. The senate call him home, and make his general of the horse his equal, who venturing upon a battle, is defeated and surrounded by Hannibal; Fabius saves him from being cut to pieces, and drives away the enemy with great slaughter	XII. 213
4093	2786	213	The Illergetes in Spain, notwithstanding they had given Scipio hostages for their fidelity, declare for the Carthaginians. Scipio invests their capital city Athanagia, and takes it, pardons the people, and takes fresh hostages, after exacting a good sum of money from them. While this was doing he cut off 12000 Aufetanians, who came to their

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			their assistance: Soon after the Roman and Carthaginian fleets engage; the Romans force the Carthaginians in the mouth of the Iberus, killed abundance of seamen and marines, and carried off 35 gallees	XVII.	378
4093	2786	213	After the naval defeat, Scipio advancing to Honosca took it by storm, and razed it; then makes a descent into Africa, ravages all about Carthage, burning houses up to the walls and haven, and returned loaded with spoil; then lands in the island Ebusus, now Yvica, plundered it, and burnt some streets in the capital city; upon this 120 different cantons of the Spaniards submit to Rome, who afterwards overthrew Asdrubal twice, kill him 15,000 men, and take 4000 prisoners, and three fortresses by assault	XVII.	379
4093	2786	213	Philip king of Macedon besieges and takes Thebes, or Phthiotis, and after having plundered the town, and sold the inhabitants, re-peopled it with a colony of Macedonians, changing its name into Philippopolis	VI.	596
4094	2787	212	The Romans and Carthaginians engage at Cannæ, a small city in Apulia on the banks of the Aufidus; the Romans are entirely routed, and the consul Æmilius, the two pro-consuls Servilius and Attilius, two military quæstors, 29 legionary tribunes, 80 senators, and 45,000 soldiers are killed, and about 14,000 escaped in the night to Canusium. Hannibal is said to lose but 4000 Gauls, 1500 Africans and Spaniards, and 2000 horse	XII.	220
4094	2787	212	Hannibal having fixed a price upon his prisoners, which the Romans refusing to pay, part he sent to Carthage, and the remainder he made gladiators of, forcing even relations to fight together for the diversion of his army. Capua surrenders to Hannibal; they kill the Roman garrison, &c.	XII.	226
4094	2787	212	Hannibal sends his brother Mago to acquaint the senate at Carthage, that in six pitched battles he had killed 200,000 Romans, and taken 50,000 prisoners; and that Apulia, Bruti, Lucania, and Campania had submitted to Carthage, and presented them with three bushels of rings taken from the Roman knights	XII.	227
4094	2787	212	The two Scipio's in Spain engage and entirely defeat Asdrubal, and thereby prevent the Carthaginians in Spain joining Hannibal in Italy	XII.	228
4094	2787	212	The dictator Martellus sallies out upon Hannibal, now besieging Nola, and cuts off 5000 of his men, and drives all away in confusion	XII.	230
4094	2787	212	Hannibal after a long siege takes Casilinum, and obliges each freeman to pay seven ounces of gold for his redemption, and then takes Petilia, after an obstinate defence	XII.	232
4094	2787	212	M. Fabius Buteo is made dictator at Rome, to name new senators to supply the place of those killed, &c. and names 177 to the people's satisfaction, and then lays down his dictatorship	XII.	233
4094	2787	212	Aratus the Achæan prætor is poisoned by order of Philip king of Macedon	VI.	602
4094	2787	212	Ptolemy Philopater , king of Egypt, reverses the former decrees that gave great privileges to the Jews at Alexandria, and uses them cruelly, putting many to death, and exposing a great number of them to be destroyed by 500 elephants, from which they are miraculously preserved, which so affected Ptolemy, that he ordered all in chains and prison to be released, and restored them to all their former privileges, and reversed all his severe decrees	IX.	218

[cxxviii]				Vol.	Page.
World.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
4095	2788	211	The consul Posthumius Albinus and all his army are cut off by the Boii, in a vast forest which he was obliged to pass	XII.	235
4095	2788	211	The consul Sempronius engages the revolted Campanians, kills their general Alfius with 2000 soldiers, and puts the rest to flight, and then retires to Cumæ, where Hannibal besieges him, but after losing 1300 men, is forced to raise the siege. The other consul Marcellus engages Hannibal, kills him 5000 men, takes 600 prisoners, 19 standards, and two elephants: Upon this 1270 horse revolt from Hannibal to Marcellus	XII.	236
4095	2788	211	The Roman prætor Manlius Torquatus defeats the Sardinians, who had revolted, and a Carthaginian army under Asdrubal, killed 12,000, took Asdrubal, Hanno and Mago, his chief officers, prisoners, with many soldiers	XII.	236
4095	2788	211	The Romans and Ætoliæ sign a peace, which was concluded two years before	VII.	7
4095	2788	211	Philip king of Macedon twice defeats the Ætoliæ, under the command of Pyrrhus in conjunction with Artalus king of Pergamus	VI.	604
4096	2789	210	Sempronius with an army of Volones (or slaves) engages Hanno the Carthaginian, overthrows him, and out of 18,200 horse and foot, only 2200 escaped; and Marcellus defeated Hannibal, killing him 2000 men with the loss of only 400 Romans. Then Marcellus besieges and takes Casilinum, and puts all to the sword that made any resistance: Then Fabius lays waste great part of Campania, and killed and took 25,000 men	XII.	241
4096	2789	210	Hiero king of Syracuse by will bequeaths the kingdom to his grandson Hieronymus, who being but 15 years old, he appointed him 15 guardians; and now, being 90 years old, he dies in the 54th year of his reign, exceedingly bewailed and beloved by all his subjects, who honoured him with a pompous funeral	VII.	338
4096	2789	210	Hieronymus king of Syracuse becomes vain, debauched, cruel, and exceedingly vicious, joins the Carthaginians, and breaks with the Romans: His subjects hate him, conspire against and kill him in the street, where they leave his mangled carcass to rot; and soon after all the royal race were also dispatched	VII.	358
4096	2789	210	Marcellus the Roman consul goes against the revolted Leontines, and takes the city by assault, and puts 2000 Roman deserters to death, but restores the inhabitants both their goods and their liberty	VII.	359
4096	2789	210	Hippocrates and Epycides (two Carthaginian generals) ingratiate themselves into the Syracusan mercenaries, get into Syracuse, put the senators to the sword, and reign arbitrarily	VII.	359
4096	2789	210	Marcellus the Roman consul besieges Syracuse (a city in Sicily 22 miles in circumference) which is defended by the engines contrived by the famous mathematician Archimedes 3 years, against the whole art, courage, and industry of Rome, with such destructive methods and engines as were never heard of before	VII.	361
4096	2789	210	Hamilco coming from Carthage into Syracuse, with 20,000 foot and 3000 horse, and 12 elephants, takes many cities that had submitted to Marcellus. Hippocrates breaks out of Syracuse with 10,000 foot and 1500 horse to join Hamilco; Marcellus meets, engages, and kills 8000 of them, and then returns to the siege of Syracuse	VII.	361
4097	2790	209	The consuls having laid the country round Capua waste, Hanno goes to their relief, and is intirely routed by the Romans under

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Chrifi.		Vol.	Page.
			under Fulvius, who killed him 6000 men, and took 7000 prisoners, with an exceeding great booty of corn, forage, waggons, horses, Hanno's baggage, &c. Hanno himself escaping to Brutium, attended only with a small body of horse	XII.	245
4097	2790	209	The proconsul Sempronius is deceived by one Fulvius a Campanian, surrounded and killed, with most of his men. Hannibal pays his corps all the military honours due to a great commander	XII.	247
4097	2790	209	The Romans in Spain having hired 30,000 Celtiberians into their service, Asdrubal the Carthaginian bribes them, and they desert. Scipio is engaged by a conjunct army of Numidians, Carthaginians and Spaniards, is killed, and his army almost cut to pieces: Soon after his brother Cneius was likewise killed, and most of his men; those who escaped retired under T. Fonteius into a neighbouring tower, where they all perished by fire	XII.	249
4097	2790	209	Marcus, a young Roman nobleman, collected the scattered troops of the Romans in Spain together, &c. and being attacked by Asdrubal, repulsed him, and the next day set Asdrubal's camp on fire, and killed him 37,000 men, and took 1830 prisoners	XII.	250
4097	2790	209	Hannibal takes Metapontum, and the inhabitants put all the Romans to the sword; Heraclea did the same, and submitted to the Carthaginians; and Thurium treacherously shut the gates, and denied the Romans entrance at their retreat from a sally, whereby they were all cut to pieces by Hanno, except Atinius the commandant, and a few with him	XVII.	436
4098	2791	208	The Romans now at war with the Carthaginians, send ambassadors to Egypt to desire a renewal of their old alliance of friendship; with great presents	IX.	219
4098	2791	208	As the Romans were irregularly straggling about Capua, and ravaging the country, Mago overtakes them, and kills 1500 of them, and recovers all the booty, takes many prisoners, and disperses the rest. Soon after Hannibal meets with M. Centenius Penula with 16,000 men, and cuts off Centenius and 15,000 of his men: Quickly after Hannibal engages Cn. Fulvius the prætor with 18,000 men, cut off 16,000, so that only the prætor and 2000 escaped	XVII.	438
4098	2791	208	The Romans and Ætolians join, and lay waste all the fertile country between Sicyon and Corinth; but upon Philip king of Macedon's coming against them, they retire with great precipitation	VII.	14
4098	2791	208	Hannibal attempts the relief of Capua, and the garrison sallies out at the same time; but both are defeated, Hannibal having 8000 men killed, and the Capuans 3000; 15 colours taken from the first, and 18 from the last	XII.	251
4098	2791	208	Hannibal marches up to the gates of Rome, but durst not attempt to storm it, or run the hazard of a battle, but suddenly marches back to Capua, and fell upon Appius's camp, and kills a great many of his men, and then marches off: Soon after Capua submitted, the Carthaginian garrison were made prisoners of war, but the senators were tried by the proconsuls, out of whom 25 were sent to Calo, and 28 to Teanum, to be confined till their fate should be determined; but Fulvius went and put them all to death. Rome kept the fruitful plains as its own property, and transplanted freed-men thither to manure the land, and annually sent a præfect for their governor	XII.	257

World.	X. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4098	2791	208	Philip king of Macedon and the Achæans, besiege Elis, into which the Romans had flung 4000 men under Sulpitius : A bloody conflict happens, Philip is unhorsed and near being taken, but escapes, and after much bloodshed is obliged to retire, but next day takes a strong hold of the Eleans, with 20,000 head of cattle and 4000 Eleans whom he sold for slaves	VI.	605
4099	2792	207	Scipio , the son of the deceased proconsul, besieges and takes New Carthage, where he kills abundance of Carthaginians, &c. and takes 10,000 freemen and a prodigious number of women, children, and slaves prisoners, 120 great and 281 lesser Catapultæ's, 23 large and 52 smaller Balistæ, 74 ensigns, an immense quantity of gold and silver both in money and plate, &c.	XVII.	448
4099	2792	207	The plague rages extravagantly in and about Syracuse, of which Hamilcar , Hippocrates , and almost all the Carthaginian army die. The senate sends Bomilcar with 130 gallies, 7000 transports, and a large army into Sicily, against Marcellus , who goes with the Roman fleet against him, upon which Bomilcar runs home, and Syracuse submits to Marcellus , after a siege of three years
4099	2792	207	Marcellus takes Salapia in Apulia, and cuts off all the Carthaginian garrison but 50 who surrender themselves: Then he goes into Samnium, takes upwards of 3000 Carthaginians prisoners, and reduces abundance of towns to the obedience of Rome	XII.	258
4099	2792	207	The Tarentine fleet entirely defeat a Roman squadron of ships that were coming to supply the citadel with provisions; and Hannibal surprizes and kills the proconsul Fulvius Centumalus , and cuts off 11 legionary tribunes, with 13,000 men, upon which Marcellus comes up and gives him battle; but the loss on both sides was nearly equal, and the night obliged them to part	XII.	259
4099	2792	207	After the taking Syracuse, Marcellus engages Epicyles and Hanno , who puts them to flight at the first onset, and pursues them to Agrigentum, killing many thousands, and takes eight elephants, and then goes to Rome	VII.	388
4099	2792	207	Sulpitius the Roman general, and Attalus king of Pergamus first set sail to Lemnos, and then go to Oreum, a chief city in Eubæa, which Plator the Macedonian commander treacherously delivers up to them	VI.	606
4099	2792	207	Attalus king of Pergamus besieges and takes the city of Opus in Achaia; Philip king of Macedon presently after comes to its relief, upon whose approach Attalus quits it, and retires with precipitation to his ships	VI.	606
4100	2793	206	Marcellus being chose consul at Rome, gets the Syracusans an edict of the senate to reinstate them in their antient laws and liberties; in return for which the Syracusan senate make a decree, that whenever Marcellus or any of his posterity should come to Sicily, the people should walk before him crowned with garlands, and celebrate the day with sacrifices	VII.	391
4100	2793	206	The consul Levinus , with an army of Romans coming into Sicily, is invited by Mutines to Agrigentum, whither Hanno , Epicyles , and the Carthaginians were retired, takes it, and puts all the Carthaginians to the sword; the chiefs of the Agrigentines he first beat with rods, and then beheaded, and the common people were made slaves and sold; and all Sicily was reduced to the subjection of Rome, and became one of its provinces	VII.	393

Before
 Christ.
 Y. of Flood.
 Y. of
 World.
 41012794
 41012794
 41012794
 41012794
 41022795
 41022795
 41022795
 41022795
 41022795
 41022795

Vol.
 Page.
 XII. 262
 XII. 264
 XII. 264
 XVII. 453
 XII. 268
 XII. 268
 XVII. 456
 VI. 609

205 Lævinus being ordered to name a dictator refuses it; upon which the tribunes of the people take upon them that office, and named Fulvius Flaccus the proconsul. Lælius arriving at Rome from Spain, with Mago, the senators of New Carthage, and the rich booty taken there, Scipio is continued proconsul, not as usual for one year, but till an order should be made for recalling him
 205 Hannibal engages Marcellus, and routs him, and kills 2700 of his men on the spot, four centurions, two military tribunes, and takes six standards. The next day they engage again, when Hannibal is defeated, with the loss of 8000 of his best troops; but Marcellus having 3000 of his legionaries killed, and almost all wounded, could not pursue him. Fulvius recovers Lucania, Hirpinia, and great part of Brutium, without loss of blood
 205 Fabius takes Tarentum, out of which the quæstors are said to have received for the publick treasury 87,000 l. of gold, and 3000 talents of silver; 30,000 inhabitants that escaped the massacre were sold for slaves, &c.
 205 Scipio engages Asdrubal, kills him 8000 men, and takes 10,000 foot and 2000 horse, gives the Carthaginian camp to the Roman soldiers to plunder, released all the Spanish prisoners without ransom, but sells the Carthaginians for slaves
 204 Marcellus (now a fifth time consul) projects the taking Locri, a strong city in the interest of Hannibal: The troops encamped before Tarentum go to besiege it: Hannibal falls upon them, kills 2000, and takes 1200 prisoners. Soon after Marcellus falls into an ambush, as he was viewing an eminence with his colleague, and is killed; Hannibal first takes his ring off his finger, then burns the body, puts the ashes into a silver urn, and puts a crown of gold and a crown of laurel on it, and so sent it to his son, who honoured it with the highest marks of respect: Quinctius also, the other consul, was mortally wounded
 204 Hannibal, now master of Marcellus's ring, sends a feigned letter to Apuleia sealed therewith, by a Roman deserter, signifying that he would be with him as on the morrow, when he sent a detachment to surprize the town, most of them Roman deserters; the Salapians admit about 600 of them within the gates, draw up the bridge, fall on and kill them, and from the walls disperse the rest, Quinctius having sent them and the country round word of the death of Marcellus, for fear of such accidents, and so they escaped being surprized
 204 Lævinus the Roman admiral makes a descent on Africa with 100 sail of ships, and brings away immense booty, after having defeated the Carthaginian fleet, consisting of 83 sail, and take 18 of them. About the same time the Romans having besieged Locri, Hannibal marches to its assistance, upon whose arrival Mago sallies out, so that the Romans were forced to raise the siege, and leave all the military engines, &c. behind them
 204 The Ætolians conclude a very disadvantageous peace with the Macedonians and Achæans
 204 Ptolemy Philopater dying, is succeeded by his son Ptolemy Epiphanes, a child between four and five years old; upon which Antiochus the great king of Syria, and Philip king of Macedon join, in order to take and divide his kingdom: The Jews side with Antiochus, who obliged them in every thing they requested, and presented them with 20,000 pieces of silver, 1400 measures of fine wheat, and 375 measures of salt, &c.

Before Christ.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of world.
		4103	2796	203	Claudius Nero being consul with M. Livius Salinator, engages Hannibal, defeats him, kills 8000 of his men, and takes 7000 prisoners; then pursues him, in his retreat; they engage again near Venusia, and he kills 2000 more, when Hannibal makes the best of his way to Metapontum to join Hanno	X. 99
		4103	2796	203	Asdrubal having passed the Alps in order to join Hannibal, is met by the two consuls, and forced to fight in Umbria upon the banks of the Metaurus, where he has 56,000 men killed, and himself and abundance of prisoners are taken: Nero cuts off his head, and carries it with him to his camp at Canusium, from whence he sent some of the Carthaginian prisoners in chains to Hannibal's camp, to inform him of the matter: Afterwards Hanno and Mago joining their forces, many of which being new raised troops, were attacked by the Romans and dispersed; and Hanno and Mago coming to their assistance, were likewise defeated and Hanno taken prisoner	XII. 270
		4103	2796	203	The Rhodians join Attalus, king of Pergamus, and declare war against Philip king of Macedon, who gains some advantages over them	XVII. 465
		4104	2797	202	Philip king of Macedon engages Attalus and the Rhodians at sea, over against Chios, but is defeated, with the loss of 300 Macedonians and 600 allies, and 2700 taken prisoners, while the Rhodians lose but 60 and Attalus 70 men	VII. 432
		4104	2797	202	Machanidas having some how got the sovereignty, was called the tyrant of Sparta, who with a great army went to Mantinæa in Achaia, where he was engaged by Philopæmen, who intirely routed his army and killed himself: To perpetuate the memory of this victory, the Achæans cast a brazen statue of Philopæmen, in the same attitude he killed Machanidas, and set it up in the temple of Apollo at Delphos	VII. 432
		4104	2797	202	Scipio engages the united force of Carthage in Spain, under the command of Mago, Asdrubal the son of Gisco, and Massinissa king of Numidia, and intirely destroys their army, consisting of 70,000 foot and 4500 horse, scarce 6000 escaping	VI. 609
		4105	2798	201	Scipio engages Syphax king of the Masæsyli to abandon the Carthaginians, and enter into an alliance with Rome; took Illiturgi by storm, that had revolted, and levelled it with the ground, and put all the inhabitants to the sword. Castulo is surrendered, and a Carthaginian garrison made prisoners of war, &c. Astapa being besieged by Marcius, the inhabitants sally out, and all die fighting except 50, who were left in the city to guard their wives, children, and effects, who upon hearing what had happened, set fire to a great pile, upon which they had put the women and children and most valuable effects, and then jumped into the flames themselves, and so all perished, and left the Romans an empty city	XII. 272
		4105	2798	201	Scipio being taken very ill, a report was spread that he was dead; upon which Indibilis and Mandonius (two petty Spanish kings that had come over to the Romans) revolted, and raised an army of 20,000 foot and 2500 horse; and 8000 legionary troops also revolt, and choose themselves commanders: Scipio soon recovering, gets the two chiefs	XVII. 469

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			of his own men that had rebelled, and cuts off their heads, upon which the rest submit. He goes against the princes, engages them, and obtains a complete victory by killing 17,000. Soon after he took Gades, and so became master of all Spain	XII.	274
4106	2799	200	Scipio is recalled from Spain to Rome, where with P. Licinius Craffus he is chose consul, and sent to Sicily, from whence he sent Lælius to Africa, where he greatly incommoded the Carthaginians, and returned to Sicily, and Scipio took Locri by surprize	XII.	277
4106	2799	200	Scipio being recalled from Spain, Mandonius and Indibilis revolt; the proconsuls go against them, kill 17,000, and Indibilis, and take 8000 prisoners. Soon after the Spaniards take and surrender Mandonius to obtain their own pardon. In Italy the plague made dreadful havock in both armies	XII.	277
4107	2800	199	Hannibal attacks the consul Sempronius, kills 1200 Romans, and obliges the rest to retire in disorder: A few days after they engage again, when 4000 Carthaginians are slain, and 300 taken prisoners, with 11 standards, and then Sempronius returned to Rome to erect a temple to Fortune, which he had vowed before the last battle	XII.	279
4107	2800	199	Scipio lands in Africa, where he first encounters Hanno, a young Carthaginian nobleman, and cut him off, with most of the troops under his command, and lays waste the country to the very gates of Carthage, and took an opulent city in its neighbourhood, which he pillaged, and made 8000 inhabitants prisoners; then defeats another Hanno with a body of 4000 men, and kills and takes 3000 of them	XVII.	479
4108	2801	198	Scipio in the night-time sets fire to the barracks of the armies under Syphax king of Numidia, and Asdrubal, by which means he destroyed men, beasts of burthen, and elephants, by the fire and by the sword, to the number of 40,000, and took 5000 prisoners; but Syphax and Asdrubal escaped with 2000 foot and 500 horse, who soon after recruited to the number of 30,000 men, whom Scipio again engages, and intirely overthrows; Lælius and Massinissa pursues Syphax into the heart of Numidia, where they engage him alone, defeat his army, and take himself and his son Vermina prisoners; upon which Cyrtha his capital city surrenders, where his queen Sophonisba is taken prisoner, and Massinissa marries her, but she is poisoned by order of Scipio , who honours Massinissa with the title of king and robes of royalty	XII.	286
4109	2802	197	The Romans and Carthaginians engage, and after a very obstinate battle, Mago being mortally wounded, the Romans became masters of the field, killed 5000, and took 18 standards. Mago embarked his troops for Africa, but died of his wounds on the coast of Sardinia	XVII.	493
4110	2803	196	Hannibal being recalled to Carthage, has an interview with Scipio about a peace; but differing about the conditions, they come to a battle at Zama, where the Carthaginians were entirely routed, 20,000 being killed, and as many taken prisoners, among whom was many Macedonians, and Sofipater their commander: Hannibal escaped with a few attendants, and agrees with Scipio to conclude a peace, which was confirmed by both senates on the following terms, viz. 1. The Carthaginians shall live according to their own laws, and enjoy all the cities and provinces which

Before
Christ.
X. of Agod.
Y. of
world.

which they had in Africa before the war ; but the Romans should hold Spain, with all the islands in the Mediterranean. 2d. The Carthaginians shall deliver up all the Roman deserters, fugitive slaves, prisoners of war, and all the Italians Hannibal forced to follow him. 3. That they should deliver to Scipio all their ships of war, except 10 triremes (which being done, Scipio burnt to the number of 500) and all their tamed elephants, and tame no more ; (these Scipio sent part to Rome, and gave part to king Massinissa.) 4. Carthage should enter into no war without the consent of Rome. 5. That they should restore to Massinissa all they had taken from him or his ancestors, and enter into an alliance with him. 6. That they should supply the Romans with corn, and pay their auxiliaries, till their ambassadors returned from Rome. 7. That they should pay the Romans 200 talents a year for 50 years. 8. That they should deliver up 100 such hostages as Scipio should choose, the youngest not under 14, and the oldest not more than 30 years of age. 9. Neither the peace nor the truce should take place, 'till the Carthaginians had restored the ships and effects they had taken from the Romans at their breaking the last truce, (for which they paid 25,000 pounds weight of silver.) 10. That the Roman army should leave Africa within 50 days after the conclusion of the treaty. Scipio treated the Latin and Roman deserters with extreme severity, beheading the former and crucifying the latter. Thus in the 18th year ended the second Punic war, one of the most remarkable in history for its wonderful vicissitudes and prodigious expence of blood and treasure

- 41102803 196 Upon Scipio's return to Rome, he brought into the publick treasury 120,000 pounds weight of silver ; his triumph was the most magnificent that had ever yet been at Rome ; the senate offered him the perpetual dictatorship, but he refused it, contenting himself with the glorious name of Africanus
- 41102803 196 The consul Ælius Petus sends Oppius against the Boii, who surprized him, and killed 7000 of his men : But the consul forces the Ingauni to make an alliance with Rome ; and the senate sends Lævinus with a fleet into Macedon, &c.
- 41102803 196 Nabis succeeds Machanidas in the government of Sparta, in which he behaved so monstrously cruel, as no tyrant ever before him had done
- 41112804 195 The Boii, &c. spirited up by Hamilcar, a Carthaginian captain, make a sudden irruption, and seize Placentia, and put all the inhabitants to the sword ; the Romans under the prætor Furius Purpureo march against them, and at Cremona engage and intirely defeat them, by killing Hamilcar and 30,000 of them upon the spot, for which at his return to Rome he is honoured with a triumph
- 41112804 195 Massinissa makes himself master of part of the Carthaginian territories in Africa, which the Romans oblige them to cede to him, and to enter into an alliance with him by the 5th article of the peace
- 41112804 195 Simon II. high-priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded by his son Onias III. a person of great piety and clemency
- 41122805 194 The Carthaginians sending 50 Euboic talents to pay their annual fine, upon examination they are found too light

XVII. 496

XII. 299

XII. 296

VI. 541

XII. 299

XVII. 498

X. 99

by

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
				by one fourth part, which the ambassadors are forced to borrow and make up the full sum - - -	XVII.	498
4112	2805	194		Hannibal has the command of the Carthaginian forces taken from him, and is made prætor, in which office he reformed abundance of abuses that had crept into the state, and got a law passed, that the civil judges should be chose annually, who before had those places for life, and acted very cruelly and unjustly: These reformatiions drew the hatred of the nobility upon him, so that he was forced to fly to Ephesus to king Antiochus, who received him very graciously - - -	XVII.	501
4113	2806	193		The Achæans joins the Romans and Attalus king of Pergamus against Philip king of Macedon in the siege of Corinth, but are forced to raise the siege - - -	VI.	513
4113	2806	193		The Ætolians join the Romans against the Macedonians, and with king Aminander made an irruption into Macedon and Theffaly, committing great ravages; but lying carelessly without encamping, are surprized by king Philip, who cuts most of them to pieces - - -	VII.	19
4114	2807	192		Philicles the Macedonian general, joined by Nabis tyrant of Sparta, marches into the heart of Achaia, and takes Argos, which being ceded by Philip to Nabis, he plundered it of all its wealth, and then obliged the senate to pass two decrees, 1. That all old debts should be cancelled; 2. That there should be an equal distribution of lands, &c. - - -	VI.	615
4114	2807	192		The Ætolians enter Theffaly, take and plunder many cities, destroying in the flames what they could not carry away, and kill many of the inhabitants, and sell the rest for slaves - - -	VII.	19
4114	2807	192		The Achaians attack Androsthenes, Philip's general over 6000 men, in his camp, after he had detached a good part of them into the country to ravage it, overthrew him, and kill the greatest part of the meroders, and thereby delivered Achaia from all fear of Macedon - - -	VI.	617
4114	2807	192		Flaminius the Roman consul engages Philip king of Macedon in Theffaly, upon the plains of Cynocephalæ, and entirely defeats him, killing 8000 of his men, and taking 5000 prisoners: Upon this a peace is concluded between Rome and Macedon, obliging Philip to evacuate all the places he possessed in Greece, and withdraw his garrisons before the celebration of the Isthmian games: Upon commencement of the games, freedom was declared to all Greece, by the publick herald, for which the Achæans voluntarily purchased the redemption of all the Roman slaves that had been sold by Hannibal, to the number of 12,000, for 100 talents, and presented them to the Roman proconsul Flaminius, who upon his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph that lasted three days - - -	VI.	619
4114	2808	192		Cetbegus the Roman consul engages the revolted Gauls in Italy, and gains a complete victory over them on the banks of the Mincius, and kills 30,000 on the spot, and takes 5,700 prisoners: And Minucius the other consul over-run the country of the Ligures and Boii, and laid it waste; the senate orders publick thanksgivings for these successes in all the temples at Rome for four days, and increase the number of prætors to six, appointing two for Spain, having divided it into two provinces, Hither Spain and Further Spain. The Spaniards revolt, and cut off Sempronius, prætor of Hither Spain, with most of his troops, and almost a total defection prevails in Further Spain - - -	XII.	299

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4115	2808	191	The Roman consuls destroy two Gaulish armies in Italy, plunder their country, and return to Rome loaded with booty. A new sacerdotal college is erected at Rome, called Epulones, whose office was only about religious feasts	XII.	300
4115	2808	191	Nabis tyrant of Sparta besieges Gythium, a sea-port now belonging to the Achæans; Philopæmen the Achæan prætor raises an army, and fits out a fleet to relieve it; Nabis defeats him by sea, at the first onset taking some of his ships and sinking others, escaping with great difficulty himself; but soon after he sets upon Nabis, in the night-time, fires his camp, and destroys all his forces then at Pleiæ; nevertheless Nabis took Gythium, upon which Philopæmen goes towards Lacedæmon; Nabis pursues him, a battle follows and Nabis is entirely defeated, and almost all his troops cut off; the Ætolians send him a reinforcement, who instead of assisting, murdered him, and the Spartans cut off all the Ætolians, and join themselves to the Achæans	VI.	548
4116	2809	190	The Appian law, whereby the Roman women were forbid wearing more than half an ounce of gold in their cloaths or about their persons, &c. repealed	XII.	301
4116	2809	190	The consul M. Porcius Cato engages the revolted Spaniards, and drives them out of the field; upon which all the neighbouring cities send their submissions: He orders all the fortifications of Hither Spain to be demolished, and then goes into Further Spain, taking several towns and prodigious booty in his passage; he bestows a pound weight of silver on each soldier, then returns to Rome, and is honoured with a triumph, and then retired to a private life, spending his time in study, and writing the origin of the cities in Italy, and several books of Agriculture	XII.	302
4117	2810	189	The consul Tib. Sempronius Longus engages the Cisalpine Gauls, and gains a victory over them, killing 11,000 at the expence of 5000 Romans	XII.	303
4117	2810	189	The Lacedæmonians endeavour to revolt from the Achæans, but are discovered, and severely punished, and have their walls, demolished, their mercenaries disbanded, &c.	VI.	629
4118	2811	188	Three ambassadors come to Rome from Antiochus king of Syria, to propose an alliance; but the senate requiring his renunciation to Thrace, Æolis, and Ionia, they return dissatisfied	XII.	303
4118	2811	188	P. Cornelius Scipio (surnamed Nasica) gained a considerable victory over the Lusitanians (now called Portugal) and Fulvius defeated the united forces of the Vaccæi , Vectones , and Celtiberians , (in Further Spain) and took Hilermus , one of their kings, prisoner. In Hither Spain Flaminius took Illucia , a strong town, and cleared the country of banditti. In Cisalpine Gaul the consul Merula defeated the Boii near Mutina , killed 14,000 upon the spot, took 2000 prisoners, three generals, 212 colours, and 36 Gallic carts loaded with baggage	XII.	304
4119	2812	187	The Ligurians are engaged by the proconsul Thermus , and defeated with the loss of 9000 men, and their camp taken and plundered	XII.	304
4119	2812	187	Ptolemy king of Egypt presents the Achæans with 6000 shields and 200 talents, and renews an alliance with them; Eumenes king of Pergamus offers 120 talents to them for an alliance, but they refuse him; and Seleucus king of Syria offers them 10 ships of war completely equipped, which they accept	VI.	630

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4119	2812	187	Antiochus king of Syria goes into Greece with 10,000 foot, 500 horse, and 6 elephants, having first sacrificed to Minerva at Ilium, takes Chalcis and winters there, where he married the daughter of Cleoptolemus, a beautiful woman about twenty years old, in whose house he lodged	IX.	27
4119	2812	187	The Romans coming into Greece, engage Antiochus at Thermopylæ, and entirely defeat him there with a great slaughter, Antiochus himself escaping with great difficulty to Ephesus	IX.	29
4119	2812	187	The Syrian and Roman fleets engage near Cyffus, where the Romans are conquerors, sinking ten and taking thirty of Antiochus's ships	IX.	30
4119	2812	187	Scipio Nasica having reduced the Boii absolutely, their lands were divided among the Roman colonies sent thither, and he honoured with a triumph, adorned with all sorts of spoils, chariots made after the Gallic fashion, standards, vases of brass, 1470 collars of gold, 1220 horses, 2340 pounds weight of gold, and many captives. At the same time Fulvius had an ovation for his victory in Spain, adorned with spoils of great value, 130,000 pieces of silver money, 1000 pounds of silver in bars, and 125 pounds of gold in ingots, &c.	XII.	307
4120	2813	186	Polyxenidas , admiral of the Syrian fleet, deceives Pausistratus admiral of the Rhodian fleet, kills him, and takes and destroys his fleet. Antiochus and his son Seleucus invade the kingdom of Pergamus, but are drove out again	IX.	34
4121	2814	185	Scipio the Roman consul engages Antiochus king of Syria at Magnesia, totally overthrows him, kills 50,000 foot, 4000 horse, and takes 1500 prisoners, and 15 elephants; the spoil of the camp was inexpressible; the Romans lost but 300 foot and 25 horse: All the neighbouring country submitted, and the consul was surnamed Asiaticus. Antiochus sues for peace, which is granted upon the following conditions; 1. That he should quit all pretensions to Europe, and confine himself to Asia beyond mount Taurus, pay 15,000 Euboic talents, 500 down, 2500 upon the senate's confirming the articles, and a 1000 a year for 12 years successively. 2. That he should satisfy Eumenes king of Pergamus, by paying 400 talents due to him, and that he should deliver up Hannibal the Carthaginian, Thoas the Ætolian, Mnesilochus the Acarnanian, and Philo and Eubulis, (two Chalcidians) and 20 hostages, such as Scipio should choose, his son Seleucus to be one: Antiochus sends the hostages, strangers, &c. to Rome, all but Hannibal and Thoas, who had retired: Hannibal poisoned himself	IX.	51
4121	2814	185	Antiochus dies, and is succeeded by his son Seleucus in the kingdom of Syria, where he reigned upwards of 11 years, being extremely reduced by the annual sum of 1000 talents he was forced to pay the Romans	IX.	57
4122	2815	184	The consul Cn. Manlius Vulso goes into Asia, and attacks the Gallo-Grecians, or Galatians, for their past services to Antiochus: He first goes against the Tolistobii, who had posted themselves upon mount Olympus, forced their intrenchments, killed great numbers, and took 40,000 prisoners; then went against the Tectosagi and Trocmi, and had the like success, and so forced the whole nation to sue for peace upon his terms	XII.	309
4123	2816	183	The Messenians having revolted from the Achæans by the instigation of one Dinocrates, Philopæmen marches against them

Before Christ.	Y. of Flood	Y. of world.
			them, but is defeated, taken prisoner, and poisoned. The Achæans to revenge his death send Lycortas, their most able general against them; the people frightened immediately submit, and surrender up the ringleaders of the rebellion, and those concerned in Philopæmen's death, bound in chains, who were afterwards carried to Megalopolis to be sacrificed on the deceased hero's tomb; but Dinocrates became his own executioner. Philopæmen after being burnt as usual, had his ashes carried to Megalopolis, his native city, with all imaginable funeral pomp, attended by the whole army. Statues were erected for him in most of the Grecian cities, and the magistrates of Megalopolis passed a decree, ordering a bull to be yearly sacrificed at his tomb, when a panegyrick was pronounced and hymns sung by young children - - - -
	4124	2817	182 The Roman consuls go against and reduce the revolted Ligurians, and so made all quiet between Hetruria and the Alps
	4124	2817	182 The proconsul L. Fulvius Nobilior having reduced Ætolia, upon his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph, adorned with a great number of gold crowns, a vast quantity of gold in ingots, silver in bars, and immense sums of Attic and Macedonian money, &c. He exhibited publick games, among which were the Athletæ, for the first time, and the hunting of lions and panthers. -
	4126	2819	180 Three commissioners are sent into Greece, to terminate the dispute of Greece and Philip king of Macedon; they appoint the vale of Tempe and cited the contending parties to appear there before them; the seats were so disposed that the judges sat uppermost, the accusers next, and the king lowest, as a criminal. After the pleadings of both sides were heard, the commissioners declared, Our Will and Pleasure is, That the Macedonian Garrisons immediately evacuate all the places in dispute, and that the Kingdom of Macedon be reduced to its antient Limits. Thus Rome began to determine the fate of monarchs, and treat them as vassals to their commonwealth -
	4126	2819	180 The Roman prætors in Spain, Quinctius and Calpurnius, engage the Lusitanians, and are defeated with the loss of 5000 men; but soon after engaging again, they obtained a complete victory, killing and taking 30,000 of the enemy, which quieted the country for some time -
	4126	2819	180 The two consuls going against the revolted Ligurians, Sempronius attacks the Apuans in the east of Liguria, ravaging the fields, pillaging the villages, and burning the woods, and thereby opens a way into the heart of the country while Calpurnius fights several successful battles with the Ingauni, takes six of their cities, makes many prisoners, and puts 43 of the principal ringleaders to death
	4127	2820	179 The Roman censors, Cato and Valerius Flaccus, degrade seven senators; Quinctius, for killing with his own hands a Boian nobleman; Manlius, or Manilius, for having saluted his wife in the presence of his daughters; and five others, Then fine moveables, jewels, &c. were greatly taxed
	4127	2820	179 Callicrates, Lyfiades, and Aratus, being sent ambassadors from the Achæans to Rome, Callicrates having betrayed his country by subtle speeches, brought back an answer, that the Achæans should restore the Lacedæmonian exiles, and submit absolutely to the senate's orders, &c.
	4127	2820	179 Heliodorus is sent by Seleucus king of Syria to fetch away all the treasure that was in the temple at Jerusalem; the

VI. 638

XII. 310

XII. 314

XII. 315

XII. 315

XII. 315

XII. 316

VI. 64

Vol.	Page.
X.	103
VIII.	495
XII.	317
IX.	74
X.	105
XII.	317
X.	105
XII.	317
X.	106

Before Christ.	Y. of flood.	V. of world.
179	2820	4127
179	2820	4127
176	2823	4130
176	2823	4130
175	2824	4131
175	2824	4131
174	2825	4132
173	2826	4133

high-priest and people oppose his entry, upon which the gates were ordered to be thrown down, &c.

Philip king of Macedon dies with grief, for having credulously consented to put his son Demetrius to death, and by other great misfortunes subjecting himself to the Romans, and is succeeded by his natural son Perfes, notwithstanding he had recommended his cousin Antigonus to the Macedonians, who sent an embassy to Rome, to desire their acknowledgment of his title, and to renew the alliance they had made with his father, for which he promised to be their faithful ally, to let his neighbours live in peace, and to make no war without their permission; and at home strove to ingratiate himself by all manner of popular artifices, by which means Antigonus was rejected, and Perfes established

Orcius, a tribune of the people, got the Roman senate to make a law, that no man should spend more than 100 asses of brass, or 6 s. 5 d. at one feast

Seleucus is poisoned by Heliodorus, his treasurer, who places the crown upon his own head, but is engaged by Antiochus Epiphanes, brother to the deceased Seleucus, overthrown and drove out of the kingdom, and Antiochus crowned in his stead; who conquered Egypt, and twice ravaged Jerusalem, murdering the people by thousands, and selling as many for slaves, profaned the temple, &c.

Jason the brother of Onias high-priest of the Jews, taking advantage of king Antiochus's necessity, goes to Antioch and buys the high-priesthood of him for 350 talents, with an order that Onias should be sent to and confined in Antioch; he likewise purchases for 150 talents more liberty to build at Jerusalem a Gymnasium, to train and exercise the Jewish youth in the Grecian manner, and to make them free of Antioch; which doing, the Jewish religion and customs were set aside by these heathenish practices

The proconsul Paulus Æmilius defeats the revolted Ligurians, and reduces the whole country to obedience: And Q. Fulvius Flaccus, prætor of Hither Spain, engages the Celtiberians, and kills 25,000, makes 4800 prisoners, and takes also 500 horses and 98 standards: Gentius, one of the Illyrian kings, having committed piracies in the Adriatick, submits and is pardoned

Jason the apostate Jewish high-priest sends a great number of his partizans to Antioch, whom he had made free to assist at the Olympick games, with a great sum of money to be spent in sacrifices to the Tyrian Hercules. Antigonus going against Ptolemy king of Egypt, calls at Jerusalem in his way, and is magnificently treated by Jason

Villius Tappulus got the famous plebiscitum passed, whereby it was enacted, that no man should be quæstor before he was 31 years of age, curule edile under 37, prætor under 40, consul under 43; which law continued in force till the fall of the republick

Jason the Jewish high-priest sending his brother Menelaus to Antioch, to negotiate something with Antiochus, he instead of doing his brother's business, offers the king 300 talents more, and was by him granted the high-priesthood; upon which each side struggle with their friends to keep the post; but Menelaus having promised to renounce Judaism, is assisted by Antiochus, and drives Jason away

[cxl]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.
4134	2827	172	Menelaus , high-priest of the Jews, being sent for to Antioch upon account of not paying the money he had promised the king, orders his brother Lyfimachus to strip the temple of Jerusalem of its golden vessels, &c. with which he raises money, both to pay his arrears and to bribe the courtiers into his favour; but Onias making a great outcry against him, flies to Daphne , an asylum near Antioch; Menelaus having bribed Andronicus the king's lieutenant, he went and murdered Onias , notwithstanding he solemnly swore the contrary	X.	107
4134	2827	172	The Egyptians demand Cæle-Syria and Palestine of Antiochus king of Syria, upon which, the request not being complied with, war was declared between the two nations, and carried on very vigorously	IX.	69
4134	2827	172	Claudius the consul, by taking Nefattium, Mutila, and Favaria, and the losses they had met with in the preceding years, brought all the Istrian nation under the Roman subjection: Sempronius took and killed 20,000 of the Corfican and Sardinian rebels, for which at his return to Rome he was honoured with a triumph. The consul Claudius going against the Ligurians, kills and takes 15,000 of them	XII.	319
4135	2828	171	Antiochus being returned from the reduction of Cilicia to Antioch, great complaints were exhibited against Andronicus the governor, upon hearing whereof the king ordered him to be carried to the place where he had murdered Onias , and to be put to death for so flagrant a villainy	X.	108
4136	2829	170	The Jews enraged at the great oppression and wicked Apostacy of Menelaus and his brother Lyfimachus , mutiny and kill Lyfimachus , and great part of the 3000 men he had for his guard. Menelaus corrupts Antiochus's courtiers with such large bribes, that the three Jewish deputies are condemned and executed	X.	108
4136	2829	170	The consul Petilius attempting to force the Ligurian camp, was killed by a javelin's being run through him, notwithstanding which the Romans gained a considerable victory, and killed above 5000 of the enemy	XII.	319
4137	2830	169	Antiochus enraged against the Jews, takes Jerusalem after a stout defence, kills 40,000 of them, and carries away as many of them prisoners. He stripped the temple of all its golden vessels, &c. and 1800 talents of gold and silver	X.	3
4137	2830	169	The Achæans declare war against Perfes , in conjunction with the Romans, by the persuasion of Arcon their prætor	VI.	644
4138	2831	168	Antiochus king of Syria issued out a decree, that all nations subject to him should forsake their old religion and gods, and worship the kings, under the severest penalties: This was principally levelled against the Jews, now under a most violent persecution	X.	114
4138	2831	168	The streets of Rome are paved for the first time, having not been so yet since the building the city	XII.	319
4139	2832	167	M. Popilius Laenas the consul goes against the Stelliates (a people in Liguria, bordering on the river Tanarus) kills 10,000, and takes 7000 prisoners, and 32 standards, with the loss of 3000 Romans killed, and a vast number wounded; upon which the Stelliates surrender at discretion: Popilius takes away their arms, dismantles their cities, and sells the people for slaves; but the senate thinking this procedure too severe, decrees them to be redeemed, returns their effects, and allows them money to purchase new arms, closing their decree with saying, Victory is glorious when

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			confined to the subduing an untractable enemy, but shameful when used to oppress the unfortunate
4139	2832	167	The Samaritans disown all right to the Jewish religion, and desire Antiochus to let them dedicate their temple to Jupiter, which is granted them	XII.	319
4139	2832	167	Athenas persecutes the Jews most cruelly, all over Judea, and dedicates the temple at Jerusalem to Jupiter Olympus, and sets up his statue upon the altar of burnt offerings, &c. All who were known any way to favour or practice any of the Jewish rites, were cruelly tortured and put to death, unless they immediately became heathens, and sacrificed to their idols, &c.	X.	115
4139	2832	167	Matthias (an old Jewish priest, father of the Maccabees) resolutely denies to obey the king's command by refusing to sacrifice to idols, draws a large number to him, especially the sect called the Assideans, and retires into the deserts of Judea, where they come to a Resolution to act offensively or defensively, as well on the Sabbath, as any other day, having heretofore suffered themselves to be killed on that day, &c. In these deserts the people practised the pure worship of God according to the law of Moses: But soon becoming very numerous, he marched out from city to city, overturned the idolatrous altars, opened the Jewish synagogues, collected the sacred books, &c. all which he effected in one year's time, and then died	X.	115
4139	2832	167	Perfes engages Paulus Æmilius the Roman general, is so totally overthrown that all Macedonia submits to Rome, upon which Æmilius turns the kingdom into a commonwealth, &c.	X.	123
4139	2832	167	The Romans having defeated Perfes , they appoint a commission. and order the chiefs of all the Greek cities to appear, and condemn to death and confiscation all those who had in any capacity whatever assisted Perfes ; in consequence whereof a thousand Achæans were imprisoned, &c.	VIII.	517
4139	2832	167	Antiochus king of Syria goes into Egypt with his army, and engages Ptolemy's troops between mount Cassius and Pelusium, on the frontiers of Egypt, and routs them at the first onset	VI.	647
4140	2833	166	Judas Maccabeus succeeded his father Mattathias in the command of the Jews, and with an army of but 6000 drove their enemies out of their cities, towns, villages, &c. Apollonius , governor of Jerusalem for Antiochus , raises a great army, and goes against Judas , who encreases daily; they engage, Apollonius is killed, and abundance of his men, and Judas takes a rich spoil, after having routed the whole army. Antiochus swore the entire destruction of all the Jews, and Simon (deputy-governor of Cæle-Syria) marches against them, is killed, with 800 of his men, &c. Lyfias sends 40,000 men to the governor to see the king's commands fulfilled; and to raise money he publishes that he would sell 90 Jewish captives for a talent. Gorgias coming with a detachment of 5000 men to surprize Judas's camp, Judas falls on him, kills 3000, and disperses the rest, then burns Gorgias's camp, takes his baggage, &c. which so dispirited his men, that they fled, and Judas in the pursuit killed 6000 more of them. Soon after Timotheus , governor beyond Jordan, and Bacchides comes against Judas , who by this time was grown numerous; they engage, Judas entirely overthrows them, and kills 20,000,	IX.	71

World	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ	Before		Vol.	Page
				gets much spoil, takes several strong fortresses, which he manned and armed, &c.	X.	31
4140	2833	166		Two plebeians, for the first time, are advanced to the consulate, viz. P. Acilius Ligus and C. Popilius Lænas, though afterwards it was common	XII.	320
4140	2833	166		Perfes king of Macedon, hires ruffians to murder Eumenes king of Pergamus, (for being in alliance with Rome) as he was going to Delphos	XII.	320
4140	2833	166		The commissioners sent from the Roman senate into Achaia, to enquire who had favoured Perfes king of Macedon, cites more than 1000 great men to Rome to answer the information given against them by Callicrates: Upon their arrival at Rome, they were all banished into different cities of Italy, and there kept close prisoners	VI.	649
4140	2833	166		Antiochus goes again into Egypt, engages and routs the Egyptians with great slaughter; to prevent an utter extirpation he rode about from place to place to forbid the slaughter, and so gained the love of the Egyptians; and takes Pellusium, and lead their army into the very heart of the kingdom, when all submitted to him; so that he was master of Memphis and all Egypt, except Alexandria: He got Ptolemy Philopater into his hands, and pretended to act as his friend and guardian; but Antiochus seized all that was valuable for himself, pillaging the cities, and causing unheard of desolations and cruelties to be committed, enriching himself and soldiers with the spoil	IX.	73
4140	2833	166		The Alexandrians proclaim the brother of Ptolemy Philometer king of Egypt, who took the name of Ptolemy Euergetes the second, which was afterwards changed into Physcon (or the great bellied;) but Antiochus a while after sets up Ptolemy Philometer against him, but by the mediation of Cleopatra their sister, and the Roman deputies, 'twas agreed they should reign jointly	IX.	229
4140	2833	166		Physcon having drove his brother Philometer out of Egypt, Philometer goes on foot to Rome, in a very mean garb and small attendance; but the senate ordered him lodgings, &c. suitable to his condition, and the quæstor to allow him every thing he wanted at the publick expence: Appearing before the senate, he made his ill usage appear in such a light to them, that they decreed him his crown, and sent Quinctius and Canuleius , two of their own members, to attend him to Alexandria, to see their decree put in execution, so great was the power of Rome now become. Accordingly, upon their arrival an accommodation was brought about, and Physcon was put in possession of Libya and Cyrene, and Philometer of all Egypt and the island of Cyprus, and each prince was declared independent of the other	IX.	230
4141	2834	165		Lyfias came from Antioch into Judea, with an army of 60,000 foot and 500 horse, Judas meets and engages him at Bethzura, with only 10,000 men, defeats him, and kills 5000. Lyfias returns home, and Judas goes to Jerusalem, cleanses and purifies the temple and city, and having made new altars, vessels, and vestments, out of the spoils taken from the Syrians, he began the divine worship with the dedication of the new altar, utensils, &c. on the 25th of Cisleu, having lain three years polluted and demolished, &c. This feast lasted eight days with great joy and devotion, and was annually observed by the name

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
165	2834	4141
165	2834	4141
165	2834	4141
164	2835	4142
164	2835	4142

of the feast of dedication by the whole nation, till the destruction of the temple by the Romans

Antiochus Epiphanes being greatly bruised by a fall from his chariot as it was driving furiously along, mortified, and bred such a large number of worms that made the stench intolerable, the pain whereof threw him into a frenzy, in which condition he died, but before his departure sends for Philip, his chief favourite, and appoints him guardian of his son, regent of the Syrian empire, during his son Antiochus's minority, and delivers him the seal of the empire, and the other ensigns of royalty; but this office was seized upon and usurped by Lyfias, who had proclaimed the young Antiochus Eupator; the senate of Rome, thought fit to send three persons into Syria to perform that office, with the cruel instructions, that as soon as they should be in possession of the guardianship, to burn all the ships with decks, that the king of Syria had, to hamstring all his elephants, and to weaken by all means possible the strength of that powerful kingdom

Physcon dissatisfied with his share, petitions the senate to add Cyprus to his part, which they do, but Philometor refuses to comply. The Cyrenians disliking Physcon's government, revolt; he goes against them and is defeated. Physcon sends ambassadors to Rome; the senate confirms their former decree, orders Philometor's ambassadors to be gone in five days, and renounces all friendship and alliance with him: Physcon receiving this news, and having quelled the rebellion, behaved so disagreeably to the Cyrenians, that they set upon and wounded him in several places, leaving him for dead; but recovering, he goes to Rome, shews his scars, and charges his brother with the assassination: The senate angry with Philometor for not submitting to their decree about Cyprus, refuse to hear his ambassadors, and send five ambassadors along with Physcon to settle him in Cyprus, requiring all their allies in those parts to furnish him with forces for that purpose. Philometor comes against him in person, engages and routs his forces: Physcon shuts himself up in Lanitho, a city of Cyprus, where he is besieged, taken, and delivered to Philometor, who forgave him, restored Libya and Cyrene to him, and gave him his daughter in marriage, and other lands in lieu of Cyprus, and so ended the war between the two brothers

The senate make two laws, viz. That all under 46 years of age should appear in order to be incorporated in the legions; and, That all come from Macedon within three years last past should return to their duty

Judas the Jewish captain falls on the Idumeans, &c. at Acra-batene, and kills 20,000 then drove the children of Bean into their two strong towers, where he besieged them; but some of the officers having received 70,000 drachms to let part of them escape, he put them to death for it, and took the fortresses by assault, put both garrisons (consisting of 20,000) to death, and burnt the towers to the ground

Timotheus the Syrian general comes into Judea with a great army; Judas meets him, kills 30,500 foot, and 600 horse, and forced him to retreat to Gazara, whither he follows and besieges him, takes the place, and slays him, his brother, and Apollophanes another Syrian general. The successes of Judas made the Jews every where hated and persecuted, to relieve whom Judas first fell on the city Basfora, took it, destroyed all the males, delivered his brethren, and set fire to the city ; then engages another Syrian general, named Timotheus, slew 8000 of his men, and dispersed the rest ; then went to the other Gileaditish cities, and served them as he had done Basfora, and then returned to Jerusalem loaden with spoil and a vast number of delivered Jews. Simon, Judas's brother, was as successful in Galilee ; but Joseph and his brother going against Jamnia, was defeated by Gordius, having 2000 men killed. Judas goes against Hebron, the metropolis of Idume, takes and demolishes it, with all the neighbouring towns, from whence he carried off great plunder ; he then went through the land of the Philistines, destroyed their fortresses, and all their altars and groves dedicated to idolatry

4143 2836 163 Perfes is intirely routed at Pydna by the Roman consul Paulus Æmilius, who killing 20,000 of his troops, &c. then ships himself and money (amounting to 2000 talents) for Samothrace: Æmilius gives the plunder of the camp to the infantry, and of the adjacent country to the horse, but would not suffer the city to be medled with; and all the royal treasure he carried to Rome. In two days all Macedon, except Pydna, submitted to Rome. Perfes is taken prisoner by the Roman admiral. Æmilius at Amphipolis changes the Macedonian government into a number of republicks, then stript the kingdom of its wealth, and returns to Italy with the two kings, Perfes and Gentius, prisoners, who graced the consul's triumph -

4143 2836 163 Demetrius, son of Seleucus Philopator, who was kept as a hostage at Rome, making his escape from thence, upon his arrival in Syria is universally acknowledged king; and Lyfias and his ward Antiochus Eupator being delivered to him, he orders them both to be put to death. He is honoured by the Babylonians with the surname of Soter, and is also acknowledged king by the senate of Rome

4143	2836	163	Demetrius sets up and supports one Holofernes , a pretended child of the queen of Cappadocia , in opposition to Ariathes , the true heir	-	-	-
------	------	-----	--	---	---	---

4143 2836 163 Lyfias the Syrian, who had usurped the regency, comes into Judea with an army of 80,000 men, all the cavalry of the kingdom, and 80 elephants, and besieged Bethsura; but being defeated by Judas, with the loss of 11,000 foot and 1600 horse, strikes up a peace with him, by which the Jews were allowed the free exercise of their religion every where; but the other neighbouring countries being dissatisfied with it, enter Judea with 120,000 foot and 5000 horse, under the command of Timotheus, and put all to the fire and sword; but Judas attacked him, and killed 30,000 of them, and pursuing them comes up with them again at the city of Carnion, many of them taking sanctuary in the temple of Atargatis, he consumed it and them with fire, and puts all in the town to the sword, to the number of 25,000, and razed the city to the ground; after which he made himself master of Idumea, and the Philistines country, and took Azotus, or Ashdod; then returning to Jerusalem, he besieged the Syrian garrison in the fortress there, to whose relief came 100,000 foot, 20,000 horse, 32 elephants, and 300 chariots of war, the king in person, with Lyfias the regent: They first besieged

[cxlv]			Vol.	Page.
Before Christ.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of world.
			ed Bethfura, where Judas attacks them in the night, kills 4000, and puts the whole in confusion, and retires without the loss of one man; but after another engagement, Judas having but a small army, was obliged to retire to Jerusalem, and Bethfura forced to surrender, from whence Antiochus marches to Jerusalem. In the mean time Philip, whom the late king had appointed regent and guardian of his son, raised a great army, and seized Antioch, the capital of Syria, and took upon him the government of the kingdom; upon this Lysias makes peace with the Jews, and goes against Philip
			IX.	99
	4143 2836	163	Ariarathes , king of Cappadocia, offers the Roman ambassadors an army to protect their persons, and to support them in their pretended regencies, but they refuse it, and go unarmed in the senate's name to Laodicea (a sea-port town) and caused the Syrian ships to be burnt, and the elephants disabled, for which Octavius was killed in the Gymnasium there by an African. Demetrius, now at Rome, petitions the senate a second time, but is refused; upon which the senate sends three ambassadors into Syria to watch the event there. Upon Demetrius's landing in Tripolis, he is acknowledged and proclaimed king; and he gave out that the Roman senate had sent him, and that they would support him; upon which all the army and officers came over to him; the city and strong holds strive who shall first submit; so that in a few days the whole kingdom was his: Antioch threw open her gates to him, and joyfully invite him to the palace of his ancestors. Lysias and Eupator are seized and delivered to him, and both put to death. Demetrius immediately delivers the Babylonians from the tyranny of Timarchus and Heraclides, by putting the first to death and banishing the last, for which he is called Soter
	4143 2836	163	IX.	106
	4143 2836	163	XII.	328
	4143 2836	163	Paulus Æmilius being one of this year's censors, by the census taken 337,522 citizens are found in Rome fit to bear arms. Soon after he died in a private station, very poor, notwithstanding the large sums he had taken from the enemy and brought into the publick treasury
	4143 2836	163	XII.	328
	4143 2836	163	The consul Tib. Sempronius Gracchus goes with an army against the revolted Ligurians; and the consul M. Juventus Thalna sails into Corsica, to quell a rebellion there, both which were easily effected
	4144 2837	162	XII.	328
	4144 2837	162	VII.	453
	4144 2837	162	The Rhodians having taken Calynda, a famous city of Caria, sends to offer it to the Roman senate, and so made up all differences between them
	4144 2837	162	The Roman senate, instead of making Illyricum and Macedon two Roman provinces, change them into two republics, and send 10 commissioners to settle them. Æmilius plunders Epirus: When Anicius, Octavius, and Æmilius returned to Rome, they were all honoured with triumphs, of which Æmilius's was by much the finest that Rome had ever seen. Rome was so enriched by the spoils brought from Macedon, that she had no occasion to tax the people from this time to the time of Augustus
	4144 2837	162	XII.	327
	4144 2837	162	Demetrius (now king of Syria) sends presents to Rome, which are accepted, and gets himself acknowledged king of Syria by the senate
	4145 2838	161	IX.	107
	4145 2838	161	Demetrius king of Syria, by the wicked misrepresentations of

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
			the Jewish high-priest, who went to Antioch on purpose to make Demetrius large presents, and to complain of Nicanor the Syrian general, who had concluded a peace with the Jews, sends positive commands for his general Nicanor to break the peace he had concluded with Judas, and not to sheath his sword till he had killed him
		4146	2839
160			Nicanor marches into the neighbourhood of Bethoron with an army of 35,000 men to attack Judas, where they engage; Nicanor is killed, and his army routed, and the Jews kill them all in their flight, so that not one returned to Antioch: This victory was obtained on the 13th day of Adar (February) which is kept as a festival annually ever since by the name of the Day of Nicar
		4146	2839
160			Alcimus , a Jewish apostate, being general of the Syrian army and governor of Jerusalem, was struck with the dead palsy, and died immediately, after he had blasphemed the Jewish religion, and ordered the wall of the temple to be demolished
		4146	2839
160			Judas , general of the Jews in Judea, sends Eupolemus son of John, and Jason the son of Eleazer to Rome, with proposals of an alliance, &c. which being accepted, the senate made a decree, and sent it ingraven upon copper to Jerusalem, importing that the Jews were thenceforth acknowledged as friends and allies of the Romans, that both nations should succour each other, and their allies, &c. and they sent a letter to Demetrius king of Syria, enjoining him to forbear hostilities against the Jews, threatening him with an invasion by land and sea if he did not comply with their orders
		4146	2839
160			Demetrius sends Bacchides and Alcimus into Gallilee, with an army of 20,000 foot and 2000 horse, and kills a great many Jews; then goes to Eleasa, where Judas had only 3000 men, who all deserted him but 800, with which he was forced to engage Bacchides, but being overcome with numbers he was slain, in the 6th year of his generalship and the 3d year of his high-priesthood, and was succeeded by his brother Jonathan (surnamed Apphus) but the people through fear and famine submitted to Bacchides as their governor, upon which broke out a terrible persecution
		4147	2840
159			Demetrius king of Syria having offered his sister Laodicea to Ariarathes king of Cappadocia for his wife, which he not accepting, Demetrius sets up one Holofernes as the right heir to the crown of Cappadocia: He goes with his army and drives Ariarathes out of Cappadocia, and set Holofernes on the throne, notwithstanding he was assisted by Eumenes king of Pergamus by express order of the senate. Ariarathes flew to Rome for safety, whither Holofernes having sent presents and ambassadors, they are ordered to reign jointly; but Attalus assisting Ariarathes, drives Holofernes out of the kingdom, and Ariarathes reigns alone, and Holofernes retires to Antioch to his patron Demetrius
		4148	2841
158			Jonathan the Jewish general discovers a plot laid against him and his friends, to seize and deliver them into the hands of Bacchides; he gets the chief of the conspirators and puts 50 of them to death. Bacchides besieges him in Bethbasi, with a very numerous army: Jonathan and his brother Simon by frequent sallies cuts off great part of it, and at last routed him. Bacchides puts many of

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			those to death who had invited him out of Syria. Upon this a peace is concluded, and Bacchides returns to Antioch, and Jonathan is appointed governor of Judea, and settled in Mickmash, and made very severe examples of the apostate Jews - - -	X.	168
4149	2842	157	The Dalmatians bordering upon Illyricum made incursions and committed great robberies there, though tributary to Rome: Fannius being sent ambassador from the senate, they would scarce give him audience - - -	XII.	330
4149	2842	157	Massinissa having invaded Tyfca, a rich province of Carthage, ten commissioners are sent by the senate to settle the dispute; but the Carthaginians appealing to the settlement formerly made, Cato becomes their enemy, and always prompted the senate to a war - - -	XII.	331
4150	2843	156	The consul C. Marcius Figulus having influenced the senate to proclaim war against the Dalmatians, goes against them, and is defeated - - -	XII.	331
4151	2844	155	The consul Scipio Nasica besieges and takes Delminium, the metropolis of Dalmatia, and then brought the whole country under subjection, all in one campaign - - -	XII.	331
4152	2845	154	The consul L. Posthumius Albinus goes into Cisalpine Gaul, to assist the inhabitants of Marseilles against the Ligurians, defeats them and the Deceatæ, and reduced their whole country, comprehending the present territory of Antibes and Grasse: This was the first Roman conquest beyond the Alps - - -	XII.	332
4153	2846	153	Demetrius having given himself up to pleasure, particularly drunkenness, neglects the government, and gains the ill-will of his people; upon which one Alexander Balas is set up by the Romans, Egyptians, &c. to be the son of Antiochus Epiphanes, who lays claim to the crown at the head of a great army, upon which Demetrius engages him, is overcome, and loses his life and kingdom - - -	IX.	115
4153	2846	153	Q. Fulvius Nobilior and T. Annius Lucus being chose consuls, the exigencies of state requiring it, they enter upon their office the 1st of January, which from this time forward was observed instead of the 15th of March, which used to be the day. Fulvius was sent into Spain, where all things was in an uproar, where being arrived, he marched against the Segedani and Aravacæ; their general Carus with 25,000 men lay in ambush for the consul in a wood, surprized him, and killed 6000 legionaries; but pursuing them too eagerly, the Roman horse attacked him and killed him, and killed 6000 of his men. The Spaniards having chose two new generals, are again attacked near Numantia, and overthrown by the elephants sent by Massinissa ; the consul endeavoured to scale the walls, but one of the elephants being wounded, made such a hideous noise, that the rest turned upon the Roman army and put them in disorder; the Numantians sally out at the same time, and defeat the consul's troops, and kill 4000 of them: After this defeat great numbers of his men perished with cold, want and fatigue, he keeping them encamped all the winter - - -	XII.	333
4153	2846	153	The Roman prætor Mummius engaging the Lusitanians, puts them to the rout; but pursuing them disorderly, they rally, kill 9000 of his men, and take and plunder his camp: Being now reduced to 5000, the Romans wait in an advantageous post to retrieve their honour, from whence

Y. of world.	Y. of Aod.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			they cut off a Lusitanian detachment, and recover the Roman standards
4153	2846	153	Demetrius king of Persia, to prevent Jonathan the Jewish general's siding with Alexander Balas against him, offers him by letter great presents to accept him as his friend and ally, to give the Jews liberty all over his dominions to exercise their own religion unmolested, to set free what hostages and captives he had, &c. upon which Jonathan repairs to Jerusalem, repairs both the city and temple, &c. Balas writes to him, offers him the high-priesthood, and sends him a purple robe and golden crown, which he accepted and joined him	XII.	333
4154	2847	152	Andriscus , a native of Adrymitium, pretends to be Philip, one of the late Perseus's sons, sets up, and is acknowledged king of Macedon; but after various battles and successes, is at last led captive to Rome, where he was a principal trophy in Metellus the consul's triumph	X.	169
4154	2847	152	M. Claudius Marcellus goes into Spain with 8000 foot and 500 horse, was attacked, but put the Spaniards to flight, and made dreadful havock of the fugitives, &c. They sue for peace, which he grants, but the senate refuses to confirm it	VIII.	534
4154	2847	152	A war breaks out in Africa between Massinissa and the Carthaginians, and Archobazanes, king of part of Numidia, joins the Carthaginians. The Roman senate send Scipio Nasica to compose the differences, which he does, and Massinissa was ordered to restore the lands that occasioned the quarrel; but Gisco, a Carthaginian senator, stirs up the multitude, so that Nasica was forced to fly to Rome, and 40 Carthaginian senators that approved the peace were put to death	XII.	333
4155	2848	151	The tribunes of the people of Rome went so far as to imprison the two consuls L. Licinius Lucullus and A. Posthumius Albinus, for forcing some Roman youths to serve in the army designed for Spain; but Scipio Æmilianus, son of Paulus Æmilius, offering his service, the rest followed: But both the consuls in their several provinces acted most shamefully, covetous, mercenary, and vile	XII.	334
4156	2849	150	Alexander Balas (now king of Syria) invites Jonathan the Jewish chief to his marriage, where he was received with great respect at Ptolemais, when the king clothed him in purple, set him by him, and declared him generalissimo of Judea, confirmed his former grants, &c. The Jews now had respite every where, and in Egypt Onias and Dositheus were the king's chief favourites, so that Onias built a temple, and was high-priest thereof, &c.	XII.	335
4156	2849	150	A bloody war breaks out between Massinissa and the Carthaginians; a battle is fought, wherein the Carthaginians lose 50,000 men, &c.	X.	172
4156	2849	150	P. Juventus Thalna and C. Cælius are sent by the Roman senate against the new king of Macedon; they engage, and the Romans are entirely routed, and Juventus and Cælius slain; and thus Macedon was again freed, and a passage opened into Thessaly, which he united to Macedon	XII.	337
4156	2849	150	Three hundred of the exiles of Achaia return home from Rome, out of a thousand, after seventeen years imprisonment	VIII.	541
4157	2850	149	The Carthaginians care for Philip, now king of Macedon, and desire his assistance against the Romans, which he pro-	VI.	652

mises, but neglects to perform it, and gives himself up to cruelty and vice, plundering his people, and murdering all that disliked him or that he disliked

VIII. 541

4157 2850 149 The Romans take the advantage of the Carthaginians, distress and declare war against them: Utica, the second city in Africa submits; the consuls M. Manilius Nepos and L. Marcius Censorinus go against them with 80,000 foot, 4000 horse, and a fleet of 50 quinquerems, &c.

4157 2850 149 The Carthaginians send ambassadors to make their submission to Rome, who first require 300 young noblemen for hostages, which being delivered to the consuls at Lilybæum, were told, when they came to Utica they should know what was further required of them; accordingly, when they come there, the Romans demanded, 1. A supply of corn for their troops. 2. To surrender all their triremes, and military machines, and bring in all their arms to the Roman camp, which were all comply'd with; and then Censorinus ordered them to demolish their city, but they resolved rather to die than yield to this. Manilius attacks Carthage by land, and Marcius by sea, but Asdrubal with an army of 20,000 men, annoyed Manilius very much, so that the siege went on slowly; but Manilius took the strong city of Tezaga, killed 12,000, and took 6000 prisoners

XVII. 529

4157 2858 149 Massinissa approaching his end, desires Æmilianus to assist his three sons, Micipsa, Gulussa, and Mastanabal, with his advice, and to divide his dominions among them, which he performed in the most prudent and equitable manner

XVII. 580

4157 2850 149 Æmilianus by his address gained Phameas, the general of the Carthaginian horse, to come over to the Romans, with 2200 horse under his command

XVII. 529

4157 2850 149 The Achæans quarrelling with the Lacedæmonians, sends Democritus, their prætor, against them, who defeats them, and kills 1000 of their men

VI. 655

4158 2851 148 Apollonius, governor of Cælo-Syria and Palestine, revolt to Demetrius, son of the late king of Syria, in opposition to Alexander Balas, now king; Jonathan the Jewish chief goes against him; but Joppa shutting its gates against him, he took it in fight of the enemy: He then engaged the army and routed it; the foot fled to Azotus, and took sanctuary in the temple of Dagon; the Jews pursue them, take the town, and destroy it and the temple by fire. Thus he killed 8000

X. 174

4158 2851 148 Metellus is sent by the senate against Philip king of Macedon; they engage several times with various success, but at last Metellus routed him, and he flies to the Thracians, where he raises another army and engages Metellus again, and is again overthrown with great slaughter, then he flew to Byzas, a Thracian prince, who delivered him up to Metellus, who was honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome, at which Philip was led. Metellus appointed new magistrates, and wholly changed the Macedonian government

VIII. 544

4158 2851 148 Soon after the taking Philip prisoner, one Alexander sets himself up, pretending to be another of Perseus's sons, but is quickly defeated, and Macedonia declared a Roman province

VIII. 544

4158 2851 148 Diaus the Achæan prætor, at the request of Metellus, makes a truce with the Lacedæmonians, which Menalcidas their general

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Before Christ.
			general breaks; the Spartans would have punished him for it, but he killed himself to prevent it -
4158	2851	148	The Roman deputies or commissioners landing at Corinth, order Corinth, Lacedæmon, Argos, Heraclea, and Orchomenes to be separated from the general or Achæan league, and to be governed by their own laws independently of the confederacy. The populace enraged, fall upon all the Lacedæmonians they could find, and either stript them or put them to death; those who flew to the commissioners for refuge were dragged out from thence, though the deputies threatened them with the highest resentment of Rome. Upon their return they did all they could to instigate the senate against them, who thought fit only to send three new deputies for the present -
4158	2851	148	The consul Calpurnius Piso invests Clupea, but is obliged to abandon it with shame and disgrace, the inhabitants by frequent sallies having killed great numbers of his men. He then went to Neapolis, which, though a neutral town, and even under the protection of Rome, he plundered, &c. -
4159	2852	147	Metellus sends deputies to Corinth, to prevail with the Achæans to be quiet with Lacedæmon, who are ill treated and drove away with all manner of affronts, and Critolaus their prætor declares open war with the Lacedæmonians, and consequently with Rome, under whose protection they are. Metellus engages Critolaus, kills him and many others, takes 1000 prisoners, and disperses the rest, then cuts 1000 Arcadians to pieces. Diæus the prætor succeeding Critolaus, orders 12,000 slaves to be freed and armed, all the jewels, and gold and silver ornaments to be brought in to raise money, &c. -
4159	2852	147	The Roman prætor Metellus coming to Thebes, found Pythias the governor and most of the inhabitants were fled, so that he entered without opposition, used the people with great clemency, and saved the temples and houses from destruction. The people of Megara opened their gates to him, and put him in full possession of Achaia. Metellus sends three deputies to Corinth to treat of peace, but Diæus imprisoned them and condemned them to die
4159	2852	147	The consul Scipio Æmilianus takes Megalia, a part of Carthage, which so enraged Asdrubal the governor, that he caused all the Roman prisoners which he had to be thrown headlong from the ramparts, in the sight of the Roman army, after having cut off their hands and feet, and pulled out their eyes and tongues -
4159	2852	147	Lælius, lieutenant of Æmilianus, engages Diogenes the Carthaginian general at Nepheris, overcomes, kills and takes 80,000 of his men: Upon this the Africans revolt to the Romans, who take the city of Nepheris, and soon after Cartage was taken by storm. Asdrubal and many others submitted to the Romans, but his wife and 900 deserters committed themselves to the flames, and thereby destroyed themselves, the citadel, and the famous temple of Æsculapius: The plunder and spoil was past all belief
4159	2852	147	A new pretended Philip sets up for the throne of Macedon, and makes a great progress, many of the people and cities joining him. Junius Tremelius is sent against him with a great Roman army; they engage, and Philip is defeated and slain, and Macedonia made a Roman province, which D. Junius Syllanus governing with great severity and

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
				and injustice, the Macedonians accuse him to the senate, who cite him to appear ; but Titus Manlius Torquatus his father got the matter to be referred to him, and to be heard at his own house ; the deputies appear, and the father condemns the son, who soon after hanged himself	VIII. 547
		4160 2853	146	Ptolemy Philometer gives his daughter Cleopatra to wife to Demetrius, the son of Demetrius Soter, and goes against Balas near Antioch ; they engage, where Balas is entirely overthrown, and escaping with only 500 horse, goes into Arabia, where he is murdered by Zabdiel. Ptolemy died of his wounds, and Demetrius ascended the throne of Syria, and called himself Nicator, or the conqueror. Jonathan the Jewish chief being cited by Demetrius to Ptolemais, went, and there so answered the complaints exhibited against him, that the king annexed to Judea the three governments of Apherama, Lydda, and Ramatha, and freed the country from all future taxes for 300 talents ready money
		4160 2853	146	The consul Mummius comes before Corinth with a Roman army, consisting of 23,000 foot and 3500 horse, besides a large number of Cretan archers. Dæus comes out, is coaxed into a snare, and is entirely defeated ; upon which he runs full speed to his house in Megalopolis, sets it on fire, throws his wife and children into the flames, and poisons himself ; the inhabitants fly out of the city, the Romans enter it, put what men they find in it to the sword, and sell the women and children for slaves ; then the city was ransacked by the soldiers, and fire being put to all the corners of the city at the same time, reduced it all to ashes, and afterwards the walls were demolished : Thus Corinth was destroyed 950 years after its foundation by Aletes the son of Hippotes. Soon after commissioners came from Rome, who abolished popular government in all the cities of Greece, and appointed governors under the Roman prætor, who was sent annually. Thus Greece was reduced to a Roman province. Mummius at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph, adorned with the finest paintings, statues, &c. of Greece, to an immense value	IX. 127
		4161 2854	145	Demetrius king of Syria being angry with the Antiochians, demanded their arms, upon which the inhabitants revolt, and besiege the king in his palace with an army of 120,000 men. Jonathan comes with 3000 men to assist Demetrius ; they fall out, and kill 100,000, and set fire to the city ; upon which the rest submit, and a pardon is granted them, notwithstanding which Demetrius put many to death, confiscated their estates, and oppressed them with all manner of cruelty, and then breaks with Jonathan, demanding taxes, &c.	VI. 672
		4162 2855	144	Viriatrus the Lusitanian general had gained great advantages for seven years together in Spain, over the several prætors, in three pitched battles and several skirmishes ; but this year Q. Fabius Æmilianus gained two victories over him, but the senate did not grant him a triumph, it being customary not to allow that honour unless the general had killed at least 5000 of the enemy in one battle	IX. 129
		4162 2855	144	Tryphon comes into Syria, with Antiochus the son of Alexander Balas, and claims the crown, stiling himself guardian and protector of the young king. Demetrius being hated, is deserted by many, and forced to come to a battle, is	XII. 358

Before Christ.	X. of Hood.	X. of world.
144	2855	4162
143	2856	4163
142	2857	4164
142	2857	4164
142	2857	4164
141	2858	4165

entirely routed, all his elephants taken, and he forced within the walls of Seleucia for shelter. Antiochus goes strait to Antioch, whose gates being opened to him, he mounts the throne of Syria, and has the surname of Theos given him

144. Antiochus Theos king of Syria confirms to Jonathan the Jewish chief all the former grants of favour, and adds several others to them; he made Simon his brother general of all his forces, and governor of all the sea coasts. Jonathan and his brother crossed the Jordan at the head of their troops, and defeated Demetrius's forces, killing 3000, &c. They sent an embassy to Rome to renew their alliance with the senate, ordering them at their return to do the same with Lacedæmon and all Greece

143. Tryphon prevails upon Jonathan to disband his troops, and wheedled him to Ptolemais with only 1000 men, which being done, Tryphon murders all his retinue, and seizes him, demands a large ransom for him and his two sons hostages, upon receipt whereof he murdered him and his sons also. Simon his brother is declared commander and high-priest of the Jews at Jerusalem: Immediately he raised a considerable army, and finished the walls of the city; then sends to renew the alliance with Rome, Lacedæmon, and Greece, which was readily complied with; then sends to Demetrius, offers to assist him in the recovery of his kingdom, and presents him with a gold crown; Demetrius accepts the conditions, ratifies all his dignities, and stiled him prince and high-priest of the Jews, which the Sanhedrim also confirmed to him, and his children after him

142. The Syrian garison in the strong fortrefs of Acra, after two years siege, capitulates and marches out; Simon and his men enter, with palms in their hands, trumpets and other instruments founding, accompanied with songs, &c. he first ordered it to be lustrated and cleansed from all idols, but afterwards he resolved to demolish it, and the hill upon which it stood, which took up three years to compleat

142. Metellus gained so vast a reputation by his strict adherence to military discipline and generosity to captives, that many places submit voluntarily to him; and he admits the Nertobrigians in Hither Spain into an alliance with Rome; but at the same timethe consul Servilianus was defeated in Further Spain, by Viriathus, with the loss of 3000 men

142. Metellus goes into Further Spain in the winter, and recovers Escadia, Gemella, Obolcula, &c. put some of the head revoltors to death, and sold 9000 for slaves; but hearing his successor was near at hand, was so exasperated with not having the command till the war was finished, that he disbanded the best part of his troops, exhausted the magazines, let the elephants die, and broke and threw into the river the arrows designed for the Cretan archers

141. The consul Pompeius Rufus succeeding Metellus in the command of the army, was offered very advantageous terms by the Termantians and Numantines; but he insisting upon their delivering up their arms, a new war was begun: He besieges Numantia, but is forced to raise it, and then goes towards Termantia, where his success is worse, losing abundance of his men. In Further Spain Viriathus overcame the consul Servilianus, and concludes a peace with him

Vol.	Page.
IX.	129
X.	177
X.	183
X.	185
XII.	360
XII.	361
XII.	365

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4165	2858	141	Upon the death of Ptolemy Philometor king of Egypt, his brother Ptolemy Physcon, king of Cyrene, &c. marries Cleopatra, widow of the deceased, and immediately puts her son Philometor to death, in his mother's arms, on the marriage day, and continues murdering all those who disapproved of the fact, and ever after behaved in the most cruel and wicked manner of any of his predecessors	IX.	241
4166	2859	140	Simon renews his alliance with Rome, and sends a present of a golden shield weighing 1000 Minæ, (about 60,000 l. of our money;) the senate writes to the kings of Syria, Egypt, Pergamus, and Cappadocia in their favour, &c.	X.	188
4166	2859	140	Q. Servilius Cæpio breaks the peace with Viriathus, and at first reduces him to extreme difficulties, and then influences with large promises Audax, Ditalio, and Minur, his favourites, to murder him; which they performing, he denies them their reward. One Tantalus succeeds him, who besieging Saguntum, was surprized by Cæpio, defeated, and forced to surrender at discretion; which put an end to this troublesome war, after it had continued 14 years	XII.	366
4167	2860	139	The Roman senate unjustly breaks the peace that Pompey had made, notwithstanding they had delivered up the deserters, hostages, and money agreed upon; but Popilius who came with the Roman army against them, is so weakened by the defeat they give him, that he could not attempt any thing further this campaign	XII.	366
4167	2860	139	Cendebeus, governor of all the coasts of Phœnicia and Palestine, comes with a great army, commits depredations in Judea; but John and Judas, the sons of Simon, going against them, engage and rout him with a great slaughter	X.	190
4167	2860	139	Cleopatra brings forth a son while his father Physcon was performing certain religious Egyptian rites at Memphis, and he called his name Memphites. At his return to Alexandria, he gave his guards (consisting of Greek and Asiatick mercenaries) leave to plunder and murder the inhabitants of that city at their pleasure, who accordingly used them with inexpressible cruelties; those who escaped death fled away, so that the city was uninhabited; to supply it with people he invited strangers from all parts to come and live there, and gave them the former citizens houses to dwell in, and endowed them with large privileges: But soon after he used these new inhabitants as ill as he had done the former. He fell in love with his wife's daughter, named also Cleopatra, first debauched her, then divorced her mother and married her. Hated by all, the murmurs of the people made him dread an insurrection; to prevent which, as the young people were assembled in the Gymnasium to see and perform the publick exercises, he caused it to be set on fire, and placed his mercenaries at the avenues, so that what escaped the fire fell by the sword: The inhabitants run to the palace, set it on fire, and reduced it to ashes; but Physcon, his young wife, and Memphitis his son escaped to the island of Cyprus; and the Alexandrians set his divorced wife Cleopatra upon the throne: He sends for his son, who was governor of Cyrene, and when he came to Cyprus to him, he caused him to be assassinated; upon which the people pull down and dash to pieces all the statues that had been erected to him, and he in requital caused his young son to be killed, cut to pieces and put in a box, and so sent to Alexandria to his mother for a present

World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Christ	Before		Page
4168	2861	138		on her birth-day, which still greatly heightened the resentment of the people	IX. 243
4168	2861	138		Attalus Philometor , son of Eumenes. succeeds his uncle Attalus in the kingdom of Pergamus, and gives himself up to all manner of cruelties, causing most of his relations and best friends to be murdered, &c. He became melancholly, and shut himself up, and after a reign of five years died, and left the Romans heirs of all his goods, in consequence of which they seized his kingdom, &c. and made it a province under the name of Asia Propria	IX. 499
4168	2861	138		The rebellion of the slaves in Sicily breaks out, who choose one Eunus for their king (who took the name of Antiochus) under whom they commit extravagant cruelties, &c. and defeat Manlius the governor of Sicily, and take and plunder his camp: The like happened to P. Cornelius Lentulus and Caius Calpurnius Piso the two following years, by which means the rebels grew very strong, and were reinforced by one Cleon, a native of Cilicia, with 5000 men, so that when the prætor L. Plautius Hypsæus landed in Sicily, he found 20,000 of them in arms, under sundry leaders. Hypsæus no sooner appeared in the field with his 8000 men, but he was attacked and defeated; and so they went on continually for many years, taking and subduing all before them	XII. 390
4169	2862	137		Brutus passes the Minus in Further Spain, enters the country of the Bracarini, and though opposed with the utmost bravery, both by men and women, yet he at last conquers the whole country. But Mancinus the Roman consul decamping from Numantia, is pursued but by 4000 Numantines, has 20,000 men killed, his camp taken, and the rest dispersed. A peace is concluded, to which the consul, quæstor, and all the chief officers swear for the inviolable performance	XII. 367
4170	2863	136		Simon , with his two sons John and Judas being invited to an entertainment by his son-in-law Ptolemy, (whom he had made governor of Jericho) the son of Abadus, they going, after eating and drinking very friendly and cheerfully, are treacherously murdered by some ruffians Ptolemy had hired for that purpose: Hyrcan, another son of Simon's, was immediately proclaimed prince and high-priest of the Jews, who fortified the city and raised a good army	X. 193
4171	2864	135		Antiochus comes with a great army, and drives Hyrcan into the city of Jerusalem, which he besieged, and compelled the Jews to accept of a peace, upon the conditions of surrendering up their arms, demolishing their city wall, paying a tribute for Joppa, &c. that the fortrefs of Acra should be rebuilt, and that they should receive a Syrian garison: To get off the last, Hyrcan paid 500 talents, 300 down, 200 some time after. Hostages are given for the due performance of this peace	X. 193
4171	2864	135		Brutus makes great conquests in Lusitania, and penetrates into the country of the Callaici, engages an army of 60,000 Spaniards, kills 50,000, takes 6000 prisoners, and almost extirpates the whole nation. The Vardæi, a people of Illyricum, revolt, and refuse all amicable measures; upon which the consul Flaccus goes against and effectually reduces them, and has the honour of a triumph for his services	XII. 370
4172	2865	134		Jugurtha is sent by Micipsal with an army of Numidians to the assistance of the consul Scipio into Spain, where he contracts an intimacy with Marius	XII. 371

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Page.
4173	2866	133	Scipio besieges Numantia (a city difficult of access, situate on a hill, with large fields within its walls, and about three miles in compass) with 60,000 men. The Numantines sue for peace; Scipio requires them to deliver up the city, themselves and arms, at discretion; the Lutians would have come to their assistance, but Scipio being informed of it, demanded the ringleaders, who to the number of 400 young men were delivered up, whose right-hands he cut off: The city reduced by famine surrenders, and all Spain soon after submits	XII. 375
4173	2866	133	Tib. Gracchus , tribune of the people, endeavouring to put the Licinian law in execution, (which forbids any one holding more than 500 acres of land) a great struggle and riot being several times raised, he was at last killed, and 300 of his friends, and their bodies thrown into the Tiber : Caius Bilius was shut up in a cask with snakes and vipers, and so perished	XII. 386
4173	2866	133	L. Calpurnius Piso the Roman consul goes against the rebel-slaves in Sicily, and attacks them under the walls of Messana , which they had invested, put them to the rout, obliged them to raise the siege, and killed 6000 of them upon the spot	XII. 390
4174	2867	132	The consul P. Rupilius goes into Sicily, besieges the slaves in Taurominium , which being of difficult access on all sides, he reduced it to such straits by famine that they eat one another: At last, the city being betrayed by a Syrian slave named Serapion , the consul ordered the governor and all his garison to be thrown headlong from the top of the rock. From hence the consul went to Enna , where king Eunus was, which after an obstinate defence was treacherously delivered up to the consul, who put all the slaves to the sword: In these two places 20,000 rebels were killed; Eunus escaping with 600 guards, being surrounded by the Romans, kill one another; but Eunus was taken alive, who soon after died of sickness in prison	XII. 391
4174	2867	132	Upon the death of Attalus Philometor , Aristonicus (the son of Eumenes brother to the deceased king by an Ephesian courtesan) claims the crown of Pergamus , and with a great army settles himself in the kingdom	IX. 500
4175	2868	131	Rupilius continuing in Sicily in the quality of proconsul, retook all the cities from the rebels, delivered up the slaves to their masters, and drew up a new code of laws for the Sicilians , that were ever after observed: Thus having settled his province in peace, he returned to Rome	XII. 391
4175	2868	131	P. Licinius Crassus , who was Pontifex Maximus, and Valerius Flaccus , who was Flamen Martialis, (or the high-priest of Mars) two persons devoted to religion, were for the first time chose consuls; and Q. Cæcilius Metellus , surnamed Macedonicus , and Q. Pompeius , both plebeians, were also for the first time chose censors, which for 220 years before, one was a patrician and the other a plebeian: They found 317,823 men in Rome able to bear arms. These censors got a law passed obliging all Romans to marry at a certain age	XII. 392
4175	2868	131	Crassus the Roman consul, with the united forces of Pontus , Cappadocia , Bithynia and Paphlagonia , goes against Aristonicus , who had seized the crown of Pergamus , and having laid the country waste, and taken immense spoil, was attacked by Aristonicus , defeated and entirely routed;

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				Ariarathes king of Cappadocia was killed, and the consul in his flight was taken and killed, and all the spoil recovered
4176	2869	130		M. Perperna being chose consul, comes against Aristonicus, defeats him, and afterwards besieged him in Stratonica, where the garrison and people being reduced to great freights, submit to the consul, and deliver up Aristonicus, who afterwards having graced his triumph, was murdered by order of the senate	IX.	502
4176	2869	130		Antiochus king of Syria being killed, Demetrius, who had been nine years driven out, re-assumes the crown, and reigns three years; but behaving disagreeably to his subjects, was opposed by an impostor set up by Ptolemy Physcon, called Alexander Zebina, who engaging him at Damascus, intirely routed him; and he flying to Ptolemais, they shut the gates against him, from whence he went to Tyre, where he was murdered	IX.	505
4176	2869	130		Antiochus being slain and his army defeated, John (Hyrcan) threw off the Syrian yoke, and the Jews continued free from it ever after, taking several cities suitable for him, and also takes Shechem and mount Gerizim from the Samaritans, and the temple built by Sanballat, and destroyed it, after it had stood 200 years	IX.	147
4177	2870	129		John , captain of the Jews, takes all Idumea, and makes proclamation that all should depart, unless they submitted to be circumcised, which they doing, are incorporated into the Jewish commonwealth	X.	198
4177	2870	129		Scipio Africanus (one of the greatest men Rome ever bred) is found dead in his bed, supposed to be murdered by the treachery of his wife Sempronia and the Triumvirs appointed to divide the lands among the people	X.	199
4177	2870	129		The consul Tuditanus goes against the revolted Japidian, whom he intirely reduced, and made all quiet, for which he was honoured with a triumph	XII.	395
4177	2870	129		The consul Aquilius having reduced all Pergamus to the subjection of Rome; the senate appoints ten commissioners, with Aquilius at their head, to settle Pergamus into a Roman province, and to make the proper subdivisions, each to depend on the metropolis, where the Roman prætor resided	XII.	396
4177	2870	129		Laodice , wife of Ariarathes 6th king of Cappadocia, poisons five of her six children; but the youngest escaping, she is put to death by her subjects, who set up her son Ariarathes VII. who marries Laodice, the daughter of Mithridates the great king of Pontus, who got him poisoned, and seized the kingdom under pretence of being guardian to his children; but having held the kingdom till the children were grown up, the Cappadocians drove him out, and set up Ariarathes VIII.	IX.	505
4178	2871	128		Hyrcan governor of the Jews sends an embassy to renew the alliance with Rome, with large presents, which are accepted, and the senate gives him Joppa and Gazara	IX.	467
4178	2871	128		Marsyas , general for queen Cleopatra, engages Physcon's army under Hagelochus, is entirely defeated and taken prisoner, most of their army being cut to pieces	X.	200
4179	2872	127		Cleopatra sends to her son-in-law Demetrius, now king of Syria, for help, and promises him the crown of Egypt for his reward: He comes with a great army and besieges Pelusium, but being forced to raise the siege, and return into Syria to quell a rebellion there, Cleopatra puts all her valuables	IX.	243

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			luables aboard a ship, and flies to her daughter at Ptolemais, and so Phylcon was resettled in Alexandria, and reigned over all Egypt	IX.	244
4179	2872	127	Hyrca n sends another embassy with fresh presents to the Roman senate, with thanks for their last favours, and to beg their ratification, which the senate grants	X.	201
4180	2873	126	Upon the death of Demetrius, Alexander Zebina gets possession of the greatest part of the kingdom of Syria, and concludes an alliance with Hyrcanus, prince of the Jews	IX.	147
4181	2874	125	Seleucus , eldest son of the late Demetrius, sets up for the kingdom of Syria, and goes by the title of king in those parts his mother Cleopatra held; for which she, having invited him to a feast, killed him with her own hands, after he had bore that character one year	IX.	149
4181	2874	125	M. Fulvius Flaccus the Roman consul goes against the Salyes, who had ravaged the country of the Massilians; and during his absence from Italy, Fregellæ (a city of the Volsci) revolts; but they being prevailed on to submit, the ringleaders were put to death, and the city razed to the ground	XII.	398
4181	2874	125	A great part of Africa being covered with locusts, destroyed all the produce of the earth, &c. and being afterwards blown into the African sea, were thrown upon the shore in prodigious quantities and bred a plague, which swept away an infinite number of men and all kind of animals, and in Numidia only 800,000 people perished, in Africa Propria 200,000 and 30,000 Roman soldiers, about Utica and in that city 1500 a day	XVII.	583
4183	2876	123	Gracchus being chose a tribune of the people, strives by all popular methods to gain the affections of the populace; he first set up stones or columns at every mile's end, and put stones along the roads to assist travellers to mount their horses, got the law passed to give lands to the poor allies, &c. then got a law passed to build publick granaries, and to fill them with corn at the publick expence, and that monthly distributions of it should be made to the poor at low rates; and other laws relating to the service and cloathing of the troops, by which means, in spite of the senate, &c. he was chose tribune a second time	XII.	401
4183	2876	123	The consul Metellus landing in the Balearick islands, who had revolted, overthrew and slaughtered them so terribly, that out of 30,000 he scarce left 1000 alive: Then he built Palm (now Majorca) and Pollentia, and was forced to bring 3000 Romans from Spain to people them	XII.	402
4183	2876	123	The proconsul Sextius gained a compleat victory over the Salyes, took their capital, and sold the inhabitants for slaves; then built a new city, and called it Aquæ Sextiæ, from the hot and cold springs in and about it (now called Aix) in Provence; then returned to Rome and had a triumph	XII.	402
4183	2876	123	Gracchus studied all means possible to humble the patricians; he got a law passed to make 600 Roman knights (who were the most wealthy plebeians) senators; and another, that the judging of all private laws should belong to the knights, exclusive of the senators	XII.	403
4183	2876	123	Cleopatra , now queen of part of Syria, sends to Athens for her son Antiochus, commonly called Grypus, who was gone thither for education, and proclaims him king, re-

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			serving the power in her own hands; he being under twenty years of age, submitted to wear only the title for some time
4184	2877	122	A civil war breaks out at Rome between the plebeians and patricians, the first headed by Gracchus and Fulvius, and the last by the consul Opimius: A skirmish happens in Rome, wherein many are killed; upon which the consul proclaims an amnesty for all, except Gracchus and Fulvius, for whom he offers their weight in gold; the mob disperse, Fulvius and his son is killed, and 3000 of his party; but Gracchus is said to retire to a sacred wood dedicated to the furies, and there orders his slave to kill him, who as soon as he had dispatched his master killed himself. The head of Gracchus was carried to the consul, who gave 17 pounds and a half of gold for it. The consul punished all concerned in the riot with great severity; and so the patricians got again the superiority they had before lost	IX.	150
4184	2877	122	Domitius, the Roman proconsul in Spain, overthrows the Allobroges at Vindalia upon the Rhone, and kills 20,000 Gauls, and takes 3000 prisoners	XII.	417
4184	2877	122	C. Gracchus, tribune of the Roman people, conducts a colony of 6000 Roman citizens into Africa (being the first colony that was ever sent out of Italy) and a large number of workmen, and begins to rebuild Carthage in Africa, calling it Junonia	XII.	420
4185	2878	121	The Arverni, under their king Bitultick, with 200,000 men come against the Roman proconsul Q. Fabius Maximus, who was encamped in the plains of the Cavari: The Gauls are routed with the slaughter of 120,000 men, and their king taken prisoner by stratagem, and sent to Rome; upon which peace was settled in the eastern part of Gaul. Bitultick was made a publick shew at the consuls triumph, and kept a prisoner all his life at Alba	XVII.	539
4186	2879	120	Physcon king of Egypt gives his daughter Tryphæna to Grypus king of Syria to wife, and demands of Zebina (whom he had made king of great part of Syria) homage, and an annual tribute for his dominions; which Zebina refusing, he sends a great army under Grypus against him; they engage, Zebina is routed, and flies to Antioch, where robbing the temples to pay his men, the inhabitants drive him out with great slaughter; and Physcon's army coming against him, he flies into a ship, with intent to go to Greece, but is taken by a pirate, who delivers him up to Grypus, who puts him to death, and so settles himself upon the throne of Syria	XII.	421
4187	2880	119	Grypus now acting as king, as well as bearing the name, his ambitious mother took it into her head to poison him; but he being advertised of her treachery, when she offered him the cup he desired her to drink first, which she refusing he called in some lords of the court and charged her with it; they insist upon her drinking the preparation, which she doing, dies in a few minutes. She had been the wife of three kings of Syria, and mother of four	IX.	150
4187	2880	119	Antiochus Cyzicenus, half-brother to Antiochus Grypus, sets up for the throne of Syria, by the assistance of his wife Cleopatra (daughter of Physcon late king of Egypt) who had been divorced from her brother Lathurus, the present king of Egypt: They engage, Cyzicenus is defeated, and flies to Antioch that had declared for him; Grypus takes Antioch, and in it Cleopatra, who, though	IX.	151

World	V. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			own sister to his wife Tryphæna, she caused to be murdered in a temple where she flew for sanctuary. Soon after Cyzicenus engaged and overthrew Grypus, and took and sacrificed Tryphæna, and drove Grypus out of the kingdom	IX.	153
4187	2880	119	The consul L. Cæcilius Metellus was sent into Illyricum to reduce the Segestani, who had shaken off the Roman yoke: He defeated them in the field, and made himself master of their city and territory; and then he unjustly made war upon the Dalmatians, who were forced to submit to his superior strength. At his return to Rome he took the surname of Dalmaticus, and was honoured with a triumph	XII.	423
4187	2880	119	L. Licinius Crassus , a young orator of twenty years of age, accused Papirius Carbo at the tribunal of the prætor Q. Fabius Eburnus, and pleaded so strongly against him, that to avoid punishment he poisoned himself: This oration was so highly valued, that it was put into the hands of all learners of oratory, as a copy for them to imitate; and Cicero called it the inimitable	XII.	424
4187	2880	119	Marius , though of obscure birth among the Volsci, began now to appear as a publick person, (a man of an extraordinary size, great strength, uncommon understanding, courageous and enterprizing, and of a fine aspect and savage manners) being tribune of the people, threatens the consul L. Aurelius Cotta to send him to prison, for opposing a law he had proposed about collecting the suffrages for curule magistrates, and so becomes the idol of the people	XII.	425
4188	2881	118	The Roman consul Marcius, surnamed Rex, opens a way from the Alps to the Pyrenees for the Roman army, and founds a city called Narbo-Marcius, since Narbonne. The people called the Stoeni, at the foot of the Maritime Alps, finding themselves by this means surrounded by the Roman troops, and that they could not escape, set fire to their houses, killed their wives and children, and then threw themselves into the flames. Marcius was honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome	XII.	426
4188	2881	118	Grypus returns, and overcomes Cyzicenus, and then they agree to part the kingdom, and Cyzicenus reigned at Damascus over Cæle-Syria and Phœnice; and Grypus at Antioch, over all the other provinces. Peace being now established, both brothers give themselves up to all manner of debaucheries and luxuriousness, &c. they likewise continually quarrel between themselves about the extent of their dominions, and neglected the due administration of justice, which gives opportunities to several cities to revolt, and set up seignieuries in themselves independent of the kingdom of Syria, viz. Tyre, Sidon, Ptolemais, Gaza, and Theodorus caused himself to be called sovereign lord of Gaddara and Amathus	IX.	154
4189	2882	117	C. Marius chose prætor by open bribery, for which he was tried, but came off	XII.	426
4190	2883	116	C. Marius is appointed governor of Further Spain, where he behaved unblameably, and cleared the country of the banditti, and cured the people of their old way of living by rapine	XII.	427
4191	2884	115	Æmilius Scaurus and L. Cæcilius Metellus being consuls, Scaurus reforms Rome by proscribing games of hazard, concerts of musick, restraining luxury, &c. In his time a census being made, 394,336 citizens were found able to bear arms in Rome. He subdued the Gentisci and Carni,

World.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.	Before			Vol.	Page.
					and made a fine road from Rome to the Alps, for which he is honoured with a triumph
4192	2885	114	C.	Porcius Cato , consul, going into Macedon against the Scordisci , a people of Thrace that had invaded that province, was by them drawn into narrow passes, &c. and all his army cut off to a man, Porcius saving himself alone by flight. Upon his return to Rome he was banished to Tarracon in Spain, where he spent the remainder of his life		XII.	427
4192	2885	114		Some vestal virgins are detected with polluting themselves; for which they are punished by being buried alive, and their gallants are whipped to death		XII.	428
4193	2886	113		The Cimbri from the northern part of Germany near Jutland , attempt invading the Roman provinces, and defeat the consul Papirius's army; then they invade Helvetii , and enter Transalpine Gaul , and commit great ravages		XII.	428
4193	2886	113	Jugurtha , Hiempsal and Adherbal	succeed Micipsa in the kingdom of Numidia : Jugurtha hires the chief officer of Hiempsal's guards to murder him, and gets the kingdom divided between himself and Adherbal		XII.	430
4194	2887	112	Drusus	the consul prevails with the Scordisci to quit the country they now possessed, and repass the Danube , which river ever after was a barrier between them and the Roman provinces; for which Drusus at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph		XII.	431
4194	2887	112	Jugurtha	makes war upon Adherbal , overcomes and disperses his army, and besieges him in Cirtha , his capital; who appealing to Rome, they send commissioners, who return without doing any thing; whereupon Adherbal capitulates, but as soon as Jugurtha enters the city he puts Adherbal to death with cruel torments, and kills the soldiers and inhabitants, &c.		XVII.	587
4194	2887	112	Upon the death of Physcon	king of Egypt , he bequeathed the kingdom of Cyrene to his natural son Apion , Egypt to his queen Cleopatra and one of her own sons; she prefers Alexander the youngest, but the people oblige her to take Lathyrus , the eldest, whom she compels to divorce Laodicea his eldest sister, whom he had married, and to take Selene , his younger sister; and after the death of her daughter Cleopatra , she gave Cyprus to her youngest son Alexander		IX.	248
4195	2888	111	The senate of Rome	resolve to make war upon Jugurtha , upon which Jugurtha sends his son to Rome to solicit for him, who is sent back without success		XII.	439
4195	2888	111	Bestia and Scaurus , the Roman generals,	clap up a peace with Jugurtha , upon very dishonourable terms, for the sake of large sums paid themselves
4196	2889	110	Jugurtha	summoned to appear at Rome, appears, but through bribery escapes, and gets Massiva (the natural son of Gulussa , brother to Micipsa) murdered, to prevent his getting the crown from him. The senate dissannuls the peace, and sends the consul Albinus against Jugurtha , who does nothing considerable, Jugurtha delaying the time by amusements
4196	2889	110	Autla	marches into a defile, where Jugurtha obliges him and the whole Roman army to pass under the yoke, and to quit Numidia in 10 days; from whence he went into Africa Propria to winter
4196	2889	110	Hyrchan	high-priest of the Jews besieges and takes Samaria , defeats Antiochus , (who came with a great army to re-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			lieve it) and so made himself master of all Palestine, and the provinces of Gallilee and Samaria	X.	203
4197	2890	109	Scaurus at the head of the commission appointed to examine into Jugurtha's affair, ended their enquiries, and banished several consular men and one pontifex, &c.	XII.	445
4197	2890	109	The Cimbri and Teutones defeat and rout the Romans under the consul M. Junius Silanus, in Narbonne Gaul, at the first onset	XII.	446
4197	2890	109	The consul Q. Cæcilius Metellus reduces Vacca, (a large opulent city, and the greatest mart in all Numidia) and defeats Jugurtha's army in a pitch'd battle	XVII.	590
4198	2891	108	Jugurtha is again several times defeated by Marius, lieutenant general of the Roman army under Metellus the general and proconsul; upon which Jugurtha sends his submission to Metellus, who ordered him to send the Romans 200,000 pounds weight of silver, all his elephants, a number of horses and arms, and deliver up all the deserters. &c. which he performing, was ordered to go to Tifidium: Upon this he flies to arms again, and the Numidians massacre the Romans in a city called Vacca, which Metellus revenges very amply	XII.	454
4199	2892	107	Marius becomes an enemy to Metellus, and uses all possible means, both just and unjust, to undermine and defame him; gets himself declared one of the consuls for this year, and is appointed general in Numidia instead of Metellus by the people, and behaves most audaciously impudent to all the nobility, &c. L. Cassius Longinus the other consul is defeated and killed, and the Roman army shamefully made to pass under the yoke in Narbonne Gaul by the Tigurini	XII.	459
4199	2892	107	Jugurtha is defeated by Metellus before Marius's arrival from Rome with his army, who also pursued Jugurtha, and besieged him in the city Thala, whither he had carried most of his treasure: He flies from thence, and when the garrison found they must be prisoners, they take all the valuable effects they can find and put them into the king's palace, and burn it, the treasure, and themselves. Upon Metellus's return to Rome he is honoured with a triumph, and the surname of Numidicus	XII.	462
4199	2892	107	Marius marches to Capsa in the middle of the burning sands of Africa, takes it, levels it, puts all the citizens able to bear arms to death, and sells the rest for slaves, &c. Then he took Mulucha, (situate on the summit of a rock, and the strongest fortress in the world) puts the inhabitants to the sword, and seized the king's treasure	XII.	465
4199	2892	107	Sylla and Marius defeat Jugurtha and his confederates several times, and kill a prodigious number of people each time	XII.	468
4199	2892	107	Hircanus dying, his eldest son Aristobulus succeeded him in all his dignities, to which he added that of king, &c. At first he admitted his brother Antigonus a partner with him in his kingdom, but soon after put him to death, and kept his other three brothers prisoners during his reign, and murdered his mother, all in one year	X.	209
4200	2893	106	Bocchus king of Mauritania having made a truce with Marius, which is confirmed by the senate, promises Sylla to deliver up his ally Jugurtha	XII.	472
4200	2893	106	Jugurtha is treacherously delivered up to Sylla, by Bocchus: Jugurtha, loaden with chains, is carried by Sylla under a strong guard to Marius, who was then at Cirtha, from whence Marius sent him to Rome, where he is imprisoned	XII.	474

World.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
4200	2893	106	Servilius Cæpio the Roman consul recovers Toulouse from the Cimbri, and plunders the temple of Apollo of 100,000 pounds weight of gold, 100,000 pounds weight of silver, &c.	XII.	475
4200	2893	106	Pompey the Great born at Rome, and Cicero the orator in Arpinum, a city of the Volsci	XII.	476
4200	2893	106	Aristobulus king of the Jews dies, and is succeeded by his brother Jannæus , who puts his brother to death for raising a commotion against him, then marches to Ptolemais, but is forced to raise the siege and come back to oppose Ptolemy Lathyrus , who besieged and took Azochis in Gallilee, and carried off 10,000 prisoners	X.	212
4201	2894	105	The Cimbri, &c. cut off all the Roman army under M. Aurelius Scaurus , and make him prisoner	XII.	477
4201	2894	105	Cæpio the proconsul, and Mallius , having quarrelled and separated, are engaged, and so entirely defeated by the Gauls and Cimbri, that out of the two Roman armies under their command but 10 men and the two generals escaped, above 110,000 being slain, &c. The conquerors destroyed all the spoils they took, pursuant to a vow they had made before the battle; the gold and silver they threw into the Rhone; the horses they had taken they drowned; and the prisoners they put to the sword. The people frightened and enraged at Rome, depose Cæpio , and declare him for ever incapable of serving the state	XII.	479
4201	2894	105	The consul Rutilius for the first time introduced fencing-masters into Rome, and obliges all the inhabitants without distinction to take up arms	XII.	479
4202	2895	104	Marius , upon the same day that he entered his second consulate, also had his triumph for his Numidian conquest: He was preceded by 3700 l. weight of gold in ingots, 5775 pounds weight of silver in bars, and 287,000 drachmæ in specie, and by Jugurtha and his two sons in chains, &c.	XII.	480
4202	2895	104	Vettius , a young Roman knight, having spent his fortune in debaucheries, encourages all the slaves in and about Capua to make an insurrection, and proclaimed himself their king. The prætor Lucius Lucullus goes against him, and is strongly repulsed; but having gained one Apollonius , general under Vettius , he got the city; but Vettius to prevent his being punished laid violent hands upon himself. Another insurrection upon the like account happened in Sicily, where the prætor Licinius cut off vast numbers of them; but others assembling, chose one Salvius a flute-player for their king, who engaging, Licinius killed 600 and took 4000 prisoners	XII.	484
4202	2895	104	Jannæus (or Alexander) king of Jerusalem, and Ptolemy Lathyrus , king of Egypt, engage, wherein Jannæus loses 30,000 men: Cleopatra comes to his assistance, and saves him from utter destruction	X.	212
4204	2897	102	Alexander king of Judea goes to Ptolemais to wait upon Cleopatra queen of Egypt, to return her thanks and make her presents for her assistance, and makes an alliance with her	X.	212
4204	2897	102	The famous orator M. Antonius is sent with a Roman fleet against the Cilician pirates, who had carried his daughter into captivity: He soon cleared the seas of the robbers, and is honoured with a triumph	XII.	488
4204	2897	102	Marius engages, defeats, and cuts off a vast number of Ambrones ; pursuing them, their wives arm and fight violently; but being overcome, offer to surrender upon assurance given them that their honour should be safe; which

			[clxiii]
Before Christ.	Y. of flood.	Y. of world.		Vol.	Page.
			being denied, they first killed their children and then themselves. Three days afterwards the Teutones fall upon the Romans, even in their camp; but after a long dispute they are intirely defeated. In these two battles more than 100,000 Gauls were killed, and their king Teutobochus taken prisoner: Their camp was plundered, &c. For this Marius was a fifth time elected consul, and allowed a triumph	XII.	493
	4205	2898	101 Publius Malleolus having killed his mother, (this was an unheard-of crime, which the law had appointed no punishment for) the parricide was ordered to be sewed up in a leathern sack, and with a thousand execrations cast into the Tiber	XII.	494
	4205	2898	101 Marius and Catalus engage and gain a complete victory over the Cimbri , kill 120,000, and take 60,000, with two of their kings or generals, who were all sold for slaves: They also took 33 colours, and the brazen bull that they worshipped, for which both the consuls had a triumph upon their return to Rome	XII.	498
	4205	2898	101 Athenio , the captain of the revolted slaves in Sicily, attacks the Roman prætor, defeats him, routs his army, takes his camp, and then besieges and takes Macella . The senate sends Aquilius the consul with an army against him, who reduced him to great streights for want of provisions; and being continued proconsul the next year, he engaged him and put an end to the war by first killing Athenio in single combat, and then a prodigious number of his men, only 10,000 escaping to their camp, where they killed one another rather than surrender: Being reduced to 1000, one Satyrus capitulated with the proconsul; he promised them their lives, but afterwards sent them to Rome to fight the wild beasts in the shews in the Circus ; but they chose rather to kill one another. Thus ended a rebellion that had lasted four years, at the expence of near 1,000,000 of slaves. For this Aquilius had only an ovation, the senate not allowing triumphs for the conquering of rebels	XII.	500
	4205	2898	101 Cleopatra wickedly and falsely accuses her own son Lathyrus with offering violence to her person; for which the Alexandrians set on him with an intent to kill him; but he escapes in a ship, and flies; then Cleopatra proclaims Alexander her colleague in the crown of Egypt, and obliged Lathyrus to accept of Cyprus	IX.	248
	4206	2899	100 Nonnius being chose tribune, his competitor Apuleius stabbed him, and got himself proclaimed tribune, which Marius (now a sixth time consul) confirmed, and by treachery got the great Metellus banished, and then they governed the state just as they pleased	XII.	501
	4206	2899	100 Theodotus , the son of Zeno tyrant of Philadelphia , having laid up an immense treasure in Amathus , Jannæus king of the Jews (Alexander) besieges it and takes all the treasure; but the prince coming with a great army, suddenly falls upon him, kills him 10,000 men, routs the rest, and recovers the plunder, with a very considerable addition made thereto by Alexander's baggage, which he likewise took and carried off	X.	213
	4206	2899	100 Julius Cæsar born, in the sixth consulate of Marius , on the 12th day of the month Quintilis , which afterwards occasioned that month to be called July in honour of him	XII.	507

Before Christ.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of world.
99	2900	4207	Glaucia being disappointed of being chose consul, kills Memmius who was nominated: Then he and Apuleius break into open rebellion; but after much mischief done they submit to their friend Marius , the then consul, who, notwithstanding the orders of the senate expressly against it, he let march out of the capitol great numbers of their adherents; but the people seized Glaucia , and cut off his head; and Marius shut up Apuleius and many of his followers, and placed a guard over them to preserve them from the rage of the people, as if he intended to punish them; but the senate drives away the guards, and murders Apuleius and the heads of his gang. The new consuls begin this year with purifying the city, polluted with much bloodshed in the late troubles
99	2900	4207	By the careful and diligent management of the consul Antonius , the factious Sextius Titius is banished, and the great Metellus with all possible marks of esteem is recalled from banishment, which so enrages Marius , that he retires into Asia to stir up disturbances
99	2900	4207	Alexander king of Jerusalem after a year's siege takes Gaza, and murders the people most cruelly, and then razed the city
98	2901	4208	The consul Didius overcomes the revolted Spaniards or Nether Spain, and cuts of 20,000 in a pitched battle; then treacherously invited a colony of Spaniards that were settled five years before by a Roman general, into his camp, and separating the men, women and children, into three companies, orders every one of them to be massacred, not one escaping
98	2901	4208	Mucius Scaevola in Pergamus punished very exemplarily the publicans, or Roman knights, for misapplying the publick money, using extortions, &c.
96	2903	4210	Grypus is assassinated by Heracleon , and is succeeded by his eldest son Seleucus ; but his uncle Seleucus having seized Antioch , Seleucus goes against him with an army, and defeats him and kills him, takes Antioch , and makes himself king over all Syria: But Antiochus Eusebes (the son of the deceased Antiochus) having escaped, fled to Aradus , and was proclaimed king of Syria, and goes against Seleucus , and having cut a great part of his troops to pieces, Seleucus shut himself up in Mopsuestia , a city of Cilicia; but using the people ill, they invest his palace and set fire to it, and so destroy him and all his attendants. Antiochus and Philip , the twin-sons of Grypus , to revenge the death of their brother Seleucus , raise an army, and march against Mopsuestia , took it by assault, put all the inhabitants to death, and razed the city. Their cousin Eusebes engages them at their return, upon the banks of the Orontes ; Antiochus was drowned, but Philip retreated and disputed the kingdom with Eusebes a long time. Eusebes married Selene , the widow of Grypus , which made Lathurus king of Egypt (whose wife she had been) angry, so that he sent for Unidus the fourth son of Grypus , and makes him king of Damascus. Philip at last conquered Eusebes , and forced him to fly to the Parthians ; so that now all Syria was divided between Philip and Demetrius ; but Demetrius striving to depose Philip , was conquered and driven out himself, and died a prisoner in Parthia . The Syrians quite tired out with the continual wars between the princes of the Seleucan family, resolved to banish all of them, and

XII.

XII.

X.

XII.

XII.

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			chose Tigranes king of Armenia to be their king, who go- verned them 18 years with great peace and humanity	IX.	158
4211	2904	95	Tigranes at the death of his father was a hostage among the Parthians, who set him at liberty and let him succeed his father in the kingdom of Armenia, upon condition of yield- ing up to them a good part of his kingdom for his ran- som : This done he enters into a league with Mithridates, king of Pontus, against the Romans, agreeing, that the conquered cities and countries should be Mithridates's, and the captives and plunder Tigranes's . Upon this Ti- granes marries Cleopatra, daughter of Mithridates ; then marches into Cappadocia, and takes all the kingdom im- mediately, Ariobarzanes their king flying to Rome ; upon which he proclaims Ariarathes, (the son of Mithridates his brother-in-law) king of Cappadocia, to the satisfaction of all the people, who was soon after dispossessed by the Ro- mans, and Ariobarzanes restored	IX.	330
4211	2904	95	The Romans declare Cappadocia and Paphlagonia free, upon which the Cappadocians affirm they can't live without a king, and choose Ariobarzanes, whom the Romans ac- knowledge and confirm. He was three times driven out of his kingdom, and as often restored to it by the Ro- mans	IX.	469
4211	2904	95	Alexander being both high-priest and king of the Jews, and having quarrelled with the sect of Pharisees, as he was per- forming his office at the great altar, was pelted and igno- miniously used by that sect ; which so enraged the pontiff, that ceasing from his office he was then about, he orders his soldiers to fall upon the mob, who by his command killed 6000 of them, and disperses the rest ; a while after these commotions broke out into a civil war that lasted 6 years, in which time he killed 50,000 of the rebels, and lost abundance of men himself ; However, pitying the people, he promised to grant any thing reasonable that they would ask, for the sake of peace ; but the Pharisees required him to cut his own throat : They join Demetrius, surnamed Euchærus, who comes against Alexander with an army of 3000 horse and 40,000 foot ; Alexander is defeated, and forced to fly into the mountains with a few attendants	X.	217
4213	2906	93	Tigranes invades Armenia Minor, kills king Artanes, routs his army, and conquers his whole kingdom in one campaign. From hence he marches among the Asiatick Greeks, and obliged all to acknowledge him for their sovereign where- ever he came, enriching himself with vast booties and great spoils ; and then invades Cappadocia a second time, and plunders the country and carries off 300,000 captives ; with these and other prisoners he builds and peoples a new and large city called Tigranocerta	IX.	331
4213	2906	93	Bocchus king of Mauritania sent Sylla a present of 100 lions, and some Mauritanian hunters to fight them in the Roman circus : This fight vastly pleased the Romans, and contribu- ted much to Sylla's promotion	XII.	514
4214	2907	92	Arbaces king of Parthia sends an embassy to Sylla as he was returning from Cappadocia, where he had resettled Ario- barzanes in his kingdom, desiring to make an alliance with the Romans	XII.	514
4214	2907	92	Apion king of Cyrene bequeaths his kingdom (consisting of Cyrene, Berenice, Arsinoe, Ptolemais and Apollonia,) to the Roman republick	IX.	253

World.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
4215	2908	91		Drusus the tribune with great difficulty got a law passed, that a sufficient quantity of bread should be given to the poor citizens in Rome gratis; alledging the publick treasury could afford it, being then loaded with 1,620,829 pounds weight of gold: Shortly after he was murdered
4216	2909	90		The Marfi , Peligni , Samnites , Campanians , and Lucanians revolt at once, and erect themselves into a separate republick, choosing consuls, prætors, and 500 senators to govern them. Corfinium (a great and strong town of the Peligni) is made their capital. The proconsul Q. Servilius , governor of the province of Picenum , is cut off, his lieutenant and all the Romans, by the revolters. Cn. Pompeius comes with an army from Rome against them; but they put them to flight with great slaughter. The consul Rutilius and the Marfi engage, and after a long obstinate battle the Romans fly with the loss of 4000 men. A few days after they have another engagement, wherein the Romans lose 8000 men, the consul and many officers of distinction. A small time after Pompædus Silo (chief commander of the Italians) deludes Cæpio the Roman general, draws him into narrow defiles, and then kills him and the greatest part of his army. The confederate revolters had great successes in other places: The consul L. Julius Cæsar , uncle to the emperor Julius Cæsar , at first was defeated at Samnium , by Vettius Cato , which with the revolt of many of his men, so imboldened Aponius , that he braved the Romans at the gates of their camp, who sallying suddenly, put him to the rout and killed him 6000 men, which occasioned such joy, that the soldiers saluted Cæsar by the name of Imperator , which the senate confirmed. Marius likewise defeated the Marrucini under Herrius Acinius , and forced him to fly into the strong holds, where Sylla attacked them, killed their general, and cut off most of their troops, and so completed the victory. Servius Sulpicius also defeated the Peligni in a pitched battle, and reduced their whole country; then marched to the relief of Pompey , who was besieged in Firmum by Afranius , whom he killed, and the greatest part of his men: But Marius was overcome by the Marfi , upon which he retired to Rome and laid down his command. The Umbrians and Hetrurians revolt and are defeated
4216	2909	90		Selene having prevailed with many of the Syrian cities to join her against Tigranes , he goes against her with an army of 50,000 men, besieges her in Ptolemais , takes it, and carries her to Seleucia in Mesopotamia , where she was put to death
4216	2909	90		Mithridates king of Pontus invades Bithynia , and drives out Nicomedes , the natural son of the late king just now deceased, and seizes the kingdom, but is driven out again by the Roman legates, and Nicomedes reinstated, who enters Pontus , laying waste whole provinces, and destroys all with fire and sword: Mithridates complains first to the legates, and then to the senate, but without redress. All sides arm, and as Nicomedes was going to take possession of an advantageous post, Mithridates engages and defeats him, by cutting off almost all his whole army and forcing the rest to fly; he takes all their money, baggage, provisions, &c. He then attacks the Roman general Aquilius , kills 10,000 of his men, takes 300, and disperses

XII.

51

XII.

523

IX.

16

the rest : Soon after, his admirals takes the greatest part of the 300 ships that guarded the passage of the Euxine sea at Byzantium : The Romans retiring, he over-run all Asia to Ionia, the people readily submitting to him, calling him their deliverer, their god, &c.

4216 2909 90 The consul Julius Cæsar got a law passed, That all the nations of Italy, whose alliance with Rome was indisputable, should enjoy the rights of Roman citizens. (This ever after was called the Julian law.) As war was begun for refusing this privilege, it caused many to remain friends that would have deserted, and some to return who had

4217 2910 89 The consul Cn. Pompeius Strabo (father of Pompey the Great) went to carry on the siege of Asculum, and destroyed the whole army of the Marfi that came to relieve it, with their general Francus. The tribunes got the Julian law amended, ordaining, That all the citizens of the allied cities that were in Italy at the promulgation of this law, should be deemed citizens of Rome if they registered their names with any of the three prætors in 60 days. This brought great numbers, and the censors incorporated them into new tribes. They likewise took the authority from the Roman knights, who had most shamefully abused it, and ordered each tribe to choose 15 of their own members to administer justice in civil matters. The consul Pompeius defeated Vettius Cato, and put an end to the war of the Vestini. The consul Porcius Cato attempting to force the camp of the Marfi, was killed, and the whole Roman army routed with great slaughter. But the proconsul Cosconius defeated and killed the famous Samnite, Marius Egnauius, and his successor Trebatius, killing him 15,000 men, and reduced the countries of the Larinates, Venufrans and Pediculi, to obedience

4217 2910 89 Sylla took Stabiae in Campania by assault, then incorporates the Roman army that had killed their general Posthumus into his legions, and besieges Pompeii; Cluentius, general of the allies, coming to relieve it, he repulsed him with great loss; but soon after coming with a great reinforcement of Gauls, Sylla cut off 30,000 of them, and took Pompeii: He then went after Cluentius to Nola, and fought him under the walls, killed him and 20,000 Samnites, plundered his camp, and went into Hirpinia, and reduced the capital Asculana and the whole country; then passed into Samnium, where he was reduced to great distress by Aponius, but got away by night and conquered the enemy, and took Bovianum by storm. The consul Pompeius reduced the city of Asculum, punished the inhabitants with the utmost severity for the murder of a Roman prætor, and saved only a few chiefs to grace his triumph, and confiscated all the lands

4217 2910 89 Q. Oppius, governor of Pamphylia, is delivered into the hands of Mithridates by the people of Laodicea upon the Lycus: The Lesbians also send him Manius Aquilius in chains, with many other Romans of distinction, who upon his arrival at Pergamus, he orders first to be whipt, and then hot liquid gold to be poured down his throat. All places wherever he came submitted to him, so that his wealth was so great as to keep his vast army five years without taxing his subjects

4218 2911 88 The rebels are generally reduced, but a civil war breaks out

Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
			in Rome, between Sulpicius and Marius against Sylla, now consul. Sylla comes from the siege of Nola, enters Rome, and kills abundance of Marius's partizans, then proposes the following laws; 1. That no law should be brought before the people till it was approved of by the senate. 2. That the Comitia should be held by centuries, and not by tribes. 3. That no citizen who had been tribune of the people should be capable of any other magistracy. 4. That Sulpicius's laws should be void; which were all agreed to. Impeachments were drawn up against Marius, his son, Sulpicius, and many others; they were all prosecuted, declared enemies to Rome, and a reward set upon their heads. Sulpicius was taken and beheaded; but Marius being taken and carried to Minturnæ, the citizens help him to escape
4218	2911	88	Mitbridates king of Pontus besieges Rhodes with a vast fleet and a great land army, which by the assistance of the Romans were defeated and the siege raised
4218	2911	88	Mitbridates orders all the Italians, men, women and children, all over Asia to be murdered, promising great rewards to them that did it; upon which 150,000 suffered death. He then went to Rhodes, whither the Romans that escaped flew, but was twice defeated: But Archelaus his general goes to Athens, takes it, puts all the Romans and their friends to death; and so went on, till Mithridates was master of all Asia, Greece, and the adjacent islands, except Rhodes
4219	2912	87	Cinna (one of the present Roman consuls) cites Sylla the late consul to answer for his conduct: Sylla retires to the east; Cinna orders the new citizens to come armed into the forum; Octavius the other consul orders the old citizens to do the like; a battle ensues, and much blood is spilt; at last the new citizens are drove out of the city, and the consul Cinna and six tribunes. The senate deposes Cinna, and chose L. Cornelius Merula in his room. Cinna raises a great army, and the revolted Italians join him in vast numbers. He sends for Marius, to whom abundance of slaves, &c. resort: They besiege Rome; Marius takes all the maritime places; Ostia he took by treachery, pillaged it, put most of the people to the sword, built a bridge over the Tiber, and cut off the city's communication with the sea, and blocked up Rome on the side of the Janiculum
4219	2912	87	Athens sides with Mithridates against the Romans, is besieged, and holds out long, but at last is taken by storm by Sylla the Roman general, when the slaughter was so merciless, that the very channels of the streets ran down with blood, &c.
4219	2912	87	Rome by its intestine disturbances is brought to a most deplorable condition, the plague destroying great numbers, famine more, but the sword most; for when the gates were opened to let Cinna and Marius in, all manner of butcheries and cruelties were committed, particularly by a band of slaves that constantly attended Marius, which he called Bardiæans ; but Cinna in the night-time ordered them all to be cut off. Cinna, Marius, and Sertorius conclude to murder all the senators, &c. who had opposed them, which for five days they executed, killing most of them and sticking their heads upon poles, and their mangled bodies being dragged into the forum, were left there to be devoured by dogs

XII. 538

VII. 454

IX. 398

XII. 547

VII. 75

XII. 55

Before Christ.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of world.
86	2913	4220	Cinna , without the choice of the people, declares himself and Marius a seventh time consuls for the year ensuing. Sylla writes to Rome, acquaints the senate of his victories, &c. and threatens to be revenged of the consuls and their adherents, for the personal injuries done him, his wife and family; upon which Marius gave himself up to excessive drinking, and so killed himself: Cinna associated with him in the government young Marius, (but not in the consulship) who put all the senators he could find to the sword. Valerius Flaccus (one of their creatures) was nominated to the consulship, who to ingratiate himself to the people, published a law declaring all debtors free from their debts upon paying a crown in the pound	XII.	555
86	2913	4220	Alexander king and high-priest of the Jews engages the rebellious Jews, and defeats them with great slaughter; the remainder fly to Bethome, which he besieges, and after a year's time takes and treats the people with all manner of cruelties, crucifying 800 in one day, and causing their wives and children to be butchered before their faces as they hung upon the crosses; after this he continued victorious, and took many places and cities, and vast spoils	X.	218
86	2913	4220	Sylla , with an army but of 1500 horse and 15,000 foot, engages Mithridates king of Pontus at Chæronea, with 120,000 men, and kills him 110,000, with the loss only of 12 men. Soon after Dorylaus, chief favourite of Mithridates, engages Sylla again, who in two engagements intirely overthrew Dorylaus, and a mighty army cut to pieces	IX.	401
85	2914	4221	Fimbria , lieutenant to the consul Flaccus, revolts from him, and draws the greatest part of the army along with him; then besieges him in Nicomedia, takes it by storm, and puts Flaccus to death, and makes himself commander in chief, and commits all manner of cruelties. Mithridates sends a great army against him, which he engages and entirely routs, and pursues young Mithridates and the other generals to Pergamus; he enters it sword in hand, but the king being fled to Pritane, he pursues and besieges him there, from whence he escapes to Mitylene: Fimbria took Pritane by storm, and reduced most part of Asia, setting large fines on them; then besieges and takes Old Troy in 11 days, and puts most of the people to the sword, and burns the temple of Minerva, with many of the inhabitants who had fled thither for sanctuary, levelled the walls, and reduced the city to a heap of ashes; then racked and murdered the remainder of the people he met with	IX.	405
85	2914	4221	Sylla and Mithridates have an interview, and conclude a peace, by which it was stipulated, that Mithridates should relinquish all his conquests and content himself with Pontus; that he should release all the prisoners and captives he had taken since the war, without ransom, and pay the Romans 2000 talents: Thus in three years time Sylla drove him out of Greece, Macedon, Ionia, and the province of Asia, and killed above 160,000 of his best troops, without losing 1000 of his own. After this Sylla rebuilt Troy, and declared the Chians, Rhodians, Lycians, Magnesians and Trojans, free people and the friends of Rome; but all the other cities he fined heavily, condemning them to pay 20,000 talents in one year, and quartering his soldiers upon them	IX.	408

Vol.	Page.	Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of World.
		85	2914	4221	Cinna declares himself a third time consul, and chose Papirius Carbo for his colleague; all the other offices were filled with their creatures, and the whole government of Rome subverted. All the friends of Sylla were murdered, and their estates confiscated; which occasioned most of the men of honour and fortune to fly from Rome to Sylla for protection
XII.	556	85	2914	4221	Sylla and Mithridates having concluded a peace, Sylla goes against Fimbria , the lieutenant under the late consul Flaccus , and summons him at Thyatira in Lydia to surrender up his troops, upon which many revolt from Fimbria to Sylla : Fimbria hires a slave to murder Sylla , which is discovered. Sylla marches his troops against Fimbria , who retires into Pergamus and stabs himself
XII.	558	84	2915	4222	Cinna and Papirius Carbo declare themselves consuls again: Cinna marries his daughter Cornelia to the famous Julius Cæsar . Sylla marches towards Rome with great threatenings; Cinna goes against him; the soldiers mutiny and kill him. Carbo now reigned alone, and raised 200,000 men to keep Sylla out of Italy. Sylla harangues his army, who take a new oath to him, and promise to commit no devastations in Italy: They are first met and joined by Metellus Pius and his men. Sylla sends offers of peace to the consul Narbo , who uses his messengers ill; upon which a battle ensues, wherein Narbo has 6000 killed, and then abundance desert the consul and join Sylla . Pompey raises an army and does the same. Scipio the other consul coming against Sylla , Sylla desires peace; a truce is agreed on, during which Sylla draws off his men, then takes the consul and his son prisoners, but sets them at liberty, with a guard to escort them safe to their friends. The consul Scipio raises a new army and goes against Pompey , but is a second time deserted, and his men go over to Pompey , who joined Sylla
XII.	561	84	2915	4222	Ptolemy Alexander tired with his mother Cleopatra 's usage, retires from Alexandria to live privately: She coaxes him to return, with a design to murder him; but he being informed of it, murders her; and the Alexandrians expel him; whereupon Lathyrus comes from Cyprus , and becomes king over the whole dominions of Egypt by himself
IX.	253	83	2916	4223	The temple of Jupiter Capitolinus at Rome burnt, and with it the Sibylline books, which two years afterwards Sylla ordered to be restored, by collecting the fragments and copies, &c. and thereout to make new books, which was the work of the quindecemvirs , five members being added to the former ten
XII.	571	82	2917	4224	The consul Narbo and C. Marius rob all the temples at Rome of their gold and ornaments, to raise money to pay their troops. Carinas for the consuls engages Metellus Pius , and is defeated with great loss: This so exasperates young Marius , one of this year's consuls, that he sends orders to Junius Brutus the prætor in Rome to murder all the friends of Sylla , which was immediately executed, among whom was Carbo the consul's brother, Pompey 's father-in-law, and Mucius Scævola pontifex maximus; upon which Sylla advancing towards Rome, is met by the consul Marius at Setia upon the banks of the Liris , where they engage a long time, but at last Marius being deserted by seven cohorts at once, is intirely overthrown and routed with a dreadful slaughter. Sylla then marches to Rome, which opens its gates to him. His generals gained continual victories over the consular armies, which by slaughter and desertion were greatly decreased. Telestinus, a noble Samnite, raises a great army, and joins all the scattered forces of the consuls, and marches to Rome with an intent to massacre all the inhabitants and raze the city: Sylla goes and engages him, but is defeated with great loss: But Crassus, another Roman general, defeated the Samnites, and killed Telestinus, and took Carinas, Brutus and Cenforinus, (who were soon after beheaded) and routed the rest: 3000 of them come to Sylla to beg for their lives; he orders them to kill of their countrymen so many as refused to join them; they kill vast numbers, and then 6000 of them he carries to Rome, puts them into the circus, and while he was haranguing the senate, orders all to be killed there. Marius kills himself, and all the Samnites and Prænestines able to bear arms are put to the sword that were in the city of Prænestine, and the city plundered: This so terrified the inhabitants of Norba, that they set fire to their houses, and perished in the flames. The civil war now ended; Sylla put governors into all the Italian provinces, and kept small armies in several places to keep them in awe: Then he assembled the Comitium at Rome, and told them that he would put every person to the sword that had bore arms against him, proscribed 40 senators and 1600 knights, with severe penalties against any that concealed or assisted them: Cataline was the executioner of his vengeance, who slew a great many even before they knew they were proscribed. All ranks and degrees were murdered in vast numbers in Rome, and in the adjacent parts; some cities were dismantled, others excessively taxed, some demolished, and all the citizens proscribed, &c. Thus he became master of Rome, and all its provinces except Spain; after which he got himself proclaimed continual dictator

- 4224.2917 82 Muræna the Roman general having broke the peace with Mithridates, and taken many towns, &c. Mithridates engages him, overthrows him, and drives him into Phrygia: But Sylla being now dictator, orders Muræna to return home, and sent M. Thermas to be prætor in Asia, and Gabinius to settle all things with Mithridates
- 4224.2917 82 Alexander late king of Egypt, after divers defeats, dies, and leaves a son named also Alexander
- 4224.2917 82 Thebes (a great city in the Upper Egypt) refusing to submit to Lathyrus, he besieged it, and after three years took it, and gave it to be plundered by the soldiers, who so destroyed it that it never after was famous
- 4225.2918 81 Sylla makes great changes in the laws of Rome, and restores the patrician power very much, and gives the right of citizenship to 10,000 slaves, and calls them Cornelians; and gave his legionaries the lands of the Municipia, and colonies that had declared against him; and then orders himself a triumph for his conquests in Asia, Greece and Pontus, which lasted two days; on the first, 15,000 pounds weight of gold and 115,000 of silver, brought from Greece and Asia, were carried before him; and on the second, 13,000 of gold and 7000 of silver, which young Marius had saved out of the fire of the capitol, &c.

XII. 577

IX. 411

IX. 253

IX. 256

XII. 581

World	V. of	Y. of	Month.	Before	Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4225	2918	81				Sylla sends Pompey (who had reduced all Sicily) against Domitius, who had stirred up Hiarbas (king of part of Numidia) against Sylla in Asia; they come to an engagement; Domitius has 17,000 men killed on the spot; Pompey pursues him to his camp, which he forces, kills Domitius, and takes Hiarbas prisoner, and thereby recovered all the revolted cities of Africa. Sylla orders Pompey to disband his troops and come to Rome, which he does, and is received with the highest honour, and surnamed the Great	XII.	583
4226	2919	80				Sylla (though dictator) names himself and Q. Cæcilius Metellus for consuls, and are chose, upon which he treats all the city of Rome for many days with great profusion. Pompey requires a triumph, and after much opposition from Sylla has it. Sylla reduces Nola in Campania, and Volaterræ in Hetruria, the two only cities that held out against him	XII.	586
4227	2920	79				Cicero pleads for the first time in favour of Roscius, and having used too much freedom against Sylla, retires to Athens to compleat his studies	XII.	586
4227	2920	79				Alexander king and high priest of the Jews dies, in his camp before Ragaba, which he was then besieging, and left the kingdom to his queen Alexandra, and upon her death to which of his two sons she should choose	X.	220
4227	2920	79				Sylla , after having destroyed above 100,000 Roman citizens, 98 senators, and proscribed or murdered 2600 Roman knights, and buried numberless multitudes of the allies in the ruins of their cities, assembles the people, mounts the rostra, and making a speech to them, concludes with, Romans, I resign my office, divest myself of the unlimited power you have conferred upon me, and am ready to answer in a private capacity whatever can be alledged against me; then dismissed the lictors, came down from the rostra, and went to his own house in the rank of a private man, and so continued to his death	XII.	587
4228	2921	78				The quarrels between the consuls threatening Rome with another civil war, Sylla retires to his country house, and gives himself up to all manner of debaucheries, which threw him into a violent disease that bred an imposthume in his bowels, which produced vast quantities of vermin that in a small time determined his life: His burial was honoured with all the pomp and publick respect possible	XII.	590
4228	2921	78				Towards the end of the consular year, Lepidus comes with a great army against Rome to force them to chuse him a second time, but is repulsed by his colleague and Pompey, and obliged to save himself by a shameful flight into Hetruria: M. Junius Brutus espousing his cause, Pompey marches against him into Cisalpine Gaul, besieges and takes Mutina, forcing him and all his army to surrender at discretion: Pompey ordered Brutus to be beheaded, but used the troops with great humanity. Lepidus having recruited his army, went a second time to Rome, but was again forced to retire, first into Hetruria and then into Sardinia, where he soon died, and his rebellion with him	XII.	592
4229	2922	77				Alexandra (queen of the Jews) having restored the Pharisees to that power from which her husband had reduced them, they used it so exorbitantly as to compel her to reverse all the former decrees made against them, and to persecute the Saducees with great cruelty	X.	221
4230	2923	76				Julius Cæsar appears for the first time at the bar, and impeaches Cn. Cornelius Dolabella, formerly prætor of Macedonia,

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Page.
			cedonia, by which he gained great reputation, tho' the ac- cused was excused	XII. 602
4302	2923	76	Ptolemy Latbyrus king of Egypt dies, and is succeeded by his only legitimate child, Cleopatra Berenice. Sylla being now perpetual dictator of Rome, sends Alexander, the son of Ptolemy Alexander late king of Egypt, to take posses- sion of the crown of Egypt: The Alexandrians persuade him to marry Cleopatra, that now reigned, which he does, but orders her to be murdered 19 days afterwards; then reigned very cruelly for 15 years, at the end of which time the Alexandrians expel him the kingdom; upon which he went to Tyre, and died a few months after	IX. 260
4231	2924	75	The consul Aurelius Cotta consents to abolish one of Sylla's laws, and to admit the tribunes to be advanced to superior offices	XII. 606
4231	2924	75	Sertorius having for many years supported the Marian faction in Spain, and advanced Lusitania into a commonwealth, and continually harrassed and defeated Metellus, Hirtuleius, one of his lieutenants, is attacked by Metellus, who defeats and kills him 20,000 men. Sertorius engages and defeats Pom- pey; a small time after he defeated him again, and killed 6000 of his men, and soon after reduced both Pompey and Metellus to the utmost streights. Mithridates king of Pontus sends Sertorius 5000 talents, and 40 ships complete- ly armed; and Sertorius sends him a body of troops, un- der the command of Marcus Marius	XII. 612
4231	2924	75	Mithridates and his son-in-law Tigranes join; Tigranes besieges Cappadocia, and Mithridates Paphlagonia, with 120,000 foot, 16,000 horse, and 100 chariots armed with scythes. Paphlagonia submits; then he goes into Bithynia	IX. 411
4232	2925	74	M. Antonius the Roman admiral going against the Cretan pi- rates, is defeated, and sees many of his ships taken, and his men hung upon the enemies masts; which so affects him, that he dies of grief soon after	XII. 613
4232	2925	74	Mithridates advances with two large armies, and a fleet of 400 ships of 30 oars, and abundance of smaller vessels; the one under Diophantus Matharus marches into Cappa- docia; the other, consisting of 150,000 foot, 12,000 horse, and 100 armed chariots, Mithridates commanded in per- son; and a third army commanded by Marius and Euma- chus, near Heraclea in Pontus: Lucullus commanded Cotta to keep the fleet in the harbour of Chalcedon; Cotta sends his legate Rutilius to watch Mithridates's motions, whom Marius and Eumachus meet, who slew him and cut his army in pieces; Mithridates serves sever- al other officers in the same manner, and orders his ad- miral to sail into the harbour of Chalcedon, where he burnt some and sunk others, and took the remainder of the Roman fleet without opposition; 8000 sailors are killed, and 4500 taken prisoners, and 5300 land forces, all Ita- lians. Lucullus following Mithridates to the siege of Cy- zicum, kills 10,000 of his men, and takes 13,000; Lu- cullus a while after cuts off a large detachment of Pon- tines, and got the mastery of a mountain whereby he cuts off all communication by land from Mithridates; this caused both a famine and a plague in his army: They endeavour to break up the siege and retire; but Lucul- lus falls upon them as they were passing the river Rhynda- cus, took 600 horse, and all the beasts of burthen, 15,000 men, and put the rest to the sword: He also took Aristo-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4235	2928	71	to their tents, he ordered every man of them to be cut to pieces The Roman senate appoints Licinius Crassus general of the forces sent against the rebel-slaves: He dispatches Mummius his lieutenant with two legions to watch their motions; but he offering Spartacus battle, is put to flight at the first onset. Crassus soon after falls in with 10,000 of the rebels, who were laying the country waste, fell upon and cut them all to pieces. Spartacus posted himself in a peninsula near Rhegium, where Crassus shut him in with a ditch from one sea to the other, 300 furlongs long, 15 foot broad, and 15 foot deep; but Spartacus one snowy night filled up part of it, and forced his way through the enemies army, and again encamped in the open country. Part of the slaves quarrel with their leader, and separate: Crassus attacks them, and kills 12,300. Soon after Crassus engages Spartacus, kills him and 40,000 rebels: A party of them retired under the conduct of one Publipot into Lucania, where Pompey entirely defeated them, and so put an end to this rebellion	IX.	433
4236	2929	70	Pompey and Crassus are made this year's consuls at Rome. Pompey refuses to disband the troops brought out of Spain, till he has a triumph; and Crassus would not part with the command of his army, till Pompey laid down his arms, affirming that Pompey aimed at the sovereignty, and, like Sylla, to govern by a standing army; but with great difficulty they are both prevailed upon to disband their armies, and are seemingly reconciled; but each of them strove to make themselves friends; Pompey by popularity, reinstating the tribunes in their former power, and restoring the power of judging civil causes by the Roman knights. Crassus, though naturally covetous, entertained the people with prodigious profusion at 10,000 tables, and gave corn to the populace sufficient to maintain their families three whole months, he being the richest man in all Rome, being worth 7000 talents, or 1,356,250 l. sterling. This year the censorship was again revived, and the number of the Roman citizens fit to bear arms was found to be 450,000	XII.	619
4236	2929	70	Queen Alexandra dies, and her son Hyrcanus, then high-priest of the Jews, is proclaimed king of the Jews by the Pharisees; but his brother Aristobulus opposes him; they come to a battle. Hyrcan is defeated and flies to Jerusalem, whither Aristobulus follows him, and obliges him to surrender the crown and priesthood to him, which he did, after a reign of three months, and by the artifice of Antipater, the father of Herod, was persuaded to fly to Aretas king of Arabia for safety and protection	XII.	622
4237	2930	69	Aretas king of Arabia comes with an army to resettle Hyrcan in Judea: Aristobulus engages him, is defeated, and flies to Jerusalem, whither Aretas, &c. follows him, and besieges him in the precinct of the temple	X.	230
4238	2931	68	The Cretans send 23 of their chief members to Rome to appease the senate; but P. Lentulus Spinther opposes them, and Metellus is sent against them, who intirely overthrew Lathenes, and besieged Cydonia, the metropolis of the island, which the governor Panares surrendered: Then Metellus went to Gnosus, whither Lathenes was flown, which after setting on fire, Lathenes withdrew; so that Metellus conquered the whole island of Crete in one campaign	X.	231
				VII.	482

Before
Christ
Y. of Hood
Y. of
World

4239 2932 67

The Cretans and Sicilian pirates, upon account of Metellus's severity, send a deputation to Pompey, and offer to submit to him; (who was vested with an absolute power for three years, by the senate, to act and do whatever he thought advantageous for the commonwealth :) He receives their hostages; and promises them an advantageous peace, and declares Metellus had no right of acting within his proconsulate; this caused a sort of civil war between the Roman generals and troops; but Metellus taking Lappa (a strong city of Crete) put all the Cretans and Sicilians to the sword he found in it: Having absolutely conquered the island, and Lathenes and Panares laid down their arms, all the inhabitants submitted to the yoke: Metellus changed the form of government, obliged them to live by the Roman laws, imposed an annual tribute on the whole island, and made it a Roman province. At his return to Rome, Metellus was honoured with a triumph, and the surname of Creticus

VII.

484

4239 2932 67

At the instigation of Gabinius the Roman tribune, the people empower Pompey to equip 500 ships, raise 120,000 foot and 5000 horse, and to choose twenty senators for his lieutenants: He had also two quaestors, and 600 Attic talents paid him before he left Rome. In four months time he quite cleared the seas of the pirates, taking and sinking 1300 of their ships, cutting 10,000 of their men to pieces, and taking 120 towns and castles on the sea coasts from them, setting an incredible number of captives free, and taking 20,000 prisoners, whom he sent to repeople the deserted cities of Mallus, Adana, Epiphania, and Soli in Cilicia: These successes occasioned the passing the Manilian law at Rome, whereby Pompey was made absolute governor of all the armies, fleets and provinces belonging to Rome

XII.

625

4239 2932 67

Lucullus is deposed, and the Roman consul Glabrio sent to command in his stead, during which time Mithridates and Tigranes recovered the greatest part of Pontus, Bithynia, Cappadocia, and Armenia Minor

IX.

434

4240 2933 66

Pompey having made peace with the Cilician pirates, offers the same to Mithridates, upon condition of his laying down his arms and surrendering up the deserters: This being refused, and both armies encamped on two hills opposite to one another, Pompey cuts a ditch 150 furlongs in circuit at the foot of the king's hill, which extremely straitned the king's army, forcing them to live upon their dead horses, which perished for want of forage: He resolves to break through the Roman fortifications; and first he put all the sick and disabled to the sword, to prevent their falling into the enemy's hands, and then in the night forces his way into the open country, and marches towards Armenia Major, where Tigranes waited for him: Pompey pursues him with his whole army, overtakes and kills 40,000 of his men, with the loss of about thirty Roman soldiers and two centurions. Mithridates, forsaken by all his attendants, flies with his wife Hypsicratia, his daughter Dripetine, and one officer; meets a body of mercenaries that were coming to join him, to the number of 3000, who escort him to the castle of Sinoria, on the borders of the two Armenia's, where his treasures were; he rewarded them very liberally, took 6000 talents and retired into Armenia, from whence he sends to Tigranes; but he being about clapping up a peace with the Romans, puts his ambassadors in

Before Christ.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of world.		Vol.	Page.
			irons. Pompey built a city called Nicopolis in the field of battle, which he bestowed upon his old and disabled soldiers; and many resorting to it from all parts, it soon became noted	IX.	439
4241	2934	65	Catiline , at the head of a great number of extravagant debauchees, conspire the death of the consuls, and the seizing the government of Rome by the murder of the senate; but giving the signal at a wrong time, it proved abortive	XII.	628
4241	2934	65	Julius Cæsar is this year made ædile at Rome: He courts the people by all acts of popularity possible; he finishes the Appian way, almost wholly at his own expence, and entertained the people with 320 couple of gladiators, and the Megalesian games, running himself 251,875 l. sterling in debt	XII.	628
4241	2934	65	Aristobulus sends ambassadors to Scaurus, one of Pompey's generals, and offers him 400 talents for his assistance: Scaurus writes to Aretas, ordering him to raise the siege of Jerusalem, upon pain of being declared an enemy to Rome. Aretas immediately decamps, and returns homewards: Aristobulus pursues and overtakes him at Papyrion, overthrew him, killed 7000 of his men, and quite dispersed the rest. Pompey being come to Damascus, ambassadors are sent to him from Judea, Syria and Egypt, with great presents: Aristobulus sent him a golden vine, with fruit on it, upon a square mount, with deer, lions, &c. about it, all of most exquisite workmanship, valued at 5000 talents, which Pompey set up in the temple of Jupiter at Rome: Pompey orders the two brothers to appear personally before him at Damascus	X.	233
4242	2935	65	Aristobulus and his brother Hyrcan appear at Damascus before Pompey, who after hearing each side, defers the umpirage till he should come into Judea himself, intending first to subdue Aretas king of Arabia. Aristobulus goes away in a great huff, and raises an army: Pompey goes after him, and at Corea sends for Aristobulus; who going to him, and after several conferences Pompey demands all his fortresses, &c. Aristobulus, to get his liberty, consents; but as soon as he got from him, flies to Jerusalem, whither Pompey follows him: Aristobulus comes out, offers him a large sum of money, and prostrate at his feet begs for peace: Pompey sends Gabinius with his troops to receive the money, but the garrison shut the gates, and refuses their consent: Aristobulus is clapt in chains, and the city besieged. Hyrcan's party opens the city to him, but the other's retire within the precincts of the temple; but falling into a superstitious observation of the sabbath, was attacked on that day, and the place taken, with the slaughter of 12,000 by the Romans, and abundance murdered themselves, the priests all the while continuing their sacrifices. Pompey puts multitudes of the captives to death, who had espoused Aristobulus's cause, while others destroyed themselves by setting fire to their houses, and leaping from precipices, &c. Thus the whole kingdom of Judea was at once subdued by the Romans	X.	238
4242	2935	65	Mitridates sues to Pompey for peace, but is answered, he must come in person; which he refusing, enters Pontus, and takes several places from Pompey; but Castor, whom he had made governor of Phanagorium, having killed Tripho, the king's favourite, to avoid the king's anger stirs up the inhabitants to revolt; but the king having four sons

there, they maintained the castle against Castor, who besieged, and took it and them, with their sister Cleopatra, and sent them all to the Romans. Mithridates sends eunuchs ambassadors to the Parthians, with the offer of his daughters to such princes as would assist him; but their guard murders them, and delivers up the girls to the Romans, as well as themselves: Soon after Pharnaces his son was proclaimed king by the soldiers, &c. who grew weary of his severe government, upon which he poisoned himself, and such of his daughters and concubines as remained with him; the women died, but he survived, and was forced to stab himself to get rid of his life, at Panticapæum in the Cimmerian Bosphorus, in the 60th year of his reign; during which time he subdued 24 nations, and could speak all their languages fluently; he was an excellent scholar, and wrote many books of physick, and as great a statesman and general as the age he lived in afforded, &c.

IX. 447

4243 2936 63 Pompey bestows the kingdom of Bosphorus upon Pharnaces, son of Mithridates late king of Pontus, and honours him with the title of friend and ally of Rome; upon which he orders all his governors, &c. in Pontus to submit to Pompey, and deliver all the treasure to him. In the city of Talaura Pompey found 2000 onyx cups set in gold, and a vast number of rich saddles set with jewels, &c. the statues of Minerva, Mars and Apollo, of pure gold, &c. Pompey having reduced Pontus into a Roman province, goes to Ephesus, and in a fleet of 700 ships sails for Italy; and coming to Brundisium, to take off all suspicion, disbands his army. His triumph (which lasted two days) was attended with 124 captives of distinction; he would not suffer any of them to be put to death, but sends most of them back to their respective countries detaining only those of royal extraction; delivered 20,000 talents into the publick treasury, notwithstanding he had distributed 16,000 talents among the officers of his army, and given every soldier 50 sestertiums

IX. 450

4243 2936 63 Cicero, the new consul, acquaints the senate of Catiline's conspiracy to his face; upon which it is enacted, that the consuls should take care that the republick suffered no detriment, by an antient form, that invested them with absolute power to raise men and money for war, &c. Catiline prompts Cethegus, Lentulus, &c. to set the city on fire; goes into Hetruria; takes upon him the command of an army, is declared an enemy to Rome by the senate, and his companions seized and executed

XII. 636

4243 2936 63 *Hyrca*n is restored to his pontifical dignity at Jerusalem, with the secular title of prince, tributary to Rome, but forbid to resume the diadem, or royal stile, or to extend his dominions beyond the old borders of Judea. Pompey, to mortify the Jews, orders the most holy places in the temple to be opened to him and his attendants, where he viewed the golden table, candlestick, censers, lamps, &c. the spices and rich perfumes, and 2000 talents in the treasury, all which he left untouched, and ordered the priests to purify it, and go on with their usual worship: Then he commanded the walls of Jerusalem to be pulled down, and left Scaurus with a sufficient force governor of it, and returned with Aristobulus, his two sons and two daughters captives; but Alexander, one of the sons, made his escape

world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Before
4244	2937	62		Alexander (son of Aristobulus, the deposed king and high-priest of the Jews) is defeated by the Roman general, with the loss of 3000 men killed, and many taken prisoners, who afterwards followed and besieged him in Alexandrion, where he surrenders up all the fortresses he had seized, which the Romans demolished, and then divided the Jewish state into five districts, and appoints separate courts of judicature at Jerusalem, Gadara, Amath, Jericho and Sephoris, changing the government from monarchical into aristocratical	X.	244
4244	2937	62		The proconsul Antonius pretends to be sick, and resigns the command of his army to Petreius, his lieutenant, who engages Catiline, kills him and 3000 of his troops, and so quashed the rebellion, by punishing the guilty heads wherever they were taken	XII.	641
4244	2937	62		Julius Cæsar is made Pontifex Maximus, and divorces his wife Pompeia, for her amorous intrigues with P. Clodius, a debauched young patrician	XII.	643
4245	2938	61		Ptolemy Auletes (or the flute-player) the natural son of Ptolemy Lathyrus, succeeds in the throne of Egypt, by the choice of the Alexandrians : He was the most effeminate king that ever had been in Egypt : He purchased an alliance with Rome at the price of 6000 talents, or 1,162,500 pounds sterling, but was soon after drove out of the kingdom by the Alexandrians, who set up his daughter Berenice, who marrying Seleucus king of Syria, soon after caused him to be strangled, and married Archelaus, high-priest of Comana in Pontus	IX.	263
4246	2939	60		Cæsar being appointed governor of Further Spain, comprising Lusitania and Bætica, viz. Portugal and Andalusia, was stopped by some of his creditors ; Crassus pays some, and becomes surety to others for 830 talents, or 160,812 pounds sterling. When he arrived in Spain he subdued several nations that had never yet been subject to Rome, and returned home, bringing with him sufficient to discharge all his debts, amounting to 1,600,000 l. sterling. Pompey and Crassus being at variance, he undertakes to reconcile them, and proposes all things to be managed by them three, called the first great triumvirate	XII.	648
4247	2940	59		C. Julius Cæsar being chose consul, proposes to divide the lands belonging to the state in Campania among such poor Roman citizens as had three children or more : The senate oppose it to the utmost, but the people pass it tumultuously	XIII.	5
4248	2941	58		C. Julius Cæsar gets himself the government of Transalpine and Cisalpine Gaul for five years, with the command of four legions, contrary to all law, &c.	XIII.	6
4248	2941	58		Clodius being advanced to the tribuneship at Rome, used all his power against Cicero, who had accused him about Cæsar's wife, and got him banished, burnt his fine palaces at Rome, and his country houses, and confiscated all his estate	XIII.	10
4248	2941	58		Cæsar engages the Helvetians, who had burnt down their own towns and houses with a resolution to enter Gaul, cuts off 130,000 of them, and the rest submit : Cæsar obliges them to lay down their arms, and sends them back into their own country. Soon after he engaged Ariovistus, intirely defeated him by cutting off most of his troops ; himself escaped with difficulty cross the Rhine, but his two wives and one of his daughters perished ; and another of his daughters, and a great many Germans of distinction were taken prisoners

4249 2942 57 Cicero is recalled from banishment with all the demonstrations of joy possible, and received with the greatest respect at Rome, where he has his palace rebuilt at the public expence, &c.

4249 2942 57 The several nations of Belgium conspire against the Romans: Cæsar marches against them ; the Rhemi submit, but the rest appoint Galba king of the Suessones their commander, being 150,000. Cæsar attacks them as they are crossing the Axona, now the Aisne, and made such a dreadful slaughter of them, that they resolved to disperse and return home. Several places submitted ; but the Nervii (a very fierce people) fell upon Cæsar's army, and killed abundance of them ; but at last, Cæsar having destroyed almost all of the young men, the old men, women, and children surrendered. Then going against the Aduatici, they pretended to give up their arms and submit ; but having concealed a third part of them, attacked the Romans in the night, for which Cæsar the next day broke down the city gates, put many to the sword, and sold the rest (to the number of 53,000) for slaves. This brought the submissions of several nations beyond the Rhine, and vast spoil and treasure to Cæsar

4249 2942 57 Aristobulus and his son Antigonus escapes out of prison at Rome, and returns into Judea, who with 8000 men that he had collected, sets about building the castle of Alexandria ; but the Romans engage, defeat, and kill 5000 of his men, and force him to fly with 1000 into the ruined castle of Macheron, where after two days stout resistance, they take him by assault, and send him and his son prisoners to Rome, where he remained to his death, but the rest of his family was set at liberty

4250 2943 56 Alexander son of Aristobulus raises a large army and comes again into Judea, and conquers all before him ; but being at last engaged by Gabinus, the Roman general, near mount Tabor, is intirely defeated with the loss of 10,000 men killed on the spot, and the rest dispersed

4250 2943 56 Gabinus governor of Syria undertakes to restore Ptolemy Auletes to the throne of Egypt for 10,000 talents, or 1,937,500 l. sterling, one half to be paid down, which is agreed to. Accordingly, he sends Mark Antony, who marches into Egypt and takes Pelusium, and Gabinus marches into the heart of the country, and is met by Archelaus, the husband of Berenice ; they engage, the Egyptians are all cut off, and Archelaus taken, who is set at liberty for a large ransom, and being several times defeated, is at last besieged in Alexandria, where after defending the place to the last extremity, he marches out, and engages the Romans, who killed him and routed his army, and so re-establishes Auletes again upon the throne of Egypt, who first put his daughter Berenice to death, for accepting the throne from the Alexandrians, and then destroyed most of the great men for driving him away, confiscating their goods to raise money to pay Gabinus, &c.

4250 2943 56 Galba, one of Cæsar's lieutenants, being attacked at Octodurus by a great body of Gauls, he defeats and kills 10,000 of them, Cæsar having appointed Brutus his admiral

[clxxxi]				Vol.	Page.
Before Christ.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of world.
			admiral, sends him against the Veneti, who engages their fleet, and obtains a compleat victory; whereupon the Veneti submit, but Cæsar puts the chiefs to the sword, and sells the rest for slaves. Crassus goes against part of the Aquitani, and kills 30,000 in one battle, and so reduced all Aquitain	XIII.	19
	4251	2944	55 Cæsar attacks the Usipites and Tenchtheri, of whom he cut off almost 400,000; then ordered a bridge to be built over the Rhine, entered Germany, plundered and sacked the Sicambri, and frightened the Suevi, and returned in 18 days to Gaul again, and broke down the bridge	XIII.	21
	4251	2944	55 Cæsar prepares to invade Britain; the Britains send ambassadors into Gaul to him, offering to submit and give hostages: He marches into Picardy, and from thence sails into Britain, lands, is opposed, and defeats the Britains: They sue for peace, and deliver hostages. A storm shatters his ships; the Britains fall on his seventh legion; he comes to their assistance, and intirely overthrows the Britains with great slaughter several times, and then returns to Gaul. The senate order a supplication or general thanksgiving, for 20 days, for Cæsar's success in Britain	XVIII.	691
	4251	2944	55 The Trebonian law (so called from Trebonius, the tribune of the people) passed at Rome, whereby Cæsar had the command of Gaul, &c. given him for 5 years; Crassus Syria, Egypt and Macedon; and Pompey the two Spains for the same time, absolutely, (so that no power could reach them for that time) with full power to raise men, money, &c.	XIII.	23
	4251	2944	55 Ateius (one of the tribunes of the Roman people) strove with all his might to hinder Crassus, the consul, and one of the triumvir's, going into Asia; but being opposed, went so far as even to arrest his person; but eight of his colleagues delivered Crassus from the officer who had seized him; Pompey conducted him out of Rome with a strong guard; but Ateius coming to the city gate through which he was to pass, threw perfumes into a fire he had caused to be kindled there, and cursed Crassus with a thousand imprecations and invokings of the infernal gods. Crassus leaves Rome, and coming into Syria (the province assigned him) marches to Jerusalem to seize all the treasures that Pompey had left untouched: Eleazer, one of the priests, in order to satisfy his avaricious temper, discovers to him a golden rafter, weighing 3000 Hebrew, or 750 common pounds; but though he had solemnly swore he would meddle with nothing else, as soon as he had got that, he plundered the treasury of 2000 talents, and the temple of all else that was valuable, to the amount of 8000 talents more: From hence he went into Parthia, though then in alliance and peace with Rome; he besieges Nicophorium, which Dio the governor offered to surrender; but when Crassus sent a party to take possession, Dio surrounded and cut them all to pieces. Crassus takes the city by assault, sold the inhabitants for slaves, and confiscated their goods	X.	248
	4252	2945	54 Cæsar lands a second time in Britain, without opposition, the people being frightened at his great number of ships, pretending they had not sent the hostages agreed upon: He marches against and defeats the Britons; a storm destroys and shatters a great part of his fleet; the Britons often	XI.	19

World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of B.C.	Before Christ.
4252	2945	54		attack him, but are always defeated with great loss. Having ravaged the country he returned to Gaul	XVIII.	697
4252	2945	54		Julia (the daughter of Julius Cæsar and wife of Pompey) dies, who while living behaved with so extraordinary a prudence, as to keep her father and husband from coming to an open rupture, which soon after broke out between them, and was so highly honoured and esteemed by all ranks of people, that she was buried in the field of Mars, an honour allowed only to great heroes, and never to any woman before	XIII.	25
4252	2945	54		The Gauls make a general insurrection: Cæsar upon account of a famine that then was, being forced to divide his army and place them in different parts in small parties, several of them are cut off, but at last he reduced them again to obedience, having a reinforcement of two legions from Pompey	XIII.	25
4252	2945	54		Crassus spends much of his time in improving, by all scandalous methods, the annual income of his province, by robbing the temples, extorting extravagant sums from the people, &c. and by neglecting military discipline his soldiers became effeminate. Orodes the Parthian king sends ambassadors to Crassus , complaining of his usage, and desires his reasons for it; but Crassus answering very haughtily, is at length attacked at Carrhæ , by Surenas the Parthian general. his son is killed, himself defeated, and his army routed with great slaughter, and his camp took and plundered; and pursuing Crassus , takes him by a treacherous proposal of conferring about a peace, kills him and his attendants, and cuts off his head, and brings it to Orodes , who ordered his mouth to be filled with melted gold, thereby reproaching his avariciousness. In this battle 20,000 Romans were killed, and 10,000 taken prisoners	XI.	36 & 38
4253	2946	53		Pompey postponed the election of new consuls for seven months, and his creature C. Luceius the tribune proposed to the people to make Pompey dictator; but Cato , &c. opposing it strongly, Domitius Calvinus and Valerius Messala were chose consuls for the remaining five months; but corruption was so notoriously settled at Rome, that the candidates for the curule offices brought their money openly, and the heads of the faction employed force, so that many massacres happened in the installing them in their offices	XIII.	26
4253	2946	53		Orodes king of Parthia having made peace with Artabazus king of Armenia, and becoming jealous of the growing power of his general Surenas , who had lately defeated the Romans and killed Crassus , orders him to be put to death	XI.	39
4254	2947	52		Orsaces general of Orodes king of Parthia enters Syria, and conquers all the country from Euphrates to Antioch, and besieged it: Cicero meets a large party of Parthian horse, and cuts them all off to a man; this forces them to raise the siege, and Cicero falls upon them and cuts off great numbers, and their general Orsaces , as they were making their retreat	XI.	39
4254	2947	52		Cassius the Roman general besieges Tarichæa (a city on the south shore of the lake Gennesareth) where Pitolaus with the remains of Aristobulus's party were; he takes and carries off 30,000 Jews prisoners, and Pitolaus he puts to death	X.	248

[clxxxiii]			Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of Aood	Before Chrif.
4254	2947	52	Pompey and his faction creates great disturbances and does much mischief, and he is declared sole consul at Rome, a thing never known before; and new troops, with 1000 talents to pay them, are allowed him: But he having married Cornelia , the daughter of an eminent senator, Q. Cæcilius Metellus , associates him with him in the consulship which greatly pleased the patrician senators	XIII. 31
4254	2947	52	Cæsar after having reduced the revolted Gauls in Transalpine Gaul, sends vast sums of money to be distributed among his partizans in Rome, and the populace, paying the debts of some, lending money without interest to others, and obliging and caressing all, he himself staying in Insubria. during which the Gauls revolt again, and though winter, goes against them; besieges Noviodunum ; prince Vercingetorix , the Gaulish generalissimo, comes to its relief; Cæsar defeats him, takes the town, and marches to Avaricum and takes it by storm, and out of 40,000 Gaulish troops, kills all but 800. The Edui revolt, and kill all the Italians in their capital, seize Noviodunum , and in it Cæsar's military chest, baggage and provisions, and then set fire to the town: In return, Cæsar besieges Alesia , in which was Vercingetorix , with 80,000 men; 160,000 Gauls come to his relief, who engaged three times, but were as often defeated with great loss: The city, being compelled by famine, surrenders at discretion; and so he reduced the Gauls once more, for which 20 days thanksgiving to the gods were ordered at Rome	XIII. 31
4255	2948	51	The Parthians return, and besiege Antioch a second time, but are obliged to raise the siege, to suppress a rebellion raised by one of their own noblemen	XI. 40
4255	2948	51	Several of the Gaulish communities revolt, which Cæsar continually defeats, and reduces Uxellodunum , a strong place, holding out a long siege against Caninius , one of his generals: Cæsar goes himself, reduces the place, and cuts off the right hands of all able to bear arms; and having now reduced all Gaul from the Pyrenees and Alps to the Rhine, turns it into a Roman province. He is said to have taken 800 cities, and subdued 300 different nations, and defeated 3,000,000 men, 1,000,000 killed, and 1,000,000 taken prisoners, in his several expeditions against the Gauls	XIII. 34
4255	2948	51	Ptolemy Auletes , king of Egypt, dies, and makes the Romans executors of his will, by which he bequeathed his crown to his eldest son and eldest daughter, ordering them to intermarry: Pompey is appointed guardian; but Pothinus the eunuch, and Achillas , general of all the forces, depose Cleopatra , with intent to reign absolutely, the young king being but thirteen years old: She retires into Syria and Palestine, raises a great army, and heads it herself, being about seventeen years of age	XI. 275
4256	2949	49	Scribonius Curio , a great enemy to Cæsar , is by Pompey set at the head of the tribunes; the most debauched and extravagant patrician in Rome, who, though but young, had contracted debts to the amount of 600,000 great sesterces, or 4,843,750 l. sterling. A census is made by which 320,000 citizens fit to bear arms are found in Rome, which is ended with a lustrum: This is the last census under the republick	XIII. 34
4256	2949	49	Cæsar for 1500 talents, or 310,625 l. sterl. buys over the consul Æmilius Paulus , and the tribune Curio for great sums	XIII. 35

World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of B.C.	Before Christ.
4257	2950	49
4257	2950	49
4257	2950	49

The Roman senate makes an order, declaring Cæsar an enemy if he did not resign his office of proconsul, at a short limited time; and ordering the consuls, &c. to provide for the publick safety. Both sides arm powerfully against each other, and the commonwealth, Pompey reigning with the absolute uncontrollable power of a king, under the name of generalissimo, and his friends nominated to all the posts of honour and profit in Rome and all its provinces

XIII.

39

Mark Antony, Cassius Longinus, and Curio, three of the tribunes, are driven out of Rome for speaking in Cæsar's favour: They fly to his camp in the disguise of slaves: Upon their arrival Cæsar shews them to the legion he had with him, exaggerating their and his ill usage, &c. begs their defence and protection, which they all promise; upon which he crosses the Rubicon into Italy, and seizes Ariminum, and orders all his army in Gaul to come to him there

XIII.

40

Rome and all its inhabitants are in the utmost consternation at Cæsar's taking Ariminum. Pompey retires to Capua, and declares all should be treated as traytors that did not attend him: Upon which the consuls, senators, and magistrates left Rome to wait on Pompey. Cæsar takes all places where he arrives, with little resistance, pardons all the senators he takes, and uses great mildness to all degrees of people. Pompey quits Capua, and retires to Brundisium, whither Cæsar followed and besieged him; from whence Pompey and his army escapes by stratagem on board his fleet, and left Cæsar master of all Italy from the Alps to the sea; then sends Curio with three legions into Sicily, which Cato abandoned as soon as Curio landed, and ordered Valerius his lieutenant to go into Sardinia, where the inhabitants join him, and drive away Aurelius Cotta, who commanded there for the senate, and submit to Cæsar, who sent for all the senators he could come at to come to him at Rome, particularly Cicero, but could not prevail on him to come. To so many as came he proposed to send a deputation to Pompey, and to settle all things amicably, as hitherto no blood was spilt; but none of the senators would take upon him the message. Cæsar goes to the publick treasury breaks open the doors, and takes out ('tis said) 300,000 pounds weight of gold: With this money he raised troops all over Italy, and sent governors to all the provinces subject to Rome: This occasioned a general war in all parts of the known world, Pompey having done the same. Cæsar goes into Spain, where many declare for him: But violent rains and the melting snow so overflowed the two rivers between which his army lay, that his bridges were broken down, and his communication cut off from those towns that supply'd his army, so that a famine raged among them, a bushel of wheat being sold for 50 Roman denarii, or 1 l. 2 s. 3 d. $\frac{1}{2}$ sterl. Upon this Cicero and many senators at Rome hasten to join Pompey. However, Cæsar (by the help of boats and great labour) got succours and forced Afranius and Petreius out of Hither Spain, without a battle, and obliged them to disband their troops, and swear never to make war on Cæsar. One legion in Further Spain deserted from Varro, Pompey's governor in Further Spain, which obliged him to surrender his other legion, and all his money. Cæsar now master of all Spain, appoints Cassius Longinus governor of both

Before
Christ.Y. of
A.D.Y. of
world.

both provinces, with four legions to defend them, and returns to Marseilles, which surrendered; he grants them their lives and liberties, but strips them of all their arms and their ships; and then returned to Rome, when M. Æmilius Lepidus names him dictator, which he accepts, without abusing his power: He grants to all the Gauls beyond the Po the rights of Roman citizens, and got himself and Servilius Isauricus declared consuls

XII. 50

4257 2950 49 Cæsar releases Aristobulus, the captive king and high-priest of the Jews, out of prison, and sends him with two legions into Palestine, to keep Syria in awe; but Pompey's party find means to destroy him by poison: Alexander his son coming with some troops to his father's assistance, Q. Metellus Scipio, Pompey's governor of Syria, takes and beheads him

X. 249

4258 2951 48 Cæsar confirms Hyrcan in the Jewish high-priesthood, and makes Antipater procurator or lieutenant of Judea, and citizen of Rome; and adds abundance of favourable privileges to the Jews, and that they might be publicly known, causes his grant to be engraved on tables of brass, and hung up in the temples of Tyre, Sydon, Ascalon, and the capitol at Rome

X. 252

4258 2951 48 Cleopatra causes herself to be conveyed to Cæsar, in Alexandria, where enamoured with her beauty, he espouses her cause, has a son by her called Cæsarion, afterwards obliges her to marry her younger brother Ptolemy, a lad of 11 years old, by which means she reigned absolutely over Egypt

IX. 288

4258 2951 48 Cæsar goes in quest of Pompey, and is reinforced by all nations and people. Pompey had likewise a vast army and fleet. Pompey and 200 senators reside at Thessalonica, where they assemble and give orders as if at Rome, from whence all the great men flew to him, calling him the Good Cause, and Cæsar and his adherents the abettors of tyranny. Cæsar first goes to Oricum (a strong city in Epirus) which surrenders as soon as he approaches: Then he marches to Apollonia, on the confines of Macedon, another important place, which does the like: From hence he goes to Dyrrachium, another strong town in Macedon, the magazine for Pompey's arms and provisions. In the mean time Cæsar is informed a squadron of Pompey's fleet had attacked his fleet, taken 30 of them, and burnt them with the men in them. Cæsar sends Vibullus Rufus, a friend of Pompey's, whom he had taken prisoner, to propose the disbanding both their armies in three days, to renew their former friendship with solemn oaths, and return to Italy. Pompey refuses: Cæsar again sends Vatinius to treat with him; but while he was treating with Labienus, Pompey's men attacked and wounded them. Gabinius and his men endeavouring to go through Illyricum to join Cæsar, is killed by the Illyrians, who had declared for Pompey, and all his army to a man cut off. Soon after, Cæsar being strongly reinforced, besieges Pompey and his army, and reduces them to great straits for want of forage. Pompey gains advantages several times in skirmishes, so that Cæsar is obliged to decamp, and retire to Apollonia, where he paid his men, and left the wounded, and then marches into Macedon, is joined by Domitius with three legions; then goes into Thessaly, which all submits to him: Pompey follows him, and at last by the im-portunity of his commanders, contrary to his own inclinations, comes to a general battle in the plains of Pharsalia, near Thebes; Pompey's people were so confident of victory as to lay in their claims for their respective offices in the state, &c. depending upon their numbers, being 45,000 foot, 7000 horse, well armed, and a great number of dartmen and slingers. Cæsar had but 20,000 foot and 1000 horse: They engage, and Cæsar entirely defeats them with great slaughter, and Pompey gets away in disguise.

In the battle of Pharsalia Cæsar is said to lose but 200. thirty whereof were centurions, which he buried with great solemnity. Pompey had 25,000 slain, ten of which were senators, and forty Roman knights, and 24,000 were taken prisoners, eight eagles and 180 ensigns. Cæsar ordered all the citizens immediately to be set at liberty, and then pursues after Pompey to Larissa, and from thence to Tempe in Thessaly, from thence to Mitylene, where he took into his ship his wife Cornelia and his son Sextus, and sails to Attalia in Pamphylia, and from thence goes to Egypt, where he is slain, and his head cut off and embalmed. Cæsar pursuing him, upon his arrival at Alexandria Pompey's head is presented to him, which he caused to be buried with great Pomp in the temple of Nemesis, the goddess of revenge, in the suburbs of Alexandria. Cæsar demanding the money that Auletes owed him, Photinus the young king's minister put him off with delays, and stirs up the mob against him, who had now only 3200 foot and 800 horse; whereupon Cæsar is forced to take shelter in the king's palace, summons Cleopatra and her brother Ptolemy to come before him, that he might determine the difference between them, and orders them to disband their armies. Cleopatra causes herself to be carried privately, and so enamoured him that he declared on her side, sends for Ptolemy, presses him to make up all difference with his sister: Ptolemy runs into the street, takes the diadem off his head, tears it to pieces, and throws it on the ground, and complains to the people of being ill used, who all rise against Cæsar; but Cæsar appeased them with fair words, and bringing Ptolemy and Cleopatra out before the people, caused Auletes's will to be read, and declared they should reign jointly; and then also declared that Ptolemy the younger son and Arsione the youngest daughter should reign jointly in Cyprus; but Pothinus the chief minister uses all his skill and power among the people, and Achilles the general besieged Cæsar with 20,000 in Alexandria, and murdered one and abused another ambassador Cæsar sent to him. Cæsar was forced to burn what ships were in the port, some of which when on fire run ashore, and set fire to the famous library that at an immense expence was collected by several kings, to the amount of 400,000 volumes. Cæsar detects Photinus in corresponding with Achilles, and puts him to death; upon which the eunuch Ganymedes conveys young Arsione to the army, who proclaim her queen, and putting their general Achilles to death, Ganymedes succeeds him in that office: Cæsar defeats him in two sea engagements, with great loss: The Alexandrians demand their king, and offer to cease all hostilities; Cæsar complies, but the young king strives to intercept Cæsar's provisions; this occasioned a third sea fight, wherein the Romans came off victorious

Before Christ.	Y. of A.D.	V. of world.
48	2951	4258	Mithridates , Antipater, and Hyrcanus jointly come to the assistance of Cæsar: They take Pelusium, and advanced towards Alexandria, and are engaged by the Egyptians, whom they totally rout. Cæsar goes out of the city, and joins Mithridates and Antipater: Ptolemy with his whole army engages them, has 20,000 cut to pieces, 12,000 taken prisoners, and the king himself was drowned in the Nile, after three years and eight months reign: Upon this Cæsar returns to Alexandria, proclaims Cleopatra queen, and obliges her to marry her younger brother, a lad eleven years old	IX.	287
48	2951	4258	Upon Pompey's death, the senate and people of Rome declare Cæsar consul for five years, dictator for one year, tribune of the people and head of that college for life, with power to make peace and war at pleasure, to levy what sums he thought fit, &c.	XIII.	81
48	2951	4258	Pharnaces , (king of the Cimmerian Bosphorus, son of Mithridates the Great) taking advantage of the civil war between Pompey and Cæsar, seizes a great part of his father's dominions. Cæsar sends Domitius against him; he engages Domitius the Roman general, defeats him, and cuts off most of his army; but Cæsar himself marching against him, he desires peace, sends him a crown of gold, offers him his daughter, and to submit to any thing he should require. Cæsar ordered him to retire from Pontus immediately, release all his prisoners, and to restore the Romans all their goods he had seized: He promised, but delayed: Cæsar attacks and defeats him, cuts off or takes most of his army, and that so expeditiously as to make him use this memorable sentence, I came, I saw, I conquered, in a letter to Anitius at Rome. After this he made Mithridates Pergamenus king of Bosphorus instead of Pharnaces	IX.	453
47	2952	4259	Pharnaces having raised some recruits, is engaged by Asander, whom he had made governor in Bosphorus, and who had seized the crown while he was in Pontus, and is slain, and his army cut to pieces, after he had reigned in Bosphorus 15 years, which Pompey gave him. Upon his death Pontus was again reduced to the form of a Roman province	IX.	454
47	2952	4259	Cicero , upon Cæsar's return to Italy, goes to make his court and submission to him, for having espoused Pompey's cause: Cæsar meets him with the highest respect, civility, and good-nature; the like he did to all the other great men who came to see him; and coming to Rome, he restored peace and tranquility; but those particular persons who still remained in arms against him, he confiscated their goods and sold their estates	XIII.	85
47	2952	4259	Cæsar again chose consul, goes into Africa, where Pompey's party were still very numerous. He summons Confidius, commander of Adrumetum, to surrender, who kills his messenger, and goes out against him, Cæsar being but illly provided with troops, decamps; Confidius pursues and harasses him, till he got to Leptis, where part of his troops from Sicily were come, from whence he sent orders for the rest to come; but in the mean time is greatly distressed for want of forage, and frequently defeated in parties; but receiving more succours, he went to Utica to besiege it, and was himself besieged by three armies under Juba king of Mauritania, Scipio general of the Roman forces, and Labienus his lieutenant. Cæsar having offered the enemy battle, and they refusing, he decamps and goes

Before
Christ
Y. of flood
Y. of
world

to Thapsus, whither he is followed by the three armies. Cæsar falls upon Scipio first, and puts him to flight ; then Labienus, and defeats him ; and then Juba, and routs him, killed 50,000 men, takes the three camps, and loses but 50 of his own men. Thapsus surrendered, and all the heads of the party either laid violent hands on themselves, or were taken prisoners, and put to death, except Labienus, who escaped. Cato maintained Utica, where he governed with a senate of 300 Romans, who upon the approach of Cæsar resolves to submit : Cato stabs himself, and Utica surrenders. All Africa being now Cæsar's, from hence he goes into Mauritania and Numidia, reduces both kingdoms, and makes them Roman provinces, which he ordered to be pillaged and plundered, to prevent their revolting

XIII. 105

4259 2952 47 Herod, son of Antipater, being made governor of Gallilee, goes against and subdues the banditti that infested the country round about, killed many, and took some prisoners, whom he put to death, for which he is cited to answer to the Sanhedrim at Jerusalem, who would have condemned him, but he made his escape to Damascus, and remained there under the protection of Sextus Cæsar, the Roman governor of that province

X. 256

4261 2954 45 Cæsar returning to Utica, orders the rebuilding of Carthage and Corinth, (which two years after were repopled by Roman colonies, sent to settle in them) and set sail for Italy ; and upon his arrival at Rome he is received with all possible marks of joy and honour, and publick thanksgivings are made in all the temples for 40 days for his successes : He is decreed four triumphs, in which kings, princes, &c. went before him in chains, and vessels of gold and silver, to the amount of 65,000 talents, which is more than 12,000,000 sterl. and 1820 golden crowns, weighing 15,033 pounds. Out of these sums he first paid his soldiers, then gave every private soldier 150 l. sterl. 300 l. to each centurion, and 900 l. to each tribune and commander of the cavalry ; and to the commonalty of Rome he gave ten bushels of corn, and ten bushels of oil, and 400 Denarii per man, then entertained them at 20,000 tables with 6000 murena's, and a vast profusion of uncommon dainties, and representations of land and sea fights, &c. then sets about reforming Rome by many good laws, and invites learned and ingenious men of all nations with great privileges and encouragements to come and settle at Rome

XIII. 113

4261 2954 45 Cæcilius Bassus, a Roman knight, raises an army, seizes Tyre, and gives out that Cæsar was killed in Africa, and that the senate at Rome had appointed him president of Syria : But Sextus Cæsar, governor of the province, goes against him, and entirely defeats him. Bassus retires to Tyre, is cured of his wounds, inveigles Sextus's army, who kill their general for his lewd way of living, and join Bassus, who by the assistance of Alcaudonius, an Arabian prince, kept up the revolt for many years

XIII. 116

4261 2954 45 Young Ptolemy king of Egypt, now 14 years old, claims a share in the government, according to the custom of the country, with Cleopatra his wife and sister, and for which she soon after poisoned him

IX. 288

4261 2954 45 The Roman year now consisting of but 12 lunar months, the pontifex maximus and his colleague intercalated once in two years a month of 22 and 23 days alternately, between the 23d and 24th of February ; but this was oftentimes omitted, &c. therefore Cæsar, by the advice and assistance of learned men, reduced the year to the form we now have it

XIII. 116

4261 2954 45

Cæsar sets out for Spain against Pompey's two sons, who had got great footing there. He besieges Ategua, the parties magazine, and having reduced it to great streights, the Roman garrison cuts the throats of all the inhabitants, sets fire to the city, and by a general sally endeavours to break through Cæsar's line; but being drove back into the town with great slaughter, L. Minucius Flaccus surrenders upon honourable terms. From hence Cæsar goes to Burfavolis, took it by surprize, and puts great numbers of the inhabitants to death. Soon after, near the city, both parties come to a general engagement where after a most bloody and obstinate battle from morning till night, Cæsar by stratagem gains the victory, kills 30,000 of Pompey's men, (among which were the famous generals Labienus, and Attius Varrius) and 300 Roman knights, 17 great officers, and takes the camp, the enemies eagles and ensigns, and Pompey's fasces, which he had assumed as governor of Spain, with the loss only of 1000 killed and 500 wounded on Cæsar's side. The elder Pompey fled, but was soon after taken, and put to death. Several engagements, sieges, and other warlike exploits, in seven months reduced all Spain; and Cæsar returned to Rome with immense treasures that he had taken from the Pompeian party. Soon after his arrival at Rome he gave himself and his two lieutenants each a triumph, at which great exception was taken by many, who were but to outside shew his friends

XIII. 129

4262 2955 44

The senate make Cæsar consul alone, and dictator for life, subjected all the magistrates, even the tribunes, to him; impowered him, alone, to levy troops, command armies, declare war, make peace, &c. and conferred the title of Cæsar and Imperator (or emperor) to him and his posterity: He governed most excellently and mildly, and strove by all acts of kindness to gain over his enemies: He increased the prætors to 16, and the quæstors to 40: He made six new ediles, and increased the other magistrates proportionably, making the senate to consist of 900 members

XIII. 131

4262 2955 44

Aurelius Cotta, one of the keepers of the Sibyline books, declares that the Parthians, against whom Cæsar was going, could never be overcome but by a king; therefore it was proposed that Cæsar should bear the name of dictator in Italy, but king every where else: But a conspiracy being formed by many of the chief senators against Cæsar, Artimedorus, a rhetorician, puts into Cæsar's hands an account thereof, as he was going to the senate-house; but he neglecting to read it, as soon as he had taken his place the conspirators stab and kill him, after he had fought successfully 56 pitched battles, and killed 1,192,000 men

XIII. 145

4262 2955 44

The death of Cæsar occasioned such an extraordinary ferment in the state, that no one knew what to say or do. Mark Antony, Cæsar's colleague in the consulship, got a guard of 6000 veterans, under pretence of securing his person from insult, &c. Octavianus, Cæsar's great nephew and adopted son, being declared his heir by Cæsar's will, comes to Rome and claims his estate, where being opposed by Mark Antony the then consul, Octavianus sells his own patrimony and bribes the people ; upon which Antony pretends to be reconciled to Octavianus ; they quarrel and are friends several times, so that at last they both arm, and Octavianus enters Rome with a large body of men ; the senate declare for Octavianus ; Antony invades Cisalpine Gaul, and besieges Mutina, which the senate order him to raise ; Antony refuses, and is declared an enemy to his country

XIII. 181

4262 2955 44

Brutus, Cassius, and several others of the murderers of Cæsar, retire into Greece, Asia, &c. and raise large armies, and keep up the Pompeian faction, and make themselves masters of those provinces, which were confirmed to them by the Roman senate

XIII. 214

4262 2955 44

The Jews renew their alliance with Rome : Hyrcan petitions Dolabella, one of this year's consuls, for the discharge of some Jews that were impressed into the Roman service : Dolabella sends a letter to the governor of Ephesus, ordering the discharge of the Jews, and a free exercise of their laws and religion. Bassus having seized the governorship of Syria, was soon after driven out by Cassius, who laid a tribute of 700 talents upon Judea : Herod soon after carried the 100 talents for his district, and his brother quickly after brought his quota, by which means they gained favour ; but the others not coming with theirs, so irritated Cassius, that he ordered the inhabitants of Gophna, Emmaus, Lydda, Thamma, &c. to be sold by auction, and their governor Malichus to be put to death, to prevent which the high-priest purchased his life and liberty at 100 talents. Upon Cassius's going against Dolabella, he left the government of Cæle-Syria to Herod. Malichus hired the high-priest's butler to poison Antipater as he was at dinner with his master, and seized upon the government of Jerusalem, but was soon after cut off by the garrison of Tyre, as he was going to wait on Cassius at Laodicea : His brother espoused his cause, and got Felix with some Roman soldiers to join him ; but Phasaël drove him away, and Herod soon after coming to his assistance, they forced him to surrender Massada and the other fortresses, and to capitulate for his life : They upbraided Hyrcan as privy to all the disturbance ; but his fair daughter, whom Herod had married, named Mariamne, reconciled all their differences

X. 262

4263 2956 43

The consul Panfa goes against Mark Antony in Cisalpine Gaul ; they engage ; the consul is mortally wounded, and his army defeated ; but Hirtius the other consul falls upon and defeats Antony, who flies to his camp, whither Hirtius and Octavianus go after him ; they engage again, and Hirtius is killed, but Octavianus gained a compleat victory, and obliged Antony to shelter himself behind his intrenchments, and to raise the siege of Mutina. Panfa dying of his wounds, is carried with his colleague Hirtius to Rome, and interred with great pomp. Octavianus demands a triumph, which the senate refuses, but grants it to Decimus Brutus ; upon which Octavianus sends back a great number of officers he had taken to Antony, and resolved to be reconciled to him. Brutus goes against Antony, and forces him to pass the Alps ; upon which the senate seizes and confiscates all his estate. Pollio and Plancus join Antony with their armies. Octavianus privately agrees with Antony, and makes use of the power he was invested with by the senate for their destruction. After raising

Before
Christ.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of
world.

an army, he harangues them; they send deputies to the senate to choose him consul; they refuse it, and he marches his army to Rome, declares he comes as a friend, and is chose consul, and Quintus Pædus his colleague. Octavianus (who was afterwards called Augustus) was scarce twenty years old when he entered upon the consulate

XIII. 201

4263 2956 43

Octavianus, now consul, first gets his adoption by Cæsar confirmed; and his colleague Quintus gets a law passed for impeaching and trying Cæsar's murderers; upon which they were all summoned to take their trial. Octavianus gets the decree against Mark Anthony and Lepidus revoked: They go against Decimus Brutus at Mutina, where the greatest part of his army revolt to Anthony and Lepidus, and Brutus is taken and killed by one Camillus, a free-booter: Upon this Anthony, Lepidus, and Octavianus meet in a small island formed by the river Rhenus, now Reno, where they agree to divide all the Roman provinces between them, and are called the second great triumvirate; and in order to support their usurped authority they agree to cut off all possessed of great estates, or were any ways friends to liberty and law. They and their armies go to Rome, and get their usurped authority confirmed for five years by law, having first sent and murdered many of the greatest senators; then they proscribed 300 senators, and upwards of 2000 knights: Rome was filled with blood, many mangled carcases, and the most horrid scenes of cruelty; then they seized the goods and estates of the victims, without any concern for their widows or orphans; and thus, and by excessive taxes, proposing to make up the sum of 200,000 talents, which falling short of, they make a list of 1400 of the richest ladies in Rome, and taxed them all alike in a great sum: They come all in a body to the senate, where Hortensia made so moving a speech, that the number was reduced from 1400 to 400; but to make up the proposed sum they taxed above 100,000 men, as well strangers as natives, priests as laymen; in levying whereof the soldiers committed unheard of cruelties. The triumvirs having satiated themselves with blood and plunder, declared to the senate the proscription was at an end, and appointed M. Æmilius Lepidus and Lucius Munacius Plancus consuls for the ensuing year; and because they were going into the east against Brutus and Cassius, the triumvirs named consuls, prætors and ædiles, for several years to come

XIII. 238

4264 2957 42

Cleopatra hearing of Mark Anthony and Octavianus's coming into Syria with a great army, sets out with a great fleet, &c. to meet and join them; but falling sick on the way, and having lost abundance of her ships in a storm, is forced to return home

IX. 289

4264 2957 42

Cassius sends a body of horse into Cappadocia against Ariobarzanes, for having sided with Cæsar and his friends, overcomes, takes, and puts him to death, and raises great contributions upon his subjects

IX. 470

4264 2957 42

Cassius goes against the Rhodians, for assisting the triumviri: They sue to him for peace; he requires their fleet and city, &c. to be delivered up to him; they refuse, have two engagements at sea, and are beat both times with great loss: Then he takes their city, punishes the great men with death, plunders the treasury, temples, and city,

Before
Christ.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

ty, punishing with death those who concealed any part of their wealth, extorted from them 8000 talents, taxed the city at 500 talents, and leaves L. Varus there with a strong garrison to exact it

4264 2957 42 Brutus besieges Xanthus, the strongest city in Asia, which, after the slaughter of many Romans, he took. The Xanthians set fire to the town, and burn their own houses and goods, and destroy their wives, children, and themselves, in the flames, choosing death rather than slavery

4264 2957 42 Brutus and Cassius, with 19 legions and 20,000 horse, meet Anthony and Octavianus, with 19 legions and 13,000 horse, in the plains of Philippi, the boundary of Macedon and Thrace: They engage; Brutus falls upon Octavianus, kills abundance of his men, and takes his camp, a great many ensigns, and three eagles. In return, Anthony defeated Cassius, kills many of his men, takes his camp, and entirely routs the rest; Cassius only with a few attendants retiring to the top of a hill, Brutus coming towards him, Cassius imagining it was Anthony, killed himself, and then both armies retire. The same day the admirals and fleets of both parties meet and engage; Anthony is entirely defeated, and most of his ships being taken or destroyed, together with a vast quantity of stores and provisions they were bringing: This so straitened Anthony, that day after day he offered Brutus battle, which at last by the importunity of his men he consented to. Anthony having massacred all the prisoners he had taken in the last battle, Brutus now orders only all the slaves he had prisoners to be killed: They engage, and Brutus is intirely defeated, and his army routed; upon which he kills himself

4264 2957 42 Upon Mark Anthony's coming into Bithynia, after the defeat of Brutus and Cassius, the governors and heads of provinces come to make their submission and court to him: The Jews come and accuse Phasaël and his brother Herod; but they being there likewise, had so prepared the conqueror by large gifts that he would not hear them. When Anthony arrived at Ephesus, Hyrcan petitions for the releasement and lands of those Jewish prisoners Cassius had sold; which Anthony readily grants. Upon Anthony's coming to Daphne, near Antioch, the Jews again petition him against the two brothers, Phasaël and Herod; but Hyrcan appearing in their behalf, Anthony makes them both Tetrarchs; but the Jews at Jerusalem sent a third embassy of a thousand persons to Tyre, who were killed, wounded, and dispersed, &c.

4264 2957 42 Anthony and Octavianus having conquered their greatest enemies, disband part of their troops and separate, Octavianus for Italy, and Anthony for Asia: In his passage thither Anthony passed through Greece, and assisted in the schools and academies, administering justice with great equity, and making large presents: Leaving Lucius Censorinus, one of his lieutenants, governor of Greece, he went into Asia, where he was met by all the kings and princes subject to the Roman power, who brought their wives and daughters with them to tempt him with their charms, who strove among themselves to render themselves most agreeable to him by great presents and compliances; Ephesus seemed most to hit his taste; the women dressed in the habits they celebrated the

Before
Christ.Y. of Flood.Y. of
world.

feasts of Bacchus, and the men and boys like fauns and satyrs. Anthony cites queen Cleopatra to come and clear herself for giving assistance to Brutus; she obeys, and appears at Tarsus in Cilicia: Her wit and beauty so bewitched him, that he spent all the winter in softness with her in Egypt, neglecting all business both of the camp and court

XIII. 300

4265 2958

41

Octavianus coming into Italy, sets about distributing the lands promised to the soldiers, which raised great complaints, as many were injured and beggared: The soldiers were as much displeased as the people, and set against Octavianus. Fulvia, the wife of Anthony, with the present consuls, join to raise the publick discontent against him still higher. He divorces Clodia, the daughter of Fulvia, declaring she was for him still a maid. The state is divided into two powerful and inveterate parties; and cruel murders, &c. were daily committed in Rome, by the populace and soldiers. All things thus in a flame, a famine encreased their distress, each side blaming the other. Fulvia retires to Præneste, and heads the troops and acts like a general: Octavianus did all in his power to harass and distress her and her troops, which were numerous. Lucius, brother and general for Fulvia, having lost abundance of his men by famine and a vigorous defence, sallies out of Perusia, goes to Octavianus, who promises a free pardon for all his troops provided he surrendered the town; Lucius orders his men to march out, and acknowledge the conqueror for their general; but the senators, &c. to the number of 300, were carried in chains to an altar, and there sacrificed to the manes of Julius Cæsar, and then order'd the city to be plundered: But one Cestius setting fire to his own house, the wind being high, communicated the flames, so that the whole city was reduced to ashes. Upon this Fulvia and her adherents flew, some to one place and some to another; and so ended this war, called the war of Perusia. Fulvia retiring to Sicyon, died there of grief soon after

XIII. 315

4266 2959

40

Anthony's negligence occasioned an universal revolt in Asia, where his lieutenants were defeated several times; upon which he comes into Greece, and in his crossing the Ionian sea is joined by Ahenobarbus and his fleet; upon their arrival at Brundisium, the garrison shuts the gates against them; upon which Anthony invites Pompey in Sicily to join him against Octavianus: He comes immediately, and they make a descent upon Italy, and take many cities. But by the mediation of Cocceius, Pollio and *Mæcenæ*s, all disputes are adjusted, and the two triumvirs make a new distribution of the Roman empire, and Octavia (the sister of Octavianus) and Anthony are married together. Pompey by his fleets and armies prevented corn coming from Sicily to Italy, so that there was a famine in Rome. Anthony at last prevails upon Octavianus to make peace with Pompey, and to settle all their disputes amicably; which being done, plenty is again restored to Rome, and many of the proscribed nobility come home, and are restored to their former dignities

XIII. 323

4266 2959

40

Antigonus the son of Aristobulus, by the assistance of Ptolemy and Pacorus, invades Judea, and goes to Jerusalem, where they had several skirmishes, with great loss on both sides. Phasaël and *Hyrca*n are prevailed on to go to Barzapharnes, the general of the Parthians, where they are surprized by treachery, and Herod forced to fly into Idumea: The Parthians plunder Herod's palace, the city and country round about, and Marissa, (an opulent city) which they entirely destroyed, and then installed Antigonus upon the Jewish throne; and Phasaël and Hyrcan are soon after brought to him in chains; Hyrcan's ears were cut off, which disqualified him for the office of high priest, and Phasaël killed himself. Herod went to Rome, where by the senate he is made king of Judea, and Anthony having ordered Ventidius to assist him, he went to the relief of Massada, now besieged by Antigonus; in his way he took Joppa, and made Antigonus raise the siege of Massada; from whence he marched to Jerusalem

4267 2960 39 While Herod was gone to wait on Ventidius the Roman general at Samosata, his brother Joseph was defeated and killed by Antigonus, and Galilee taken. Herod upon his return engages Antigonus, and defeats him with very great slaughter, and recovered Galilee, &c. Then he went to Samaria, to consummate his marriage with Mariamne, whom he had betrothed four years before

4267 2960 39 Pompey and Octavianus quarrelling, renew their hostilities against each other: Menas, governor of Corsica and Sardinia for Pompey, and also admiral of his fleet, being disgusted with his master, goes over to Octavianus with three legions, the whole fleet, and surrenders the two islands: Octavianus entertains him with great respect, and makes him commander of his whole fleet. Pompey sends Menocrates to ravage the coast of Italy, which he doing, is met by Calvilius and Menas; a bloody engagement ensues; Menas wounds, boards Menocrates's galley, and takes it; Menocrates jumps into the sea, and is drowned; Demochares takes the command, took several of Calvilius's galleys, and drove most of the rest on the rocks, where they were lost. Octavianus going to Messina, is attacked, and most of his ships sunk or dashed to pieces, and a violent storm the next day destroyed a great part of the remainder

4267 2960 39 Anthony having restored the Rhodians to their antient rights and privileges, which Cassius had taken from them, bestows also upon them the islands of Andros, Naxos, Tenedos, and the city of Myndus: But the Rhodians tyrannizing over them very extraordinarily, Anthony is forced to take their sovereignty over them away

4267 2960 39 Cleopatra going as far as Tarsus, to meet and incant Anthony, strove with all the temptations of luxury, presents, and complaisance to gain him, which she did so effectually, that no request of her's, however dishonourable, was deny'd; nor any complaint, however just against her, heard so as to be redressed: So bewitched was he to her charms, that, instead of putting his troops into winter quarters, he marched over hills, rocks, &c. to the loss of 60,000 of his men, by the length and severities of the march, in the depth of winter, to go to her

4268 2961 38 Anthony and Octavianus, by the mediation of Octavia, settle all their differences, and mutually assist each other, and by their own authority continue themselves five years longer in the triumvirate; and Julia, Octavianus's daughter, is betrothed to Antyllus, Anthony's son. Octavianus having again got a large fleet under the command of Agrippa, (Menas having left him and returned to Pompey) they set out in July, but a violent storm arising, destroyed many of their ships; but soon after repairing his damages, they

Before Christ.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of world.
-------------------	---------------	-----------------

they land in Sicily : Several skirmishes happen by land and sea, with various success ; but at last a general action at sea happening, Pompey is intirely defeated, losing 333 sail of large ships, making his escape with only 17 galleys. Soon after Octavianus and Lepidus quarrel so high as to come to blows ; but Octavianus bribing his soldiers, Lepidus is deserted, and begs his life of Octavianus, which he grants him. Octavianus now has 45 legions under his command, 25,000 horse, 160,000 light-armed foot, and 600 ships of war. The war in Sicily being ended, his soldiers mutiny, demanding great rewards ; he discharges 20,000, and pacifies the others with large promises, and a present of 500 drachma's a man. At his return to Rome he is greatly flattered, and made perpetual tribune of the people

XIII. 343

4268 2961 38 Herod besieges Jerusalem, with the assistance of Sosius the Roman general ; and after five months resolute defence, takes it by assault : A terrible slaughter is made of the inhabitants by the Romans, to whom Herod made a large present, to prevent their further plunder. Antigonus was carried in chains to Anthony, and afterwards put to death, by the instigation of Herod

X. 279

4269 2962 37 Herod, now absolute king of Judea, seizes and confiscates the estates of the most wealthy Antigonians, and put 45 of the head men to death. Herod having advanced one Ananel, a private obscure Babylonish priest, to the pontifical dignity, is continually teased by his mother-in-law Alexandra to depose Ananel, and advance her son Aristobulus ; he does it, but in less than a year's time has him stifled as he was bathing

X. 286

4270 2963 36 Anthony goes against the Parthians, but fails in his attempt, losing more than 70,000 men by war, famine, and excessive cold weather

XI. 51

4270 2963 36 Pompey flying to Lesbos, and there hearing of Anthony's ill success against the Parthians, raises great disturbances in the east, where he got an army, and took several cities ; but being engaged by Marcus Titius, is defeated, taken, and put to death

XIII. 343

4274 2967 32 Anthony early in the spring sets out for Syria, in order to go to Parthia ; Cleopatra will attend him to the Euphrates ; he bestows all Cyrene, Cyprus, Cæle-Syria, Iturea, and Phænice upon her, with great part of Cilicia and Crete ; but not satisfied, she solicits him to put Herod king of Judea and Malchus king of Petrea to death, to have their kingdoms also, which he refused : In her return home, she came by the way of Jerusalem, where Herod treated her very splendidly ; she pretends to be in love with him, and strove to intice him to familiarity ; which so exasperated Herod, that he would have put her to death, but was persuaded and advised to the contrary

IX. 295

4274 2967 32 Anthony, contrary to the most solemn oaths, takes Artabazes king of Armenia prisoner, and reduced the whole country ; then makes a match for Alexander, one of his sons by Cleopatra, and a daughter of the king of Media ; and then returned to Alexandria, entering it in a triumphal chariot, his booty, king Artabazes, his wife, children, &c. being carried before him in the Roman manner : Cleopatra seated on a golden throne, &c. sits to receive him, to whom the captive king, &c. in golden chains, were presented, and ordered to kneel to her ;

World.	Y. of Hood.	Before Chrif.			Vol.	Page.
4274	2967	32	but they refuse: and all the Romans are angry at the whole procedure		IX.	296
4274	2967	32	Anthony treats all the Alexandrians at an immense expence; and being seated on one golden throne, and Cleopatra on another, in the Gymnasium, he makes an oration to the people, and proclaims Cæsarion (Cleopatra's son by Julius Cæsar) king of Egypt and Cyprus in conjunction with his mother; and having three children by her himself, viz. Alexander , Ptolemy , (surnamed Philadelphus) and Cleopatra , to Alexander he gave Armenia, Media, Parthia, &c. from the Euphrates to India; to Cleopatra , Alexander's twin sister, Libya and Cyrene; and to Philadelphus , Phænice, Syria, Cilicia, and all Asia Minor, from the Euphrates to the Hellespont, with the title of King of Kings; makes queen Cleopatra change her name to Isis , and he takes the name of Osiris , the great god and goddess of the Egyptians		IX.	296
4274	2967	32	Cleopatra resolves upon the destruction of Herod , sends an army under the command of her general Athenion , pretending to assist him against Malchus king of Arabia, who, when Herod and Malchus was engaged, falls upon Herod's army, and cut most of it to pieces, himself escaping with difficulty		X.	291
4274	2967	32	Octavianus sends his sister Octavia to his colleague Anthony her husband, who was revelling in the arms of Cleopatra at Leucopolis : Octavia sends him word of her arrival at Athens; he orders her to return to Rome, and goes to Alexandria with Cleopatra , and spends the winter in a shameful manner with her: She returns to Rome; Octavianus is highly incensed, but Octavia strives to moderate between them. Anthony declares Cleopatra queen of Egypt, Cyprus, Africa, and Cæle-Syria, joining Cæsarion (her son by Cæsar) her colleague with her. Octavianus and Anthony reciprocally accuse each other to the people of Rome; and Anthony collects 800 ships at Ephesus, with a great army and a vast sum of money; from hence he goes to Athens, and Cleopatra with him. The consuls C. Sosius and Domitius Ahenobarbus fly from Rome to Athens, and so enraged Anthony against Octavianus , that he divorces Octavia , and sends officers to turn her out of his house at Rome. Cleopatra using some of Anthony's friends ill at Athens, they forsake him. Anthony having made a will in favour of Cleopatra , in prejudice to Rome, and lodged it with the vestal virgins, Octavianus comes and seizes it, first reads it himself, and then assembles the senate, where it is read publickly; and Anthony is accused by Calpurnius of many faults; and Cleopatra behaving very haughtily, many of his friends desert him. Octavianus declares war against Cleopatra , and deposed Anthony from his commands, &c.		XIII.	352
4275	2968	31	Anthony and Octavianus come to an engagement at sea near Actium, which remained long doubtful; in the midst of the fight Cleopatra comes with 60 sail of ships, stands for some time between both fleets, and then sets sail for Peloponnesus; Anthony is so infatuated as to leave his fleet and army, and go after her: 300 of his ships yield to Octavianus , and his land forces did the same, after standing out seven days without leaders		XIII.	363
4275	2968	31	A terrible earthquake happens at Jerusalem, which destroyed a vast number of people and cattle; upon which Herod

Before Christ.	Y. of Rood	Y. of world.
				is forced to sue to the Arabians for peace, who refuse it, and murder his ambassadors, and come in great numbers to invade Judea: Herod gave them two signal defeats, and after forcing them to accept of peace upon his own terms, returns to Jerusalem in triumph	X. 292
	4275	2968	31	Artaxias II. the eldest son of Artuasdes, is proclaimed king of Armenia, in opposition to Alexander, Cleopatra's son, whom he defeated, but did not hold his kingdom long, being strangled by his pretended friends	IX. 348
	4276	2969	30	Tiberius the Roman general sets up Tigranes (the son of Artaxia) upon the Armenian throne, putting the crown upon his head with his own hands, and honours him with the title of friend and ally of the Roman people; but this did not last long, Tiberius ordering him soon after to be put to death	IX. 349
	4276	2969	30	Augustus sets up Artuasdes for king of Armenia; but the people drive him away, and chuse Phraates king of Parthia : But a Roman army comes against him under Caius , Augustus 's adopted son: Phraates retires, and sues for peace, which is granted, and Artuasdes restored; he dying soon after, Tigranes III. seizes the kingdom, but is drove out by Caius	IX. 351
	4276	2969	30	Anthony being defeated by Octavianus , Herod king of Judea sends advice to him to murder Cleopatra , and to come into Egypt and raise an army, and promises to assist him with all his own force of money, troops, strong holds, &c. but Anthony refuses. Hyrca n the former high-priest being still alive, Herod orders him to be beheaded, in the 8 th year of his age, for fear the people should prefer Hyrca n's to Herod 's title to the crown	X. 293
	4276	2969	30	Herod king of Judea goes to Octavianus now at Rhodes , and offers his service to him against Anthony and Cleopatra , who send messengers to Octavius to make up the breach between them, but are refused by him; at last they offer to resign up all, and live a private life in Athens , or where else soever he should think fit to appoint them: Octavianus receives the queen's presents, and promises to pardon her, if she would put Anthony to death; but would not hear the ambassadors of Anthony , though he sent his own son with a vast sum of money, and offered to kill himself if he would settle Egypt on Cleopatra 's children. Cleopatra betrays Anthony , and he kills himself; she is taken by Octavianus , and kills herself, after reigning 22 years. Octavianus turned Egypt into a Roman province. Augustus is met by Herod at Ptolemais ; Herod treats him and his whole army with great magnificence, and presents him with 800 talents in money, besides bread, wine, &c. for his army; in return for which Octavianus gave him several towns, &c.	IX. 311
	4277	2970	29	Octavianus spends the whole winter in settling the provinces of Asia Minor and the adjacent islands: In the spring, he first goes into Greece , and from thence to Rome , where he had three triumphs for three successive days, and afterwards he had the title of emperor, with sovereignty and uncontroul'd power; but to deceive the people, continued the usual magistrates with only so much power as he thought fit to allow them, having overcome his qualm of laying down his usurped authority: However, he courted the populace by many seeming acts of kindness; the senate he encreased to a thousand members, and advanced all

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before
				his own creatures: He raised many publick buildings, repaired the old ones, and added many stately ornaments to the city, which was now said to be 50 miles in compass, and contained 4,000,000 souls
4277	2970	29		Mariamne , Herod's favourite wife, and Herod have great quarrels; she is falsely accused of adultery, and of corrupting his cup bearer to poison him, is tried, condemned and executed, by means of the furious hatred of Salome, Herod's sister
4278	2971	28		A great plague breaks out in Judea, which sweeps away multitudes of the people: Herod grows prodigious uneasy, and frenzical for the loss of his Mariamne : Being now informed of her innocence, he revenges himself upon many of his best friends and nearest relations, and puts them to death, and among them Alexandra , the mother of Mariamne
4278	2971	28		Tiberius gives Armenia to Mithridates Iberus . Artabanus invades Armenia, who was defeated and drove away by Tiberius
4279	2972	27		Octavianus in open senate offers to lay down his authority, and to retire to a private life; but they in return desire him to take upon him the whole government, which with much seeming reluctance he does, and has the title of Augustus conferred on him. Thus ended the greatest commonwealth, and began the greatest monarchy ever known, infinitely excelling all others in power, riches, extent, and continuance, whose yearly revenue is said, upon a moderate computation, to be 40,000,000 l. sterl.
4280	2973	26		Salome , Herod's sister, quarrelling with her husband Cestobares , governor of Idumea, first sends him a bill of divorce, and then accuses him of treason to Herod, who puts him, Lyfimachus , Dositheus and Antipater , to death. Being now delivered from all fear of the Asmonean race, he abolishes several Jewish ceremonies and customs, and introduced foreign ones that were forbidden; builds a stately theatre in the city of Jerusalem, and a spacious amphitheatre in the suburbs, and ordered publick games there every fifth year in honour of Augustus , and by large rewards to the conquerors drew vast numbers of people of all nations thither: This so displeased the zealous Jews, that they no longer looked upon him as their king, but as a heathenish tyrant: Ten Jews goes into the theatre to kill Herod; but being discovered, were put to death with the most exquisite torments; but the people tore the informer to pieces, and gave his flesh to the dogs; which so exasperated Herod, that he put whole families to death, tormenting the women to make them discover the men, &c.
4280	2973	26		Augustus takes a census of Gaul, now divided into three districts, being the first ever made out of Italy; then he goes into Spain, and defeats the revolted Cantabri , and soon after his general C. Antistius defeated again the united strength of the Cantabri and Asturians , and then besieges them upon the hill of their retreat, where they were so much straitened for provisions, that the women eat their children, and the young men the old ones; the Asturians are for surrendering, the Cantabri will not; they fight with one another, and kill many on both sides, and 10,000 Asturians are drove to the Roman intrenchments; Tiberius (the emperor's son-in-law) will not admit them; many kill themselves with

Before Christ.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of world.
				with their swords, others light fires and jump into the flames, and the rest poison themselves	XIII. 375
		4281	2974	25 This year Spain, after a struggle for its liberty of 200 years, is intirely subjected to Rome. The Cantabrians to the number of 23,000 surrendering at discretion, 10,000 are incorporated among the auxiliaries, and the rest sold for slaves, most of whom destroyed themselves, preferring death to slavery. Most of the Asturians are cut to pieces, and all their towns and strong places taken : Augustus built several cities to keep the natives in awe, as Cæsar Augusta, (now Saragossa) and Augusta Emerita, (now Merida :) He likewise built a stone bridge over the Iberus, for his troops to march out of one province into another	XIII. 376
		4281	2974	25 Crassus overcomes the Mæsians, a fierce and savage people beyond the Danube. Terentius Varro reduced the Salassi, obliging them to submit to his terms, who after they had delivered up their arms, sent 40,000 of their youth to Eporedia, (now Ivrea) to be slaves for 20 years	XIII. 376
		4281	2974	25 Cornelius Gallus having tyrannized over the people of Egypt, where Augustus had sent him governor, and stripped all the cities particularly Thebes, of all valuable in it, was recalled and deposed ; for which he inveighing against Augustus, the senate condemned him to banishment ; upon which he killed himself	XIII. 377
		4281	2974	25 Amyntas king of Pisidia dies ; he had been secretary to old king Dejotarus, and raised by Marc Anthony to the throne : Upon his death Pisidia, Galatia, and Lycaonia were reduced to a Roman province, and first governed by M. Lollius, in quality of proprætor	XIII. 377
		4281	2974	25 Marcellus (the adopted son of Augustus) son to Octavia, sister of Augustus, by her first husband, marries Julia the daughter of Augustus by Scribonia ; and Juba king of Getulia marries Cleopatra Selene, daughter of Cleopatra queen of Egypt by Marc Antony	XIII. 379
		4282	2975	24 The senate free Augustus from the restraint of all law, and allow him to govern absolutely by his will, and that Marcellus (the adopted son of Augustus) might, though but sixteen years old, have a place among the senators of the pretorian rank, and might stand for the consulate 10 years sooner than the law allowed ; and that Tiberius his son-in-law might stand for the curule offices five years sooner than usual, upon which Marcellus was immediately made ædile, and Tiberius quæstor	XIII. 380
		4282	2975	24 The Asturians and Cantabrians revolt, surprize a considerable body of Romans, and cut them all off ; but Ælius Lama , governor of that part of Spain, lays their whole country waste with fire and sword, and kills most of their young men, and so absolutely reduced them again in about a months time	XIII. 383
		4282	2975	24 Ælius Gallus makes an expedition against Arabia-Felix, with 10,000 men given him by Augustus, 500 out of Herod king of Judea's guards, and 1000 given him by Obodes king of the Nabathean Arabs, under the command of Sylleus, Obodes's chief favourite, who pretended to be Gallus's guide, but led him out of the way on purpose ; at last he got thither, and took the metropolis of the country by assault ; then falling in with a large number of the natives, he kills 10,000 of them, with the loss of only two men ; and so went on, taking all the cities he came at ; but his men being sick, he returned back to Egypt, having lost

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.	Text
4282	2975	24	but seven men in all his assaults and battles, but almost all his army by fatigue and sickness; so that at the end of two years arriving in Egypt, this expedition was never after attempted any more by the Romans
4282	2975	24	Candace , queen of Ethiopia, invades the province of Thebais in Upper Egypt, surprizes several cities, carries the Roman garrisons away prisoners, throws down Augustus's statues, and laid the whole country waste. C. Petronius assembles 10,000 foot and 800 horse, attacks Candace at Pselcha in Ethiopia, upon the banks of the Nile, defeats her army of 30,000 men, takes Pselcha, the key of Ethiopia on the side of Egypt, and then went 800 miles up into the country; then went to Napata, the metropolis, and took and destroyed it; then put a garrison of 400 men into Premnis, with provisions for two years; and then returned with many thousand captives, which he sold for slaves. Candace attacks Premnis, Petronius goes to its relief, defeats Candace, and forces her to a very disadvantageous peace; but some time after Augustus remitted the tribute, and gave her the cities, &c. again
4283	2976	23	Augustus being very ill, sends for the curule magistrates, and senators of equestrian order, and in their presence delivers to Calpurnius Piso his colleague his will, and a book of his own writing, containing a distinct account of the towns, provinces, allies, forces, riches and taxes, of the whole Roman empire: But Antonius Musa, a famous Greek physician, restored him unexpectedly to his health, for which he and all of his profession were allowed to wear a gold ring, and to live tax-free
4283	2976	23	Augustus resigns the fasces to P. Sestius, a man of unblameable character, upon which the senate confer the title of continual proconsul of the Roman empire upon him, with power to assemble the senate when he pleased, and to exercise the authority of tribune in Rome, and in all distant provinces. His successors would never part with this power, that rendered them uncontrollable by, and unaccountable to, any power whatever
4283	2976	23	Marcellus (the adopted son of Augustus) dies, highly lamented of all, and is honoured with the utmost funeral magnificence in the Campus Martius, Augustus himself pronouncing his funeral oration
4283	2976	23	Herod king of Judea growing cruel and excessively severe to the people, they shew a general dislike to him; wherefore, to prevent a revolt, he fortifies Jerusalem, rebuilds Samaria, and garrisons the strong fortresses of Judea. This year there happened a great drought, which brought on a famine, and ended in a raging pestilence, of which multitudes die for want of help and sustenance. Herod is forced to melt down his plate to buy corn in Egypt, &c.
4283	2976	23	Herod deposes Jesus, the son of Phabæus, from the high-priesthood, and advanced Simon the son of Boethus, a Jewish priest of Alexandria, to that dignity, for the sake of his beautiful daughter Mariamne, whom he married
4284	2977	22	A dreadful plague rages in Rome and all over Italy, which occasioned the lands to be untilld, so that a general famine attend d it: The Tiber overflowed, and laid a great part of the city under water: Lightning dashed several statues in the Pantheon to pieces. The populace imagining these punishments happened, because Augustus laid down the consulship, obliged the senate to name him dictator;

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			dictator ; but he refused it, but accepted the office of general purveyor, but would in no wise accept of being perpetual censor	XIII.	387
4284	2977	22	A conspiracy is formed against Augustus by Murena, a man of unblemished character, and Fannius Cæpio, the greatest debauchee in Rome : 'Tis discovered, and they are put to death ; after which Augustus delivered to the senate Cyprus and Narbonne Gaul, which were turned into proconsular provinces	XIII.	390
4284	2977	22	The Cantabrians and Asturians revolt again, but were soon reduced by C. Furius : The people finding they could not shake of their slavery, many of them destroy themselves	XIII.	390
4284	2977	22	Gallia is divided into 16 provinces	XVIII.	563
4284	2977	22	Herod sends his two sons to Rome, to be educated under the care and direction of Augustus, who gives Herod several additional provinces, and leave to name either of his sons to be his successor	X.	304
4285	2978	21	Great uproars and much mischiefs are committed by the partizans of L. Silenus and Æmilius Lepidus, candidates for the consulship for this year ; to prevent which for the future, Augustus creates a new magistrate, whose province was to maintain peace and tranquility in the city ; for this purpose he marries his daughter Julia to Agrippa, with the utmost splendor, and gave him that office, which he discharged to the intire satisfaction of the senate and the people	XIII.	391
4285	2978	21	Zenodorus, from whom Augustus had taken several provinces, accuses Herod of male-administration : Augustus appoints a day to hear the cause, but shews so much partiality in favour of Herod, that he poisons himself, and his adherents destroy themselves various ways, for fear of falling into Herod's hands, and then Augustus makes Herod procurator of Syria	X.	305
4285	2978	21	Herod to ingratiate himself with the Jews, in a set speech proposes to pull down the temple at Jerusalem, and to rebuild it equal or superior to Solomon's ; and to convince them of it, proposes to have all the materials for the new one ready upon the spot, before he pulls down the old one : They consent ; he immediately sets 10,000 men to work under the direction of 1000 priests, and 1000 carts are employed in fetching materials : So much expedition was used, that in two year's time they begin to pull the old one down ; and in a year and half's time more the carcass of the new one was erected in a most sumptuous manner, and in eight years the whole finished for use	X.	308
4285	2978	21	Augustus goes into Sicily, and settles matters there ; then goes into Greece, and bestows the island of Cithera and five other cities on the Lacedæmonians, and punishes the Athenians for erecting statues to Brutus and Cassius, and took from them the island of Egina and the city of Eretria, and then went to Samos, and wintered there	XIII.	392
4286	2979	20	Augustus goes into Asia, deprives the Cyzicans of their liberty, for having whipt and put to death some Roman citizens : The same he did by Tyre and Sidon, and so frightened Phraates king of Parthia, that he sent all the ensigns and captives to him taken in the war with Crassus and Anthony, and submits to all the conditions Augustus required of him	XIII.	392
4286	2979	20	Julia, the daughter of Augustus and wife of Agrippa, brings forth a son, who was named Caius, on whose birth-day a

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			perpetual sacrifice, &c. was decreed by way of thanksgiving to the gods	XIII.	394
4287	2980	19	Augustus is named consul, but he refuses: The disputes between the candidates rise so high, that abundance on both sides are killed: To quiet all disturbances Augustus names Q. Lucretius Vespillo to be the colleague of C. Sentius Saturninus . The consuls and Agrippa , punish the rioters with great severity	XIII.	395
4287	2980	19	Porus king of India sends to Augustus to desire an alliance and an interview, offering all his strength and the strength of his 600 kings, over whom he reigned, to assist him: Zarmar , one of the ambassadors, follows Augustus to Athens, and there burnt himself before him	XIII.	395
4287	2980	19	Upon Augustus 's return to Rome, the senate decree him three triumphal arches, erected an altar to Fortune, and ordered that this day should be annually solemnized with sacrifices, shews, sports, &c.	XIII.	396
4287	2980	19	Virgil , the prince of Latin poets, dies, in the 51st year of his age: By his will he ordered his Æneid to be burnt, not having put the finishing stroke to it; but Augustus preserved it	XIII.	396
4287	2980	19	The senate prevail upon Augustus to be censor for five years, and confer the consular power on him for life: He sends Agrippa against the revolted Cantabrians in Spain, and the Germans who had crossed the Rhine and committed horrid disorders; but upon his approach they retire, and he goes into Spain, where after a very obstinate fight, all the Cantabrians fit to bear arms were cut off, their castles and strong holds razed, and the women, children, and old men brought out of the mountains and forced to live in the plains	XIII.	398
4287	2980	19	Agrippa returns to Rome, refuses a triumph, and lays out vast sums of money to embellish the city, and build and repair aqueducts, of vast beauty, expence, and serviceableness	XIII.	398
4287	2980	19	Augustus grants a triumph to Lucius Cornelius Balbus , for having subdued the Garamantes, a people of Africa before unknown: Balbus was the first foreigner that ever had a triumph, he being a Spaniard by birth	XIII.	399
4288	2981	18	Augustus prorogued his absolute authority for five years more, his first ten being near expired, and takes Agrippa to be a partner with him in his power, and made him tribune for five years; then sets about reforming the senate, by reducing them from 1000 to 500 members; he names thirty, and impowers each to name five, out of which one was chose by lot, &c. then proceeds to reform many abuses, &c. Julia brings forth a second son, named Lucius , and Augustus adopts both of them	XIII.	402
4289	2982	17	The secular games, which had been discontinued for 100 years, were exhibited by Augustus and Agrippa with great pomp and magnificence. They encourage a great number of stage-players, but severely correct their immorality	XIII.	403
4290	2983	16	Augustus pretends to go into Gaul to quell disturbances, but it was really to have an opportunity of enjoying Terentia , the wife of Mecænas , whom he took with him, where he staid this and the following year, though all was quiet	XIII.	403
4290	2983	16	Herod goes to Rome, where Augustus receives him with all possible marks of friendship, and returning suitable presents and thanks, receives his two sons, now grown up, and vastly polished and improved: At his return he married

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Alexander to Glaphyra, daughter of Archelaus king of Cappadocia; and Aristobulus to Berenice, daughter of his sister Salome	X.	212
4291	2984	15	The Rhæti invade Italy, and make a dreadful havock, putting all the males they meet with to the sword: Against these went Drusus, second son of Livia, who though but a youth, gained a great victory over them, and cut great numbers of them to pieces: The remainder of them join the Vindelici, and go to invade Gaul; Tiberius, brother of Drusus, meets them at the lake Brigantium (now Constance) gave them a total overthrow, and forced the whole nation to accept of his conditions, and planted two colonies in two cities to keep them in awe	XIII.	408
4291	2984	15	Agrippa goes into Syria to quell disturbances that were risen there; Herod invites him into Judea, and entertains him with vast splendor and honour; which so pleased Agrippa, that he bestowed many gifts and favours on the Jews; and while he was at Jerusalem he offered up a whole hecatomb at the temple. When he went against the Bosphorean rebels, Herod met and joined his fleet at Lesbos, with another of his own, replenished with men, arms, provisions, money, &c.	X.	313
4291	2984	15	Augustus orders Agrippa a triumph for his successes in the east. Augustus takes upon him the office of Pontifex Maximus, which he held to his death, as did all of his successors, both christian and heathen, till the year 375 of the Christian æra	XIII.	410
4292	2985	14	The Ligures Comati, who inhabited the maritime Alps, are subdued, their country made a Roman province, and Augustus returns to Rome, and then he made a law, that the veterans should not be rewarded with lands, as had formerly been done, (to the great oppression and disturbance of the publick) but with money	XIII.	411
4292	2985	14	Herod returning from the Bosphorus, remits the people of Judea a fourth part of the tribute. Salome his sister strives by wicked ways to accuse his two sons of treason against him: Herod at last carries them to Aquileia to Cæsar, and there accuses them: Alexander pleads his own and his brother's cause so effectually, that they are honourably acquitted, and Herod blamed for his rash belief and ill will against his own children	X.	314
4293	2986	13	Augustus as Pontifex Maximus corrected a great error that had crept into the kalendar, it being usual to reckon the leap year every third year, which he set to rights, and ordered it as it now is, every fourth year. Agrippa returns, and brings Herod's son Antipater with him to Rome, is graciously received, but refuses the honour of a triumph	XIII.	413
4294	2987	12	Agrippa goes against the revolted Pannonians; they submit upon his terms; he takes away their arms, and has hostages for their peaceable behaviour, but dies in Campania as he was returning to Rome	XIII.	414
4295	2988	11	Augustus takes Tiberius partner with him in the empire, and sends him against the Pannonians, who upon the death of Agrippa revolted: He overcomes them, disarms them, takes hostages, and all their towns and strong holds, laid waste the fields, plundered the cities, and sent their young men into other countries, and then returned to Rome	XIII.	415
4295	2988	11	Drusus so ingratiates himself with the Gauls, that they lay aside their intention of revolting, and erect a temple to Augustus at Lions, and pay him divine honours while

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.	Before		Vol.	Page.
				living, and games like the Nemean games instituted in honour of him. Drusus then gains great advantages against the Germans, who were crossing the Rhine to come into Gaul, whom he drove back, and followed them into Germany, and then returned to Rome, and was made prætor	XIII.	418
4296	2989	10		The city of Cæsarea having been 12 years in building, is now finished, and Herod dedicates it with the utmost pomp, and appointed games to be performed every fifth year: He also built Antipatris, Cypron, and many others	X.	315
4296	2989	10		Drusus conquers many German nations, who joining together, surrounded him, but at last he overthrew them, and found in their camp abundance of chains, with which they intended to load the Romans, &c.	XIII.	417
4296	2989	10		Octavia , sister of Augustus, dies, a lady of the most consummate wisdom, and greatest pattern of virtue in her time: Augustus honoured her so far as to pronounce her funeral oration himself	XIII.	419
4297	2990	9		The Jews of Asia and Cyrene send a deputation to Augustus, who obtains a redress of their grievances, and a decree very favourable to them	X.	315
4297	2990	9		Tiberius subdues the Daci, a German nation, and transplants 40,000 into Gaul. Drusus subdued all from the Rhine to the Elbe, and died	XIII.	419
4298	2991	8		Herod's jealousy having carried his warm temper to a great pitch of rage against his two sons, he puts to death, rack, and torment, all that he suspects; but Archelaus king of Cappadocia (whose daughter Herod's son Alexander had married) interposes, and makes peace, so that he is forced to go to Rome to clear his sons from the accusations he had laid against them there	X.	319
4298	2991	8		The Sicambrians and Sueves submit to Augustus, who orders 40,000 of them to be transported into Gaul, to repopulate several places depopulated by the wars	XIX.	220
4298	2991	8		Augustus pretends to lay down his power, but the Senate renews it for ten years more: He makes a census, and finds 4,233,000 Roman citizens in Rome. This year the famous Mecænas dies, Horace the noted poet, and one Caius Cæcilius Isidorus , remarkable for his extraordinary wealth, leaving behind him 4116 slaves, 3600 yoke of oxen, 200,057 head of other cattle, and 3,000,000 l. sterling in money	XIII.	426
4299	2992	7		Herod's new temple at Jerusalem being completely finished, he caused it to be dedicated with great solemnity	X.	319
4299	2992	7		A dreadful fire happens at Rome, occasioned by the debtors setting fire to their creditors houses, to escape from their cruelty. To prevent the like for the future, Augustus divides the city into fourteen wards, under proper governors	XIII.	426
4300	2993	6		Augustus confers the honour of tribune for five years on Tiberius , but he begs to lay down all his dignities, and to retire to Rhodes, to live there privately, which with great difficulty Augustus yields to: He spends his time in study, and converses only with philosophers, &c. but after living so upwards of a year, he grows weary of his retirement, and petitions Augustus for leave to return to Rome; but is absolutely refused it till 17 years after	XIII.	430
4300	2993	6		Herod , through the instigation of his sister Salome , again complains to Augustus against his sons; Augustus orders them to be tried at Berytus before the governors of Syria; he gets them condemned, and executes them himself	X.	322

World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4301	2994		5	Antipater , Herod's son is discovered plotting against his father ; many persons are put to death and banished, and Mariamne (Herod's present wife) banished, and her father deposed from the high priesthood	X.	325
4304	2997		2	Augustus is a thirteenth time consul : Having conferred the highest honours upon his two grandsons, Lucius and Caius, (sons of his daughter Julia) is so mortified by account of her wicked behaviour, that he shut himself up several days, refusing to be seen or to speak to any body ; then he banished Julia to Pandataria, a desert island on the coast of Campania (now called Santa Maria) and punished by banishment and death many of those who had been her partners in lewdness, debauchery, &c.	XIII.	431
4304	2997		2	Augustus , to divert his melancholy upon account of his family's disgrace, exhibits all manner of expensive and magnificent shews, such as chariot-races, gladiators, &c. and caused a canal, 1800 paces long and 200 broad, to be dug, and let in the Flaminian water, which was covered with crocodiles, 36 of which were killed by Egyptians, brought there on purpose, and then two fleets of ships representing a sea-fight succeeded, &c.	XIII.	432
4305	2998		1	John the baptist (the son of Zachary, a priest of the course of Abiah, and Elizabeth his wife) born	X.	325
4306	2999		0	Peace being settled in all the world, and the temple of Janus shut at Rome, Augustus orders a fresh survey of the Roman empire to be taken, and as it was executing Christ is born at Bethlehem in Judea. Soon after Herod ordered all the male-children from two years old to a day old to be murdered, in order to kill Jesus Christ, who was miraculously sent into Egypt before this cruel massacre was put in execution	X.	383
4307	3000		1	Antipater , Herod's son, sends Batillus (one of his servants) from Rome into Judea with poison for Herod his father ; 'tis discovered, and Antipater, now arrived at Rome, is arrested, and tried before Quintilius Varus, and cast and imprisoned	X.	388
4307	3000		1	Herod being very ill, 'tis reported he was dead : Judas the son of Sariphæus, and Matthias the son of Margalothus, (two learned Jewish doctors) raise the youth in Jerusalem, and threw down the statues that Herod had set up, particularly a golden eagle of an extraordinary size and workmanship over the temple gate : The two chiefs and 40 others are taken, and carried before the dying king, where they justify their proceedings, and are burnt for their pains. Herod's disease made him loathsome to himself, as well as to his attendants ; and so cross and cruel, that he issued his summons for all the heads of the people to meet in the circus at Jericho at a set day, and gave his sister Salome and her husband Alexas strict charge to butcher them all as soon as the breath was out of his body : The messengers return from Rome with Augustus's confirmation of Antipater's sentence of death, which was immediately executed	X.	392
4307	3000		1	Five days after the death of his son Antipater, Herod dies himself, but in the mean time alters his will, and left his kingdom to his son Archelaus, &c. Salome and her husband Alexas, instead of executing his cruel orders, sets the prison-door open. Archelaus is proclaimed king, and he indulges the people with granting all their requests : But a mutinous mob did much mischief, and made great

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			demands, and kills the soldiers sent against them; but Archelaus sends the whole army, kills 3000, and disperses the rest; then goes to Rome, where being opposed by Herod's other children, Augustus gives him half the kingdom, viz. Judea Propria, Idumea, and Samaria, with the title of Ethnarch, and divides the rest between his two sons, Philip and Antipas, and his sister Salome	X.	406
4307	3000	1	Many of the Jews side with one Alexander, who pretended to be the son of Herod, but being detected he is sent to the galleys	X.	408
4308	3001	2	Tiberius is allowed to return to Rome, and Lucius Cæsar dies, which brings Tiberius again into Augustus's favour	XIII.	439
4308	3001	2	Archelaus upon his return to Jerusalem deposes Joazar from the high-priesthood, and puts Eleazar in his stead; then divorces his wife Mariamne, and marries his brother Alexander's wife Glaphyra, contrary to the Jewish law; then he deposes Eleazar, and advances Jesus the son of Sias to the high-priesthood; he bestows immense sums upon beautifying his palace at Jericho	X.	408
4309	3002	3	The famous temple of the mother of the gods at Rome is reduced to ashes	XIII.	441
4310	3003	4	Numidia revolts from Rome, but is again reduced by Passienus and Coffus. The Parthians invade Armenia: Caius goes against them, and is treacherously wounded at Artagera by Addo the governor, as they were in conference; for which the Romans assault the city, take it by storm, and dismantle it, putting the governor and the whole garrison to the sword, Caius died soon after of the wound he had received from Addo, at Limyra, in the 24th year of his age, as he was returning to Rome; and Augustus adopts Tiberius, and bestows the tribunitial power on him for five years	XIII.	444
4310	3003	4	Cinna (grandson to Pompey) with many other great men, conspire against Augustus; it is discovered; Augustus pardons Cinna and his colleagues, and nominated Cinna to the next year's consulate	XIII.	445
4311	3004	5	Tiberius goes into Germany, and conquers abundance of the revolted nations, and returning to Rome is highly honoured and carested	XIII.	446
4311	3004	5	This and the following year the famine is so extravagant at Rome, that all foreigners, gladiators, wrestlers and slaves, (except physicians and school-masters) are driven out of the city to 80 miles distance. Augustus procured provisions from Sicily, Sardinia, &c. at the publick expence, and sold them at a low rate. The Parthians desire Augustus to give them a king; he names Vonones, son of Phra-hates, who is gladly received by the Parthians	XIII.	447
4312	3005	6	Tiberius returns into Germany, and subdues the revolted Germans wherever he comes. Cornelius Coffus goes against the Getuli, who revolting from king Juba, massacred all the Romans they found in his country, and committed dreadful ravages; he defeated them with vast slaughter, and obliged them to accept of what conditions he thought fit to grant them. Augustus banishes his grandson Posthumus, for his scandalous and wicked behaviour	XIII.	448
4312	3005	6	The Jews and Samaritans complain to Augustus against Archelaus for his wicked and tyrannical reign; Augustus sends for him to Rome, and hears both his accusers and him; condemns him to banishment, and confiscates all his goods, and makes Judea a Roman province, and

Y. of World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Cyrenius the governor of Syria is sent to tax it, and then sells Archelaus's palaces, seizes upon all his treasure, and returns to Antioch - - - - -	X.	409
4313	3006	7	One Judas and one Saducus spirit up some of the Jews to commit the most horrid butcheries and devastations upon the Gentiles, and the other Jews that did not join them; this brought on a grievous famine, and that a pestilence - - - - -	X.	411
4313	3006	7	The Samaritans, out of spite to the Jews, privately strew dead men's bodies up and down the temple at the time of the passover: So that the priests are forced to leave off their solemnity till it was repurified - - - - -	X.	411
4313	3006	7	Tiberius goes against Maroboduus king of the Marcomanni, a prince of vast personal strength, who with an army of 70,000 foot and 4000 horse, threatened Italy with an invasion. Messalinus going out of Pannonia and Dalmatia to reinforce Tiberius , the Pannonians and Dalmatians under the two Botta's, with each 100,000 men, revolt, and penetrate into Macedon, and kill all the Romans they meet with. Augustus raises a very large army, and puts Germanicus the son of Drusus at the head of it - - - - -	XIII.	450
4314	3007	8	A famine rages to such a degree in one of the Botta's camp, that he offers Tiberius to treat of peace; which being granted, this Botta engages and kills the other Botta, which subdued most of the revolters - - - - -	XIII.	454
4314	3007	8	Augustus , upon hearing the petitions of the Roman knights about the Papian Popæan law, he doubly rewarded those who were married and had children, and heavily fined the unmarried debauchees - - - - -	XIII.	455
4315	3008	9	After various battles and different successes, Tiberius and Germanicus proved too hard for the Pannonians and Dalmatians, disarmed them, and restored peace; and returning to Rome, are received with great honour - - - - -	XIII.	459
4315	3008	9	Quintilius Varus being now appointed governor in Germany, by his cruelty and covetousness stirred up the people to revolt; Arminius deceives Varus, persuades him to remove to the distant provinces, then pretends to be his guide against the revolters, conducts him into a large forest, surrounded on all sides with steep hills, where he is attacked, and not finding it possible to get away, he and most of his officers kill themselves; the enemy cut off almost three compleat legions, and six cohorts, a few escaping by favour of the night: Augustus was so extremely concerned at this loss, that in fits of frenzy he would tear his hair and knock his head against the wall, crying out, Restore the Legions Varus; which he continued several months, letting his hair and beard grow, and kept this as a day of mourning annually during his life - - - - -	XIII.	463
4316	3009	10	Tiberius passes the Alps, enters Germany, forces the Germans from the neighbourhood of the Rhine, and so secures Gaul from their inroads, and having celebrated Augustus's birthday in his camp, &c. returns to Rome - - - - -	XIII.	464
4317	3010	11	The poet Ovid is banished to Tomos, a cold barren country, by Augustus, where he continued to his death, though he often petitioned Cæsar for relief - - - - -	XIII.	465
4317	3010	11	Augustus publishes a law, forbidding all augurs, astrologers, and fortune-tellers to utter publickly or privately predictions concerning the death of any person whatever, upon account of the disturbance among the nobility those practices had already bred - - - - -	XIII.	469

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Page.
4317	3010	11	Augustus growing old and declining, causes the senate to declare Tiberius his colleague in the government, with power equal to himself	XIII. 470
4318	3011	12	Augustus publishes a law against the authors of all lampoons and satirical writings, declaring it high-treason, and punishable with death; and causes the ædiles in the city, and the governors in colonies, to make a strict search after such books and writings, and to commit them to the flames, and to punish the authors with great severity	XIII. 470
4318	3011	12	Augustus writes two letters, one to Tiberius in favour of the senate, the other to the senate in favour of Germanicus, desires them to choose 24 of their members with whom he may advise, and begs to be excused coming to the senate-house upon account of his age; they agree, that what the twenty senators, the consuls for the year, the consuls elect, Augustus , and his adopted son and nephew should enact, should be accounted the edict of the senate	XIII. 471
4319	3012	13	The senate desire Augustus to accept of another ten years absolute government, his former being near expired, which doing, he confers the tribunitial power on Tiberius for the same term	XIII. 471
4320	3013	14	Augustus takes Tiberius into the censorship with himself, and makes a census, by which the people in Rome appeared to be 4,137,000	XIII. 472
4320	3013	14	Augustus leaves Rome, and goes to Naples to assist at the solemn sports that were to be exhibited on his birth-day: Soon after they were over he was seized with a Diarrhæa (or flux) leaves Naples and returns towards Rome; but growing too weak to travel, stops at Nola in Campania, and is confined to his bed; Livia attending him, sends for Tiberius, who comes; Augustus declares him his successor, and desires him to pursue his steps in the government: He died the 19th of August, aged 75 years, 10 months, and 26 days, and reigned from his first consulship 56 years, but from the battle of Actium only 43: He was carried to Rome with great honour and solemnity, where Tiberius ordered the senate to meet, and the vestal-virgins to bring out his will, which began thus; Since the Gods have been pleased to deprive me of my grand children, Caius and Lucius, I declare Tiberius my Heir, &c. His body was carried with the utmost pomp, and burnt in the Campus Martius, his wife Livia and some of the chiefs of the Roman knights watching the pile and gathering up the bones and ashes, which they put into a golden urn, for five days together, and then buried it in the pompous mausoleum he had prepared for that purpose in his lifetime	XIII. 479
4320	3013	14	Tiberius orders the tribune who had young Agrippa in his custody to murder him, which he doing, Tiberius denies he gave any such orders, but it was afterwards smothered	XIII. 491
4320	3013	14	The two consuls, Sextus Pompeius and Sextus Apuleius, first take the oath of fidelity to Tiberius, and then administer it to the senate, people, and soldiery: The senate offers Tiberius the government; he pretends inability; they humbly beg him to accept it; he complies, beginning his reign in the 56th year of his age, invested with the same unbounded power that Augustus died in possession of: He would not let his mother receive the honours voted by the senate, and took away Julia's pension, so that she died miserably

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.			Vol.	Page.
				miserably in the 15th year of her banishment, and Sempronius Gracchus, one of her chief favourites, he put to death
4320	3013	14	Percennius raises a mutiny in the army in Pannonia, which plunder all the country round. Blæsus their general strives to reduce them, but is not able: Tiberius sends his son Drusus , with his governor Sejanus , against him, who strives to appease them, but is not able; but an eclipse of the moon happening the night of that day Drusus had harangued them, the mutineers (being ignorant of the cause) thought it was a signal of the gods displeasure, and so were easily prevailed upon to return to their duty, and the authors of the revolt were executed, and all things being settled amicably, Drusus returned to Rome		XIII.	502
4320	3013	14	The legions in Germany revolt, kill some of the centurions and drive away the rest: Germanicus , the emperor's nephew, strives to appease them; they offer to make him emperor; he strives to get from them, is stopped and threatened to be murdered; but at length by stratagem quits them, and some are executed: Then he goes against the Germans, and comes upon the Marfi , and destroys all for 50 miles round, without the loss of one Roman; but as he returned several nations attacked him, but he defeats them all, and goes into winter quarters, loaded with booty. Tiberius , jealous of Germanicus , strives by all arts possible to make himself popular, refuses many of the honours offered him, forbids priests or temples to be decreed him, lessens the taxes, &c.		XIII.	516
4321	3014	15	The Germans quarrelling among themselves, Germanicus enters the country of the Catti , puts vast numbers to the sword; some submit, and others fly into the woods, so that he laid waste all the open country, burnt their villages, and reduced Mattium their capitol to ashes		XIII.	532
4321	3014	15	Arminius the German quarrels with and besieges Segestes in his camp: Germanicus goes to the relief of Segestes , engages Arminius , and puts him to flight; and among the many prisoners that were taken was Thufneldis , the wife of Arminius , great with child; but Arminius gets recruits, and skirmishes with Germanicus , and gets advantage over him and Cæcina , but at length is put to flight		XIII.	534
4321	3014	15	Tiberius recalls Rufus , and sends Valerius Gratus governor of Judea, who continued in that post 11 years		XIII.	544
4322	3015	16	Germanicus again engages Arminius , assisted by many German princes, and defeats him with great slaughter and spoil, ascribes the whole glory to Tiberius , and caused him to be declared emperor in the field of battle; and raising a mount put the arms of the enemy on it as trophies, with the names of the conquered nations under each: This so enraged the Germans that they come to a second battle, wherein they are again defeated with prodigious slaughter; upon which the Angrivarii submit, are pardoned, and suffered to live quietly under their own laws. The war being over, Germanicus imbarques himself and a good part of his army on board 1000 transports; a storm arising, the fleet is dispersed; some swallowed up by the waves, some dashed to pieces against the rocks, &c. so that abundance of damage was done, and very great loss sustained; but upon his landing he made good his losses, by defeating and plundering the Marfi		X.	413
					XIII.	562

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4322	3015	16	A slave of Posthumus Agrippa gives out that he was the prince, and had escaped death; and as he was like him, caused great commotions in Italy; but being seized by stratagem, he was put privately to death, and so the affair dropt	XIII.	569
4323	3016	17	Tiberius soon after the return of Germanicus to Rome, orders him a most magnificent triumph, and shews him all possible outside marks of favour and esteem, but secretly strove and resolved to destroy him	XIII.	510
4323	3016	17	Archelaus, king of Cappadocia, coming to Rome to make his submissions to Tiberius, is by him accused, but excused by the senate; but being slighted, is said to die of grief, after having reigned 50 years, and his country reduced to a Roman province. At the same time dies Antiochus king of Comagene, and Philopator king of Cilicia. The provinces of Syria and Judea apply for a relief in their taxes; all which occasions great disturbances in the east, whereupon Germanicus is sent thither to regulate them	XIII.	572
4323	3016	17	The most dreadful earthquake ever known happens this year in Asia, which overturned twelve very famous cities, most of whose inhabitants were buried in the ruins of their houses, and those that fled to the fields swallowed up by the opening of the earth: Tiberius remits the taxes of these cities for five years to come, and gave large sums to rebuild the cities	XIII.	575
4323	3016	17	Tacfarinas the Numidian having drawn his countrymen and several other African nations into a revolt, was overthrown by Furius Camillus, in a pitched battle, though Camillus had but one legion and a few auxiliaries, and the other a very numerous army	XIII.	578
4323	3016	17	The poet Ovid dies at Tomos in Pontus, whither he was banished by Augustus; and the historian Livy, at Padua in Italy, his native city	XIII.	579
4324	3017	18	Germanicus at his arrival in Armenia, with the consent and approbation of the nobility and people, puts the diadem upon the head of Zeno, the son of Polemon king of Pontus, and then reduced Cappadocia and Comagena to two Roman provinces, their kings being dead. Piso being the declared enemy of Germanicus, the king of the Nabatheans at a grand entertainment presenting Germanicus and Agrippina with large and heavy golden crowns, gives Piso one much less, as his publick character was much lower; Piso throws it away with much contempt and provoking behaviour	XIII.	582
4325	3018	19	Maroboduus, king of the Suevians, whose power Rome dreaded, was this year drove out of his kingdom, and obliged to live the last 18 years of his life at Ravenna in Italy. Some of the Sueves are allowed to settle beyond the Danube, to whom Tiberius gives them one Vannius to be their king	XIX.	222
4325	3018	19	Germanicus blaming Piso for his ill conduct, Piso poisons him, of which he dies at Antioch in his return to Rome, in the 34th year of his age	XIII.	587
4325	3018	19	Occia, the president of the vestal virgins at Rome, after having governed that society 57 years, dies, and Tiberius puts Asinius, Pollio's daughter, in that office. Corn being very scarce and dear, he fixed the price; and that the seller should not lose the advantage of the advanced price, paid himself two Nummi, or 14 pence per bushel, to make it good	XIII.	596

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4326	3019	20	Piso coming to Rome, is accused of Germanicus's death, debauching the army, &c. upon which great commotions are among the populace, and Piso is said to lay violent hands upon himself, though highly favoured by Tiberius	XIII.	603
4326	3019	20	Tacfarinas having again stirred up commotions in Africa, is put to flight by L. Apronius the present governor of that province, who decimated a Roman cohort for giving ground at the first onset, and put them to death; this severity so animated the Romans, that 500 of them put a large body of the enemy to flight, and their whole army was routed by Apronius Cestianus, the proconsul's son	XIII.	606
4326	3019	20	Valerius Gratus governor of Judæa deposes Ananus (or Annas) the high-priest, in the 15th year of his pontificate, and raised Ishmael the son of Fabus to that dignity	X.	413
4326	3019	20	Tiberius publishes a decree forbidding all Jews and Egyptians staying any longer in Rome, upon account of the scandalous behaviour of many of the meaner sort of the Jews and Egyptians	X.	415
4327	3020	21	The Gauls, under Julius Florus, (a native of Treves) revolt, and are defeated by Acilius Aviola; they are again defeated by Julius Indus, after which Florus killed himself with his own sword; this put an end to the insurrection of Treves; but the Edui under Sacrovir appear 40000 strong, but are likewise overthrown by Silius, and then Sacrovir kills himself	XIII.	612
4327	3020	21	Valerius Gratus deposes Ishmael from the high-priesthood at Jerusalem, and gave it to Eleazar, the son of Ananus the late deposed high-priest	X.	413
4328	3021	22	Valerius Gratus deposes Eleazar the Jewish high-priest, and advances Simon the son of Camith to that dignity	X.	413
4328	3021	22	Bæsus the Roman general engages Tacfarinas the Numidian prince, defeats him, follows him into the mountains, kills many of his men, and took his brother prisoner, and then returned to Rome	XIII.	621
4329	3022	23	Sejanus poisons Drusus, and debauches his wife Livia, and sets about the destruction of Agrippina and her two sons	XIII.	626
4329	3022	23	Tiberius moves the Roman senate in favour of the cities of Cibyra in Asia, and Ægyra in Achaia, both overthrown by an earthquake, and they decree an exemption from taxes for three years	XIII.	631
4329	3022	23	Tiberius complains to the Roman senate against the stage-players so effectually, that they are prohibited acting in, and banished from Rome and Italy	XIII.	632
4329	3022	23	Simon the Jewish high-priest is deposed, and Joseph (surnamed Caiaphas, son-in-law to Annas) put in his stead	X.	413
4330	3023	24	Tacfarinas the Numidian king is utterly routed and killed, and his son and many of his nobles taken prisoners, by P. Dolabella, proconsul of Africa. One Curtius strove to raise a servile war, but was happily prevented before much mischief was done	XIII.	636
4331	3024	25	Cremutius Cordus , a celebrated historian, is accused and tried for praising Brutus in his Annals, &c. apprehending the revenge of Tiberius would fall heavy upon him, starved himself to death, and his books were publicly burnt at Rome, though privately read afterwards	XIII.	639
4331	3024	25	The Cyzicans are accused of neglecting the worship of the deified Augustus, and of committing violence upon some Roman citizens, for which they are deprived of their liberty granted them for their assistance in the Mithridatick war	XIII.	642

Y. of Chrif.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of World.		Vol.	Page.
4331	3024	25	The Lacedæmonians and Meffenians fend ambaffadors to the Roman fenate to decide their pretensions to the temple of Diana, which is done in favour of the latter -	XIII.	647
4332	3025	26	Poppæus Sabinus is honoured with the enfigns of a triumph, for entirely defeating the revolted Thracians -	XIII.	649
4332	3025	26	Ambaffadors from Afia come to Rome to have it there determined in which of the eleven contending cities the temple decreed to Tiberius fhould be erected, which by the fenate is given to Smyrna, and, a legate extraordinary appointed to fupervife the building -	XIII.	651
4332	3025	26	Tiberius leaves Rome, under pretence of going to Capua to dedicate a temple to Jupiter, and one at Nola to Auguftus, but really with an intention never to return to it again, attended by Sejanus, Cocceius Nerva, Curtius Atticus, and fome learned Greeks, and lived retired eleven years. Sejanus maliciously accuses young Nero and his brother Drufus of confpiring againft Tiberius -	XIII.	656
4332	3025	26	Pontius Pilate is made governor of Judea inftead of Valerius Gratus, which office he held 10 years, and made it one continual fcene of venal juftice, rapine, tyranny, and every wicked action: At his firft coming he ordered his ftandards to be carried into Jerufalem, and his army quartered there in the night-time, but next morning fets them up publickly, which occafioned great difturbance and confternation among the Jews, who efteem them idolatrous; they go in a body to him at Cæfarea, and continue prostrate before his houfe five whole days and nights, befeeching him to remove them; the fifth day he comes out, mounts on his tribunal, as if come to hear and redrefs them, but orders his troops to murder all that did not depart immediately; but at laft on their offering to fuffer, without making any refiftance, he promifes to remove the ftandard from their metropolis -	X.	416
4333	3026	27	Atilius having built an amphitheatre at Fidenæ, to exhibit fhews of gladiators, vaft numbers of people from Rome, &c. coming thither, by their weight pull down the building about their ears, fo that 50,000 perfons were killed and maimed; this occafioned a law, that no perfon worth lefs than 400,000 fefterces fhould exhibit the fhew of gladiators. At the fame time a fire breaks out on Mount Cælius, which burnt with fo much rage and fury, that it utterly confumed all the houfes in that part of the city of Rome; and Tiberius makes good the lofs out of his own treasury, for which the fenate ordered the name to be changed from Cælius to Mount Auguftus. After this Tiberius retires to Capræ, an ifland of very difficult access, and lived there 10 years, and then died, during which time he gave himfelf up to all manner of lewdnefs and debauchery	XIII.	660
4334	3027	28	The Frifians fhake off the Roman yoke, and defeat L. Apronius, who was fent againft them. This year dies Julia, the grand-daughter of Auguftus, in the ifland of Trimetus, 20 years after her banifhment -	XIII.	666
4335	3028	29	Livia , the mother of Tiberius, dies, in the 86th year of her age, commonly ftiled Julia Augufta, becaufe adopted by Auguftus in his laft will into the Julian family, a woman of very extraordinary parts, wifdom and ambition	XIII.	666
4336	3029	30	Sejanus , Tiberius's chief minifter and favourite, had now fo fixed himfelf in power, that the fenate enafts that his birth-day fhould be annually celebrated, that his ftatues that were fet up in every quarter of the city fhould be ado-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			red, that vows and sacrifices should be offered for his safety, &c.	XIII.	672
4336	3029	30	This being the 30th and last Jewish Jubilee since its celebration in the land of Canaan, Christ enters upon his mission of preaching the gospel of peace and salvation, is baptized by John, turns water into wine at a marriage in Cana, drives the traders out of the temple, confers privately with Nicodemus, &c.	X.	428
4337	3030	31	The disciples of Christ baptize their proselytes by the command of Christ, and have a dispute about it with the disciples of John, while Christ goes into other parts of Judea, preaching the gospel and working miracles, &c.	X.	431
4337	3030	31	John the Baptist beheaded, by order of Herod Antipas tetrarch of Galilee, to gratify the revenge of Herodias his wife, who had been the wife of his brother Philip, and was granddaughter to Herod the Great	X.	432
4337	3030	31	Tiberius makes himself and his favourite Sejanus consuls this year; this occasions the senate to heap new honours upon Sejanus; they join his name with Tiberius in all inscriptions, erect new statues to him, and slay victims before them, and pass a decree to confirm to him and Tiberius the consulate for five years. Tiberius forbids Sejanus to come to him, though he had resigned the consulate, and began to take publick notice of Caius (surnamed Caligula) the only surviving son of Germanicus and Agrippina; which struck Sejanus, who found his power much decreased and his honours lessened. Tiberius takes the command of the prætorian guard from him, and in a letter to the senate desires them to imprison him, which is done, and he is condemned and executed in the same day, which was followed by a general slaughter of his children, relations, friends and adherents	XIII.	677
4338	3031	32	Tiberius grows insatiable for blood, suspicious of every body, and puts vast numbers to the most exquisite torments and cruel deaths	XIV.	8
4339	3032	33	Tiberius causes his grandson Drusus to be sentenced to be starved to death, which was executed, and many others dispatched themselves the same way	XIV.	13
4339	3032	33	This being the fourth year of Christ's mission, the Jews crucify him	X.	510
4340	3033	34	Several of the great men and ladies at Rome destroy themselves to avoid the cruelty of Tiberius and his favourite Macro, who make dreadful havock upon every slight pretence. The two consuls having solemnized the 19th of August, on which the 20th year of Tiberius's reign ended, with publick vows and sacrifices, he ordered them to be tried for taking upon them to confirm his authority for ten years more, for which he has them condemned and executed	XIV.	19
4341	3034	35	Orodes , son of Artabanus, is first, and the father afterwards, overthrown by Pharasmanes, and forced to fly to the Carmanians; upon which Lucius Vitellius, governor of Syria, comes with his legions, and drives away Pharasmanes, and sets Tiridates on the throne of Parthia, who soon after was driven out again by Artabanus	XI.	58
4342	3035	36	Tiberius's cruelty still continuing, Tigranes (grandson of Herod king of Judea, and of Archelaus king of Cappadocia, who himself had been king of Armenia) was like a private person, without any regard to his publick character, condemned and executed among other pretended criminals.

minals. This year Rome suffered greatly by the overflowing of the Tiber, and by fire, which burnt down that part of the circus contiguous to Mount Aventine : Upon this occasion Tiberius paid above 100,000 great sesterces, to make up the loss to the owners of the houses -

XIV.

21

4343 3036 37 Tiberius dies in his retirement, on the 16th day of March, having reigned 22 years, six months, and 26 days, aged 77 years, 4 months, and 9 days : Caius Caligula, his adopted grandson, (son of Germanicus) succeeds him, by virtue of Tiberius's declaration in his favour while living ; he enters his government with releasing and pardoning all state prisoners, remitting fines, reducing taxes, &c. and to the universal joy of all, in his first speech to the senate promised to govern with justice and moderation, to do nothing without their advice, and to follow their directions in all things - - - -

XIV.

45

4343 3036 37 In the month of July, Caius Cæsar Caligula enters upon the consulship with his uncle Claudius ; the same day he told the senate he greatly disapproved of the disorders of the late administration, promised to avoid them, and solemnly protested that making his people happy was his whole desire and care. During this year he restored the kingdom of Comagene, reduced to a Roman province 18 years ago by Tiberius, to Antiochus, son of that Antiochus then driven out, and paid him 100,000,000 sesterces, or about 1,000,000 l. sterling for the neat revenue during that time . - - - -

XIV.

46

4343 3036 37 Pontius Pilate having great complaints exhibited against him by the Jews ; he is sent for to Rome to answer them, and the emperor Caius Caligula sends Marcellus in his stead : Caligula also gave Agrippa, (son of Aristobulus and grandson of Herod the Great, whom Tiberius had imprisoned) his liberty, and the tetrarchy of his late uncle Philip, and added to it Great Abylene in Syria, with the title of king : Agrippa staid a year after this at Rome, and then returned in great splendor to his kingdom - - - -

X.

553

4343 3036 37 The governor of Alexandria having used the Egyptian Jews in a very cruel manner, for refusing to worship Caligula as a god, Agrippa informs the emperor of the true state of the case : Caligula sends Bessus to seize that bloody governor and bring him to Rome, where he was stripped of all his riches, then banished into an island of the Archipelago, where some time after he was put to death -

X.

554

4343 3036 37 Herod Antipas, before whom Christ appeared, envying Agrippa's good fortune and honour, of being a king, goes to Rome to beg the same favour ; but Agrippa sending Caligula word that he had laid up arms for 70,000 men to have assisted Sejanus, he was stripped of his tetrarchy. after he had enjoyed it 43 years, and Caligula bestowed it and his treasure upon Agrippa, and sends Herod prisoner to Lyons in France - - - -

X.

554

4343 3036 37 Caligula orders Petronius governor of Syria to set up his statue in the temple of Jerusalem ; the Jews in the most humble manner supplicate the forbearance ; Agrippa goes to Rome, and with great difficulty gets Caligula to countermand his order - - - -

X.

555

4343 3036 37 Caligula is taken so ill that his life was much despaired of ; and having done many endearing things for the people, the greatest demonstrations of sorrow are shewn ; he recovers, and then joy takes its turn ; but it is supposed his sick-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
4343	3036	37
4344	3037	38
4345	3038	39

ness had affected his brain, for ever after he acted like a wild tyrant and furious madman, committing the most monstrous, absurd and cruel ravages

XIV. 48

Caligula adopts Tiberius the son of Drusus, now 18 years old, and commands him to kill himself, and sends messengers to see it performed; this being done, he gives a full loose to his furious and mad passions, and commences an open enemy to mankind, a complete tyrant, and outrageous monster, committing the most horrid butcheries, cruelties, and inhumanities, causing his nearest relations, greatest friends, best subjects, and most innocent persons to be put to death in his presence, to gratify his savage madness; marries and divorces several ladies, and claims divine honours, institutes priests to his own deity, builds temples, and has sacrifices offered to him

XIV. 49

Caligula assumes the second consulship, and has Lucius Aponius Cestianus for his colleague; after 30 days he lays down the fasces, and when he entered upon and laid down his consulship, like a private person took the usual oaths; the people, fearful of his cruelties, not appearing at the publick shews which he daily exhibited with so much assiduity as he required, he ordered the publick granaries to be shut up with an intent to starve them all, and wished that they had all but one neck, that he might butcher all at one stroke: His horse Incitatus he frequently invited to his table, and fed him with gilt oats, and presented him with the richest wines in gold cups; his stable was marble, his manger ivory, his collar pearls, and his coverings purple; he gave him many attendants with rich liveries, and made him one of the college of his priests, and colleague to the chief nobility, and purposed to have made him consul; he revived the law of majesty, and did every thing that might make him feared and hated

XIV. 63

Caligula causes all his ships he had ready built, and orders great numbers to be built, and all to be linked together in a crescent, from the point of the bay of Baiae to Puteoli in Campania; upon these were laid planks, and upon them earth; then houses were built, streets and roads made, &c. which rendered shipping so scarce that a dearth followed, which carried off great numbers of the poorer people. The work being finished with all expedition, Caligula, attended with the heads of the city and army, first offers sacrifices to Envy at Puteoli, then magnificently arrayed, armed with the breast plate of Alexander the Great, and a civic crown on his head, rode to Puteoli, and stayed there a night and a day, illuminated the bridge, streets, &c. with an infinite number of lights, boasting he had turned the sea into land, and the day into night: The next day at his return back, in the midway mounted a magnificent throne, and made an oration in praise of this mad action, and then ordered a vast number of people of all ages and conditions to be thrown promiscuously into the sea, many of which perished; then returned to Rome in triumph, and the bridge was broke down, and the ships he had borrowed restored, &c. and thus in two years he squandered away 18 millions, besides his ordinary income: To raise money he obliged the greatest part of the inhabitants to repurchase their freedoms, made void wills, confiscated the goods of those he thought fit, and obliged the nobility to purchase them at his own price, &c.

XIV. 66

Y. of Christ.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of World.				Vol.	Page.
39	4345	3038		Caius Cæsar Caligula depofes both the confuls, for which one killed himfelf; then raifes an army of 200,000 men, and pretends to go againft the Germans, does nothing, and returns into Gaul, and ruins all the people by extortions, &c. Lentulus and Getulicus are charged with and executed for treason, and Caius's two fifters banifhed for adultery. The Germans are defeated by Galba, and Caius takes the honour to himfelf		XIV.	80
40	4346	3039		Caius takes upon himfelf the confulship a third time alone, for 12 days, being at Lyons, where he had magnificent fhews, &c. At the end of twelve days he laid down the confulship, and two new confuls were nominated. Caligula having invited Ptolemy king of Mauritania, coufin-germain to his father Germanicus , to his court, and for a time treated him with great magnificence and civility; but imagining that he was in the people's favour, firft arrested and condemned him to banifhment, and then ordered him to be privately maffacred as he was carrying along; and alfo ordered Mithridates king of Armenia to be arrested and banifhed, which was performed, with abundance of other extravagancies and unjuft extortions, &c.		XIV.	82
41	4347	3040		The Mauritians foon after the death of their king revolt, but after the lofs of feveral battles they are fubjected to the Romans, and ruled by their governors like other provinces, and not by their own princes		XVIII.	43
41	4347	3040		Caius holds the confulship for the fourth time only feven days. Caffius Cheræa tribune of a prætorian cohort, a brave and gallant officer, being frequently made the executioner of Caius's cruelties, is fo moved with pity for his country, and deteftation of his vilenefs, that he and feveral others confpire to deftroy the monfter, which they did in his palace, and are faid to have cut off and eat part of his flefh, the 24th of January, after he had reigned three years, nine months, and 28 days; the next night Julius Lupus difpatched his wife Cæfonia , by flabbing her, and his infant daughter, by dafhing out her brains againft the walls. Some of the fenators were for feizing the government and reducing it to a commonwealth again, but Caius is fucceeded by his uncle Claudius , fon of Drufus , (who died in Germany) and grandfon of Mark Anthony and Octavia the fifter of Augustus , whom the foldiers and people proclaimed emperor		XIV.	110
41	4347	3040		Claudius is advifed to punifh Cheræa , Lupus , and a few others with death; but all the other confpirators were pardoned. He abolifhed the law of majefty, called home the exiles, eafed the tributes, reftored the eftates illegally forfeited, refufed the honours he was complimented with. &c. gains the love of the people, but being naturally timorous, was infulted by fome braves		XIV.	112
41	4347	3040		Agrippa king of the Jews having greatly contributed to the promotion of Claudius to the empire, is rewarded, with the addition of Judea , Samaria , and the fouthern parts of Idumea to his kingdom, and a confirmation of all Caligula 's favours with great additions, making a folemn alliance with him, and paffing feveral edicts in favour of the Jews. Claudius beftows the kingdom of Chalcis upon his brother Herod . Agrippa has the honour of confulship, and Herod the prætorship, beftowed upon them; all which grants were engraven on copper, and fet up in the capitol		X.	558

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4347	3040	41	Claudius restores Mithridates the Iberian to his kingdom, Antiochus to the kingdom of Comagene, and Mithridates the Sicilian to the kingdom of Bosphorus, of which they had unjustly been deprived by Caligula	XIV.	113
4348	3041	42	A great famine being in Rome, Claudius forms a large and commodious harbour at the mouth of the Tiber, and completed it; but soon after his death 'twas through neglect choaked up with sand: At the same time also he set about draining the lake Fucinus in the country of the Marſi, and conveying its waters by deep canals into the Tiber, employing 30,000 men continually for 11 years, but without success	XIV.	116
4348	3041	42	Messalina , wife of Claudius the emperor, solliciting Silenus to lewdness, he refusing, she falsely accuses him of designing to murder the emperor; upon which he is executed: This occasions a conspiracy of the nobility and gentry against Claudius , the head of which was Annius Vinicianus , who had a great share in the murder of Caius . Camillus , governor of Dalmatia, writes him a letter full of reproaches, and threatens him with a cruel death if he did not resign; but the superstition of those times getting into the soldiers heads, they imagined ill omens, and fell upon their officers and killed them. Camillus making his escape, was afterwards stabbed in the arms of his wife, after he had bore the title of emperor five days. This gave Messalina a handle to execute many innocent persons, for the sake of their estates, and pass by the guilty for large sums of money, &c. but some of them were executed. Otho succeeded Camillus in Dalmatia, and cut off the heads of those soldiers who had murdered their officers	XIV.	120
4349	3042	43	Claudius deprives the Lycians of their liberty, for murdering some Roman citizens in a tumult; and to quiet the differences that had arisen among them, added their country to the province of Pamphilia. Messalina out of spite persuades Claudius to put his niece Julia , the daughter of Germanicus , and his niece Julia , the daughter of Drusus and grand-daughter of Tiberius , to death	XIV.	121
4349	3042	43	Claudius by the instigation of one Bericus , a fugitive Briton, sends Plautius the Roman governor in Gaul to invade Britain; which he did, and vanquished them in several battles, and garrisons several towns, and writes to the emperor, who comes himself with a large army, engages and defeats the Britains with great slaughter, takes their strong holds, and garrisons them, and makes Plautius governor of Britain, &c.	XVIII.	701
4349	3042	43	Agrippa upon his return to Jerusalem shews a much greater zeal for the Jewish religion than his predecessor; deposed Theophilus from the high-priesthood, and gave it to Simon Cantharas ; but soon after deposed him, and offered it to Jonathan the son of Annas , who had been deposed, but he refused it	X.	559
4350	3043	44	Claudius at his return to Rome is honoured with a triumph and the surname of Britannicus ; his two sons Vespasian and Titus behaved so gallantly under Plautius , as to fight 30 battles, and subdue two powerful nations of the Britains, and reduced 20 towns, with the Isle of Wight. Plautius increased his conquests, and at his return to Rome has an ovation, &c.	XVIII.	703

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.			Vol.	Page.
4350	3043	44	Claudius after his triumph restored to the senate the provinces of Achaia and Macedon, which thenceforth were governed by proconsuls: He gave the title of king to Cot-tius, prince of the Alps; and took away the liberty of the Rhodians, for their crucifying some Roman ci-tizens		XIV.	124
4351	3044	45	The dreadful famine, foretold by Agabus, rages in Judea, against which the new Christian churches planted at An-tioch sends the believers at Jerusalem a liberal relief, by the hands of Paul and Barnabas		X.	563
4351	3044	45	Rome being now very full of statues, Claudius enacts that no more should be set up without the special appointment of the senate, and orders several to be taken down, he likewise punished very severely some governors of provin-ces that had misbehaved, &c.		XIV.	124
4352	3045	46	M. Vinicius , brother-in-law to Claudius , dies of poison given him by the empress Messalina , for refusing her unchast de-sires. Asinius Gallus , son of Agrippina , Tiberius's first wife, conspired against Claudius to make himself emperor; is detected, and only banished, which gained Claudius great applause		XIV.	125
4353	3046	47	Many of the greatest men in Rome are put to death by Claudius , to gratify the revenge and covetousness of Mes-salina his wife		XIV.	127
4353	3046	47	The Cherusci , or inhabitants of Brunswick , desire Claudius to give them a king; he sends them Italicus , nephew of the famous Arminius ; but though they at first received him with great joy, yet they drove him from the throne some time after for living after the Italian manner; but he being again restored by the Longobards , cruelly oppressed the Cherusians		XIV.	132
4353	3046	47	One Cneius Novius , a Roman knight, comes armed with a dagger into the audience-room, with an intent to kill Claudius , but being seized and tormented on the rack, confesses his intention, but will not discover any accom-lice or abettor		XIV.	133
4354	3047	48	Claudius as cenfor creates several new patrician families in the room of those that were extinct, supplies the vacan-cies in the senate, promotes some of the Gaulish nobility to the senatorial dignity, and by a census finds 6,900,000 citizens in Rome		XIV.	134
4354	3047	48	Messalina the Roman empress grew so monstrous in her lust, that to have one Caius Silius (a very beautiful young man) to her-self, she forced him to divorce his wife Silana , and kept him company openly: Silius proposes to kill Claudius and to marry her, and to adopt Germanicus : She approves all; first di-vores herself from the emperor, and then marries Silius openly. Calpurnia and Cleopatra (two of Claudius's cour-tezans) tell him of it; he is at first frightened, but by the ma-nagement of Narcissus , Silius , Messalina , and several others are executed, and all things settled quietly		XIV.	138
4355	3048	49	Agrippa (king of the Jews) spends great sums in rebuilding, beautifying, and strengthening a new quarter of the north side of Jerusalem , intending to wall it in, but is forbid by Claudius the Roman emperor: He grows so considerable, that as he was making a progress to Tiberias he is met and complimented by the kings of Comagene , Emesa , Lesser Ar-menian , Pontus and Chalcis ; but Vibius Marfus , governor of Syria , jealous of what they might consult about, came thi-ther himself, and commanded them to return each to his

Y. of Christ.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

own kingdom. Upon his return to Jerusalem he deposed Matthias the high priest, and put Elionæus in his stead, and begins to persecute the Christians by beheading James the less, surnamed Boanerges, and imprisoning Peter. Going to Cæsarea with a vast train of nobility, to exhibit publick games in honour of Claudius, where declaring he received the governors of Tyre and Sydon again into favour, the people cried out, 'twas the voice of god, and not of man; which puffing him up with pride, he fell sick and died in five days, and Claudius turned his kingdom into a Roman province, and made Cuspius Fadus the governor thereof; but Herod king of Chalcis got the superintendency of the temple, and power of nominating the high-priest, and accordingly deposed Cantharas, and substituted Joseph the son of Cami in his room

X. 563

4355 3048 49 Claudius marries Agrippina, his brother's daughter; a law is passed the day before to make such marriages lawful: She governed the emperor and the state with an uncontrollable power, went with Claudius into the senate, and set herself with him on the same tribunal in all publick ceremonies; and in the courts of justice: She got L. Annæus Seneca recalled from banishment, and made him tutor to her son Domitius, &c. and betrothed her son (now 12 years old) to Claudius's daughter Octavia; and caused Lollia Paulina to be beheaded, for attempting to get Claudius for a husband

XIV. 144

4355 3048 49 Claudius widens the circumference of Rome by enclosing Mount Aventine

XIV. 145

4356 3049 50 Claudius is persuaded by Pallas the freed-man, who had conducted the affair of Agrippina's marriage, and was now criminally correspondent with her, to adopt Domitius her son, and give him the preference to his own son Germanicus, because Domitius was three years older, who from this time was called Nero-Claudius-Cæsar-Drusus-Germanicus; the senate confirmed the adoption and called Agrippina Augusta

XIV. 146

4356 3049 50 Agrippina gets a colony of veterans to be sent to Cologne, the capital of the Ubii, where she was born, and called it Colonia Agrippinensis. The Catti making incursions into the Roman territories, are repulsed with great slaughter by Pomponius Secundus, commander of the legions in Upper Germany

XIV. 147

4356 3049 50 Vannius, king of the Suevians, being for his haughty and insolent behaviour, after 30 years reign, driven out of his kingdom by the Hermondurians and Ligians, Claudius gives him lands and leave to live in Pannonia. Vangio and Sido, his nephews, part his kingdom between them

XIX. 222

4357 3040 51 Nero, though but 14 years old, is presented with the manly robe, which qualified him for honours and employments: The senate decree, that in his 20th year he should be consul of Rome, and be now stiled prince of the Roman youth; but the friends and trusty servants of Britannicus are some put to death, and the others removed, &c. A great famine makes the people at Rome outrageous, and affront Claudius as the cause of it; but in 15 days time he gets a sufficient supply of corn and other necessaries, which makes them easy

XIV. 149

4357 3040 51 P. Ostorius Scapula being sent into Britain, fell unexpectedly upon the Britons, who had broke into the Roman conquests,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.
4358	3051	52
4358	3051	52
4358	3051	52
4359	3052	53
4359	3052	53
4360	3053	54

put great numbers to the sword, and dispersed the rest; built forts on the Severn, Avon and Nen, and made that part south of these rivers a Roman province, and Camalodunum a Roman colony. The Iceni engage Ostorius, and after an obstinate battle are put to flight with great slaughter; but after many engagements, losing some part of his honour, he died of grief, and was succeeded by Aulus Didius

XVIII. 704

This year Claudius finished, at an immense charge, the aqueduct at Rome begun by Caligula 14 years before: 4060 persons with large salaries were appointed to keep it in repair: Likewise the great canal was finished, designed for draining the lake Fucinus, which had constantly employed 30,000 men for 11 years; before the waters were let out, Claudius exhibited a naval fight, in which 19,000 condemned criminals engaged on board 100 large galleys, representing the Sicilian and Rhodian fleets, and after an obstinate contest, many wounds, and much bloodshed, such of them as remained alive the emperor pardoned: When the water was let off 'twas found the canal was not deep enough; and when it was deepened, bridges were built and gladiators fought upon it; but the water breaking out with incredible violence, bore all down before it

XIV. 159

Ventidius Cumanus succeeded Alexander in the government of Judea: It being Passover time, he put guards before the gates of the temple, one of which shewing his nudity publicly, occasioned an uproar; he first tried by fair means to appease it, but not succeeding, he ordered all his troops to come to the place; this frightened the Jews so excessively, that flying in confusion more than 10,000 are stifled and crushed to death by running over one another

X. 564

Some Galilean Jews going to a feast were insulted, and one killed; a skirmish ensues, in which many of them are killed by the Samaritans: They go to complain of the Samaritans to Cumanus, who refuses to do them justice: The matter being brought before Quadratus, governor of Syria, he sends the Samaritans and Cumanus to Rome, where the Samaritans were condemned to die, Cumanus banished, and Celer (one of his tribunes) dragged through the streets of Jerusalem, and then put to death

X. 565

Nero, now about 16 years old, marries Octavia, whom he had betrothed three years before. He pleads for the Ilians, and obtains for them an immunity from all taxes and tributes, and prevails with Claudius to restore the Rhodians to their antient liberty, gets many favours bestowed on several others, &c. Claudius confers universal jurisdiction on the equestrian order

XIV. 162

Claudius Felix is made governor of Judea, in the room of Ventidius Cumanus; without, the land swarmed with robbers and banditti, and within, with false prophets, &c. which occasioned Felix to use all manner of severities and unjust seizures upon the innocent as well as the seditious; for which being reproved by Jonathan the high-priest, he hired one Doras (a confidant of Jonathan's) to murder him, which was done accordingly

X. 567

The empress Agrippina poisons the Roman emperor Caius Tiberius Claudius Nero, in the 64th year of his age, of which he dies the 13th of October, after he had reigned 13 years, 8 months, and 21 days, and his wife Agrippina's

V. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.
			son Nero is declared emperor in his stead. Agrippina forces Narcissus the great favourite of Claudius to kill himself, who was the most profuse and rapacious creature living, surpassing Cræsus in wealth, his friendship being courted with large presents by foreign kings, cities and provinces. She also got Junius Silanus proconsul of Asia murdered, (a wealthy great-grandson of Augustus) to prevent his being emperor. Nero pronounces Claudius's funeral oration
4361	3054	55	Nero, though but 18 years old, assumes the consulship, and restores Plautius Lateranus to his antient rank, who had been degraded for adultery with Messalina, Nero falls in love with Acte, a beautiful slave, and slights his mother; she grows outrageous at Pallas her confident's being turned out of the treasury, utters dreadful complaints and curses against Nero, publishes Germanicus's virtues, and title, &c. Nero causes Germanicus to be poisoned, and bestowed his estate in presents among his favourites, and banishes Agrippina his mother from the court, and confined her to her grandmother Antonia's house; she is unjustly accused, tried, acquitted, and received into favour again	XIV.	169
4362	3055	56	Nero, by the prompting and advice of his two companions, Otho and Senecio, falls into all manner of debauchery and excess, going disguised like a slave in the night-time, and committing great riots and disorders	XIV.	179
4364	3057	58	Suilius, a noted informer and accuser of great men in the reign of Claudius, is prosecuted and banished. Nero falls in love with Poppæa Sabina, whose mother was put to death by Messalina; she was the wife of Rufinus Crispinus, extremely beautiful, witty, and lewd: She forsook her husband, and lived publicly with Otho, the emperor's favourite: Nero takes her, and forbids Otho the court, and sent him governor to Lusitania, where he staid ten years with reputation. Cornelius Sylla, husband of Antonia daughter of Claudius, is falsely accused of treason, and banished to Marseilles, &c.	XIV.	182
4364	3057	58	The Armenians tired with the continual invasions of the Iberians on the one hand, and the Thracians on the other, send a solemn deputation to Nero at Rome, praying him to appoint them a king; Nero sends Domitius Corbulo into Armenia, who drives away Tiridates, and sets up Tigranes, the grandson of Herod the Great, upon the throne of Armenia; but Vologeses king of Parthia drove him out, and again set his brother Tiridates upon the throne, but sent him to Rome to receive the crown from Nero, who put it on his head with his own hands, and so all differences were made up	XIV.	187
4365	3059	59	The Sicarii (or robbers) commit horrid murders and disorders in several parts of Judea, even in the temple itself: Festus being made governor in the room of Felix, takes great pains to suppress them; but Agrippa having the year before deposed Ananias from, and advanced Ishmael to the high-priesthood, several of these deposed priests claiming an equal quantity of tythes, occasioned great disturbances by their partizans. Upon the arrival of Festus, St. Paul was brought before him; but he appealing to Cæsar, was continued a prisoner	IX.	365
4365	3058	59	Poppæa having got the ascendancy over Nero, endeavours all she can to get rid of Agrippina his mother, who is murdered in her bed by Nero's order, after having escaped an	X.	570

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4366	3059	60	attempt to destroy her at sea. After this he gave himself up to all manner of lewdness, and introduced debauchery every where, so that it became universally fashionable	XIV.	203
4366	3059	60	Agrippa having advanced Ananus , a proud Sadducee to the high-priesthood, and Festus being dead, he called a council before Albinus the new prætor came, and condemned and stoned to death St. James , and many other Christians	X.	571
4366	3059	60	Nero institutes contests of eloquence and poetry, and other games, to be exhibited every fifth year. A comet appears, and the people talk of Rubellius Plautus to succeed Nero	XIV.	204
4366	3059	60	Agrippa deposes Ananus from, and advances Jesus the son of Damneus to the high-priesthood at Jerusalem. The Sicarii or robbers and banditti were grown so bold as to come into Jerusalem, and carry off Eleazar son of the late high-priest, who was secretary of the temple; they send Eleazar word, that for his son's ransom he must get ten of their companions released; which for a large sum he does, &c.	X.	571
4366	3059	60	Agrippa taking the high-priesthood from Jesus , the son of Damneus , gives it to Jesus the son of Gamaliel ; each raise armed men, and commit the vilest outrages. The Levites obtain leave of Agrippa to wear white robes, like the priests	X.	572
4367	3060	61	The Britons having been extremely abused by the covetousness of the Roman governors, revolt under Boudicea their queen, and kill abundance of the Romans: Petilius Cerealis going to the Romans assistance with the ninth legion, the Britons fall upon him, rout him, and cut every man of the infantry to pieces; afterwards the Britons went to London, then inhabited chiefly by Romans, took it, and massacred all the Romans they found; the like they did elsewhere, killing 70,000 of the Romans, and their confederates. Suetonius the Roman governor collects his army together, and gives the Britons battle, overthrows them, and kills 80,000 of them, with the loss of only 400 Romans	XIV.	212
4367	3060	61	Pedanius Secundus , governor of Rome, being murdered by some of his slaves, it was insisted upon that all dwelling under his roof, guilty or innocent, should be executed, which was done, to the number of 400	XIV.	215
4368	3061	62	Burrhus , one of Nero's teachers, who had been greatly instrumental in preventing much mischief, is said to die of poison	XIV.	216
4368	3061	62	Tigellinus gets to be Nero's intimate (a person of great viciousness) and advises him to murder Sylla , who was accordingly assassinated at his own table: Then Plautus is likewise dispatched, and Nero marries Poppæa publicly; she accuses Octavia of incontinency, who is banished into Campania, but is soon after recalled, but again accused, banished and murdered	XIV.	220
4368	3061	62	Nero recalls Albinus from, and sends Gessius Florus into Judea, who behaved so cruelly as occasioned the total destruction of the Jewish state and people, who upon a computation now made, are found to be 2,556,000	X.	572
4369	3062	63	The city of Pompeii in Campania was in a great measure overturned by an earthquake, and many others damaged. This year Poppæa brings forth a daughter, which is called Augusta , but dies when four months old	XIV.	222
4369	3062	63	The Sarmatians begin to threaten the Roman empire; but Plautius Silvanus Ælianus getting assistance from the

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Page.
			kings of the Bastarnians and Roxolani- ans, prevents their invasion	XIX. 355
4370	3063	64	Nero grows so monstrously wicked, that he approved of those who made profession of obscenity, and condemned as hypocrites those who behaved with any degree of modesty. This year Rome is burnt, some say by Nero's express order, but he charges it upon the Christians: Upon part of the ruins he built a most magnificent palace, called the golden palace; upon the rest the city was rebuilt in a very commodious and grand manner, much superior to what it was before for beauty and convenience.	XIV. 229
4370	3063	64	Nero having accused the Christians (who were very numerous at Rome) with burning it, they were persecuted with all manner of cruelties and torments possible to be invented; and to supply his exchequer he robbed all the temples of his vast dominions, and melted down the images to make money	XIV. 234
4370	3063	64	Cæsarea being now adjudged to belong to Syria, the Jews revolt, and pelt their governor Florus with stones, and nothing was to be seen but robberies, murders, and all manner of cruelties: The Cæsarians murder 20,000 Jews in their city, 2000 are murdered at Ptolemais , and 50,000 at Alexandria , Florus murdering all he met with at Jerusalem , so that fire and sword reduced all the country to the utmost desolation	X. 575
4371	3064	65	Nero's abominable behaviour occasioned a conspiracy against him, at the head of which was Caius Piso ; but being discovered before the execution, Nero puts many of the chiefs to death, among whom was Seneca his tutor, the consul Vestinus , Lucan the poet, &c.	XIV. 242
4371	3064	65	Poppæa being again with child, and finding fault with Nero , for some excesses, he kicks her on the belly and kills her; he would then have married Antonia , the daughter of Claudius , but she refusing, he orders her to be put to death, and married Statilia Messalina , widow of the late consul Atticus Vestinus	XIV. 253
4371	3064	65	This year Campania was damaged with dreadful tempests, violent whirlwinds, and earthquakes, by which whole villages were overturned, &c. At Rome a plague swept off 30,000 persons in a small time	XIV. 256
4372	3065	66	Nero goes into Greece , with a vast retinue of siders, songsters, &c. and has the prize allowed to him, for which he rewarded the judges with rich presents, and the citizenship of Rome ; he also restored the Acheans to their former liberty	XIV. 265
4372	3065	66	Cestius governor of Syria besieges Jerusalem , but they corrupting some of his generals, the siege was raised, and the Jews pursued him, surrounded and cut off 4000 of his foot, and 400 horse, &c. Upon this Nero sends Vespasian into Judea with a great army to revenge the affront	X. 579
4373	3066	67	Vespasian enters Judea with upwards of 60,000 disciplined men, besides servants, relieves Sephoris , burns Gadara , and besieges Jotapa , which Josephus gallantly defended 47 days, when Vespasian took it by assault, and destroyed it with fire and sword, not one Jew escaping, 40,000 being killed, and only 12,000 made prisoners: Josephus surrendered himself, and was well received, and then prophesied to Vespasian his succession to the empire. Japha was also taken, and all the men put to the sword, and the women and children carried away captive. Gamala was also taken,

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4373	3036	67	and 4000 put to the sword, but more destroyed themselves. Giscala also lost 6000 men, and 3000 taken prisoners ; and so all Galilee was subdued	X.	585
4374	3037	67	Nero plunders the province of Achaia, putting all the wealthy Greeks to death under various pretences, and seizing their effects : The like he does by Italy and Rome. Having loaded his fleet with all the riches of Greece, he returns towards Italy ; but a storm robbed him of his ships and his plunder, few of them escaping : He enters Naples, Antium, Albanum, and Rome, through a breach in the wall, as a victor in the Olympick games, &c.	XIV.	271
4374	3037	68	The zealots at Jerusalem divide themselves into different parties, and destroy one another by thousands, committing the most horrid cruelties, &c.	X.	590
4374	3037	68	Nero having tired all his people with his cruel butcheries and injustice, Julius Vindex, governor of Celtick Gaul, revolts, as does Galba, governor of Hispania Tarraconensis, but refuses the name of emperor, &c. Augustus Nero deposes the two consuls, and takes that office upon himself ; then prepares to go against the revoltors, with an army of fidlers, players, &c. and arms his concubines like Amazons, and appoints them for his guard. Virginus governor of Upper Germany comes against Vindex ; an engagement happens, contrary to the two generals orders, 20,000 Gauls are killed, and Vindex murders himself : Virginus is declared emperor, but will not accept it	XIV.	282
4374	3037	68	A famine being in Rome, and ships coming in from Egypt, with sand for the gladiators instead of corn, so exasperated the common people that they threw down Nero's statues, tore his images, plundered the houses of his friends and favourites, &c. At the same time news was brought that the German legions had revolted ; being in a great fright, Nero flies from Rome ; the senate assembles, and declares Galba emperor ; and Nero causes himself to be stabbed and dies	XIV.	288
4374	3037	68	Galba being far advanced in years, and at a great distance from Rome, Nymphidius Sabinus aspires at the empire, and by gifts, treats, &c. gets the prætorian bands, &c. on his side, and takes upon him the supreme command : The senate fearing his power, conferred extraordinary honours upon him, and called him their protector, and went to him to have their decrees confirmed ; but the soldiers reject him, and declare Galba anew, kill Nymphidius, and drag his body through the camp : Galba orders several great men to be put to death unheard, which frightened the people very much : Being now at the Milvian bridge, 25 furlongs from the city, a body of marines met him to address him for a confirmation of their legion ; but he putting them off, they grow mutinous ; he orders his horse to ride in among them, and do military execution, and decimates those that were left alive, and was in all things governed by his three favourites, who behaved very scandalously. He called the ministers of Nero to account, and punishes some of them with death, and pardons others, &c.	XIV.	310
4374	3037	68	The Jews being divided among themselves ; one party was for submitting to the Romans immediately, to prevent their total destruction ; but the other would hear of no accommodation, and murdered and plundered all who opposed them, whether Jews or others. This occasioned many terrible massacres and devastations. The zealots are headed

Y. of Christ.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of
world.

by Zachariah and Eleazar, who entered Jerusalem, and were as strongly opposed by Ananus, the late deposed high-priest; the zealots garrisoned in the temple, from whence they continually sallied, and committed the most horrid butcheries: Ananus besieges them; the zealots send for and let into the city 20,000 Idumeans, who torture and murder vast numbers with unspeakable cruelties, of which 12,000 were persons of distinction, among whom was Ananus himself, and Jesus the son of Gamaliel, &c. In the mean time Placidus the Roman general killed about 15,000 factious Jews, and takes Gadara, &c.

X. 593

4375 3068

69

An express arrives from Belgic Gaul, informing Galba that the legions in Upper Germany demanded another emperor, to be chose by the free election of the senate and people of Rome; upon which Galba adopts Piso Licinianus for his successor: This drives Otho to attempt the sovereignty, being encouraged thereto by an astrologer. He chooses two soldiers to bribe and debauch the rest, and furnishes them with money for that purpose, and makes them large promises: The 15th of January Otho is saluted emperor by a small party of the guards, which soon increase, and presently he is proclaimed by the whole camp, and Galba and Piso are murdered. The senate, knights, and people of Rome acknowledge Otho and honour him with the titles of Cæsar and Augustus with the usual pomp and formalities

XIV. 331

4375 3068

69

The armies in Germany declare Vitellius (commander of the legions of Lower Germany) emperor; he exercises the sovereign power, and puts several persons to death at the request of the soldiers. Vitellius is joined by two Gaulish governors and their forces, by an Italian legion and a body of horse at Lyons, the forces of Rhætia and Britain. Vitellius addicts himself to gluttony and drunkenness. Cæcina, one of Vitellius's generals, ravages the fields, sacks the cities, and makes dreadful havock of the inhabitants of Helvetia, many thousands are cut off, and many sold for slaves. In Italy a squadron of horse and many cities go over to Vitellius. Otho sends messengers and letters to Vitellius, offers him immense sums, and any place of retirement he should choose, and at last to make him a partner with him in the empire, and to marry his daughter; and Vitellius does the like to Otho. Most of the foreign provinces declare for Otho, and he studies to gain their affections. Otho fits out fleets and armies to oppose Vitellius, and orders the chief of the nobility to follow him into the field, takes his leave of the senate, and leaves Rome. Otho's fleet gains advantages in Narbonne Gaul, but all the country between the Alps and the Po submit to Vitellius. Cæcina attacks Placentia, but after losing a great many men, is forced to retire. At last the two contending parties engage, and Otho's army is routed with great slaughter near Bedriacum: Next day Otho's generals deliver up their camp, upon receiving the news whereof Otho kills himself, though intreated to the contrary by his soldiers, and armies from all the eastern provinces were in full march to his assistance: Otho being dead, all his troops submit to Vitellius, and the senate acknowledge him for their emperor.

XIV. 366

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.
4375	3068	69	Simon heading one part of the Jewish zealots, gains advantages over the other, and invades Idumea with 20,000 men : The Idumeans oppose him vigorously ; but Simon bribing their general, has Idumea and the troops delivered up to him, and put all to fire and sword : The other zealots in one of their ambushes takes Simon's wife prisoner ; but he going to Jerusalem obliges them by his excessive cruelties to return her : Thus John within, and Simon without, destroy all that comes in their way. The people let Simon in the night into the city, who reigns over them in the most tyrannical manner, and besieges John in the temple	X.	593
4375	3068	69	The Roxolanians enter Mæsia, defeat the two Roman cohorts, and return unmolested ; but returning again with nine thousand horse, Marcus Aponius Saturninus falls upon them, and cuts them off almost to a man	XIV.	355
4375	3068	69	Italy suffers greater calamities than ever ; the soldiers being very numerous, and scattered up and down, plunder, ravage, and murder whoever they please without restraint. Vitellius sends an edict to Rome, forbidding them at present to confer either the name of Augustus or Cæsar upon him. All the centurions that had behaved gallantly for Otho were put to death : Dolabella he ordered to be massacred privately : Being naturally addicted to gluttony and drunkenness, he indulged the same in the soldiers, which occasioned great calamities and disturbances to others, and among themselves. Arriving at Rome, he put off his general's, and put on the senator's dress, and marches in great pomp to the capitol to offer sacrifice to Jupiter, where being met by his mother Sextilia, he embraces and honours her with the name of Augusta ; next day he met the senate, and made a speech to them, containing great promises of what he would do for them, but gave himself up entirely to gluttony and profuseness, and remits all business to his favourites, Valens and Cæcina	XIV.	376
4375	3068	69	The legions in Judea, Egypt, and Syria declare Vespasian emperor : Tiberius Alexander brought the legions at Alexandria to swear to him on the first of July, those in Judea swore to him in person on the third, and Mucianus governor of Syria and his soldiers about the 15th ; Sohemus king of Edeffa, Antiochus king of Comagena, and Agrippa king of Ituræa acceded, and all the inland provinces extending to Asia and Achaia, and the inland countries bordering upon Pontus, and the two Armenia's, took the oath of allegiance. Vespasian establishes a council for the dispatch of business at Berytus. Troops were every where raised, and gold and silver in great quantities coined at Antioch, and ambassadors sent to Vologeses king of Parthia, and Tiridates king of Armenia ; Titus was to carry on the war in Judea, Vespasian to seize the Streights leading to Egypt, and Mucianus to go against Vitellius. The Illyrian and Pannonian legions declare for Vespasian ; the fleet at Ravenna revolts, and comes over to Vespasian. The partisans of each side have several engagements with various success, but at last the fatal battle of Cremona determined Vitellius's fate ; the city was large, and very rich, and 40,000 soldiers, &c. entered it, killed, ravished, plundered and burnt it for four days successively, till it was all reduced to ashes ; this happened 286 years after its foundation. Vitellius for all this gives himself up to voluptuousness ;

Y. of Chrif.
Y. of Aood.
Y. of
world.

his favourite Valens is taken prifoner, and Gaul, Spain, and Britain, declare for Vefpafian : With difficulty Vitellius is prevailed on to leave Rome, and to go to the camp at Mevania, but gives himfelf up to drunkennefs, and publickly betrays his ignorance and fear. The Samnites, Pelignians, and Marfians, declare for Vefpafian ; Valens being taken prifoner, the whole army goes over to Vefpafian. Vitellius is offered fafety for his perfon, and a competency to live on, if he would refign the fovereignty ; he comes into the fenate clad in mourning, and offers to refign ; but the fouldiers will not permit him, and befiege Sabinus, &c. brother to Vefpafian, in the capitol, which was now reduced to afhes ; many great men were flain, and Sabinus and Atticus the conful taken prifoners ; Vitellius ftrive all he could to fave them, but the fury of the fouldiers was fo great, that cutting off Sabinus's head, they dragged his trunk through the ftreets. Soon after Primus, &c. for Vefpafian comes to Rome, where feveral bloody engagements gave Vefpafian the city, and Vitellius being taken prifoner, is firft infulted, then killed, and his head carried upon a pole through the chief cities, having reigned 8 months and a few days ; and Domitian (a fon of Vefpafian) faluted Cæfar. Lucius, the brother of Vitellius, coming with his troops to Rome, fubmits, and is put to death ; the conquerors filled the ftreets with carnage and mangled carcasses ; all the private houfes and places of publick refort are broke open and plundered

XIV. 410

4376 3069 70 The fenate confirms Vefpafian in the fovereignty ; makes him conful, and his fon Titus his colleague ; Domitian is made prætor, and has confular authority, &c.

XIV. 410

4376 3069 70 The Jazygians, a Sarmatic nation, broke into Mæfia, killed Fonteius Agrippa, governor of that province, and laid wafte the country far and near. Rubrius Gallus goes againft them, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forces the reft to repafs the Danube, the bank of which river he carefully fortified

XIX. 356

4376 3069 70 Vefpafian orders his fon Titus to go from Cæfarea to befiege Jerufalem, and to utterly deftroy it ; this he goes about with the greateft expedition : When he came and invefted the place, he found three different factions within it, furiously deftroying one another ; they pretended to make a peace among themfelves, and it being the feaft of the Paffover, Eleazer, who was poffeffed of the temple, opened the avenues of his court to the great concourfe that came to facrifice, among whom fome of John's men went in privately armed, and cut off moft of Eleazar's party, and took poffeffion of the place ; Titus makes them offer of peace, which they reject a firft and fecond time ; by their intestine divifions all the provifions were either burnt or eat, fo that a terrible famine and continual butcheries were within, and no poffible efcape without. The befiegers having taken the city, fet fire to the temple the 10th of Auguft, in the 2d year of Vefpafian and 21ft of Agrippa, being the fame fatal day and month 'twas formerly burnt by Nebuchadnezzar ; this was followed by a terrible fllaughter of the people, and the burning and deftruction of the city : In this war 1,854,490 are faid to be killed, and 108,000 carried from Jerufalem captives, and all the buildings were levelled with the ground

X. 617

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4376	3069	70	Anicetus , formerly commander of king Polemon's navy, raised a party in Pontus, under pretence of favouring Vitellius, seized the city of Trebizond, burnt the fleet which guarded the coasts, makes an alliance with the Barbarians, and commits dreadful ravages on the coasts of Asia; but Virdius Geminus being sent against him by Vespasian, he is defeated, and Ancietus and all his followers are delivered up by Sedochus king of the Lazians, to whom he flew for protection	XIV.	411
4376	3069	70	The Germans and Gauls revolt from the Romans during the civil war, and various success attends both sides, and vast numbers are slain; but at last they universally declare for Vespasian, and peace is restored. Vespasian arriving at Brundisium, is met by the senate and all the great men of Rome, and by them conducted thither, where he was met by the whole people, and honoured with all expressions of joy and satisfaction, where he revived the ancient discipline of the army, allowed the senate to debate and speak freely their sentiments, rectified the law, and purged the courts of Judicature, ordered the city and capitol to be rebuilt, and behaved in all things as a father of his country ought towards the people he loved and governed	XIV.	436
4376	3069	70	Vologeses sends ambassadors to Vespasian, and offers him 40,000 Parthian horse, but being already settled in the empire, has no occasion to accept them; so both parties renew their alliances, and Vespasian sends back the ambassadors with thanks, loaded with rich presents. Being at peace, Vologeses sets about building a city, calling it Vologesocerta, but died before it was completed	XI.	65
4377	3070	71	Vespasian and his son Titus have a triumph at Rome, for the reduction of Jerusalem, and Titus has a triumphal arch erected, which still remains almost intire; as soon as the triumph was over, the gate of the temple of Janus was shut, the empire enjoying a perfect peace every where, and the temple of peace was begun to be built, to put the rich spoils in that were brought from Jerusalem	XIV.	439
4378	3071	72	Cesennius Pætus , governor of Syria accused Antiochus king of Comagene with an intent to revolt; Vespasian gives him a commission at large, upon which Pætus both takes his kingdom and himself, and reduced Comagene to a Roman province; but the king and his two sons lived at Rome at the publick expence, in a manner suitable to their character, and were familiarly entertained by Vespasian	XIV.	440
4378	3071	72	The Alani, a people beyond the Tanais, and Palus Mæotis, make a sudden irruption into the territories of the Medes and Armenians; Tiridates narrowly escaping, and Pacorus king of the Medes was forced to fly, the Barbarians carrying off an immense booty, and a great number of captives, and among them Pacorus's wife	XIV.	440
4379	3072	73	Vespasian reduces Greece, which Nero had declared free, and Lycia, Rhodes, Byzantium, Samos, Thrace, and Cilicia, to Roman provinces. Helvidius Priscus for exciting the people against Vespasian, is first banished by the emperor, and by an order of the senate executed	XIV.	442
4381	3074	75	Vespasian consecrates the temple of peace, and raises a Colossus of brass 110 feet high, which had been designed for Nero, but he put the head of his son Titus on it, though some say it was the figure of the sun	XIV.	443

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
4384	3077	78	The celebrated Cneius Julius Agrippa succeeds the successful Julius Frontinus in the government of Britain, which in seven successful campaigns he entirely reduced, and parted Caledonia by forts and garrisons upon the Isthmus between the friths of Glota and Bodotria, and made Britain a Roman province, cultivated the people, and introduced arts and sciences, which soon civilized the natives	XVIII.	705
4385	3078	79	Julius Sabinus having stirred up the Gauls, and proclaimed himself Cæsar, after being defeated set his country-house on fire, and gave out that he voluntarily perished there in the flames, but conveyed himself and his vast wealth into a cave, where he lived 9 years, and had two children by his wife Epponia; but being discovered, he was seized and sent to Rome, loaded with chains, with his wife and two children; he and she were condemned and executed, but the children were very carefully brought up at the publick expence	XIV.	449
4385	3078	79	Alienus Cæcina , formerly Vitellius's favourite, and Eprius Marcellus , a noted informer in Nero's time, conspire against Vespasian , but are discovered: Titus causes Cæcina to be murdered at a banquet he had invited him to, and Marcellus is condemned by the senate, but cuts his own throat. Vespasian is taken ill with a pain in his bowels, and goes to Campania to drink some very cold waters, but grows worse, and dies the 24th of June, aged 69 years, 7 months, and 7 days, having reigned 10 years wanting 6 days, and was succeeded by his son Titus , whose character stood in a very bad light with the people; but when he came to reign alone, he acquired the greatest reputation of any of the Roman emperors	XIV.	456
4385	3078	79	A most dreadful eruption of mount Vesuvius laid waste Campania to a great distance, consuming many cities and their inhabitants, and is said to turn day into night suddenly at Rome	XIV.	459
4386	3079	80	Vologeses king of Parthia dies, and is succeeded by Artabanus III. who espoused the cause of the counterfeit Nero	XI.	65
4386	3079	80	Titus sends two consulars into Campania with large sums to rebuild the cities and relieve the distresses that the late eruption of Vesuvius had occasioned, and went himself also to comfort and relieve the unhappy sufferers; while he was thus doing, a terrible fire broke out in Rome, and burnt with great fury for three days and three nights, during which time a vast number of private houses, palaces, and publick edifices were reduced to ashes; the library of Augustus with all the books, great part of the capitol, the theatre of Pompey , &c. all which Titus rebuilt and restored at his own expence: The most dreadful plague ever known in Rome followed this conflagration, during all which he behaved in the most tender and compassionate manner to the afflicted. The famous amphitheatre being finished this year that was begun by Vespasian ; Titus dedicated it with magnificent shews for 100 days together, to raise the spirits of the people ready to sink under the calamities they had suffered	XIV.	462
4387	3080	81	Titus is taken ill of a burning fever, and is carried to Curtilæ , his paternal estate, and dies on the 13th of September, in the same room where his father died, in the 41st year of his age, having reigned two years, two months, and twenty days: Some say he was poisoned

Y. of Chrif.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of World.			Vol.	Page.
				by his brother Domitian, who fucceeded him, and who placed him among the gods, and was himfelf the firft that paid divine honours to him; his lofs was exceedingly lamented by all the people, to foften which Domitian begins his reign with popular acts, and great diffimulation.	XIV.	466
4388	3081	82		Domitian puts Flavius Sabinus to death, husband of Julia Sabina his niece, and daughter of the late emperor Titus, becaufe the publick crier through miftake had proclaimed him emperor inftead of conful	XIV.	473
4389	3082	83		Domitian forbids castration under fevere penalties, and regulates the price of eunuchs already made: This year he likewife punifhed four veftals for inceft, caufing three of them to be whipt to death in the Comitium, and Cornelia, who had been once pardoned before, was buried alive	XIV.	474
4389	3082	83		A colony of Sueves are fettled in Frifia by the Romans	XIX.	222
4390	3083	84		Agricola engages the Caledonians, or Scots, defeats and routs them, and with the lofs only of 340 Romans, kills 10,000 of the enemy, and takes many prifoners, and this intirely reduced Britain	XIV.	487
4391	3084	85		The Sueves revolt from and defeat the Romans in Pannonia	XIX.	223
4391	3084	85		Domitian orders the nativity of all the illuftrious perfons in Rome to be caft, and all fuch as the aftrologers faid were born for empire, he deftroyed: He encouraged the informers, who enriched themfelves and the emperor with the lives and properties of many thoufands of innocent perfons. This year multitudes of fenators and knights were accused of treafon, and sentenced to death by the fenate, or ordered to murder themfelves by Domitian. All the professors of philofophy, and every ufeul fcience were banifhed the city; and all manner of cruelty and injufice committed	XIV.	492
4391	3084	85		The cruelty ufed, and heavy taxes demanded, caufe the Nafamonians (a people of Africa) to revolt; they defeat Flaccus, governor of Numidia, stormed his camp, and put great numbers of his men to the fword; but giving themfelves up to revelling, Flaccus rallies, and falls upon the enemy drunk and afleep, and cuts them off to a man: Upon this Domitian brags to the fenate that he had cut off a whole nation, and is fo prefumptuoufly wicked as to begin one of his ordinances thus; Our Lord and our God orders and commands, &c. and would be called the fon of Minerva	XIV.	495
4392	3085	86		The Capitoline fports intituted and exhibited in honour of Jupiter Capitolinus, the emperor prefiding in perfon, attended by the priests of Jupiter and the college of Flaminian priests, the beginning of every fifth year. The Dacians break their alliance and invade Mefia, defeat, rout, and kill, with great flaughter Appius Sabinus the governor, commit great devaftations, and feize the caftles and forts built by the Romans on their borders. Domitian goes againft them himfelf; Decebalus their chief fends to treat of peace, but Domitian won't hearken to them, but fends Tufcus with the flower of his army againft them; they engage, Tufcus is killed, and his army routed intirely; the Dacians took one eagle, a great quantity of arms, all the engines of war, and a vaft number of captives: Domitian made the fame havock of the fenate and people at Rome as the Dacians had done of his foldiers. Domitian fends frefh armies againft them; many bloody battles are fought, with various fuccefs, but at laft Julia- nus gave the Dacians a compleat overthrow. Decebalus fues again for peace, which Domitian again refufes	XIX.	502

Y. of Chrif.	Y. of Hood	Y. of world.			Vol.	Page.
4392	3085	86		The emperor Domitian making war upon the Marcomans and Quadians, both nations earneftly fue for peace; but inftead of granting it to them, he put their ambaffadors to death; which fo exafperated the Marcomans, that flying to arms, and raifing a confiderable body of troops, they engage the emperor, and put his army to the rout	XIV.	347
4394	3087	88		The fecular games are this year celebrated, fo called becaufe they were folemnized but once in an age, or 100 years. Domitian murders all of birth or virtue that gave him the leaft umbrage. L. Antonius, governor of Upper Germany, revolts; but being engaged by Appius Maximus, Antonius is flain, his head cut off and fent to Rome, and his whole army cut to pieces. Domitian executes and banifhes great numbers of perfons, under pretence of having been privy or affiftant in Antonius's rebellion	XIV.	503
4394	3087	88		A counterfeit Nero appears in Afia, and with a multitude of followers retires to the Parthian king, who feemed to efpoufe his caufe; but Domitian found means to prevail with him to deliver up the impoftor to his governor of Syria	XIV.	503
4396	3089	90		Domitian being defeated by the Marcomans, &c. makes peace with Decebalus king of Dacia, and allows him a yearly penfion	XIX.	370
4397	3090	91		Ulpius Trajanus and M. Acilius Glabrio were this year's con- fuls; Glabrio was efteemed a man of prodigious ftrength, and therefore notwithstanding his dignity the emperor oblig- ed him to fight a huge lion in the Arena, which he did, and killed him; the people applauded this victory with fuch loud and repeated shouts, that the emperor jealoufly banifhed, and ordered him to be murdered in his exile. This year Domitian exhibited extraordinary fhews of fea and land fights, &c. but the feaft he invited the fenators and knights to is moft remarkable; at the entrance of the palace the guefts were received with great ceremony, and conducted into a large gloomy hall, hung with black and filled with coffins, each of which had the name of a fena- tor or knight upon it; immediately the doors are burft open, and a great number of naked men daubed all over with black, with a torch in one hand and a naked fword in the other, rufhed in upon them, and danced round them for fome time. and then proclamation was made all were at liberty to retire home	XIV.	505
4398	3091	92		This year wine being very plentiful, and corn very fcarce, Domitian orders half the vines to be rooted up, and no more to be planted: The Afians fend deputies to beg their being excufed obedience to this law; Scopelianus being ad- mitted, pleaded their caufe fo well that Domitian repealed the law abfolutely. This year the kingdom of Chalcis was united to the empire	XIV.	506
4399	3092	93		Agricola, the famous governor of Britain, dies, greatly la- mented by all, fufpected of being poisoned by order of Do- mitian	XIV.	507
4399	3092	93		The Sarmatians cut a Roman legion with its tribune to pieces	XIX.	355
4400	3093	94		Domitian's fury and cruelty ran now fo high, that 'twas treafon to be noble, capital to be rich, and criminal either

Y. of Christ.
Y. of Abod.
X. of
World.

to have borne or declined honours; the most infamous informers are highly careffed and greatly rewarded. Helvidius, Senecio, and Rusticus are put to death unjustly, and great numbers of lower people butchered and banished, and the philosophers and professors of all virtuous and commendable sciences banished Rome by an order of the senate

XIV. 614

4401 3094 95 Juvenius Celsus heads a conspiracy against Domitian, is discovered and pardoned. Domitian puts vast numbers of Christians to death, and banished many more, upon account of their religion, both in Rome and in all the provinces: Among the slain were the emperor's cousin and colleague in the consulship, Flavius Clemens, and his wife and niece, both named Flavia Domitilla, among the banished

XIV. 518

4402 3095 96 Many prodigies are said to happen this year at Rome and in the provinces; the city was alarmed for eight months successively with dreadful claps of thunder and flashes of lightning; the capitol, temple of the Flavian family, and emperor's own chamber, were thunder-struck: The oracle at Præneste presages slaughter and calamities; Domitian dreams that Minerva had forsaken him; the astrologers declare publicly that the 18th of September Domitian would die. Domitian having wrote the names of several great personages upon a paper, his wife Domitia reading it, finds herself at the head of them; upon which she communicates it to the rest; they conspire and kill him, after he had reigned 15 years and 5 days, and was the last of the 12 Cæsars

XIV. 526

4402 3095 96 As soon as the death of Domitian was known, the senate assembles and proclaims M. Cocceius Nerva emperor, which the soldiers and people confirm: He was a native of Narnia in Umbria, a prince of a most sweet and humane temper, &c. under whom the Romans lived as happy as in the former reigns they had been miserable: He pardons all imprisoned for treason, calls home the banished, restores the sequestered estates, punishes informers, abolishes the law of majesty, redresses all grievances, and acts with universal beneficence towards all sorts of people

XIV. 549

4403 3096 97 Nerva and L. Virginus Rufus are consuls: Rufus rising at the receipt of the fasces to pronounce an oration in praise of the emperor, lets fall a book out of his bosom, and stooping to take it up, fell down himself and broke his leg, being then in the 83d year of his age, the agony whereof occasioned his death; the emperor orders his obsequies to be made with the utmost pomp and magnificence; Cornelius Tacitus the famous historian pronounces his funeral oration, and succeeded him in the consulate. L. Calpurnius Cassius is discovered in conspiring against Nerva, by whom he and his wife are only banished to Tarentum: Then the pretorian guards, headed by Ælianus Caspericus their commander, under pretence of revenging the death of Domitian, besiege Nerva in the palace; he offers himself to be slain, but they insist upon the conspirators being delivered up; they cut some of them to pieces, and Nerva is forced to deliver up the rest: He adopts Ulpus Trajan for his successor, then commander of a powerful army in Lower Germany, to whom he wrote a letter with his own hand, and presented him with a large diamond, associated him in the empire, and loaded him with all the honours of power and majesty

XIV. 559

[CCXXXIII]			Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Chrift.
4404	3097	98	January 21st Nerva dies, in the Sallustian gardens, after having reigned 16 months and 8 days, is ranked among the gods, and succeeded by Trajan, by birth and extraction a Spaniard, lately adopted by Nerva, about 41 years old, well skilled both in martial and cabinet affairs, courteous, affable, humane, and just: The Germans and Barbarians compliment him upon his advancement, and remain quiet as to the Romans; but the Bructerians are expelled by the Chamavians and Angrivarians by a decisive battle, in which 60,000 persons were cut off	XIV. 560
4405	3098	99	Trajan comes to Rome, and is received with all the demonstrations of joy possible, attended by his wife Pompeia Plotina, a lady of extraordinary virtue, wisdom, and goodness: He accepts the title of Optimus , and bestows plentiful largesses upon the soldiers and common people, and discourages informers	XIV. 562
4406	3099	100	Trajan being a third time chose consul, binds himself by solemn oath to observe the law; banishes Marius Priscus, proconsul of Africa for extortion, and his accomplices, also the accomplices of Clafficus, proconsul of Bætica, Clafficus having killed himself to avoid being punished.	XIV. 564
4406	3099	100	Julia Sabina, grand-daughter to Marciana the emperor's sister, marries Adrian, son of Ælius Adrian Afer, cousin to Trajan	XIV. 565
4407	3100	101	Trajan refuses to pay the Dacians their annual sum, therefore king Decebalus crossed the Danube, and committed hostilities: Trajan goes into Dacia, and lays it waste far and near, and after much bloodshed on both sides, obliged Decebalus to accept of such terms of peace as he thought fit to give him. At his return to Rome he was honoured with a triumph	XIX. 371
4408	3101	102	Trajan and the senate make a law, prohibiting all pleaders taking any fee, present, or reward, of their clients, under severe penalties	XIV. 566
4409	3102	103	Trajan builds a noble harbour at Centumcellæ (now Civita Vecchia) and called it by his own name. The governors of Pontus and Bithynia having committed great disorders, he takes the provinces from the senate, and gives them Pamphylia in the room of them, and sends Pliny as his lieutenant to reform the civil affairs of Pontus and Bithynia	XIV. 571
4410	3103	104	Sauromates, king of Bosphorus sends a solemn embassy to Trajan, and concludes an alliance with him; and Decebalus king of the Dacians breaks the peace; Trajan goes against him, and overcomes him, and builds a bridge over the Danube	XIX. 372
4411	3104	105	A dreadful earthquake in Asia overturns the cities of Elea, Myrine, Pitame, and Cumæ; and in Greece the cities of Opus and Oritæ. Adrian attending upon Trajan in his Dacian war, performs wonders, for which Trajan presents him with the diamond Nerva had given him at the time of his adoption. Trajan takes Zermizegethusa, the capital of Dacia, and entirely defeats Decebalus, who thereupon put an end to his own life, and Trajan reduces the whole country, and its allies, into a Roman province, governed by a proprætor, and plants Roman colonies in it to keep the people in awe. At his return he had a triumph a second time, and exhibited publick shews, &c. for 123 days. Ambassadors from India come to congratulate Trajan upon his extraordinary success, make him presents, and conclude an alliance with him	XIV. 575

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
4411	3104	105	Aulus Cornelius Palma , governor of Syria, intirely reduces Arabia Petræa to the Roman yoke, which till now was governed by kings of its own	XIV.	575
4412	3105	106	The Capitoline sports establiſhed by Domitian are exhibited when a lad but 13 years old, named L. Valerius Pudens, won the prize of poetry. Trajan at a vaſt expence makes a road through the Palus Pontina, called Via Trajana, the remains whereof are ſtill to be ſeen. A conſpiracy againſt Trajan is diſcovered, and the ſenate baniſhed the conſpirators	XIV.	576
4413	3106	107	Coſrhoes king of Parthia having driven out Exadares from the kingdom of Armenia, to whom Trajan emperor of Rome had given it, and ſet his eldeſt ſon Parthamaſiris upon that throne, Trajan goes to Antioch, where he receives the ambaffadors and ſubmiſſions of many of the neighbour- ing princes, and then goes unexpectedly into Armenia, re- covers the whole country, and takes Parthamaſiris pri- ſoner. He then goes into Meſopotamia, and reduces it into a Roman province, and is honoured by the ſenate with the ſurnames of Armenicus and Parthicus. Having taken Babylon by ſtorm, and made himſelf maſter of all Chaldea and Aſſyria, he marched to Cteſiphon, the me- tropolis of the Parthian empire, and took it, and then aſſembling the chief men of the nation, made Parthanaſ- pates, one of the blood royal, king of Parthia, but tri- butary to Rome	XI.	67
4414	3107	108	During this ſpace of time the famous highway from Beneven- tum to Brundufium was made by Trajan. The Pantheon
4420	3113	114	at Rome was burnt by lightning, and ſeveral cities in Ga- latia were overturned by an earthquake, and the great ſquare at Rome was dedicated	XIV.	584
4418	3111	112	Adrian is made archon or chief magiſtrate of Athens	XIV.	584
4421	3114	115	A moſt terrible earthquake, attended with dreadful ſtorms of thunder and lightning, deſtroys the greateſt part of Antioch, where the emperor Trajan with his great army, and a vaſt number of ambaffadors and their retinue were; the build- ings were generally thrown down, or ſwallowed up, and great numbers of people killed and wounded; among the wounded was Trajan himſelf	XIV.	587
4422	3115	116	The ſenate and people of Rome return the emperor Trajan ſolemn thanks for his making the port of Ancona. Tra- jan reduces Arabia Felix to a Roman province. The Jews revolt in Alexandria, and all Egypt, Syria, and the other provinces, committing moſt horrid ravages and monſtrous barbarities; Marcius Turbo is ſent againſt them, and de- feats them, but does not quiet them	XIV.	591
4422	3115	116	In Cyprus the Jews are all cut off to a man, and Luſius Quietus defeats them in a pitched battle in Meſopotamia, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and drives the reſt out of the country. Moſt of the conquered nations in the eaſt revolt, and cut the Roman garrifons to pieces, but after much bloodſhed are again reduced	XIV.	592
4423	3116	117	Trajan beſieges Atræ, the metropolis of the Hagareni in Ara- bia, who had revolted, but is ſo vigorously oppoſed, that he is forced to raiſe the ſiege; and upon his return to Se- linus, (afterwards called Trajanopolis) in Cilicia, was taken violently ill with a dropſy, palsy, and a flux, ſo that he died there, after he had reigned 19 years, 6 months, and 15 days: Upon news of his death Adrian cauſed him- ſelf to be proclaimed emperor at Antioch, where he then was. Trajan's body was burnt at Selinus, and his aſhes

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page
			carried to Rome by his wife Plotina and his niece Matidia, in a golden urn, where they were received with the highest honour, and deposited under the stately column himself had erected, though within the walls, where no one before had been buried - - - - -	XIV.	595
4423	3116	117	Adrian writes to the senate, desires them to confirm to him the title of emperor, promises to rule with justice, &c. abandons Armenia, Mesopotamia, and Assyria, making the Euphrates the bound of the Roman empire: He allowed the Armenians liberty to chuse them a king, permitted the Parthians to recal Cosroes, sent him his daughter, whom Trajan had taken prisoner, and all his prisoners without ransom; and Parthamaspates he made king of another place; he would have abandoned Dacia, but was over-ruled, but broke down the famous bridge Trajan had built over the Danube; then appointed Catilius Severus governor of Syria, and set forwards towards Rome.	XIV.	614
4424	3117	118	Adrian comes to Rome, is received with great respect by all degrees of people, refuses the triumph decreed him, remits all debts whatsoever, and burns all bonds, &c. to the amount of upwards of 7,000,000 l. sterl. - - - - -	XIV.	615
4425	3118	119	The European Sarmatians break into Illyricum with great fury; but upon Adrian's arriving at Mæsia, they retire and pass the Danube, and the Roman horse swimming after them, so terrifies them, that they sue for peace, which is granted them - - - - -	XIX.	356
4425	3118	119	Adrian writes to the senate from Illyricum, complaining of Cornelius Palma, Celsus Nigrinus, and Quietus, as if they had formed a conspiracy against him, and tho' they were all consular men, the senate put them to death, without so much as acquainting them they were accused. The emperor coming into Campania, relieves with great generosity the poor in all the cities he passed through - - - - -	XIV.	617
4426	3119	120	Adrian begins a progress, in order to visit all the provinces of the empire, and enquire into the state and condition of all his people; and first he visits Gaul, then Germany, then Britain, where being informed what troublesome neighbours the Caledonians, or Scots, were, ordered a mighty wall to be built from the river Eden in Cumberland to the Tine in Northumberland, 80 miles in length; then returns to Gaul, and goes into Spain, and from thence returns to Rome - - - - -	XIV.	619
4429	3122	123	Adrian goes to Athens, and builds a bridge over the Cephissus, that had overflowed and greatly damaged the city of Eleusina, and from Athens he goes into the east	XIV.	619
4430	3123	124	Adrian returning from the east, comes through Cilicia, Lycia, Pamphylia, Cappadocia, Bithynia, and Phrygia, ordering temples, squares, and other publick buildings to be erected at his expence in most of the great cities through which he passed - - - - -	XIV.	619
4431	3124	125	Adrian having visited the islands in the Archipelago, from thence goes to Achaia, and winters at Athens, where he is initiated in the rites of Ceres and Proserpine, called the Elusinian mysteries - - - - -	XIV.	619
4432	3125	126	Adrian after presiding at the publick games at Athens, sailed to Sicily, and goes to the top of Mount Ætna to view the rising sun, said to exhibit the various colours of the rainbow, and then returns to Rome - - - - -	XIV.	620
4435	3128	129	The cities of Nicomedia, Cæsarea, and Nicæa in Bithynia, were overturned by an earthquake, but rebuilt at the empe-

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.
4435	3128	129	ror's expence, for which he was called the restorer of Bithynia	XIV.	620
			Adrian leaves Rome and goes into Africa, where upon his arrival, it rained plentifully, after a five years droughth; here and in all places he comes to he gains the affections of the people by his humanity and good-nature: Upon his return to Rome, Plotina dying, the emperor honours her with the greatest funeral solemnity, bewails her, composes verses in honour of her, and ranks her among the gods	XIV.	620
4436	3129	130	Adrian builds a most sumptuous temple at Rome in honour of the city and Venus, called the temple of Rome, and he changed the name of the annual feast kept for the foundation of Rome on the 21st of April from Palilia to Romana: When the temple of Rome was finished, Adrian sends the model of it to the famous architect Apollodorus to examine, who finding some just but great fault in it, spoke his mind freely, and was first banished and soon after put to death, for the liberty he took, though ordered so to do	XIX.	620
4435	3129	130	Adrian goes again through Grece into Asia, where he invited all the neighbouring kings to a conference, several of which come personally, and are treated with great magnificence. In Syria he went to the top of Mount Casius near Antioch to view the rising sun, and to sacrifice to Jupiter: From thence he goes into Palestine, Arabia, and Egypt	XIV.	622
4437	3130	131	Salvius Julianus , a very learned civilian, composed the several Roman edicts and laws then in force into one, called the Edictum perpetuum, which was to be a standing rule for the whole empire. Adrian orders Alexandria, the capital of Egypt, to be in part repaired, and in part rebuilt, and the privileges of the inhabitants to be restored, and increased the antient Museum in the palace, with the addition of a new one, endowed with large revenues, &c,	XIV.	623
4438	3131	132	Adrian in his passage through Libya Cyrenaica hunts and kills a mighty lion that had destroyed great numbers of the people. Antinus , a most beautiful youth that was pathic to Adrian , is drowned in the Nile; Adrian bewails his loss with great grief, gets him placed among the gods by the Greeks, and at Mantinea in Arcadia Adrian erected a magnificent temple to him, instituted solemn sports, and appointed priests to offer victims to him	XIV.	625
4441	3134	135	The Jazygians send ambassadors to Rome to renew their alliance with Adrian , who receives them very graciously, and complies with their request	XIX.	357
4441	3134	135	Adrian having formerly been made archon of Athens being now there assumes the habit peculiar to that office, celebrates the great festival of Bacchus, and distributes large quantities of corn and money among the populace, and embellishes the city with several stately buildings, particularly a library of wonderful structure, and consecrated by himself and finished the magnificent temple of Jupiter Olympus, begun 560 years before. One quarter of the city from him was called Adrianopolis: These matters ended, he returned towards the close of the year to Rome	XIV.	634
4441	3134	135	Pbarasmanes king of Ibeia being complained of by Vologeses king of Armenia to Adrian , he comes to Rome, with his wife, son, and a great retinue, to answer the complaints, making great presents to Adrian ; Adrian returns them with more magnificent ones, and after entertaining him very splendidly, sends him home with great honour	XIV.	635
4442	3135	136	Adrian having changed the name of Jerusalem into Ælia Capitolina, after the name of his own family, and erected a temple to Jupiter Capitolinus upon the spot where the Jewish temple formerly stood, and also planted a Roman colony in the city, so provoked the Jews, that they broke out into a rebellion under one Barcoquebas, or Cozeb, who pretended to be the Messiah, whom they chose for their king, and over-run all Judea and Syria, committing dreadful outrages, but particularly exerted their utmost cruelties against the Christians. Tinnius Rufus, commander in Judea, being reinforced, falls upon the rebellious Jews, and puts all to the sword, men, women and children, that fell into his hands; but the Jews growing formidable by the accession of other people to their party, Adrian sends Julius Severus governor of Britain against them. The Jews took Jerusalem, and massacred all the Romans settled there: Severus retakes it, and reduces it to ashes, and ploughs up the ground whereon the temple had stood. In the month of August in this year vast numbers of the Jews retired to Bether, a strong city a small distance from Jerusalem, where Severus besieged them so straitly that vast numbers were starved to death, and the rest taken a small time after. In a general battle Barcoquebas was taken prisoner, and his army utterly routed. In this war the Romans demolished 50 strong castles, 985 towns, and killed 580,000 men, besides an innumerable quantity that perished by famine, fire, and sickness: The Romans lost likewise abundance of their best troops: Those Jews that remained were sold for slaves; and the emperor and senate publish an edict, forbidding them for ever upon pain of death to set foot in Jerusalem, or any place from whence it might be seen; even those that embraced Christianity were also prohibited, which quite delivered the church from the servitude of the law, for till that time the bishops of Jerusalem had often been chose from among the circumcised Christians, who joined the observance of the law to that of the gospel

XIV. 630

4442 3135 136 Adrian now in the 90th year of his age, and in a very infirm state of health, names L. Aurelius Annus Ceionius Commodus Verus to be his successor, upon which largesses were given to the soldiers and common people, and publick shews exhibited. Verus is made prætor, and sent governor into Pannonia, which he discharged with great applause

XIV. 636

4442 3135 136 Adrian retires to Tibur (now called Tivoli) and builds a magnificent Villa, the ruins whereof are still to be seen. Here he falls into a flux, and lets loose his natural cruelty, which till now he had restrained, and ordered several illustrious persons to be arraigned and executed, and others to be privately murdered: Among the former was his brother-in-law Servianus, aged 19 years, and his great nephew Tuscus, aged 18 years

XIV. 637

4442 3135 136 Julius Severus after his reduction of the rebellious Jews was made governor of Bithynia, which office he discharged so well, that his name was honoured by the people 100 years after his death

XIV. 638

4443 3136 137 Adrian orders Jerusalem to be again rebuilt by the name of Ælia Capitolina, and peoples it partly by a Roman colony he sent thither, and partly by such of the neighbouring people as were not Jews

XIV. 630

4443 3136 137 Verus returns from Pannonia to Rome, and being greatly indisposed, takes a medicine, which proving too strong for him, kills him: he was buried with great pomp, and placed among the gods. This done, Adrian adopts Titus Antoninus.

Y. of Chrift.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of world.
			Antoninus. The empress Sabina dies, and Adrian places her among the gods. Adrian's illness increases with such acute pains, that he begs to be stabbed, poisoned, or any way dispatched; but can neither get it done by others, nor means to do it himself: He orders several persons to be put to death, whom Antoninus saves. Removing to Baïæ in Campania, he died, 10th of July 138, after he had reigned 20 years and 11 months wanting one day, being 62 years, 5 months, and 17 days old: His body was burnt at Puteoli, and his ashes carried to Rome, and deposited in the magnificent Mausoleum he had built for himself near the Tiber, and ranked among the gods, and divine honours decreed him	XIV.	642
4444	3	137	138 The church at Jerusalem being now composed only of converted Gentiles, or native Christians, St. Mark was appointed bishop there, which office he continued 18 years	XIV.	630
4444	3	137	138 The Dacians revolt, but are immediately reduced to their duty by the Romans	XIX.	372
4444	3	137	138 Lollius Urbicus , the Roman governor of Britain, having driven back the Barbarians that had broke into the Roman territories, built a new wall from Brampton in Cumberland to the river Esk	XVIII.	707
4444	3	137	138 Antoninus succeeds Adrian in the empire, whom the senate honour with various names of distinction, and his wife Faustina with that of Augusta . He enters and continues his reign with paying great respect to the senatorial and equestrian orders, lessens the tributes, promotes men of merit, favours men of learning, and builds many magnificent structures, &c.	XIV.	665
4445	3	138	139 Antoninus marries his daughter Annia Faustina to Marcus Aurelius , whom he created Cæsar, and though but quæstor, by request of the senate, named him for the next year's consul with himself	XIV.	667
4446	3	139	140 Antoninus finishes the famous aqueduct begun three years before by Adrian in New Athens in the island of Delos	XIV.	667
4447	3	140	141 Faustina the empress dies; and though she had lived but a lewd life, Antoninus honours her with divine worship, priests, temples, gold and silver statues, publick games, &c.	XIV.	668
4448	3	141	142 Antoninus institutes solemn sports at Puteoli in honour of Adrian , called Pia and Pialia , which were to be celebrated the 2d year in each Olympiad	XIV.	668
4451	3	144	143 Antoninus consecrates the temple he had built to the honour of Adrian , and upon this occasion distributes large sums of money among the populace	XIV.	669
4452	3	145	149 Disturbances being raised in Germany and Dacia, are composed by the care of the governors of those parts; and the Alani attempting to invade the Roman dominions, are drove back with great loss	XIV.	669
4453	3	146	147 This being the 900th year of Rome, Antoninus celebrates the secular games, with great pomp and magnificence	XIV.	669
4454	3	147	148 The Moors take up arms against the Romans, but are driven quite out of their own country, and forced to shelter themselves in the most distant parts of Libya, beyond Mount Atlas	XIV.	669
4459	3	151	152 Justin Martyr published his first Apology in behalf of the Christians, and presented it to the emperor, his adopted sons, and the senate; which had so good an effect, that the emperor Antoninus wrote to the governor of Asia in favour of them throughout that whole province	XIV.	679

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.			Vol.	Page.
4459	3152	153	The Tiber overflowing its banks, laid the lower parts of Rome under water; a great fire destroyed a large part of the city, and a famine starved a great number of its inhabitants: The same year the cities of Narbonne in Gaul, Antioch in Syria, and the great square at Carthage were in great part consumed by accidental fire, but soon restored to their former splendor by the care and at the expence of Antoninus		XIV.	671
4459	3152	153	L. Verus, one of Antoninus's adopted sons, being quæstor, exhibited publick shews on that occasion, presiding at the same, sitting between the emperor and M. Aurelius		XIV.	671
4462	3155	156	The cities of Cos and Rhodes, with several others in Lycia and Caria, were overturned by a violent earthquake; but by the munificence of Antoninus soon restored to their former splendor		XIV.	671
4467	3160	161	M. Aurelius Cæsar the 3d time, and L. Verus the 2d, are this year's consuls at Rome, during whose consulates the emperor is taken ill of a violent fever at Lorium, one of his country seats, and dies 7th of March, aged 73 years, 5 months, and 16 days, having reigned 22 years, 7 months, and 26 days, having first confirmed the adoption of M. Aurelius, and ordered the golden image of fortune to be removed out of his own chamber into that of Aurelius's, in the presence of the two captains of the prætorian guards: He left his paternal estate to his daughter, and legacies to all his friends and domesticks: He died universally lamented, and was honoured with the utmost funeral pomp, and buried with Adrian in his magnificent Mausoleum; both Aurelius and Verus pronounced a funeral oration for him; the senate deified him, built him a temple, and appointed him priests, sacrifices, and annual sports		XIV.	672
4467	3160	161	Upon the death of Antoninus, M. Aurelius takes Lucius Verus partner with him in the sovereignty; so that now Rome was governed by two emperors: Lucius acts subordinately to Aurelius, and both with great unanimity and gentleness		XV.	6
4468	3161	162	A dreadful inundation of the Tiber overthrows many private and some publick buildings, carries away a great number of cattle and people, and lays the country for a great distance under water; this was followed by earthquakes, conflagrations in several provinces, and a general infection in the air, and a famine in Rome, which the two emperors took great care to supply with corn, &c. from distant places, at their own expence, &c.		XV.	7
4468	3161	162	Commotions and revolts being in Britain, the emperor Aurelius sends Calpurnius Agricola thither, who soon quieted and brought them to subjection		XVIII.	708
4468	3161	162	The Alani breaking into Media, at that time subject to the Parthians. committed great devastations; but being bribed by Vologeses II. with large sums of money to return home, Vologeses fell unexpectedly upon Armenia, and drove out Sohemus, the king the Romans had set up, and cut the Roman legions all off to a man, under the command of Severinus, a Gaul, governor of Cappadocia, who came to the assistance of Sohemus, and then invaded Syria, and defeated with great slaughter Attilius Cornelianus, governor of that province, and advanced to Antioch, putting all the Romans and their favourers to the sword, upon account that Antoninus had not returned the golden throne formerly taken from the Parthians, and promised to be restored by Adrian: Upon this the emperor Verus comes into Syria, drives out the Parthians, and sends Statius Priscus into Armenia; and Cassius and Martius Verus into Parthia. Priscus drove the Parthians out of Armenia in one campaign, though with great loss of his own men. Cassius in several encounters with Vologeses, though he had an army of 400,000 men, in four years time reduced all the provinces that had submitted to Trajan, having in the last decisive battle at Europa in Syria, on the Euphrates, killed him 370,000 men, with the loss only of two Romans; he took Seleucia, and burnt and plundered Babylon and Ctesiphon, with the stately palaces of the Parthian monarchs, and struck terror into the most distant provinces. Having thus put an end to the war, in his return he lost above half of his men by sickness and famine, the emperor Verus remaining all the while at Antioch, or Daphne, wallowing in pleasures and debaucheries, and in his return to Italy carried the plague with him, that destroyed a vast number of his own men, and many more of the Italians, &c.

4469 3162 163 Sohemus king of Armenia is restored to his kingdom by the wise and prudent management of Martius Verus the Roman general, under the protection of the Romans, to whom he paid tribute

XI. 69

4470 3163 164 The Roman emperor Aurelius sends his daughter Lucilla into Syria, to be married to his colleague in the empire, Lucius Verus, then at Antioch, attended by many noble personages

XV. 9

4471 3164 165 Cassius the Roman general having universally subdued Vologeses, comes to Seleucia, where the city immediately submits, and opens its gates, but Cassius orders the inhabitants to the number of 400,000 to be put to the sword, and the city to be utterly demolished

XV. 10

4471 3164 165 The Marcomans and Romans having been at war many years, now terminate all differences, and conclude a peace

XV. 10

4472 3165 166 The two emperors, M. Aurelius and Lucius Verus, triumph at Rome upon account of the great conquests obtained over Vologeses, &c. and by the senate are surnamed Parthicus. L. Verus begs that the title of Cæsar might be conferred on the two sons of Aurelius, viz. Commodus and Annianus Verus, which was accordingly done the 12th of October

XIX. 346

4473 3166 167 Many German nations having revolted from the Romans, both the emperors go with great armies against them, upon whose approach the Germans are so terrified, that they repassed the Danube, and put the ringleaders of the revolt to death, and beg for peace

XV. 11

4475 3168 169 The Germans having again renewed the war, and committed great ravages, laid waste provinces, and defeated Vindex the Roman general, and cut both him and most of his troops to pieces, both emperors leave Rome, and repair in the depth of winter to Aquileia, but are forced to retire upon account of the plague's raging there vehemently; in their return L. Verus was taken with an apoplectic fit, and died; he is carried to Rome, and interred with great funeral pomp in the Mausoleum of Adrian

XV. 13

4476 3169 170 The Romans and Germans engage with incredible fury, but at last the Romans are put to flight with the loss of 20,000 men; upon which the Marcomans enter Italy, and make dreadful devastations. The plague having much weakened

XV. 13

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.			Vol.	Page.
			weakened the Romans, they are forced to admit the slaves, gladiators, and banditti into the army; and to raise money Aurelius sells the furniture of his palace, melts his gold and silver images, &c. The emperor marries his daughter Lucilla, widow of Verus, to Claudius Pompeianus, a knight of great fame for his wisdom, and integrity. This year the emperor's son Annius Verus Cæsar dies at Palestrina, in the 7th year of his age		XV.	17
4476	3169	170	M. Aurelius drives the Vandals (who were a part of the Goths originally, but thus called from the word Vandelen, a wanderer, they roving from place to place in great numbers to find a better country than their own,) out of Pannonia, where they had settled, pursues them to the Danube, and cuts many of them to pieces as they attempted to cross that river		XIX.	193
4476	3169	170	The emperor again going against the Germans (over whom he obtained several victories) leaves his son Commodus under the care of Pitholaus, his chief chamberlain at Rome, ordering him to employ no other physician (if he should want one) than Galen, who now resided there		XV.	17
4476	3169	170	The Egyptians revolt, and kill many Romans and their friends, but by the address and management of Cassius are reduced. The Moors invade Spain, and commit horrid devastations, but are at last subdued by the several lieutenants of the provinces		XV.	19
4477	3170	171	The emperor Aurelius having gained several victories over the Germans, is stiled Germanicus, and so is his son Commodus		XV.	21
4480	3173	174	Aurelius and his army being blocked up among impassable mountains by the Germans, are ready to perish for thirst, and are miraculously relieved by a violent storm of thunder, lightning and rain, obtained by the prayers of the Christian soldiers in the Melitine legion; whereby instead of being conquered he became conqueror; as a reward for which the emperor soon after enacted a law, that those who accused a Christian upon account of religion should be severely punished		XV.	24
4481	3174	175	The emperor leaves 20,000 men in the country of the Marcomans and Quadi, which so harass them, that they resolve to quit their native country and settle some where else; but being prevented by the emperor, and reduced by famine, the Quadi send ambassadors to sue for peace, and with them 13,000 prisoners they had taken, which was granted them; but they soon broke it, and deposed their king Furtius for opposing them, and set up one Ariogeses in his room; which Aurelius so resented, that though they offered to set 50,000 prisoners they had taken at liberty, if he would conclude a peace and confirm Ariogeses, both which he refused, and set a price upon the head of Ariogeses; they being joined by several other nations, a general battle is fought, wherein the Germans are entirely overthrown, and Ariogeses taken prisoner, upon which they offer to accept of peace upon such terms as the emperor thought fit to grant them, which put an end to this destructive war		XV.	26
4481	3174	175	Cassius the famous Roman general that had reduced the Parthians, &c. revolts, and sets up for emperor in the east, and is joined by a great number of soldiers and neighbouring princes: M. Aurelius sets out to go against him, but receives word that he was killed and soon after has his head brought to him, and so for this time ended the war in the east		XV.	33

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Chrif.
4481	3174	175	Aurelius goes into the east, and takes his wife Fauftina and his son Commodus with him, and made his son-in-law Pompeianus consul: Fauftina dies at Halala , a village at the foot of Mount Taurus , said to be a very vicious woman, yet he honoured her by placing her among the gods, &c. and built a city, and put a colony in the place where she died, calling it Faustinopolis , and erected a temple in it to her honour	XV.	37
4482	3175	176	Aurelius arriving in the east, pardons all that had joined Cassius except the inhabitants of Antioch , who had been more than ordinarily zealous for Cassius ; he deprived them of their privileges, suppressed their publick assemblies, and took their shews from them, but soon after forgave them, and restored to them all he had taken from them; and then going into Egypt , he not only forgave, but added several privileges to Alexandria ; from hence he went to Smyrna , and then to Athens , where his beneficence was greatly displayed by establishing publick professors, with large salaries, in all sciences, and then returned to Italy , and on the 23d of December he and his son Commodus entered Rome in triumph	XV.	38
4483	3176	177	Aurelius Commodus Cæsar (the emperor's son) and Quintillus being consuls, the emperor forgave all debts due to himself and the treasury, and gave a large sum to the Smyrnians to rebuild their city, which had lately been destroyed by an earthquake	XV.	38
4484	7177	178	Aurelius marries his son Commodus to Crispina , the daughter of Bruttius Præfens , and then marches with his son Commodus against the Marcomanni the 5th of August	XV.	39
4485	3178	179	The Romans under the command of Paternus engage several revolted nations of the Germans , and intirely defeat them	XV.	39
4486	3179	180	The emperor M. Aurelius dies at Sirmium , now Sirmich , in Sclavonia , of the plague, that had been in Italy for several years past, the 17th of March , aged 58 years, 10 months, and 22 days, having reigned nineteen years and ten days, universally lamented, and his ashes were deposited in Adrian's Mausoleum ; he was immediately ranked among the gods, a temple erected, and priests appointed, and whoever had not some statue or image of Aurelius was esteemed a sacrilegious person	XV.	40
4486	3179	180	Commodus succeeds his father in the Roman empire , being the first emperor born in his father's reign, and the second that succeeded his father in the empire; he is commonly called L. Ælius Aurelius Commodus , and sometimes Commodus Antoninus , and though educated with great care by his father, yet proved a most lewd, cruel and wicked tyrant; he grants the Quadi and Marcomanni peace, and of other nations he purchased peace, &c. to return to Rome , where he is met by the senate with the highest marks of honour; he was, after visiting the capitol and other temples, the 22d of October conducted to the palace	XV.	55
4490	3183	184	Ulpius Marcellus , governor in Britain , drives the Caledonians , or Scots , out of the Roman province in Britain , where they had committed horrid ravages, and cut off a Roman army , and so settles all things quiet again	XVIII.	708
4490	3183	184	Commodus discards all his father's friends and counsellors, and employs only his debauched companions, or their friends, whereby he gains the hatred of all his subjects by means of the cruelties and hardships put upon them by

Y. of Christ.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

his debauched officers : His sister Lucilla, with several great men, conspire to kill him ; but not succeeding, they are put to death. The empress Crispina, for imitating her husband's debaucheries, is first banished, and afterwards murdered in the island Capreae. Four consulars of great note are falsely accused and put to death this year, and the ruling consuls banished

XV. 58

4492 3185 186 While Commodus was assisting at the Capitoline sports, a person dressed like a cynic philosopher told the emperor, that Perennis (his great favourite and prime minister) and his children were plotting his death : Perennis seized him as a madman, but burnt him alive : Soon after the matter was plainly discovered, and Perennis, his wife, sister, and two sons were put to death ; but the emperor being in great fear changed the captain of his guards almost daily

XV. 60

4493 3186 187 Maternus, a common soldier among the Romans, having deserted, is joined by many more and the banditti ; at last, being very numerous, he over-run and plundered a great part of Gaul and Spain : Pescennius Niger with a proper force is sent against him, and brought him into great straits ; upon which Maternus divides his army into many small parties, and sends them privately into different parts of Italy with a view to kill the emperor at the annual feast of the mother of the gods, and to seize the empire : They all arrive at Rome undiscovered, and mix with the emperor's guards ; but being betrayed by some of their own party, Maternus was seized and executed, which put an end to the whole affair. A dreadful plague broke out that lasted three years, and which, in Rome only, frequently carried off 2000 in a day

XV. 61

4494 3187 188 Commodus gave out that he was going to Africa, and therefore extorted large sums to defray his expences, and suffered the people to offer up solemn vows for his safe return, but staid in Rome or its neighbourhood, squandering all the money away in debauchery

XV. 62

4494 3187 188 Great part of the capitol, a famous library, and several contiguous buildings in Rome were destroyed this year by lightning ; some say it destroyed whole quarters of the city, and therein several libraries. At the same time a dreadful famine was in Rome, occasioned by Cleander the emperor's favourite's buying up all the corn, &c. to ingratiate himself with the soldiers and people by distributing it among them gratis, and so get to be chose emperor ; but being universally hated for his cruelty and tyranny, the people rose against him, and could not be appeased till the emperor cut off his head, and sent it to them, which they treated with all the insults possible, and murdered his wife, children, and friends, with the utmost fury

XV. 63

4495 3188 189 Pertinax is recalled from being governor of Britain, at his own request, and charged with the care of providing the city with corn, &c. instead of Dionysius Papirius, who was put to death, and all his accomplices, for concurring in the monopolizing thereof to the publick detriment

XV. 63

4496 3189 190 Commodus being now a sixth time in the consulate, and being jealous of every body upon account of the several plots that had been discovered against him, he abandoned himself to bloodshed and cruelty without controul, putting

Y. of Chrif.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

to death. Petronius Mamertinus his brother-in-law, Antoninus his son, Annia Faufina, (cousin germain to M. Aurelius) Sulpicius Crassus, proconful of Asia, and six confulars, besides many more of lesser rank, in one day, and all who were related to Avidius Crassus to be burnt alive

XV.

64

4497 3190 191 The magnificent temple of peace built at Rome by Vespasian, wherein he put all the riches he brought from the temple of Jerusalem, is burnt by lightning; it was used as a common repository for the rich to lodge their jewels, &c. in, and for the merchants to house their spices and rich drugs brought from Egypt, Africa, &c. the fire spreading, consumed many other stately and common buildings with the temple of Vesta, and good part of the palace

XV.

65

4498 3191 192 The Romans are defeated by the Saracens, for the first time mentioned in history

XV.

65

4498 3191 192 Severus, who commanded in Illyricum, and Nonius Marcus, another general, aspiring at the sovereignty, Commodus appointed Clodius Albinus governor of Britain, and in a letter wrote to him in his own hand, allowed him to take the name of Cæsar, and the ornaments peculiar to that dignity, in case any disturbance arose, but he refused them. Commodus gives himself up to all manner of folly, acting among the players, changing the names of the months, all which the senate indulge him in, and comply with; but having communicated to his beloved Marcia and the two captains of his guards, that he would have the two consuls elect for the ensuing year murdered, and that he would be consul himself, and would march the next morning from the school of the gladiators, in their dress, attended only by that set of men, and not from the palace, like a magistrate, &c. Marcia gave him poison, but that not working effectually quick enough, his favourite Narcissus strangled him the last night of the year, being the 31st of December 192, aged 31 years and 4 months, having reigned 12 years, 9 months, and 14 days, in a palace that stood on Mount Cælius. It was given out, that he died of an apoplexy; the senate immediately assembled, declared him a publick enemy, loaded him with curses, ordered his statues to be thrown down, his name to be razed out of all publick inscriptions, and demanded his body that it might be dragged through the streets and thrown into the Tiber

XV.

68

4499 3192 193 Pertinax is prevailed with to accept the empire, but the prætorian guards murmur, and on the 28th of March following 300 of them went to the palace armed, and murdered him, after he had reigned only 87 days; Septimius Severus succeeded him in the empire, and took the name also of Pertinax, and punished with great severity all those who were concerned in the murder of the late Pertinax, and disbanded the prætorian guards, gave the deceased prince great funeral honours, ranked him among the gods, and appointed his son to be his chief priest; the day of his accession was annually celebrated with the Circensian games, and his birth-day with other sports for many years after

XV.

79

4499 3192 193 The soldiers cutting off the head of Pertinax, set it up, and proclaimed the empire to the best bidder. Flavius Sulpicianus, father-in-law to Pertinax, and Didius Julianus bid against against one another; at last Julianus bid 6250 drachma's a man; to be immediately paid down, and was proclaimed by the whole camp, and at their request appointed Flavius Genialis and Tullius Crispinus commanders of the prætorian guards, and takes himself the title of Commodus; after the usual ceremonies the prætorian guards accompanied him in battle array to the senate; the people made no opposition, but gave no sign of joy or approbation; the senate acknowledge him, and next morning he receives them very graciously, when he went to the capitol, the people cursed him, and openly threw stones at him: While this was doing at Rome, Percennius Niger, governor of Syria, revolted, and is declared emperor in the east. Severus was declared emperor in Illyricum, and sends the title of Cæsar to Albinus governor in Britain, and promised to adopt him; Albinus takes the title, cloathed with all the badges of his new authority, at the head of his army; the senate declare Severus an enemy to his country, and all his soldiers likewise, if they did not forsake him by a certain time. Julianus prepares to receive Severus, fortifies the palace, ordered Marcia and Lætus (authors of the death of Commodus) to be murdered; and hired abundance of assassins to murder Severus, caused an incredible number of children to be butchered to mingle their blood with magick rites. Severus comes to Ravenna, takes the city and the fleet riding there. Severus is declared partner with Julianus in the empire by the senate; Severus rejects the offer, and cuts Crispinus, captain of the prætorian guards, who brought it, to pieces. Julianus writes to Pompeianus, son-in-law to M. Aurelius, to take him in a partner in the empire, but he refuses. The troops Julianus sent to guard the passes of the Apennine mountains go over to Severus, and the guards also revolt from him who set him up; upon which he retires into the palace, and the senate meet, depose him, and sentence him to death, declaring Severus emperor, and bestow divine honours upon Pertinax. Julianus was beheaded, when he had reigned two months and six days, 100 persons of distinction go to meet and congratulate Severus in the name of the senate, &c. Severus severely punished all who had any hand in the death of Pertinax, and ordered the soldiers of the prætorian guards to meet him unarmed, when he degraded and banished them 100 miles from Rome. Severus entered Rome attended with all his troops under arms, and the prætorian standards reversed. At the gate he dismounted, and put on the senatorial robe, and marched on foot, attended by the senators in their robes, with crowns of laurel on their heads, he wearing the same, being cloathed in white, the streets strowed with flowers, and the windows adorned with tapestry; after visiting the capitol, and the usual temples, he retired to the palace; but the soldiers quartering in temples, porticoes, &c. spread all over the city, and commit great disorders; when Severus went next day to the senate, the soldiers with a dreadful cry demand of the senate the like sum that was paid to the troops of Augustus; the emperor could not pacify them without promising them 250 drachma's a man in part of 2500. Severus promises the senate to govern with equity, gentleness, &c. the senate confers all the titles belonging to the imperial dignity on him, and invest him with the tribunial and proconsular power, and make him high pontiff, &c. He begs the senate to confirm the title of Cæsar to Clodius Albinus, gave large sums among the soldiery, and enrolled the late emperor Pertinax among the gods, with extraordinary pomp, &c. put to death, &c. all the friends and adherents of the late deposed and murdered Julianus, and chose four times as many guards as those he had deposed. Severus married his two daughters to Probus and Aetius, and gave them both consular dignity. Having settled all things in Rome, he goes against Niger in the east; Niger having made himself master of all Greece, Macedonia, and Thrace, offers to take Severus a partner with him in the empire.

XV. 98

Æmilianus, general of Niger's troops, is engaged by the generals of Severus, defeated, and afterwards taken in Cyzicus and killed. Niger and Candidus, one of the generals of Severus, engage with great fury, but at last Niger is forced to fly beyond the Straights of Mount Taurus. Severus offers Niger his life and safety if he would lay down his arms; but being diverted by Aurelianus, whose daughters were betrothed to his sons, retired to Antioch. Laodicea and Tyre declaring for Severus, Niger sends a body of Moors, who pillaged their cities, put the inhabitants to the sword, and set fire to the houses. Severus and Niger engage again, on the very spot where Alexander the Great beat Darius, near the city of Issus, called Pylæ Ciliciæ, where Niger is entirely routed with the loss of 20,000 men: Niger retires to Antioch, and from thence was flying to Parthia, but was overtaken and beheaded; Severus caused his head to be first shewn to the Byzantines, and then sent to Rome. Severus punishes with extream rigour all those who had sided with Niger, so that a prodigious number of all ranks were put to death, and many banished, and their estates confiscated.

XV. 100

Severus, at the entreaty of his eldest son, restores the city of Antioch to all the privileges he had taken from it upon account of espousing the cause of Niger, and obliged all the cities that had furnished Niger with money, to give him four times as much as they had given Niger.

XV. 101

Severus takes Byzantium, after a siege of three years, the Byzantines being forced to surrender after having in part devoured one another: The magistrates and soldiers were all put to death; the city, the most wealthy, large, strong and magnificent, reduced to ashes; the inhabitants stripped of all their effects, and sold for slaves, and the walls razed.

XV. 103

Severus writes to Albinus governor of Britain a very complementary letter, professing great friendship, &c. but orders the messengers to stab or poison him; but he discovering the plot, declares himself emperor, and comes into Gaul, where Albinus is joined by many great men, both Gauls and Spaniards. Severus hastens into Gaul, and at Viminacum declares Bassianus his eldest son Cæsar, and calls him M. Aurelius Antoninus. Albinus defeats the troops of Severus: The senate declares Albinus a publick enemy. One Numerianus, who kept a grammar school in Rome, goes into Gaul, pretends to be a senator endowed with power to raise troops for Severus, does so, and

Y. of world	Y. of hood	Y. of Christ			Page.
				gains some advantages over Albinus: Severus sends him a commission at large; he forms an army, and defeats Albinus, and takes a great sum of money, which he delivers to Severus, who offers him great honours, which he refuses, and only accepts a small pension, and lives retired on it the remaining part of his life.	XV. 105
4503	3196	197	Severus going to Lions, where Albinus was; Albinus defeats one of his parties; then they both engage with their whole strength, amounting to 150,000 men; they both fought with incredible fury, but at last Albinus's men were routed with great slaughter, and were followed into Lions by the conqueror, who plundered and reduced it to ashes, and Albinus killed himself; Severus triumphed over the dead carcass, &c. sent his head to Rome, where it was set up on the Forum at the end of a long pole: At first Severus pardoned his wife and children, but soon after massacred them and all his family, friends, and relations of both sexes, and most of the great men of Gaul and Spain underwent the same fate, so that Severus amassed immense riches by their estates which he confiscated: He soon conquered all the cities that had held out, and divided Britain into four provinces. Upon his return to Rome he massacred 42 senators of the highest rank, and a vast number of the common people, pretending they were friends to Albinus.		XV. 107
4504	3197	189	Vologeses III. king of Parthia, having sided with Niger against Severus, as soon as Severus had gratified his revenge at Rome he goes against Parthia, and besieges Vologeses in Ctesiphon, his metropolis, where, after a gallant resistance, the city was at last taken by assault; the king's treasures, wives and children, were taken by the emperor, but Vologeses escaped; the city was plundered, the men all put to the sword, but the women and children to the number of 100,000 sold for slaves. Severus sends an account to the senate of his success; but as soon as Severus was gone, Vologeses returns with a great army, and recovered all that had been taken from him but Mesopotamia.		XI. 70
4504	3197	198	The Caledonians make dreadful havoc in the Roman territories in Britain, so that Lupus the governor was obliged to purchase peace of them for a large sum of money.		XV. 109
4504	3197	198	Caracalla, the emperor Severus's eldest son, is declared partner with him in the empire; and Geta, his second son, is intitled Cæsar.		XV. 109
4505	3198	199	Severus the Roman emperor in his return from Parthia attacks the city of Atræ, because Barsæmus the king thereof had assisted Niger, but is forced to quit the enterprise, after losing a great many men, and most of his warlike engines: After recruiting and refreshing his army he returns to the siege of Atræ again, but is again forced to raise the siege after 18 days, losing an incredible number of men, and most of his engines.		XV. 110
4506	3199	200	All such persons as gave Severus any umbrage for their birth or wealth he put to death, and confiscated their estates, under various pretences.		XV. 110
4507	3200	201	Severus gives the manly robe to his eldest son, then 14 years old, and names him consul for the year ensuing.		XV. 110
4508	3201	202	Severus and his son enter upon the consularship in Syria; he goes into Arabia, and thence into Palestine, and remits the taxes he had imposed for the people's adhering to Niger, and publishes an edict forbidding under the severest penalties

Severus

Y. of Christ.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of
world.

4517 3210

211 Severus growing old and infirm, the Mæatæ and Caledonians revolt, upon which he sends Caracalla with the whole army against them, who puts to the sword all he meets with, and then strives to debauch both officers and soldiers with a design to depose his father, who soon after died naturally at York, on the 4th of February, aged 65 years, 9 months, and 25 days, having reigned 17 years, 8 months, and 3 days; his body was burnt at York, and his ashes carried in a golden urn to Rome, and deposited in Adrian's Mausoleum; soon after he was ranked among the gods with the usual ceremonies

XV. 121

4517 3210

211 Caracalla and Geta, by the will of Severus, succeeded him jointly in the empire; but Caracalla would fain have set his brother aside; he went against the Caledonians and Mæatians, and concluded a treaty with them, withdrew his men from the forts erected in their country, and restored the lands his father had taken from them, discharged Papinian the captain of the guards, causes Castor, his father's chamberlain and chief favourite, to be put to death, and sent assassins into Italy to murder his wife Plautilla, and his uncle Plautius, whither they had been banished 7 years before; likewise his father's physicians for refusing to poison him, and all those who strove to reconcile him to his brother; as the brothers came from Britain to Rome, Caracalla endeavoured to murder Geta, which occasioned them for the future to march with their separate guards, lodge in separate houses, &c. They were received with great pomp at Rome, but their private animosities rose so high, that a separation of the empire was proposed, but frustrated by their mother Julia. Caracalla at the feast of Saturn in the close of the year again attempted to murder Geta, which occasioned much bloodshed

XV. 126

4518 3211

212 Caracalla finding Geta so well taken care of, that he could not get him dispatched either by poison or by force, pretends to be reconciled to him, and invites him to an interview in his mother's chamber; Geta goes unarmed, but as soon as he was in the room he was stabbed and murdered in his mother's arms, who was also wounded: Caracalla runs as if frightened to the army, returns thanks to the gods for having escaped from the conspiracy, bestows 2500 drachma's a man, and doubles their pay, by which means he secured all the soldiers to him, who saluted him sole emperor. Next day he goes to the senate, attended by his guards, and accuses his murdered brother with a design to kill him, buries his brother with great pomp, and gets the senate to rank him among the gods, with the usual solemnities; notwithstanding which he massacred all Geta's friends and domesticks, to the number of 20,000, and punished with death the bare mention of his name, and ordered the money coined with his name to be melted, and the public inscriptions to be erased. He likewise put to death Papinian, the greatest lawyer Rome ever bred, and his son the quæstor; and a daughter of the emperor M. Aurelius, for weeping for Geta; Septimius Severus Afer, his first cousin; Pompeianus, grandson of M. Aurelius; Helvicus Pertinax, son of the emperor Pertinax; and some of the vestal virgins were also put to death: He universally loaded the people with exorbitant taxes, and at Rome caused vast

Y. of Chrif.
Y. of
Noon.
Y. of
world.

numbers of them to be put to death, sometimes for diversion, and sometimes for revenge; he shewed the utmost contempt for the senate, and intirely neglected the administration of justice, raised the meanest persons to the highest stations, and was himself ruled and the empire controuled by two of his favourite slaves, setting all things to sale, offices, provinces, publick revenues, publick justice, and the lives both of the innocent and guilty

XV. 131

4519 3212 213 Caracalla finding himself generally hated in Rome, goes into Gaul, orders the proconsul of Narbonne to be put to death, and made dreadful havock of the people, ordering the very physicians who had recovered him from a dangerous malady to be put to death as soon as he was well

XV. 131

4520 3213 214 Caracalla ordered Gaiobomar, king of the Quadians, to be treacherously murdered, and all the young men that were with him, which he often boasted of as a work of great merit, but for what is not mentioned

XIX. 350

4520 3213 214 Caracalla having taken some German women prisoners, asked them, whether he should put them to death or sell them for slaves? they chose death; but he selling them, they destroyed themselves and children. He was forced to buy peace at a dear rate of these people, which reduced him so low as to force him to coin false money

XV. 132

4520 3213 214 The Alemans made their first appearance being a collection of people of various nations, whose chief seat or country was in the present country of Wirtemberg. Caracalla made war upon them, and defeated them, and then made peace with them

XIX. 321

4521 3214 215 Caracalla the Roman emperor quarrels with the Goths

XV. 133

4521 3214 215 Caracalla leaves Rome, and goes into Asia, and offers up prayers and sacrifices to Æsculapius at Pergamus, to be cured of his diseases, but went away unanswered to Ilium, and visits the tomb of Achilles, and pays great honours to his memory, and then goes into Macedon, appearing in the garb and using the customs of each place he came to

XV. 133

4522 3215 216 Caracalla (now at Nicomedia) goes to Antioch, whither inviting the kings of Osrhoene and Armenia, causes them unjustly to be imprisoned; the Armenians resented the affront, and overthrew Theocritus the Roman general with great slaughter, and preserved their freedom. After which Caracalla went to Alexandria, and made dreadful havock of the people for lampooning him, ordering his troops to enter into the houses in the night-time, and kill all they met without distinction, and continued the slaughter all the following day, stripped the city of all its privileges, suppressed the body of learned men, and ordered all strangers to depart, and stopt the communication of the streets by building high walls guarded by soldiers

XV. 135

4522 3215 216 Caracalla demands the daughter of Artabanes king of Parthia in marriage, which being agreed to, Caracalla goes under the pretence of celebrating the nuptials, and is very splendidly received where-ever he came; Artabanes and his nobility going out unarmed to meet him, Caracalla orders his troops to fall upon them, which they do, and make a most terrible slaughter, few escaping. Artabanes raises a very large army, invades Syria, and puts all to fire and sword: Macrinus, the captain of the

Y. of Chrif.
Y. of
A.D.
Y. of
world.

- 4523 3216 217 Caracalla the Roman emperor is stabbed by one Martialis, an exempt in the army, by the instigation of Macrinus, the captain of his guards, on the 8th of April, as he was going from Edeffa to Carrhæ to visit a temple of the moon, aged 29 years and four months, having reigned six years, two months, and four days, and Opilius Macrinus is declared emperor, who gives the soldiers large sums, and makes them larger promises: After proclaiming a free pardon for all accused of treason, he took the names of Severus and Aurelius, orders the body of Caracalla to be burnt with the usual solemnity, and sent his ashes in an urn to his mother Julia at Antioch, who starved herself to death. The senate orders all the gold and silver statues of Caracalla to be melted down, and his inscription to be erased, annulled his acts, and declared his memory infamous: They declare Macrinus emperor, rank his family among the patricians, proclaim his son Cæsar, and his wife Nonia Celsa Augusta.
- 4524 3217 218 Macrinus having by his extream severity exasperated the soldiers near Emesa against him, they declared Heliogabalus, cousin to Caracalla, emperor, a youth 13 years old, by the name of M. Aurelius Antoninus. Macrinus sends Julianus from Antioch against them, who is betrayed and beheaded, and many of his soldiers go over to the revolters. Macrinus promises the soldiers 5000 drachma's a piece, and pays 1000 down, and writes to the senate, who declares Heliogabalus a publick enemy. Heliogabalus being greatly strengthened by an accession of more troops, goes to attack Macrinus at Antioch, where after a very obstinate battle, Macrinus left his men and fled, when what was left also joined Heliogabalus, and Macrinus and his son were taken and put to death. Heliogabalus enters Antioch, and writes to the senate, acquainting them with the death of Macrinus, &c. promises to conform to the institutions of Augustus and M. Aurelius, and do nothing without their consent; they agree, and confirm his titles, &c. who though so young proved the greatest monster of cruelty and profligateness that ever lived; and though he reigned but four years, he married and divorced six wives.
- 4525 3218 219 Artabanes king of Parthia having lost the flower of his army in the war with the Romans, &c. Artaxerxes (a person of a mean birth, but a good soldier) spirits up his countrymen, who were tributaries to Artabanes, to take this opportunity to free themselves: They revolt, and Artaxerxes becomes their leader, who engages Artabanes for three days together, and at last the Parthians were routed, and most of Artabanes's troops were cut off in their flight, and himself taken prisoner, and soon after put to death: Thus the Parthians, who had commanded the Persians 475 years, became tributaries to the Persians, and Artaxerxes became king of Persia and Parthia, &c.
- 4525 3218 219 Heliogabalus is consul for the first time, and leaves the east, and enters Rome with great pomp, and is received with

XI.

71

XV.

142

XV. 150

XI.

72 universal joy by the senate and people : Next day he went to the senate, and set his grandmother Mæsa next the consuls, and ordered her name to be registered among the senators, and appointed her to vote with the rest, &c. and institutes a senate of women, and sets his mother Soæmia at the head of it, whose business was to regulate the dress of the Roman matrons, their ranks, dignities, visits, ceremonies, &c. belonging to the ladies

XV. 152

4627 3220 221 Heliogabalus adopts his cousin Alexianus, and declares him Cæsar, who took the names of Alexander and Severus, and striving to debauch his manners, Alexianus refused to comply, which he resents so much as to order him to be privately murdered; but being disappointed, he orders the senate to degrade him, and annul the adoption, and ordered assassins to murder him, but the guards espoused the young prince's cause, so that Heliogabalus had much ado to pacify them, and promises amendment, &c.

XV. 154

4528 3221 222 Heliogabalus pretends to be reconciled to Alexander; takes the consulship the third time, and chuses Alexander for his colleague. He orders all the senators to depart the city, then shut up Alexander in the palace, and gave out he was suddenly taken ill, and past recovery; the soldiers fly to arms, and demand a sight of Alexander; who being brought forth, was received with universal joy by all, which so vexed the emperor, that he ordered them all to be punished as traytors. Upon which an engagement happens between the partisans of the two princes, in which many were slain, and the Emperor himself, with his mother, had their heads cut off, and their bodies dragged about the city, and then thrown into the Tyber the 11th of March, aged about 18, having reigned 3 years, 9 months and 4 days. The senate order the name of Antoninus, which he had assumed, to be erased out of the public registers, &c. the soldiers proclaimed Alexander emperor, which was confirmed to him by the senate, who was born at Arca in Phenicia; his mother Mamæa is supposed to be a christian, or at least a favourer of them, and brought him up with great care, and when advanced to the empire, he would not suffer the christians to be persecuted; and caused the famous rule, Do as you would be done by, to be set over the gates of his palace, and on many other public edifices, and squared all his actions thereby; made strict enquiry into the conduct of the governors of the provinces, and banished those who had misbehaved, and supplied their places with the most virtuous and fit persons, &c. the like he did in all the public offices of the empire

XV. 158

4528 3221 222 The Romans pay the Goths an annual sum to keep them quiet

XIX. 120

4529 3222 223 The emperor married Sulpicia Memmia, daughter of Sulpicius, and grand-daughter of Catullus; the nuptials were celebrated with extraordinary pomp and magnificence

XV. 158

4532 3225 226 Artaxares having settled himself upon the Persian throne, and taken the name of King of Kings, and conceiving himself to have an undeniable title, as successor to Cyrus, to all the lesser Asia, commanded all the Roman Generals immediately to quit those provinces; raises a great army, and invades them; Alexander raises a great army to oppose him; and while he was at or near Mesopotamia, Artaxares sends 400 chosen men, richly dressed, of great stature and strength, and commissions them to say to

Y. of Chrit.
Y. of Aood.
Y. of
world.

the emperor, That the great king Artaxares commands the Romans and their prince to depart out of all Syria and Asia Minor, &c. the emperor orders the equipage of these embassadors to be taken from them, and sends them into Phrygia to cultivate farms there for their subsistence, and then advanced and recovered Mesopotamia without opposition. Artaxares meets Alexander with 120,000 horse, 10,000 heavy-arm'd soldiers, 1800 chariots armed with scythes, 700 elephants, and an innumerable number of foot; but is defeated by the Romans, and forced to retire into the heart of Persia. The Roman army was divided into three parts, one of which going into Armenia, grew so licentious, that they slew their general Flavius, and then became an easy prey to Artaxares

Xl. 79

4534 3227 228 The emperor Alexander having advanced Domitius Ulpianus, a famous civilian, to be captain of the Prætorian Guards, who endeavouring to restore the ancient discipline, so exasperated them, that they murdered him in the presence of the emperor; the principals were punished with death, and the most noted of the factious soldiers ignominiously discharged. The troops quartered in Mesopotamia mutinied, murdered their general, and revolted to the Persians. The troops in Syria proclaimed one Taurinus emperor, who refused the offer, and flying from among them, being pursued, threw himself into the Euphrates, and was drowned. At Rome the prætorian guards would have set up one Antoninus to be emperor, but he modestly withdrew, and never appeared in the city again; but one Ovinus Camillus, striving to ingratiate himself with the soldiers, &c. Alexander sends for him, and allows him to be his partner in the empire; who soon after resigned

XV. 159

4535 3228 229 The emperor Alexander and Dion Cassius are consuls at Rome this year, and punishes his favourite Vetronius with death, for abusing his power, and for extortion, &c.

XV. 163

4539 3232 233 Artaxerxes the Persian having made himself master of Mesopotamia, &c. Alexander goes against him, and defeats his mighty army, and returns to Rome, and triumphs with great magnificence

XV. 167

4540 3233 234 The Alemans, &c. having passed the Rhine, and seized the forts, built on the banks of that river, entered Gaul, and committed most horrid ravages

XIX. 321

4541 3234 235 The emperor Alexander going to suppress the mutinous Germans, one Maximinus, by nation a Goth, whom Alexander had raised to the command of a body of Pomeranians, conspires against him, murders his mother Mamæa, and what few soldiers the emperor had with him, and then they killed him in his tent, being twenty six years, five months, and nineteen days old, highly lamented of all, in the 14th year of his reign

XV. 171

4541 3234 235 Maximinus, upon the death of Alexander, was proclaimed emperor by his Pannonian troops; and the rest of the soldiers, seeing no other candidate, joined them, and took the usual oaths to him; upon which he declared his son Maximinus, Cæsar and prince of the Roman youth, and invested him with the tribunitial and proconsular power, and his colleague in the empire, which the senate confirmed. He was of very mean extract, but being eight foot six inches tall, and every way proportionable, his natural strength was so great as to tear up trees by the roots, crumble pebbles between his fingers, &c. could eat 60 lb. of flesh, and

and drink six gallons of wine at a meal, without being guilty of any excess. He displaced all the officers of Alexander, and put in all his own creatures, and murdered all those who knew him in, and had been instrumental in raising him from, his low condition. One Magnus, a consular, conspired with some of Alexander's soldiers, to expose him to the enemy, for which he massacred 4000 of them, without trial or examination: This exasperated the Osrhoenians so much, that they revolted, and proclaimed T. Quartinus emperor; but one Macedo murdered him in his tent, and carried his head to Maximinus, who caused the messenger to be executed, and all things were again quiet.

XV. 184

4541 3234 235 Maximinus enters Germany, at the head of a mighty army, and ravaged the country far and wide, burnt their habitations, carried off their cattle, and took an incredible number of prisoners, and killed abundance of people in several battles.

XIX. 322

4543 3236 237 Maximinus goes against the Dacians and Sarmatians, and gains several victories over them, and obliged them to submit to his own terms. At Rome being monstrously cruel, and insatiably avaricious, he encouraged informers, made plots, and condemned without distinction of age, or sex, or quality, all the accused, and seized the confiscated estates, &c.

XV. 185

4543 3236 237 The people revolt in Africa from Maximinus, and proclaim Gordianus, at that time their proconsul, emperor. Gordianus was descended of an illustrious family, was immensely rich, and extremely beloved both in Rome and in the provinces, many of which he had governed; but being upwards of 80 years of age, begs to be excused; but the people will take no denial, whereupon he associated his son (whose name was also Gordianus) with him in the empire. He goes to Carthage, and writes to the senate; they confirm him and his son, and publish a great reward for any one to murder Maximinus. The people pull down all his statues, uttering dreadful execrations against him and his son: The senate pass sentence upon all his friends, and the ministers of his cruelty, and many of them were massacred by the enraged populace at Rome, and in all the other provinces. It being reported the two Maximinus's were killed, the soldiers submit to the two Gordians. Maximinus hearing of these commotions, marches with his army out of Thrace into Italy: In the mean time Capelianus, governor of Mauritania, comes with a great army to Carthage, engages the young Gordianus, kills him, and cuts off all his army, and the old one upon the news thereof strangled himself, after having reigned one month and six days. Upon this the senate at Rome proclaims M. Clodius Pupienus Maximus and Decimus Caelius Balbinus joint emperors. Maximus marches against Maximinus, who threatened destruction to all opposers. Through rashness a quarrel was kindled between the soldiers and people at Rome, that occasioned the loss of abundance of lives, and the destruction of great part of the city by fire, plunder, &c.

XV. 196

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4544	3237	238	Maximinus's soldiers begin to mutiny, and he punishes the ringleaders with great severity, which exasperates the rest. He besieges Aquileia, which baffles all his attempts; he uses the officers ill, and at last the Albanian soldiers go resolutely at noon day, and kill both the Maximins in their tents, and cutting of their heads sent them to Rome, and threw their bodies into the river: They likewise killed Anolinus, his captain of the guards, and most of his friends, having reigned three years and some days, and the whole army submitted to Maximus and Balbinus, who reigned with great humanity, justice, gentleness, and impartiality	XV.	198
4544	3237	238	The prætorian guards pretending they had lost their privilege of nominating the emperors, come to the palace, seize and murder both the emperors, who had reigned only one year and two months, and proclaim young Gordian emperor, who was called the son of the senate, the child of the soldiery, and the darling of the People	XV.	202
4544	3237	238	The Carpi break into Mæsia, and having ravaged the province, utterly destroy the city of Istria, and return unmolested	XIX.	359
4544	3237	238	The Goths break into Mæsia, and lay the whole province waste, to revenge the death of the emperor Maximinus, who was of Gothick extraction, and had been murdered by his own soldiers	XIX.	120
4545	3238	239	Young Gordianus, now but 14 years old, is consul, and exhibits magnificent sports, to please the people	XV.	202
4546	3239	240	Sabinianus revolts in Africa, and proclaims himself emperor of Rome, &c. but by the diligence of the governor of Mauritania, Sabinianus is delivered up, and the uproar is quieted	XV.	202
4547	3240	241	The emperor is a second time consul, and marries Furia Sabina Tranquillina, daughter of Misitheus, a man of great learning, virtue, and integrity, by whose advice the emperor discharged and banished from the court Maurus and other great officers, who had abused their trust	XV.	203
4547	3240	241	A dreadful earthquake overturns a great many cities, and destroyed an infinite number of people	XV.	204
4548	3241	242	Artaxerxes king of Persia having now settled his empire, dies, and is succeed by his son Saporess, or Sapor, who makes war upon the Romans, by the advice of one Cyriades, son of a Roman general of that name, who having many followers, takes the cities of Antioch and Cæsarea Philippi; upon which Cyriades takes the name of Cæsar, and afterwards of emperor	XI.	81
4548	3241	242	The emperor sets out from Rome to quell the revolt in the east, and passing through Mæsia, the Goths and Sarmatians oppose him, and he defeats them, and forces them to abandon their conquests, and to return home, was overcome in a tumultuary engagement with the Alani, but was no great loser: Afterwards he overcame the Persians in several battles, recovered Nisibis and Carrhæ, and obliged Sapor to abandon the Roman dominions	XV.	206
4548	3241	242	The emperor Gordian obliges the Sarmatians and Goths to quit Mæsia, and retire beyond the Danube	XIX.	359
4549	3242	243	Misitheus , the emperor's father-in-law, dies, and is succeeded as captain of the guards, and commander in chief of all the army under the emperor, by one Philip who stirs up the soldiers to mutiny, and to depose Gordian, whom Philip ordered to be murdered in the furthest borders of Persia on the 14th of March, when he had reigned five years

World.	X. of Hood.	X. of Christ.		Vol.	Page
			and eight months, in the 19th year of his age, and Philip reigned in his stead, who was an Arabian by birth, of very mean extract, but is said to be the first Christian emperor: He wrote to the senate, who immediately confirmed his title; he took his son for his colleague, though but seven years old. Philip concludes a peace with the Persians, goes to Rome, and is received with all possible tokens of joy by the senate and people - - -	XV.	212
4550	3243	244	Philip is consul at Rome for the first time, and goes against the Carpi, who had invaded Mæsia, and laid waste great part of that province, overthrew them in two battles, and obliged them to repass the Danube, and sue for peace, which he granted them, and then returned to Rome	XV.	212
4551	3244	245	Ostrogotha king of the Goths besieges Marcianopolis, the capital of Mæsia; but for a large sum of money paid him by the inhabitants, he raises the siege and goes home	XIX.	121
4551	3244	245	The Gepidæ (a Gothic nation) under the conduct of their king Fastida, gain a complete victory over the Burgundians, and almost extirpate them - - -	XIX.	335
4552	3245	246	An accidental fire happens at Rome, whereby Pompey's theatre, and another building called Centum Columnæ, or the hundred pillars, were burnt - - -	XV.	213
4552	3245	246	Philip and his son were consuls this and the following year, whom he honoured with the title of Augustus, and invested him with the tribunitial power, to celebrate with the greater pomp the 1000th year of Rome, which begun the following year the 21st of April, 247. Extraordinary rejoicings were made at Rome, and publick shews exhibited for ten days together, &c. Philip published an edict, forbidding unnatural lust, under the severest penalties	XV.	213
4554	3247	248	The eastern provinces being grievously oppressed by Priscus their governor, revolt from Rome, and set up one Papinius for emperor; but he being killed, all was soon quiet again. Mæsia and Pannonia revolt, and set up one P. Carvilius Marinus; but being an unfit person, his own creatures murdered him soon after. Philip recalls his father-in-law, who was governor of Pannonia, and sends one Decius, a noble senator, against his will in his stead, and immediately the soldiers proclaimed Decius emperor - - -	XV.	214
4554	3247	248	Fastida enters the territories of the Goths, and begins to lay them waste; upon which king Ostrogotha returns out of Mæsia, meets Fastida, and gives him a complete overthrow - - -	XIX.	336
4555	3248	249	Philip goes against Decius; they engage; Philip is defeated, and flies to Verona, where he is killed, the 18th of June, having reigned 5 years, 3 months, and some days; upon hearing whereof the prætorian guards at Rome kill his son. The Christian religion was publicly preached during his reign. Decius is again proclaimed by the soldiery emperor, and soon after by the senate and people, by birth a Pannonian, of a good family, and an excellent prince; he declares his son Decius Cæsar, and raised the most cruel persecution against christianity the church ever underwent	XV.	217
4556	3249	250	The Goths under their king Cniva invested with 70000 men the city of Eusterium; but being gallantly repulsed by Gallus, they went to Nicopolis, another city of Lower Mæsia. Young Decius fell upon them, and cut 30000 of them to pieces, and obliged the rest to retire beyond mount Hæmus. Soon after being recruited, they came before Philippolis, against whom Decius marches again, but

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.
			Cniva falling upon him at unawares, the Romans were all cut to pieces, and Decius saved himself by flight, upon which Cniva took Philippopolis, and put 100,000 souls to the sword, ravaged Thrace and great part of Macedon. Priscus, who was governor in Macedon, joined the enemy, and proclaimed himself emperor	XIX.	121
4557	3250	251	The emperor and his son Decius are consuls this year, and gain several battles against the Goths; the senate declare Priscus a public enemy, who was slain; the emperor gives the senate leave to chuse a censor, who nominate Valerian to that office; the emperor again obtained great advantages over the Goths, who offered to resign all their booty, if he would let them return home; but he, bent upon utterly destroying them, goes against them with his whole army, and after a long and bloody battle, himself and son are both killed, and a great part of his army cut to pieces: upon which the remaining soldiers proclaimed Gallus emperor, which the senate confirmed. Gallus concludes a peace with the Goths, and agrees to pay them a yearly sum	XV.	221
4558	3251	252	Gallus and his son Volusianus are consuls, and revive the edicts of the late emperor against the Christians, which are put in execution with the utmost rigour; a terrible plague breaks out first in Ethiopia, and spread all over the Roman provinces, sweeping off prodigious numbers of people, as well at Rome as elsewhere. A great famine, general drought, and universal wars raged every where	XV.	222
4558	3251	252	The Goths, &c. break into Mesia and Pannonia; the Scythians over-run Asia and the Persians lay waste Syria, and take Antioch; Æmilianus , governor in Mesia, drove out the Barbarians with great loss, and forced them to quit the Roman dominions; upon which he proclaimed himself emperor, and marched directly into Italy. Gallus and his son meet him at Interamna, now Terni, about thirty-two miles from Rome, with a gallant army; but their own soldiers murder them both, after a reign of one year and six months, and go over to Æmilianus , whom the senate confirm; he was by birth a Moor, of very mean descent	XV.	223
4559	3252	253	The Goths enter the Roman territories; but being engaged by Æmilianus , they are defeated, and drove quite out of the empire	XIX.	122
4559	3252	253	Valerian's army, upon hearing of the death of Gallus, proclaim their own general emperor; upon which Valerian comes into Italy, where Æmilianus's army first killed him at Spoleum, after reigning four months, and then declared for Valerian, whom the senate confirmed with great joy, and gave the title of Cæsar to his son Gallienus. Valerian was nobly descended, and highly esteemed and greatly beloved by all degrees, for his many great virtues and excellent qualifications. He enacted many excellent laws, and greatly reformed the disorders of those times, and advanced only men of merit	XV.	225
4560	3253	254	Valerian and his son Gallienus are consuls this year, and he also takes Gallienus partner with him in the empire	XV.	225
4560	3253	254	The Franks or Sicambri, (for the first time) inhabitants of Westphalia, &c. make an irruption into Gaul, with a small army, and commit dreadful havock and ravages; but being opposed by Aurelian the tribune, he kills 700, takes 300, and sells them for slaves, and obliges the rest to quit their booty and retire	XIX.	242
4561	3254	255	Valerian and his son Gallienus are again consuls; Gallienus

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			obtains a great victory over the revolted Germans, and thereupon takes the title of Germanicus Maximus	XV.	226
4562	3255	256	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, but are entirely defeated by Gallienus, who for this victory was firrnamed Germanicus	XIX.	243
4562	3255	256	The Alemans suddenly break into Gaul and Italy; in Gaul they were defeated, and forced to repass the Rhine. In Italy they advanced as far as Milan, destroying all with fire and sword	XIX.	322
4562	3255	256	The Heruli first began to invade the empire, but are driven back by Gallienus	XIX.	342
4562	3255	256	The Goths, &c. again enter the empire, and lay it waste, &c.	XIX.	123
4563	3256	257	Aurelian , who was afterwards emperor, drove the Goths out of Illyricum with great slaughter, and took abundance of prisoners	XIX.	123
4563	3256	257	The eighth terrible persecution broke out against the Christians, that lasted three years, during which they suffered the most extravagant tortures and shameful deaths the malice of their enemies could invent	XV.	227
4563	3256	257	Aurelian drove the Goths out of Illyricum and Thrace, took an incredible number of them prisoners, and pursued them beyond the Danube; laid their country waste, and returned to Mesia loaded with spoil; and Probus was as successful against the Sarmatians and Quadi	XV.	227
4563	3256	257	The Quadians join the Samatians, and break into Illyricum, and ravage part of it, but are defeated by Probus	XIX.	351
4566	3259	260	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, and having ravaged the most wealthy provinces there, made an irruption into Italy	XIX.	244
4566	3259	260	The Quadians make a sudden irruption into Pannonia, but Regillianus, the Roman commander in that country, attacking them, gained several victories in one day	XIX.	351
4566	3259	260	Valerian having recovered great part of Syria, engages Sapo- res, is treacherously taken prisoner, and used in the most ignominious manner possible by Sapo- res, king of Persia; who, upon his death, flea'd him, dy'd his skin red, and exposed it in one of his temples	XI.	82
4566	3259	260	Ingenius proclaims himself emperor in Pannonia; Gallienus goes against him, overcomes him, and puts all the males in Mæsia to death for joining him. Upon which the troops of Ingenius, and the inhabitants that escaped, declared Q. Nonius Regillianus emperor, by birth a Dacian, and descended from king Decebalus; he gained considerable advantages over the Sarmatians, but his own men fearing Gallienus, revolted from and murdered him, and submitted to Gallienus. M. Cassius Labienus Posthumus, governor of Gaul, revolted; he was but of mean extract, but had excellent qualifications; for which the soldiers under his command proclaimed him emperor; he besieged Cologne, and took Sylvanus, governor of Saloninus, son of Gallienus, and his ward, and put them both to death. Gaul, Spain and Britain acknowledge him; he reigned seven years with so much gentleness and equity, that he was even adored; he drove the Germans out of Gaul, and freed it from all the calamities of war	XV.	232
4567	3260	261	Odenatus assisted by Balista engages the Persians, frequently defeats them, and among other spoils takes Sapo- res's wives prisoners. This greatly mortified him; so that entering Syria, he took Antioch, and levelled all the publick buildings of that stately city; then went into Cilicia, and plundered Tarsus the capital; goes into Cappadocia, and took Cesarea, and cut the inhabitants, to the number of 400,000

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ.
			to pieces, but Odenatus and Balista falling upon his rear, made a dreadful havock of them, and obliged Sapo- res to pay the Roman garrison in Edeffa all the Syrian money he had amassed for leave to return home	XV.	235
4567	3260	261	One Macrianus, by birth an Egyptian, by the assistance of Balista, is declared emperor. Egypt and other eastern countries submit to him at Alexandria. The contentions rose so high, that commerce and converse was stopped, and this introduced a general famine and terrible plague, so that the numerous inhabitants were soon reduced to a small number. Valens being sent as proconsul into Greece, took the title of emperor likewise. Macrianus sends Piso against him to suppress him; but Piso sets up for himself, and would be emperor likewise, but was soon killed by some of Valens's soldiers. Valens had the same fate a few days afterwards. The Illyrican soldiers set up Ma- nius Acilius Aureolus to be emperor. From Illyricum he goes into Italy, and made himself master of Milan. Gal- lienus goes against him, but is at length obliged to make a truce with him	XV.	238
4567	3260	261	The Scythians break into Bithynia, lay the country waste, level several cities with the ground, and carry off vast booty and a great number of captives. In Sicily great bands of robbers or banditti commit terrible ravages and devasta- tions, which cost a great deal of blood to suppress	XV.	239
4568	3261	262	Odenatus takes the name of king of Palmyra, and Gallienus made him commander of all the Roman troops in the east. Odenatus desirous to deliver Valerian from his shameful slavery, engages Sapo- res, defeats him, and forces him to take shelter in Ctesiphon, his metropolis, where he be- sieged him, and defeated the Persians several times who came to his relief, and took several of the great men pri- soners, which he sent to Gallienus	XV.	236
4568	3261	262	Many parts of the empire of Rome are overcast with thick clouds, and a great darkness for several days together, at- tended with a dreadful earthquake, and terrifying claps of thunder, the earth opening in many places, and swallow- ing up the people and their habitations, the sea swelling uncommonly, broke in upon the continent, and drowned whole cities, and the plague raged with great violence in Egypt, Greece and Rome, at which last place it swept off 5000 persons a day for some time	XV.	239
4568	3261	262	Macrianus comes from Syria towards Italy with 45000 men. Meets and engages Aureolus in Illyricum, and himself and son being killed, what soldiers were left left under Aureo- lus; and Odenatus has his son Quietus's head cut off; up- on which Balista assumes the title of emperor, and puts the inhabitants of Emesa almost all to the sword for re- fusing it to him. At the same time Æmilianus sets up for emperor in Egypt; seizes all the granaries in Alexan- dria, and causes a famine in several provinces	XV.	241
4568	3261	262	Gallienus and Aureolus go against Posthumius, who had now reigned undisturbed three years in Gaul, one while one party, and anon the other get the advantage, which spins out the war	XV.	241
4568	3261	262	The Goths ravage Asia, &c. and plunder the temple of Diana at Ephesus	XIX.	123
4569	3262	263	Gallienus goes into the east, and being admitted within the walls of Byzantium, contrary to his express oath and agreement, put the garrison and inhabitants to the

Y. of world	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page.
4569	3262	263	Gallienus sends Theodotus, a native of Egypt, against Æmilianus , who now reigned in Egypt. Theodotus overcomes him, and sent him prisoner to Rome, where he was strangled by the emperor's orders	XV.	242
4570	3263	264	Gallienus rewards Odenatus for his exploits against the Persians with the titles of Cæsar, Augustus, and Emperor, and took him in partner with him in the empire. Balista , who held some provinces in the east, was killed by a soldier sent by Odenatus for that purpose	XV.	242
4571	3264	265	The Isaurians revolting in Asia minor, chose C. Annius Trebellianus for their leader, who took the title of Augustus, coined money, and reigned sometime in Isauria and Cilicia, but was soon after defeated and killed in battle. But the Isaurians maintained their freedom and independency many years after	XV.	243
4571	3264	265	The Goths conquer Dacia, which had been made a Roman province by Trajan	XV.	244
4571	3264	265	The Franks having ravaged Gaul, pass into Spain, where they take by storm and plunder Tarraco, the principal city of many provinces	XIX.	374
4572	3265	266	Odenatus enters the Persian territories, and puts all to fire and sword, overcame Sapor in several battles, &c.	XIX.	244
4572	3265	266	The Goths over-run Asia minor, Lydia, Pontus, &c. ravage the country, destroy the houses, palaces, churches, temples, &c. and use the people cruelly, and carry off an immense booty, and vast numbers of captives	XV.	245
4573	3266	267	The Heruli in 500 ships pass from the Palus Mæotis to the Euxine sea, and landed at Byzantium and Chryopolis, where they were defeated by Venerianus ; but rallying they cross the Bosphorus, surprize and plunder Cyzicus, and great part of Asia, with the islands Lemnos and Scyros; then coming into Greece, they burn Athens, Corinth, Sparta, and Argos: In their retreat the Athenians fall upon and cut great numbers of them to pieces; but as the remainder returned homeward, they committed great ravages in Bæotia, Acarnania, Epirus, and Thrace. Gallienus overtakes and engages them in Illyricum, and overthrows them with great slaughter, and pursues them, cuts 3,000 to pieces as they attempted to cross the river, and took Naulobat their king prisoner	XIX.	183
4573	3266	267	Many of the Goths are drowned by the Roman fleet, as they were returning home with their prey out of Asia, &c.	XIX.	342
4573	3266	267	Odenatus and his eldest son Herod are slain, and his wife Zenobia reigns by the name of queen of the east, guardian of her four sons, whom she arrayed in purple garments and the other ensigns of royalty, acting independently, and instead of assisting the Roman army sent by Gallienus , opposed, defeated, and obliged it to return home	XV.	245
4573	3266	267	One Ælianus took the title of emperor at Mentz, who was soon overcome by Posthumius , who reduced the rebellious city, but restraining his men from plundering it, they mutiny, and kill him and his son, and Lollianus is proclaimed emperor in his stead, but was soon after murdered by his soldiers for the strictness of his discipline, upon whose death Victorinus (the partner of Posthumius) became master of	XV.	246

Y. of world.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			all Gaul, but was soon after murdered at Cologne, by one whose wife he had debauched, and the Gauls set up M. Aurelius Marius, who was killed the third day, and then the Gauls set up P. Pivesus Tetricus for emperor, then governor of Aquitain ; he was acknowledged in Spain, Gaul, and Britain	XV.	246
4574	3267	268	The Juthongians, or Alemans, that dwelt on the banks of the Rhine, break into Italy, and rove near Verona : Claudius marches against them, and in a pitched battle defeats them with great slaughter, and forces them to quit their booty, and save themselves by a precipitate flight	XIX.	323
4574	3267	268	The first of Claudius's reign the Sueves, &c. broke into Italy, and advanced as far as Verona ; but being there encountered by the emperor, were entirely defeated	XIX.	323
4574	3267	268	Aureolus being taken by Gallienus a partner with him in the empire, takes the opportunity of his being in the east to march towards Rome, with an intent to make himself sole emperor and depose Gallienus ; but Gallienus hearing of his march, flies after him, overtakes, engages, and defeats him, follows him to Milan, and besieges him, where Gallienus, the father and son, and Valerian and Egnatius his brothers were killed, upon which Claudius is proclaimed emperor ; the senate declared Gallienus a publick enemy, and ordered most of his friends and ministers to be thrown from the Tarpeian rock, and caused his name to be erased out of the publick inscriptions, having been one of the most wicked princes that ever reigned in Rome	XV.	249
4534	3267	268	The senate received Claudius's letter, acquainting them what had happened at Milan the 24th of March ; they assemble immediately, and confirm Claudius emperor, upon which he attacked Aureolus , and took him prisoner, whom the soldiers killed without orders ; then went against the Germans, and defeated them with incredible slaughter, and drove the remainder out of Italy, then returns to Rome, and spends the remaining part of the year in reforming the state	XV.	252
4575	3268	269	Zenobia overcomes Probus, a Roman commander in Egypt, and takes and destroys Bruchium, the citadel of Alexandria, upon which Probus kills himself	XV.	253
4575	3268	269	The Goths, Heruli, &c. invade the Roman empire with a great fleet and an army of 320,000 men, which are repulsed, beaten, and almost all destroyed by the emperor Claudius, partly by the sword, and partly by famine	XIX.	126
4576	3269	270	The Goths enter and ravage Pannonia, but being engaged by the emperor Aurelian, pass the Danube in the night, sue for peace, and have it granted	XIX.	129
4576	3269	270	Claudius prepares to go against Zenobia , but is prevented by a terrible plague that breaks out in his army, of which great part and himself die, at Sirmium in Pannonia, having reigned two years and one month ; the senate paid him divine honours, and hung up a golden shield, with his image on it, in the place of their assembly, to keep the good he had done always in their minds	XV.	254
4576	3269	270	The senate proclaim Quintillus the brother of Claudius emperor, then at Aquileia, who was murdered by his soldiers, after a reign of 17 days, for attempting to introduce too severe a discipline ; upon which the senate confirm the election of Aurelian, a native of Sirmium in Pannonia, of a mean descent, but admired for his great strength and courage		254
4576	3269	270	Aurelian comes to Rome, and by his great severity gets the dislike of both senate and people ; he began the repairing

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page
4576	3269	270	and extending the walls of the city to 50 miles in compass	XV.	257
4576	3269	270	The Alemans return into Italy, and commit great ravages, going as far as Placentia before Aurelian could come up with them : As the emperor approached they concealed themselves in the neighbouring woods, whence falling out upon him in the night, they obtained a complete victory ; but the emperor having got fresh recruits, overthrew them at Fano, and such as escaped this battle were entirely defeated in two others that quickly followed	XIX.	325
4577	3270	271	The Vandals passed the Danube, and having laid waste great part of Italy, the emperor Aurelian goes against them, engages and overcomes them, cuts many of them to pieces, and obliges the rest to sue for peace, which he readily grants them	XIX.	193
4578	3271	272	Aurelian having settled peace at Rome, Pannonia, and Italy, goes into the east against the famous Zenobia, said to be well versed in all the branches of polite literature and martial discipline, courageous, prudent, and wise, and a Jewess by religion. Aurelian in his way to Syria put several barbarous nations to flight, passed the Danube, engaged Caunabaud, a Gothic prince, and slew him and 5000 of his men ; then going to Tyana in Cappadocia, they shut their gates against him, which so enraged him, that he swore he would not leave a dog alive in it : After a resolute defence he took it, but ordered all the inhabitants to be saved, and all the dogs to be killed. From hence he went to Antioch, defeated Zenobia's troops in its neighbourhood, and entered the city in triumph. He again defeated Zenobia near Emesa, took the city, and followed her to Palmyra, where after a long siege and resolute defence, &c. the queen is taken prisoner, and all submit to Aurelian	XV.	261
4579	3272	273	Sapores king of Persia having been lately defeated by Aurelian emperor of Rome, upon his return home died, after having reigned 31 years, and was succeeded by Hormisdas, who having reigned one year and ten days, died in peace	XI.	85
4579	3272	273	As soon as Aurelian was gone, Palmyra revolts, sets up one Antiochus, and puts the Roman governor and garrison to the sword. Aurelian goes back into Syria, and came suddenly to Palmyra, put all the inhabitants, old and young, rich and poor, male and female to the sword. Soon after Egypt revolted, and set up one Firmus to be emperor, a native of Seleucia in Syria, but who had a vast estate in Egypt : Aurelian goes against and defeated him, stormed a strong hold to which he fled, took it and him, and ordered him to be publicly executed, and so settled peace in the east, and returned to Europe, and fighting with Tetricus near Chalon on the Marne, Tetricus surrendered himself, and his troops being cut to pieces, all Gaul was again united to the Roman empire ; and Aurelian returned to Rome, and had the most magnificent triumph ever seen	XV.	263
4579	3272	732	The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, but being attacked by the emperor Aurelian, they are driven back with great slaughter, &c.	XIX.	245
4580	3273	274	Hormisdas king of Persia dying, is succeeded by Varanes, who reigned over the Persians three years	IX.	85
4580	3273	274	Aurelian's triumph being over, he entertained the people with magnificent shews, &c. for many days, and used his royal and noble captives with humanity and generosity :

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.
				To Zenobia he gave lands in Tivoli, to maintain her suitable to her rank, and bestowed her daughters in marriage to the greatest men in Rome; he made Tetricus governor of Lucania, and paid him high honours, and allowed his son young Tetricus to remain among the senators, &c.	XV. 265
4580	3273	274	Aurelian staid this year at Rome, and spent it in regulating the state, and reforming abuses, and doing every thing that might endear him to the people, by forgiving debts, bestowing gifts, &c. He built a most magnificent temple to the sun, and embellished it with golden vessels weighing 1500 pounds weight. The moneyers having abused their trust, and coined a great deal of false money, to prevent their punishment bred a sedition, so that the emperor was forced to send his troops against them, who after killing 7000, were overcome, and punished with great severity. The emperor called in all the bad money, and exchanged it for good money		XV. 267
4580	3273	274	Aurelian withdraws his troops out of Dacia, and carries most of the natives with him, settling them in Mæsia and Dardania, and called their habitation New Dacia		XV. 268
4580	3273	274	The Roman emperor Aurelian retiring from Dacia, the Goths re-enter and settle there		XIX. 129
4580	3273	274	The emperor goes into Gaul, and allays a commotion there, and forced the Barbarians to repass the Danube that were come into Vindelicia, and rebuilt the city of Orleans; then going into Illyricum, gave the inhabitants of Dacia that were driven out by the Barbarians part of Mæsia and Dardania to settle in		XV. 268
4581	3274	275	Mnestheus , one of Aurelian 's freedmen and secretaries, being afraid of his master's resentment against his extortions, counterfeits his hand, wrote a roll of the names of the chief officers of the army, and told them he found it in the emperor's closet, and that they were all doomed to destruction; they believing it, fell upon and killed the emperor between Byzantium and Heraclea, at a place called Cænophrurium (or the New Castle) the 25th of January: Soon after his death the matter was discovered; upon which they threw Mnestheus to the wild beasts, built a magnificent tomb and temple to the murdered emperor in the place where he was killed, and the whole army solemnized his obsequies with the utmost pomp; all who were concerned in his death were cut to pieces on the spot, or executed by his successors: The senate ranked him among the gods, and all bewailed his loss		XV. 269
4581	3274	275	The army refer the choosing a successor to Aurelian to the senate, and they back again to the army, and so backwards and forwards three times, so that eight months was thus spun out when the senate chose Tacitus , on the 25th of September, which the soldiers and people joyfully confirm: Tacitus the historian being his kinsman, the emperor ordered ten copies of his works to be transcribed annually, and laid up in the publick libraries: The publick rejoicings being over, he went into Asia, and defeated several barbarous nations, and compelled them to return home		XV. 278
4581	3274	275	The Goths enter Pontus, Cappadocia, Galatia, and Cilicia, in order to settle in those countries; but the emperor Tacitus prevails upon some with money to return home, and those that staid behind were most of them cut to pieces by the emperor's brother Florianus , and the rest drove quite out of the empire		XIX. 130

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4582	3275	276	Tacitus dies at Tarsus in Cilicia : As he was preparing to return to Italy he was taken ill of a violent distemper, say some ; and killed by the soldiers, say others ; when he had reigned only six months. Florianus his brother proclaims himself emperor, and is acknowledged by all the provinces of Europe and Africa ; but Syria, Phœnicia, Palestine, and Egypt declared for Probus , who was commander of all the forces in the east. Probus comes against Florianus ; Florianus is killed by his own men, after he had reigned two months, and all proclaim Probus at Tarsus	XV.	278
4583	3276	277	Probus being acknowledged by the senate, and universally by all the provinces, he goes against the Franks and other German nations, who had broke into Gaul, and committed terrible ravages ; but proving successful in several battles, writes to the senate that nine kings lay prostrate at his feet, that he had cut 400,000 of the Barbarians to pieces, and incorporated 16,000 among his own troops, that he had recovered sixty great cities, and had intirely freed Gaul, and taken an immense spoil, &c.	XV.	280
4583	3276	277	Varanes the I. king of Persia dies, and is succeeded by Varanes II. who hearing the Roman emperor Probus was come into the east, sent ambassadors and presents to him, and to treat of peace : Probus received them very haughtily, and refused the presents, but granted them peace. In his return to Rome passing through Thrace, he gave lands to 100,000 Bastarnæ , a Scythian people, who ever afterwards remained faithful to him. When the Gepidæ , Juthungi , and Vandals revolted, at Rome he triumphed, and entertained the people with all manner of diversions	XI.	86
4583	3276	277	The Franks, &c. crossing the Rhine, entered Gaul, reduced about 70 of the principal cities to their subjection ; but Probus sending some of his best generals against them, gave them a fatal overthrow, and obliged them to quit their booty and return home, whither he followed them, crossing the Rhine after them, laid waste their territories far and near, and even built forts in their country, which so terrified them, that nine of their kings submitted to him, and sued for peace, which he granted	XIX.	245
4583	3276	277	Probus the Roman emperor having gained a complete victory over the Burgundians and Vandals, they sue for peace, which he grants, upon condition they returned the booty and prisoners they had taken	XIX.	308
4584	3277	278	Saturninus being declared emperor by the Egyptians, Probus sends some troops against him, who engage and put him to flight, and pursue, besiege, and take him by storm in Apamea, and put him and the whole garrison to the sword	XV.	283
4584	3277	278	The Goths enter Thrace, ravage the country, and get great booty ; but upon their hearing that the emperor Probus was coming against them, they retire precipitately and leave their plunder behind them	XIX.	130
4584	3277	278	The Sarmatians upon hearing of the emperor Probus 's marching against them, retire from Thrace, where they had committed great ravages, abandon the booty they had taken, and sue for peace, which he grants	XIX.	360
4586	3278	279	The emperor Probus grants the Sarmatians lands in Thrace, upon their promise of living quietly like other subjects of the empire	XIX.	336
4586	3279	280	Some of those Franks Probus had allotted lands to on the coasts of the Euxine sea having seized some ships, failed to

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4586	3279	280	Proculus and Bonofus revolt; Proculus was declared emperor at Cologne , and acknowledged in Narbonne-Gaul , Britain , and Spain : He defeated the Alemanni in several battles, but was overcome by Probus , who pursued him to the Franks , who surrendered him to Probus , who put him to death. Bonofus , by birth a Briton , and the son of a common school-master, having suffered through neglect the Germans to seize and burn the Roman fleet upon the Rhine , fearing to be punished, caused himself to be proclaimed emperor, and fought several battles with Probus , but being at last reduced to great straits, he killed himself	XIX.	246
4587	3280	281	Probus being every where at peace, employs the army in planting vineyards on the hills of Gaul , Pannonia , and Mæsia , and cutting a canal to drain the marshes of Sirmium into the sea, and in building and repairing several great cities	XV.	284
4588	3281	282	The army being enraged against Probus for obliging them to work, fall upon and kill him in Illyricum , having reigned five years and four months, greatly lamented by the senate and people for his extraordinary goodness, courage, and success. The army declared Carus , the then captain of the prætorian guards, emperor in his stead, whom the senate with some difficulty confirmed	XV.	285
4589	3282	283	The Quadians and Sarmatians break into Illyricum and Thrace , and after ravaging those provinces advanced towards Italy ; but Carus meeting them gave them a total overthrow, killed 16,000, and took 20,000 prisoners	XV.	286
4590	3283	284	The Roman emperor Carus goes against Varanes II. king of the Persians , enters Mesopotamia , and carries all before him, and advanced even beyond Ctesiphon , the capital of Persia ; but Carus dying soon after, having reigned one year and four months, and his son Numerianus being proclaimed emperor, was by his father-in-law privately murdered, having reigned only eight months: The Roman army proclaimed Dioclesian emperor, (at that time commander of the late emperor's body-guards) at Chalcedon , the 17th of September	XIX.	351
4591	3284	285	Dioclesian coming to Venitia , overcame and slew there one Julianus , governor of that province, who had caused himself to be declared emperor	XI.	88
4591	3284	285	Dioclesian and Carinus (the son of the late emperor Carus) have several battles in Illyricum for the empire; at last Carinus is killed, and Dioclesian universally acknowledged, after which he gained several advantages over the Germans and Britons	XV.	292
4592	3285	286	Dioclesian takes Maximian for his colleague and partner in the empire; then he goes into the east, to whom Varanes returned all Armenia , &c. and Maximian goes into Gaul , where he was very successful	XV.	293
4593	3286	287	Carausius , a Gaul by nation, goes into Britain , and is proclaimed emperor, and supports himself with great bravery about seven years, when he was murdered by one Allectus , who proclaimed himself emperor	XV.	294
4593	3286	287	The Franks join the Saxon pirates, and plunder the coasts of Gaul , and carry off an immense booty, and an incredible number of captives	XVIII.	712
				XIX.	247

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4593	3286	287	The Heruli join the Chaibons and Cavions, entered Gaul, and laid waste the provinces bordering on the Rhine; but Maximian gave them so fatal an overthrow, that there was scarce one left to carry home the news of their defeat	XIX.	343
4593	3286	287	The Burgundians, &c. break into Gaul afresh, with prodigious numbers of men; but a famine and plague happening among them, they became an easy prey to Maximian, Dioclesian's partner in the empire	XIX.	308
4594	3287	288	Maximian crossing the Rhine, entered Germany, and having laid the enemy's country waste all about, returned to Gaul with a prodigious booty, and a great number of captives.	XIX.	247
4595	3288	289	Maximian allots lands to a great number of Franks and Lætæ, who submitted to him, in the neighbourhood of Treves and Cambray, which was almost dispeopled by many battles and ravages	XIX.	247
4595	3288	289	The Roman emperor Dioclesian entirely destroys the Sarmatians, or Goths, and reunites Dacia to the empire	XIX.	130
4595	3288	289	Maximian sends a large fleet against Carausius, into Britain; Carausius beats and destroys the whole fleet and army, and is by treaty settled governor and emperor in Britain	XV.	296
4597	3290	291	A war broke out between the Burgundians and Alemans, in which the first got a great part of the latter's country	XIX.	308
4598	3291	292	The Persians broke into Mesopotamia, and threatened Syria: Five nations join and over-ran Asia; and M. Aurelius Julianus revolted in Italy, and proclaimed himself emperor; and Achilles did the same in Alexandria in Egypt. Upon this Dioclesian chose Maximius Galerius for his successor in the east; and Maximian Constantius, surnamed Chlorus, for his successor in the west, and endowed each with the title of Cæsar, and the tribunitial and proconsular power: They put away their then wives, and Constantius married Theodora the daughter of Maximian, and Galerius the daughter of Dioclesian	XV.	298
4598	3291	292	In this and some following years, Galerius orders several large forests to be grubbed up in Lower Pannonia, and a lake to be discharged into the sea, which drained a vast tract of land, which he formed into a new province, and named after his wife Valeria. The chief cities were Mursa, Aquincum, and Valeria	XV.	300
4598	3291	292	Maximian completely defeated the Quinquegentiani in Africa, and reduced Julianus in Italy to such straits, that he killed himself. Constantius besieges and takes Gessoriacum, or Boulogne, in Gaul, and incorporates all the garrison into his troops	XV.	301
4599	3291	292	Carausius emperor in Britain is murdered by Allectus, his bosom friend and prime minister, who was proclaimed emperor in his stead, and held it three years	XVIII.	713
4599	3292	293	Constantius cleared Batavia of the Franks that had settled there, and transplanted them with their wives and children into other parts of the empire that were destitute of inhabitants	XV.	301
4600	3293	294	Constantius repaired and rebuilt, at an immense charge, with its former lustre of temples, baths, &c. the famous city of Augustodunum, now called Autun, in Gaul, that in 269 had been destroyed by Tetricus	XV.	302
4600	3293	294	Varanes II. dying, is succeeded by his son Varanes III. who having conquered a people called the Segani, incorpo-

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			rated them into his monarchy, and was called Seganfaa, or Seganfah, but reigned only four months	XI.	88
4600	3293	294	Varanes III. dies, and is succeeded by Narfes , who over-run Mesopotamia, &c. but Galerius defeated him in two battles, upon which Galerius growing secure, Narfes falls unexpectedly upon him, and cut his army all to pieces, and recovers Mesopotamia, &c.	XI.	89
4601	3294	295	The Carpi are entirely reduced by Galerius , and by Dioclesian transplanted into Pannonia, and other parts of the empire	XV.	302
4602	3295	296	Constantius sends Asclepiodotus the captain of his guards with a fleet and an army into Britain; Alectus the then emperor there engages him, but is killed, and his army cut to pieces, so that Constantius again reunited Britain to the empire; and returning into Gaul, transplanted great numbers of Franks to people Amiens, Beauvois, Troies, and Langres, &c.	XV.	305
4602	3295	296	Dioclesian recovers Egypt from Achilleus , puts him and many others to death, and gave up Alexandria to be plundered by his soldiers for siding with him. The cities of Coptos and Bufiris in Thebais were utterly ruined for joining Achilleus	XV.	305
4603	3296	297	Maximianus goes into Africa, and cuts the armies of the rebellious Moors to pieces, and forced them to deliver up their strong holds, arms, &c. and transplanted them into other countries	XV.	305
4603	3296	297	Narfes king of Persia takes all Armenia from the Romans, defeats Galerius , and cuts off his army, himself escaping with great difficulty	XV.	306
4607	3300	301	Galerius comes against Narfes again, and defeats him, takes all his baggage, and papers, his queen, sisters, children, and concubines; upon which he resigns up five provinces to have peace and his queen again; but his sisters, children, and concubines, &c. are carried to grace a triumph at Rome; which vexed him so much, that he broke his heart and died with grief, and was succeeded by Midates , otherwise called Hormisdas the second	XI.	91
4607	3300	301	The Alemans invade Gaul, but Constantius Chlorus going against them, gained a complete victory, and cut off 60,000 of them	XIX.	325
4609	3302	303	The 10th and last general persecution of the Christians breaks out the 23d of February this year, which raged ten years with a fury not to be expressed by words	XV.	311
4609	3302	303	One Eugenius assumed the title of emperor at Seleucia in Syria, and went to Antioch, where the townsmen rose unanimously and cut him and his companions off to a man; notwithstanding which Dioclesian ordered the magistrates of Seleucia and Antioch to be put to death, as conspirators with Eugenius	XV.	312
4611	3304	305	Dioclesian at Nicomedia, and Maximian at Milan, resign the sovereignty the 1st of May to Galerius and Constantius , who take Severus and Maximin for their Cæsars. Gaul, Italy, Africa, Spain, and Britain, are appointed to be the immediate care of Constantius : Illyricum, Pannonia, Thrace, Macedon, Greece, Asia Minor, Egypt, Judea, Syria, and all the eastern provinces, to the care and government of Galerius . Constantius yielded to Severus Italy and Africa; and Galerius gave to Maximin Syria and Egypt	XV.	343

World	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4611	3304	305	The whole nation of the Carpi submit to the Romans, whom Dioclesian transplants into the Roman territories	XIX.	361
4612	3305	306	The Franks having passed the Rhine, and made an inroad into Gaul, while they were plundering the country Constantine fell upon them, cut great numbers of them to pieces, and took two of their kings prisoners, Ascaric and Gaius, whom he exposed to the wild beasts at the publick shews, &c.	XIX.	248
4612	3305	306	The Alemans make inroads into Gaul, which so provoked Constantine, that he exposed their kings that were taken prisoners to be devoured by the wild beasts, at his publick shews.	XIX.	325
4612	3305	306	Constantius goes into Britain, and overcomes the Picts and Caledonians, that made continual irruptions into Britain, and dies soon after at York, viz. the 25th of July, his son Constantine being with him, who succeeded him in the empire.	XVIII.	113
4612	3305	306	Severus reigning with intolerable cruelty in Rome and Africa, Maxentius, son of Maximian, the late resigned emperor, proclaims himself emperor, and was acknowledged by the Roman people. Maximian goes to Rome, and is a second time declared emperor by the senate, and made colleague with his son Maxentius	XV.	348
4613	3306	307	Severus is ordered to go against Maxentius by Galerius, but upon his arrival his army revolts, and goes over to Maximian their old master; upon which Severus flies towards Milan, but is pursued and besieged in Ravenna, where he surrenders to Maximian, who put him to death, and then married his daughter Fausta to Constantine, who thereupon took the name of Augustus	XV.	351
4613	3306	307	Galerius creates Licinius emperor, the 11th of November, a person of mean birth, but a very good military officer, covetous, tyrannical, cruel and vicious, so that now there were six emperors at one time of the Roman dominions	XV.	354
4614	3307	308	Maxentius the 20th of April declares himself and his son Romulus consuls, and gave himself the title of Cæsar and Emperor, refusing to acknowledge Galerius and his father Maximian who had been named for consuls	XV.	354
4614	3307	308	Sapores, or Sapor, II. is declared king while he is yet in his mother's womb	XI.	91
4615	3308	309	Maxentius having promoted his son Romulus to the consulship, who died soon after, he placed him among the gods, &c.	XV.	354
4615	3308	309	Maximian pretends a second time to lay down the purple, and retires to his son-in-law Constantine in Gaul, who entertains him with all imaginable respect; but some Franks revolting, he persuades Constantine to pursue them with a small part of his army, and while he was gone Maximian declares himself emperor a 3d time at Arles, and bribes Constantine's troops to revolt. Constantine returns unexpectedly, and forces Maximian to fly to Marseilles, where he is taken prisoner and forgiven. In Africa, Alexander, lieutenant of that province, is declared emperor with the usual ceremonies at Carthage, which he supported for three years	XV.	357
4616	3309	310	Maximian teazes his daughter Fausta, the wife of Constantine, to betray her husband Constantine, by leaving her chamber door open, &c. She tells her husband, who orders one of his eunuchs to lye in his bed; Maximian comes in the dark and kills the eunuch, crying out, Con-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page
			Constantine was dead, and he was emperor ; but finding himself mistaken, when his death was put to his choice, he chose to be hanged, which was accordingly performed	XV.	358
4616	3309	310	The Franks endeavour to cross the Rhine, and so penetrate into Gaul : Constantine attacks them, drives them back, and crossing the Rhine, destroys all before him ; and taking a vast multitude of captives, exposes them all to be devoured by the wild beasts	XIX.	248
4616	3309	310	The Alemans, &c. having passed the Rhine, laid the neighbouring provinces waste ; but Constantine marches against them, engages and defeats them, recovers the booty, and obliges them to repass the Rhine	XIX.	250
4617	3310	311	The emperor Galerius dies in the greatest torments, about the beginning of May, by degrees, and in a measure devoured by lice ; and being persuaded that this was a punishment for his cruelties to the Christians, revoked the decree, which revocation was signed by Valerius, Constantine, and Licinius, three of the emperors, and set up the 13th of April in Nicomedia, and his provinces were divided between Licinius and Maximin	XV.	361
4618	3311	312	Constantine coming to Autun, found the people heavily oppressed with taxes, first forgave what they owed, and abated 25 per cent. for the time to come	XV.	363
4618	3311	312	Maxentius sends Rufus and Zenus with an army into Africa, to depose Alexander : They engage, and Alexander's army is routed, and himself taken prisoner, and put to death, and with him all the men of birth and fortune that had sided with him, and laid Carthage in ashes : The same cruelties Maxentius committed at Rome, murdering the senators, debauching the ladies, and ruining the commonalty by the licentiousness of his soldiers, and the cruel extortions of his tax-gatherers	XV.	364
4618	3311	312	Maxentius having a desire to reign alone, quarrels with Constantine, who being inclined to favour Christianity, begs devoutly for a sign, and sees that of the cross in the heavens or sky, with this motto, In this conquer ; he makes some standards accordingly, and becomes himself, wife, and family, professors. He passes the Alps, and takes Segusium, now Susa, by storm, but won't permit it to be plundered, nor the people hurt : Then he meets, engages, and defeats Maxentius's army : All the cities between the Po and the Alps submit to him. Soon after he meets and engages Pompeianus, utterly defeats and kills him. Soon after he took Verona by storm, and made all the soldiers prisoners at discretion. Aquileia and Mutina surrendered : Then marching to Rome, Maxentius marches out against him ; they engage, and Constantine gets the victory : Maxentius flies, and crossing a bridge he had laid cross the Tiber, it broke, and he and many of his officers were drowned, the 29th of October. Constantine at the head of his army, entered Rome, carrying the head of Maxentius stuck upon a pole, where he governed with so much gentleness and justice, that the people wanted words to express their joy	XV.	374
4618	3311	312	An edict issued in November in the names of Constantine and Licinius, putting a stop to the great persecution that had raged for ten years past against the Christians : They sent it also to Maximin, who in complaisance published it likewise all over the east.	XV.	376

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
4619	3312	313	A Christian council for the regulating matters belonging to the church was held at Rome, in the apartment of the empress Fausta : Constantine builds a great number of Christian churches, and endows them	XV.	377
4619	3312	313	A terrible famine and plague breaks out in the east, which particularly fell on the eyes, and rendered abundance blind	XV.	381
4619	3312	313	Constantine and Licinius are consuls this year : Constantine goes from Rome to Milan, where he is met by Licinius , who marries his sister Constantia : Here they publish an edict in favour of the Christians. The Franks coming with a design to invade the Roman dominions, Constantine falls upon them, kills vast numbers, and follows them over the Rhine, laid waste their lands, burnt their habitations, and having taken a vast number captive, exposed them to be devoured by the wild beasts in the shews then exhibited to please the people. Africa having submitted, he grants great privileges to the Christians among them	XV.	382
4619	3312	313	Constantine assembles a council of Christian bishops this year at Rome, to consider about the doctrine and persons of Donatists	XV.	384
4619	3312	313	Maximin displeased with the good understanding between Licinius and Constantine , comes against Licinius , and takes Byzantium, and then Heraclea by storm. Licinius engages him, being told in a dream he should conquer if he became Christian : Most of Maximin's troops were cut to pieces, and the rest came over to Licinius . Maximin made his escape in the habit of a slave. Licinius going to Nicomedia, ordered solemn thanks to be given to the true God, and published the decree made by himself and Constantine in favour of the Christians : Then he pursued Maximin , who poisoned himself, which occasioned him to die a lingering, painful, miserable death, about the middle of August ; and so Licinius became master of all the east. Maximin was declared a publick enemy, his statues pulled down, his inscriptions erased, his wife drowned in the Orontes, his children and relations publickly executed, and likewise his ministers and favourites put to death : The sons of Galerius and Severus were also both put to death	XV.	387
4620	3313	314	Valeria , the widow of Galerius and daughter of Dioclesian , with her mother Prisca , being discovered at Theffalonica, were seized, executed, and thrown into the sea, by order of Licinius	XV.	388
4620	3313	314	Constantine publishes an edict, declaring all those free that Maxentius had condemned to slavery, ordering those who held them in captivity to set them free, upon the severest penalties	XV.	388
4620	3313	314	Constantine goes to Arles, and holds a christian council of all the bishops in the west, to suppress the Donatists	XV.	388
4620	3313	314	Licinius and Constantine quarrel, and engage near Cibalæ in Pannonia, where Constantine kills him 20,000 men, and Licinius flies to Sirmium, and from thence goes with his wife, children, and treasures into Dacia, where he raised Valens , one of his officers, to the dignity of Cæsar. Constantine pursues him into Thrace ; they engage upon the plains of Mardia, but neither side gaining the advantage, they conclude a peace, upon the condition that Valens should be deposed, and that Syria, Egypt, Lybia, Asia, Thrace, Mæsia, and the Lesser Scythia should remain in the possession of Licinius ; but Illyricum, Dardania,

Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
			Macedon, Greece, and Mæfia (now Servia) should be ceded to Constantine	XV.	390
621	33	14	315 Constantine and Licinius are consuls; Constantine abolishes the punishment of crucifixion; likewise he orders the receivers of his revenue to receive and educate all such children whose parents could not by reason of poverty bring them up: This law was engraved in brass, and hung up publicly in all the cities of Italy: He likewise forbids the Jews molesting those among them who should profess Christianity, and strictly forbids any not born so to become Jews.	XV.	390
4622	39	15	316 The empress Fausta is delivered of a son, the 13th of August, at Arles in Gaul. This year Constantine made a law, that all persons of whatever rank guilty of rapes, extortions, &c. should be tried by the governors of the provinces where they lived, and executed without appealing to Rome	XV.	391
4623	33	16	317 The emperors Licinius and Constantine create Crispus and Constantine , the sons of the emperor Constantine , and Licinius , the son of the emperor Licinius by Constantia , sister of Constantine , Cæsars	XV.	391
4623	33	16	317 August 7. Constantius , son of the emperor Constantine , by Fausta the sister of Maxentius , was born in the city of Sirmium in Illyricum	XIX.	392
4624	33	17	318 Constantine revives the old Roman law against parricides, comprehending therein not only the murder of a father or mother, but also of a son	XV.	392
4626	33	19	320 Constantine and his son Constantius are consuls, and abrogate the Papian and all other laws against celibacy: He forbids all married men to keep concubines, and orders judges to dispatch the causes of criminals, and jailors to use their prisoners well, upon pain of death. His son Crispus gains a victory over the Franks , and concluding a peace with them, returns to his father	XV.	393
4627	33	20	321 Crispus and Constantine , the emperor's sons, are consuls. The emperor forbids all sorts of work to be done on Sundays, and ordered Friday to be kept holy	XV.	394
4627	33	20	321 The Goths again invade the empire, and are overcome by the emperor Constantine	XIX.	131
4628	33	21	322 Constantine several times defeats the Sarmatians , kills their king Raufimodes , and takes vast numbers captive	XV.	394
4629	33	22	323 Constantine being busy at Thessalonica in building a port, the Goths enter Thrace and Mæfia , and commit dreadful ravages: Constantine goes against them, overthrows them with great slaughter, and pursues them into the dominions of Licinius ; which he resents so far, that both parties prepare for war, Constantine with 130,000 men and 2200 vessels; Licinius had 115,000 men and 350 gallies: They came to an engagement on the 3d of July near Adrianople , on the banks of the Hebrus , where Licinius had 33,000 men killed on the spot. Licinius with a small army flies to Byzantium , and the rest submit to Constantine , who pursued Licinius , and besieges him in Byzantium , from whence he withdrew to Chalcedon . Crispus engages Abantus , admiral of Licinius's fleet, and utterly defeated him, killing him 5000 men, and taking and destroying 130 ships, Abantus narrowly escaping. Constantine leaves Byzantium , and follows Licinius to Chalcedon , where, they conclude a peace, which Licinius presently breaks: Constantine goes against him again, engages, and kill him 25,000

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			men ; Licinius flies to Nicomedia ; Byzantium and Chalcedon submit to Constantine, who pursues Licinius, and besieges him in Nicomedia : Constantia, sister of Constantine, begs her husband's life, who yields up the sovereignty, and is soon after strangled by Constantine's orders	XV.	398
4630	3323	324	Constantine purges the east as fast as possible of idolatry and heathenism, and promoted Christianity with all his might	XV.	399
4631	3324	325	Constantine assembles the famous council at Nice, and assisted in it personally, where Arius, Eusebius of Nicomedia, Theognis of Nice, &c. were condemned to banishment	XV.	401
4631	3324	325	On the 25th of July Constantine celebrated the 20th year of his reign with extraordinary pomp, invited all the bishops that composed the council of Nice to an entertainment in his palace, and gave them large presents, distributed great sums to the poor, &c.	XV.	401
4632	3325	326	Constantine being at Rome, is ill-treated for his introducing Christianity, which he so resented, that he could never be prevailed upon to go there again	XV.	402
4632	3325	326	The empress Fausta envying Crispus, Constantine's eldest son by his former wife, accuses him with soliciting her to his bed, and aspiring at the empire, which so enraged his father, that he caused him to be put to death without being heard. Licinius, the son of the late emperor Licinius, was also put to death. Fausta was soon after discovered of falsely accusing Crispus, and of really prostituting herself with mean persons ; for which Constantine ordered her to be suffocated in the steam of a hot bath	XV.	403
4633	3326	327	The emperor Constantine in honour of his mother Helena, called the village of Depranum in Bithynia Helenopolis, and endowed it with all the privileges of a royal city. About this time she is said to discover the sepulchre and cross of our saviour. He also called a city in Palestine by the same name	XV.	404
4635	3328	329	On the 26th of September Constantine began to build the famous city of Constantinople ; and recalled from banishment the two Arian bishops, Eusebius and Theognis	XV.	405
4636	3329	330	Constantine dedicates his new city of Constantinople the 11th of May to the god of Martyrs, in which he built an incredible number of churches, erected crosses in all the squares and publick places, a most sumptuous palace, and other publick buildings, appointing a senate, and all other privileges as at Rome, &c. The solemnity lasted 40 days, during all which time he ordered an immense quantity of provisions to be daily distributed to the populace, and fixed his residence here, never returning to Rome again, which by degrees brought on the destruction of the empire	XV.	407
4638	3331	332	The Sarmatians notwithstanding the great assistance they had received from Constantine, as soon as he was gone, invade and ravage Mæsia and Thrace ; but Constantine returns suddenly, and cutting great numbers of them to pieces, forces the rest to accept of such terms as he thought fit to give them	XV.	408
4638	3331	332	The Goths again invade the empire, and are again beat by Constantine, who kills 100,000 of them	XIX.	133
4639	3332	333	Constantine creates his youngest son Constans Cæsar. Syria, Cilicia, and Thrace are grievously afflicted with the plague and famine, which sweep off great numbers of the people, a bushel of wheat being sold for 400 pieces of silver. Constantine sent to the bishop of Antioch 30,000 bushels

Y. of Christ.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of
world.

Vol.
Page.
XV. 409
XIX. 363
XV. 404
XV. 411
XV. 411
XV. 412
XV. 412
XI. 96
XV. 415

busbels of wheat, and a prodigious quantity of corn, oil, &c. to the other churches, to be divided among the widows, orphans, ecclesiasticks, &c.

4640 3333 334 The Sarmatians being fore oppressed by their enemies the Goths, arm all their slaves, by whose assistance they obtain a complete victory: But the slaves combining together, fall upon their masters, overcome them, and drive them out of their country, and seize it for themselves; upon which the emperor Constantine receives 300,000 of them, and incorporates some of them among his troops, and gave lands to others in divers distant places

4641 3334 335 The emperor Constantine consecrates the famous church of the resurrection at Jerusalem, which he built upon his mother's finding the sepulchre and cross of our saviour

4641 3334 335 Constantine celebrates the thirtieth year of his reign on the 25th of July, with extraordinary magnificence, in Constantinople, and assembles a council at Tyre, and another at Jerusalem, to reconcile the disturbances in the church: That at Tyre condemned and deposed Athanasius, bishop of Alexandria; and that at Jerusalem admitted Arius and his followers to the communion of the church. Constantine banished Athanasius, and three other bishops, who opposed Arianism, he himself being a great favourer of it

4641 3334 335 Constantine gives Gaul, Spain, and Britain to his eldest son; Asia, Syria, and Egypt to Constantius his second; Illyricum, Italy, and Africa to Constans his youngest son; Thrace, Macedon, and Achaia, to his nephew Dalmatius; and to his nephew king Annibalianus, Armenia minor, Pontus and Cappadocia, with the city of Cæsarea for his capital

4641 3334 335 One Calocerus proclaims himself emperor in Cyprus, and makes himself master of the whole island; but Dalmatius, Constantine's general, reduces the island to its duty, takes Calocerus prisoner, and condemns him to be burnt alive at Tarsus in Cilicia

4642 3335 336 The famous heresiarch Arius dies, and soon after Alexander bishop of Constantinople; to whom Paul succeeds, but was afterwards banished by Constantine into Pontus. This year Constantius, the emperor's second son, marries his cousin, daughter of Julius Constantius, his father's brother

4643 3336 337 Sapore king of Persia sends Constantine a memorial, and demands several provinces. Both sides provide for war; many battles were fought with various success, but at Singara Sapore lost his son, himself was wounded, and forced to retire with all his forces

4643 3336 337 The emperor Constantine falls ill, and is clothed in white, and baptized by Eusebius bishop of Nicomedia, and would not afterwards so much as see his purple robes, but spent his time in religious discourses with the bishops, or in pious meditations, &c. by himself before he died. He ordered Athanasius to be recalled from banishment, bequeathed revenues to the city of Rome and Constantinople, left his will in the hands of Arian, an ecclesiastic, to deliver to his son Constantius, and expired on Whitsunday the 22d of May, in the castle of Achyrona near Helenopolis in Bithynia, aged 63 years, two months, and 25 days, having reigned 32 years, 9 months, and 27 days, universally lamented by all degrees of people: His body, and purple robes, and diadem were put into a gold coffin, and carried to Constantinople

4643 3336 337 Notwithstanding Constantine's division of the empire between

Y. of world	Y. of Hood	Y. of Christ
			his three sons and two cousins, while living, and confirmation of it by his last will, all the soldiers and the senate of Rome unanimously proclaim the three sons only emperors, and leave out the two cousins, Dalmatius Cæsar and Annibalianus king of Pontus. The soldiers fly to arms, (by the instigation of Constantius, as it is supposed) and cut in pieces Julius Constantius, brother to the deceased emperor, Dalmatius Cæsar and Annibalianus, his two sons, Optatus, who had married Anastatia sister to the late emperor. five of his late nephews, and most of his ministers, and so reduced his numerous family to his three sons and two nephews, Gallus and Julian	XV.	432
4643	3336	337	One Antoninus, a Roman officer of great credit, revolted to Sapor, king of Persia, who received him with great honour, and by his advice besieges Amida, which after attacking 73 days, and losing 30,000 men, he took by storm; he hanged the officers, and sent the men into slavery. Then he goes into Mesopotamia, takes Singara, and demolishes it, &c.	XI.	98
4644	3337	338	The three brothers emperors meet in Pannonia, where they agree and divide the provinces allotted to Dalmatius and Annibalianus by the late emperor, among them	XV.	432
4645	3338	339	March 31, a law is published in the name of the three emperors, forbidding upon pain of death marriages between uncles and nieces, which had been before authorised by the senate, in favour of Claudius and Agrippina	XV.	433
4646	3339	340	Constantine desiring all or part of Italy, which his brother Constans refusing, he enters with a great army, and takes several places. Constans comes against him, draws him into an ambuscade, near Aquileia, and cuts both him and his army to pieces. Upon this the other brother Constantius yields all Constantine's dominions to Constans, thereby making him emperor of all the west	XV.	434
4647	3340	341	Many cities in the east were overturned by a violent and dreadful earthquake. This year a law was published in the name of the two emperors, forbidding all idolatrous worship. Constans ordered several temples to be demolished, with the celebrated altar of victory in the senate at Rome. Constantius rebuilt the city of Amida upon the Tigris in Mesopotamia	XV.	435
4647	3340	341	The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, and ravage the country every where, but are forced out by Constans	XIX.	250
4649	3342	343	August 27, Constantius declares ecclesiastics and their domestics exempt from all new impositions; and such whose poverty obliged them to work for a livelihood were freed from all customs	XV.	435
4650	3343	344	A violent earthquake intirely overthrew all the buildings, and swallowed up all the people of Neocesarea in Pontus, except the church and bishop's house and family	XV.	436
4651	3344	345	The city of Duras in Greece, with all its inhabitants, was swallowed up by an earthquake, and twelve cities in Campania were overturned	XV.	436
4653	3346	347	The council of Sardica was held, at which Athanasius and Osius assisted. A law was made this year that confirmed great privileges to the bishops and clergy, and to their wives, widows, children and domestics. Constantius builds a harbour at Seleucia, at an immense charge; and rebuilt the cities of Seleucia in Syria, and Antaradus in Phœnicia	XV.	436
4654	3347	348	Constans writes to his brother Constantius, to acquaint him, that unless he recalled from banishment those orthodox bishops he had deprived of their fees, he would restore them by force of arms; upon which Constantius recalled them. Constans sends Macarius and Paulus into Africa, with large sums to relieve the poor, and to endeavour to reconcile the Donatists to the church, which they very happily effected, to the great joy of both parties

XV. 437

4654 3347 348 The Persians having posted themselves in the neighbourhood of Singarus, a city of Mesopotamia, and fortified themselves in their camp; the Romans forced it. after great opposition, cut great numbers of the Persians to pieces, and forced the rest to fly, or took them prisoners, among whom was Sapor's son, whom they put to death, having first beat him with rods, and took the enemies camp, baggage and treasures

XV. 438

4655 3348 349 A terrible earthquake overturned a great part of the city of Berytus, which so frightened all those that had not embraced Christianity, that they came and were baptized

XV. 438

4656 3349 350 The Persians besiege Nisibis a third time, with a vast army and a great number of military engines: It was defended with all imaginable bravery by Lucilianus, father-in-law to Jovian, afterwards emperor; but the soldiers and people trusted more to the prayers of their bishop James, than in their own valour. The Persians stopped the river Mygdonus that run through the city, and laid the country round it under water, and at last stopping the river with a great wall, which by a mighty flush suddenly broke it down, and by the violence of the sudden gush of water, broke the city walls down, for the space of 100 cubits; but it was so well defended, that Sapor, after losing 20,000 men, many elephants, engines, &c. was forced to raise the siege, and in the transport of his rage put many of his officers and great men to death, for advising him to this war

XV. 440

4656 3349 350 Magnentius son of Magnus, a German, commander of some troops on the Rhine, conspires with Marcellinus, receiver of the revenues in Gaul: They invite all the officers to a feast in the city of Autun, where Magnentius puts on the purple, and is saluted the 18th of January with the title of Augustus. He immediately seized the imperial palace in Autun, and distributed what money he found there among the populace, and sends one Gaiso (a principal commander in the army) to murder Constans, who pursued and overtook him at Helena, a small village at the foot of the Pyrenees, and killed him there with many wounds, in the tenth year of his reign, a prince extremely devoted to promote the catholick faith, and suppress heresies, &c.

XV. 442

4656 3349 350 Before the death of Constans was published, Magnentius sent and murdered all such officers as he thought attached to the deceased prince's interest. Magnentius soon made himself master of all the countries beyond the Alps, Italy, Sicily, and Africa. Veteranio, general of the foot in Pannonia, caused himself to be saluted Augustus at Sirmium, the first of May; Constantius is said to confirm the title of emperor to him, and to send him the diadem. A third pretender starts up, one Flavius Popilius Nepotianus, son of Eutropia sister to Constantine the Great, who having assembled a number of gladiators, and persons of desperate fortunes, assumes the purple, and on the 3d of June presents himself before the gates of Rome. Anicetus, who commanded there for Magnentius, goes out against him: Nepotianus defeats.

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			defeats him, and soon after takes the city, and filled it with blood and slaughter. Maxentius sends his chief favourite Marcellinus against him: A bloody battle ensues, in which Nepotianus was killed, after a reign of 28 days. Marcellinus carries his head through all the streets of Rome upon a spear, and put all those to death who had declared for him, and commanded a general massacre of all those who were any ways related to Constantine	XV.	444
4656	3349	350	Maxentius and Veteranio agree to oppose Constantius , and send deputies to him to treat of peace, which he refuses, but upon his arrival at Sardica makes a separate peace with Veteranio , who joins him against Maxentius ; but the soldiers deposed Veteranio the 25th of December, who spent the remainder of his life in acts of devotion at Prusia in Bithynia , where Constantius made him an allowance suitable to his dignity	XV.	446
4657	3350	351	Constantius marries his sister Constantina to his cousin Gallus , creates him Cæsar , allotts him all the east, and Thrace and Constantinople , and sent him to Antioch to watch the Persians	XV.	447
4657	3350	351	Constantius stirs up the Franks and Saxons to attack Maxentius in Gaul , and sends them large sums of money and great quantities of arms for that purpose. Maxentius gives the title of Cæsar to his brother Decentius , and sends him into Gaul , where he engages the Barbarians , but is overthrown, and the country reduced to a deplorable condition	XV.	447
4657	3350	351	Constantius and Maxentius have divers encounters with various success. Sylvanus , with a large body of troops under his command, revolts to Constantius . Maxentius attacks and takes Sciscia by assault, and levelled it, laid the whole country waste along the Save , and then besieged Mursa , whither Constantius went and attacked him, cut off the greatest part of his army, and took and plundered his camp; but Magnentius got off, and retired into Italy	XV.	451
4658	3351	352	Constantius publishes an edict, empowering eunuchs to make wills: Then he goes into Italy , and masters all Aquileia , and goes into Pavia , where Magnentius obtained a victory over him, but soon after was obliged to surrender all the country bordering on the Po to Constantius , being deserted by his men in troops, who delivered up the places they garrisoned. Magnentius goes to Rome , and finding the people generally inclined to favour Constantius , put vast numbers of them to death, and then retired into Gaul , so that Constantius became master of Rome and all Italy by the beginning of November , and sent a powerful fleet to Africa and Carthage , which immediately submitted, as did Sicily and Spain , and Treves , and several other cities in Gaul . Magnentius offers to resign, but is refused an answer	XV.	452
4658	3351	352	Magnentius sends assassins into the east to murder Gallus Cæsar , who are discovered and put to death. The Jews in Palestine rise in the night, and cutting the throats of the soldiers, set up one Patricius for their prince	XV.	453
4659	3352	353	Constantius marries Eusebia , a native of Thessalonica , a lady highly commended for her chastity, and for the great care she took of the education of her children after her husband's decease: The emperor had so great an esteem for her, that in honour of her he made a new diocese, comprehending Bithynia , &c. and called it Pietas , the import of the word Eusebia	XV.	453

Y. of world.	Y. of Abod.	Y. of Christ.
4659	3352	353	Constantius engages Maxentius near Mons Seleucus in Gaul , and routs his army, who flies to Lions , where being apprized his soldiers intended to deliver him up, first with his own hand murdered his mother, his brother Desiderius , and many of his friends and relations, and then himself. Decentius Cæsar strangles himself, and Constantius pardons all the rest	XV.	457
4659	3352	353	Paulus Catena , a noted informer, is sent into Britain by Constantius , to make an inquiry after all those who had sided with Maxentius , and commits many cruelties by condemning the bravest and most innocent men, purposely to have a colourable pretence of sequestering their estates and confiscating their effects	XV.	458
4659	3352	353	Constantius summoned a council at Arles , where he shewed himself a great enemy to the orthodox, and particularly Athanasius and Paulinus . Gaul was terribly ravaged by the Barbarians and disbanded soldiers of Maxentius . At Rome the populace rose, and committed great disorders upon the account of the scarcity of provisions. In Asia the Isaurian robbers over-ran Lycaonia and Pamphilia , and besieged Seleucia , the capital of Isauria . The Saracens committed dreadful ravages in Mesopotamia ; and Gallus governed the east with intolerable pride and cruelty	XV.	459
4660	3353	354	Constantius sends one Domitian in the quality of præfect of the east, whom Gallus murdered, with Montius , then quæstor, and many others at Antioch , and threw their bodies into the Orontes	XV.	464
4660	3353	354	Gallus Cæsar having been invited into Italy by Constantius , goes, and upon his arrival at Petavium in Noricum , is arrested and carried to Flanona in Dalmatia , where he was put to death	XV.	467
4661	3354	355	The emperor Constantius publishes a law, forbidding the marriage of a brother or sister-in-law, and declaring the children of such marriages illegitimate; and another, ordaining bishops to be judged by bishops, and not by the civil magistrates. He summoned a council at Milan , and banished Liberius , bishop of Rome , into Thrace	XV.	469
4661	3354	355	Constantius gives the title of Cæsar to his cousin Julian , brother to Gallus , and makes him governor of Gaul , and marries him to his sister Helena , but sets spies over him	XV.	474
4661	3354	355	The Alemans attempted to break into Italy ; the emperor Constantius sends Arbetio with the flower of his army against them, who falling into an ambuscade, was defeated with great loss; but some of his officers engaging them a few days after, put them to flight	XIX.	325
4661	3354	355	The Franks joining with the Alemans and Saxons , cross the Rhine , take and pillage above 40 cities on the banks of that river, lay waste the neighbouring provinces, and carry off a prodigious number of captives and immense booty	XIX.	251
4661	3354	355	The Quadians break into Pannonia and Mæsia , and having pillaged both provinces, return with immense booty unmolested	XIX.	351
4662	3355	356	Constantius gains so many advantages over the Germans that they sue for peace, which he grants them. The empress Eusebia visits Rome , and is received with all imaginable respect. The emperor, to shew his zeal for Arianism , drives Athanasius from his seat at Alexandria , and puts Georgius an Arian in his place. This year he passed a law,

World.	X. of Noed.	X. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			condemning those to death who should sacrifice to, or worship idols; and sentenced many persons for being convicted of consulting the magicians, and published a law to have all magicians devoured by wild beasts
4662	3355	356	Constantius for the first time, with his wife Eusebia and his sister Helena, visit Rome, which he enters in a gilt chariot adorned with precious stones, attended by the senate and whole nobility: During his stay here he is presented by several cities with gold crowns of an extraordinary weight	XV.	478
4663	3356	357	Julian with 13,000 men marches against the Germans, consisting of 35,000, headed by seven kings, ten princes, and many great lords: He engages them near Strasbourg, put them to flight, and pursued them, and killed 8000 with the loss of only 247 men, and many of the Germans were drowned in the Rhine; by which victory Gaul was freed from the Barbarians	XV.	479
4663	3356	357	Constantius enacted a law dated the 3d of July, confiscating the effects of all those who should renounce the Christian, and embrace the Jewish religion; and by another, he obliged all senators to reside in or near Rome; and by a third he exempts all merchandizing ecclesiastics, their wives, children, and domestics, from taxes	XV.	483
4664	3357	358	Narjes , ambassador from Sapor king of Persia, comes with a letter, and presents it to the emperor, demanding those countries the Romans had taken from the Persians, calling himself King of Kings, Brother of the Sun and Moon, &c. The emperor sends ambassadors to Sapor to soften him, but he remains inflexible	XV.	485
4664	3357	358	August 28, a most dreadful earthquake was felt in Asia, Pontus, and Macedon, which greatly damaged 150 cities, and utterly ruined Nicomedia by overturning all the houses at once, and buried all its inhabitants under its ruins	XV.	486
4664	3357	358	Constantius publishes a law, declaring all magicians, astrologers, augurs, aruspices, and pretenders to the art of divination, enemies to mankind: and if any were found in the prince's court, they should be adjudged guilty of high-treason	XV.	489
4664	3357	358	The Quadians, &c. laid waste great part of Pannonia and Mæsia; but Constantius marching against them, they repass the Danube and return home, and the emperor after them, who besieging them, lays waste their country; they sue for peace, which is granted upon their setting at liberty their prisoners, and pledging hostages for their good behaviour	XIX.	352
4664	3357	358	The emperor Constantius having driven out the Limigantes, or slaves, that had seized upon the Sarmatians country, reinstates the Sarmatians	XIX.	364
4665	3358	359	Eusebius and Hypatius , brothers to the empress Eusebia, are consuls. Julian obliges several German nations to quit Gaul, and sue for peace	XV.	490
4665	3358	359	Constantius honours Constantinople with a præfect or governor, and makes Honoratus the first præfect	XV.	491
4665	3358	359	Julian passing the Rhine, unexpectedly advanced to the most distant parts of the country of the Alemans and Burgundians, destroying all with fire and sword; whereupon Macrianus and Hariobaldus , two of their kings, sue for peace, &c.	XIX.	328
4666	3359	360	Sapor entering Mesopotamia, summons's Reman and Busan, two strong forts, and the Romans that garisoned them

Y. of World.	Y. of Good.	Y. of Christ.
4666	3359	360
4667	3360	361
4667	3360	361
4667	3360	361
4667	3360	361
4668	3361	362
4668	3361	362

surrendered: Then he besieged Amida, which after a long and gallant defence was taken and razed, the chief officers crucified, and the soldiers and inhabitants put to the sword or carried into captivity

XV. 494

Constantius determining to have a very great army to go against Sapor king of Persia, sends into Britain and Gaul, to draught off the flower of those troops: When assembled at Paris they refused to go, and proclaim Julian emperor, which he declining, they threaten him with death if he does not immediately comply: He writes to the emperor an account of what had happened, and desires him to confirm his title, which he refuses. Julian goes against the Athuarii, (inhabitants of Cleves and Munster) laid their country waste, and cut many of them to pieces, and forced them to submit to such laws as he thought fit. His wife Helena, sister of Constantius, dies

XV. 504

Julian pretends a great respect for the Christians, though he had privately abjured that religion, and sacrificed to the old Roman gods. He goes against the Allemans, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forced the rest to accept his terms. Then he made himself master of all Italy and Sicily, which without striking a blow submitted to him

XV. 506

Constantius returns from the east to go against Julian, comes to Mopsucrene on the borders of Cilicia, where he is taken so very ill, that he can go no further, and dies the 3d of November, in the 45th year of his age, suspected to be poisoned by means of Julian: Just before he died he was baptized by Euzoius, an Arian bishop, he being a great favourer of that sect: Upon which Julian enters Constantinople the 11th of December following, where he ordered Constantius to be buried in the church of the apostles, with the utmost solemnity, and is himself proclaimed emperor by the senate, &c.

XV. 508

Just before the death of Constantius, Julian renounced the Christian religion in Illyricum, opened the temples of the gods, offered sacrifices according to the antient rites, and exhorted all persons to follow his example

XV. 529

Julian erects a court of justice at Chalcedon, to enquire into the conduct of the ministers of the late emperor, where many of them are condemned and executed, some very justly and others very wrongfully. He made a great reformation of officers and offices, and eased the people very much of their taxes. The cities send their congratulations to him, and crowns of gold

XV. 532

Julian enriches the metropolis of Constantinople, the place of his nativity, with many privileges; made a large harbour to shelter the ships from the south wind, built a stately library and porch, and goes into the east, orders large sums for the rebuilding Nicomedia, enriched the temple of Cybele at Pessinus with offerings of great value, and appointed Calixenes priestess of the temple. Arriving at the palace in Ancyra, he bestowed large gifts upon the pagan priests, and so went to Antioch, where he administered justice impartially

XV. 537

Dreadful earthquakes were felt in every province; most of the cities of Palestine, Libya, Sicily, and Greece, were overturned; Nice was utterly ruined, and Constantinople greatly damaged. The temples of Apollo at Rome and Daphne, were consumed by fire. The sea broke in, and destroyed whole cities with their inhabitants. At Alexan-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			dria the sea laid several towns and villages under water, and drowned the people. A general drought produced a famine, and that was followed by a dreadful plague	XV.	537
5669	3362	363	Julian entering upon his fourth consulship the 1st of January, visited the temple of Jupiter, performing the heathenish sacrifices for the safety of the empire, which had now been long discontinued	XV.	537
4669	3362	363	Sapor king of Persia being defeated, proposes peace to Julian , who rejects it; but being misled by false guides, is reduced to great straits, but attacked the Persians, defeats them in several encounters, and at last in a general battle routs them with great slaughter; but being in great distress for want of provisions, decamps, and is continually harrassed by the enemy; and in one of these sudden onsets, hastening to repulse the enemy without his armour, Julian is wounded, carried to his tent, and dies, the 26th of June, in the 32d year of his age. The Christians received the account of his death with inexpressible joy, and the Pagans with as great grief. The officers of the army chose Jovian to succeed him, who concluded a thirty years peace with the Persians	XV.	563
4669	3362	363	Jovian arriving at Antioch, repeals all Julian's laws made against the Christians, greatly espoused the orthodox cause, and invited Athanasius to court, and received him very graciously, after which he returned to his bishoprick	XV.	571
4670	3363	364	Jovian arriving at Ancyra, the metropolis of Galatia, enters his first consulship, taking his son, then an infant, for his colleague. Going towards Constantinople, he is met at Dadaſta by Themistius and others from the senate, to conduct him thither, but was found dead in his bed the 16th or 17th of February, having reigned seven months and 20 days. His body was carried to Constantinople, and buried in the church of the apostles, with the usual solemnity	XV.	574
4670	3363	364	After nine or ten days interregnum, Valentinian (son of Gratianus , count of Africa, a Pannonian,) was chose and proclaimed emperor by the army, the 26th of February, at Nice, the metropolis of Bithynia: He was a zealous orthodox Christian, and going to Constantinople, he proclaimed his brother Valens colleague with him in the empire the 28th of March following, and about 18th of June following parted the empire at Mediana in Dacia, assigning Asia, Egypt, and Thrace to Valens , and retaining Illyricum, Gaul, Spain, Italy, Britain, and Africa to himself; and then they parted, Valentinian for Milan, and Valens for Constantinople	XV.	580
4670	3363	364	The Goths breaking into Thrace, the emperor Valens sends them a large sum of money, upon which they return home	XIX.	135
4671	3364	365	The Goths breaking into the empire under pretence of siding with Procopius , who had caused himself to be proclaimed emperor, are defeated, and obliged to lay down their arms, and yield themselves prisoners	XIX.	136
4671	3364	365	A dreadful earthquake happens at Cæsarea in Cappadocia, which overturned several cities in Sicily, Palestine, and Crete. Procopius , a relation of the late emperor Julian , revolts, and being joined by a discarded eunuch of Valens possessed of great wealth, gained over the officers and soldiers, was proclaimed Augustus at Constantinople, and

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
			carried to the imperial palace, where he was acknowledged by the people, and soon after gained over a party of Valens's men that were sent against him, and seized Nice and Chalcedon, and took Cyzicus. Elated with this success, Procopius grew proud and tyrannical	XV.	616
4672	3365	366	The empress Albia Dominica, wife of Valens, the 18th of January was delivered of a son called Valentinian, and first named Galata, for being born in Galatia	XV.	620
4672	3365	366	Valens and Procopius come to a battle at Nicolia, a city of Phrygia, in which many of Procopius's men deserting him, he fled, but was seized and carried to Valens, and that emperor struck off his head the 27th of June, after he had borne the title of emperor eight months, and sent it to his colleague Valentinian in Gaul: The two persons that seized and delivered him up were also put to death	XV.	617
4672	3365	366	Marcellus governor of Nice seizes Chalcedon, and proclaims himself emperor; but is seized, loaded with chains, and he and his accomplices next day tortured to death	XV.	619
4672	3365	366	The Alemans having passed the Rhine upon the ice, are attacked by the Romans, whom they entirely defeat, and take the standards of the Batavians and Heruli: But Jovinus going against them, overthrew them three several times with great slaughter, and took their kings and their camp, so that very few escaped; and the emperor fortified both sides of the banks of the Rhine, to prevent a surprize	XIX.	330
4673	3366	367	The emperor Valentinian being very ill at Rheims, great contests arise about who should be his successor; but he recovering names his son Gratian for his colleague at the city of Amiens, the 24th of August, in the ninth year of his age	XV.	586
4673	3366	367	The emperor Valens, by persuasion of his empress, is baptized by Eudoxius, the Arian bishop of Constantinople, who obliged him to swear to treat as enemies all those who opposed that doctrine	XV.	621
4673	3366	367	The Picts, Scots, Attacots, Saxons, &c. breaking into the Roman provinces of Britain, committed great devastations, killed Nectaridus, Severus, and Jovinus, but are repulsed, and vast numbers of them cut off, and all of them driven out by Theodosius, and peace again restored to the inhabitants, who also took one Valens, or Valentinian, who had proclaimed himself emperor, and delivered him up to the civil magistrate	XV.	589
4673	3366	367	The Alemans unexpectedly pass the Rhine, take and plunder Mentz, and commit dreadful ravages in the neighbouring provinces, under the conduct of Rhando, one of their princes	XIX.	331
4673	3366	367	The emperor Valens passing the Danube, ravages the country of the Goths	XIX.	137
4674	3367	368	A most dreadful earthquake utterly ruined Nice, and left but two houses standing in Germa, a city in the Hellespont	XV.	623
4674	3367	368	The emperor Valentinian goes against the Allemans into their own country, and after an obstinate battle near Solicinium (now Sultz) on the Neckar, puts them to flight, and kills most of them	XV.	591
4675	3368	368	The emperor Valentinian fortifies the Rhine, from its rise in Rhætia to its mouth, with a vast number of castles on both sides, and particularly one at the confluence of the Rhine and Neckar, where the city of Manheim now

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page
			stands. The Germans follicit the emperor to forbear, and upon his refusal fall upon the soldiers and workmen, and kill them. This year the emperor caused feveral fenators, governors of provinces, judges, &c. to be put to death, for receiving bribes and oppreffing the people - - -	XV.	592
4675	3368	369	Complaint being made to the emperor Valentinian, by a widow whose estate Rhodanus the eunuch had unjuftly feized, he was immediately feized, and burnt alive in the circus	XV.	592
4675	3368	369	The Maratacuprians near Apamea in Syria turn robbers, and commit great diforders; Valens fends fome fouldiers againft them, who kill them all, both old and young - - -	XV.	624
4675	3368	369	Valens going into Lefler Scythia, paffed the Danube at Novidunum, and after having overcome the Goths in feveral encounters, they fue for peace, which he readily grants	XIX.	138
4676	3369	370	The emperor Valentinian built a bridge over the Tiber, then called the bridge of Gratian, afterwards the bridge Ceflius, at prefent Ponti di. S. Bartholomeo - - -	XV.	593
4676	3369	370	A terrible famine forced moft of the inhabitants of Phrygia to fly out of the country into other places - - -	XV.	625
4676	3369	370	The Saxons break into the empire, and defeat count Nauenius, and commit dreadful ravages; but Severus reduces them to beg a peace, which he grants them, but as they were returning home fell upon them, and cut them all off - - -	XV.	593
4676	3369	370	Eudoxius the Arian bifhop of Alexandria dies; the Arians, with Valens's approbation, put Demophilis into that fee: The orthodox choofe Evagrius, but the emperor fends a party of fouldiers to drive him out. The Arians perfecute the catholicks; they fend 80 ecclefiaftics to Valens; but he, inftead of redreffing them, put them all to death	XV.	625
4676	3369	370	Ermenic, king of the Oftrogoths, falls upon the Heruli, conquers and makes them his tributaries - - -	XIX.	343
4677	3370	371	Valentinian paffes two laws, greatly encouraging Paganifm and its profeflors - - -	XV.	597
4677	3370	371	Valentinian Galata, the only fon of Valens, being fick, he applies to St. Bafil for his prayers, who promifed to reftore the child to health if he would let him be baptized by an orthodox bifhop, which Valerius refufing, and being baptized by the Arians, he died immediately - - -	XV.	625
4678	3371	372	Firmus, a Moorifh prince, revolts from the Romans, and is crowned king, ravages Africa and Mauritania, making himfelf mafter of Cæfarea (now Algier) where he feized a large fum of money - - -	XV.	600
4678	3271	372	Sapor king of Perfia ftrives to gain over the grandees of Armenia, and invites Arfaces their king to a banquet, where he feized him and put out his eyes, and fent him in chains to a caftle called Agabana, where he was murdered, and his country ruined - - -	XV.	626
4579	3372	373	Theodofius goes againft Firmus (king of the Moors;) Firmus offers to fubmit; Theodofius requires hoftages; Firmus delays the performance, and Theodofius falls upon Mafcezel, &c. his allies, and defeated them with great flaughter; Firmus again pretends to fubmit, but his ally Mafcezel ventures a fecond battle, and is again defeated; and then Firmus fends the hoftages, and a peace is concluded: But Firmus breaking out again, is at laft fo freightened, that he ftrangled himfelf to prevent falling into the hands of the Romans - - -	XV.	603
4679	3372	373	Sapor king of Perfia invades the Roman dominions in the

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			east, but is overthrown by Trajan, a Roman general, and Vadamarius, formerly king of the Alemans - - -	XV.	629
4680	3373	374	Many are taken up at Antioch, for practising magic in order to know the name of the successor of Valens: Theodorus his second secretary was named and accused and convicted of treasonable and illegal practices to take away the emperor's life, for which he was put to death, and vast numbers of innocent people racked, murdered, and banished, as his aiders and abettors - - -	XVI.	2
4680	3373	374	Gabinius king of the Quadi, in the west, and Paras king of Armenia, in the east, are both treacherously murdered by the Romans - - -	XVI.	5
4680	3373	374	Macrinus king of the Alemans is killed in an ambuscade by the Franks, with whom he was at war - - -	XIX.	332
4680	3373	374	Marcelleianus , duke of Valeria, having treacherously murdered Gabinius king of the Quadians, to revenge his death, the Quadians pass the Danube, lay all waste for a great space, murder many of the people, and carry away a prodigious number captive - - -	XIX.	352
4681	3374	375	The emperor Valentinian ravages the country of the Quadi, and drives them all before him; and while their ambassadors were suing for peace, and he answering them roughly, suddenly falls down in convulsion fits, and dies in extream agonies, the 17th of November, in the 55th year of his age, and 12th of his reign - - -	XV.	610
4681	3374	375	Valentinian , youngest son of the deceased emperor Valentinian , is declared emperor by the officers of the army the 23d of November, which his brother Gratian and uncle Valens confirmed; giving him Italy, Illyricum and Africa, for his share of the empire; to Gratian , Gaul, Spain and Britain, for his share; and then Gratian restores his mother Severa to her former honours, who had been divorced and banished - - -	XVI.	8
4682	3375	376	The body of the emperor Valentinian , after being embalmed, was sent to Constantinople to be interred among the other Christian princes, where it arrived the 28th of December, but was not buried till the 21st of February, 382, following. He is variously characterized by different authors - - -	XV.	611
4682	3375	376	Gratian puts Maximius (prefect of Gaul) to death, for his cruelties exercised both in Italy and Gaul, likewise Simplicius and Doryphorianus for the same fault in Rome - - -	XVI.	8
4682	3375	376	The emperor Gratian is so rigid against the Arians, Donatists, &c. that he allowed the Pagans greater liberties than they - - -	XVI.	11
4682	3375	376	The Goths being driven out of their country by the Hunns and Alans, are allowed by the emperor Valens to settle in vast numbers in Thrace - - -	XVI.	12
4682	3375	376	Athanaric , a chief among the Goths, being driven out of his own country, with his people, by the Huns, retires to Caucalanda , then inhabited by Sarmatians, drives out the inhabitants, and seizes it for themselves, where they settle - - -	XIX.	395
4682	3375	376	The Hunns pass the Palus Meotis , and disperse themselves into diverse countries, and particularly displace the Goths - - -	XIX.	45
4683	3376	377	The Goths lately settled in Thrace, being reduced to great streights for want of provisions, began to mutiny, when Count Lupicinus , governor there, commanded them to march from the banks of the Danube, and ordered his soldiers to drive them on the Greuthongi , crossed

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			the river, and when they came to Marcianopolis to Lupicinus, he invited the two chiefs to a banquet, but would let none of their people in with them; they being hungry, flew on the Roman guards, and cut most of them to pieces, for which the attendants of the two chiefs were put to death. The chiefs coming away, head their men, and declare war. Next day Lupicinus goes against them, but being but few in number, the Goths cut most of them to pieces, and forced them to fly into the city. Those likewise at Adrianople join them. Gratian sends his uncle assistance, but they are all cut off or desert; but soon after the Goths are overcome, and vast numbers slain	XVI.	17
4683	3376	377	Gratian makes a law vastly in favour of the clergy, and all any ways belonging to the church. A terrible plague swept away vast numbers of people in all the western provinces.	XVI.	17
4683	3376	377	Mallobaudes, king of the Franks, is raised to the consular dignity by the emperor Gratian, who was himself his colleague	XIX.	253
4684	3377	378	The Goths lately settled in Thrace go into Macedonia and Thessaly, and commit dreadful ravages, advance to Constantinople, plundered the suburbs, and blocked up the city for some time. As Valens was going against them, Gratian sends to inform him, he was coming to his assistance with a large army, and therefore desired him to forbear engaging the enemy till he joined him; and at the same Fritigern, chief of the Goths, sues for peace, both of which he refuses, comes to an engagement, and has his best generals and two thirds of his army cut to pieces, and the other routed, and Valens himself killed	XVI.	21
4684	3377	378	The next day the Goths besiege Adrianople, but are forced to raise it with great loss, and then march to Constantinople, where after spending some time, they are also forced to retire with great loss, then they over-run Thrace, Scythia, Mesia, and Illyricum, without opposition	XVI.	29
4684	3377	378	The Quadi and Sarmatians enter the Roman territories, and destroy all with fire and sword, wherever they come	XVI.	29
4684	3377	378	There being great numbers of Goths in the Roman armies in the east, Julius, the governor of Asia, fearing they should revolt, and join their brethren already too numerous, sent private orders to massacre them all the same time, in the several places where they were quartered, which was executed without resistance. A great body of Sarmatians coming to join the Goths, are most of them cut to pieces by the Romans, and the rest forced to repass the Danube	XVI.	31
4684	3377	378	Gratian, by the death of Valens, becoming emperor of the east, as well as of the west, recalls all the Catholic bishops, and restored them to their sees, from whence Valens had banished them, and published liberty of conscience to all Christians, except the Manichees, Photinians, and Eunomians, to whom he would allow no churches	XVI.	31
4684	3377	378	The Sarmatians intending to join the rebellious Goths, pass the Danube; but being met by Theodosius in Thrace, they are entirely overthrown	XIX.	365
4684	3377	378	The Alemans passing the Rhine, began to lay waste the neighbouring provinces. Count Nannius and Mallebaudes, king of the Franks, attacked them, and gained a compleat victory, killing 30,000 on the spot, and slaying and taking the rest prisoners in pursuing them	XVI.	332

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4685	3378	379	Gratian proclaims Theodosius, a person of extraordinary accomplishments, and universally admired for his courage, piety, &c. his colleague in the empire, the 19th of January, at Sirmium, and committed to his care Thrace, and the rest of the provinces that Valens had in the east	XVI.	32
4685	3378	379	The emperor Gratian coming to Milan, contracts a familiarity with saint Ambrose, and by his influence recalls his law of liberty of conscience, especially to the Re-baptizers	XVI.	36
4685	3378	379	The Lombards growing too populous, leaving their native country Scandinavia, to seek new settlements, and first overcome the Vandals, under their two chiefs, Iboreus and Aionus	XV.I	36
4685	3378	379	The emperor Theodosius receives the congratulations and homage of all the cities in the east at Thessalonica, and promises them all the service in his power; then goes against and in several battles defeats, and at last intirely delivers Thrace from the ravages of the Goths	XVI.	39
4685	3378	379	Artaxerxes , supposed to be the 4th son of Sapor, proclaimed king of Persia, upon that prince's death, and lived quietly four years	XI.	105
4685	3379	380	Theodosius being taken extreemly ill at Thessalonica in February, desires to be baptized, which was accordingly performed by Ascolus bishop of Thessalonica. Gratian comes into Illyricum to watch the Goths, who were preparing to cross the Danube: Gratian concludes a peace with them, which Theodosius upon his recovery confirmed	XVI.	40
4686	3379	380	Gratian makes a law, whereby any woman obliged to act upon the stage becoming a Christian, should be exempt from that obligation: But she that behaved misbecoming a Christian, should be condemned to act on the stage for the remaining part of her life	XIV.	40
4686	3379	380	Theodosius publishes a law at Thessalonica, the 28th of February, wherein he declares he will have all his subjects adhere to the faith Rome had received from St. Peter, and taught by Damasus bishop of that city, and Peter bishop of Alexandria, viz. confess the divinity of the father, son, and holy ghost; and all that did not should be treated as hereticks. Also another law, forbidding capital trials in Lent; and another, prohibiting widows to remarry during their time of mourning, viz. 10 or 12 months	XVI.	41
4686	3379	380	The Goths again return under Fritigern, Alatheus, and Saphrax, break into Thrace and Pannonia, advance to Macedonia, and destroy all with fire and sword: Theodosius goes against them, and overthrows them: Then going in triumph to Constantinople, deposes Demophilus the Arian bishop, and appoints Gregory Nazianzen bishop in his stead; and drove the Arians out of all the churches which they had held for 40 years past	XVI.	43
4687	3380	381	The Hereticks are every where all over the east put out of the churches they held, and the Catholicks put in their place: And to reconcile all differences, the emperor Theodosius summons's the second oecumenical council at Constantinople, where all the bishops of his dominions assembled	XVI.	45
4687	3380	381	Atbanaric , king of the Goths, flies from the Hunns to Constantinople, where the emperor goes out to meet him, and receives him with great honours, and treats him nobly, &c.	XIX.	141

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page
4688	3381	382	Gratian orders the altar of victory, which stood in the palace where the Roman senate met, to be removed, and confiscated the revenues thereof: It had been before removed by Constantius in 357, but restored by Julian in 361, where it remained till now. He likewise took away the privileges of the Pagan pontiffs and vestal virgins. The Hereticks were also severely used, declaring them guilty of death	XVI.	47
4688	3381	382	The emperor Theodosius I. upon the submission of the Goths, allow them lands in Thrace, Mæsia, and leave to settle there, those two provinces having been almost dispeopled by the frequent incursions of the several sorts of Barbarians	XIX.	140
4689	3382	383	A dreadful famine raged in Rome, and Magnus Clemens Maximus revolts in Britain, and is proclaimed emperor by the soldiers; and coming into Gaul, persuades them to revolt likewise. Gratian goes against him, but is deserted by great numbers of his soldiers, to supply which he took in foreigners, so that the rest also forsook him: He flies, is refused admittance into several cities, and is at last taken at Lions, and put to death by order of Maximus, in the 25th year of his age	XVI.	50
4689	3382	383	Maximus upon the death of Gratian takes his son Flavius Victor for his colleague with him in the empire, and gave him the title of Augustus, though then but an infant, and fixed the seat of his government at Treves. Maximus ordered Merobaudes, one of this year's consuls, to put himself to death, which he does, and Balio strangled himself, being condemned to be burnt to death for his inviolable attachment to Gratian	XVI.	53
4689	3382	383	Theodosius , rather than go to war with Maximus, and fearing the inroads of the Barbarians, allows him to be his colleague in the empire, and orders him to be proclaimed at Alexandria in Egypt. The beginning of this year Theodosius proclaimed his son Arcadius emperor, with extraordinary pomp, at the palace of Hebdomon, seven miles distant from Constantinople, then about six years old	XVI.	59
4689	3382	383	The Huns having over-ran Mesopotamia, lay siege to Edessa; but being repulsed by the Roman garrison, are obliged by the Goths to retire	XIX.	48
4690	3383	384	Proculus count of the east being accused of extortion, &c. at Daphne near Antioch, was ignominiously deposed, &c. This year a dreadful plague raged in Antioch, and most cities of Syria. A law is published, forbidding all on pain of death or perpetual banishment, to offer sacrifices to idols, or to consult aruspices, &c.	XVI.	61
4690	3383	384	Cynegius , præfect of the east, by order from Theodosius shuts up all the heathen temples, and abolishes superstition there and in Egypt	XVI.	62
4690	3383	384	The emperor Theodosius publishes a law, prohibiting the marriage of cousin-germans, commanding the contracting parties to be burnt alive, their estates to be confiscated, and their children to be illegitimate	XVI.	63
4690	3383	384	The Sarmatians make an irruption into the dominions of Valentinian, who were drove back with great slaughter, and many taken prisoners, who were sent to Rome to be massacred in the shews of the gladiators, or destroyed by the wild beasts	XVI.	64

[cclxxxvii]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.
4690	3383	384	Valentinian the 22d of March, being Good Friday, publishes pardon to all criminals, some few excepted, in honour of the approaching feast of Easter	XVI.	65
4691	3384	385	A plot is discovered against the emperor Theodosius at Constantinople, and most of the conspirators put to death. The empress Flaccilla and her daughter Pulcheria both die	XVI.	67
4691	3384	385	Artaxerxes king of Persia dying, Sapor his son succeeds him, called Sapor the third, who reigned five years	XI.	106
4692	3385	386	The two emperors Theodosius and Arcadius obtain a great victory over the Greuthongi , in which king Odotheus was killed, and carries a vast number of them captive to Constantinople, which they enter in triumph	XVI.	68
4692	3385	386	The Goths break into the empire, in order to settle in some of its provinces, but Theodosius engaging them, entirely overthrows them	XIX.	143
4693	3386	387	Theodosius publishes a law, addressed by way of letter to all the cities in the east, to set all prisoners free (unless for very enormous crimes) at the feast of Easter then next coming	XVI.	70
4693	3386	387	Theodosius wanting money to celebrate the 5th year of his son Arcadius , and the tenth of his own, laid a tax upon all the provinces to raise money, to which all but Antioch submit. The rabble break out into fury, and missing the governor, pull down all the statues of the emperors, &c. but being dispersed by the soldiery, many of the mutineers were punished by the governor, with extreme severity, so that the greatest part of the people fled into the mountains, &c. besides which the emperor sent commissions to enquire into the riot, who punished many likewise with great severity; but thro' the mediation of saint Chrysostom and Flavianus , bishop of Antioch , the emperor forgave them, and restored the city again to the privileges he had deprived them of	XVI.	77
4693	3386	387	Maximus passes the Alps, and goes to Milan. Valentinian flies to Theodosius for protection at Thessalonica , where Theodosius comes to comfort and assure him of help, and prevails on him to renounce Arianism ; then he sends ambassadors to Maximus , desiring him to be content with Gaul , Spain , and Britain ; but he refuses, and besieges and takes Aquileia , and many other cities in Italy	XVI.	79
4694	3387	388	The Alemans submit to Maximus voluntarily	XIX.	333
4694	3387	388	Maximus is acknowledged emperor in Rome, and all the provinces of Africa. Theodosius raises a great army, chiefly of Goths , Hunns and Alans , and goes against, engages him, and entirely defeats one of his generals in Pannonia . Soon after he engages and utterly defeats Marcellinus , brother of Maximus , with an army more numerous than his own. Theodosius pursues Maximus to Aquileia , which is taken, and Maximus in it, who is carried in chains to Theodosius . After which he was beheaded the 27th of August; then sending Arbogastes into Gaul , against Victor the son of Maximus , Arbogastes overcame and put him to death, and so ended the war. Theodosius publishes a general amnesty for all persons whatsoever that had sided with Maximus , and restored Valentinian to the full possession of all the western provinces	XVI.	81
4694	3387	388	Upon a report that the emperor Theodosius had been beaten by Maximus , the Arians at Constantinople rise in the night, and set fire to the house of Nectarius , the orthodox bishop of that city, and burnt it and him in it; but upon

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			upon their humble petition to the young emperor Arcadius, he forgave them, and got his father to confirm their pardon
4694	3387	388	Theodosius publishes a law, forbidding the Apollinarians to hold assemblies, to have bishops or clergy, to live in cities, to appear at court, or to present a petition to the emperor. Another prohibiting all religious disputes. Another declaring the marriages between Jews and Christians unlawful, and the contracting persons subject to the laws against adultery, &c.	XVI.	82
4694	3387	388	The Franks ravage Gaul fiercer than ever. Nannius and Quintinus having defeated those parties of Franks that were left in Gaul, Quintinus pursues them to the Rhine, which he passes, but is there with his army cut all to pieces	XVI.	84
4695	3388	389	Theodosius goes to Rome, with his son Honorius and young Valentinian, and entered it in triumph; and by his extraordinary candid behaviour, is greatly instrumental in converting the senate and people to christianity	XIX.	254
4695	3388	389	The Pagans at Alexandria fall upon the Christians, for exposing some of their obscene figures, found in one of their temples, and making the temple of Serapis their garrison; they sallied out from thence, and dragging what Christians they met with into the temple, forced them to sacrifice to their idol, or else racked them to death; the emperor, to still the riot, forgave the Pagans, but ordered all the temples in Alexandria to be demolished	XVI.	85
4696	3389	390	Theodosius , by a law, orders all who professed a monastic life, to retire out of all cities, and to live in deserts; and by another, that all found guilty of unnatural lust should be publicly burnt alive	XVI.	87
4696	3389	390	Sapor , third king of Persia, dies, and is succeeded by his son Varanes, who reigned eleven years	XVI.	89
4696	3389	390	An obelisk, twenty-four cubits high, was raised in the Circus at Constantinople, and a column before the church of Saint Sophia, on which was a silver statue of Theodosius , weighing 7400 ounces	XI.	106
4697	3390	391	The Hunns commit great ravages in Mesia and Thrace	XVI.	90
4697	3390	391	Theodosius orders the heretics to be driven out of all cities, and that all who renounced the christian religion, after baptism, should be incapable of giving or receiving any thing by will, or being a legal witness	XIX.	48
4697	3390	391	Theodosius unexpectedly falls upon, and cuts to pieces many of the Barbarians, that concealed themselves in the marshes and woods, in the province of Macedonia; and from thence sallied out and did great damage: but while the soldiers were refreshing themselves, the Barbarians fell upon them with great fury, and killed abundance of them. Next day the emperor attacked them again and overthrew them with so great a slaughter, that very few of them escaped	XVI.	90
4697	3390	391	Theodosius goes to Constantinople, and orders all the heathen temples that remained in that city, to be demolished, and all the Arians to be driven out of that and all other cities in his dominions	XVI.	92
4698	3391	392	The emperor Valentinian sends to St. Ambrose, bishop of Milan, to come into Gaul to baptize him; but before he could get to him, the emperor was murdered by Arbogastes, the 15th of May, aged twenty years and some months	XVI.	92
				XVI.	94

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4698	3391	392	Upon the death of Valentinian, one Eugenius was proclaimed emperor in Gaul, a creature of Arbogastes, who soon overrun West Illyricum, Italy, Gaul, Spain, and Britain, but Africa submitted to Theodosius.	XVI.	96
4698	3391	392	Theodosius receives the embassadors sent to him by Eugenius very civilly, and sends to consult one John, a hermit, by nation an Egyptian, who advises him to make war upon Eugenius, and assures him of victory; and that he should soon after die in Italy, and leave his son emperor of the west.	XVI.	98
4699	3392	393	Theodosius proclaims his second son Honorius Augustus, in the palace of Hebdomon, near Constantinople, with great magnificence.	XVI.	99
4699	3392	393	Eugenius having obtained great advantages over the Franks, leaves Gaul and goes into Italy, where, after repeated solicitations, he re-establishes Paganism.	XVI.	100
4700	3393	394	Theodosius goes to the Alps, the passes whereof he found guarded by Flavianus, prefect of Italy; he attacks him; Flavianus is killed, and his soldiers run away; but as he came down those hills, he was met by Eugenius at the bottom, with a numerous army; they engage, and Theodosius loses above 10,000 of his auxiliaries; they are parted by the night. Next morning Theodosius renews the fight, kills many of the enemy, and forces the rest to save themselves by a precipitate flight. Eugenius is carried to Theodosius in chains, where his head is cut off, and carried about on a spear, and the rest submitted to Theodosius , who ordered the children of Arbogastes and Eugenius to be instructed in the Christian religion, and taken great care of, gave them their paternal estates, and raised them to great offices and employments.	XVI.	104
4700	3393	394	Theodosius publishes a general amnesty, and sends for his son Honorius, and proclaims him emperor of the West, giving him Italy, Gaul, Spain, Britain, Africa, and West Illyricum, and sends Stilicho to Rome with this declaration, accompanied by his wife Serena, niece to the emperor. She goes to see the statue of Cybele, and snatches a fine necklace that was on the image; an old vestal cursed her, her husband, and children, for which she was punished severely.	XVI.	105
4700	3393	394	The Roman senate congratulate Theodosius on his victory, and beg the next consulship for the two brothers Olybrius and Probinus, which the emperor grants, and exhorts them to embrace the Christian religion. This year dreadful earthquakes were felt almost all over the empire every day, from the beginning of September to the end of November. Violent and incessant rains laid whole countries under water, and great darkness.	XVI.	106
4701	3394	395	Theodosius prepares to return to Constantinople, but is seized with a dropsy, whereupon he made his will, bequeathing the eastern part of the empire to his son Arcadius, and the western part to his son Honorius, and died at Milan the 17th of January, in the 16th year of his reign, and 50th year of his life. St. Ambrose pronounced his funeral oration; his body was embalmed, and sent to Constantinople, where it was interred the 9th of November following, in a tomb of porphyry, in the mausoleum of Constantine the Great, near the church of the apostles: he is characterized to be endowed with every virtue becoming a prince, in a very eminent degree.	XVI.	107

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4701	3394	395	Arcadius , upon his father's death, comes out of the East to Constantinople, where he reigned under the direction of Rufinus, whom his father had made his guardian, being then in the 18th year of his age; and Honorius continued at Milan, being in the 11th year of his age, under the guardianship of Stilicho; the two ministers jealous of one another, Stilicho pretends Theodosius had left the care of both to him, and therefore endeavours to destroy Rufinus	XVI.	119
4701	3394	395	The emperor Honorius allowed a colony of Alemans, to settle in the present Switzerland	XIX.	333
4701	3394	395	The Huns break into the eastern provinces of the Roman empire, and commit unspeakable ravages	XIX.	48
4701	3394	395	Eucherius , uncle to Arcadius, complained to him of Lucianus , count of the east, who is very differently characterized. Rufinus goes privately to Antioch, calls Lucianus to his tribunal, and condemned him to be beat to death with leaden balls, fastened to cords; the Antiochians murmuring at it, he ordered the most stately portico to be built that was in all Syria, to appease them	XVI.	120
4701	3394	395	Rufinus proposes his daughter for a wife to Arcadius, but he chuses Eudoxia , daughter of count Bauto , a Frank, and the nuptials were solemnized the 27th of April, she had a vast influence over Arcadius	XVI.	120
4701	3394	395	Rufinus disappointed in the marriage, and fearing the arms of Stilicho, and the influence of the eunuch Eutropius , the favourite both of the emperor and the empress, resolves to put all into a flame, and stirs up the Huns and Goths, who penetrated into the empire as far as Antioch	XVI.	121
4701	3394	395	Stilicho renews the antient alliances with the Germans, and goes with a great army to the assistance of Arcadius; but Rufinus influenced Arcadius to send for the eastern troops that were with Stilicho, and to order him to return home with the western troops, which he did. Gainas , that commanded the eastern troops, was met at the palace of Hebdomon by Arcadius, and Rufinus, who pressed his ward to proclaim him his colleague; but Gainas ordered his troops to cut him to pieces, which they did the 27th of November; cut off his head, and carried it upon a spear to Constantinople, where every one rejoiced at the sight, and was succeeded by Eutropius the eunuch, who was originally an Armenian slave, very covetous, cruel, &c. who used all wicked means to convey the wealth of the empire into his own coffers	XVI.	125
4701	3394	395	The Goths under Alaric ravage a great part of the empire, and even threaten Constantinople itself, continuing two years in Greece, &c. destroying all with fire and sword, and sending away multitudes of captives, with the whole wealth of the ravaged country	XIX.	145
4702	3395	396	Eutropius so far influences Arcadius, that Stilicho is solemnly declared a public enemy, and all his lands and palaces in the east confiscated, and endeavoured to ruin all his friends. Eutropius prevails with the emperor to enact a law forbidding any body flying into the church for refuge, and that those who did so should be dragged out and punished more grievously than if they had not fled thither; this drew the general hatred upon him	XVI.	130
4702	3395	396	Dreadful earthquakes were felt in most of the eastern provinces of the empire, the sky appearing all on a flame, over Con-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Constantinople, terrified the emperor and the people so much, that they flew out of the city to lie in the fields	XVI.	130
4702	3395	396	Fritigil , queen of the Marcomans, by means of saint Ambrose, is converted to the Christian religion, and influences her husband to make peace with the Romans, and to favour the Christians	XIX.	348
4703	3396	397	Eutropius , the emperor Arcadius's favourite and prime minister, stirs up Gildo, brother to the famous Firmus, commander of the Roman troops in Africa, to revolt from Honorius, and come over to Arcadius, which he doing, they oblige Carthage and the whole province of Africa to declare for Arcadius	XVI.	131
4703	3396	397	Saint Ambrose, bishop of Milan, dies, universally lamented by all degrees of people throughout the whole empire. Honorius publishes a law, forbidding the Romans to follow foreign fashions. Arcadius banishes all the Apollinarian preachers out of Constantinople, and confiscates all their houses; and passes a law in favour of the Jews; and sentences to death all domestics that should bear witness against their masters, in cases of treason; the empress Eudoxia is delivered of a daughter, who was named Flaccilla, the 17th of June	XVI.	134
4704	3397	398	Mascezel is sent by Stilicho against his rebellious brother Gildo in Africa, where he engages and entirely overthrows him; Gildo flies, is pursued, taken, and put into prison, where he strangled himself; and all Africa returned to Honorius again, and the two brothers are reconciled to one another	XVI.	136
4704	3397	398	Mascezel returns to Italy, where Stilicho seemingly receives him with great marks of esteem; but being jealous of his growing greatness, orders him to be pushed into the river, as they were both going over the bridge at Milan, in which he was drowned	XVI.	136
4704	3397	398	Stilicho marries his daughter Maria, an infant, to the emperor Honorius, now in his 13th year; he assists the Britains against the Danes, Saxons and Picts, and settles a legion in Britain for their defence	XVI.	138
4704	3397	398	A violent earthquake overthrows abundance of houses in Constantinople and Chalcedon, and several buildings are consumed with lightning, and the sea breaks in and lays whole countries under water	XVI.	138
4705	3398	399	Eutropius prevails upon Arcadius to create him a patrician, intitle him Father to the Emperor, and to raise him to the consulate, being the first and last eunuch ever advanced to that dignity	XVI.	138
4705	3398	399	Tribigild the Goth, commander of a great army of those people as auxiliaries to Arcadius in Nicolia in Phrygia, coming to court, is highly affronted at the haughty behaviour of Eutropius, and is influenced by Gainas, general of all the Roman horse and foot, to revolt; at his return to Nicolia, he plundered it and several other cities, and put all to the sword that fell into his hands, threw the whole province of Asia into confusion and consternation. Eutropius strove to bring him back by large presents and promises; but failing, sends one Leo, a creature of his, at the head of an army against him. Tribigild was cut off all to 300 men by the Pisidians; but Gainas supplies him with a fresh army, who fell upon and defeated Leo, who perished, and most of his men were cut to pieces; and then he demands Eutropius to be delivered up to

World.	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			him, who after being degraded, was first banished to the island of Cyprus, and afterwards put to death, as the cause of all these troubles	XVI.	143
4705	3398	399	Tribigild and Gainas , two officers in the Roman pay, revolt, and with their countrymen the Goths, do great mischief	XIX.	148
4705	3398	399	Abundance of heathen temples were shut up and pulled down, both in the eastern and western empires, and some turned into churches, and severe laws enacted against all manner of idolatrous worship	XVI.	145
4706	3399	400	Alaric king of the Goths, and Radagaisus king of the Hunns, entered Italy and committed vast ravages	XIX.	150
4706	3399	400	Upon the death of Eutropius , the empress Eudoxia , a bold, enterprising, avaritious woman, so influenced her weak husband Arcadius , that the state was reduced to the utmost miseries, by the enormous wickedness of her creatures	XVI.	145
4706	3399	400	Gainas makes a pretended peace with Tribigild , and unite their forces together, and went to Sardis in Lydia , plundered that metropolis; and then separated; Tribigild goes to Lampascus , and Gainas towards Chalcedon , plundering the countries through which they pass. The emperor offers Gainas whatever terms he required. He first demanded the three greatest officers of the state to be delivered to him, which was done; then, that the emperor and he should have a private conference, which was likewise held in the church of St. Euphemia in Chalcedon , where it was agreed, that they should lay down their arms, and be advanced to the highest dignities in the state, which were both done accordingly	XVI.	147
4706	3399	400	Gainas having filled Constantinople with his countrymen the Goths, revived and greatly encouraged Arianism , and formed a design to seize all the wealth of the city and set fire to the palace; but mistaking the time of the signal, most of the Goths were cut to pieces by the inhabitants; upon which Gainas flies again into open rebellion. Fravitus , who commanded in Asia , opposes and kills several thousands of his men, and forces him back from that province; and upon his arrival in Thrace , he and all his soldiers were cut to pieces by the Roman soldiers, and so this disturbance ceased	XVI.	149
4707	3400	401	The empress Eudoxia being created Augusta , orders her image to be carried through all the provinces, to receive the same homage that is paid to the images of the emperors, which no empress before had ever presumed to do	XVI.	150
4707	3400	401	The empress Eudoxia is delivered of her third daughter Arcadia , on the third of April. This year Constantinople was shaken with violent earthquakes for three days together, upon which abundance of Pagans desire to be, and are baptized into the Christian religion	XVI.	150
4707	3400	401	Varanes , king of Persia dies, and is succeeded by Iddigertes , whom Arcadius , emperor of the east, declared guardian of his son Theodosius , which begot a great intimacy and friendship between the two courts	XI.	106
4708	3401	402	Theodosius , son and successor of Arcadius , was born the 10th of April, and soon after baptized and declared Cæsar, with extraordinary pomp and solemnity. This year the Euxine sea was frozen over for the space of twenty days. A band of slaves and deserters pillaged Thrace , pretending

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			to be Hunns; but Fravitus cuts most of them to pieces, and disperses the rest	XVI.	152
4708	3401	402	Honorius forgives all debts due to his exchequer, contracted since his first consulate in 386, and orders all legal prosecutions for debt to stop, commenced since 395, the time of his coming to the empire, till he had examined into the circumstances thereof	XVI.	153
4709	3402	403	Arcadius promotes his son Theodosius to the imperial dignity, in his palace of Hebdomon, on the 10th of January, with extraordinary magnificence	XVI.	153
4709	3402	403	Alaric enters Italy without opposition, and ravages the provinces of Venetia and Liguria, and threatened to besiege the court; whereupon Honorius retires from Milan to Ravenna, which from this time became the ordinary place of his residence	XVI.	154
4709	3402	403	The Empress Eudoxia is delivered of her fourth and last daughter Marina . On the 10th of February a statue of silver was erected to the empress, upon a column of porphyry, near the church of St. Sophia in Constantinople, where sports were exhibited in honour of the empress, which occasioned a misunderstanding between St. Chrysostom, bishop of the city, and the empress. This year a statue was reared to Arcadius , in the same city, and he built the city of Arcadiopolis in Thrace	XVI.	154
4709	3402	403	Stilicho engages and overcomes Alaric king of the Goths, at Pollentia, takes his camp, with all the rich plunder of several provinces, and his wife and children; upon which Alaric sues for peace, which is granted: He repasses the Po, and goes to Verona, where committing acts of hostility, he is pursued, and forced into the mountains, and so retires into Pannonia; upon which Honorius goes to Rome, which he enters in triumph, with Stilicho in the same chariot with him, about the beginning of December, where he was received with all the marks of joy and respect possible	XVI.	157
4710	3403	404	The empress Eudoxia dies of a miscarriage, the 6th of October, a few days after she had prevailed on Arcadius to banish St. Chrysostom: That day he went out of Constantinople a fire consumed the great church, the palace where the senate assembled, and many other adjoining edifices	XVI.	158
4710	3403	404	The Hunns break into Thrace, and east Illyricum, and having amassed great booty, retired beyond the Danube: And the Isaurian robbers commit great ravages in Asia and Syria; but Arbavacius going against them, cut most of them to pieces, and shut up the rest on all sides, but for the sake of a great bribe let them escape, when they overrun the provinces of Cilicia, Pamphilia, Lycia, Lycaonia, Pisidia, Cappadocia, and Lower Syria, pillaging all the open country, and then retired into their inaccessible mountains with vast booty	XIX.	50
4711	3404	405	Radagaisus king of the Goths, a Pagan, comes with a mighty army into Italy, and offering sacrifices to Jupiter every morning, vows all the Romans to destruction. The Pagans all over the empire, but especially at Rome, lay all their sufferings upon the Christians, for despising the gods and their service. Stilicho assembles 30 Roman legions at Pavia, and reinforced them with a great number of Goths, Hunns, and Alans, under Sarus , a Goth, and Uldin king of the Hunns, and goes towards Florence, which Radagaisus had besieged, and orders his auxiliaries to fall upon one of the divisions of Radagaisus's army, which doing,

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
			they kill him 100,000 men without the loss of one man; upon which he retired to the mountains of Fesulæ, where Stilicho closely besieged him, and reduced him to such streights, that he attempted to escape and leave his men behind, and so was taken and put to death: His army submitted to the Romans, who sold them for slaves in droves, at a crown per head; but all died in a few days, being almost starved to death before in their camp - - -	XVI. 161
4712	3405	406	A dreadful fire reduced great part of Constantinople to ashes on the 25th of October; and such multitudes of grasshoppers infested Egypt, that turned the day into night; and by the stench of them after they were dead occasioned a great plague, which carried off abundance of the people	XVI. 161
4712	3405	406	December 30th prodigious numbers of the northern nations entered into and settled in Gaul, which at length utterly ruined the western empire, said to be invited and supported by Stilicho, with an intent to make his son Eucherius emperor of the west - - -	XVI. 162
4712	3405	406	The Franks fall upon the Vandals, as they were preparing to march into Gaul, and cut off 20,000 of them	XIX. 256
4713	3406	407	The Gauls are terribly ravaged by the Vandals, Alans, and Suevians, and are joined by the Burgundians. They took Mentz by storm, and levelled it to the ground, after having murdered many thousands of the inhabitants in the churches, whither they flew. Worms, Strasburgh, and Spires underwent the same fate; then they mastered all Aquitain, Gascony, Lions, and Narbonne - - -	XVI. 162
4713	3406	407	The Britons set up an emperor of their own, named Mark, who was murdered a few days after: Then they advanced one Gratian to that dignity, who after a reign of four months was also murdered; and then one Constantine, a common soldier, was chose, who forced the Picts and Scots out of the Roman province, and then formed a design of reigning over the whole empire: He goes into Gaul, with all the youth of Britain and what Roman forces were in the country, and after various successes settled at Arles, but leaving the Britons defenceless, they were terribly ravaged by their settled enemies, the Scots and Picts - - -	XVI. 163
4714	3407	408	Arcadius emperor of the east dies on the 1st of May at Constantinople, in the 31st year of his age, and was buried in the church of the apostles near his wife Eudoxia. He was naturally inclined to virtue, but being of a weak understanding, suffered his people to be grievously abused by his ministers and his wife's favourites. He was succeeded by his son Theodosius, then about eight years old, under the guardianship of his mother - - -	XVI. 166
4714	3407	408	Constantinus the Briton made himself master of all Gaul, he caused his son Constans, who was a monk, to quit his retirement, and created him Cæsar, and sent him under Gerontius into Spain, where he cut most of Honorius's troops to pieces, and took Didymius and Verinianus their generals, and their wives, prisoners: They were brothers, and related to Honorius. This reduced all Spain, where Gerontius staid, and Constans returned into Gaul, and presented his father with the illustrious prisoners, who ordered them to be privately murdered, and created his son Augustus, and gave him a diadem, and sends ambassadors to Honorius, demanding to be associated with him in the empire, who was forced to send him the imperial purple, and honour him with the title of Augustus, upon condition of his helping him against Alaric

XVI. 166

4714 3407 408 Alaric being privately encouraged by Stilicho, threatens to lay waste all Italy unless the Romans paid him a large sum of money. The senate at last were compelled by Stilicho to send him 4000 pounds weight of gold

XVI. 166

4714 3407 408 One Olympias pretending great sanctity, thereby ingratiated himself so far into Honorius's favour, as to wait immediately upon his person where-ever he went; and in the emperor's journey from Pavia, so thoroughly convinced him of the treachery of Stilicho, that he sent two orders to Ravenna, where Stilicho was, the one to secure, and the other to put him to death, both which were executed. The army flew to arms, and slew all Stilicho's friends and creatures. The emperor having married Thermantia, Stilicho's second daughter, sent her back to her mother Serena untouched. Eucherius his son fled to a church, but was dragged out, and executed. Stilicho's estate, and the estates of all his partizans, were confiscated; and Olympius succeeded as prime minister. This year the Roman nobility were forbid all traffick. The Roman soldiers upon Stilicho's death murdered the wives and children of such heathen auxiliaries as he had hired; upon which 30,000 of them join Alaric, who thereupon sends to Honorius, and offers to retire, and never return again, if he would give him money to pay his army their arrears; which he refusing, he sends his brother-in-law Ataulphus into Italy, and goes himself and besieged Rome. A famine soon began in the city, and that was followed by a plague. The Romans send out deputies to treat with Alaric, who agrees to raise the siege, and for ever to continue faithful to the Romans, upon their delivering to him hostages, and paying him 5000 pounds weight of gold, 30,000 l. of silver, 4000 silk garments, 3000 purple skins, and 3000 l. of pepper; all which was done, and ratified by Honorius, and the siege accordingly raised

XVI. 172

4714 3407 408 Uldin king of the Hunns taking dislike to the Romans, crossed the Danube, and entered Thrace with a numerous army; but behaving in a very haughty manner towards his officers, they desert to the Romans who forced him to retire with great loss and precipitation

XIX. 52

4714 3407 408 Anthemius is chose prime minister in the east, to govern it and Theodosius, which he did with great integrity and skill, to the intire satisfaction of the people of all degrees. The Squiri and Hunns break into Thrace; but some of their officers abandoning them to join the Romans, they retire with great precipitation, but the emperor's troops overtaking the Squiri before they reached the Danube, cut great numbers of them to pieces, and took the rest prisoners; so that by this overthrow that nation was nearly extirpated

XVI. 174

4715 3408 409 Honorius emperor of the west neglecting to deliver up to Alaric the hostages agreed on, he returns and besieges Rome a second time, and is increased by 40,000 slaves, who made their escape out of the city. Honorius sends 6000 troops to the assistance of Rome, whom Alaric intercepts, and cuts them almost all off. Honorius engages Ataulphus, and kills about 1200 of his men, but cannot stop his going to Rome and joining his brother Alaric

XVI. 175

World.	Y. of Abd.	Y. of Chrif.
4715	3408	409	Olympius , the prime minifter to Honorius, is difgraced and difcharged, and is fucceeded by Jovius prefect of Italy. The foldiers at Ravenna mutiny, and demand the heads of their two generals, and of the emperor's two chamberlains. The fenate fend a fecond meffage to prefs Honorius to perform the articles of peace, among whom was Innocent bifhop of Rome, but without fuccefs. Alaric fends feveral bifhops to him without effect. Then he goes to Rome, and in a few days the inhabitants open the gates to him, when he obliges them to proclaim Attalus, then prefect of the city, emperor, and to renounce Honorius, which they do: Attalus was an Arian, and promoted all of that opinion, making Alaric his generaliffimo	XVI.	177
4715	3408	409	Attalus fends Conftans into Africa, to fecure that province; but he and all his men are cut off by Heraclianus , who hinders all manner of provisions going to Rome, which reduces them foon to great ftreights. Attalus goes from Rome to befiege Honorius in Ravenna: Honorius fends Jovius his prime minifter, Valens the general of his foot, Potamus the quæstor, and Julian his firft fecretary, to wait Attalus's coming to Rimini, and to offer him the partnership in the empire. Jovius betrays his mafter, and Attalus offers him only his life, and liberty to retire to what ifland he pleased. Attalus fends another body of troops more numerous than the former into Africa, who were alfo cut off by Heraclianus , who alfo fent Honorius a feafonable fupply of money, which he immediately diftributed among the foldiery, with good effect. Alaric reduced Liguria and Æmilia , except Bononia, and proclaimed Attalus every where, and forced the people to fwear allegiance to him	XVI.	179
4715	3408	409	Gerontius revolts from Constantine in Spain, and fets up one Maximus for emperor; upon which the Vandals, Suevians, and Alans, that Constantine had permitted to remain in Gaul, flew to arms, and took feveral cities	XVI.	180
4715	3408	409	The Vandals, &c. break into Spain, and proving too hard a match for the Romans, then commanded by Conftans , fon of the emperor Constantine , fettle there, and divide thofe provinces among them	XIX.	197
4715	3408	409	All the Armorici, or inhabitants of the fea coasts, fhake off the Roman yoke, and erect a new ftate and government, which proved but fhort lived	XVI.	179
4715	3408	409	The Vandals, Alans, and Suevians quit Gaul, and enter Spain, and take feveral cities, and defeat Constantine's army that he had fent againft Gerontius , under the command of his fon Conftans , and forces him to return to his father at Arles, and entered into a league with Gerontius , and then over-run the country, committing the moft horrid cruelties, and continued this favage treatment till 411, when having conquered the whole country, they fet about tilling the land for their own fubfiftance.	XVI.	180
4715	3408	409	The populace rife at Constantinople , and burn the palace of Monaxes , præfect of the city, upon account of the fcarcity of bread. The rich men make a voluntary contribution, and divide it among the poor, and whip the bakers through the ftreets, and fo appeafe the multitude	XVI.	181
4716	3409	410	The Britons having often implored the Romans to affift them without fuccefs, fhook off all obedience to them; but not being able to withstand the continual irruptions of their enemies, again implore the assistance of Honorius, who sent them a legion; these coming unexpectedly, cut the Scots and Picts in great numbers to pieces, and drove them into their own territories; and after advising the natives to rebuild the wall, returned to the emperor.

XVIII. 718

4716 3409 410 Heraclian keeping the ports of Africa so well guarded, that the Romans could get no sustenance from thence, they were reduced to the necessity of eating human flesh. Alaric and Attalus go to Rome to consult about the measures of relieving Rome. Alaric proposes to send Gomarac, one of his officers, with a detachment of Goths to force Africa: Attalus refuses to employ the Goths, which so exasperated Alaric, that he sent moderate proposals to Honorius, who seemingly complied therewith. Alaric publicly stripped Attalus of all the badges of sovereignty, and sent them to Honorius, and insisted on Attalus and his son Ampelius being pardoned; and then Alaric goes towards Ravenna, to finish the peace: But Sarus the Goth, with 300 men, having remained neuter, Attaulphus goes against him; upon which he declared for Honorius, and went to Ravenna, where being kindly received, so provoked Alaric, that he returned to Rome, and reinstated Attalus again in the sovereign power, and in a few days deposed him again, besieged Rome, and reduced it to extream necessities, and took it the 24th of August, and gave his soldiers leave to plunder the town, but ordered them not to kill the people. After five or six days spent in plunder, they burnt the greatest part of the city to ashes, and vast numbers of the people were massacred, but they spared all those that fled to the churches for safety, which were the only buildings that were not destroyed.

XVI. 184

4716 3409 410 Alaric goes from Rome into Campania, with his vast booty, and multitudes of captives, among whom was Placidia, the sister of Honorius, whom he treated with great respect; and after laying waste Campania, Lucania, Samnium, Apulia, Calabria, and Brutii, he went towards the Straights of Sicily, intending to go from thence into Africa; but his fleet being shipwrecked, he remained near Rhegium, where he was suddenly taken ill, and died in a few days. The Goths, for fear any insult should be offered to his bones, turned the course of the Busento near Consenza in the farther Calabria, and burned him with many rich spoils in the bed of the river, and then let the waters return to their old course, and run over him, and killed all the slaves they employed in the work, and then chose Attaulphus, his sister's husband, for their king in his stead.

XVI. 186

4716 3409 410 Constantine comes out of Gaul, where he reigned, prepares to enter Italy, under the pretence of helping Honorius; but being obliged to return into Gaul to repel Gericus, who had pursued his son Constans out of Spain, Constantine sends to beg help of the Franks and Germans. Gericus besieges his son Constans in Vienne, took it and him, puts Constans to death, and goes and besieges Constantine in Arles.

XVI. 186

4716 3409 410 By the wise administration of Anthemius, all remained quiet and secure in the east, where Andronicus, governor of Pentapolis, being proved guilty of extortion, &c. was first excommunicated by Synesius bishop of Ptolemais, and then degraded from his government.

XVI. 186

4717 3410 411 The emperor Honorius sends Constantius with an army into Gaul against Constantine, for coming into Italy without desire: He is joined by many of the troops of Geroncius, who forsook their master, upon which he raised the siege of Arles, and fled into Spain, where for his severity his soldiers mutiny, and force him to kill his wife, his friend, and then himself. Maximus, whom Geroncius had set up in Spain, is brought by his own men to Constantius, who stripped him of his authority, but spared his life. Constantius besieged Constantine in Arles, when after four months Edobichus comes with a very numerous army of Franks to his assistance, which Constantius engaging, presently routed with great slaughter; when, upon oath promising to spare the lives of Constantine and his son, the gates of Arles were opened to him; but they being sent to Honorius, he ordered them both to be beheaded.

XVI. 189

4717 3410 411 The Ausurians, a Moorish nation, broke into Pentapolis, and laid the province waste, but were soon driven out by Anysius the governor. The Saracens break into the frontiers of Egypt, Palestine, Phenicia, and Syria, and carry off great booty.

XVI. 189

4717 3410 411 The Sueves, &c. having entirely driven the Romans out of Spain, make peace with the natives, and divided the Spanish provinces by lot among them.

XIX. 224

4718 3411 412 The Goths under Ataulphus quit Italy, and go into Gaul, and ravage all the places they come to.

XVI. 189

4718 3411 412 Sarus the Goth being disgusted at Honorius, goes into Gaul to join Jovinus, that had declared himself emperor there, upon the deposition of Constantine; which Ataulphus hearing, meets and takes him, and soon after puts him to death. Jovinus finding fault with Ataulphus for it, and promoting his brother Sebastian to be his partner in the empire, Ataulphus sends word to Honorius, that if he would furnish him with a quantity of corn, he would set his sister Placidia at liberty, and send him the heads of the two rebels; which being readily agreed to by Honorius, Ataulphus soon dispatched Sebastian, but Jovinus fled to Valence, where Ataulphus besieged and took him, and delivered him to Dardanus, præfect of Gaul, who put him to death at Narbonne.

XVI. 190

4719 3412 413 Lucius and Heraclianus were consuls this year; but after defending Africa gallantly a long time, Heraclianus revolts from Honorius, and proclaims himself emperor, fits out a prodigious fleet, lands in Italy, and marches directly to Rome. Count Marinus goes out against him, upon which he flies, gets into one of his ships, and returns alone to Africa: His men submit, and are pardoned, and himself soon after cut to pieces in Africa.

XVI. 191

4719 3412 413 The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, set fire to the city of Treves, and lay the country waste.

XIX. 257

4719 3412 413 The Burgundians, Vandals, and Alans, who entered Gaul in 407, make themselves masters of Alsatia, and are allowed to settle there, which gave rise to the kingdom of the Burgundians in Gaul, under Gondicarius or Guntariarius.

XIX. 300

4719 3712 413 Ataulphus begins hostilities again, took Narbonne and Toulouse, and goes to Marseilles, where count Bonifacius engages him, kills great numbers of his men, wounds him-

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4719	3412	413	self, and makes him retire, when he went to Bourdeaux, where he was received as a friend.	XVI.	192
4720	3413	414	Lucius , a Pagan, having the command of the troops attending the court of young Theodosius, being displeased at the zeal of the young prince for Christianity, resolves to assassinate him, but is hindered by an imaginary apparition. This year Constantinople was surrounded with walls, twenty miles in circumference, in two months time.	XVI.	193
4720	3413	414	Placidia , sister to the emperor Honorius, is prevailed on to marry Ataulphus king of the Goths, at Narbonne in Gaul, after having been long his prisoner of war, in January, where the nuptials were celebrated with the utmost magnificence: He presented her with 50 basons filled with pieces of gold, and 50 filled with jewels and precious stones. Honorius not consenting to this match, Ataulphus set up Attalus again to be emperor, to bring Honorius to his terms.	XVI.	194
4720	3413	414	Honorius published a law, forbidding any one to molest such as should take sanctuary in churches, on pain of being punished for high-treason.	XVI.	195
4720	3413	414	Anthemius resigns his government of the empire and emperor to Pulcheria, sister to the emperor Theodosius, for her extraordinary wisdom and piety, on which account she is honoured with the name of Augusta.	XVI.	195
4721	3414	415	Theodosius , son of Ataulphus and Placidia, dies in Spain, and is buried in a silver coffin in a church near Barcelona, where Ataulphus was killed in August or September in his own stable, by Dobbis a Goth, one of his servants, whose master he had killed several years before. Upon which the Goths choose Sigeric, the brother of Sarus, for their king, who murders the six children of Ataulphus by his first wife, in revenge for the life of his brother Sarus, and obliged Placidia with other captives to walk twelve miles before his chariot, for which he was assassinated by his own people, the 7th day after his promotion, and Vallia chose in his room, after he had murdered all who stood in competition with him.	XVI.	196
4721	3414	415	Ataulphus king of the Goths being driven out of Gaul, flies into Spain, and is murdered.	XIX.	153
4721	3414	415	A great tumult happened at Alexandria; the Christians and Jews, that were very numerous, quarrelling about some sports that were exhibited on a Saturday. St. Cyril the bishop of the city threatened to drive all the Jews out of it; upon this the Jews having armed themselves, in the dead of the night cried out the great church was on fire; upon which the Christians coming out of their houses to quench the fire, were massacred in great numbers; for which the bishop drove them all out of the city; Orestes the governor resented it as an incroachment upon his authority: Both write to court; the hermits fly to the city for refuge, and revile Orestes with the names of Pagan and Idolater, and Ammonius wounded him on the head with a stone; the monk was seized, and by the præfect racked to death. The populace seized Hypatia, daughter of the philosopher Theon, a person much famed for her great wisdom, and because she was respected by Orestes, they dragged her out of her chariot into a neighbouring church, and flayed her alive, then tore her to pieces, and burnt her mangled carcase.	XVI.	197
4721	3414	415	Theodosius publishes a law to exclude Pagans from all employ-

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
4722	3415	416	ments both civil and military, and deposed Gamaliel patriarch of the Jews, for abusing his authority.	XVI.	198
4723	3416	417	Vallia king of the Goths sent a fleet out to go and reduce Africa, which is destroyed by shipwreck near the Streights of Gibraltar, and most of his Goths on board drowned. He treats with Constantius, and concludes a peace with Honorius, delivers up hostages, and for 600,000 measures of corn sends back Placidia to her brother. Attalus is taken, has his right-hand cut off, and is banished to the island of Lipari.	XVI.	198
4723	3416	417	Honorius gives his sister to Constantius his general to wife, the 1st of January against her consent. The Armorici, who formed themselves into a new sort of government in 409, are reduced again to the Roman subjection by Constantius, now brother-in-law to the emperor Honorius.	XVI.	199
4723	3416	417	Honorius goes to Rome, which he enters in triumph, causing Attalus to be fetched from Lipari to walk before his chariot, and then sent him back into exile again. This year the Franks, after dwelling 200 years on the German side of the Rhine, are allowed to come and settle in Thongria, where they were governed by as many kings as they consisted of cities or cantons.	XVI.	199
4723	3416	417	In the east Constantinople, and Cibyra in Phrygia, suffered very much by an earthquake, which threw down a great many houses.	XVI.	199
4723	3416	417	Vallia in Spain cuts off those Vandals called Silingi, that had settled in Bætica or Andalusia, and terribly mauled the Alans, who ruled over the Vandals and Suevians in Spain, whose king Ata being killed, they flew to Gonderic king of the Vandals in Galicia, and submitted to him: For these services, and delivering up his conquests, Constantius gave Vallia and his Goths Aquitania Secunda, containing the present archbishoprick of Bourdeaux, and some neighbouring cities, and soon after the province of Auch and Gascoyn. Vallia fixed his abode at Thoulouse, which became the capital of the kingdom of the Goths.	XIX.	155
4724	3417	418	Honorius declares by law the right and privilege of sanctuary to all places within 50 paces of every church, and declares those guilty of sacrilege that should arrest any person within that space.	XVI.	200
4724	3417	418	Placidia is delivered of a son at Ravenna, the 2d of July, named Valentinian, who succeeded his uncle Honorius in the empire.	XVI.	201
4724	3417	418	In Spain Gonderic king of the Vandals drives Eremeric king of the Suevians into the mountains of Biscay, where he blocked him up. Asterius, count of Spain, and Maurocelus the vicar, cuts off great numbers of Gonderic's men, and forced the rest to retire to Bætica.	XVI.	201
4726	3419	420	The Franks pillage and burn Treves a 3d time.	XIX.	257
4726	3419	420	Honorius raises Constantius his brother-in-law on the 8th of February to the imperial dignity, and declares him his colleague, and gave his wife Placidia the title of Augusta. Upon sending their statues to Constantinople, Theodosius refused to acknowledge them; but Constantius dying the 2d of September following, put an end to all disputes.	XVI.	201
4726	3419	420	The emperor Theodosius on the 17th of June marries Eudocia, the daughter of Heraclitus, an Athenian philosopher, she being first baptized by Atticus bishop of Constantinople.	XVI.	202
4727	3420	421	Isdigerdes, king of Persia, dies, and is succeeded by his son

Y. of
world.
Y. of Good.
Y. of Christ.

Varanes the 5th. Abdas, the Persian Christian prelate, thro' intemperate zeal, burns down a Pagan temple; and being by the king requested to rebuild it, refused, for which he was put to death. All the Christian churches were demolished, and a terrible persecution followed. Theodosius complain'd of this and other matters, and both sides prepare for war. Ardaburius, the Roman general, goes into Azazene, a Persian province, and began to lay it waste with fire and sword. Narses, the Persian general, comes and gives him battle, but is defeated, and goes into Mesopotamia, a Roman province; upon which Ardaburius blocks up Nisibis. Varanes solicits the Saracens to break with the Romans, which they readily comply'd with, and passed the Euphrates with a mighty army, and ravaged the Roman province so terribly, that the people joining the soldiers, engaged them, and cut off 100,000 of them, and forced the remainner to return home. Varanes goes with a mighty army to the relief of Nisibis; upon which the Romans retire, and the king returns to his capital. This done, the Romans engage his generals, and defeat them, and a second time repulse the Saracens, and overthrow the Persians, killing them abundance of men and seven generals. Soon after a corps of 10,000, called, Immortals, were attacked by the Romans, and every man of them cut off, upon which a peace was concluded for a 100 years.

XI.

113

4728 3421 422 Honorius sends Castinus with a fine army into Spain, to recover it out of the hands of the Barbarians; but he imprudently venturing a battle, has 20,000 of his men cut off.

XVI.

206

4728 3421 422 The Britons being in great distress, through the ravages of the Picts, &c. implore help from the Romans, who grant it, and drive out the enemies.

XVIII. 748

4729 3422 423 Honorius, who till now had entertain'd his sister Placidia with all the love and respect possible, suddenly changes his behaviour to the contrary; upon which she, her son Valentinian, and daughter Honorius, quit the court, and retire to Constantinople, where they are received with great affection by Theodosius. Soon after Honorius dies at Ravenna, upon which Theodorus proclaims himself emperor; but John, the late emperor's chief secretary, sets up himself at Rome, and is acknowledged in Rome, Italy, Dalmatia and Gaul, and sends ambassadors to Theodosius, who ordered them to be imprisoned, and prepares for war.

XVI.

213

4730 3423 424 Theodosius creates Placidia Augusta, and her son Valentinian Cæsar, and sends them with his army against the usurper John; Salonæ is taken by storm, and then they go to Aquileia with the army by land, under the command of Aspar the son; but Ardaburius the father going by sea, is shipwreck'd and taken by John, who uses him civilly. He gives information to his son Aspar, who comes at unawares, and seizes the city of Ravenna, took the usurper, and sent him in chains to Placidia at Aquileia, where he was beheaded, after bearing the title of emperor about eighteen months.

XVI.

216

4731 3424 425 Three days after the death of the usurper, John Aetius comes into Italy to his assistance with 60,000 Hunns: Aspar meets him, and a bloody engagement happens, without any considerable advantage on either side; but Aetius being informed of the death of John, makes the best terms he can for himself; Placidia not only pardons, but takes him into favour, with the title of count, (at that time a title of great note:) He submits, and prevails upon the Hunns to return home. Theodosius, upon hearing Placidia's success, declares Valentinian her son, his young cousin and son-in-law, emperor, and Placidia regent during his minority.

XVI. 216

4731 3424 425 The Vandals, who had settled in Spain, ravaged the Balearrick islands; and the Goths, who had been permitted to settle in Gaul, seized on the neighbouring cities, and laid siege to Arles, which Aetius obliged them to raise. Thrace was laid waste by the Hunns, but a plague raging in their army they retired.

XVI. 216

4733 3426 427 Theodosius transplanted the Goths that had been settled in Pannonia 50 years before into Thrace, where they continued 58 years.

XVI. 217

4734 3427 428 Pharamond king of the Franks dies, and is succeeded by his son Clodio.

XIX. 259

4734 3427 428 Count Bonifacius in Africa revolts from Valentinian; Placidia sends a large army under the command of Mavortius, Galbio, and Sinex, who were all intirely defeated; upon which she sent Sigisvult the Goth, who with the assistance of his countrymen, took Carthage and Hippo; Bonifacius begs the help of the Vandals under the command of Genseric; they came from Spain, men, women, and children.

XVI. 218

4734 3427 428 The Vandals evacuate Spain, and go and settle in Africa, where they commit most terrible ravages.

XIX. 203

4736 3429 430 Aetius is made commander of all the troops in the western empire, who gained great advantages over the Juthongi, the revolted Noricans, the Franks, and the Goths in Gaul.

XVI. 219

4736 3429 430 A body of Sueves attempting to cross the Rhine in order to go and join their brethren settled in Galicia in Spain, are attacked by Aetius the Roman general, who cut great numbers of them to pieces, and obliged the rest to return to their own home between the Elbe and Weisfel.

XIX. 225

4737 3433 431 Aetius intirely reduced the Norici and Vindelici. The true reason of Bonifacius's revolting comes to light; Placidia and he are reconciled, when he strives to free Africa of Genseric and his companions, by offering them large sums to return home: Genseric rejects his offer, falls upon him, and cuts off most of his men, and forces him to fly to Hippo.

XVI. 221

4737 3433 431 An oecumenical council was held at Ephesus, where Nestorius bishop of Constantinople was condemned, by upwards of 200 bishops, for holding two persons as well as two natures in Christ. St. Austin, bishop of Hippo in Africa, dies in the 4th month of its siege by the Vandals.

XVI. 222

4738 3431 432 Bonifacius engages the Vandals in Africa, is overthrown with great slaughter, many taken prisoners, and the rest forced to shelter themselves among the rocks and mountains; after which the Vandals committed such dreadful ravages, that the inhabitants of Hippo quitted the city, which was first plundered and then set on fire. Bonifacius retires to Placidia, at Ravenna. Aetius perceiving his treachery was discovered, meets and engages Bonifacius, who being much wounded, died soon after. Aetius withdraws to the court of Rouas, king of the Huns, and Litorius.

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.			Vol.	Page.
4745	3438	439	Litorius , as auxiliary to the Romans, with his army of Hunns besieges Thoulouse, the capital of the Goths; upon which Theodoric king of the Goths goes out gives them battle, overcome them, and takes Litorius prisoner.		XIX.	156
4746	3439	440	Cyrus alone was consul, who, as he was a great proficient in polite literature, especially poetry, was much esteemed, and particularly by the emperors; and as he went into the Circus with the consular ornaments, the people received him with such acclamations, as made the emperor jealous, and a few days afterwards stripped him of all his employments, and confiscated his estate, &c. pretending that he inclined to Paganism, and aspired at the empire, but flying into a church for refuge, he got himself ordained a priest. The emperor granted him his life, and afterwards made him bishop of Cotyea in Phrygia.		XVI.	229
4746	3439	441	Arfaces king of Armenia dying, and leaving two sons, Tigranes and Arfaces by his will divided the kingdom between them; Arfaces disliking his share, appeals to Theodosius , who espouses his cause, and threatens Tigranes with war; upon which he resign'd up the whole to his brother, and retired to the Persian court, where he lived privately. Arfaces , for fear of the Persians, surrendered up the whole to Theodosius , and so put an end to the Armenian kingdom, after it had subsisted many ages, and occasioned many bloody wars.		XVI.	230
4747	3440	441	The empire being vastly weakned, Theodosius is forced to make peace with Attila king of the Hunns, conditioning to deliver up such Hunns as had or should take refuge in the Roman dominions; that every Roman prisoner that made his escape from the Hunns, without paying his ransom, should be delivered up, or have eight pieces of gold paid for him; that the Romans annually should pay the Hunns 700 lb. weight of gold; that the Romans should not assist the enemies of the Hunns, &c. In consequence of this treaty, Attila conquered all the nations north of the Euxine sea; then crossing the Danube, over-run Thrace, and demands all the Hunns that sheltered themselves in the Roman dominions. This being refused, Attila began to ravage the country, and put all to fire and sword, and forced the emperor to retire from Constantinople into Asia for his better security.		XVI.	232
4748	3441	442	Theodosius concludes another shameful peace with Attila king of the Hunns, and returns to Constantinople, the 28th of August, where he was forced to keep Attila in temper, by making him frequently extraordinary presents. 'Tis said Attila sent two Goths embassadors to the two emperors; one to Theodosius and one to Valentinian , charging them to say, "Attila, my master and yours, commands you to get a palace ready for his reception."		XVI.	233
4748	3441	442	The Sueves, under the direction and command of their king Rochila , take the city of Seville in Spain, reduce all Bética, and the province of Carthagera.		XIX.	226
4748	3441	442	The emperor Valentinian III. makes peace with Genseric king of the Vandals, and confirms to him all his conquests in Africa.		XIX.	207
4738	3441	442	Varanes , the fifth king of Persia, dies, and is succeeded by Varanes the sixth; by some called Isdigertes , who lived peaceably with the Romans seventeen years and four months, and then died.		XI.	114

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4749	3442	443	Theodosius visits Pontus, and causes the public edifices and walls of Heraclea to be repaired.	XVI.	233
4749	3442	443	Pascasinus , bishop of Lilybæum in Sicily, returns from captivity in Africa, where he had been kept upwards of three years, by Genferic king of the Vandals, in a miserable condition.	XIX.	206
4750	3443	444	Arcadia , the sister of Theodosius, dies, and Antiochus the eunuch, and great chamberlain to Theodosius, is degraded from the rank of a Patrician, and confined to the monastery of St. Euphemia at Chalcedon; stripped of all his immense wealth, and deprived of all his honours, for extorting upon the people, and a law is made, for ever excluding all eunuchs from the patrician dignity.	XVI.	233
4751	3444	445	Vitus , the Roman general, is defeated in Spain by the Sueves, who under Rochila their king cut off most of his men, and oblige him to save himself by flight.	XVI.	234
4752	3445	446	Aetius , being this year consul the third time, the Britons cruelly harrassed by the Picts and Scots, beg assistance from him, but obtain no relief. What the sword left, the plague took away; so that they were forced to invite the Saxons, who come into that island.	XVI.	234
4753	3446	447	A terrible plague the foregoing and this year rages in most of the provinces, and a violent earthquake overturned several cities, and great part of the new walls of Constantinople, and fifty-seven towers, together with many sumptuous edifices, in Antioch and Alexandria.	XVI.	234
4753	3446	447	Attila joined by the Goths, Alani, and Gepidæ, over-run Illyricum, Thrace, both Dacia's, Mæsia and Scythia; took and plundered seventy cities, &c. extending themselves from the Euxine sea to the streights of Thermopylæ. Arnegiselus, governor of Mæsia, opposes and cuts great numbers of them to pieces; but falling from his horse, is killed and his army put to the rout, and the same happened to others.	XIX.	67
4753	3446	447	Rochila , king of the Suevians, dies in Spain, and is succeeded by his son Requiarius, who tho' he professed himself a Christian, yet began his reign with plundering his neighbours.	XIX.	227
4754	3447	448	The Romans sue for peace to Attila, who grants it upon condition that they pay 6000 lb. weight of gold down, and every year 200 lb. weight; that they should return back all deserters, and for the future receive none; that they should pay 12 lb. weight of gold for every Roman captive that escaped without ransom, or send them back, &c.	XVI.	235
4754	3447	448	Requiarius , king of the Sueves, marries the daughter of Theodoric, king of the Goths in Languedoc, and visiting him at Thoulouse, in his return to Spain, surprized the city of Lerida, and carried off a great number of captives, and then pillaged the territory of Saragossa.	XVI.	235
4754	3447	448	Attila falsely claims certain curious vessels belonging to the church, pretending that one Silvanus, a Roman banker, had stolen them from him, and threatened Valentinian with war, if he did not surrender them.	XVI.	236
4754	3447	448	Clodio king of the Franks dies, and is succeeded by his younger son Merovæus.	XIX.	269
4755	3448	448	Attila sends Edecon his ambassador to Constantinople, where Chrysaphus, the great chamberlain, backed by Theodosius, promises Edecon great rewards to dispatch his master, and sent Vigilus the interpreter with him to the court of Attila, to be assistant in the affair. Edecon discovers the world.

Y. of
Y. of flood.
Y. of Christ.

4756

3449

450

4756

3449

450

4756

3449

450

4757

3450

451

4757

3450

451

4758

3451

452

4758

3451

452

matter to Attila; Vigilius is seized, and Attila sends Orestes his secretary to reproach Theodosius, and demand Chrysaphus; but Nomus, and several other persons of distinction, make up the business.

The emperor Theodosius is so much bruised by a fall from his horse in hunting, that being with much difficulty carried to Constantinople in a chair, he died there the next day, the 28th of July, in the 50th year of his age, and the 43d of his reign from the death of his father, and is buried in the same tomb with his father Arcadius. He is allowed to have been a prince of exemplary piety, tho' but of slender parts, being much governed by his eunuchs and favourites.

Pulcheria, sister of the late emperor Theodosius, declares Marcianus (a person of extraordinary qualifications, tho' of no great birth) emperor, which the senate confirms, and crowned him at Hebdomon, the 24th of August, with great solemnity, and then Pulcheria married him with mighty pomp.

Pulcheria, mother of Valentinian, dies at Ravenna, (where her tomb is still to be seen) after governing the western empire 26 years.

The emperor Marcian calls the council of Chalcedon, the 8th of October, and ends the first of November.

Attila king of the Hunns sends to the emperor Valentinian, and demands Honoria his sister for his wife, and half the empire for her dowry. He sends ambassadors to Attila, who seems satisfied, but only dissembled his intentions; comes with a mighty army into Gaul, having first defeated the Franks, and taken Childeric and his mother prisoners, pretending friendship to the Romans. Several cities opened their gates to him; but his soldiers plundering and ravaging the inhabitants, shewed him to be an enemy, wherefore others opposed him, and then he pulled off the mask. He besieged and took by storm Tongres, Treves, Strasburgh, Spire, Worms, Mentz. &c. and going into the open country, put all to the sword, and laid Arras, Laon, Befançon, Toul, and Langres, in ashes; and laid siege to Orleans, and took it by storm; and while his men were plundering it, Aetius, Theodoric, &c. came with a large army, and cut abundance of the Hunns to pieces, forced Attila to repass the Loire, in which many of his men were drowned. At last he reached the plains of Chalons, where they engage. Theodoric king of the Visigoths is slain, and about 300,000 men on both sides, after which Attila retired into Pannonia.

The Nubians and Blemmyes broke into the eastern empire, but Marcian forces them to accept of peace upon his own terms.

Attila invades Italy, and invests Aquileia the metropolis of Venetia, battering it continually for the space of three months, when he took it by assault, and reduced every house in it to ashes, and killed every person that fell into his hands. The cities of Treviso, Verona, Mantua, Cremona, Brescia, and Bergamo, suffered the same fate. Milan, the metropolis of Liguria, he also took, and burnt the cities round about. Valentinian sends Leo bishop of Rome, and some others, to treat with Attila about an accommodation, who concluded a truce with him.

XVI. 236

XVI. 237

XVI. 242

XVI. 244

XVI. 252

XIX. 80

XVI. 253

XIX. 91

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Page
4725	3452	453	Attila enters that part of Gaul now called Dauphiny; but is entirely routed by Sangibar king of the Alans, and Thorismond king of the Visigoths. Upon his return home, he married a beautiful young woman, and drinking to excess, in the night bled to death; and with him ended the empire of the Hunns.	XIX. 92
4759	3452	453	Attila by will appointed Ellack his eldest son his successor; but a civil war happening between him, his brethren, and the conquered nations, Ellack is killed in battle, and the Hunns entirely routed, with a great slaughter on the banks of the Netad in Pannonia.	XIX. 94
4759	3452	453	Thorismond , king of the Visigoths, is murdered, and succeeded by his brother Theodoric the second.	XIX. 159
4759	3452	453	The empress Pulcheria dies, and leaves an immense stock of wealth to the poor, and was honoured with the title of Saint both by the Greeks and Latins.	XVI. 253
4760	3453	454	Aetius , now consul the 4th time, is accused by Heraclius the eunuch, to the emperor Valentinian, who being a weak prince, believes the insinuation; sends to speak with him in privacy, and himself and several others stab Aetius to death with their swords.	XVI. 254
4761	3454	455	The emperor Valentinian having violently forced the chastity of Petronius Maximus, Maximus hires two Barbarians to murder Valentinian, who come into the Campus Martius and killed him, and his favourite eunuch Heraclius, in the face of the whole court, the 17th of March, in the 34th year of his age, and 30th of his reign. The next day Maximus assumed the purple, and being saluted by all the people with the title of Augustus, he immediately raised his son Palladius to the dignity of Cæsar; and his wife dying, he obliged Eudoxia, wife of the late emperor, to marry him against her will, and married her daughter Eudoxia to his son Palladius. She sends to Genferic king of the Vandals in Africa, and begs him to rescue her out of the arms of the tyrant, and to revenge the murder of his friend, he comes with a mighty fleet and army to Rome. Maximus frightened flies, upon which the people pursue and kill him. Three days after, viz. the 15th of June, Genferic enters Rome, and gave it up to be plundered, strictly forbidding his soldiers either to burn the city, or kill the people. They pillaged the houses, churches, and all the public edifices, for fourteen days, and carried away a vast number of captives, each taking as many women as he liked. Genferic stripped the place, and took with him Eudoxia and her two daughters, and Gaudentius the son of Aetius.	XIX. 207
4761	3454	455	Flavius Mæcilius Avitus , who had been appointed, by the deceased Maximus, commander in chief of all the Roman forces, and was now at the court of Theodoric king of the Visigoths, at Thoulouse, is by him prompted to assume the purple; and the 8th of August following was declared emperor at Arles by all the soldiery; from whence he went to Rome, where he was received with the universal applause of all the people, and Marcian readily acknowledged him for his colleague.	XVI. 262
4762	3455	456	Requiarius , king of the Suevians in Spain, wars upon the Visigoths in Aquitain, and laid the province of Tarraco waste. His brother-in-law Theodoric, as ally of Rome, endeavours to persuade him to peace and good neighbourhood; but he answering very haughtily, they come to

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			blows, in which Requiarius was entirely defeated, and forced to fly; is pursued, taken, and put to death, and the Sueves submit to Theodoric, who sets one Aquilphus as governor over them. Aquilphus revolts, and proclaims himself king of the Sueves, but dies soon after.	XIX.	239
4762	3455	456	Gundiac king of the Burgundians joins Theodoric king of the Visigoths, and goes with him into Spain, where they discomfit the Sueves; but in their return home, the Burgundians seized on part of Gaul.
4762	3455	456	Genferic puts to sea with a numerous fleet and army: designs to ravage the coasts of Italy and Gaul; was met and engaged by Ricimer, the Roman admiral, and entirely defeated; elated with his success, Ricimer and one Majorianus go to Rome, and oblige the senate to depose Avitus, who was then in Gaul, but Avitus coming back, was met by Ricimer at Placentia, who there stripped him of all the ensigns of majesty; upon which Avitus caused himself to be ordained bishop of Placentia; but the senate insisted upon his being put to death, he retired towards Brioude, and died by the way.	XVI.	265
4762	3455	456	The Burgundians dwelling amongst the mountains of Savoy, seize on part of Gaul, and take Lions.	XVI.	265
4762	3455	456	The Heruli make a descent upon Galicia in Spain; but not succeeding, they sail to Biscay, where they land, and commit great ravages, &c.	XIX.	343
4763	3456	457	Marcian , the emperor of the east, dies in the seventh year of his reign, and is succeeded by Leo, (surnamed the Great) with the unanimous consent of the senate, people and soldiery, and crowned by Anatolius, patriarch of Constantinople, being the first prince that received his crown at the hands of a bishop. The Eutychians in Alexandria rose in a tumultuous manner, murdered the Catholic bishop Proterus, and chose Timotheus Eleurus, one of their own sect, in his stead.	XVI.	266
4763	3456	457	Majorianus emperor of the west, falling upon the Vandals who were ravaging Campania, defeats and destroys multitudes of them, and retakes the spoil and plunder they had amassed together, and forces the remainder to fly on board their ships.	XIX.	209
4763	3456	457	After three months interregnum, Majorianus (a person of extraordinary merit) is declared emperor in the West, by the senate, people and soldiery.	XVI.	266
4763	3456	457	Theodoric king of the Visigoths, having entirely reduced the Sueves in Galicia, enters Lusitania, takes Merida the metropolis, and several other cities; and then goes to Thoulouse. Having left a body of troops to reduce some few Suevians in Galicia, who being admitted as friends into Astorga, a town belonging to the Romans, put most of the inhabitants to the sword, plundered the houses, set fire to the place, and carried those that remained alive into captivity; among the rest, the whole clergy and two bishops that happened to be there. Palentia met with the same fate.	XVI.	267
4763	3456	457	Hengist the Saxon having overcome Vortigern in a battle fought in Kent, made himself king thereof.	XIX.	18
4764	3457	458	The Vandals make a descent into Campania; the emperor Majorianus goes against them, defeats them, and puts great numbers to the sword, among whom was their commander, brother-in-law to Genferic; the rest fly to Africa.	XVI.	268

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4764	3457	458	Maldras the Suevian king orders that part of Galicia, which lay on the Douro, to be laid waste, contrary to the peace that had been concluded the year before.	XIX.	230
4764	3457	458	Upon Vortigern's retirement, Aurelius Ambrosius takes upon him the command of the British army, and becomes their king.	XIX.	18
4764	3457	458	Majorianus enters Gaul, and obliges the Burgundians to surrender Lyons, which they had taken, and to retire.	XVI.	268
4765	3458	459	Peroses succeeds his father Varanes the 6th in the kingdom of Persia, and going against the Euthalites or White Hunns, was by them drawn into a snare, that cut off abundance of his men by famine, and compelled him to do homage to their king, and swear never to trouble them again.	XI.	114
4765	3458	459	Theoderic surprized some cities in Gaul, belonging to the Romans. Majorianus goes against him, engages and in a pitch'd battle defeats him, and forces him to sue for peace.	XVI.	268
4765	3458	459	The city of Antioch was almost entirely overthrown by an earthquake.	XVI.	269
4766	3459	460	Genseric sues to the Romans for peace, but is denied; whereupon attacking the Roman fleet in the bay of Alicant, took most of their ships, and carried them in triumph to Africa; and soon after a peace was concluded.	XIX.	210
4766	3459	460	An earthquake overturned a great part of the city of Cyzicus.	XVI.	270
4766	3459	460	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, and having ravaged the most wealthy provinces there, made an irruption into Italy.	XIX.	244
4766	3459	460	Ricimer gets the emperor Majorianus by treachery into his power, strips him of the imperial ornaments at Tortona in the Milanese, the second, and put him to death the 7th of August; and proclaimed one Severus , the 19th of November following, at Ravenna.	XVI.	270
4767	3460	461	Leo emperor in the East refusing to pay the usual pension to the Ostrogoths, allowed to settle in Pannonia, they fly to arms, laid waste Illyricum, and took several cities; but Athemius drives them into Pannonia again, and then concludes a peace with them.	XVI.	270
4767	3460	461	Genseric sends a powerful fleet to pillage the coasts of Sicily and Italy, and made himself master of Sardinia. The Visigoths take Narbonne, and besiege Arles. Ægidius goes against them, forces them to raise the siege and retire.	XIX.	211
4767	3460	461	Marcellinus revolts from Severus , and retires into Dalmatia, where he establishes a new sovereignty, independent of the empire.	XVI.	271
4768	3461	462	Ægidius gains a great victory over the Visigoths in Gaul, killing many of them, and Frederic their general the king's brother.	XVI.	272
4769	3462	463	Beorgar king of the Alans, having entered Italy, Ricimer meets him near Bergamo, and cuts him and all his men off.	XVI.	272
4770	4463	464	Ægidius being murdered, the Visigoths conquered the greatest part of Gaul.	XVI.	272
4770	3463	464	Childeric king of the Burgundians besieged and took Paris, and conquered all the provinces bordering upon the Rhine. The Saxons settled at Nantz and Bayeux, the Alemans in the country of the Helvetii, and the Britons, driven out by the Angles and Scots, in the territories of Vennes and Treguier, with the adjacent country, supposed to be called Bretagne, from the Britons.	XVI.	273

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4770	3463	464	Rumarius dying, Rumismund his brother reigns over all the Sueves in Galicia alone.	XIX.	232
4770	3463	464	The Sueves are universally poisoned by one Ajax , an Arian priest, with that heresy.	XIX.	232
4771	3464	465	The emperor Severus dies in the 4th year of his reign, being suspected to be poisoned by Ricimer , and an interregnum of near two years followed, during which Ricimer reigned absolutely without the title of emperor.	XVI.	273
4771	3464	465	A violent fire reduced eight of the fourteen quarters of Constantinople to ashes; it raging six days before it could be extinguished.	XVI.	273
4771	3464	465	Uric murders his brother Theodoric , king of the Visigoths, and succeeds him in the government, who had reigned thirteen years.	XIX.	164
4772	3465	466	Ricimer assembles a powerful fleet in order to recover Africa, but was obliged to lay aside his enterprize, not being able to put out through contrary winds, that blew violently all the summer.	XVI.	273
4772	3465	466	The Hunns, under Dengizic son of Attila , broke into Dacia; but were defeated first by Anthemius , and then by Anagastus general of Thrace, who slew Dengizic , and sent his head to Constantinople.	XIX.	97
4773	3466	467	Ricimer consents that Anthemius count of the east should be proclaimed emperor of the west, being a native of Constantinople, of an antient, illustrious, and wealthy family, and who had married Marciana , the only daughter of the late emperor Marcian , had been consul in 455, and general, and was a patrician, and refused the empire at the death of Marcian : Upon his coming to Rome he was received and proclaimed emperor by the senate and people, with all possible tokens of joy and respect. A few days after he gave his daughter in marriage to Ricimer .	XVI.	274
4773	3466	467	Genferic incensed that Leo had not preferred Olybrius to the western empire, sends a powerful fleet, and ravages Peloponnesus and the Greek islands, and destroys all with fire and sword.	XVI.	274
4774	3467	468	Leo fits out a very great fleet, consisting of 1113 ships, with each 100 men, under the command of Basiliscus , his brother-in-law, and all the best troops of the west under the command of Marcellinus , who went and landed in Sardinia, and recovered the whole island, but was soon after assassinated by one of his officers. Heraclianus landed in Libya, took Tripolis, defeated the Vandals, and reduced the whole province. Basiliscus arrives at cape Mercury, 30 miles from Carthage, where Genferic sends ambassadors to treat with him (and bribing him with a very large sum of money) Basiliscus made a short truce, during which time Genferic sailed out in the night with a great many fire ships, and set fire to the Roman fleet, and destroyed abundance of them, and put the whole into great confusion; during which Genferic's fleet fell upon them, took several, sunk others, and put the whole to flight, with the slaughter of 50,000 men: This expedition is said to have cost both empires above 130,000 pounds weight of gold.	XIX.	215
4774	3467	468	The Romans are totally routed out of Spain by Euric king of the Goths.	XIX.	165
4774	3467	468	The emperor Leo marries his daughter Ariadne to one Leo an Isaurian, to be a check upon Aspar , and raised him to the patrician rank, made him captain of his guards, and commander of all the armies in the east.	XVI.	277

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4774	3467	468	Rumismund king of the Sueves sets down before Lisbon, which the governor Lusides , a Lusitanian, betrays to him: And the Goths surprize Merida , and commit dreadful ravages in the country, sparing neither Roman nor Sueves.	XVI.	277
4776	3469	470	Ella , &c. the Saxon, comes with fresh troops, and after defeating the Britons, possess themselves of the sea coast of Suffex .	XIX.	20
4776	3469	470	Childeric extends his conquests as far as the Loire , and takes Paris , and then makes himself master of Angers , after having killed count Paul the Roman general.	XIX.	269
4777	3470	471	Leo and Aspar quarrelling, to reconcile them, Leo marries one of his daughters to Patricius Secundus , Aspar's eldest son, and created Aspar Cæsar , which heightning their natural pride, they plot against the emperor, which being discovered, Aspar is murdered by the eunuchs of the palace; upon which the Goths rise in Constantinople , and do great mischief: Zeno goes against them, and drove them out of the city with great slaughter, when they retire into Thrace , and commit great ravages; and being joined by the Goths in Pannonia , they take Philippi and Arcadiopolis : But upon the emperor's paying them a large sum of money they lay down their arms, and restore the cities, &c.	XVI.	279
4777	3470	471	Leo publishes several laws against the Arians, deprived them of their liberty, and forbid them to hold any publick or private assemblies.	XVI.	279
4777	3470	471	All the British princes engage Ella , but are defeated.	XIX.	21
4777	3470	471	Euric king of the Visigoths gains great advantages over the Romans in Gaul .	XIX.	166
4778	3471	472	Ricimer revolts from Anthemius , and besieges him in Rome : The Romans, though afflicted with famine and the plague, made a stout resistance. Bilimer , the emperor's general in Gaul , comes to his assistance, but is overthrown by Ricimer ; who then taking the city by storm, permitted his men to commit the most dreadful ravages and cruelties: The emperor was put to death, and Olybrius proclaimed in his stead the 11th of July; and the 19th of September following Ricimer died of a violent pain in his bowels; Olybrius likewise died at Rome the 23d of October following.	XVI.	280
4778	3471	472	Mount Vesuvius in Campania threw up such a vast quantity of fiery ashes as turned night into day even at Constantinople ; where the streets and houses were covered with ashes three inches thick.	XVI.	280
4779	3472	473	Glycerius at Ravenna proclaims himself emperor the 5th of March, supported by Gondibal , nephew of Ricimer . The Goths resolve to make war upon both empires, and send Videmir to break into Italy; but he dying soon after, Glycerius by rich presents prevails upon his son to retire, who goes into Gaul and joins the Visigoths, who thus strengthened, soon after conquer Gaul and Spain . Theodimir invades the eastern provinces, but dies soon, and is succeeded by his son called Theodoric the Great .	XVI.	280
4779	3472	473	Euric king of the Visigoths concludes a peace with the Romans.	XIX.	167
4779	3472	473	Leo proposes Zeno his son-in-law for emperor of the east, but is opposed by the senate and people of Constantinople . The emperor creates Leo , the son of Zeno and his daughter Ariadne , Cæsar , and declared him partner with him in the empire, though but between 5 and 6 years of age.	XVI.	281

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
4780	3473	474	Leo the younger is consul alone, when the emperor Leo the elder was seized with a bloody flux and fever, of which he died in January, having reigned almost 17 years; and Zeno the father was declared colleague to Leo the son, through the mediation of the empress Verina . The ceremony was performed in February following, not in the palace of Hebdomon as usual, but in the circus at Constantinople ; but the young prince Leo died in November following, having reigned about 10 months.	XVI.	281
4780	3473	474	Leo the elder not approving of the promotion of Glycerius to the western empire, had named Julius Nepos , a Dalmatian, nephew of Marcellinus . Nepos goes from Constantinople , lands at Porto , and seizes Glycerius , took him prisoner, stripped him of the imperial ornaments, and caused him to be ordained bishop of Salonæ in Dalmatia , and reigned in his stead.	XVI.	281
4780	3473	474	Euric breaks peace with the Romans, and enters Auvergne with a great army.	XIX.	167
4781	3474	425	Nepos having made Orestes general of the Roman forces that were going into Gaul , Orestes delays his march, and goes into Ravenna with an intent to seize Nepos , who being apprehensive of his design, fled by sea on the 28th of August to Salonæ in Dalmatia , where he was entertained by Glycerius , whom he had a little before deposed. Orestes proclaimed his son Augustus , though very young, emperor, the 29th of October. The new prince called himself Augustulus or Romulus Augustulus , and Orestes took the administration upon himself as tutor and guardian to his son.	XVI.	283
4781	3474	475	The Saracens break into the eastern empire, and committed dreadful ravages in Mesopotamia ; and the Huns in Thrace put all to fire and sword, the emperor Zeno minding nothing but lewdness and debauchery.	XVI.	283
4781	3474	475	The empress dowager Verina exasperated against her son-in-law Zeno for his debaucheries, &c. whom she had advanced to the empire, conspires against him with her brother Basiliscus ; he, conscious of his deserts, when the affair was discovered to him, fled first to Chalcedon , and then into Isauria , and Basiliscus was declared emperor in his stead by the senate and people of Constantinople , upon which he created his wife Zenonides Augusta , and his son Marcus Cæsar .	XVI.	283
4781	3474	475	Auvergne is delivered to Euric by treaty, and a peace is concluded with the Romans.	XIX.	168
4781	3474	475	Zeno the emperor makes peace with Genseric king of the Vandals , and cedes Africa to him and his successors for ever.	XIX.	217
4782	3475	476	The several Barbarians that served in the Roman army demand of Orestes a 3d part of Italy for their good services, which he refusing, they revolt, and choose one Odoacer for their leader, a private man in the guards of Augustulus , a person of extraordinary parts both natural and acquired, and then marched against Orestes , who took refuge in Pavia , which Odoacer took by assault, and first plundered and then reduced it to ashes. Orestes being taken prisoner, Odoacer carried him to Placentia , and put him to death the 28th of August, being the same day he had deprived Nepos of the empire. He then went to Ravenna , where Paul the brother of Orestes was with the young emperor; he put Paul to death, stripped Augustulus of the imperial robes, and confined him

World.	Y. of Good.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			to Lucullanum, a castle in Campania, and made him a handsome allowance to live on.	XVI.	285
4782	3475	476	Genferic makes peace with Odoacer king of Italy, and grants him the island of Sicily.	XIX.	217
4782	3475	476	Rome readily submitted to Odoacer, whereupon he proclaimed himself king of Italy, but refused the purple, and so put an end to the title of emperor in the west, five hundred years after the battle of Actium, when the Roman monarchy was first established, and 1229 years after the foundation of Rome.	XVI.	285
4782	3475	476	Odoacer grants the Heruli leave and lands to settle in Italy.	XIX.	344
4783	3476	477	Zeno being fled into Isauria , Basiliscus sends Illus and Trocondes , two of his generals, with an army after him; upon which Zeno shuts himself up in a castle, which they besiege for some time, during which Basiliscus becoming hateful at Constantinople, the senate ordered Illus and Trocondes to join Zeno and bring him back against Basiliscus ; which being done, Basiliscus dispatches Harmatius his kinsman with a great army against them, who notwithstanding he had solemnly sworn to be true to Basiliscus , as soon as he had crossed the Bosphorus joined Zeno upon conditions: Thus strengthened, Zeno enters Constantinople without opposition. Basiliscus with his wife and son flies to the great church, and there resigned his crown upon the altar, and soon after perished with hunger and cold in the castle of Limnos in Cappadocia , whither Zeno had sent him and his family.	XVI.	287
4783	3476	477	Zeno being restored in the month of June, according to his promise raised Harmatius to be general of the household troops, and his son Basiliscus to be Cæsar , but soon after murdered the father, deposed the son, and made him reader in a church near Constantinople, who was afterwards ordained bishop of Cyzicus .	XVI.	287
4783	3476	477	A great fire happens at Constantinople, that consumed the biggest part of the city, with the library, containing 120,000 volumes, among which were the works of Homer , written in golden characters on the great gut of a dragon 120 foot long.	XVI.	287
4783	3476	477	Audoacrius king of the Saxons , and Childeric king of the Franks , march against the Alemans settled among the Alps , and stripped them of the booty they had lately brought out of Italy.	XIX.	334
4784	3477	478	Theodorus son of Triarius , who had espoused the cause of Basiliscus , broke into Thrace with a numerous army of Goths , and advanced within four miles of Constantinople, which so frightened Zeno , that he made peace with him upon his own terms.	XVI.	287
4785	3478	479	Marcian , the son of Anthemius emperor in the west, claiming the empire in right of his wife Leontia , eldest daughter of the late emperor Leo , suddenly attacked the imperial palace at Constantinople, at the head of some desperate malecontents; but not carrying his point, Zeno bribed his companions, and he flew into a church, from whence being dragged, he was ordained a priest, and confined to a monastery near Cæsarea in Cappadocia , by the emperor's order.	XVI.	288
4785	3478	479	Theodoric breaks into Macedon , and goes into Epirus , where by the treachery of one Sidimont , a Goth , Daras

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			is delivered unto him : But Sabinianus, Zeno's general having surprized and cut to pieces Theudimont, brother of Theodoric, as he was coming with a large reinforcement, and taken all their baggage, with 2000 wag-gons loaded with provisions, forced Theodoric to abandon Duras, and to retire with great precipitation into Pannonia.	XVI.	288
4786	3479	480	Zeno makes peace and enters into an alliance with Huneric, son of Genferic king of the Vandals.	XVI.	288
4786	3479	480	The Goths make themselves masters of all the places the Romans held in Gaul.	XIX.	169
4786	3479	480	The Gepidæ defeat the Hunns with great slaughter, and recover both their antient lands and liberty.	XIX.	337
4787	3480	481	Theodoric again breaks into Macedon and Thessaly, and in two years time obliged Zeno to yield to him part of lower Dacia and Mæsia, make him general of the household troops, and consul in the year 483 ; upon these conditions in 482 he retired, restored Larissa the metropolis of Thessaly, and engaged to defend the empire with all his forces.	XVI.	289
4788	3481	482	Clodovæus, or Clovis, upon his father Childeric's death, succeeded him in his kingdom.	XIX.	275
4788	3481	482	Soon after the death of Varanes the 6th, who was killed in battle by the Hunns, with almost all his whole army, the Persians chose Obelas his brother, called also Valens, to succeed him, an excellent prince, but hated because he loved peace.	XI.	115
4789	3482	483	Leontinus, a native of Chalcis in Syria, and commander of the troops in that province, proclaims himself emperor : Zeno sends Illus the captain of his guards against him, who instead of opposing, joined him, and ravaged Syria and Isauria. Longinus the emperor's brother goes against them ; but his whole army is cut to pieces, and himself taken prisoner ; and then the rebels entered Antioch in triumph. Then Zeno sends one John, his general, who prevailed upon Theodoric to join him ; they go, engage, and overthrow the rebels near Seleucia.	XVI.	289
4790	3483	484	Leontinus and Illus are besieged in the strong castle of Papyra in Cilicia by John, and Theodoric returned to Constantinople : Trocondris brother of Illus being taken prisoner by John, was beheaded.	XVI.	289
4790	3483	484	Euric dies, after having reigned upwards of eighteen years, and conquered the greatest part of Gaul and Spain.	XIX.	169
4791	3484	485	The Bulgarians break into Thrace, but are drove back, and forced to repass the Danube, by Theodoric the Roman general.	XIX.	392
4792	3485	486	Zeno disobliging Theodoric, he breaks into Thrace with a great army, and puts all to fire and sword, and advanced within 15 miles of Constantinople. Zeno cedes all Italy to Theodoric, upon which he returns to Novæ in Mæsia.	XVI.	290
4792	3485	486	Valens, or Obelas, king of Persia, dying, is succeeded by his nephew Cavades.	XI.	116
4793	3486	487	Hengist having joined the Piets and Scots, is engaged by Ambrosius, who gave him a total overthrow.	XIX.	21
4793	3486	487	Clodovæus makes war upon Syagrius the Roman governor, overcomes and beheads him, after the taking of Soissons.	XIX.	276

Y. of world.	Y. of hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4794	3487	488	Theodoric enters Italy, overcomes Odoacer in several battles, and settles a new kingdom in Italy.	XVI.	290
4794	3487	488	Leontinus and Illus having bravely defended themselves and the castle of Papyra, for four years, were at last taken by treachery and put to death, and their heads sent to Constantinople.	XVI.	290
4794	3487	488	Hengist king of Kent dies, and is succeeded by his son Esk .	XIX.	121
4794	3487	488	The Goths in great multitudes, with their wives and children, and all their effects, set out from Novæ in Mæsia for Italy.	XIX.	183
4795	3488	489	Zeno puts several persons of great distinction to death, and confiscates their estates under pretence of having favoured Leontinus and Illus .	XVI.	290
4795	3488	489	The Goths encounter and defeat Odoacer, and make themselves masters of Milan, Pavia, &c.	XIX.	185
4796	3489	490	Zeno having being told by an astrologer that one Pelagius , a patrician of great distinction, should succeed him in the empire, put him to death.	XVI.	291
4796	3489	490	The Goths besiege Odoacer king of Italy in Ravenna.	XIX.	186
4796	3489	490	The Burgundians, under the conduct of their king Gundebald , entering Italy under the pretence of assisting Odoacer the king against Theodoric the Ostrogoth, committed so great ravages in Liguria, that what with the number they put to the sword, and the number they carried away captive, left so few behind, that there were not sufficient to till the ground.	XIX.	313
4797	3490	491	Zeno the emperor dies, in the 66th year of his age, and 18th of his reign, one of the most debauched weakest princes that had ever reigned in the east. Longinus his brother set up to succeed him, but was rejected upon account of his lewd and wicked life; and by the interest of the empress dowager Ariadne , Anastasius was declared emperor by the senate, and crowned the 11th of April in the Circus, by Euphemius patriarch of Constantinople, who obliged him to swear to protect the catholic church, and maintain the doctrines of the councils of Nice and Chalcedon.	XVI.	292
4797	3490	491	The Heruli compel their king Rodolphus , without any provocation, to make war upon the Lombards, are by them overthrown with great slaughter, and the remainder obliged to live in subjection to the conquerors, or leave their own habitations; upon which many of them went and settled in the country of the Rugians, now Switzerland.	XIX.	344
4797	3490	491	Ella founds the second Saxon kingdom in Britain, called the kingdom of the south Saxons in Essex, &c.	XIX.	22
4798	3491	492	Longinus , the late emperor Zeno 's brother, raising disturbances in Constantinople, is seized, deprived of all his employments, and himself and all his countrymen, the Isaurians, sent back to Isauria their native place; upon which the whole people revolt, and raise an army of 150,000 men: Anastasius sends his best troops against them, who engages, cuts great numbers to pieces, defeats and drives them into the mountains.	XVI.	295
4799	3492	493	Anastasius taxing the Constantinopolitans against their inclination, they rise, pull down his statues, and Ariadne 's, and drag them about the streets.	XVI.	295
4799	3492	493	Odoacer submits to Theodoric king of the Goths, and is soon after murdered; upon which Theodoric is proclaimed

World.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4800	3493	494	king of Italy, and acknowledged as such by Anastasius the emperor.	XIX.	187
4802	3495	496	Diogenes , one of Anastasius's generals is besieged in Claudiopolis , the metropolis of Isauria , by Conon , an Isaurian bishop, and reduced to great streights, but is relieved by John , surnamed Gibbus , who falls unexpectedly upon the rebels, and cuts many of them to pieces, and forces them to raise the siege: The bishop died soon after of the wounds he received in the battle.	XVI.	296
4803	3496	497	The Alemans out of Alsace , joined by those of Switzerland , enter Germania Secunda , belonging to the Riparian Franks, and put all to fire and sword.	XIX.	334
4803	3496	497	John the Scythian general for the emperor Anastasius , intirely defeats the Isaurian rebels, and takes the two heads of them prisoners, viz. Longinus , brother to the late emperor Zeno , and Theodosius , who were put to death, and their heads sent to Constantinople .	XVI.	296
4803	3496	497	Cavadēs king of Persia intoxicated with pride and power, grew hateful to his subjects, particularly for an edict he made, that all the women in the empire should be common to all the men therein; for which he was deposed and cast into prison, and Zambades (by some called his son, by others his brother, &c.) elected in his stead.	XI.	118
4803	3496	497	Clovis king of the Franks, with Albofleda his sister, and three thousand of his subjects, are baptised into the Christian faith by Remigius bishop of Rheims .	XIX.	281
4804	3497	498	The rest of the chief ringleaders of the Isaurian rebellion are taken and sent in chains to Constantinople . Most of the cities of this province of Isauria having been ruined during the war, which lasted six years, the inhabitants that were left were removed into Thrace .	XVI.	296
4804	3497	498	The emperor Anastasius refusing to set some prisoners at liberty who had been taken in a riot, very narrowly escapes being sacrificed in the Circus by the enraged populace, who finding themselves opposed by the soldiery, set fire to the Hippodrome , which consumed it, and several other stately edifices, with the square of Constantine , in which there was not one single house left standing.	XVI.	297
4804	3497	498	The Arabs and Saracens break into Palestine and Syria , but Romanus governor of Palestine , and Eugenius , commander of the Roman troops in Syria , drove them back, and recovered the island of Jotape in the Red Sea from the Saracens .	XVI.	297
4804	3497	498	The Armorici , a people between the Loire and the Seine , having formed themselves into a republick, submit voluntarily to Clovis , and become one nation with the Franks; upon which the Roman troops surrender the places they held, and enter into the service of Clovis , which ended the Roman dominion, after they had been masters of Gaul more than 500 years.	XIX.	284
4805	3498	499	Neocæsarea , and several other cities in Pontus , are almost utterly ruined by an earthquake.	XVI.	297
4805	3498	499	The Bulgarians break into Thrace , and commit great ravages, and utterly defeat Aristus the Roman general, and carry off great booty and many prisoners.	XIX.	392

[cccxvii]					Vol.	Page.
World.	X. of	Good.	Y. of	Chrift.
4807	3500	501	The blue and green factions quarrelling in the Circus at Constantinople, 3000 of the former were killed.		XVI.	297
4807	3500	501	Cavades , the deposed king of Persia, having escaped out of prison by the love and loyalty of his queen, goes to the Euthalites, whose king entertained him courteously, gave him his daughter in marriage, and furnished him with money, &c. by which means holding correspondence with some of the Persian nobility, he was this year restored to his crown. Zambades had his eyes put out, and was then imprisoned, &c.		XI.	120
4808	3501	502	The Bulgarians break a-new into Thrace, and the Saracens into Palestine, and commit dreadful ravages in these two provinces.		XVI.	297
4808	3501	502	Cavades being dunned by his father-in-law, king of the Euthalite Hunns, to repay him the vast sums he had advanced for him, enters Armenia, and seizes upon the effects of the people, took Amida by storm, cut the Roman army to pieces, and with the plunder paid his debts.		XI.	121
4809	3502	503	The Romans under Celer enter Arzamene, a Persian province, and lay it waste. The Hunns making a sudden irruption into Persia, the Romans besiege Amida, and have it delivered upon paying 50 talents.		XVI.	299
4810	3503	504	A truce is made between the Persians and Romans for seven years, which lasted twenty.		XVI.	299
4811	3504	505	One Mondo, a Goth, with some of his countrymen, seized a strong hold called Hertz, from whence he made frequent incursions into the Roman territories : The emperor sends Sabinianus against him ; Theodoric assists Mondo, and overthrows Sabinianus , and forced him to shut himself up in the castle of Nato.		XVI.	299
4813	3506	507	The emperor Anastasius built the famous wall, called the Long Wall, 20 foot broad, distant from the city 280 furlongs, extending from sea to sea, at Constantinople, and defended the empire against the sudden irruptions of the barbarous nations.		XVI.	299
4813	3506	507	Clovis wars upon Alaric king of the Visigoths, and in a battle in the plain of Vougle near Poitiers gave them a total overthrow, cutting off the greatest part of his troops, and killing Alaric with his own hand. The emperor Anastasius sends to complement him upon his victory, and presented him with the consular ornaments, and a diadem, which he accepted, and was called consul.		XIX.	293
4814	3507	508	Anastasius repairs and fortifies Daras on the Cardus, a frontier town towards Persia, about 15 miles from Nisibis, and three from Carrhæ.		XVI.	300
4815	3508	509	Theodoric king of the Visigoths having defeated the army of Clovis , they conclude a peace.		XIX.	297
4816	3509	510	Clovis being honoured with the consular dignity from the emperor Anastasius , moves his habitation from Tours to Paris.		XIX.	298
4816	3509	510	Clovis is proclaimed king of the Ripuarian Franks, another tribe of the same people, whose territories are incorporated with those of Clovis .		XIX.	300
4816	3509	510	Clovis seizes and murders Chararic , king of another body of Franks, settled in the bishoprics of Bologne, St. Omers, Bruges, and Ghent; and his son, and incorporates his subjects and dominions into his own.		XIX.	301

Y. of World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Chrif.		Vol.	Page.
4816	3509	510	Ragnacharius king of Cambray, having rendered himself odious to his own people, Clovis enters his kingdom with a great army, overcomes Ragnacharius, and kills him and his brother, and also another brother called Regnomer, king of Mons, and seizes all their dominions, and so becomes king of all Gaul.	XIX.	303
4817	3510	511	Clovis orders a council at Orleans to be held, for the regulating church affairs.	XIX.	281
4818	3511	512	The Heruli are allowed to settle in Thrace, where lands are allotted them, upon their promise to live quietly, and assist the empire when occasion called for their help.	XVI.	300
4819	3512	513	The emperor Anastasius favouring the Eutychians, at their instigation, drove Macedonius, the orthodox patriarch of Constantinople, from his see, and put Timotheus an Eutychian in his stead, (the like was done in many other places) who by introducing novelties in the public worship, created such great and pernicious disturbances, that 10000 of the inhabitants were killed in a riot, and several houses burnt, &c.	XVI.	301
4820	3513	514	Vitalianus , one of the emperor's generals, espouses the cause of the Catholic bishops, comes to Constantinople at the head of a numerous army, threatens to depose Anastasius, if he did not restore the deposed bishops, and drive out the Eutychians; the emperor refuses; Vitalianus conquered Mæsia and Thrace, took Cyril governor of Thrace prisoner, and then returns to Constantinople, where Anastasius promised to stop the persecution, restore the deposed bishops, and call and stand to the decision of an oecumenical council. Vitalianus retires and disbands his army, and Anastasius breaks his word.	XVI.	301
4820	3513	514	Cerdic the Saxon, after having been twenty-four years in Britain, and got large territories, set up the third Saxon kingdom, by the name of the West Saxons.	XIX.	28
4822	3515	516	Gundebald king of the Burgundians dies, and is succeeded by his son Sigismund.	XIX.	314
4823	3516	517	The northern Barbarians called Getæ break into Illyricum, laid Macedon and Epirus waste, defeat Pompeius the emperor's nephew, near Adrianople, penetrate into Thessaly, and then return beyond the Danube, with an immense booty, and a prodigious number of captives.	XVI.	301
4824	3517	518	The emperor Anastasius was found dead in his chamber on the 9th of July, in the 88th year of his age, and 28th of his reign. The soldiers of the household proclaimed Justin, then præfectus prætorio, emperor, a person of a mean and obscure family in Thrace. Soon after a conspiracy was formed against him; but being discovered, and the ringleaders executed, he reigned without opposition.	XVI.	303
4825	3518	519	Justin restores all the orthodox bishops to their sees, and discourages all sorts of heresies; and assembles several synods, wherein Eutychianism was particularly condemned.	XVI.	303
4826	3519	520	Vitalianus being made consul, cabals against Justin, and is murdered in the palace by the emperor's orders.	XVI.	303
4827	3520	521	Cabades king of Persia proposes that Justin the Roman emperor should adopt Cosrhoes his youngest son, whom he had declared his successor; but this being refused, he enters Iberia, whose king applies to Justin, who sends an army under Sittas, and the famous Bellisarius, who enter Persian Armenia, and laid it waste; but engaging

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			Narfes and Aratius, two Persian generals, were put to flight.	XI.	124
4828	3521	522	Narfes and Aratius , two brothers and Persian generals, revolt from Cabades , and serve under Bellisarius in Italy, and then Bellisarius goes to Daras on the frontiers of Persia.	XVI.	304
4828	3521	522	Sigismund king of the Burgundians causes his son Sigeric to be inhumanly murdered.	XIX.	315
4829	3522	523	Sigismund is defeated by Clodomir king of the Franks, and is delivered up by his own subjects, who submit to the Franks. The Franks throw Sigismund , and his wife and children, into a deep well, where they are all drowned.	XIX.	316
4830	3523	524	The Burgundians revolt from the Franks, and proclaim Godemar , brother of Sigismund , their king; upon which war breaks out between them, and in a pitch'd battle the Burgundians were put to flight, but the Franks following too rashly, they, and Clodomir their king, are surrounded and cut to pieces, and Clodomir's head carried by the Burgundians in triumph upon a spear; upon which peace is concluded, and all those countries that had been surrendered to the Franks, are return'd to Godemar .	XIX.	318
4831	3524	525	Justin by an edict deprives the Arians of all their churches throughout his dominions, which created a misunderstanding with Theodoric king of Italy, who was a zealous Arian. The city of Antioch is almost utterly overthrown by an earthquake, and great numbers of the inhabitants buried in the ruins, with Euphrasius their bishop. The cities of Epidamnus , Corinth , and Anazarbus in Cilicia , underwent the same fate; but were repaired at the emperor's expence.	XVI.	304
4832	3525	526	The Lombards under Audoinus are allowed to settle in Pannonia , by the emperor Justinian .	XIX.	380
4832	3525	526	Styrax and Glonas , two kings of the Hunns, being stirred up by Cabades king of Persia, against the emperor Justinian , with whom he was at war, breaks into the empire with two powerful armies; but Boarex , widow of Balach , king of the Sabirite Hunns, led to the Romans assistance an army of 100,000 men, encounters the two kings, destroys their armies, takes Styrax prisoner, and sends him in chains to Constantinople .	XIX.	98
4832	3525	526	The Heruli having murdered their king, send ambassadors into Thule or Scandinavia , to fetch them one of the blood royal, many of them residing there.	XIX.	344
4833	3526	527	The emperor Justin the first of April declares his nephew Justinian partner with him in the empire. Justin dies the beginning of August following, in the 77th year of his age, and 10th of his reign, and Justinian became sole emperor.	XVI.	365
4833	3526	527	The fourth Saxon kingdom is founded in Britain by Erchenwen , and called the kingdom of the East Saxons.	XIX.	30
4834	3527	528	Justinian orders Bellisarius to build a fort in Mindon , to be a check on the Persians. Cabades king of Persia comes against him, they engage, the Persians are victorious, and great numbers of the Romans were killed and taken prisoners, and the Persians levelled the fort with the ground.	XVI.	306
4835	3528	529	Bellisarius is made general of the east, and ordered to make an inrode into Persia. Peroses the Persian general meets him near Daras ; they engage, and the Persians are defeated with the loss of 5000 men. The Romans were as successful in Armenia, where they take a great many Persian cities.

XI. 125

4836 3529 530 The Persians under the command of Azarethes, joined by a vast number of Saracens, commanded by Alamundarius their king, engage Bellisarius; and after an obstinate fight, put the Romans to the rout.

XI. 126

4837 3530 531 The Persians still continued the war, and got advantages over the Romans, ravaged the country, and put all to fire and sword.

XI. 126

4838 3531 532 Cavadēs king of Persia dies, and his youngest son Cosrhoes succeeds him in the kingdom. The Persians and Romans conclude an eternal peace, by which the Romans were to pay 1000 lb. weight of gold, and both parties were to return the places taken, &c.

XVI. 308

4838 3531 532 A rebellion broke out in Constantinople, upon account of the avaricious practices of two ministers, John the præfectus prætorio, and Trebonianus the quæstor, and Hypatius the emperor's nephew was proclaimed emperor. Anastasius deposed the two accused officers; but the senators joining the populace, Hypatius was carried by violence into the Circus, and proclaimed there: but Belisarius the emperor's general, and Mundus governor of Illyricum came with their troops, and fell upon the unarmed multitude, and killed 3000 of them; took Hypatius and likewise Pompeius, another of the emperor's nephews, who were both beheaded, and the estates of those senators concerned were for the present confiscated, but soon after restored.

XVI. 309

4838 3531 532 The Franks break the peace with the Burgundians, and under Childebert and Clotharius enter their territories, besiege Augustodunum, now Autun, oblige Godemar their king to save himself by flight, and in 534 made themselves masters of his kingdom.

XIX. 318

4839 3532 532 Atbalaric king of the Astrogoths in Italy dies, and his mother reigns in his stead, and chuses Theodotus her cousin for her colleague, who imprisons her.

XIX. 448

4839 3532 533 } The emperor being engaged with the Goths in Italy, the Hunns enter Illyricum, lay the country waste, take thirty two castles, and destroyed Cassandria, and return home unmolested with immense booty and 100,000 captives; the Armenians shake off the Roman yoke; the Persians enter Syria, take and plunder Boræa, Hierapolis, and many other places; and then besiege and take Antioch, plunder the town, murder the people, and then reduced the city to ashes, and what few inhabitants remained, carried away captive, and sold them for slaves; and then conclude a peace, upon condition that the Romans should pay 5000 lb. weight of gold down, 500 lb. annually, &c, and in their return plundered the cities of Apamea and Chalcis, and laid waste Mesopotamia, carrying off vast booty, and a great number of captives.

XI. 136

4840 3533 534 Amalasuntha, queen of the Ostrogoths, murdered by order of Theodatus, for which the emperor Justinian proclaims war against him.

XIX. 450

4841 3534 535 Belisarius takes Ralermo from the Goths, and makes himself master of Sicily, &c.

XIX. 452

4843 3536 537 Theodatus king of the Goths is by them first deposed, and Vitiges proclaimed king in his stead, and then murdered.

XIX. 452

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4843	3536	537	The Gepidæ joined by the Heruli begin to plunder the neighbouring provinces ; upon which Justinian sends his best generals against them, who drive them entirely out of Illyricum, and force them into Dacia beyond the Danube.	XIX.	337
4844	3537	538	The Goths, after losing abundance of their men, are compelled to raise the siege of Rome by Belisarius, who cut off vast numbers of them in their retreat, and forced many into the river.	XIX.	465
4845	3538	539	The Franks invade Italy, though they had engaged to help the emperor.	XIX.	470
4845	3538	539	The Hunns pass the Danube in great multitudes, and lay waste Thrace, Greece, Illyricum, and all the provinces from the Ionian sea to the suburbs of Constantinople, &c. and return home with incredible booty, after having committed all manner of cruelties.	XIX.	99
4845	3538	539	The Bulgarians are defeated by the Romans, and both their kings killed.	XIX.	393
4846	3539	540	The Bulgarians come again into Thrace, which they plunder and lay waste far and near ; but being attacked by Mundus governor of Illyricum, are totally overcome, most of them being cut to pieces, and the remainder carried prisoners to Constantinople, where the emperor ordered part to be incorporated among his troops, and the rest to be transplanted into Armenia and Lazica.	XIX.	394
4846	3539	540	Belisarius proclaimed king of Italy, and admitted into Ravenna, &c. but is called to Constantinople by the emperor, whither he carries Vigites king of the Goths and vast plunder.	XIX.	475
4847	3540	541	Ildebald is chose king of Italy ; but behaving disagreeably, Vilas one of his guards gave him so violent a stroke on the neck with his sword, as he was feasting his nobility, that his head dropped on the table with the meat in his fingers, and is succeeded by Eraric.	XIX.	477
4848	3541	542	The Goths displeased with Eraric, murder him, and proclaim Totila king of Italy in his stead.	XIX.	479
4848	3541	542	Arthur the great British king dies, and is said to be succeeded by his cousin Constantine.	XIX.	30
4848	3541	542	The Lazians, a people between the Euxine and Caspian seas, being grievously oppressed by the Roman troops, revolted from the Romans to the Persians, and delivered up all their strong holds and castles to them, who drove out the Roman and put Persian garrisons in their stead. Belisarius the Roman general enters Persia, lays waste Assyria, &c.	XI.	138
4849	3542	543	Totila king of the Goths recovers Tuscany, and several other places in Italy.	XIX.	482
4849	3542	543	Cosroes invades the Roman territories afresh ; a dreadful plague rages in Persia, yet he overthrew 30,000 Romans, as they attempted to break into Persarmenia, with only 4000 Persians.	XI.	132
4850	3543	544	Cosroes orders Gubazes king of the Lazians to be murdered, and the people to be transplanted ; but before it could be executed, 'twas discovered. Gubazes submits to Justinian, who sends him 8000 men, with whom and his own people joined together he has several encounters with the Persians, and at last cut off and drove them all out of his country, upon which a truce for five years is concluded between the Persians and Romans.	XI.	144

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4853	3546	547	Totila king of the Goths takes and plunders Rome, but spares the lives of the inhabitants and soldiers.	XIX.	487
4853	3546	547	Ida founded the fifth Saxon kingdom in Britain, and called it the kingdom of Northumberland.	XIX.	30
4856	3549	550	Totila takes Rome a second time, by the treachery of the Maurians.	XIX.	494
4856	3549	550	The Persians invade Lazica, and take the strong castle of Telepus; and then put the Romans to flight. Gubazes complains to Justinian of the cowardice of his generals, which so exasperated them, that they murder him. The Lazicans are going to revolt, but Justinian appeases them by ordering all concerned in the murder to be executed, and making the brother of the deceased king in his stead. 60,000 Persians besiege Phasis in Lazica; Justinian's commander of the Romans falls upon them, kills 12,000 on the spot, and forced the rest to run away; upon this Cosroes sues to Justinian for peace, which is mutually agreed to.	XI.	146
4858	3551	552	The Gepidæ enter the territories of the Lombards, and destroy all with fire and sword; but the Lombards receiving assistance from Justinian the emperor, entirely overthrow the Gepidæ.	XIX.	338
4858	3552	553	The Lombards, after assisting the Romans, are sent home loaded with rich presents for their good services.	XIX.	381
4859	3552	553	The Goths, by submitting to the Romans, put an end to their government in Italy.	XIX.	506
4864	3557	558	The Hunns come into Thrace, &c. Belisarius defeats and puts them to flight with a very few men; but they hearing of his disgrace, upon his return to Constantinople, return again and ravage all the country, coming before the royal city. Germanus heading the imperial troops, fell upon them, slew great numbers, and obliged the rest to fly.	XIX.	100
4864	3557	558	A violent earthquake overturned many stately buildings and churches at Constantinople, which destroyed a vast number of people; and then a terrible plague broke out, that swept away vast numbers.	XVI.	315
4865	3558	559	Belisarius , the famous Roman general, after many years severe service, and obtaining many extraordinary victories, falls a victim to the malicious accusations of his enemies, and is deprived of all his honours and employments, and confined to his house at Constantinople.	XVI.	316
4866	3559	560	Sigebert king of Mentz engages the Hunns upon the banks of the Elbe, and entirely routs them.	XIX.	102
4867	3560	561	Ethelbert king of Kent kindles a civil war among the Saxon kings in Britain.	XIX.	31
4867	3560	561	The emperor Justinian convinced of the injury done to his faithful servant and valiant general Belisarius, restores him to all his honours and commands.	XVI.	316
4871	3564	565	Marcellus , Sergius and Ablavius , three chief officers in the court of the emperor Justinian, conspire his death, are detected and executed, and many banished, but the emperor died soon after, in the 39th year of his reign, and was succeeded by his nephew Justin, son of his sister Vigilantia, who was unanimously proclaimed by the senate, and crowned by John patriarch of Constantinople.	XVI.	319
4872	3565	566	The people grumbling at the discontinuance of the name and office of consul, Justin revives it, after it had been omitted

[CCCXXIII]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
			twenty-five years, and entered upon that office the first of January of this year.	XVI.	320
4872	3567	568	The emperor Justin causes his kinsman Justin to be seized and carried to Alexandria, and there murdered, because the people loved him.	XVI.	320
4874	3567	568	Longinus alters the ancient manner of government in Italy, and settles in every city a governor, which he called a duke, and took upon himself the name of exarch, or governor of the whole, under the emperor, which continued till the year of Christ, 751.	XIX.	508
4874	3567	568	The Lombards invade Italy, and make themselves masters of several cities, and found a kingdom which lasted 200 years.	XIX.	384
4875	3568	569	Alboinus king of the Lombards, having taken Friuli, erected it into a dutchy, which continues so to this day.	XIX.	385
4875	3568	569	The inhabitants of Persarmenia, being cruelly persecuted by the Persians, for professing the Christian religion, revolt to the Romans. Cosrhoes invades and over-runs Syria and Mesopotamia; but Justin being seized with madness, the empress Sophia writes to him in such moving terms, that in 572 a truce for three years was concluded.	XVI.	321
4876	3569	570	Alboinus is proclaimed king of Italy, and makes Pavia his residence, and the metropolis of his kingdom.	XIX.	386
4877	3570	571	Glepbis king of the Lombards, and Messana his queen is murdered by his subjects, for his cruelty towards them.	XIX.	390
4877	3570	571	The Lombards shake off monarchy, and are governed by dukes.	XIX.	390
4878	3571	572	Cunimundus king of the Gepidæ enter the Lombards country with a numerous army, and commits most cruel ravages. Alboinus king of the Lombards raises a great army, and engages the Gepidæ; and after a very doubtful and obstinate battle, the Gepidæ fly, and are pursued by the victorious Lombards, with so great slaughter, that scarce one is left alive. Alboinus slew Cunimundus with his own hand, and cutting off his head, turned his skull into a cup, which he used to drink out of upon all public occasions. The Lombards seized upon all their land in Dacia, and obliged the people to submit to them, or go into other countries, and so ended the kingdom of the Gepidæ.	XIX.	339
4878	3571	572	The empress Sophia prevails on the senate to advance Tiberius the Thracian to the government during her husband's illness.	XVI.	322
4879	3572	573	Justin influenced by his wife Sophia, raises Tiberius to the dignity of Cæsar, and resigns to him the whole management of affairs.	XVI.	322
4880	3573	574	Cosrhoes king of Persia breaks into Persarmenia as soon as the truce between him and the Romans expired, and marched to besiege Cæsarea, the capital of Cappadocia: Justinian the Roman general meets him, engages, and puts him entirely to the rout; which so affects Cosrhoes , that he soon after fell sick and died of grief, after reigning 48 years.	XI.	149
4880	3573	574	Alboinus , the first Lombard king of Italy, is murdered by Helinchild , his shieldbearer, at the instigation of the queen.	XIX.	388
4883	3576	577	Hormisdas II. succeeds his father Cosrhoes in the kingdom of Persia, a prince every way unable to support so great a burthen.	XI.	151

Y. of World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
4887	3580	481	Justin dies, and is succeeded by Tiberius in the empire, who owned Anastatia for his wife, and made her Augusta ; which so exasperated Sophia the empress dowager (who expected him to marry her) that she conspires to set Justinian upon the throne; but Tiberius strips her of all her wealth, and puts Mauritius in the place of Justinian , and peace was restored again.	XVI. 323
4888	3581	482	Mauritius engages and entirely overthrows Hormisdas king of Persia , took the camp with all the royal plate and treasure, and an incredible number of prisoners, all which he sent to Constantinople . Hormisdas fits out another army, which Mauritius likewise overthrows, took an immense booty, and whole nations of slaves. Upon Mauritius's return to Constantinople , Tiberius gives him his daughter in marriage, and raises him to the dignity of Cæsar , and a peace is concluded with the Persians .	XI. 153
4891	3584	585	Creda the Saxon founds the seventh Saxon kingdom in Britain , and calls it Mercia .	XIX. 35
4891	3584	585	Uffa the Saxon founds the 6th Saxon kingdom in Britain , and calls it the kingdom of the West-Angles .	XIX. 34
4891	3584	585	The Lombards restore monarchy among them, and choose Autharis , son of Clephis , for their king.	XIX. 389
4892	3585	586	The emperor Tiberius dies, greatly lamented for his extraordinary care of his people, and is succeeded by his son-in-law Mauritius .	XVI. 324
4895	3588	589	Hormisdas king of Persia breaks the peace concluded with the Romans , but is defeated in several battles with prodigious slaughter.	XI. 154
4896	3589	590	A terrible earthquake at Antioch destroys almost the whole city, and buries 30,000 persons in its ruins.	XVI. 326
4896	3589	590	Autharis king of the Lombards poisoned.	XIX. 517
4897	3590	591	Sittas , the architect, a citizen of Martyropolis , betrays that great city and important place into the hands of the Persians , from whom Germanus the Roman general some time after retook it.	XI. 153
4897	3590	591	Agilulf duke of Turin marries Theudelinda , wife of Autharis , and is proclaimed king of the Lombards .	XIX. 517
4899	3592	593	Hormisdas king of Persia behaving very haughtily, cruelly, &c. is deposed, has his eyes bored out with red hot irons, and cast into prison, and his son Cosrhoes put in his stead, who ordered his father to be put to death, which so dissatisfied the Persians , that they drove him out of the kingdom; who flying to the emperor Mauritius at Constantinople , is by him kindly received, and assisted with an army that reinstated him upon his throne, and a peace is concluded between the two princes.	XI. 159
4900	3593	594	The Avari having broke into Thrace , and taken many strong places, the emperor Mauritius goes against them, and after various battles, is forced to buy a peace.	XVI. 327
4901	3594	595	Chagan king of the Avari , together with the Gepidæ , Sclavi , &c. enter the Roman dominions, swearing they would utterly demolish the Roman name, and establish a new empire over all people and nations, and after laying Thrace waste, advanced towards Constantinople ; but a violent plague breaking out in their army, swept off multitudes, among whom were seven of Chagan's sons: Chagan offering to set 12,000 Romans at liberty for a small ransom, which Mauritius refusing to pay, he put them all to death, which occasioned a mutiny in the Roman army, and a great tumult at Constantinople .	XVI. 328

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Page
4903	3596	597	The Avari renew their ravages, and are defeated in five successive battles by Priscus the Roman general, who cutting off 30,000 of them, drove the remainder out of the Roman dominions.	XVI. 328
4908	3601	602	The emperor Mauritius commanding his brother Peter to cross the Danube and winter in the enemies country, so exasperated the soldiers, that they mutiny and proclaim one Phocas, a centurion, emperor. The populace at Constantinople rise, and force Maurice to embark in disguise, with his wife and children, in a small ship; but he being driven back by contrary winds, takes refuge in the church of Autonomus the martyr, about twenty miles distant from Constantinople, whither Phocas comes, and is crowned with loud acclamations in the church of St. John Baptist, with his wife Leontia, by the patriarch.	XVI. 329
4908	3601	602	In the publick sports at Constantinople a contest happening between the Blew and the Green, Phocas sends his guards to quell the uproar, who using the tribune of the Blew roughly, they cry out, Maurice was yet alive, who would do them justice; upon which Phocas ordered Maurice to be dragged out of his sanctuary, and after killing five of his sons before his face, beheaded him, and put many of his friends and relations to death afterwards.	XVI. 330
4909	3602	603	Phocas sends his own and his wife Leontia's images to Rome, which are received by Gregory the Great, bishop of Rome, with great respect, and lodged in the oratory of the martyr Cæsarius; but Phocas behaving very cruelly, he grew hateful to the people.	XVI. 331
4910	3603	604	Narjes, commander of the Roman forces on the borders of Persia, revolts, and is joined by Cosrhoes king of Persia, who defeat and kill Germanus, who was sent against them, and some time afterwards they also defeated Leontinus. Phocas by solemn oaths and large promises prevails upon Narjes to lay down his arms and return home; as soon as Phocas had him in his power he ordered him to be burnt alive, to the great grief of the Romans.	XVI. 332
4911	3604	605	Agilulf king of the Lombards in Italy declares his son Adaluald (or Aldonald) yet an infant, his colleague, and causes him to be openly crowned with great solemnity.	XIX. 521
4912	3605	606	Phocas sends ambassadors with large presents to Cosrhoes king of Persia, in order to make peace, who rejects all his offers, ravages Mesopotamia and Asia, and carries off immense booty.	XI. 165
4913	3606	607	Constantina, widow of the late emperor Maurice, is racked, and confesses that several of the great officers were conspiring with her to set her son Theodosius on the throne; for which she and many of the grandees are put to death, and also three of her daughters, and multitudes daily imprisoned, where they died miserably.	XVI. 332
4914	3607	608	Cosrhoes lays waste Syria, Palestine, and Phenicia, putting all to fire and sword; and having defeated the troops sent against him, entered Galatia, and commits dreadful ravages, and goes to Chalcedon; and while this was doing abroad, Phocas murders all who were any ways related to, or favourites of Mauritius at home.	XVI. 333
4915	3608	609	The Jews at Antioch rise, and murder the Christians in great numbers, and dragged the mangled carcass of Anastasius the patriarch about the streets in a most ignominious manner. Bonosus, who was going against the Persians, strove to quell the tumult by fair means; but not prevail-

Y. of World.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
4915	3608	609	ing, orders his troops to fall on them, who cut great numbers to pieces, and drove the rest out of the city.	XVI.	333
4916	3609	610	Phocas being upbraided with his vices, in the Circus at Constantinople by the populace, he ordered several immediately to be beheaded on the spot, and others to be cast into the sea; which so enraged them, that they set the palace and publick prison on fire. The great men having an intention to murder Phocas in the Hippodrome, are betrayed by Anastatius the Comes largitionum; but Phocas puts him as well as them to death.	XVI.	334
4916	3609	610	Heraclius, son of Heraclius governor of Africa, proclaims himself emperor, and is as such acknowledged by the Africans, who furnish him with a great army and fleet; He comes to Constantinople, engages and beats the fleet of Phocas; Phocas flies into the palace, whither Photinus, whose wife he had debauched, followed, took and bound him in chains, and so sent him to Heraclius, who orders first his hands and feet, then his privy members, and lastly his head to be cut off.	XVI.	334
4917	3610	611	Heraclius is proclaimed emperor at Constantinople, and crowned by Sergius the patriarch. The Persians continued their ravages and destructions, being now arrived at Antioch, no force then on foot being able to withstand them.	XVI.	335
4919	3612	613	The Persians over-run Cappadocia, and take and sack Caesarea, and carry off immense booty, and a vast number of captives. The empress Eudocia is delivered of a son, but died soon after. Heraclius desires peace of Cosroes, and offers to pay an annual sum, but is refused.	XVI.	335
4921	3614	615	Agilulf dies, and is succeeded by Adaluald his son, as king of the Lombards in Italy.	XIX.	525
4922	3615	616	The Persians come again into Syria, break into Palestine, and take Jerusalem, where they sell 90,000 Christians for slaves to the Jews; but Zacharias the patriarch, and part of the cross on which Christ was crucified, with immense booty, is carried into Persia.	XVI.	336
4922	3615	616	The emperor Heraclius marries his brother's daughter Martina, and caused her to be crowned with the usual pomp by Sergius patriarch of Constantinople.	XVI.	336
4923	3616	617	The Persians renew their ravages; Heraclius goes into Armenia, and again offers proposals for an accommodation, which are rejected: Then he entered Persia, took and levelled several towns with the ground; and then went to attack Cosroes, who ran away, when he entered Gazycum, where he seized immense treasure, and burnt the city, and carried off 50,000 captives: But going to winter in Albania, the weather proving very cold and troublesome to the Persians, he sent them home without ransom.	XI.	169
4925	3618	619	The Persians over-run all Egypt, take and pillage Alexandria, and then come into Africa and besiege Carthage, and return to Persia with the spoils of several provinces, and a prodigious number of captives. Heraclius begs for peace again, but is refused by Cosroes, unless he will renounce his crucified god, and adore the sun.	XI.	167
4925	3618	619	Heraclius defeats the Persians in two pitched battles, and cut off great numbers, and their general Sarablacas.	XI.	170
4926	3619	620	Heraclius concludes a peace with the Avari, and goes against the Persians in person: Saes the Persian general invites Heraclius to an interview, under pretence of peace; Heraclius sends 70 persons of distinction, whom Saes loads

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			with chains, and sends them captives into Persia. Cosroes flees Saes alive, for having seen the Roman emperor and not took him likewise. Heraclius penetrates through Armenia into Persia, and lays all waste before him, engages and defeats the Persians, and takes their camp and baggage, and then returned to Constantinople.	XI.	170
4928	3621	622	Heraclius crosses the Euphrates, takes Samosa, &c. and entirely overthrows Sarabazes on the banks of the Sanis.	XI.	170
4930	3623	624	Cosroes not able to beat Heraclius , raises a universal persecution against all the Catholics in his dominions, and only spares the Nestorians.	XI.	170
4931	3624	625	Cosroes engages the Avari, Hunns, and Slavonians, to invade Thrace, which they do, and destroy all before them, and besiege Constantinople, while Heraclius enters Persia, and lays it waste, and Theodorus the Roman engages and gives Saes the Persian a dreadful overthrow.	XI.	170
4932	3625	626	Heraclius invades Persia again, and at Nineveh meets Razes the Persian general, whom he engages, kills him and a great part of his army, and puts the rest to flight, with only the loss of 50 Romans. Cosroes flies to Seleucia, with his wives and children; and Heraclius destroyed the Persian provinces with fire and sword, released the Roman captives, recovered the standards, and carried off great part of the wealth of Persia.	XI.	171
4932	3625	626	Sarbarazes revolts with his whole army from Cosroes , who falling ill, declares his younger son Merdasa his successor; whereupon Syroes his eldest son joins Chardanichas , seized his father, and threw him chained into prison, where he was murdered, with Merdasa and his other children. Then Syroes being king, concluded a perpetual peace with Heraclius , by which all the Roman provinces were again restored to the empire.	XI.	173
4933	3626	627	All the Persians and Romans that were prisoners of war in either dominions were set at liberty; and Heraclius upon his approaching Constantinople is met by his son Constantius , the patriarch, the nobility, and people, with all the demonstrations of joy possible.	XVI.	341
4933	3626	627	Syroes king of Persia dies, and is succeeded by his son Ardeser , or Artaxerxes , a child of seven years old, who after reigning seven months, is murdered.	XI.	173
4933	3626	627	Adalwald and Theudelinda both die, and Ariovald succeeds, as king of the Lombards.	XIX.	528
4934	3627	628	Sarbarazes the Persian general having killed Ardeser , sets up himself for king in his room; but after much blood being spilt, the nobility depose him, and set up Hormisdas , or Idigertes , (one of Syroes nephews) two years afterwards.	XI.	174
4934	3627	628	Heraclius goes to Jerusalem with that part of the cross that had been carried into Persia, which he entered in great pomp, returned it to the great church, and instituted the festival of The Exaltation of the Holy Cross, observed by the present Roman church on the 14th of September. Then the emperor banished all the Jews, forbidding them under severe penalties to come within three miles of that holy city.	XVI.	341
4935	3628	629	The emperor Heraclius coming to Edessa, Athanasius , the patriarch of the Jacobites, influenced him so far as to embrace the doctrine of the Monothelites, who acknowledge but one will in Christ.	XVI.	342
4936	3629	630	Mabommed , or Mahomet , (who called himself king and prophet of the Saracens) died this year, having first re-

Y. of World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4938	3631	632	Eububezer enters Persia, entirely defeats Syroes, and puts an end to the Persian empire, after it had continued upwards of 400 years in the line of Artaxerxes; and he and his Saracens inhabited the country: Then he broke into Palestine, laid waste the territory of Gaza, and cut the governor and all his troops to pieces.	XVI.	342
4939	3632	633	Eububezer dies, and is succeeded by Haumar , who conquered Boftra, and several other cities of Arabia, and entirely defeated Theodosius, the king's brother, who went against him.	XI.	175
4940	3633	634	Boanes the Roman general is overthrown by the Saracens, who take and conquer all Phenicia.	XVI.	342
4941	3634	635	Haumar sends one part of his army into Egypt, and leads the other to Jerusalem. Cyrus bishop of Alexandria engages to pay them 200,000 Denarii per Annum, so saves Egypt from being plundered.	XVI.	343
4942	3635	636	Haumar took Jerusalem after a siege of near two years.	XVI.	344
4942	3635	636	Ariovald dies, and is succeeded by Rotharis , who introduces the first written laws among the Lombards in Italy.	XIX.	529
4944	3637	638	Manuel governor of Egypt refuses to pay the annual sum of 200,000 Denarii to the Saracens; upon which they engage, and Manuel is beat, and they become masters of the whole country, which had belonged to the Romans ever since the time of Augustus.	XVI.	343
4944	3637	638	Rotharis engages the Romans, defeats them, and kills 8000 upon the spot.	XIX.	533
4946	3639	640	Haumar takes all Syria, with Antioch, the metropolis of the east.	XVI.	344
4947	3640	641	Heraclius the Roman emperor dies, and was succeeded by his son Constantine , who after a reign of seven months died also, suspected to be poisoned by his stepmother Martina , whose son Heracleonas succeeded him.	XVI.	344
4948	3641	642	The senate depose Heracleonas the emperor, after six months reign, cut off his nose, and pull out the tongue of his mother Martina , and send them both into banishment, and advanced Constans son of Constantine to the throne; upon which Pyrrhus the heretical patriarch of Constantinople quits his see, and flies into Africa, being suspected of being privy to the death of Constantine .	XVI.	345
4953	3646	647	The Saracens break into, and conquer the whole province of Africa.	XVI.	345
4954	3647	648	Mabuwias , or Mahwias , the Saracen admiral, falls upon Cyprus with a great fleet and army, reduced the island, and laid the city of Constantia in ashes; then went and took the island of Aradus ; then went and took Rhodes , and destroyed the famous Colossus of the sun, after it had been made 1360 years, containing 900 camels loads of metal.	XVI.	345
4958	3651	652	King Rotharis dies, who for his great wisdom and moderation was much lamented; and though an Arian himself, permitted his subjects to embrace orthodoxy if they liked it best, and appointed a bishop of each persuasion in all the great cities of his dominions: He was succeeded by Aio his son, whom he had made partner with him in the government five months before.	XIX.	534
4963	3656	657	Mabuwias prepares a mighty fleet at Tripolis in Phœnicia , with an intent to besiege Constantinople . Two Christian captives breaking open the goal, that was very full of

[CCCXXIX]				Vol.	Page.
Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
			them, kills the governor, and sets fire to the fleet, and made their escape: But Mahuvias having got another fleet, engages the imperial fleet, commanded by Constans in person, and beat him, the emperor being forced to fly to Constantinople in disguise.	XVI.	346
4964	3657	658	Constans goes against the Sclavi, and defeats them in several encounters; but not being able to drive them out of the country they had seized, returned to Constantinople, and the country bears the name of Sclavonia to this day.	XVI.	346
4964	3657	658	The Saracens quarrelling among themselves, send to make peace with the emperor Constans ; to which he consents, and cedes to them the provinces they had taken, upon their engaging to pay him 1000 Nummi a year, together with a horse and a slave.	XVI.	346
4965	3658	659	Constans being jealous of his brother Theodosius , causes him to be ordained a deacon, and soon after murdered him, but was ever after so terrified in his mind, that he could not rest night or day.	XVI.	346
4966	3659	660	Mahuvias the Saracen having killed his competitor Hali , reigned alone, and broke the peace with the Romans, and sent his son Izod into the Roman territories, as far as Chalcedon, took Amorium, a strong city of Phrygia, put a garrison into it, and returned to his father with immense booty; but Andreas the Roman general soon retook it, and put all the Saracens to the sword.	XVI.	347
4968	3661	662	The Franks and Lombards quarrelling, Constans goes against the latter with a great fleet and army, lands at Tarentum, and takes several places, and besieges Beneventum; but Grimoald , duke thereof, coming to its relief, the emperor retired to Naples: An engagement happening soon after, 20,000 Romans together with their general were cut off.	XIV.	347
4968	3661	662	Grimoald , duke of Benevento, is proclaimed king of the Lombards.	XIX.	537
4969	3662	663	Constans visits Rome, and takes away the valuable rarities, and sends them to Constantinople, returns to Naples, and from thence goes to Syracuse, where he staid five years, grievously oppressing the people, and stripping the churches of their rich ornaments and vessels; thus becoming hateful, he was murdered as he was bathing, by one Troilus , in the 27th year of his reign, Anno 668.	XVI.	347
4969	3662	663	Grimoald falls upon the Franks in the dead of the night, and slew almost all of them that were come into Italy to rethroned Partharit .	XIX.	539
4969	3662	663	Romuald , son of Grimoald , attacks the Romans, who was come to drive the Lombards out of Italy, and entirely defeats them, and gains many cities.	XIX.	542
4974	3667	668	Upon the death of Constans , the Syracusians proclaim one Mezizus emperor; but Constantine , son of the late emperor, comes from Constantinople with a great fleet, defeats, takes, and puts Mezizus to death, and got himself acknowledged emperor in his stead.	XVI.	347
4974	3667	668	Grimoald , with the consent and approbation of the Italians, corrects, alters, and improves the laws of Rotharis .	XIX.	544
4974	3667	668	The Bulgarians enter the Roman territories, commit great ravages, and defeat the emperor Constans 's army, so that he is obliged to allow them a large annual pension to be quiet.	XIX.	394

World.	Y. of Good.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
4976	3669	670	The Saracens enter Africa, and commit most terrible ravages and cruelties, and carry away 80,000 captives.	XVI.	348
4977	3670	671	The Saracens make a descent into Sicily, take and plunder Syracuse, and overrun all the island, destroying every thing with fire and sword.	XVI.	348
4978	3671	672	The Saracens enter Thrace, and come and besiege Constantinople; but after an unsuccessful vigorous attempt, they return in September to Cyzicus, and continued for seven years to besiege it in the summer, and go to Cyzicus in the winter.	XVI.	348
4978	3671	672	Grimoald bleeds to death, but first bequeaths to his youngest son Garibald the kingdom of the Lombards, who accordingly succeeded him; but Partharit , who had been expelled, returning to Pavia, the Lombards re-elect him king, and depose Garibald .	XIX.	545
4983	3676	677	Florus Petronius and Cyprianus gain a signal victory over Suphianus the Saracen, in Syria, and kill 30,000 of his men. The Maronites seize on mount Libanus, and fortify themselves, and by the assistance of some Christian slaves they reduce the whole country between mount Taurus and Jerusalem, and by frequent incursions force Mahuvias to sue to Constantinople for peace, which was agreed to thus: 1. It should be inviolably observed for 30 years by both nations. 2. The Saracens should retain the provinces they had seized. 3. They should pay 3000 pounds weight of gold annually, 50 slaves and 50 fine horses.	XVI.	349
4984	3677	678	The Bulgarians to the number of 100,000, cross the Danube and enter and ravage the empire, and put the Roman army to flight: The emperor agrees to pay them an annual sum, and then they retire.	XVI.	349
4984	3677	678	A large body of Bulgarians are settled in the dukedom of Benevento.	XIX.	395
4986	3679	680	The emperor Constantine calls the sixth general or oecumenical council at Constantinople, where the doctrine of the Monothelites was condemned.	XVI.	349
4986	3679	680	Partharit takes his son Cunipert for a partner with him in the government.	XIX.	545
4991	3684	685	The emperor Constantine dies of a lingering illness, in the 18th year of his reign, and was succeeded by his son Justinian , a youth of 16 years of age.	XVI.	350
4992	3685	686	Abdelmelech , the new prince of the Saracens, confirms the old peace, and proposes to pay Justinian 1000 Nummi a day, and a slave and a horse, to suppress the Maronites: He agrees, and sends Magistrinus against them, who overcomes and disables them for a long time to interrupt the Saracens.	XVI.	350
4993	3686	687	Justinian goes against the Bulgarians, who had been allowed by his father to settle in Lower Mæsia, which from them was called Bulgaria, and ravages their country: They assemble, engage, defeat, and drive him quite out of the country, and recover all he had taken from them: And then he went against the Slavonians, over whom he got the advantage several times; so that now he would quarrel with the Saracens, though Abdelmelech strove all he could to prevent it.	XVI.	350
4993	3686	687	Justinian II. invades the Bulgarians, overcomes them, and obliges them to quit their country or live in intire subjection, he refusing peace upon any other terms: They assemble together from all parts, and fall upon the emperor,

Y. of World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
			defeat his army, force him to restore the prisoners and booty he had taken, and to confirm the annual pension his father had allowed them.		XIX. 397
4994	3687	688	Mahommed engages the Romans, and is beat, and besieged in his own camp; but finding means to draw off the Slavonian general with 20,000 men, the Romans were so frightened at this revolt, that they run away; and the enemy pursuing, killed abundance of them. When the emperor came to Leucate, he was so exasperated, that he ordered 10,000 Schavonians that remained with him to be cut to pieces, with their wives and children, and their bodies to be thrown into the sea.		XVI. 351
4996	3689	690	Partharit king of the Lombards dies, upon which Alachis duke of Trent revolts, and drives Cunipert, son of Partharit, from the throne: but Cunipert defeating and slaying Alachis, he reigned in the stead of his father.		XIX. 546
5000	3693	694	Constantine upon his return to Constantinople, instead of raising troops, &c. spends his time in erecting new buildings, &c. which gaining him the ill-will of the people, and suffering his two chief ministers to execute many of the nobility wrongfully, and ordering Rufus, one of his generals, to fall upon the inhabitants in the night-time of a certain day, and massacre them in their houses, and to begin with the patriarch Callinicus; before the time came, Leontius governor of Greece was declared emperor, who seizing Justinian, carried him to the Circus, where his nose was cut off, and then he was banished to Chersona, and his two favourites, Theodotus and Stephen, were burnt alive.		XVI. 352
5001	3694	695	Sergius , who commanded the Roman troops in Lazica, betrayed that province to the Saracens.		XVI. 352
5002	3695	696	The Saracens invade Africa, take Carthage, and over-run all the country; but John the patrician going against them, drives them out again.		XVI. 352
5003	3696	697	The Saracens equip another great fleet, and again invade Africa, and force John to fly, who embarks his troops for Constantinople; but the fleet touching at Crete, the soldiers revolt, and proclaim Apfimar, one of Leontius's generals emperor. Apfimar (or Tiberius) goes directly to Constantinople, surprizes the city, took Leontius prisoner, cut off his nose, and put him into a monastery in Dalmatia, in the third year of his reign.		XVI. 353
5004	3697	698	The emperor Apfimar, or Tiberius, being settled in the empire, sends his brother Heraclius with an army into Capadocia, to watch the Saracens, who having private quarrels, Heraclius penetrates into Syria to Samosata, put 200,000 to the sword, and returned with immense plunder.		XVI. 353
5005	3698	699	The Saracens again break into the Roman empire, besiege, take, and fortify Mopsuestia in Cilicia.		XVI. 353
5007	3700	701	Boanes , surnamed Heptadæmon, betrayed Armenia to the Saracens.		XVI. 353
5008	3701	702	The Armenian nobility revolt from and drive out the Saracens with great slaughter, and send to Tiberius for assistance; but Mohammed enters Armenia with a great army, recovers the country, and burns the conspirators alive. Then they invade Cilicia, but Heraclius engages, and kills, and takes 10000 of them; the prisoners he sent in chains to Constantinople.		XVI. 353

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.
5008	3701	702	The deposed emperor Justinian flies from Chersona to the king of the Chazari, who entertained him kindly, and gave him his sister Theodora in marriage; but Tiberius prevails with the king to deliver him up alive or dead, by large promises; which being known, Justinian flies to Trebelis king of the Bulgarians, who receives him, and uses him very respectfully, raises a great army, and goes directly to Constantinople, and besieges and takes it the 3d day. Tiberius flies with his treasures to Apollonias; but soon after, he, his brother, and Leontius, were taken and beheaded by Justinian; and the patriarch Callinicus had his eyes put out, and afterwards banished to Rome.	XVI.	354
5009	3702	703	Cunipert dies extreamly lamented, and leaves his kingdom to his son Luitberg, who being but an infant, Ragumbert duke of Turin having defeated Asprand his guardian, causes himself to be proclaimed king of the Lombards.	XIX.	548
5010	3703	704	Ragumbert king of the Lombards dies and is succeeded by his son Aripert; but several lords declaring for Luitberg, are defeated in a battle fought near Pavia, in which Luitberg was taken and put to death.	XIX.	548
5011	3704	705	Justinian breaks the peace concluded with his friend and restorer Trebelis, and enters Thrace with a mighty army; but was totally defeated, and forced to fly in a light vessel to Constantinople.	XVI.	355
5012	3705	706	Justinian fits out a mighty fleet, and goes against Chersona and Bosphorus, for their intention of delivering him up while a prisoner among them. He orders them all to be cut to pieces, men, women and children, which was executed upon so many as did not get away. Those who flew went to the Chazari, who joining them, they defeated the emperor's forces several times, and proclaimed one Philippicus emperor. Justinian's troops revolt, and go over to Philippicus, who immediately marches to Constantinople, and enters it. Justinian being at Sinope in Paphlagonia, Elias prince of the Bosphorans goes and takes him prisoner, and cuts off his head. His son Tiberius takes sanctuary in a church, from whence being dragg'd, he was killed in 711.	XVI.	356
5017	3710	711	The emperor Philippicus being a favourer of the Monothelites, summoned a council of bishops of that persuasion, who condemned and revoked the sixth general council, and established their own doctrine.	XVI.	356
5017	3710	711	Luitprand son of Asprand declared king of the Lombards.	XIX.	554
5018	3712	712	The Bulgarians break into Thrace, and come to Constantinople; lay waste the country, put prodigious numbers of people to the sword, and returned loaded with spoil, without interruption. The Saracens invade and take Medæa, &c. and carry off a great number of captives. Philippicus growing hateful, one Rufus gets into the palace, and while he was asleep, put out his eyes, and went away undiscovered.	XVI.	356
5018	3711	712	The people on Whitsunday proclaim Artemius (called also Anastasius) chief secretary to Philippicus emperor, a man of great learning and a true catholic.	XVI.	356
5019	3712	713	The Bulgarians enter Thrace, and advance as far as Constantinople; and having laid the country waste, and put a vast multitude to the sword, returned home unmolested, with an immense booty, and an incredible number of captives.	XIX.	397

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.			Page.
5020	3713	714	Anastasius having sent out a large fleet against the Saracens, the sailors mutiny, kill their admiral, and declare one Theodosius emperor, who comes and besieges Constantinople, and after six months takes it, and sends the magistrates and patriarch to Nice to Anastasius, to tell him what had happened, who upon promise of his life, renounced all claim to the empire, became a monk, and was banished to Thessalonica.	XVI.	357
5022	3715	716	Leo , commander in chief of all the forces under the late emperor Anastasius, refuses to acknowledge Theodosius, and proclaims himself emperor, engages and overthrows, and takes prisoner, the son of Theodosius, who had been sent against him at Nicomedia, and then goes to Constantinople, where he is met by Germanus the patriarch, &c. with offers of Theodosius's resignation, upon sparing his life, which he readily grants, and Theodosius and his sons enter into orders, and Leo was crowned by Germanus the 25th of March.	XVI.	358
5022	3715	716	The Saracens surprize and take Pergamus.	XVI.	358
5023	3716	717	Soliman a Saracen general breaks into Thrace, but he dying, Haumar succeeds him, but through the severity of the weather, loses most of his men.	XVI.	358
5024	3717	718	Haumar , with an army of Saracens, besieges Constantinople by land, and Suphiam and Izeth by sea, with two mighty fleets; but after thirteen months siege, and losing most of their ships by storms, &c. they raise the siege and retire.	XVI.	359
5025	3718	719	Anastasius the deposed emperor flying to the Bulgarians, tells them, upon his approach with an army the people would restore him; they arm and go with him; but finding strong opposition, they seize him, and deliver him to Leo, who put him to death.	XIX.	397
5026	3719	720	Haumar prince of the Saracens, vexed at his disappointment at Constantinople, raises a persecution against the Christians, and forces some to embrace Mahometism.	XVI.	359
5026	3719	720	Sergius governor of Sicily revolts, and declares one Basilus emperor, and changed his name into Tiberus; but Paul, an officer of the household, being sent against him, took him, and cut off his head.	XVI.	359
5026	3719	720	The empress Maria is delivered of a son, to the great joy of the emperor and the whole empire, and is called Constantine.	XVI.	359
5026	3719	720	The deposed emperor Anastasius comes with a great army of Bulgarians, and claims the crown, and besieges Constantinople, which being vigorously defended, they seize Anastasius, and deliver him up, who was put to death with all his accomplices, and then caused his son to be crowned on Easter-day by Germanus the patriarch. The Saracens under their new prince Ized, who succeeded Haumar ravaged the coasts of Italy and Sicily, put all to fire and sword; but intestine divisions arising among them, they are employed at home.	XVI.	360
5028	3721	722	Luitprand king of the Lombards takes and plunders Ravenna.	XIX.	358
5031	3724	725	The emperor Leo by a law commands all images to be removed out of all the churches, and forbids all manner of worship to be paid to them. Germanus the patriarch opposed this law with all his power; for which Leo deposed him, and put Anastasius in his room. The populace become outrageous at the pulling down and turning out the images, attack the palace, but are driven back with great slaughter; and in the west the people openly revolted in defence of their images, prompted to it by Gregory II. bishop of Rome,	XVI.	362

5035	3728	729	Luitprand being softened by a moving speech of Gregory bishop of Rome, gives over the siege of Rome, &c.	XIX.	567
5037	3730	731	Gregory the then pope begs the friendship and protection of Charles, king of the Franks.	XIX.	568
5038	3731	732	Leo marries his son to the daughter of the king of the Chazari, being first instructed in the Christian religion, and baptized by the name of Irene.	XVI.	364
5038	731	732	Leo fits out a mighty fleet, with an intent to chastize the revolted Italians; but it being shipwrecked in the Adriatic sea, he caused the revenues of the pope in Calabria and Sicily to be confiscated.	XVI.	364
5047	3740	741	A dreadful earthquake at Constantinople overturns many churches, monasteries, and private houses, and buries abundance of people in their ruins. Soon after Leo emperor of Constantinople dies, in the 26th year of his reign, and was succeeded by his son Constantine .	XVI.	364
5048	3741	742	Constantine goes against the Saracens in Asia; in his absence Artabazdus , who had married his sister, gave out that he was dead, and was thereupon proclaimed emperor, who took Nicephorus his eldest son for his partner in the empire; but Constantine came against him, and defeated him several times, and besieged Constantinople, and took it. Artabazdus and his two sons were delivered up, and had their eyes put out. Anastasius the patriarch was punished in the most degrading manner possible.	XVI.	365
5049	3742	743	Luitprand dies greatly lamented, and is succeeded by his son Hildebrand or Hildebrand .	XIX.	570
5050	3743	744	Hildebrand is deposed, and Rachus duke of Friuli chosen in his room.	XIX.	571
5050	3743	744	Constantine goes again against the Saracens, and defeats them several times, took Germanicia and other strong holds. The Saracens fit out a mighty fleet, which the emperor meets and destroys all but three ships. In Syria and Palestine such terrible earthquakes happened as swallowed up whole cities, and an extraordinary darkness, that lasted from the 4th of August to the first of September.	XVI.	366
5050	3743	744	A terrible plague breaks out in Calabria, and spreads into Sicily, Greece, and the islands of the Ægean sea, and then to Constantinople, where it lasted three years, with such fury, that the living could scarce bury the dead,	XVI.	366
5051	3744	745	Rachis , with the consent and approbation of the states convened at Pavia, publishes a new pandect of laws.	XIX.	572
5053	3746	747	Constantine proclaims his son Leo , about a year old, emperor, and goes into Armenia, takes Miletene, &c. but the Bulgarians breaking into Thrace, laid the whole country waste. Constantine goes against them in person, but was defeated and forced to fly to Constantinople, where he renews the edict against images, which began to be used again. Those bishops that opposed it were deposed, and those monks that preached against it were banished, or put to death, and an edict was published, pro-

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			hibiting any one to take upon him a monastic life ; most of the religious houses were suppressed, and the monks obliged to marry.	XVI.	367
5056	3749	750	The Bulgarians disobliged by Constantine, surnamed Copronymus, make a sudden irruption into the Roman territories, lay the country waste, and carry off a great booty unmolested.	XIX.	398
5056	3749	750	The emperor enters the Bulgarians country, and begins to lay all waste with fire and sword ; they fall upon him as he marched through a narrow pass, called Baragaba, put him to flight, and pursued him with great slaughter to the very gates of Constantinople.	XIX.	398
5057	3750	751	Rashis resigns his kingdom, and turns monk ; upon which his brother Astulphus is chose, and reigns in his stead.	XIX.	574
5058	3751	752	Astulphus invades the exarchate of Italy, and takes Ravenna, and puts an end to the name and power, and by adding all their dominions to his own, turned it into a dukedom.	XIX.	575
5060	3753	754	Astulphus king of the Lombards publishes a new pandect of laws.	XIX.	577
5060	3753	754	Pepin king of France, by the instigation of pope Stephen, comes into Italy with a great army, besieges Pavia, and obliges Astulphus by a solemn oath to restore those places he had seized in the Roman dukedom, the exarchate and pentapolis to the pope.	XIX.	579
5062	3755	756	Pepin king of France puts the pope in possession of the exarchate, &c. of Italy.	XIX.	582
5062	3755	756	Astulphus dies, and Desiderius duke of Tuscany gets himself proclaimed king, and is supported by pope Stephen.	XIX.	584
5069	3762	763	A violent frost begins the 1st of October, and lasts till the end of February following, so that the two seas at Constantinople were froze for a hundred miles from the shore.	XVI.	367
5069	3762	763	Constantine goes against the Bulgarians, and cuts them all off to a man.	XVI.	367
5069	3762	763	The Romans entirely overthrow the Bulgarians.	XIX.	398
5080	3773	774	Charlemagne entering Italy, besieges Pavia, takes it and the king, and his wife and children, which he sends to France, where they were never heard of more, and so put an end to the kingdom of the Lombards, taking the sovereignty thereof to himself.	XIX.	592
5081	3774	775	Constantine is seized, in his march against the Bulgarians, with a violent fever, and dies at Strongylum in the thirty-fifth year of his reign.	XVI.	368
5082	3775	776	Leo III. succeeded his father Constantine in the eastern empire, and was crowned the latter end of April, and in May his brother Nicephorus formed a conspiracy against him, which being discovered, he and his accomplices were banished to Chersona.	XVI.	369
5082	3775	776	Elerich king of the Bulgarians resigns his crown, and repairs to Constantinople, and is baptized. The emperor creates him a patrician, and married him to a relation of the empress Irene.	XVI.	369
5085	3778	779	Leo gaining some advantages over the Saracens, they to be revenged, persecute the Christians, and demolish all their churches in Syria.	XVI.	369
5086	3779	780	Leo revives the edict against images, and punished with great severity those who paid any worship to the virgin Mary,

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
5086	3779	780	Constantine succeeded his father Leo in the empire, under the guardianship of his mother Irene, he being but ten years old. A conspiracy was formed against him in favour of his uncle Nicephorus; but being discovered, the authors were banished, and then she obliged the late emperor's brother to take orders. The Saracens broke into the eastern provinces, but were driven out by the forces sent by Irene against them.	XVI.	370
5087	3780	781	Hespidius governor of Sicily revolts, but is drove out by Theodorus, whom the empress Irene sent against him. He flies to the Saracens in Africa, who acknowledge him for emperor, and then they fell upon the eastern provinces with such fury, that Irene agrees to pay them an annual pension to quiet them.	XVI.	370
5087	3780	781	Archis duke of Benevento revolts from the French, and changing his dukedom into a principality, causes himself to be crowned king.	XVI.	371
5094	3787	788	Irene breaks off the match between Rotdrudris, daughter of Charles the great king of France, and her son, and obliges him to marry one Mary, a woman of mean descent, for which he ever after hated his mother.	XIX.	603
5096	3789	790	Constantine takes the government upon himself, and banishes his mother and her favourites from the court. A terrible fire breaks out at Constantinople, which consumed great part of the city, with the patriarch's palace, in which were the comments of St. Chrysostom on the several books of the scripture, written with his own hands.	XVI.	371
5097	3790	791	A violent earthquake makes the inhabitants of Constantinople quit their habitations, and retire into the open fields. Constantine is reconciled to his mother, and recalls her to court, then goes against the Bulgarians, but meets with a dreadful overthrow.	XVI.	372
5097	3790	791	Constantine being egged on, puts his four uncles eyes out.	XVI.	373
5098	3791	792	The Bulgarians entirely defeat the emperor Leo III.	XVI.	373
5100	3793	794	The emperor Charles the great, having several times defeated the Hunns, destroyed their cities, and by putting all to fire and sword, compleated the utter destruction of that war-like people.	XIX.	400
5101	3794	795	Irene persuades her son to divorce his wife Mary, and marry one of her maids named Theodota, which was done with the utmost magnificence; then he went against the Bulgarians, who run away.	XIX.	103
5102	3795	796	The emperor Constantine being with his mother at the baths of Prusa in Bithynia, has word brought that his wife Theodata was delivered of a son, upon which he goes to Constantinople. Irene conspires against her son, and sends some of the officers of the army to Constantinople, who go to him and seize him, and carry him to the palace of Porphyra, where he was born, and tore out his eyes in so rude a manner, that he died a few days after with the anguish of the operation.	XVI.	374
5103	3796	797	The Saracens enter the empire, defeat the forces sent against them by Irene, come up to Constantinople, and carry off immense booty, and vast numbers of captives.	XVI.	374
5104	3797	798	Saturacius , Irene's great favourite, conspires against her,	XVI.	375

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Page.
			but is detected, and punished only by forbidding any one to keep him company, which so vexed him that he died. Soon after Irene, to gain popular applause, remits an annual tribute the people had long paid, promoted commerce, and indulged image worship, &c.	XVI. 375
5106	3799	800	Pope Leo III. crowned Charles the great, king of France, Emperor of the west, on Christmas-Day.	XVI. 375
5108	3801	802	Charles the great, now emperor of the west, sends ambassadors to Irene, empress of the east, with proposals of a firm and lasting peace, and to make a marriage between himself and her, and to unite the two empires. The nobility disliking it, they go one night in a large body to the palace, and seize upon and confine Irene to her chamber; then conduct Nicephorus, (whom they chose emperor) to the great church, and crowned him; and Irene was shut up in a monastery, which she had built in the island of Lesbos.	XVI. 376
5109	3802	803	The emperor Nicephorus concludes a treaty of peace, and acknowledges Charles the great emperor of the west, &c.	XVI. 377
5111	3804	805	Nicephorus causes Nicetas Triphyllius (who had set him on the throne) to be poisoned because he was beloved by the army; and then took his son Saturacius partner with him in the empire, and crowned him as usual; then he marched against the Saracens, who had broke into the empire, but was most shamefully beaten, and narrowly escaped being taken.	XVI. 378
5112	3805	806	Three hundred thousand Saracens invade the empire anew, take Tyana, the metropolis of Cappadocia minor, and extend their ravages to the gates of Ancyra in Galatia. Nicephorus sends ambassadors with rich presents to Aaron their kalif, who grants peace thus; the emperor to pay 30,000 pieces of gold annually, and 6000 for his own head and his son's, and that he should not rebuild the demolished forts: But as soon as they were gone, he rebuilt the forts; upon which they returned, and put all to fire and sword in Cyprus, then demolished all the churches, and murdered all the inhabitants.	XIV. 378
5112	3805	806	The Bulgarians fall upon a party of the Romans that were escorting 1100 pounds weight of gold to pay the army, which they take, and cut off all the guards.	XIX. 400
5113	3806	807	The Saracens make a descent on the island of Rhodes, and take a great number of prisoners; but in their return home their fleet suffered much by a violent storm.	XVI. 378
5115	3808	809	The Bulgarians surprise Sardica, a city of Mæsia, and put the whole garrison, consisting of 6000 men, to the sword: Nicephorus goes against them, but they retired with their booty: He comes back to Constantinople, and taxes the people to raise money to repair Sardica: A tumult rises, and attacks the palace; but the guards killing great numbers of them, quell them.	XIX. 401
5117	3810	811	Nicephorus goes with a great army into Bulgaria, and destroys all with fire and sword: Crumus their king sues for peace; the emperor refuses, and goes on wasting their country, destroying the cities, and murdering the inhabitants. Crumus sends a second time, offering to quit the country, &c. Nicephorus will not hear; then Crumus attacks the emperor's camp and forces, cuts off the emperor, and almost his whole army, took all the arms and baggage, cut off Nicephorus's head, and made a drinking cup of his skull: Nicephorus is said to have been a Manichee, one who denied providence; and to have been excessively lewd, cruel, covetous, and debauched.

XIX. 401

5117 3810 811 Saturacius succeeded his father Nicephorus, and was declared emperor at Adrianople by some few of the officers that had escaped; but the senate proclaimed and crowned Michael, that had married his sister, who a few days after caused his wife Procopia and his son Theophylact to be crowned also; upon which Saturacius with his wife Theophania retired into a monastery, and died there about two years after.

XVI. 380

5118 3811 812 The Saracens break into the empire on one side, and the Bulgarians on the other: Leo drives back and defeats the first, and Michael goes against the last, has several slight skirmishes, but at last was utterly defeated, and forced to fly shamefully back to Constantinople; this so affected him, that he begged Leo to take the purple, which with some difficulty he accepted.

XIX. 401

5119 3812 813 Michael and his wife Procopia retire to the monastery of Pharus, where on the 11th of July he took the habit. Leo goes against the Bulgarians, and after a very obstinate battle the Romans were put to flight; but the enemy pursuing disorderly, the Romans rallied and engaged again, and got so complete a victory, that the Bulgarians did not invade the empire again for some years.

XVI. 382

5120 3813 814 The emperor Leo overcomes the Bulgarians in a pitched battle, wherein he slew and took a very great number.

XIX. 403

5126 3819 820 The emperor Leo having revived the edict against images, and banished Nicephorus the patriarch, Theodorus, a famous monk, &c. for not complying, one Michael Balbus conspires against Leo, is detected, and condemned to be burnt alive; but his accomplices fell upon Leo as he was going to his devotions, and killed him in the chapel of the palace, banished the empress Theodosia and her four sons to the island Prota, where they were made eunuchs, and Michael was declared emperor, and crowned by the patriarch.

XVI. 384

5127 3820 821 The emperor Michael recalls great numbers of bishops, monks, and others who had been banished by Leo on account of image worship, and restores them.

XVI. 384

5128 3821 822 A civil war breaks out in the east by one Thomas, who gave out, that he was Constantine the son of Irene: Under this pretence he raised a great army, and over-run all Asia, and proclaimed himself emperor, and was acknowledged by the patriarch of Antioch. Michael sends his troops against him; they meet and engage in Asia, where Thomas overthrows them; then defeats Michael's fleet, and besieges Constantinople, but is forced to raise it.

XVI. 385

5128 3821 822 They engage again, and Thomas is routed with great slaughter by land, and his fleet driven on shoar, and ruined at sea: Upon this Gregory one of his generals revolted with 12,000 men; Thomas goes after him, cuts most of his men to pieces, takes him prisoner, and puts him to death: Soon after he is put to flight with great slaughter by the Bulgarians, and his fleet revolts to Michael, who sends his troops against him, and while they were engaged most of his troops desert: Thomas flies to Adrianople, where being besieged, his own men delivered him up, and having his hands and feet cut off, he died in great agony.

XVI. 386

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
5128	3821	822	The Saracens who had settled in Spain growing too numerous, transport a large number into Crete. Damianus, the emperor's general, joined by Photinus, goes against them; they engage, Damianus is killed, and the whole army put to flight. Then the Saracens built Candax, or Candia, and soon became masters of the whole island.	XVI. 387
5129	3822	823	Michael sends Craterus against the Saracens in Crete; they engage, and Craterus kills great numbers, and makes them fly; but instead of pursuing, goes to revelling; the Saracens in the middle of the night sally out upon them, half drunk and asleep, and cut them all off to a man, Craterus himself hardly escaping.	XVI. 388
5132	3825	826	Michael emperor of the east forces Euphrosyne, daughter of Constantine Porphyrogenitus, out of the monastery whither she had retired, and marries her: One of his officers fancying another sacred virgin, takes and debauches her: Complaint being made, the offender to avoid punishment revolts to the Saracens in Africa, where he is proclaimed emperor, and sent with an army into Sicily, where he is beheaded; but the Saracens never quitted the island till they had conquered it, and then went into Italy, and conquered Calabria.	XVI. 389
5135	3828	829	The emperor Michael dies of a flux, the 1st of October, in the 9th year of his reign, and was succeeded by his son Theophilus, who punished all the murderers of Leo, and sent the empress Euphrosyne back to her monastery, and performed every part of the imperial government with unwearied diligence.	XVI. 390
5138	3831	832	The emperor Theophilus marries his daughter Mary to one Alexius Moseles, an Armenian by birth, a person of great personal beauty, bravery, and endowments; made him proconsul, created him Cæsar, and sent him against the Saracens in Italy, where he did wonders; but being misrepresented to the emperor, he desired leave to retire and live privately, which was granted.	XVI. 391
5138	3831	832	The Saracens beat the Romans who went to hinder their depredations.	XVI. 391
5140	3833	834	Theophilus commands the Roman forces, obtains a complete victory over the Saracens, killing great numbers, and carrying 20,000 of them prisoners to Constantinople in triumph.	XVI. 392
5141	3834	835	Theophilus the Roman emperor is defeated by the Saracens, and rescued with great danger by Manuel, one of his generals, whom he used very ill soon after, so that he was forced to fly to the Saracens for protection, who received him with great honour, for which he defeated the Cermatae for them several times.	XVI. 392
5145	3838	839	The emperor Theophilus invaded Syria, ravaged the country, and after taking several strong holds, returns to Constantinople, leaving the army under the command of Theophobus.	XVI. 393
5146	3839	840	Theophobus the Persian general, commander of the Roman army in Syria, is proclaimed emperor by 30,000 Persians; but he refuses, and resigns to Theophilus.	XVI. 393
5147	3840	841	Theophilus having destroyed Sozopetra, the birth-place of the prince of the Saracens, he swore he would at all events destroy Amorium, the birth-place of Theophilus, in Cilicia: He raises a great army, and advances and besieges Amorium, takes it, puts the men to the sword, levelled the city, and carried the women and children away captive; which so afflicted the emperor, that he fell sick and died, at Magnaura, in the 23th year of his reign.

XVI. 393

5147 3840 841 Michael the son of Theophilus, a child of six years old, succeeded his father in the empire of the east, under the regency of his mother Theodora, who immediately recalled all those that had been banished for image-worship, and drove John the patriarch away, put Methodius, a monk, in his stead, and is said to cut 100,000 Manichees to pieces; upon which Carbeas at the head of 4000 of that sect revolted to the Saracens, who returned with them into the Roman territories, and dispeopled whole nations.

XVI. 396

5149 3842 843 Roderick the Great became king of all Cambria, or Wales, which before was divided into six kingdoms.

XIX. 36

5161 3855 855 The emperor Michael takes the government upon himself and begins with murdering his guardian Theodistus, then giving ear to the false accusations of his uncle Bardas, locks up his mother and three sisters in a monastery, and then fell into the most extravagant debaucheries and cruelties, making Nero his example.

XVI. 397

5162 3855 856 The emperor Michael besieging a Saracen city on the Euphrates, one Sunday as his army was at their devotions the Saracens sally out upon them, put the whole army to flight, and took their camp and baggage.

XVI. 398

5164 3857 858 The Saracens entering the empire with 30,000 men, put Michael to flight at the head of 40,000; but his brother Petronas falls upon the Saracens near Ephesus, cut off the kalif and his whole army, and took his son prisoner.

XVI. 398

5166 3859 860 The emperor Michael creates his uncle Bardas Cæsar, where he acted beyond all law or reason, first putting away his wife, without pretending any fault, and marrying his niece; for which the patriarch Ignatius refused to communicate with him; to revenge which he calls a council, and gets Ignatius falsely condemned for the murder of his predecessor Methodius, for which Ignatius was deposed and imprisoned, and Photius put in his place.

XVI. 398

5167 3860 861 Bardas persuades the emperor to go against the Cretan Saracens: they encamp at Chorus, where on the 1st of April he orders Bardas to be murdered, which was done, and the 26th of May following declared Basilus his great chamberlain, his partner in the empire, who strove what he could to reclaim Michael; but finding it impossible, with some others enters his room when in bed, and murders him, and reigns alone, to the liking of all persons.

XVI. 400

5168 3861 862 Two patricians, George and Symbatius, conspire against Basilus; but being discovered, have their eyes put out, and their accomplices banished.

XVI. 400

5169 3862 863 The emperor Basilus proclaims his eldest son Constantine his partner in the empire, and his sons Leo and Alexander Cæsars; and made his 4th son Stephen take orders: His four daughters took the religious habit in the monastery of St. Euphemia.

XVI. 400

5169 3862 863 Basilus goes against the Manichees settled in Armenia, from whence they made frequent inroads into the empire,

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
			under their leader Carbeas, who was now become very numerous : He laid their country waste, killed their best commanders, and returned with immense booty.
5170	3863	864	The Manichees under Chrysochir break into the empire ; but the imperial troops meet, engage, and cut them all off almost to a man, with their leader.	XVI.	400
5177	3870	871	The Britons are drove out of Cornwall, south of Scotland, and Carlisle, and take shelter in North Wales.	XVI.	400
5186	3879	880	Basilus and his son Constantine invade Syria, take several strong holds, with an incredible number of prisoners ; and in their return they take Cæsarea, the capital of Cappadocia : He was forced to put multitudes of the prisoners to the sword, upon which several of their governors joined the emperor. The African and Cretan Saracens were likewise defeated with great slaughter, and their fleet destroyed by Nazar, the Roman admiral : But the Carthaginian Saracens took Syracuse.	XIX.	36
5191	3885	885	Constantine being dead, Basilus advances his second son to be his partner, who is presently accused by a favourite monk with a design to kill his father ; for which he was thrown into goal ; but his father dying soon after, he succeeded him, when he ordered the monk who had falsely accused him to be first whipped, and then banished to Athens, where his eyes were put out.	XVI.	401
5192	3885	886	Photius , patriarch of Constantinople, having conspired to put one of his kinsmen on the throne, was deposed, and Stephen the emperor's brother put in his place.	XVI.	403
5199	3892	893	Simeon king of the Bulgarians entering the Roman empire, is opposed by the Roman army under Crenites and Curtius, which he defeats, kills their generals, and uses the prisoners very barbarously and inhumanly.	XVI.	403
5201	3894	895	Simeon king of the Bulgarians engages the Ungri, or Hungarians, and is entirely overthrown ; upon which he sues for peace, and the emperor Leo grants it ; but as soon as Leo was returned to Constantinople, Simeon falls unexpectedly upon the Hungarians, puts them to flight, ravages their country, and puts all to fire and sword.	XIX.	405
5203	3896	897	The emperor Leo sends a great army under Theodosius a patrician against the Bulgarians, which Simeon their king entirely defeats, and obliges the Romans to make peace upon his own conditions.	XVI.	405
5206	3899	900	The empress Theophano dies, and Leo marries one Zoe, who had been his concubine ; but she dying soon after, he married one Eudogia ; and she dying in child-birth, he married another Zoe : All fourth marriages being at that time held unlawful, Nicolaus Mysticus the patriarch excommunicated the emperor for his marrying a fourth time ; which so exasperated him that he deposed Mysticus, and put Euthymius Syncellus in his room ; which occasioned a schism, and great disturbances in the church.	XIX.	406
5207	3901	901	As the emperor Leo was entering the great church on Whitsunday, a mean person gave him a violent blow on the head with a great club, and left him for dead ; but Leo recovered, and the assassin being seized, was racked, and his hands and feet cut off, and then burnt alive.	XVI.	405
5208	3902	902	The Saracens take Taurominium in Sicily, with a mighty fleet and then they took Thessalonica, which Simeon , the emperor Leo's secretary, redeemed with a mighty	XVI.	405

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			sum. Leo sends an army against them, and gained several victories over them.	XVI.	405
5209	3902	903	The Saracens invade the empire with a great army, which is defeated by Himerius the Roman general.	XVI.	406
5217	3910	911	The Saracens with a great fleet commit dreadful ravages on the coast: Himerius goes with the Roman fleet against them, and is utterly defeated; which so affected the emperor, that on the 11th of May he died of the cholic, and was succeeded by his brother Alexander, who being a lewd cruel, and dissolute person, began his reign by banishing all the good and great, and promoting the most profligate and mean persons.	XVI.	409
5218	3911	912	The emperor Alexander's debaucheries threw him into an inward bleeding, of which he died, after reigning 13 months, and declared his nephew Constantine (a child of about six years old) his successor; and appointed those who had indulged his own debaucheries the child's guardian.	XVI.	410
5218	3911	912	One Constantine Ducas, son of Andronicus, a famous general, was by many of the nobility declared emperor in the Circus; but the guards seized him, cut off his head, and most of his companions were put to death or banished.	XVI.	410
5218	3911	912	The Bulgarians ravage Thrace, and besiege Constantinople; but are forced to raise the siege and return home.	XIX.	407
5220	3913	914	The emperor's governors quarrelling among themselves, the empress Zoe his mother is recalled to court, and made regent, who dismissed all Alexander's favourites.	XVI.	410
5220	3913	914	The Saracens and Bulgarians both break into the empire; the latter over-ran Thrace, and besiege Adrianople: Simeon having bribed Pancatucus the governor with rich presents, he delivered the city up.	XIX.	407
5223	3916	917	A peace is concluded with the Saracens, and a great army sent against the Bulgarians, who at first were defeated; but rallying, and falling upon the pursuing Romans, intirely overthrew them.	XIX.	408
5226	3919	920	Romanus Lacapenus , the Roman admiral, having by his great interest at court got himself declared Cæsar, banishes the empress Zoe to the monastery of St. Euphemia, and caused himself to be crowned emperor by the patriarch.	XVI.	412
5227	3920	921	Romanus caused his two sons, Stephen and Christopher, to be crowned in the great church; reserving his third son Theophylactus for the patriarchal dignity.	XVI.	412
5228	3921	922	The Bulgarians overthrow the Romans with great slaughter, take many of the great men prisoners, burn the imperial palace at Pegæ, and became masters of Adrianople a second time, and torture Leo, who defended it, to death.	XIX.	409
5229	3922	923	The Bulgarians again enter the empire, lay waste Macedon and Thrace, taking many strong holds, and putting garrisons in some, and levelling others: Then they go to Constantinople, and offer to come to an accommodation; they conclude a peace, and return home.	XIX.	410
5230	3923	924	John Radenus the Roman admiral surprizes the Saracen fleet in the harbour of Lemnos, destroyed the whole fleet, and cut them all off to a man.	XVI.	413
5234	3927	928	Simeon king of the Bulgarians engages the Chrobati, and is intirely defeated, and soon after dies of grief, and is succeeded by Peter his second son, who breaks into Macedon, and destroys all with fire and sword. Romanus going against him he proposes a peace and alliance; which

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
			being concluded, he marries Mary the grand-daughter of Romanus.		XVI. 410
5235	3928	929	The Syrian Saracens invade the Roman territories, but are driven back by the Roman general in those parts. A severe frost, that lasted 120 days, was followed by a plague, which swept off abundance of people. Earthquakes troubled several provinces, and whole cities were overthrown.		XVI. 413
5239	3932	933	A great fire destroyed many stately buildings at Constantinople, and Christopher the son of Romanus dies.		XVI. 413
5240	3933	934	One Basilius, a Macedonian, giving out that he was Constantine Ducas that had been slain, many followed him; but being taken and carried to the emperor at Constantinople, he orders one of his hands to be cut off, and then set at liberty; but still insisting upon his being the son of Andronicus, he seized a strong hold and made frequent incursions; but being taken again, was burnt alive.		XVI. 414
5250	3943	944	The Rossi, formerly called the Roxolani, and Bastarnæ, fit out a fleet of 10,000 ships, and commit terrible ravages on the coasts of the empire: But Theophanes the Roman admiral falling unexpectedly upon them, destroyed their whole fleet: of those who escaped on shore, abundance were cut to pieces; so that very few returned home.		XVI. 414
5250	3943	944	Stephen, the youngest son of Romanus, seizes his father, deposes and forces him into a monastery in the island Prota (where he died four years after) and proclaims himself emperor, and is allowed to be partner with his elder brother Constantine.		XVI. 415
5251	3944	945	Constantine the son of Leo being now near forty years old, and having only the name of emperor, without any share in the government, invites the two brother emperors, Stephen and Constantine, to a feast, and in the midst of their jollity seized them, and sent Stephen to the island of Panormus, and Constantine to Terebinthus, and ordered them to be both ordained priests, and caused his son Romanus to be crowned with the usual solemnity.		XVI. 415
5254	3947	948	The Saracens break into the empire, and are defeated several times; and Leo overthrowing them in a pitched battle, took Apolafemus, the kailif's kinsman, who being carried to Constantinople, the vain emperor Constantine trod upon his neck by way of insult.		XVI. 415
5255	3948	949	The kailif of the Saracens having Constantine the third son of the Roman general Bardas Phocas in his power, used him most cruelly to make him abjure Christianity; but not prevailing, poisoned him: Phocas in return put all any way related to the kailif to death that fell into his hands, and drawing the kailif into an ambush, cut off his army almost to a man, he hardly escaping; and then Phocas entered his dominions, took many strong holds, and laid waste whole provinces.		XVI. 416
5256	3949	950	The Cretan Saracens commit dreadful ravages on the frontiers of the empire. Constantine sends an army and fleet into Crete; but through the ignorance of the commander the whole miscarried; great part of the army was cut to pieces, and the camp and baggage taken by the enemy.		XVI. 416

Y. of World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
5264	3957	958	Romanus , the emperor Constantine's son, egged on by his wife Theophano, prevails upon Nicetas to poison his father; but Constantine luckily spilling great part of the draught, the remainder was not strong enough to kill him.	XVI. 417
5266	3959	960	The emperor Constantine is taken ill on a journey, and brought back to Constantinople, where he dies the 9th of November, in the 49th year of his reign, and is succeeded by his son Romanus, esteemed one of the lowdest and wickedest princes that ever reigned; and though endowed with extraordinary natural parts, made no use of them, committing the whole management of affairs to his favourite Joseph.	XVI. 418
5267	3960	961	Romanus the emperor orders the patriarch Polyeuctus to solemnly crown his youngest son Basilus.	XVI. 418
5268	3961	962	Nicephorus Phocas goes against the Cretan Saracens, defeats them several times and takes all their strong holds; likewise corrupts the kailif, and Arcemas his lieutenant, and reduced the whole island. Leo his brother overthrew the Saracens several times in the east, where most of them were killed on the spot, or taken prisoners, and was rewarded with a triumph: But Nicephorus, by the management of Joseph, is sent against Chabdanus kailif of the Saracens, overthrew him in a pitched battle, took Beræa, and great wealth with it, and set multitudes of Christians at liberty.	XVI. 419
5269	3962	963	The emperor Romanus dies, the 15th of March, and the empress Theophano is regent for her sons Basilus and Constantine, who contrary to the will of Joseph the prime minister, calls Nicephorus to court, and honours him with a triumph.	XVI. 419
5269	3962	963	Nicephorus is proclaimed emperor by the army in Syria, on the 2d of July; upon which the houses of Joseph and his friends at Constantinople were levelled with the ground, and Nicephorus joyfully acknowledged emperor, and crowned at Hebdomon by the patriarch Polyeuctus; then he banished and confined Joseph in a monastery in Paphlagonia, where he died two years after.	XVI. 420
5270	3963	964	The emperor Nicephorus marries the empress Theophano, for which the patriarch excommunicated him; but a council being called, he was restored to the communion of the church.	XVI. 421
5271	3964	965	Nicephorus sends an army under Manuel into Sicily, to drive out the Saracens, who drew him into the mountains, and then cut off him and his army: John Zimis cut off the Saracens in the province of Cilicia, and overthrew and drove them quite out of Cyprus, and reunited it to the empire again.	XVI. 421
5272	3965	966	Nicephorus goes against the Saracens in Cilicia, and took three of their strongest cities, and wintered in Cappadocia.	XVI. 421
5273	3966	967	Nicephorus besieges and takes Mopsuesta, and Tarsus: A great fleet of Saracens coming to the relief of Tarsus three days after it surrendered, returned, but was most of it destroyed by a storm, and the rest taken by the Romans, with the soldiers.	XVI. 421
5274	3967	968	Nicephorus breaks into Syria, and reduces a great part of it; then besieged Antioch; but the garrison being numerous, and well provided, winter forced him to raise the siege, after he had spent three months before it, when he returned to Constantinople: But Burtzas, a patrician, unexpectedly in the depth of winter marched his troops to Antioch, and took it, and once more added it to the empire.

XVI. 422

969 Nicephorus banishes Burtzas and Zimisces from the court for some groundless suspicions, who together with the empress conspire against him, and murder him in the palace, when John Zimisces was proclaimed and acknowledged emperor by every body.

XVI. 423

969 The emperor John Zimisces displaces all the friends of the late emperor Nicephorus, and banished his brother Leo to Lesbos, recalled all those that Nicephorus had banished, and restored all those he had degraded: Going to the great church to be crowned, Polyeuctus the patriarch refused his admission till he had done penance for the crime of murdering Nicephorus; he promises to revoke the acts against the church, settle his paternal estate upon the poor, and banish the empress and Ablantius, and was then crowned on Christmas day.

XVI. 423

969 The emperor Zimisces takes Basilus and Constantine, the two sons of Romanus, for his colleagues in the empire; and caused the senate and people of Constantinople to acknowledge them as such.

XVI. 423

969 The Saracens with a vast army besiege Antioch, but are overthrown and driven out of Syria by the Romans.

XVI. 424

969 The Russi, or Rossi, the present inhabitants of Podolia, break into Bulgaria, and after ravaging the country, and burning several towns, they return home loaded with booty.

XIX. 412

970 The Rossi invade the empire with 300,000 men; having wasted all Thrace, they sat down before Adrianople; Bardas Sclerus goes to its relief with 13,000 men, and by a stratagem draws a strong party of them into an ambuscade, and cuts every man of them off; and unexpectedly falling on the main body of their army, overthrew them, put a great number to the sword, and took a vast number prisoners, with the loss of only 25 men.

XVI. 424

970 Bardas Phocas, nephew to the late emperor, is encouraged by several of the nobility, takes Cæsarea in Cappadocia, and proclaims himself emperor. Bardas Sclerus goes against him to Cæsarea, where Phocas being forsaken by his prompters, flies to the strong castle of Cyropæum, where he submitted to Sclerus, upon a solemn assurance of pardon, which the emperor performed, but banished him to the island of Chios. This year the emperor married Theodora the daughter of the late emperor Romanus.

XVI. 425

970 The Russi come again into Bulgaria, and having overcome the Bulgarians, settle in their country.

XIX. 412

971 Zimisces goes against the Rossi who were now settled in Bulgaria, and invests Persthalba, the capital of Bulgaria, at unawares; 8000 Rossi attempt to get into the city, but are cut all off, and next day the city was taken by assault, and great numbers of the inhabitants put to the sword: 8000 Scythians retire into the citadel, which the Romans took by storm, and the Scythians all destroyed. Borises king of the Bulgarians being taken, the emperor used him suitable to his rank, and released him, with his wife, children, and all the Bulgarians; but the city was destroyed, as belonging to the Rossi.

XVI. 426

971 Zimisces goes towards Dorostorum, on the Danube, where he was met by 300,000 of the Rossi; they engage, and

Y. of Chrif.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of
World.

after a most obstinate fight the Rossi were put to flight with great slaughter; they entering Dorostorum, Zimisces follows and besieges them; a second battle is fought, and they are again terribly beaten; at last they cut their way through the Roman camp, and many of them escape.

XVI. 427

5277 3970 971 Stephen Dosthalbas, general of the Rossi, proposes a peace, and to quit Bulgaria if he should be acknowledged as a friend and ally of the empire, he and his countrymen permitted to return home unmolested, and a free trade be established between the two nations; which was signed by both parties.

XVI. 427

5282 3975 976 Basilus the eunuch, prime minister to the emperor Zimisces, for fear of punishment for his rapine, &c. hires the cup-bearer to poison him in his return from the east, which was done, this being the 7th year of his reign.

XVI. 428

5282 3975 976 Basilus and Constantine were declared the successors of Zimisces by his will, and as they were not of age, Basilus the eunuch took upon him the government, and recalled their mother Theophano.

XVI. 429

5283 3976 977 Samuel king of the Bulgarians breaks into the empire, does much damage, and carries off great booty.

XIX. 413

5283 3976 977 Bardas Sclerus being dispossessed by Basilus the eunuch of his high command of general of all the forces in the east, and by him sent into Mesopotamia, there he was proclaimed emperor by the army, and comes with a great force towards Constantinople, engages the imperial army, cuts great numbers to pieces, puts the rest to flight, took their camp, and in it vast sums of money, and an immense quantity of arms and provisions. Soon after he engaged the emperor's army again, and gains another complete victory, by which most of the officers were slain, and Leo the general, and many persons of distinction taken prisoners. Then he took Nice, and engaging Bardas Phocas at Amorium, put his army to the rout; but having recruited, returns, and again engages and totally routs Sclerus.

XVI. 432

5286 3979 980 Bardas Phocas is declared emperor, and Sclerus likewise entering Mesopotamia, sets up his former pretensions, and offers to join Phocas, and divide the empire, which was agreed and sworn to by both parties; but as soon as their forces were joined, Phocas seized Sclerus, and put him in prison. The emperor Basilus, and his brother Constantine fall upon Delphinus, commander under Phocas, and put his army to flight, and took him and other great officers prisoners, who were immediately nailed to several great trees on the road: Then going against Phocas, killed him, and put his army to flight with great slaughter, and took the leading men prisoners, carried them to Constantinople, and punished them divers ways.

XVI. 435

5292 3985 986 Sclerus heads those that were left, but through the intercession of his son Romanus, and the promise of the emperor Basilus, he is prevailed with to lay down his arms and pretensions, and go to Constantinople, where he is made great chamberlain, and lived with much honour the remainder of his life.

XVI. 435

5301 3994 995 The Romans unexpectedly cross the Sperchius in the night, and fall upon the Bulgarians in the dark, cut great numbers to pieces, took their baggage, with many prisoners, mastered their camp, and forced their king Samuel and his son to hide themselves among the slain, who by that means stole away into Bulgaria.

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
5307	4000	1001	Basilus the emperor goes into Bulgaria, defeats king Samuel in a pitched battle, took Vidini Scopi, and several other strong cities, but had liked to have been cut off afterwards, with his whole army, by Samuel, who unexpectedly fell upon them in the Straights of Cimba; but Nicephorus governor of Philippopolis falling upon Samuel's rear, put them to flight, Basilus pursuing them took 15,000 prisoners, and put out their eyes, leaving one to every hundred with one eye for a guide to the rest. King Samuel was so shocked at this dreadful fight, that he fell into a swoon, and died two days after.	XVI.	436
5307	4000	1001	Gabriel , son of Samuel, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Bulgaria. The emperor continued to ravage the country, and to take the strong holds; but sending Theophylact, one of his generals, to reduce the strong holds among the mountains, the natives cut off him and his whole army; upon which Basilus retires, but in his rout took several castles, and burnt Buteliana, the royal palace, and Gabriel was killed by Gudisthalbus , who succeeded him.	XIX.	417
5323	4016	1017	Basilus enters Bulgaria again, and took several places, and many of the people; Gudisthalbus offers to submit upon the emperor's own terms. Ibatzes draws the Romans into an ambush, and cuts every man of them off. Basilus returns, destroys all with fire and sword, and put out the eyes of the prisoners: But having lost great part of his army in several encounters, he returned to Constantinople.	XIX.	418
5325	4018	1019	Basilus resolves never to sheath his sword till he had reduced all Bulgaria, and Gudisthalbus being killed in a battle near Acridus, all the chiefs of Bulgaria submitted to the emperor, who made a progress through the country to receive the homage of the several provinces.	XIX.	419
5327	4020	1021	Xiphius and Nicephorus, the sons of Bardas Phocas, revolt; but Basilus found means to bring Xiphius to his duty, and to dispatch Nicephorus, and so the rebellion ceased: But Basilus punishing with too great severity all that had been concerned in the disaffection, breeds new commotions; but the ringleaders being seized and executed, all was quiet again.	XIX.	420
5331	4024	1025	The emperor Basilus making great preparations for a war against the Saracens in Sicily, sends a strong body of forces under Orestes, his favourite eunuch, before him, intending to follow with a large fleet and army, but dies in the December of this year, and Constantine his brother, who had done little but bear the name of emperor in his lifetime, now becomes sole emperor; but being a weak, effeminate, and vicious prince, he suffered his ministers to oppress and injure the provinces without controul, all of honour, resolution, and virtue, being turned out, or put to death.	XVI.	438
5334	4027	1028	The emperor Constantine VIII. dies, and is succeeded by his son-in-law Romanus II. who gained the hearts of the people by easing their taxes in general, being vastly liberal to the church, and ransoming all taken captives in the late war.	XVI.	440
5336	4029	1030	The Saracens broke into Roman Asia; the commander of the troops in those parts being defeated, Romanus goes him-	XVI.	441

self: The Saracens beg for peace, and promise quietness for the future: Romanus rejects them, and sends a strong party to observe their motions, who falling into an ambush, are every man of them cut off; after which the Saracens defeated another strong body, besieged the camp, and reduced the Romans to great streights, and took all the baggage, the emperor with difficulty escaping to Antioch. 800 Saracens that was escorting the plunder, coming to a small town, they summoned Maniaces the governor to surrender: He sent them a large quantity of wine, &c. with which making too free, Maniaces sallied out in the night, while they were either drunk or asleep, and cut them all off to a man; and recovered 280 camels loaded with the spoils of the Roman army, which he sent to the emperor, who made him governor of Media for his reward.

XVI. 442

5339 4032 1033 A dreadful plague breaks out and rages so terribly in Cappadocia, Paphlagonia, and Armenia, that the inhabitants forsake these provinces: A terrible famine followed, and mighty earthquakes succeed the famine; which destroyed whole cities, and did great damages in Constantinople.

XVI. 442

5340 4033 1034 The empress Zoe having got her husband the emperor Romanus murdered, sends for Alexius the patriarch, and commands him to marry her to one Michael, brother to John the eunuch, Romanus's favourite, with whom she had held a criminal conversation during the life of Romanus, Alexius scruples, but 100 lb. weight of gold made him perform the office, when Michael was proclaimed emperor, and partner with Zoe.

XVI. 443

5340 4033 1034 Tangrolipix, now master of Persia, opened a passage for his countrymen in Armenia, and being strengthened by their assistance, made war on Pisaris, kailif of Babylon, slew him, and annexed his dominions to those of Persia.

XVI. 450

5341 4034 1035 John the eunuch governs all the eastern empire with an absolute sway, in the name of his brother Michael, who to atone for his former life, now spent his time in acts of devotion, religion, and piety, and advances Michael his sister's son to the dignity of Cæsar.

XVI. 444

5342 4035 1036 A peace for 30 years is concluded by Michael between the Romans and Saracens, whose kailif being dead, his widow embraced Christianity.

XVI. 445

5342 4035 1036 Dreadful earthquakes overturned several cities in different parts of the eastern empire, and twelve pretended ambassadors come to Edessa, with 5000 horses and as many camels, pretending they were loaded with presents for the emperor, but were full of armed men; which being discovered, the governor cut every one of them to pieces, and so saved the city.

XVI. 445

5342 4035 1036 One Deleanus, a Bulgarian slave at Constantinople, runs away from his master, goes into Bulgaria, and pretends to be the son of Gabriel, and grandson of Samuel their late kings: The Bulgarians proclaim him king, and sacrificed all the Romans that fell into their power. The inhabitants of Dyrrhachium in Bulgaria set up one Teichomer for their king: Deleanus cajoled Teichomer so far, that the latter joined him with all his forces, when he got him stoned to death: Then Deleanus goes against the emperor Michael at Thessalonica; Michael leaves all his baggage and treasure with Ibatza, who revolted with it to Delea-

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			nus : Then they besiege Theſſalonica ; but the governor ſallying out unexpectedly, cut 15,000 Bulgarians to pieces, and forced the reſt to run away.
5344	4037	1038	Tangrolipix ſends his nephew Cuthimufes againſt the Arabians, who overthrow him in a pitched battle ; and being forced to take ſhelter in Media, Stephen the Roman general refuſes him a paſſage ; they engage ; the Romans are beat, and Stephen taken priſoner.	XIX.	423
5347	4040	1041	The emperor Michael having ſubdued all Bulgaria, being grievouſly afflicted with the dropſy, reſigns the empire, retires into a monaſtery, and died the 10th of December, and was ſucceeded by Calaphates, his ſiſter's ſon ; but he behaving cruelly and diſreſpectfully, the people ſent for Theodora (the emperor Conſtantine's youngſt daughter) out of a monaſtery, and ſaluted her empreſs with her ſiſter Zoe, and Michael voluntarily reſigned, and retired into a monaſtery.	XVI.	450
5347	4040	1041	Tangrolipix goes againſt the Arabians himſelf, and is beat. Aſan, nephew to Tangrolipix , goes into Media with 20,000 men, and ravages the country ; but being drawn into an ambuſh, was cut off with his whole army by the Roman generals. Soon after another army of 100,000 Turks comes into Media, and ravages the country. The Romans ſhutting themſelves up in their ſtrong holds, are beſieged in Artza, which the Turks ſet fire to, and deſtroyed 150,000 of the inhabitants.	XVI.	447
5348	4041	1042	Michael and his uncle Conſtantine taking up the religious habit, thought themſelves ſecure ; but the empreſs Theodora cauſed both their eyes to be pulled out, and baniſhed them, their relations, and adherents.	XVI.	451
5348	4041	1042	The empreſs Zoe being preſſed to marry, ſends for Conſtantine Monomachus out of baniſhment, a beautiful man, and of noble extract, marries him, and has him crowned by the patriarch.	XVI.	447
5349	4042	1043	Maniaces , general of all the weſtern forces, revolts, and is joined by the Bulgarians, and declares himſelf emperor : Stephen Sebaſtophorus goes againſt him with a very numerous army, but is routed at the firſt onſet, and Maniaces a few days afterwards was killed by an unknown hand, upon which the revoltors returned to their duty.	XVI.	448
5349	4042	1043	The Roſſi come before Conſtantinople with a mighty fleet ; but being defeated by the emperor's fleet, they renew their antient alliance and return home.	XVI.	448
5350	4043	1044	The emperor Conſtantine goes into the eaſt, to recover what the Saracens had taken during the two laſt reigns ; but while he is doing this, Leo Tornicius proclaims himſelf emperor, and at the head of a great army goes to Conſtantinople, and beſieges it ; but not being able to reduce it, retires to Arcadiopolis, where being overcome, and ſent to Monomachus in chains, he pulled out his eyes, and baniſhed him, which quaiſhed the rebellion and reſtored peace.	XVI.	448
5354	4047	1048	Abraham Halim , half brother to Tangrolipix , engages Liparites the Roman governor of Iberia ; the victory at laſt was with the Romans, though their general Liparites was taken priſoner : The emperor ſends ambaffadors with rich preſents and a large ſum to ranſom Liparites , and to propoſe an alliance with Tangrolipix ; all which Tangrolipix agreed to, but generouſly gave the whole ranſom and	XVI.	449

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			resents to Liparites, to repair his losses and furnish his equipage.
5355	4048	1049	Tangrolipix sends an ambassador to Constantinople, who arrogantly requiring the emperor to submit to his master, and acknowledge himself his tributary, Monomachus dismissed him with scorn, and drove him out of the city.	XVI.	451
5355	4048	1049	The Patzinacæ, a Scythian nation, cross the Danube, on the ice, and enter the empire with 800,000 men, and destroyed all with fire and sword; but great numbers of them being swept off by the distempers that raged among them, Constantine Arianites the Roman general falls unexpectedly upon them, kills many, and the rest threw down their arms; great numbers are allowed to settle in Bulgaria, some returned home, but Tyrach and 140 of the most noble among them were sent to Constantinople, where embracing Christianity they are treated suitable to their rank.	XVI.	451
5358	4051	1052	The emperor sends 15,000 Patzinacæ under Cotalunes their own general to reinforce the army in Iberia; but they revolt, and being joined by great numbers of their countrymen, encamp on the banks of the Danube, and make continual incursions into the empire, and frequently defeat the troops sent against them; but at last they sue for peace, which is granted for 30 years.	XVI.	452
5360	4053	1054	Tangrolipix commits great ravages in Iberia, kills all the people that falls into his power, and takes many towns.	XVI.	452
5361	4054	1055	Constantine Monomachus the emperor of the east dies, and is succeeded by Theodora, sister to his wife Zoe.	XVI.	453
5362	4055	1056	The empress Theodora dies of a violent pain in her bowels, and bequeathed the empire to Michael Stratioticus, an old unfit person, who suffered the eunuchs to manage all things to their liking, and disoblged every body else.	XVI.	453
5363	4056	1057	On the 8th of June, Comnenus a famous general was by the soldiery proclaimed emperor. Stratioticus sends an army against him, which is beat, and Comnenus marches to Constantinople, where Stratioticus is deposed, and goes into a monastery, and Comnenus was proclaimed emperor by the senate and people, and crowned in the great church by Michael Cerularius the patriarch.	XVI.	454
5364	4057	1058	Comnenus finding the exchequer empty, seizes the churchlands, &c. The patriarch threatens him, for which Comnenus deposed him, and put Constantine Lichudes in his stead.	XVI.	457
5365	4058	1059	The emperor Isaac Comnenus finding himself very ill, resigns the empire, and retires into a monastery, naming Constantine Ducas for his successor, who was accordingly crowned by the patriarch, who applied himself diligently to reform abuses of all sorts, that through the unsettledness of the late times had crept in.	XVI.	458
5368	4061	1062	The Uzians, a Scythian nation, pass the Danube with an army of 500,000 men, and ravage the countries next it. Nicephorus Botoniates (afterwards emperor) and Basilus Apocapes go against them, are put to flight at the first onset, and both taken prisoners, when the Uzians laid waste Thrace and Macedon, and penetrated into Greece, destroying all with fire and sword. The emperor strives to buy a peace with rich presents, and offers to pay an annual tribute, which being refused, after observing a ge-	XVI.	458

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.
			neral fast, he goes against them with a handful of men. A plague breaking out among the enemy, swept away great numbers, and the Hungarians falling upon the remainder, cut almost all off.	XVI.	459
5371	4064	1065	A great earthquake overturned many fine buildings at Constantinople, and a comet appeared for forty days together.	XVI.	459
5371	4064	1065	The emperor Constantine falling ill, obliges his wife Eudocia solemnly to sign an oath, that she would never marry again, which was religiously deposited with the patriarch, and then he appoints her regent and guardian over his three sons, Michael, Andronicus, and Constantine, to whom he left the empire.	XVI.	459
5372	4065	1066	The Turks break into the empire ; the empress gets herself publicly absolved from her oath of widowhood, and marries Romanus Diogenes, who had been condemned for aspiring to the crown, but pardoned by the empress, and he was thereupon proclaimed emperor.	XVI.	460
5373	4066	1067	Romanus being informed the Turks had surprized, taken and plundered Neocesarea, pursued and overtook them, as they were carrying off their booty, fell upon them, cut great numbers to pieces, recovered the spoil, and pursued his march to Aleppo, which he retook, and Hierapolis ; then meets and engages the Turks again, and obtains a complete victory ; upon which several towns submit, and he returns to Constantinople.	XVI.	461
5374	4067	1068	The Turks, during the emperor's absence at Constantinople, defeated Philaretus, who was left to guard the banks of the Euphrates, took Iconium the capital of Cilicia. Romanus goes against them ; they retire with their booty ; the Armenians fall on them, put them to flight, and took their baggage and booty.	XVI.	461
5375	4068	1069	Romanus goes again against the Turks ; Axan the Turkish sultan desires peace, but is refused ; they engage, and John Ducas, brother of the late emperor Constantine, treacherously cries out the emperor was put to flight, and flies himself with his troops to the camp. In the pursuit the Turks killed great numbers ; so that at last the emperor overcome by numbers, was taken prisoner, and used with the utmost honour and respect, and concluding a peace, was sent back to Constantinople to have it confirmed. In his passage is informed, that John brother of Constantine Ducas had driven Eudocia from the throne, and proclaimed her eldest son Michael emperor, and he acted as guardian. Romanus was taken prisoner ; John ordered his eyes to be pulled out, the anguish whereof killed him a few days after.	XVI.	463
5376	4069	1070	Axan the Turkish sultan invades the Roman territories. Isaac Comnenus goes against them, is at first successful, but soon after is utterly defeated and taken prisoner ; then John Ducas the emperor's uncle goes against them, and gets advantages ; but Rufelius a Gaul revolting, reduced several cities in Phrygia and Cappadocia, proclaiming himself emperor. John goes against him, but is defeated and taken prisoner ; but Rufelius, to stop the Turks, released and joined his prisoner, and both go against the Turks, but are both beat and taken prisoners.	XVI.	464
5377	4070	1071	Cutlu-Moses, cousin to Tangrolipix, comes against Axon with a large body of Arabians ; but before they engage, the

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
5378	3071	1072
5379	4072	1073
5384	4077	1078
5387	4080	1081
5387	4080	1081
5387	4080	1081

late kailif of Babylon, who now only acted in spirituals, brought them to this accommodation, that Axan should enjoy the kingdom erected by his father, and Cutlu Moses should enjoy such other provinces as he should conquer.

XVI. 465

Cutlu-Moses, assisted by Axan, wars against the empire, and in a small time conquered Media, Lycaonia, Cappadocia, and Bithynia, fixing his seat at Nice.

XVI. 465

Rufelius being ransomed by his wife, was restored to favour, and entrusted with a command in Asia Minor; revolts afresh, and proclaims himself again emperor, and defeats the troops of Michael; at last Alexius gets him and sends him in chains to Constantinople, and the rebels surrender up the cities, &c. they had taken, and return to their duty; but a famine being at Constantinople, and the emperor to fill his coffers lessened the wheat measure, by which and other avaritious actions, he became so hateful, that Nicephorus Botoniates proclaims himself emperor, supported by the Turks; and at the same time Nicephorus Bryennius, commander at Dyrrachium, did the like, and prepares to march to Constantinople. Michael resigns the empire, and retires to a monastery, took orders, and was soon after made bishop of Ephesus.

XVI. 466

Botoniates enters Constantinople, and was crowned by the patriarch the 25th of May, and sends Alexius Comnenus against Bryennius; they engage at Calaura in Thrace, where Bryennius was beaten and taken prisoner, and then goes against Basilacius, who had proclaimed himself emperor at Dyrrhachium. They engage, and Alexius beats him, and pursues and besieges him in Thessalonica; takes him and sends him to Constantinople, where his eyes were pulled out, and then he was put into a monastery.

XVI. 467

Alexius Comnenus is proclaimed emperor by the army in Thrace, and goes to Constantinople, and seizes the city by surprize, and plunders it. Botoniates resigns and retires to a monastery, and took the habit. Alexius was proclaimed and crowned by the patriarch in April.

XVI. 469

Solyman, son and successor to Cutlu Moses, sends to treat of peace with Alexius, who at first refuses, but is glad afterwards to comply, to go against Robert Guiscard, duke of Puglia and Calabria, son-in-law to Michael the late deposed emperor, who invaded the Roman territories, and besieged Dyrrhachium; but the Venetians coming to the assistance of Alexius, fell upon the enemies fleet, and gave them a total overthrow; then landing and joining Palæologus, the commander of the town, destroyed their works, burnt their engines, and drove them to their camp, and carried off great booty; but Robert continued the attack with great resolution. At last the emperor comes in person against them, and is beat, has the flower of his army cut off, and a vast number of officers of the greatest rank, and was forced to fly, leaving Robert master of his camp and baggage, who then took the city.

XVI. 472

Alexius is forced to strip the churches and monasteries to raise money, which gained him the ill-will of the clergy. Making an alliance with Henry emperor of Germany, gets him to invade Robert's dominions in Italy. Robert goes against him, relieves the pope be-

World.
Y. of Hood.
Y. of Christ.

sieged in the castle of St. Angelo, retakes Rome, and drove them out of Italy. Bohemond defeats Alexius in two battles, takes Illyricum, enters Thessaly, and sits down before Larissa; but after several battles, for want of money to pay his troops, he is forced to return to Italy.

XVI. 473

5387 4080 1081 The Venetians with a powerful fleet engage Robert as auxiliaries to Alexius, and defeat him in two successive battles; but soon after Robert destroyed almost their whole fleet, and used his prisoners very barbarously. The Venetians and Alexius refit and recruit their shattered fleet, and engage Robert again, sunk most of his ships, and took abundance of prisoners. Soon after Robert dies at Cephalenia, aged seventy-nine. Roger his son succeeded him, and recalled his troops, and surrenders the conquests to the emperor Alexius, from whom they had been taken.

XVI. 473

5388 4081 1082 The Scythians cross the Danube, invade Thrace, and lay it waste with great cruelties. Alexius sends Pacurianus and Branas against them; they engage, and through the rashness of Branas, the greater part of the Romans are cut to pieces, and the two generals taken prisoners. Talicius goes against them, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forces the rest to run away.

XVI. 474

5389 4082 1083 The Scythians come again into Thrace; the emperor goes against them in person; and after an obstinate fight, from morning to night, he was forced to retire precipitately, losing a prodigious number of his men by the sword and captivity, Alexius himself very hardly escaping. At the same time the Turks break into the empire, took all the principal places in Asia and the island of Chios; and while the empress's brother was gone into the east, he was again overthrown by the Scythians, who took his camp and baggage, tho' a little after he defeated them.

XVI. 474

5390 4083 1084 The emperor Alexius entirely defeats the Scythians, so that very few escaped, which put an end to the Scythian war; and then Alexius goes against the Turks, with whom his brother-in-law had had several engagements, with various successes.

XVI. 475

from 5390 4083 1084 Tzachas having married the sultan's daughter, revolts and erects a new principality in Smyrna, &c. John Ducas besieges Mitylene by land, and Constantine Delassenus by sea. After much time spent, an engagement happens, in which Tzachas is totally defeated, and a peace concluded, which Tzachas breaking, Delassenus sailed after him, sunk most of his ships, put his men to the sword, Tzachas flies to Smyrna, equips a new fleet, and goes to Abydos. The sultan goes against him in person by land, and Delassenus by sea. Tzachas surrenders himself to his father-in-law, who received him very graciously, but ordered him to be murdered, and then concluded a peace with the emperor.

XVI. 476

5399 4092 1093 The Scythians encouraged by an impostor, that pretended to be Leo son of the late emperor Romanus Diogenes; crossed the Danube, and proclaimed Leo emperor, and besiege Adrianople, where Leo is taken prisoner by stratagem, and 7000 Scythians cut off, 3000 taken, and the rest run away.

XVI. 477

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
5400	4093	1094	The Scythians come into the empire again with a very numerous army, but are overthrown in two successive battles, when a peace was made upon the emperor's own terms, and then Alexius returned to Constantinople loaded with booty.	XVI.	477
5400	4093	1094	The western Christians, by the instigation of one Peter a hermit undertake the recovery of the Holy Land from the Turks. Pope Urban II. having called a council at Clermont in France, where 310 bishops met, and the embassadors of most Christian princes, a religious war was concluded on, and an army of 300,000 raised under the command of several princes.	XVI.	478
5502	4095	1096	Gautier, with 20,000 men, began his march towards Jerusalem, who was followed by Peter the hermit, with 20,000 more; then Godfrey of Bouillon arrives at Philippopolis with 10,000 horse and 70,000 foot, and quarrelling with Alexius, lays the country waste, and marches to Constantinople, where they agree Alexius should supply arms, provisions, and all his forces, and he was to have the provinces that should be taken from the Turks. Peter's army mutinies, and separates into small parties, most of which fall a prey to the Turks; so that out of Peter's 40,000 only 3,000 are left.	XVI.	480
5403	4096	1097	Nice is besieged by Godfrey, &c. the imperial seat of Solyman, the then Turkish sultan, which after two months siege, was surrendered to Butumites, lieutenant to Alexius; among the captives were the wife and two of the children of Solyman, who were sent to Constantinople.	XVI.	481
5403	4096	1097	Bohemond, a prince of Tarrentum, is attacked by Solyman at the head of 60,000 Turks; but being joined by Hugh, brother to Philip I. king of France, beat the Turks, cut off 40,000, and forced the rest to fly into the mountains.	XVI.	481
5403	4096	1097	On the 21st of October, the Christians set down before Antioch, which was garrisoned with 7,000 horse and 20,000 foot, so that it held out till June, 1098, following, and a few days after engaging Corbenus, the Sultan of Persia's general, killed and took 100,000 of his men, with the loss only of 4200 Christians.	XVI.	482
5404	4097	1098	Tangripermes, a Turkish pirate, seized the cities of Smyrna and Ephesus, reduced the islands of Rhodes and Chios, and committed dreadful ravages; but the fleet and army of Alexius beating the pirates, they were again recovered.	XVI.	483
5405	4098	1099	The success of Alexius over the Turks so elated him, that he demands Antioch from Bohemond, who was created prince thereof by the confederate princes; upon which Bohemond demanded and took Laodicea, &c. Alexius, in revenge attack the supplies coming from the west, and gave them a total overthrow, and has most of his own fleet destroyed by a storm. He also besieged and took Laodicea; thus a war ensued, and Bohemond besieges Dyrrhachium, but his army being streightened for want of necessaries, a peace was honourably concluded.	XVI.	484
5406	4099	1100	Alexius goes against the Turks, and totally overthrows them near Nice.	XVI.	484

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
5407	4100	1101	The Turks come again into the empire, but are defeated in several successive battles; so that they sue for peace, which the emperor grants.	XVI.	484
5424	4117	1118	The emperor Alexius dies in the 37th year of his reign, and is succeeded by his son John, and crowned in the great church by the patriarch; and soon after a conspiracy is formed in favour of his brother-in-law Bryennius, but discovered and disappointed.	XVI.	485
5426	4119	1120	The Turks break the peace, and again invade the empire. The emperor John goes against them in person, beats them several times, and recovers several cities, &c, and then they sue for peace, which he grants.	XVI.	486
5427	4120	1121	The Scythians pass the Danube, and entering Thrace, destroy all with fire and sword. John goes against them, cuts a prodigious number of them to pieces, takes many prisoners, and drives the remainder over the Danube; then he overcame the Servii and the Hunns, and made them repass the Danube, went after them, took their strong holds, and forced them to accept of such terms as he thought fit to grant them.	XIV.	486
5430	4123	1124	The Turks having again broke the peace, John goes against and drives them every one before him, and took abundance of cities, &c.	XVI.	486
5446	4139	1140	John goes into the east with an intent to recover Antioch, then held by the Latins, but was not able to accomplish his purpose.	XVI.	487
5449	4142	1143	John being wounded with a poisoned arrow at Cilicia, occasioned his death the 8th of April, in the 24th year of his reign. He appointed his youngest son Manuel to succeed him in the empire, who accordingly did so, and seized his brother Isaac, and confined him to a monastery to prevent his pretensions to the crown.	XVI.	488
5450	4143	1144	The emperor Manuel goes against the Turks, and reduces several cities in Phrygia, which they had taken; returns to Constantinople, and married Gertrude, sister-in-law to Conrade emperor of Germany.	XVI.	488
5452	4145	1146	Conrade, &c. designing to go against the Turks in Palestine, Manuel promised to furnish forage, &c. for the troops; but instead thereof, laid waste the countries, and shut up the towns through which they were to pass, and the Greeks mixed quick lime with the flower they sold them, which occasioned a dreadful mortality among the Christian troops, and likewise gave private intelligence to the Turks, &c. Roger king of Sicily, to revenge the affront, took the island of Corcyra, took and plundered Corinth and Thebes, &c. but through the mediation of the pope, peace is concluded, after they had done much mischief to each other.	XVI.	490
5464	4157	1158	Manuel goes against the Turks with a great army, who sue for peace, but are refused. Soon after the emperor is much wounded, and his army not only greatly harassed and killed by showers of darts, but entirely shut up by the Turks, who then propose peace, and it is agreed to; but the emperor not performing the conditions, the sultan sends 24,000 men into Phrygia, who kill all they meet with; but the emperor's forces coming up with them, cut all off to a man, and recovered the whole booty.	XVI.	491

Y. of
Christ. 1180
Y. of Hood. 4179
Y. of
World. 54

Manuel dies in the 38th year of his reign, having for some time before taken the monastic habit, to atone for the debaucheries of his youth. He was succeeded by his son Alexius Comnenus, a youth of twelve years old, whose mother governed with an absolute sway, and neglecting the empire, strove only to amass wealth by extortion, &c. The Turks break into Phrygia, takes Sozopolis, &c. Andronicus, cousin-german to the late emperor, got himself proclaimed guardian of the emperor, and under that title committed most dreadful cruelties upon the Constantinopolitans, pretending great affection for the emperor, orders him to be solemnly crowned 1183, when his partisans cry out long live Alexius and Andronicus, Roman emperors, and so both were crowned; but a few days after Andronicus ordered Alexius to be strangled, and then put all the nobility to death, from whom he feared any opposition.

XVI. 494

5490 4183 1184 Alexius Comnenus, brother to the late emperor Manuel, excites William king of Sicily to war against Andronicus, who takes Dyrrhachium, then goes to Thessalonica, and takes it by storm, and plunders and murders all the people; then he engages and defeats the army of Andronicus, which so provoked him, that he glutted his revenge upon all without distinction, which so alienated his subjects from him, that they proclaimed Isaac Angelus emperor. Andronicus endeavours to fly into Scythia, is taken and delivered in chains to Isaac, who cut off one of his hands, and pulled out one of his eyes, and then delivered him to the enraged populace, who after glutting their revenge upon him, killed him in the second year of his reign.

XVI. 495

5491 4184 1185 Isaac now emperor, recalls all the banished nobility, &c. and restores all the confiscated estates, &c. and then sent an army under Branas against the Sicilians, who cut them almost all off to a man, and their fleet, consisting of 200 sail, being dispersed by a storm, was mostly taken by the emperor's admiral. Vast numbers of prisoners were sent to Constantinople, where the emperor ordered them to be starved to death.

XVI. 496

5492 4185 1186 The emperor sends a mighty fleet and army against Isaac Comnenus, who had seized the island of Cyprus, but both were entirely destroyed; upon this the Mæsiens revolt, and join the Scythians, who over-ran the neighbouring provinces. He sends his uncle John Ducas against them, who gains several advantages against them; but being jealous, he recalls him, and sends John Cantacuzenus in his stead, whose rashness and indiscretion gave the enemy opportunity frequently to defeat him; then he sends Branas. Alexius gets some advantages, and then suddenly goes to Adriople, and proclaims himself emperor, and marches directly to Constantinople where the emperor Isaac engages and kills him, and puts an end to the rebellion.

XVI. 497

5494 4187 1188 Frederic Barbarossa, emperor of Germany, marching at the head of a great army to support the Crusade, had been promised provisions and support while he passed thro' Isaac's dominions; but when the bishop of Münster, the earl of Nassau, and count Walram, Frederic's ambassadors, came to Constantinople, Isaac threw them into prison, and by his armies obstructed Frederic's passage, and seized on their provisions; upon which the Germans go into Thrace, and seize all the corn they find, and then defeated Isaac's army, and all the country between the Ægean and Euxine sea, submits to Frederic. Isaac sets the embassadors at liberty, and sues for peace, which he obtains on very severe terms.

XVI. 499

5498 4191 1192 An impostor sets up to be the son of the late emperor Mantiel, and being supported by the sultan of Iconium, took all the cities of the Meander; but a priest taking the opportunity of his being drunk, stabbed and killed him.

XVI. 499

5499 4192 1193 The Scythians invade the empire, and destroy all with fire and sword. The emperor goes against them, but has the greatest part of his army cut to pieces. He then sends Alexius Guido, who was also defeated; after that Batatzes Basilus, who was killed and the greatest part of his army on the spot.

XVI. 499

5500 4293 1193 The emperor again goes against the Scythians, and his army proclaims his brother Alexius Angelus emperor; upon which Isaac flies to Macra, is taken, and has his eyes put out, and cast into prison, in the 9th year of his reign. Alexius reigns very badly, and the Scythians and Turks laid waste and took all the best provinces through his negligence, he suffering his wife and favourites to govern in all things.

XVI. 500

5508 4201 1202 Alexius releases his brother Isaac out of prison, and calls his son Alexius, then twelve years old, to court, from whence some time after making his escape, he goes to the pope, who warmly recommended him to Philip emperor of Germany, his brother-in-law, who engaged the French and Venetians to put young Alexius upon the throne, who sailed for Corfu. At their arrival at Dyrrhachium, the inhabitants swear allegiance to him, and then sailed to Chalcedon, and landed their troops; and soon after taking Constantinople, the emperor retires to Zagora in Thrace, with the imperial ornaments and his treasures, and then Isaac and his son were both declared emperors, and crowned the first of August, 1203; then they pursued Alexius to Adrianople, and drove him quite away.

XVI. 502

5509 4202 1203 A dreadful conflagration happened in Constantinople, that burnt down a great part of the city.

XVI. 502

5510 4203 1204 The emperor Isaac dies and Alexius being forced to lay heavy taxes upon his people, to pay his deliverers what he owed them by contract, occasioned great complaints; which being fomented by John Ducas, surnamed Murtzuphlus, who sends in the emperor's name to the marquis of Monferrat, offering to deliver up the palace and fortress of Blachernæ in Constantinople, (who prepares to come) and then gives out that the emperor had sold the city to the Latins, who were in full march to take possession; and in the uproar goes into his chamber and strangles him, and then his creatures proclaimed him emperor; this enraged the confederate princes of the west so far, that they come and besiege Constantinople, which they took by storm, and murdered all they met. This great revolution happened 874 years after the removal of the imperial seat from Rome to Constantinople.

XVI. 505

5510 4203 1204 Baldwin earl of Flanders is elected emperor of Constantinople, and crowned with extraordinary magnificence in the church of St. Sophia, and is allowed Constantinople and Thrace, and a limited power over the other provinces. Boniface, Marquis of Montserrat, has Thessaly, which was erected into a kingdom. The Venetians had the islands of the Archipelago, part of Peloponnesus, and several cities in the Hellespont.

XVI. 505

55104203 1204 Theodorus Lascaris, son-in-law to Alexius Angelus, escaping from his confinement in Constantinople into Bithynia, was joyfully received, and making himself master of Phrygia, Mysia, Ionia, and Lydia, took upon him the title of emperor, and fixed his imperial seat at Nice; and David and Alexius Comnenus seizing on Pontus, Galatia, and Capadocia, erected a new empire at Trabezond.

XVIII. 308

55104203 1204 David and Alexius Comneni, grandsons to the tyrant Andronicus, escaping out of Constantinople, seized on the most easterly parts of Pontus, Galatia and Cappadocia, fixed their residence in the famous city of Trabezond, and erected the aforesaid countries into an empire, called the empire of Trabezond. (Some call it a kingdom, and others a lordship, till the year of Christ 1260.

XVIII. 307

55124205 1206 John king of Bulgaria marches against Baldwin first emperor of the Latins in Constantinople, as he was besieging Adrianople, defeats his army with great slaughter, relieves the city, and carries the emperor prisoner to Terno, the then capital of Bulgaria, where he caused his hands and feet to be cut off, and his body to be thrown into a neighbouring valley, and there after three days extreme misery, he died, and was devoured by wild beasts.

XIX. 424

55124205 1206 Theodorus Lascaris engages the sultan Jathatines at Antioch, kills and cuts off his head; upon which the Turks fly and leave the Greeks masters of their camp and baggage. Alexius Angelus, author of the war, was taken prisoner, carried to Nice, and confined to a monastery by his son-in-law Lascaris, who makes a peace with the Turks upon his own terms.

XVI. 508

55124205 1206 Henry, brother of Baldwin, succeeded him as emperor of the Latins at Constantinople, and first warred with the Scythians, and drove them out of Thrace, then he was at war with Lascaris emperor of Nice, who at last was forced to acknowledge him; and then with Michael Angelus, who seized Ætolia and Epirus, and called himself lord or despot of the country, but could not dislodge him.

XVI. 508

55244217 1218 Henry emperor of Constantinople dies in the 11th year of his reign, and is succeeded by Peter count of Auxerre, his brother-in-law, who was crowned at Rome by pope Honorius III. on the 9th of April. From Rome he goes to Venice, and makes an alliance with that republic against Theodorus, who succeeded his brother as despot or lord of Ætolia and Epirus; goes and besieges Dyrrhachium, which Theodorus had lately taken. At last they came to an agreement, and Theodorus promises him a free passage; but suddenly falls upon him, cuts most of his forces to pieces, took him prisoner, and put him to death, and he was succeeded by Robert his second son, Philip count of Namur, his eldest son, refusing to accept it.

XVI. 509

55284221 1222 Theodorus Lascaris emperor of Nice dies, and is succeeded by his son-in-law John Ducas, surnamed Vataces, who was crowned by Manuel, patriarch of the Greeks at Nice. Alexius and Angelus, brothers to the deceased emperor, apply to the Latins, who furnish them with an army. John engages them, cuts off the flower of their army, and takes them both prisoners. Then building a fleet, he falls upon the Latins in the islands of the Archipelago, drove them before him, and took most of the islands.

XVIII. 309

5532 4225 1226 Assan king of Bulgaria gives his daughter Helena to wife to Theodore, son of the emperor Ducas, and makes an alliance with the emperor Ducas; likewise renews the peace between him and the sultan of Iconium; and then takes all the places on the Bosphorus and Hellespont, held by the Latins; and Theodorus prince of Epirus invades and takes Thessaly and Thrace, assumes the title of emperor, and is crowned by the patriarch of Bulgaria; and then, tho' he had lately concluded a peace with John king of Bulgaria, he broke into his country; but John, after a long and bloody dispute, routed his army, took him prisoner, and put out his eyes.

XVI. 510

5534 4227 1228 Robert, emperor of the Latins in Constantinople, dies at Achaia, and is succeeded by Baldwin II. his son a child of eight years old, and John Brienne, formerly king of Jerusalem, is appointed regent.

XVI. 510

5541 4234 1235 John Ducas the Greek emperor, and John Azen king of Bulgaria, besiege Constantinople; but the regent falling out very vigorously, put their whole army to flight, consisting of 100,000 men, killed a great number, and forced them to raise the siege.

XVI. 511

5542 4235 1239 Robert and John come again before Constantinople, and are again defeated and put to flight; but through frequent sallies and encounters, the Latins are reduced to few in number, whereupon the regent retires into the imperial city, and sends the young emperor to solicit the western princes personally for assistance. The Venetians come with a powerful fleet, and force Azen and Vataces to raise the siege.

XVI. 511

5543 4236 1237 John Brienne, the regent at Constantinople, dies, in the 9th year of his administration. The Bulgarians and Greeks quarrel, so that John Azen joins the Latins, and lays siege to Chiorli, but soon after raises it.

XVI. 511

5544 4237 1238 Anne, wife of John king of Bulgaria, dying, he marries the daughter of Theodorus, late despot of Epirus, whom he had taken prisoner, and deprived of his sight some years before; upon which Azen sets Theodorus at liberty, and assists him to recover his dominions from Manuel his brother, which done Theodorus appoints his son to govern in his stead, causing him to be acknowledged emperor.

XVI. 512

5544 4237 1238 John Azen king of Bulgaria dying, John Vataces emperor of Nice makes an alliance with the Scythians in Macedon, enters the dominions of Theodorus, takes a great part of them, forces him to lay down the title of emperor, and be content with that of despot.

XVI. 512

5545 4238 1239 The emperor Baldwin returning from the west, upon his arrival at Constantinople is crowned emperor by the patriarch in the church of St. Sophia, makes an alliance with the

Y. of world.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
			Comneni at Trabezond, and by their assistance besieges and takes Chiorli from the emperor of Nice; who soon after retook it, and the island of Rhodes.	XVIII. 312
5561	4254	1255	John Ducas or Vataces , emperor of Nice, dies, and is succeeded by his son Theodorus Lascaris II. who renewing the antient alliance with the sultan of Iconium, passes the Hellespont, and wars with the Bulgarians, and the despot of Epirus, who had invaded Macedon and Thrace, and was so successful as to compel them to accept of peace, upon such terms as he thought fit to allow them.	XVIII. 309
5562	4255	1256	The Tartars cut off the troops belonging to the sultan of Iconium, and reduce him to such streights, that he flies to the emperor Theodorus Lascaris , who receives him kindly, and sends him back with an army commanded by Isaac Ducas , a general of great note, for which the sultan surrendered the city of Laodicea to Lascaris .	XVI. 513
5564	4257	1258	Theodorus Lascaris , emperor of Nice, dies, and is succeeded by his son John , a child of nine years old, and appointed Arsenius the patriarch, and George Muzalo , his guardians; but while the funeral obsequies were performing for the deceased emperor, the nobility fall upon and murder Muzalo and his two brothers, and then declared Michael Paleologus guardian, who immediately goes against Michael Angelus , despot of Epirus, who had broke into Thrace and Macedon, engages and routs him with great slaughter.	XVIII. 309
5565	4258	1259	Michael Paleologus , guardian to the young emperor of Nice, is declared emperor, and crowned by the patriarch; and then he recovered Peloponnesus from the Latins, and the despot of Epirus.	XVIII. 310
5567	4260	1261	Alexius Strategopulus , general under the emperor Paleologus , surprizes Constantinople, kills all he meets with, and sets fire to it in four places at one time. Baldwin the Latin emperor of Constantinople, and the Latin patriarch, and some other of his intimate friends, fly to Venice. Soon after Paleologus settles his affairs at Nice, and then goes to Constantinople, with the empress, his son Andronicus , the senate and the nobility, to take possession of that imperial city, and to fix his residence there.	XVI. 515
5569	4262	1263	Baldwin , the deposed Latin emperor, marries his daughter to Charles king of Sicily, and gave him Constantinople for her dowry. Charles makes preparations to come and take it. Paleologus orders himself to be crowned emperor a new, and then puts out the eyes of the young emperor John , to whom he had sworn to resign the empire when of age; for which Arsenius the patriarch excommunicated him: And Michael despot of Epirus, and Constantine king of Bulgaria, who had married the young emperor's sisters, broke into Thrace, and laid it waste. Paleologus goes against them, has most of his troops cut to pieces and taken prisoners, and hardly escapes himself. The Venetians seized the islands of the Archipelago. Paleologus sends to pope Urban IV. and promises to submit to the Latin church; upon which peace is made, and in a council held at Lyons, in 1274, Paleologus acknowledged the pope's supremacy.	XVI. 518
5580	4273	1274	Joseph the patriarch of Constantinople, and all the clergy, oppose what Paleologus had done at Lyons, which so enraged him, that he racked some, whipped others, imprisoned many, banished the patriarch Joseph , and put

Y. of world.	Y. of A.D.	Y. of Christ.	Text	Vol.	Page.
			Veccus in his stead, which occasioned many uproars, seditions, and a universal uneasiness.	XVI.	518
5581	4274	1275	Stephen, the fourth king of Hungary, upon overcoming Cea prince of Bulgaria, by cutting his whole army to pieces, was acknowledged king of Hungary and Bulgaria.	XIX.	424
5587	4280	1281	John emperor of Trabezond goes to Constantinople, and marries Eudocia Palæologina, daughter to Michael Palæologus emperor of the east, (as he called himself.)	XVIII.	317
5589	4282	1283	Pope Martin IV. excommunicates Michael Palæologus for contributing to the famous massacre of the French in Sicily, commonly known by the name of the Sicilian Vespers, on Easter-day, March 30, 1282, which with his other fatigues threw him into a lingering illness as he was marching against the Turks, and after receiving the ambassadors of the Tartars daily increasing, he died in the 24th year of his age, and was succeeded by his son Andronicus.	XVI.	519
5589	4282	1283	Andronicus begins his reign with restoring the ceremonies of the Greek church, and refusing to acknowledge the pope's supremacy: This threw the whole empire into a ferment; his brother Constantine was the darling of the people for overthrowing the Turks in several engagements, wherefore Andronicus orders him to be thrown into prison, and several other persons of great distinction. The Turks under Othoman take several places in Phrygia, Caria, and Bithynia, and the city of Nice. Andronicus sends Philanthropenus against them, who gets several advantages over them, and then proclaims himself emperor. Libadarius, general for Andronicus, goes against him, and as they were going to engage, he was seized by the Cretans, and delivered to Libadarius, who put out his eyes. The mean while the Turks extend their conquests in Asia, and in the Mediterranean. Andronicus hires 10,000 Massagetes, who do him great harm; then he hires a body of Catalans, who revolt and join the Turks, this first brought the Turks into Europe. Michael having been declared emperor with his father, goes with a body of Greeks, Massagetes, &c. against the Catalans and Turks; but the auxiliaries become neuter, and Michael is routed; then the Catalans and Turks over-run Thrace, destroying all with fire and sword. The Catalans resolve to invade Thessaly: The Turks acquaint the emperor, if he would let them pass they would return home; to which the emperor consents, and orders ships, &c. to be got ready; but the Greek officers longing for their booty, contrive to fall upon and cut them to pieces in the night: This being discovered, the Turks send word to their countrymen of their danger, and fortify themselves in a strong castle: More Turks come and destroy all before them; Andronicus marches against them with all his force; the Turks fall out, and put the besiegers to a disorderly flight, took many officers, and the emperor's camp, the military chest, several standards, the imperial crown, and all the baggage.	XVI.	523
5597	4290	1291	Pope Nicholas the 4th earnestly endeavours to engage John emperor of Trabezond in the Holy War.	XVIII.	317
5601	4294	1295	John Comnenus emperor of Trabezond dying, is succeeded by his eldest son Alexius II. in the empire, who reigned eight years.	XVIII.	317

World.	Y. of Hood.	Y. of Christ.
5602	4295	1296	Philas Palæologus (a relation of the emperor, and a person of great piety, but no soldier) undertakes to go against the Turks with a small body of men, and engages Chaleb the Turkish general, who had been ravaging the country with 1000 foot and 200 horse, and entirely destroyed them.	XVI. 524
5609	4302	1303	Alexius II. emperor of Trabezond dying, is succeeded by his son Basilus , who reigned 17 years.	XVIII. 318
5622	4315	1316	The emperor Andronicus tells the patriarch Gerasimus , that as his grandson and heir Andronicus could not by any means be reclaimed, he intended to secure him. The patriarch tells the young prince, and he escapes to Adrianople , where he is proclaimed emperor by the army; but his grandfather proclaims him a publick enemy and a traitor, and obliges the Constantinopolitans to take the oath of allegiance to himself a-fresh. The young prince sends a body of troops against Constantinople ; his grandfather dispatches Theoleptus , bishop of Philadelphia , and other persons of distinction to him with proposals of an accommodation, which at last was thus concluded; that the empire should be divided, and the prince have Thrace and the suburbs of Constantinople ; and the emperor the city of Constantinople , and all the cities and islands in the east and west. The Turks in the mean time enlarge their dominions in Asia , reduce most of the places on the Meander , and take Prusa in Bithynia , which they entered in 1327, where Orchanes upon the death of his father Othoman settled the seat of the Turkish empire. The young and old emperors of Constantinople quarrel again, but at last matters are made up, and the grandfather admits the grandson to be his colleague; and he and his wife Anne of Savoy , whom he had lately married, were solemnly crowned in the church of St. Sophia ; but the young one wanting to rule alone, flew out again, committed open hostilities, and took Constantinople by treachery, and deprived his father of all rule and authority in 1328, but permitted him to live in the palace, and wear the ensigns of majesty, and allowed him 24,000 pieces of gold for his yearly maintenance.	XVI. 531
5626	4319	1320	Basilus I. emperor of Trabezond, dies, and is succeeded by his son Basilus II. who after a reign of 19 years, is murdered by his wife Irene , who reigned in his stead.	XVIII. 318
5634	4327	1328	The king of Bulgaria enters Thrace , and lays the country waste, &c. but Andronicus coming unexpectedly towards him, he retires and leaves great part of his booty behind: Andronicus pursued him, and carried the war into Bulgaria , ravaged the country, and destroyed all with fire and sword, and then concludes a peace.	XVI. 531
5636	4329	1330	Othoman being lately dead, Andronicus recovers Nice , &c. which Orchanes his son and successor soon after retakes, and overthrows the emperor's army, who flying leave their camp, baggage, and arms to the enemy, and all the emperor's plate and furniture.	XVI. 532
5636	4329	1330	The old emperor Andronicus , to make the court easy, retires voluntarily into a monastery, where having lived two years, he dies.	XVI. 533

World.	X. of Hood.	Y. of Chrif.	Y. of		Vol.	Page.
5644	4337	1338		Andronicus makes a very dishonourable peace with the Turks, yielding all their conquests to them.	XVI.	533
5646	4339	1340		The inhabitants of Theffaly revolt: The emperor marches against them in person. The Turks break the peace, and ravage the sea coasts, then repass the Streights with immense booty and great numbers of captives.	XVI.	533
5647	4340	1341		Andronicus dies, and his eldest son John succeeded him, who being but nine years old, John Cantacuzenus was appointed his guardian, and behaved with the greatest uprightness and care possible; but being opposed by John the patriarch, who continually represented every thing in an evil light to Anne the empress, she at last declared him a publick enemy, and a traitor; upon which the army, at the head whereof he then was at Didymothicum, declared Cantacuzenus emperor.	XVI.	535
5648	4341	1342		All the friends and relations of Cantacuzenus at Constantinople are thrown into goal, his estate confiscated, and an army sent against him. He writes to the patriarch, exhorting him to peace and concord; but the messengers were thrown into prison. At last Cantacuzenus goes to Constantinople; the citizens open their gates, and salute him emperor; and an accommodation is come to, in which the empress, &c. allowed him to be colleague with her son John, which was sworn to by Cantacuzenus, John Palæologus, and the empress, on the 8th of February 1347. He was soon after crowned by Isidore, the patriarch of Constantinople. Cantacuzenus marries his daughter to young Palæologus, and so settled all things in quiet, and caused her to be crowned and acknowledged empress by the nobility, senate, &c.	XVI.	538
5659	4352	1353		The Genoese of Galata now become very powerful at sea, being denied the liberty to enlarge their city, set fire to the suburbs of Constantinople, seized the emperor's ships then riding in the harbour, and made open war on the empire, gained advantages at sea, and seized some islands in the Archipelago.	XVI.	538
5662	4356	1357		Crales king of the Servians sows discord between the two emperors, so that they come to an open rupture: The young prince's army was overthrown in Thrace, and he forced to take refuge in Constantinople, all the other cities submitting to Cantacuzenus: However, soon after a peace was concluded, and Cantacuzenus resigned up all authority, and went into a monastery at Maugana, but his son Matthew, whom he had declared emperor, pursued the war.	XVI.	539
5663	4356	1357		John Palæologus goes against Matthew his brother-in law; they engage, and Matthew is defeated, and forced to quit the field, but was soon after taken, and upon renouncing all claim to the crown set at liberty.	XVI.	539
5663	4356	1357		The Turks under Solyman, one of the sons of Orchanes, passed the Hellespont, took the strong castle of Coiriducustron; then went to Gallipolis, and defeated the governor, and took the place, which gave them their first settlement in Europe, where they have continued ever since.	XVI.	539
5664	4357	1358		The sultan Orchanes dying, Amurath his son and successor

Y. of world.	Y. of Abd.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Page.
			pursued the conquests begun by Solyman, mastered several parts of Thrace, and made Adrianople the seat of his empire in Europe.	XVI.	539
5666	4359	1360	Andronicus, the emperor's eldest son, having contracted an intimacy with Contuzes, Amurath's eldest son, they conspire to murder their respective fathers, and to live in strict union between themselves: They are discovered, have their eyes pulled out, and are then cast into prison.	XVI.	540
5668	4361	1362	Blind Andronicus, by the help of the Genoese of Galata, escapes, and makes war upon his father, takes Constantinople, and gets his father and brother Manuel, who had been declared his successor, into his power, and imprisons them.	XVI.	540
5670	4363	1364	Old Andronicus and Manuel escape out of prison, upon which blind Andronicus yields up the empire to them, rather than engage in a civil war again.	XVI.	540
5671	4364	1365	The sultan Amurath being treacherously slain, is succeeded by his son Bajazet, who pursuing the former conquests in Europe, adds Thessaly, Macedon, Phocis, Peloponnesus, Mysia, and Bulgaria to them.	XVI.	540
5675	4368	1369	The Bulgarians by the assistance of the Greek emperors having shook off the Hungarian yoke, attempt the recovery of Adrianople, under the conduct of their king Saimones, from the Turks; but are utterly defeated by Amurath.	XIX.	525
5675	4368	1369	Bajazet enters Bulgaria with a great army, makes an intire conquest of it, and turns it into a Turkish province, which it remains to this day.	XIX.	425
5697	4390	1391	Bajazet sends to Andronicus, demands a yearly tribute, and his son Manuel to attend him in his wars, which, as Andronicus was now not able to resist, was performed.	XVI.	540
5698	4391	1392	Andronicus emperor of Constantinople dies, and is succeeded by Manuel his son, then at Bajazet's court, who comes away without taking his leave; for which Bajazet immediately comes into Thrace, and destroys with fire and sword all the country round Constantinople, which he invested by sea and land. The western princes send Sigismund king of Hungaria, and John count of Nevers, with an army of 130,000 men to his assistance, who besieging Nicopolis, Bajazet raises the siege of Constantinople, and goes against them: They engage; Bajazet conquers, kills 20,000, took their camp and baggage, count Nevers, and 300 great officers, and 20,000 soldiers: All the officers, except count Nevers and five others, were put to death.	XVI.	541
5699	4392	1393	Bajazet returns to the siege of Constantinople, which finding resolutely defended, privately agrees with John the son of blind Andronicus to set him upon the throne, Bajazet to have Constantinople, and John to remove the imperial seat to Peloponnesus: This signed and sealed, Bajazet acquaints the inhabitants he would retire, if they would drive out Manuel and set John upon the throne: The city was immediately ready to fall into a civil war; Manuel for peace-sake sends to John, then in the Turkish camp, and offers to resign upon leave given him, his wife, and children, to retire where they thought fit: This was agreed to, and John went into the city, and Manuel went first to Venice, then to other courts, soliciting help against the Turks. John was crowned; Bajazet reminds him of their agreement, and pressed him to surrender Constantinople, and retire to Peloponesus: The citizens refused; Bajazet renews the siege, and reduced them to extrem necessities; but news being brought that Tamerlane the Tartar, having subdued all Persia, was coming into Asia against Bajazet, he raised the siege to go against him: They engage in the plains of Angoria in Galatia, the 28th of July 1401, where after cutting most of Bajazet's men to pieces, himself was taken prisoner, put into an iron cage, and shewn, where he is said to have dashed out his own brains in 1402.

XVI. 543

5708 4401 1402 Manuel retires to Constantinople, where he is received with extraordinary joy, and John deposed and banished to the island of Lesbos. Bajazet's five sons rend and tear the Turkish empire for 10 years with fierce civil wars; but at last Mohammed the youngest having overcome the others, was proclaimed sultan of the whole Turkish empire. Manuel improved this time, and recovered several provinces, which Mohammed for the assistance he had given him suffered him quietly to enjoy till his death in 1424.

XVI. 543

5730 4423 1424 John son of Manuel succeeds his father, who having supported one Mustapha, a pretended son of Bajazet's, against Amurath II. son of Mohammed, Amurath to revenge the affront besieges Constantinople; but his younger brother Mustapha, supported by the prince of Caramania, revolts in Asia, and proclaims himself sultan. Amurath raises the siege, and goes against him, who was treacherously delivered up to Amurath, and by him strangled. Amurath goes against the prince of Caramania, and compels him to accept of what terms he thought fit to give him. Then he entered Macedon and Greece, and took all those provinces; then reduced Servia, then besieged Belgrade, where the Christians killed 15,000 Turks in one sally, and forced Amurath to raise the siege; and in his return John Hunniades (the famous Hungarian prince) cut great numbers of Amurath's men to pieces; and soon after engaging him again, killed 20,000 Turks on the spot, and as many in the pursuit. Amurath sends two other armies more numerous than the former into Transylvania, which were cut off almost to a man by the same brave Hungarian, who also recovered from the Turks all Bulgaria and Servia, but at last was overcome in the fatal battle of Verna, in the year 1444, where Uladislaus king of Hungaria was also cut to pieces.

XVI. 544

5750 4443 1444 Hunniades is chose protector of the kingdom of Hungaria during the minority of young Ladislaus. Hunniades engaged Amurath at Cassana for three days together, where overpowered by numbers, the third day the Christians were routed, in 1448: In this battle 34,000 Turks were slain, and 8000 Christians, with the flower of the Hungarian nobility.

XVI. 545

5754 4447 1448 The Greek emperor John sends to Adrianople to Amurath to conclude a peace; Amurath demands some strong holds on the Euxine sea, and 300,000 aspers a year tribute, which he is forced to yield to.

XVI. 545

John emperor of Constantinople, in order to gain assistance from the western princes, went to the council held at Ferrara, attended by the patriarch Joseph, a great number of prelates, and the flower of the Greek nobility, in order to settle the disputes between the Latin and Greek churches. The plague raging at Ferrara, the council moved to Florence, where the union was effected between the two churches, and subscribed by the patriarch and the other prelates. Upon his return the people being highly dissatisfied with what had been done at the council, this with other calamities threw the emperor into an illness, of which he died, in the 27th year of his reign.

Constantine brother of John succeeded to the empire, now confined to Constantinople only.

John II. son of Alexius 3d emperor of Trabezond, having murdered his father, set himself upon the throne.

Amurat the sultan dies, and is succeeded by his son Mohammed, who immediately strangled all his brothers: He built a castle about five miles from Constantinople, called Genichicar, but by the Greeks, Neo Castrum; repaired another over-against it called Aspocastron; these two commanded the Streights of the Bosphorus, and shut up Constantinople, from whence the garrisons made frequent excursions: This begot a quarrel; Mohammed sends Caracia, who took what places the emperor had on the Euxine sea, and besieged Constantinople, took St. Stephen's tower by assault, and put the garrison to the sword; and other forts submitted, Selymbria only held out, which at last overcome by frequent assaults, was taken, and every man put to the sword.

On the sixth of April, Mohammed sits down before the imperial city of Constantinople with an army of 300,000 men; the besieged behaved themselves with the utmost bravery, and by frequent sallies cut off vast numbers of the enemy, and destroyed their works; but Mohammed encreasing his army by continual reinforcements to 400,000, and battering the walls night and day, and a fleet of 300 ships blocked the city up by sea; but four Genoese and one Greek ship sailing into the midst of them, sunk some, disabled others, and made dreadful havock of the whole, and brought the city relief of corn, &c. but the besieged tired out, the emperor sends to the sultan, offering to acknowledge himself his vassal, and pay a yearly tribute, if he would raise the siege and go away; to which Mohammed answered, he was determined to have the city; but if he would deliver it up immediately, he would yield Peloponnesus to him, and other provinces to his brothers, which Constantine refuses. On Tuesday the 19th of May the Turks began the attack at 3 in the morning, and after a prodigious number were killed, the enemy took the city by storm, put the emperor, nobles, and inhabitants all to the sword, and plundered it for three days successively, when Mohammed entered it in triumph, chose it for the seat of his empire, and promised all the natives that would stay or come there liberty to live unmolested, with the free exercise of

XVI.	546
XVI.	546
XVIII.	320
XVI.	548

Y. of Christ.

Y. of Flood.

Y. of

world.

the Christian religion. Thus the death of the last Roman emperor, the loss of Constantinople, and the final dissolution of the Constantinopolitan Roman empire happened the 29th of May, this year of the Christian Æra.

5768 4451 1462 Mohammed the great sultan of the Turks besieges and takes Trabezond, and murders all the royal family of Comnenus, and thereby put an end to the empire of Trabezond, 258 years after its erection.

F I N I S.